

ALASKA STATE LEGISLATURE

REPRESENTATIVE ANDY JOSEPHSON

Side-by-Side CSHB 38 ver R

Current Statute	HB 38
If an employee suffers permanent physical loss because of a work injury, (s)he is owed $177,000 x (% of disability as defined by the American Medical Association Guides)	If an employee suffers permanent physical loss because of a work injury, (s)he is owed $255,506 x (% of disability as defined by the American Medical Association Guides)
If an employee dies on the job, the widow(er) and dependent children are owed $15,000 + up to 100% of the allowable weekly compensation rate.	If an employee dies on the job, the widow(er) and dependent children are owed $15,000 + up to 100% of the allowable weekly compensation rate.
If the employee dies on the job, there are no widow(er) or children dependents, but there are other dependent family, they split up to $20,000 + funeral expenses.	If the employee dies on the job, there are no widow(er) or children dependents, but there are other dependent family, they split up to $100,000 + funeral expenses.
If the employee dies on the job, then neither the parents nor the estate can collect worker(s) compensation or sue.	If the employee dies on the job, there are no widow(er) or dependents, then the parents can collect a lump sum of $70,000 + funeral expenses. If there are no surviving parents, then these funds go to the estate of the deceased employee.