A Look-back On Criminal Justice Reform

Goals of Reform

"Local legislative interest in these efforts were heightened by reports that the Alaska prison population was up 27% over the last decade, growing at a rate of 3% a year, and that recidivism remained high with nearly two out of three offenders returning to prison or jail within three years. Absent further reforms, it was projected that the number of persons incarcerated would soon exceed current hard-bed capacity."

Goal: Reduce Recidivism

"The state's growing prison population and increased corrections spending, however, had not produced commensurate improvements in public safety outcomes: nearly two out of every three people released from Alaska prisons returned within three years."

What is "Recidivism"

Measuring recidivism

Recidivism measures require three characteristics:

- a starting event, such as a release from prison;
- a measure of failure following the starting event, such as a subsequent arrest, conviction, or return to prison;
- an observation or follow-up period that generally extends from the date of the starting event to a predefined end date (e.g., 6 months, 1 year, 3 years, 5 years, or 9 years)."
