Dear Chair Hughes and Honorable Members of the Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee,

On behalf of the National Rifle Association (NRA), I am writing to express strong support for Senate Bill (SB) 136, an NRA priority piece of legislation.

SB 136 seeks to place narrowly-tailored limitations on firearms restrictions by state and municipal agencies during disaster emergency declarations. Simply stated, during such declarations, this bill prohibits, state and municipal agencies from:

- forbidding the possession, use, or transfer of a firearm, a firearm accessory, ammunition, or other weapon for personal use;
- ordering the seizure or confiscation of a firearm, a firearm accessory, ammunition, or other weapon for personal use;
- limiting the quantity or placing other restrictions on the sale or service of firearms, firearm accessories, ammunition, or other weapons for personal use;
- Closing or limiting the operating hours of an entity engaged in the sale or service of firearms, firearm accessories, ammunition, or other weapons for personal use, or shooting ranges, unless the closure or limitation applies equally to all forms of commerce within the jurisdiction;
- Suspending or revoking permits to carry a concealed handgun issued lawfully; and
- Refusing to accept a complete and accurate application to carry a concealed handgun

These limitations are drawn from real-life examples of restrictions imposed by governmental entities during disaster emergency declarations.

In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina in 2005, and the emergency conditions that followed, New Orleans police superintendent ordered the confiscation of privately-owned firearms, saying “only law enforcement will be able to have guns.” This deprivation of Second Amendment Rights led Congress to pass Public Law 109-295 (42 U.S.C.A. § 5207), in which citizens are protected from federal officials confiscating lawfully-owned firearms during a declaration of emergency.

15 years later we are witnessing declarations of emergency due to the COVID-19 pandemic with similar results at it pertains to the firearms industry. In an effort to get a handle on the spread of COVID-19, varying levels of government across the nation have discussed, and in some cases decided, which businesses could stay open and which would have to close, including here in Alaska. These decisions impact firearms-related businesses and negatively impact Alaskans' right to keep and bear arms as protected by the Second Amendment to the United States and Article 1, Section 19 of the Alaska Constitution.

Recognizing the differing ways in which government entities were treating gun stores, the Cybersecurity & Infrastructure Agency (CISA), a part of the Department of Homeland Security, issued revisions to its advisory memorandum listing "essential" infrastructure and workers during the COVID-19 pandemic, declaring firearms stores, ammunition manufacturers and shooting ranges as essential businesses. Under Anchorage Mayor's Emergency "Hunker Down" Order EO-03 (issued March 20, 2020), firearms stores and shooting ranges were not listed as an enumerated "critical" business, imposing the burden of proof on the firearms business owners to establish that their business was in-fact critical.

SB 136 recognizes Alaskans' Constitutional rights to keep and bear arms, rights that "shall not be denied or infringed by the State or a political subdivision" thereof (Alaska Constitution Article I, Section 19). When a firearms store is forced to close, when ammunition is not allowed to be sold, when gun ranges are shut down, and concealed carry permits are not issued, an individual's ability to keep and bear arms becomes hindered, or rendered impossible. SB 136 prevents the State and municipalities from acting under the color of a disaster emergency declaration to arbitrarily infringe on Alaskan's rights to keep and bear arms. This bill also avoids improperly placing the burden of proof on the business owner to establish that a firearms business is critical or essential, in an emergency.

Further, SB 136 recognizes the importance of local control and maintains municipal authority for control in an emergency by providing that a state or municipal agency may close or restrict firearms stores and shooting ranges as long as "the closure or limitation applies equally to all forms of commerce within the jurisdiction." At the core of the Second Amendment is the right to self-defense, a right whose importance is elevated in times of chaos, uncertainty and emergency. Alaskans must be able to access firearms, ammunition, shooting ranges and other essential firearms-related businesses during times of emergency. SB 136 provides a thoughtful and effective approach to balance Second Amendment rights and local control.

On behalf of the tens of thousands of members of the National Rifle Association across Alaska, I respectfully urge your support of SB 136.

Sincerely,

Aoibheann Cline
