

Mobility for CPAs Frequently Asked Questions

What is mobility?

- Practice mobility for CPAs is the ability of a licensee to gain a practice privilege outside of their home state without getting an additional license in another state where they will be serving a client.

Why is mobility important to CPAs and businesses in your state?

- Because the electronic age makes conducting business across state borders an everyday occurrence, there is a critical need for states to adopt a uniform mobility system that will allow licensed CPAs to provide services across state lines without unnecessary burdens that do not protect the public interest.

What is being done to correct the current system?

- Prior to this initiative, each state had its own rules, regulations and requirements to allow out-of-state CPAs to provide services in that state, resulting in a patchwork system that was inefficient and increasingly difficult to navigate.
- The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) and the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) analyzed the system for gaining practice privileges across state lines and concluded it simply was not working.
- The AICPA along with NASBA have been working with the state boards of accountancy and the state CPA societies across the country to gain a uniform interstate mobility provision through the Uniform Accountancy Act since 2007. Since that date over half of the states have enacted a uniform provision.

What is the solution?

- Uniform adoption of the substantial equivalency provision included in the Uniform Accountancy Act (the model bill for CPA regulation written and endorsed jointly by AICPA and NASBA) will create a system similar to the nation's driver license that will provide CPAs with mobility while retaining and strengthening state boards' ability to protect the public interest.

Why is a uniform mobility provision important in your state and to other states across the country?

- Compliance and enforcement of the existing system was almost impossible, with multiple, cumbersome processes and disparities in requirements. Business realities, including an increase in interstate commerce and virtual technologies require a uniform system that allows fluid practice across state lines.
- Implementation of a uniform provision would allow consumers to receive timely services from the CPA best suited to the job, regardless of location, without the hindrances of unnecessary filings, forms and increased costs that do not protect the public interest.
- Businesses today are often located in multiple states and have compliance responsibilities in multiple jurisdictions and a uniform process will give CPAs the flexibility to better serve these clients.
- This initiative is only successful if it is passed in all states. It is the "good neighbor theory" we all have to do it for one another.

How will State Boards of Accountancy regulate CPAs operating in their state if mobility provisions are adopted?

- State Boards of Accountancy will gain automatic jurisdiction over all CPAs practicing in their state, enabling states to discipline out-of-state licenses, whether they are registered or licensed in the state.
- The substantial equivalency provision of the Uniform Accountancy Act was written jointly by NASBA and AICPA, and is strongly supported by both organizations as the best path to a uniform mobility system with enhanced public protection.

Are states taking action to implement mobility legislation?

- Over 40 states have adopted a CPA mobility provision.

For More Information:

- <http://www.aicpa.org/Legislative+Activities+and+State+Licensing+Issues/Mobility+and+State+Licensing+Issues/>.

Is your state addressing the mobility issue for CPAs?

- Nearly all remaining jurisdictions have indicated their support of moving towards mobility in the 2010.
- Please contact your state CPA society for additional information or AICPA's State Regulation and Legislation team:

Sheri B. Bango Cavaney, CAE
Vice President – Practice Mobility and State Regulatory & Legislative Affairs sbango@aicpa.org

Aaron Castelo
Senior Manager, State Legislation
acastelo@aicpa.org

Ann Pallasch
Manager, Mobility State Regulation & Legislation
apallasch@aicpa.org

Suzanne Jolicoeur
Manager, State Regulatory Outreach
sjolicoeur@aicpa.org

*Updated May 11, 2009
AICPA State Regulation and Legislation Team*