Dear Rep. Zulkosky,

On behalf of Native Peoples Action, a statewide Indigenous non-profit, I am writing to express our strong support and appreciation for House Bill 123 – An Act Providing for State Recognition of Federally Recognized Tribes.

Alaska Native people have lived on these lands since time immemorial. Tribal governments have held a special recognition and place in Alaska dating pre-contact as sovereign governments and continue to provide important services and support including public safety, economic development, and protectors of our lands, waters and people. These are all efforts that continue to serve Tribal citizens and Alaskans today.

Alaska is home to 229 federally recognized Tribes. This formal government-to-government relationship was established with the federal government, however, no formal recognition by the State of Alaska has taken place. We appreciate and recognize the important step that HB 123 takes to correct this long overdue wrong and formally recognize Alaska's federally recognized Tribes.

For many years, and even today, trauma has been inflicted on Native people ten-fold with the lack of respect and lack of recognition of our sovereign status. The fact that the state of Alaska does not recognize Tribes continues to be a point of contention and trauma. Tribes and Native people bring extensive contributions to our state, including millions of dollars for healthcare through Indian Health Services and education dollars through Head Start. Our Native cultures are filled with a rich history and there is no Alaska without the Indigenous people who have stewarded these lands for thousands of years.

NPA strongly encourages all legislators to join you in taking this important step to help begin the process to bring healing and recognition that will open more opportunities to better working relationships between Tribal and state governments. We appreciate your leadership and stand ready to help in any way possible.

RE: House Bill 123, State Recognition of Tribes

Dear Representative Zulkosky,

The Alaska Native Health Board¹ strongly supports House Bill 123—an act providing for State recognition of Federally Recognized Tribes. House Bill 123 establishes formal state policy that the state's indigenous peoples have their own governments and that the government of the State of Alaska will no longer deny their existence. This is an important step in strengthening the partnership between the State of Alaska and Alaska Native tribes. House Bill 123 recognizes and enhances the capacity of Alaska Native tribes to continue their longstanding tradition of providing vital resources to the state of Alaska.

In 1970, President Nixon, in his special message on Indian affairs to the United States Congress, recognized the contribution of the Indian in America as:

“A record also of endurance, of survival, of adaptation and creativity in the face of overwhelming obstacles. It is a record of enormous contributions to this country—to its art and culture, to its strength and spirit, to its sense of history and its sense of purpose. It is long past the time that the Indian policies of the Federal government began to recognize and build upon the capacities and insights of the Indian people.”

The Alaska Legislature can choose to recognize those capacities and honor the enormous contributions of Alaska Natives. House Bill 123 marks the trail toward bringing future resources and prosperity to all Alaskans through a strengthened partnership with Alaska Tribes. We are encouraged by the introduction of this legislation, and we look forward to supporting its passage through the Legislature.

Sincerely,

Andrew Jimmie
Chairman
Alaska Native Health Board
