FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2016 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. SSHB 224

Analysis

Bill Analysis

The proposed legislation will alter the method in which funds are made available to calculate the annual dividend. Instead of a transfer of income from the Alaska Permanent Fund Corporation (APFC) the dividend fund will be replenished by an amount, if available, after any net deficit of unrestricted general funds in the proposed capital and operating budgets are satisfied for the succeeding fiscal year. The amount will be available for transfer from the account created in AS 43.23.049(c) during the year.

The dividend calculation would change to a "not to exceed" sliding scale that is dependent on the combined value of the constitutional budget reserve fund and the statutory budget reserve fund including unrealized gains or losses. With a $2,000 per dividend cap. Funds to pay dividends will be made available on October 1 of each year, instead of the current July 1 (25%) and July 31 (remaining balance) transfers from the APFC.

Two provisions in the bill have the potential to significantly affect the Division; (1) the dividend program ceasing to exist if a personal income tax is implemented, as the dividend amount to be distributed would be zero and (2) funds will not be available from July 1, until October 1 of each year for administrative and associated costs.

Current budget practices move the operating funds for the dividend division from the permanent fund at the beginning of each fiscal year, before the full amount for dividends is transferred. In the absence of some provision in the operating budget bill to fund operations from July 1-October 1, if a fund transfer does not occur until October 1 of each year the division will not have adequate funds available to cover operating expenses for the three month gap, even if the division operates within the 20 percent or $500,000 overspending tolerance. Personal service expenses would be covered first and all remaining expenses would remain outstanding until funds are received.
