Sec. 44.77.018. Claims for wrongful conviction and imprisonment. (a) To obtain compensation for wrongful conviction and imprisonment, a person must file a claim with the attorney general as provided in this section. The person filing a claim must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the person was convicted of one or more offenses, was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, served all or any part of the sentence, and

(1) either

   (A) the conviction on which the sentence was imposed was vacated or reversed because the person was not guilty and

       (i) the charges on which the conviction was based were later dismissed; or

       (ii) the person was retried and found not guilty; or

   (B) the person was pardoned because of innocence and wrongful conviction; and

(2) the person did not

   (A) commit any of the crimes charged in the criminal action in which the person was convicted;

   (B) commit perjury, induce another person to commit perjury, or fabricate evidence in a manner that caused the conviction; in this subparagraph, a false confession or admission or a guilty plea to a crime the person did not commit does not constitute cause for conviction.

(b) A person is not entitled to compensation under this section for a period of imprisonment for which the person was serving a concurrent sentence for another crime to which this section does not apply.

(c) A person who meets the requirements of this section is entitled to compensation in the amount of $50,000 multiplied by the number of years served in prison, expressed as a fraction to reflect partial years, up to a maximum of $2,000,000.

(d) A person who receives compensation under this section may not bring any action involving the same subject matter, including an action involving the person's arrest, conviction, or length of confinement, against the state or a municipal government or an official or employee of the state or a municipal government.

(e) A claim under this section must be filed within two years after the subsequent dismissal, not guilty verdict, or pardon under (a) of this section, except that the attorney general may authorize payment for a claim for wrongful imprisonment not filed within two years if the person filing the claim shows good cause for the delay.

(f) A person who meets the requirements of this section, in addition to the compensation under (c) of this section, is entitled to the following programs and services at no cost to the person:

(1) reentry services provided by the Department of Health and Social Services under AS 44.29.020;

26 years of age;

(3) job training skills for at least three years through an appropriate state program;

(4) up to 10 years of state-funded health coverage that offers services equivalent to medical assistance services available under AS 47.07.030; and

(5) economic damages, including lost wages and attorney fees and costs incurred by the person to prove the person's innocence.

(g) Compensation awarded under this section is not subject to

(1) taxation by the state, except for any attorney fees awarded;

(2) offset by the state for expenses incurred by the state or a municipality to provide services to the person, including costs of the person's imprisonment and any medical services provided.
