FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA 2016 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

At this time, the Commercial Fisheries Entry Commission (CFEC) anticipates that verifying that an applicant for issuance or renewal of a limited entry permit is eligible for an Alaska Permanent Fund dividend could be performed by existing staff. CFEC would need to create new forms which applicants would complete and submit with documentation proving dividend eligibility as provided in AS 16.43.160(e)(1)-(4). CFEC licensing staff would consider each applicant's documentation and attempt to verify the claim of dividend eligibility by accessing the Department of Revenue Permanent Fund Dividend Division's "RPFI" portal. If the applicant's documentation and CFEC's staff efforts could not verify the information using RPFI, the applicant could still pursue a claim that he or she was otherwise eligible for a dividend under AS 16.43.160(e)(4), which would likely be a more time-consuming process¹. Applicants found ineligible for a dividend would be required to pay the statutory nonresident surcharge.

If an applicant were to contest CFEC's determination, the applicant would be entitled to an adjudication as outlined in 20 AAC 05.1805(b)(2) and a decision would duly be issued. Under 20 AAC 05.1845, the applicant could request an administrative hearing to review the decision and through the process be issued a final decision by the commission. If the resulting decision were that the applicant was a resident, a refund would be issued for the surcharge paid.

Should CFEC determine the above process is not working with existing staff for FY 2018 and beyond, CFEC would likely seek a part-time position to perform investigations for residency verification.

20 AAC 05.290, CFEC's regulation defining residency, would need to be amended and CFEC would do so as quickly as possible upon passage of the bill so CFEC's regulations were not in conflict with the Limited Entry Act.

CFEC licensing staff currently attempt to determine an applicant's eligibility to pay resident fees, and charge the nonresident surcharge to applicants who fail to demonstrate their eligibility. Without more data, CFEC is presently not able to determine what revenues might be generated with this legislation.

CFEC also notes that it is unclear what ultimate fiscal impact HB 241 would have on the entity responsible for determining residency and collection of the nonresident surcharge. The scope and effect of Administrative Order 279 (which authorized the transfer of ministerial licensing and permitting services from CFEC to DFG) is currently under consideration.
