9 WHEREAS the 229 federally recognized tribes in the state represent a vast 10 continuum of cultural legacies enriched by thousands of years of traditions and place-based 11 ways of life; and

12 WHEREAS many Alaska tribal communities face severe problems relating to 13 poverty, lack of economic opportunity, alcoholism, drug abuse, domestic violence, and sexual 14 assault; and

1           WHEREAS the percentage of Alaska Natives living below the federal poverty 2 guideline is nearly twice the national average; and

3           WHEREAS the unemployment rate for Alaska Natives is dramatically higher than the 4 national average; and

5           WHEREAS the alcohol-related death rate for Alaska Natives has, in recent years, 6 been more than 16 times higher than the alcohol-related death rate for Caucasians; and

7           WHEREAS rural communities in the state have, in recent years, reported alarming 8 opioid, heroin, and methamphetamine abuse; and

9           WHEREAS Alaska Native women in rural communities have reported rates of 10 domestic violence multiple times higher than the national average; and

11           WHEREAS Alaska Native women suffer the highest rate of sexual assault of any 12 population in the United States, and the rate of sexual assault for Alaska Native children is six 13 times the national average; and

14           WHEREAS, while Alaska Natives represent 19 percent of the population of the state, 15 they make up 36 percent of Alaskans in prisons or jails; and

16           WHEREAS, in the past 25 years, state, federal, and joint commissions, task forces, 17 and committees established to address those issues have included the Alaska Natives
18 Commission, created in 1990; the Alaska Supreme Court Advisory Committee on Fairness 19 and Access, created in 1995; the Alaska Commission on Rural Governance and 20 Empowerment, created in 1998; the Alaska Rural Justice and Law Enforcement Commission, 21 created in 2004; the Indian Law and Order Commission, created in 2010; and the United 22 States Attorney General's Advisory Committee on American Indian and Alaska Native 23 Children Exposed to Violence, created in 2013; and

25 enforcement and justice systems of the state have been inadequate to alleviate crime, social 26 ills, and community distress in rural Alaska; and

27           WHEREAS each of those bodies identified the need to strengthen the authority, 28 responsibility, and capacity of local tribal governments to administer public safety and justice 29 in their communities; and

30           WHEREAS many experts agree that greater control, better defined jurisdiction, and

2 rather than punitive, sentencing models; and

3 WHEREAS, in matters of jurisdiction and the delivery of justice at the local level, the 4 state has too often and for too long been the adversary of Alaska Native tribes; and

5 WHEREAS ambiguities in state policy deprive Alaska tribes of jurisdictional tools to 6 make their communities safer and healthier;

14 FURTHER RESOLVED that the Alaska State Legislature urges the Governor to
