Proceedings: November 8 -- December 12, 1955

ALASKA LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Box 2199 -- Juneau, Alaska

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 8, 1955

FIRST DAY

Processional

Presentation of the Colors

GOVERNOR B. FRANK HEINTZLEMAN: The hour appointed by the Alaska Territorial Legislature having arrived for the convening of the Alaska Constitutional Convention, I do accordingly, as Governor of this Territory, call the Convention to order. It is appropriate that those to whom so much has been entrusted by our voters call upon God for the guidance at the outset of their task. It is my privilege at this time to present the Reverend Roy Ahmoagak of Wainwright, Alaska, who will offer an invocatory prayer.

THE REVEREND ROY AHMOAGAK: Let us unite in prayer. Almighty and Everlasting God, who by Thy providence didst lead our forefathers to this good land wherein they found liberty and freedom to worship Thee, we beseech Thee ever to guide our nation in the way of Thy truth and peace so that we may never fail in the blessing which Thou has promised to that people whose God is the Lord. Grant, we beseech Thee, unto our Governor, and to those men who sit with him in authority, Thy gracious presence and blessing. Enlighten them with wisdom from above and especially in establishing our Constitution. May we ever seek to comply with Thy requirements, and what does the Lord require of you but "to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with Thy God." Deliver us, our Father from error, pride and prejudice, and so order all these doings here that Thy kingdom may be advanced. Hear this our prayer, O God, and may what is accomplished in these meetings be in accordance with Thy Holy will. For we ask these things in the name of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

MCNEALY: I move, "RESOLVED that the reading of the certificate of election of the respective delegates be dispensed with and that the certificate of the Secretary of Alaska as to their election be accepted in lieu thereof.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that each delegate who has answered the roll call and whose name appears on the certificate of the Secretary of Alaska take and subscribe an oath or affirmation of office to be administered by the Honorable Vernon D. Forbes, Judge of the United States District Court of Alaska, Fourth Division, and that each delegate so sworn shall be deemed to have been duly seated." I ask unanimous consent.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: I thank you. Without objection it is so ordered. Pursuant to the authority invested to me as Governor of the Territory, I would now like to appoint Mr. John B. Hall, Clerk of the Court, Fourth Division, to act as the temporary secretary until the delegates are sworn in and the officers can be elected for the Convention. It has just been said that we will dispense with the reading of the certificates that come out of the office of the Secretary of Alaska showing the Convention returns. Now we would like to have a roll call of the delegates to see which of those are present.

(Temporary Secretary Hall called the roll.)

HALL: Mr. Chairman, the roll has been called. There are fifty-three delegates present and two absent -- Frank Barr and Frank Peratrovich being absent.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Thank you, Mr. Hall. I declare a quorum of the elected delegates present. Will the delegates now stand and be sworn in by the Honorable Vernon D. Forbes, United States District Judge for the Fourth Division of Alaska. (Delegates stood.)

JUDGE VERNON D. FORBES: You and each of you do solemnly swear or affirm that you are not a member of the Communist party or any subversive parties or affiliated with such parties, that you do not believe in, are not a member of nor do you support any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States Government by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional method, that you will defend and support the Constitution of the United States and perform all the duties of the office or position on which you are about to enter and therein do equal right and justice to all men, so help you God?

DELEGATES: I do.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Will each of the delegates now kindly sign the form of oath of office which you will find on your desk and give them to the temporary Secretary. Has each of the delegates signed his oath of office? If so, I think it would be appropriate at this time for the Governor of the Territory to make a few remarks to the delegates. After this short address we will have some addresses of welcome from people in this section of Alaska.

Address by Governor Heintzleman (This was a prepared address.)

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: We are now to have the privilege of listening to addresses of welcome from a number of men here on the stage and I would like to call first on the President of our University, Dr. Ernest N. Patty. Dr. Patty. (applause)

DR. PATTY: Governor Heintzleman, honored guests, honored Delegates, ladies and gentlemen. We all say that this is a historic occasion, but we are probably too close to the drama to really appreciate how historic it is. Your University welcomes you here, and while you are on the campus I hope our friendship will shine through and that our staff is successful in anticipating your needs. We are proud to have you here, and we are confident that when your final clause is written that your work will stand as one of the finest state constitutions ever shaped. Thank you. (applause)

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Thank you very much, Dr. Patty. I would like to call on a young man who will speak on behalf of the associated students of the University of Alaska, Mr. Kenneth Carson, president of the Student Body.

KENNETH CARSON: Governor Heintzleman, Delegates and guests. Later today the distinguished delegates before us will be given a gift by my fellow students -- a college year book. It is hoped that with this glimpse into student and faculty life, the delegates may view both the progress and potential of our growing University. You can see the progress all about you. As you walk through the hall of new buildings you can see the potential, I think and when you talk to our faculty or our students who come from all parts of the world. On this campus you will find professors from India, Austria, Russia and Japan. You will find students from France, South America, Canada and from almost every State in the Union. This University is preparing these young men and women for work and study in Alaska and in other countries where they will be our representatives to the world. Alaska is rapidly taking its rightful place as a leader among northern states and countries. Every day while the world grows smaller and more crowded Alaska is becoming ever more important. It is an international crossroads for northern commerce and science. Therefore, we all should realize that now is the proper time for Alaska to become a state and for us to govern ourselves. Today we are students but tomorrow we hope to be citizens of the State of Alaska and with this thought in mind we sincerely welcome you, you who will build a solid foundation upon which a state government must stand. (applause)

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Thank you, Mr. Carson. Now we have the privilege of listening to the Mayor of the city of Fairbanks, the Honorable Douglas G. Preston. (applause)

MAYOR PRESTON: Governor Heintzleman, Delegate Bartlett, distinguished Delegates, ladies and gentlemen. I consider it at this time a special privilege to be Mayor of Fairbanks. Many of you I know, all of you I hope to know. I could not help thinking back seeing this distinguished gathering here, to 1923 when the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines graduated one student. It has come a long way since then. It is not my purpose at this time to make a speech, but I have the privilege of conveying to you a warm welcome from the people of Fairbanks. Our hopes, our hearts and our prayers are with you in your important undertaking. (applause)

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Thank you, Mayor Preston. Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, under the procedure established by Section 13, Chapter 46, SLA 1955, the Governor of Alaska is to preside over the Constitutional Convention until temporary officers are elected. The time has now arrived for the election of temporary officers, and I now call for nominations for the office of Secretary Pro Tem of the Convention.

V. RIVERS: At this time it gives me great pleasure to place in nomination the name of a fellow delegate, one who has long been a stout advocate of statehood, one who has worked earnestly, not only for the efforts of all the people of Alaska, as a Territory but also worked towards the goal for final statehood. One whose name has stood out in the efforts in government and social life, civic life, it gives me pleasure to place in nomination, for Chairman Pro Tem, the name of Delegate Mildred Hermann.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Are there any other nominations?

ROSSWOG: Governor Heintzleman and fellow delegates I would like to place in nomination the name of a man from my Division who is known all over Alaska. He has served faithfully in the Legislature of the Territory, and I am sure that all of you who know him, know of his sincerity, his impartiality and his honesty. I would like to place the name of Senator William Egan of Valdez for the temporary chairmanship of this Convention.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Are we voting on temporary chairmanship or secretary?

ROSSWOG: We understood that we were placing in nomination names for temporary chairman.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Let's all be clear on what office and who we are nominating for.

HELLENTHAL: It was suggested by members of the Statehood Committee that the temporary president be chosen by a vote of at least twenty-six delegates by a call of the roll, each delegate rising in his place as his name is called and stating his choice, and I so move.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: All right. Will you call the roll?

R. RIVERS: I have not heard any motion to close the nominations. I move the nominations be closed and ask unanimous consent

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Are we talking about the secretary?

R. RIVERS: I'm talking about the temporary president.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, will you clarify the nomination made by Delegate Rosswog in which he named Mr. Egan. I would like to hear to what position Mr. Rosswog has nominated Mr. Egan, that I might be clear.

ROSSWOG: I nominated him as temporary chairman.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: The suggestion was that we call the roll? I would like to vote on the motion to close the nominations.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Mr. Governor, before you call the roll on this balloting I would like to hear from the records the position that we are actually balloting upon. I understood that you said one thing, some members seem to feel you said something else. The secretary will have your original statement.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: I thought I asked for nominations for secretary pro tem. That right or did I not?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Mr. Governor, I did hear you and you did call for nominations for temporary secretary but I am sure the delegates who spoke immediately thereafter assumed that they were not for temporary chairman. I ask unanimous consent that we proceed on that basis and let the record be corrected to show that the nominations which have been made have been for the position of temporary chairman.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: That will be all right with me. I thought I had said secretary. Now who is in nomination? Mrs. Hermann, Mr. Egan. Just those two? You've got that Mr. Hall? Will you call the roll?

(At this time Mr. John Hall called the roll with the following result:

HERMANN: 30 Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Gray, Hilscher, Johnson, King, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nolan, Reader, Riley, Rivers, Robertson, Stewart, Smith, Sundborg, Taylor, White, Wien.

EGAN: 22 Buckalew, Davis, Doogan, Egan, Emberg, Helen Fischer, Victor Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, Knight, Laws, Metcalf, Nordale, Poulsen, Ralph Rivers, Rosswog, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Walsh.

Absent: 2 Barr, Peratrovich.

Not voting: 1 Hermann.)

MR. HALL: Mr. President, I find that Mildred Hermann received 30 votes, William Egan, 22, two delegates absent and one not voting, sir.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: Thank you.

EGAN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that the record show that a unanimous ballot was given for Mrs. Hermann.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: If there is no objection, it will be so ordered. The time has come now, of course, to appoint a temporary secretary pro tem. I wonder if there would be any objection to our asking Mr. Hall to serve in that capacity to save time. Any objection to that Mr. Hall?

R. RIVERS: The temporary secretary might have to come back tomorrow.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: We might find out from Mr. Hall if he wants to go along with us.

MR. HALL: I am pretty sure with Judge Forbes right here that he has no alternative but to say that it is okay with him. (applause and laughter)

KNIGHT: Mr. Governor, I move and ask unanimous consent that Mr. Hall continue to act as Secretary.

GOVERNOR HEINTZLEMAN: You have heard the motion that Mr. Hall continue to act as Secretary. If there is no objection it is so ordered. Mrs. Hermann has by the vote of this Convention been elected as temporary president. I will now appoint Mr. E. B. Collins, R. Rolland Armstrong and W. W. Laws to escort the temporary president to the Chair. (applause) (Mrs. Hermann was then escorted to the Chair.) Mrs. Hermann, I wish to congratulate you upon your election to the office of temporary president of the Convention. It gives me great pleasure to hand you this gavel and to turn over to you further conduct of the proceedings.

MRS. HERMANN: I suppose I should make a little "bang" to express the symbol of my authority and my appreciation of the honor, as well as my wonder if it is a concession to a minority group. At this time we have to hear from the Delegate of Alaska on the subject "Meeting the Challenge." Mr. Bartlett. (applause)

DELEGATE BARTLETT: Mrs. Hermann, Governor Heintzleman, President Patty, Chairman Attwood, distinguished guests, citizens of the great state to be...

(Delegate Bartlett delivered a prepared address.) (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: Thank you, Mr. Bartlett, for your very fine address. We will now hear the honorable Ernest Gruening, former governor of Alaska. (Applause and standing ovation)

ERNEST GRUENING: Madam Chairman, Governor Heintzleman, Delegate Bartlett, Delegates to the Constitutional Convention and friends, as I appear to be scheduled for a somewhat lengthy address in tomorrow's session, I am sensitive to the fact that there is a prohibition in our Constitution against exposing people to double jeopardy. I think, therefore, my remarks should be brief and informal. Many people will say, and it's obvious -- that this is an extremely important occasion. To me perhaps its greatest importance arises from the fact that it is the first occasion which is wholly of, for and, most important, by the people of Alaska. If there has been one important ingredient missing in our eighty-eight years as a district, as a territory, it is that little proposition "by." Many things have been done for us; even more things have been done to us, but very little have we been permitted to do by us. There are a number of inspired actions that accompanied the creation of this Convention. Perhaps the most was selecting the University of Alaska as a site for holding it. A University is really the keeper of the soul of a modern society and if this Convention does not have and will not have a high inspirational quality it will not succeed. But it has that inspirational quality, and it will succeed. I recall that that thought is voiced in the anthem of my own Alma Mater, our oldest university, and as the graduates leave to go into the world they sing that anthem, "Fair Harvard", and one of its verses says, "Thou were our mother, the nurse of our souls, we were moulded to manhood by thee; and freighted with treasures, with love and with hopes, thou did launch us on destiny's sea." I think the University will play a part in launching Alaska on destiny's sea as a state. When we consider what we are doing here this basic exercise in self-determination, we must always bear in mind that America, the land we love, is not just a geographic area. We are rather aware of that in Alaska. We sometimes question whether we are part of America. It is not a collection of physical features; it is not our great natural resources. It is the common adherence to a basic idea -- perhaps the greatest idea that was ever profounded on earth since the promulgation of the golden rule and democracy is nothing but an extension of the golden rule to the great society. True, democracy cannot depart far from the golden rule. It's its essence. Alaska has a great, great, destiny. We are here situated by geography and by history in our farthest north and our farthest west in a unique position to achieve that destiny. We were formerly part of a country which today under changed government represents the antithesis of everything that we believe in and of everything we hold dear. We have a geographic juxtaposition to that area. We can see it from our mainland with the naked eye. What a challenge then to create in these far northern latitudes a shining and eternal example of what we want to call the American way of life, to make Alaska not merely a bulwark defense for the whole hemisphere, for the free world, but a spiritual citadel of the American idea. It can only be done by the application to Alaska of basic American principles, the most basic of which is government by consent of the government. So you have here a thrilling opportunity, and I know you will live up to it. May God bless this undertaking; may it prosper and may we move forward to become an integral part of the great American dream. I thank you. (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: It gives me particular pleasure to introduce the next speaker, since it has been my privilege for the past six years to work with him very closely on a Territorial agency that has had a great deal to do with taking the initial steps toward having this Convention get off to a good start. It gives me great pleasure at this time to introduce Mr. Robert B. Atwood, Chairman of the Alaska Statehood Committee. (applause)

MR. ATWOOD: Madam Chairman, Governor Heintzleman, distinguished guests and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention. You are about to write a document that will be much more than a framework for the state government of Alaska. The document you write will be, can and should be a compelling new argument for statehood itself. The first use your product will be put to will be in the nature of salesmanship. It must be presented to the people of Alaska, sort of as a list of specifications as a thing they have already decided they want to buy. They will scrutinize it as they would a warranty deed if they were purchasing a piece of property or a guarantee if it's a manufactured item. If they like it they will buy it. But remember, they don't have to buy it. They are not obligated that way. This is a custom job you have on your hands. It's to be built and it must please the customer. The second use for this document will also be of a nature of salesmanship. It will be presented to the highest federal officials of the land, including the members of Congress in connection with legislation to admit Alaska as a state. And again it will be scrutinized as a list of specifications or a warranty deed or a guarantee. This document, once it is backed with ratification of the people, must be real and indisputable proof that Alaskans are ready, able and willing to undertake all the responsibilities of self government. In looking toward the day when the duly elected representatives of the people of Alaska would gather to write a constitution, the legislature had foresight. In 1949, when they were creating the Alaska Statehood Committee, the members of that Legislature anticipated that there would be a need for certain information and materials to be available to the delegates, so that they would have a good chance for success. They gave the assignment to gather this information and materials to the Alaska Statehood Committee and as Chairman I am pleased to report to you that the Committee has done well. The material is included principally in three volumes which will or have been presented to you. We hope the discussions in these volumes will be helpful as guides as you contemplate the technical problems, the fundamental principles that are involved in writing a basic document for state government. Throughout the years of effort and study that have gone into this statehood movement, it became current quite awhile ago that the best advice would be none too good. We found that the record of experiences of the forty-eight states is replete with failures as well as successes. Much of the greatness of the United States lies in the principles exemplified in the rights of states but also much of the confusion, many of the dismaying features of government in the states and within the states stem from the failure of the people to write a flexible document that will withstand the changes of time. Now, as the previous speakers have mentioned and as Alaskans have mentioned frequently and as many of you have mentioned, it is well known that Alaskans want all of the successes and all of the basic principles that have made this nation great, written into their constitution, perpetuated there and enlarged and expanded, and we all know they want none of the failures that have lead to clumsy, inefficient, costly and complicated government. They don't want duplications and unwise restrictions and all the other abhorrent developments that come from an inflexible constitution. Now the question before the Statehood Committee was how can we render the best service to Alaska and the delegates in gathering this information? We sought advice in many places. We came to the conclusion that it was necessary to have a careful study of the experiences of the forty-eight states, the failures as well as the successes. We found that many governmental units are making such studies, states, counties and cities looking toward the revision of their constitutions, their charters, their laws, their administrative procedures, and we have also found that these units quite commonly employ professional organizations to do the research work and gather their material. In studying that we found that one of these organizations was outstanding. It was outstanding in its record of achievement; it was outstanding in its experience throughout the nation and in other countries and it is outstanding in reputation. This was the Public Administration Service with headquarters in Chicago, a non-profit organization that works in close association with the Council of State Governments and the Governor's Conference. In 1955 the Legislature appropriated funds so that we could enter into a contract with Public Administration Service and these three volumes that I have mentioned are the result of their studies. They are presented to you not to tell you what to write into a constitution but to bring you a summary of these experiences of the forty-eight states and discussions of the principles that are found sound so that you may decide which ones you want to adapt to the Constitution of Alaska. Now in addition to these studies by Public Administration Service, we have taken certain other steps. We have gathered information on the rules that have been used at other constitutional conventions and information on the organization that they have. We have gathered a portfolio on the Hawaiian Constitutional Convention, our sister territory, the most recent convention that has been held. We also have in it some rather intimate details of some of the weaknesses as well as the strong points of their systems. Now these things we thought you would like to have available in case you want to draw upon them in establishing your own rules, setting up your own organization, your system for operating, your committees and such. Now I have been using the pronoun plural "we" quite frequently, and I might point out that Mark Twain said there are two categories of people who can use the plural pronoun "we." One is the editorial writer and the other is a man with a tape worm. (laughter) I would like to add a third category and that is a chairman trying to report in behalf of a committee. Now, we have interviewed the nation's prominent authorities in the field of political science and have arranged to have them available for consultation here with you at the University of Alaska if you so desire and if you choose to invite them. We have other preparatory measures and files and documents. We are especially proud in all this work of the work of our executive officer -- Thomas B. Stewart who has performed his work so enthusiastically and so successfully. He has exceeded the fondest expectations of the Committee members. We have also arranged to have a Public Administration Service staff member here for consultation as you may wish, and other members who have been engaged in the Alaska study can be brought here if you so desire. Incidentally, we had a little difficulty with that. Dr. Joseph Molkup, whom many of you have met, suffered a broken leg in Juneau just before he was leaving for Fairbanks and couldn't come. We had John Corcoran, another key man in the Public Administration Service organization here to carry on and last week he was taken seriously ill and is now in the hospital. But Public Administration Service never lets us down. The headquarters in Chicago called upon Dr. Emile Sady, a member of their staff who was in Washington D. C., to be here and he is here with us and will remain at your service throughout the Convention barring broken legs and other things. Our last item in arranging was to have Alaska's greatest leader in the statehood movement come here to address you tomorrow with a keynote address. He will have a message that we hope will be heard around the world. We know it will be an enduring document in the statehood movement. We trust it will be inspiring and informative for you. Now, ladies and gentlemen, this ceremony is nearing a close. You have been duly convened. The roll has been called. The quorum is present. You have had warm receptions from the hosts. This is the kick-off. The ball is in the air, and it is about to fall in your hands, and you are the ones who are going to have to run with it. We all wish you Godspeed as you follow a course that certainly is no primrose path. Every good Alaskan stands at your service ready to come up with any help they can and they want you to have to write a document that will survive the three most rigid tests imaginable. First, the test of the people who sent you here who must approve it by vote and ratification. Second, the approval of Congress who must accept it as a sound basic document upon which to build a state government and third, that everlasting test that comes when the document is placed into operation as the highest law of the land. Then we will see how the work of this Convention stands through the changes that we all want to come and try to bring faster in Alaska. Thank you. (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: Thank you, Mr. Atwood. Dean Hosley, do you have an announcement of any sort you want to make with regard to the luncheon?

DEAN HOSLEY: The only announcement is that luncheon will be available to anyone who wants to get it at the new cafeteria in the Student Union Building. We have not known until at least last night whether we would have it ready for you but I understand from Dr. Patty that it will be available. Thank you. (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Madam President, I offer the following resolution: "RESOLVED, that the temporary president appoint a temporary Committee on Rules of nine delegates, who shall promptly prepare and report to the Convention its recommendations for temporary rules for the Convention, including special rules for the election of permanent officers of the Convention."

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved and seconded that the president appoint a Committee on Rules as provided by Mr. Davis's resolution. Is there discussion on the matter?

R. RIVERS: I ask unanimous consent.

MRS. HERMANN: Now we ask unanimous consent that the Committee be appointed. Without objection that will be done. Is it your idea, Mr. Davis, that we appoint this Committee right now or at a later time?
DAVIS: Madam Chairman, I would leave that up to the pleasure of the Chair.

HILSCHER: Madam President, I would like to offer a resolution that has some bearing on this particular question. "RESOLVED, that the Convention hereby express its appreciation of the facilities made available by the University of Alaska." Now if the Convention would like to hold this over until whether we see if Dr. Patty is finished with his luncheon facilities over there. (laughter) I think for the time being we just might state to the University that the Convention hereby expresses its appreciation of the facilities made available by the University.

MRS. HERMANN: I really am a little startled at this request to appoint a Committee on Rules coming out of thin air. I'm even startled that I'm up here in front of you entertaining any requests and having that one come is a little bit surprising. I would like to appoint the Committee, but I would like to have a little more time to consider just who will be available for the committee and who will probably be best for the committee. If that is agreeable to the Convention that will be the position taken. Immediately following the luncheon there will be available for distribution to all delegates a handbook for delegates and study materials in the Convention Message Center on the top floor of the Student Union Building. The handbook, which Mr. Atwood mentioned in his talk, covers the procedure of operations in getting organized and getting started on your work and every member of the Convention should have it in his possession. I am to remind the delegates to return for pictures but it doesn't say when and perhaps it means immediately after that luncheon. Did you have some time? To remain then for pictures.

STEWART: Immediately after the recessional.

MRS. HERMANN: Yes, after the recessional. I would rather eat than recede. (laughter)

JOHNSON: Madam President, I have been requested to submit the following resolution: "RESOLVED, that in order to facilitate the recording of these proceedings, no Delegate speak unless he or she is recognized by name by the Chairman, and no Delegate speak unless he or she does so from a microphone." I move the adoption of the resolution.

MRS. HERMANN: You mean at this temporary meeting, not at the regular session? The motion has been made that the resolution be adopted. Is there a second?

KILCHER: I object. Madam Chairman, I would like to have the technical necessity of this resolution explained in more detail.

MRS. HERMANN: There has been no second to the resolution as yet, Mr. Kilcher. Without a second the resolution is not considered. I am a little bit uncertain how I am going to get the show on the road for the rest of the way. Do we have the benediction before we have a motion to adjourn or do we have a motion to adjourn before we have the benediction? In that respect I would like to have -- we still have some more music of course but I want to get organized so we do this right. We have next the selection, "The Alaska Flag Song". We have Miss Lorraine Donoghue at the James E. Barrack Memorial Carillon. Now what do I do?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: She'll hear you over the microphone. She's listening over there.

MRS. HERMANN: We will now have the rendition of "The Alaska Flag Song". Miss Lorraine Donoghue at the James E. Barrack Memorial Carillon.

DR. PATTY: There has been a slight accident with the carillon, so we'll have to skip that this morning. I'm very sorry because we've used it before and it's very very effective and just as they started to play the carillon something happened, so we'll have to skip that. You'll have plenty of chance, particularly the delegates, to hear the carillon playing.

RILEY: Madam Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that following the benediction we stand at recess until 3 o'clock in order to give the Chair an opportunity to decide upon a temporary Rules Committee and to appoint that Committee at that time.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent is asked that following benediction, we adjourn until 3 o'clock this afternoon in order to give the chairman opportunity to appoint the Rules Committee in accordance with Mr. Davis' Resolution. Is there objection?

R. RIVERS: I object for the time being. Many of us would not be coming back for anything at 3 o'clock except to hear the announcement of that Committee. As I understand it we would then adjourn until tomorrow morning. Many of us would rather go to town instead of waiting here until 3 o'clock to hear you announce that Committee. I suppose it would take until about two though to have our luncheon and get acquainted so I would amend that to 2 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock.

RILEY: That suits me.

MRS. HERMANN: The request has been amended to make the hour 2 instead of 3. Without objection that will be the order, and the Convention will stand adjourned until 2 o'clock following the benediction. We will now have the benediction.

FATHER GEORGE BOILEAU, S.J.: Let us pray, May the wisdom of God guide you during these coming days. May the humility, the justice and the charity of Christ give you courage and patience to fulfil your work at hand. May the work of your hands and your mind and your hearts prove to be a salvation for each individual an honor to our statehood and a glory to God. May then the blessing of Almighty God descend upon you and remain now and forever. Amen.

MRS. HERMANN: The Assembly will stand at recess until 2 o'clock.

Recessional

RECESS (12:05 p.m.)

MRS. HERMANN: The meeting will please come to order (2 p.m.). The first business to be taken up at this time is the announcement of the Committee on Rules which has been selected by the Chair during the noon hour. The members of that Committee will be Chairman, Mr. Riley, Mr. George Sundborg, Mr. Walsh, Mr. McNees, Mr. McCutcheon, Mr. Davis, Mr. Nerland, Mr. Ralph Rivers, and Miss Dorothy Awes. Now is there any business other than this to come before the meeting at this time?

R. RIVERS: May those be read slowly so that we can write them down?

(Mrs. Hermann repeated the names of the Committee on Rules.)

MRS. HERMANN: Is there any further business to come before the meeting? If not, I am asked to announce that we must make arrangements for your transportation out here tomorrow. The bus service which was provided today was provided by the Alaska Statehood Committee in conformity with its duties to get the show on the road and getting everybody here on time. Now, further responsibility for bus transportation is the function of the Convention itself, and in the event that you want to have the bus ready to bring you out here again tomorrow, we should have some action on the part of the Convention body.

V. RIVERS: I will move and ask unanimous consent that we contact the bus service for similar service tomorrow until we get our permanent Rules Committee in an agreement with them. I ask unanimous consent.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention make arrangements for the charter of the bus tomorrow under the same conditions that it was chartered today by the Statehood Committee.

TAYLOR: Mrs. Chairman, I believe at the Executive Committee of the Statehood Committee recently, a representative of the bus company was there, that is, he was representing the bus company. In connection with his duties, I think he was being employed by Mr. Stewart and he said that arrangements had been made for bus service every day from the Nordale Hotel to the Convention.

MRS. HERMANN: I think you're right Mr. Taylor, about us discussing it. The question that arises is, is it the Convention's responsibility or the Statehood Committee's responsibility from now on to pay for it.

TAYLOR: Well, that's not my statement. I mean Mr. Preston, who appeared there remember, he said that the bus service would be available.

MRS. HERMANN: The service will be available at the same hour at the same place tomorrow morning, but we do want it authorized by the Convention instead of leaving it in the hands of the Statehood Committee and Mr. Rivers has asked unanimous consent that that authorization by the Committee be given. Is there any objection?

TAYLOR: Mine were remarks and not an objection.

R. RIVERS: No objection but I want a clarification. Will they be operating with the delegates putting fifty cents in the slot or will we all get aboard and show them our identifications and riding at the expense of the Convention.

MRS. HERMANN: That is something the Convention itself must decide and that is why I'm bringing it up at this moment. The Statehood Committee has provided the initial bus transportation and now it's up to the Convention to get itself out here some way and that's what we want to know. Do you want it paid as Convention expense or do you want to pay it individually?

V. RIVERS: Mrs. Chairman, I made my motion or asked unanimous consent in that manner because this body is such that we have not yet elected permanent officers but it show in the minutes that this body authorized the duplication of that bus action and then when we are organized we should then discuss it.

MRS. HERMANN: If there is no objection to the unanimous consent as asked by Mr. Rivers, that will be the order and everybody be at the Nordale at 9 o'clock in the morning that wants transportation by bus to come out here, well at whatever time we agree to adjourn to. Now one more announcement that I have to make is that one delegate in picking up his supplies over at the other building only took one volume of the studies that have been made by the P.A.S. Committee and the other two volumes are still awaiting his pleasure. We aren't going to let anybody off with just trying to get along with just one volume after this voluminous work that we've done to give you all what you need. Did you have a statement Dixie?

MR. HALL: I understand that Governor Gruening will address this Convention tomorrow if you choose at 10 o'clock.

MRS. HERMANN: Governor Gruening will address the Convention tomorrow at 10 o'clock if that meets the pleasure of this body. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Madam Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Constitutional Convention invite former Governor Gruening to address this body at 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning. UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked. Do I hear any objection? Without objection, that will be the order and former Governor Gruening will make the keynote address to the delegates of the Convention tomorrow at 10 o'clock. Incidentally, we will not be in this building tomorrow but in the other building where you had your luncheon today. So don't anybody come back over here expecting to find a setup for a meeting.

RILEY: Madam Chairman, there will be a meeting of the Rules Committee in the Student Union Building. I might suggest that the members go to the floor above that which houses the cafeteria where there is committee room space. That will be immediately after this meeting.

MRS. HERMANN: Members newly appointed on the Committee on Rules please take note of the announcement of the Chairman. The bus will be available here where we arrived this morning at 2:45 p.m. today to take you back to town, provided you adjourn before that time.

TAYLOR: Madam Chairman, I move that we adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

R. RIVERS: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. Do I hear any discussion? You can't debate a motion to adjourn. All in favor signify by saying "aye". We will stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. (2:30 p.m.)

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 9, 1955

SECOND DAY

PRESIDENT PRO-TEM, MILDRED HERMANN: The second session of the Alaska Constitutional Convention will come to order. We will have the roll call by the Secretary.

(Mr. John Hall called the roll.)

MR. HALL: Madam President, all fifty-five delegates are present excepting Frank Peratrovich who did not answer to his name.

MRS. HERMANN: This is the time and place set for a special order of business to hear an address by the keynote speaker for the Convention. I would like to appoint Mr. Hellenthal, Mr. Sundborg and Mrs. Nordale who will escort the speaker to the rostrum.

(Dr. Gruening was escorted to the rostrum at this time. applause)

MRS. HERMANN: Before we proceed with the address, I shall ask the Reverend Londborg to give the invocation.

LONDBORG: Let us pray. Almighty God, for whom we move and have our being, we stand before you this moment with bowed heads and humble hearts, realizing the responsibility that is ours as citizens and servants of this great potential State of Alaska. As Delegates to this Constitutional Convention we are aware of the need for divine guidance and wisdom. It is our prayer that this document we have been delegated to prepare will be one that will provide for equal liberty and justice for all peoples of Alaska, one that will stand the test of time and posterity and above all one that will bring honor to Thy holy name. We pray for Thy guidance in all of our business, that it may be conducted in a true spirit of brotherly love as taught by Christ, in order that we may make the most of the opportunity and challenge that is ours. We would pray as Solomon of old, "O Lord God, give us now wisdom and knowledge to do the task we have been called to do, for who can do this task that is so great." In Thy Holy Name we pray. Amen.

MRS. HERMANN: Yesterday when I was elected to be your temporary president, I felt both proud and humble. I am a little bit afraid I might not know how to say the right thing at the right time, but very proud that the Convention itself had thought that I could. It was not until later in the afternoon that it penetrated my befuddled intelligence, which had been jolted into something of a coma by my unexpected election, that I had still another reason to be proud to be your temporary chairman. It gave me the opportunity to introduce the keynote speaker of the Convention. I think it is particularly appropriate that we have this speaker for our keynoter today, for it is more largely due to his vision and courage that we have advanced this far toward the goal of statehood than it is to any other person in or out of Alaska. We who have marched in the vanguard of the movement for statehood since its faint stirring some years ago to the time and place that has assembled us here today to write the Constitution for the future state of Alaska, know how much the movement has been speeded and the pace has been set by his unwavering courage, his unflagging zeal and his resolute faith. The greatness of any movement lies in the character of its leaders. I think it might better be said in the words of the poet, "Give us men to match our mountains, courage to fare boldly forth, and we'll build a mighty empire in this bastion of the North." My fellow Delegates and ladies and gentlemen here assembled, I give you a man to match our mountains, Ernest Gruening. (applause)

ERNEST GRUENING: Madam Chairman and Delegates to the Constitutional Convention of Alaska, the title of my address is, "Let us End American Colonialism."

(Dr. Gruening then delivered a prepared address. See Appendix.)

(There was a standing ovation at the close of Dr. Gruening's address.)

MRS. HERMANN: Without objection and for the benefit of those who are shivering, we will stand at recess for ten minutes.

(At this time the Convention recessed for ten minutes.)

MRS. HERMANN: The meeting will please come to order. We are now open for the regular transaction of business of the session.

HELLENTHAL: Madam Chairman, I move that for temporary rules that the Convention adopt Robert's Rules of Order, Revised, unless otherwise specifically provided by the Convention, and until permanent rules are drawn up and adopted. I ask unanimous consent to accomplish this purpose.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention adopt Robert's Rules of Order, Revised, until permanent rules are drawn up and adopted.

JOHNSON: Madam Chairman, I object.

MRS. HERMANN: The Rules Committee will be heard from immediately. This is just to take care of any ordinary rules adopting parliamentary procedure.

JOHNSON: I withdraw my objection.

MRS. HERMANN: Without objection Robert's Rules of Order will stand as the rules for the Convention as specified by Mr. Hellenthal's resolution. We have not yet had the minutes of yesterday's meeting read. Is it your desire that these be read or shall we dispense with it at this time?

MCNEALY: I move and ask unanimous consent that for expediency the reading of the minutes of the previous day's session be dispensed with.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent was asked, and without objection that will be the order, and the reading of the minutes of yesterday's meeting will be dispensed with. The next business to come before the Convention is the report of the Rules Committee, which I assume made its rules yesterday.

RILEY: Madam Chairman, your temporary committee on rules is prepared to report pursuant to yesterday's resolution.

MRS. HERMANN: You may proceed.

RILEY: With the pleasure of the body I shall just proceed and read the entire text of these rules so that they can be heard in their entirety. Thereafter perhaps you will wish to consider them individually for purposes for adoption.

(Mr. Riley read the entire text of the rules.)

RILEY: That concludes the Committee report, Madam Chairman.

V. RIVERS: Madam Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Rules Committee report be adopted with the exception of Rule # which we have already acted upon.

MARSTON: I wonder how much work it would be to receive a copy of the Rules before we vote on it.

MRS. HERMANN: These are just temporary rules covering the election. Do you feel you would like to have a copy before voting?

MCLAUGHLIN: Madam President, I understand from Delegate Riley's statement to Rule 1 that the officers of the Convention shall be a president and a vice president. Is that only temporary until the election of the permanent officers?

MRS. HERMANN: That is the permanent form, that the officers shall be a president, vice president and secretary. The rules provide that the permanent officers shall be those officers and that the secretary be not selected from the membership of the Convention.

TAYLOR: In view of that explanation I object to the unanimous consent.

MCLAUGHLIN: Would it be too much trouble for Mr. Riley to stand before one of the microphones and read the rules again slowly?

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Riley, would you come up to the microphone.

RILEY: It wouldn't take more than half an hour to make sufficient copies if that be your wish.

MCLAUGHLIN: I have a point of order, and it is on a section in substance to proposed Rule #. "The Secretary of the Convention need not be a Delegate and shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention." I make it as a rule of order because I think it violates Chapter 4#, Section 3, as it reads pertaining to the Convention, it shall have the power by vote of a majority of the Delegates to which the body is entitled to choose a president and secretary and all other appropriate officers. The mandate is clear that if the president must come from the Convention, then also the secretary must come from the Convention. I think that possibly the interpretation that the secretary can be an appointive officer comes from the manual which was prepared by the Statehood Committee. That manual assumes that the act which created the Hawaiian Convention is an act identical to our own, and it also assumes that the interpretation of the Hawaiian Convention of necessity is compelling upon us. The Handbook for Delegates provides here that the Hawaiian Convention in 1#50 provided for the following officers: president, vice president and secretary and, subsequently, in the succeeding paragraph is a parenthetical remark that the secretary may or may not be a Delegate.

MRS. HERMANN: For your information, Mr. McLaughlin, the handbook is not intended as a textbook.

MCLAUGHLIN: Section"3 reads, the second sentence, "It," meaning the Convention, shall have the power by vote of a majority of the Delegates to which the body is entitled to choose a president and secretary and such other officers..." Apparently the mandate is specific that two persons should be elected. If we presume that the secretary can be any member of this Convention, then it is completely logical to suggest that the president need not be a member of the Convention.

DAVIS: The Committee, of course, will be guided by what the Convention wants, but we believe that the delegates would want to act as delegates and would not have the time to act as secretary. For that reason we have suggested, not as the Hawaiian Convention did, that the secretary not be a delegate. I personally cannot agree with Mr. McLaughlin that there is any mandate whatsoever that the secretary be a delegate. Of course, if that is what the Convention wants that is what we will have.

MCNEALY: There is nothing in the bill, it is my opinion, referring to an agreement that would prevent the president from being a person outside of this delegation any more than the secretary. The bill is clear on that. However, it was felt that the president of this Convention was certainly an important and enough of an honorary position that the president...

MRS. HERMANN: Is there any further discussion?

NOLAN: I think it only goes to show that we should have a copy of the rules. I make that as a motion and ask unanimous consent.

MCLAUGHLIN: I shall, if you desire, withdraw my point of order.

TAYLOR: Madam Chairman, Mr. Riley made a motion and asked for unanimous consent but I objected.

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Nolan has now moved that we defer further till copies are available to all delegates. If there is no objection, no consideration of the rules will be made until copies are available to all delegates.

WHITE: Madam Chairman, in view of the statement of the Rules Committee that the rules could be provided in half an hour and mindful that lunch time has been set for 12:15, I move that following announcements the Convention recess until 2:00 o'clock.

MRS. HERMANN: I have some announcements here, and I would like to read those to you. We have a memorandum from Dr. Patty as follows, "During the next few days lunch will be served in the old cafeteria in the basement of the Club Dormitory. This will give you an opportunity to see how the other half lives. We expect to move back to the new cafeteria on Thursday or Friday." There is another memorandum from Dr. Patty for delegates driving their own cars. "Temporary head-bolt heater facilities are available. For assignment please call the University Engineer's office, Room 200, Eielson Building." Now we may entertain the motion to recess. Is there a second to the motion?

SUNDBORG: Madam Chairman, I would like to offer to amend Mr. White's motion to provide that we recess until the hour of 1:30 p.m. instead of 2 o'clock.

WHITE: I am perfectly willing to accept the amendment. I made it because I understood that we eat in a different building and the procedure may be somewhat longer than usual.

KILCHER: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: The motion has been made to adjourn until 1:30 this afternoon, during which time copies of the Temporary Rules will be prepared. Is there any objection?

(On voice vote the motion carried and the Convention recessed until 1:30 p.m.)

MRS. HERMANN: Time for the convening of the afternoon session of the Convention has now arrived, and will the meeting please come to order. Has everyone been provided with a copy of the Rules that were made? The Secretary will present them to you if you need a copy.

MCLAUGHLIN: Madam Chairman, I would like to withdraw my point of order as to Rule 2.

MRS. HERMANN: The point of order having been withdrawn, the matter of adopting the Rules will now be up for consideration. Incidentally, I am requested to announce that everybody, including myself, is talking too low for the stenotypist to hear. We are attempting to keep a permanent record of the proceedings of this meeting, and we want everybody to be heard regardless of what they have to say.

RILEY: Madam Chairman, the Rules Committee had suggested before the noon hour that we would present for adoption the several proposed rules in order. After that comment was made there was a request from the floor for their adoption in their entirety with unanimous consent, and just to try that for size on the chance that it may save time, I will move at this time that they be adopted and ask unanimous consent as they stand.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked for the adoption of the rules as they stand. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Madam President, I object to the unanimous consent and wish to propose an amendment.

MRS. HERMANN: An amendment to the rules? Objection has been raised to adopting by unanimous consent. Is there a motion to that effect?

SUNDBORG: Madam Chairman, I moved that the rules as proposed by the Temporary Rules Committee be adopted.

WHITE: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved and seconded that the rules proposed by the Temporary Rules Committee be adopted. The question is now open for discussion. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Madam President, I should like to propose an amendment to Rule 5 which appears on page 2. The amendment will be as follows: Strike the colon after the word "votes" in the third line and insert a period, and then strike the balance of the paragraph.

MRS. HERMANN: Do you so move?

JOHNSON: I so move.

MRS. HERMANN: Motion has been made that Rule 5 be amended by striking the colon after the word "votes" on the third line, substituting a period and that the balance of that paragraph be stricken.

RILEY: Point of order, Madam President, have you a motion on the floor now?

MRS. HERMANN: A motion for the adoption of the rules which opens it up for discussion does it not?

RILEY: Is this discussion only, Mr. Johnson or is this another motion?

JOHNSON: I understood that the main question was up for discussion and that the rules would be subject to amendment.

RILEY: My point of order was that we have a motion which was seconded on the floor. Perhaps that should be disposed of before entertaining another motion.

EGAN: Point of order is, Madam Chairman that Mr. Riley's suggestion would be out of order at this time. The moment the motion was made by Mr. Johnson to adopt these rules, then it becomes open for amendment and Mr. Johnson's amendment is in order.

MRS. HERMANN. The Chair so rules. The amendment has been offered. Does anybody wish it restated? Was it seconded?

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: Motion has been made and seconded that Rule 5 be amended to strike the semicolon after the word "votes" and insert a period and all the rest of that paragraph covering Rule 5 be deleted. Now is there any discussion on the matter? It's open for discussion. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Madam Chairman, perhaps the Convention would appreciate having a little discussion here or explanation of what the Committee on Temporary Rules had in mind by providing the portion that Mr. Johnson has now moved to strike out and thus amend Rule 5. We felt that unless we provided something of this kind that would insure that the Convention would go ahead toward an early decision on an election of a chairman, that we might spend many hours or even many days before any one candidate would get a majority of the votes to which this house is entitled. We felt that by providing that the lowest man not on the first ballot but after the second ballot would be dropped off automatically and that the lowest man each successive ballot would be dropped off automatically, would not jeopardize the chance of any one who was really in the running to be

President of this Convention but it would take out of the running somebody who would not have such a chance and would free his votes to go to other candidates and thus lead more speedily to a decision.

MRS. HERMANN: Any further discussion?

R. RIVERS: Madam Chairman, members. I think Mr. Johnson is perhaps wondering why we provided for a, oh, I didn't realize it had secret ballot right up here at the very beginning but point of information. Mr. Johnson were you questioning the elimination process or were you questioning this part about receiving twenty-eight votes because the Act itself requires 28 votes, or what were you questioning on that proviso?

JOHNSON: I was questioning the elimination process. It doesn't seem to me that is fair to the nominee. I think they should be entitled to as many votes as are taken. They ought to be on the ballot at all times. That is why they are put there to begin with. In this body which is certainly a democratic body and ascribing to democratic principles I would think that in order to be fair, the process of elimination should be taken out because that could not be fair. I think I only need call attention to the fact that in some of our national conventions the final nominee was arrived at after any number of ballots, and if you would use this type of process why a very serious situation could arise and a very unfair one, because there might be ten nominees, and the tenth man on the list could very well be eliminated on the first or second ballot. It does not seem to me a fair way of handling it at all, and I see no reason why it should tie up the Convention unduly. Even if it did, what of it? It is an orderly process and the orderly way of doing things.

R. RIVERS: I would like to follow through the Committee's thinking a little more. The matter of casting successive ballots indefinitely with all the candidates still in the running is usually carried out by a roll call and is not too cumbersome nor too time-consuming process. But several people spoke to members of the Rules Committee about making a secret ballot. Some of we old-timers with thick skins can stand the gaff, but actually it is a little bit tough when the tension is on to cast a ballot against somebody whom you have been very fond of, but perhaps you think because somebody else is better qualified and probably the free thought of the members would be better expressed through a series of secret ballots. When we get into the cumbersome business of passing out ballots and everybody marking them and having a tally committee assist the clerk to count the ballots and we keep all candidates in, why we've got a rather time-taking process on our hands. It was for the reason that we found ourselves going for the secret ballot that to shorten the procedure we would put in this business about dropping candidates after the second ballot. That explains the Committee's thinking.

MRS. HERMANN: Correction, Mr. Rivers. The Clerk of the Court does not count them but the temporary secretary. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: Madam Chairman, possibly Mr. Johnson's objection could be removed to the extent of the number of ballots with all candidates on the ballot with more than perhaps two, say three or perhaps four. By that time possibly he would feel they would all have had sufficient opportunity and remove the objection that way. I feel personally as Mr. Rivers does, that the thing might go on forever unless we have some process of elimination.

MRS. HERMANN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Sundborg, you have spoken once. Is there anyone else who wishes to speak before Mr. Sundborg has his second turn? Very well Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: If I speak again on this and to point out a difference between what we are doing here and what the national conventions of the political parties are doing. It was a parallel that was made by Mr. Johnson. Their main business and the reason they meet is to choose a nominee for the presidency and other candidates for election. That is why they meet. We have so much else to do here. We can't afford to spend days trying to choose a president of this body because I really think it doesn't matter much who is president and I (and I think the rest of us who were on the Temporary Rules Committee was trying to find a way to speed up that process so that we would not be tied up here unduly. I don't think there is a thing unfair about this provision either. It is perfectly democratic and fair and it isn't dropping off anybody who has a substantial number of votes. It is only dropping off the tail-ender.

MRS. HERMANN: Is there further discussion on the matter? Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Apparently they opened the discussion up and made a few remarks about this secret ballot. I don't see why we should have to have a secret ballot. If we are trying to expedite this I don't see anything wrong with a voice vote.

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Buckalew, you are not speaking on the motion which has nothing to do with the first sentence in the Rule 5 at all.

BUCKALEW: The only reason I brought this up was Mr. Rivers talking about a secret ballot, and thick skins and that sort of thing and I just wanted to say that my skin wasn't thick, and I don't care how I vote or anybody else knows how I vote.

I want to offer an amendment but I'll wait until this other amendment is voted on.

MRS. HERMANN: Is there further discussion on the matter? Mr. Taylor? The question has been called.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: State the question.

MRS. HERMANN: The motion is that we amend the temporary rules, specifically Rule 5, by deleting the semicolon after the word votes, inserting a period and deleting the rest of Rule 5. All in favor say aye, contrary "no". The motion is lost and the amendment is lost and Rule 5 will not be amended as suggested.

BUCKALEW: Madam Chairman, I would like to offer an amendment to Rule 5. In the first line strike "secret ballot" and insert "voice vote" and in the second line strike successive ballots and insert "voice votes", and in the fourth line I would have to insert where it says "second balloting process" insert "second voting process."

MRS. HERMANN: I did not quite understand that last part Mr. Buckalew. Will you read it as you want it to read.

BUCKALEW: Shall I read it? "Voting shall be by voice vote and voting shall continue by successive votes until one candidate shall have received at least 28 votes: PROVIDED, however, that in the event no candidate receives as many as 28 votes in either the first or second voting process, the low man (I'll have to leave that and continue after the parenthesis) shall be removed from consideration on the third vote and succeeding votes and, following the third and succeeding votes wherein no nominee receives at least 28 votes," etc. I'm just striking out "secret ballot" that is all.

MRS. HERMANN: You have heard the amendment to Rule 5.

EGAN: Madam Chairman, just for the purpose of clarification, I am wondering if Mr. Buckalew wanted to have the wording proper in the hands of the secretary beginning on the first line in Rule 5, "Voting shall be by voice vote and balloting shall continue, on the next line, "by successive voice vote ballots". That is the way he worded it originally and was copied down that way. It's quite a jumble in my opinion. I think that is, what he meant to say.

MRS. HERMANN: You stand corrected Mr. Buckalew? The substance of the amendment is that it shall be by a "voice vote." Do you mean "roll call" or "voice"?

BUCKALEW: "Roll call."

MRS. HERMANN: A voice vote is not exactly the same as a roll call vote.

BUCKALEW: Roll call would be the proper terminology.

MRS. HERMANN: I think that is what is intended. Let's word it this for purposes of getting it before the Convention straight: "Voting shall be by roll call and shall continue by successive votes until one candidate shall have received at least 287 votes." Does that express your meaning?

BUCKALEW: That has got it.

MRS. HERMANN: Is there a second to Mr. Buckalew's motion? There being no second the motion is lost. Has the question been called for? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: One of the delegate's wives said that she would prefer that someone else was allowed to talk beside the attorney delegates here, but not withstanding, I must make one motion -- first to clarify myself in regard to the point of order raised by Mr. McLaughlin concerning the rule in regard to the Secretary of the Convention. As I had stated previously, I believe that there is nothing, in the fact that the Conventional bill as such that the Secretary need not be legally elected as a member of this body. However, if there is going to be any chance whatsoever of this particular portion being attacked in the courts or by any of the enemies of statehood, then rather than subject ourselves to any attack, I think that it would be fitting and proper that the Secretary of this Convention be named from among the delegates of the Convention to hold the secretaryship in, I might say, title only and to serve under the direction of the President of this Convention, and then for the Secretary Delegate to, in turn, delegate his duties to an administrative official. It would bar any chance or opportunity of that particular portion being attacked. In other words, the Secretary would be a Delegate, but by being in a position to delegate his or her authority to an administrative official it would then operate in this way that the party who might be so unfortunate as to be elected Secretary still would have ample time to proceed with his duties and do his or her duties as Delegate. I therefore propose, Madam Chairman, an amendment to Rule 2, line 1, strike out the word "not" so that in reading "The Secretary of the Convention shall be a Delegate", etc.

MRS. HERMANN: You have heard the motion amending Rule 2.

COOPER: Madam Chairman with the consent of Mr. McNealy I would like to add an amendment to the amendment. Strike the word "shall" and put in "does. Leave the word "not" and insert "have to be a Delegate". I believe you will find authority for that in Section 13.

TAYLOR: Madam President, I believe that motion to amend is out of order until Mr. McNealy's motion is seconded.

MRS. HERMANN: Until Mr. McNealy's motion is seconded. TAYLOR: It has been seconded?

MRS. HERMANN: It hasn't, no.

TAYLOR: I'll second it then.

MRS. HERMANN: The motion to amend Rule 2, to read "The Secretary of the Convention shall be a Delegate and shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention" Did you want all of it kept in except the word "not"?

MCNEALY: Yes.

HERMANN: The substance of the amendment is to remove the word "not" before "shall" in the first line. Is there any second to that motion?

EGAN: Madam Chairman, I would like to ask unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for about two minutes.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked that we have a recess for two minutes. Without objection has there been an objection?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: There has been an objection. V. RIVERS: I object.

MRS. SWEENEY: I so move.

V. FISCHER: I second the motion.

MRS . HERMANN: It has been moved that we have a recess for two minutes, seconded by Mr. Fischer. Any discussion? We don't discuss that do we? All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary "no". The "ayes" have it and we will have a recess for two minutes.

(The Convention at this time recessed for about two minutes.)

MRS. HERMANN: The meeting will please come to order and we will continue the discussion on the adoption of the Temporary Rules. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Madam President, I would like to withdraw the amendment that I had heretofore offered on the floor, the amendment to strike out the word "not".

MRS. HERMANN: If there is no objection the amendment can be withdrawn.

TAYLOR: I was the second. I will consent to the withdrawal.

MRS. HERMANN: With the consent of his second Mr. McNealy has withdrawn the motion to strike the word "not" from Rule 2. Is there further discussion with regard to Rule 2 or any of the other rules?

SMITH: Madam Chairman, is it in order to present an amendment to Rule 2 at this time?

MRS. HERMANN: It is in order to present an amendment Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I would like to propose that Rule 2 be amended to read "The Secretary of the Convention may be selected from the Delegates or may be someone other than a Delegate and shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention."

MRS. HERMANN: The motion made by Mr. Smith provides that the Secretary of the Convention may or may not be a Delegate, as the Convention may decide, and shall serve under the direction of the President. Is there a second?

NOLAN: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: Seconded by Mr. Nolan.

TAYLOR: Madam President, I would like to offer an amendment to that amendment, and that is to amend Rule 2 to read as follows: "The Secretary of the Convention need not be a Delegate and shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention." That does the same thing as Mr. Smith's but it only needs the one word changed.

MRS. HERMANN: Do you accept the amendment, Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Yes with the consent of the second.

MRS. HERMANN: The amendment now reads: "The Secretary of the Convention need not be a Delegate and he shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention." Is there any discussion on the motion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

MRS. HERMANN: All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary "no". The "ayes" have it and Rule 2 has been amended by substituting the words "need not" for the word "shall" on the first line thereof.

TAYLOR: Madam President, I would like to offer an amendment to Rule 1, and that is to strike the article "a" at the end of the first line of Rule 1 and then insert the word "three" and make "Vice President" plural, so there would be three vice presidents.

MRS. HERMANN: The motion is that the Rule 1 be amended to provide that there shall be three vice presidents instead of one as appears in the original rule. Is there a second to the motion?

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: Motion has been made and seconded that Rule 1 of the Temporary Rules be amended to provide that there shall be three vice presidents as permanent officers of the Convention.

TAYLOR: Madam President, as the maker of that motion, the reason I did that is that we will be in session here for a long time, I believe, and during that time it may be that the president might be absent or vice president might be absent. We're all more or less in business and we don't know when we might be called away at a particular time and if such would be the case that there should be a vacancy I think we should have two other vice presidents so that in the event that there would be an occasion where the president and the vice president were not here that there be two other persons, the second and third vice president who would be in line to automatically assume the Chair and would not have to, during the Convention, have an election to see who was going to take the Chair just for the purpose of maybe sometime during the Convention it will expedite the business.

COLLINS: Madam President,

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: I think it's a very good idea to have this number of vice presidents but they should be designated seniority in the event that the president should be disqualified, then the question would have to be raised before the delegation who would succeed him. There should be a first vice president, a second vice president and third vice president if you so see fit to have that many. That would eliminate the question that might arise when the president of the Convention is not present.

MRS. HERMANN: Would you like to make that in the form of a motion Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: I will make that in the form of a motion, that they should be designated: "First Vice President, Second Vice President and Third Vice-President.

MRS. HERMANN: Do you accept the amendment, Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Well, I think he meant it in the form of a motion. I would certainly accept it as an amendment to my motion. I think they should be designated as first, second and third vice presidents.

MRS. HERMANN: I understood Mr. Collins was making that as a motion to amend your motion.

TAYLOR: I accept it.

MRS. HERMANN: Who was your second? Mr. McNealy? MCNEALY: I agree.

MRS. HERMANN: Rule 1 as amended will then, as the motion to amend will then be as follows: "The officers of the Convention shall be a President, a First Vice President, a Second Vice President, a Third Vice President, and a Secretary; the President and Vice Presidents to be elected from the Delegates by the vote of at least 28 delegates." Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Madam Chairman, it seems to me that the election of a series of vice presidents seems unnecessary since if it is strictly a matter of succession in case of the inability of the president and vice presidents to serve, the Permanent Rules of the Convention provide for succession in one way or another, and we will be taking up hours of time electing a series of vice presidents.

MCNEALY: Madam Chairman, I would like to speak briefly in support of Mr. Taylor's motion on this ground and I hope that if the motion passes, there will be a ladies' and gentlemen's agreement of the delegation for example, if the president of this Convention is elected from one division that the three vice presidents be elected one from each division.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been my hope that we would avoid divisions and sectional discussions and all of us be citizens of Alaska at this historic meeting and I would like to hear from anyone else that has an idea on that subject. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Madam Chairman, I want to say a word in favor of the original motion. It appears to me that there would be no method of succession to the office unless you do designate the first, second and third vice presidents. If we had a long list of officers to choose from then some succession could be set up, but we don't have that long list. I favor the original motion, designating first, second, and third vice president.

MRS. HERMANN: Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

MRS. HERMANN: The question has been called for. The motion is that we shall amend Rule 1 to read as follows: "The officers of the Convention shall be a President, a First Vice President, a Second Vice President, a Third Vice President, and a Secretary; the President and Vice Presidents to be elected from the Delegates by the vote of at least 28 delegates." All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary "no".

SMITH: Roll call.

MRS. HERMANN: The roll call has been asked for. The Secretary will call the roll on the amendment.

(The roll was called with the following result:

Ayes: 25 - Armstrong, Barr, Coghill, Collins, Cooper Doogan, Egan, Emberg, H. Fischer, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Johnson, Knight, Lee, Longborg, McNealy, Marston, Nolan, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Taylor, VanderLeest, Wien.

Nays: 29 - Awes, Boswell, Buckalew, Cross, Davis, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, King, Laws, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Walsh, White.

Absent: 1 - Peratrovich.)

MR. JOHN HALL: The roll has been called, Madam President. The vote was 25 ayes, 29 nays and one absent.

MRS. HERMANN: The "nays" have it, and Rule 1 will not be amended as moved.

R. RIVERS: Madam President, I have a motion. My motion will be as follows: "The officers of the Convention shall be a President, two Vice Presidents and a Secretary,"

MRS. HERMANN: Two?

R. RIVERS: Two vice presidents and a secretary.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Numbered or unnumbered?

R. RIVERS: A first and a second vice president I ask unanimous consent.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been made that we amend Rule 1 to read: "The officers of the Convention shall be a President, a First Vice President and Second Vice President and a Secretary' etc. Without objection --

V. FISCHER: I object.

MRS. HERMANN: Who objected? Objection being heard, is there a motion?

R. RIVLRS: I will so move.

SUNDBORG: I'll second.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved and seconded that we amend Rule 1 to include a first and second vice president among the officers. Are you ready for the question?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

MRS. HERMANN: All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary "no". The "ayes" have it and the rule will be amended to provide for a first and second vice president. Is there further discussion in connection with the temporary rules or motions?

MCCUTCHEON: I move the previous question.

MRS. HERMANN: The main motion has been called for, which is that we adopt the rules as amended.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

MRS. HERMANN: Did we have a motion to adopt the rules as amended? It has been moved and seconded that we adopt the rules as amended. Any discussion? All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary "no". The "ayes" have it and the temporary rules will be adopted as amended.

RILEY: Madam Chairman.

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I believe it was the rules alone and not the report which was adopted. The Temporary Committee on Rules had two recommendations which might be well to put into action for expediting permanent rules and they appear on the last page, page 3.

MRS. HERMANN: Turn to your page 3 of the mimeographed copy of the Temporary Rules which contain two recommendations as made by the Rules Committee. You have moved for their adoption Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I ask unanimous consent of those recommendations.

MRS. HERMANN: Unanimous consent has been asked for the adoption of the recommendations of the Rules Committee. Is there objection?.

TAYLOR: Does that mean the adoption of these rules?

RILEY: No. If I may, I will reply through the Chair. Mr. Taylor, actually the second paragraph will require a resolution on the part of the Convention that the Permanent Rules Committee be appointed to commence preparation of permanent rules. That may take a little while. We spent about 24 hours on this.

TAYLOR: I withdraw my objection.

MRS. HERMANN: There being no objection, the recommendations of the Rules Committee will be adopted. I am sure the appointment of the nine-member Rules Committee must be made by the permanent President. Is there further business to come before the meeting? The next business will be the election of officers: of a President, a First Vice President, a Second Vice President, and a Secretary. Nominations for the President are now in order.

ROBERTSON: Friends, I am happy to nominate for President a man who is a pioneer, a man who has been in Alaska for more than fifty years, a man who was Speaker of the House and the first Alaska Legislature of 1913 and of the second in 1915, a man who has had legislative experience in several other sessions of the Territorial Legislature, a man who served as Mayor of Fairbanks, a man who has engaged in and contributed to many civic and fraternal activities in our Territory, a man who for several years who has not only practiced in Alaska the profession in which you Madam President and I are engaged, a man who is respected by all, a man who is active and keen both mentally and physically, a man who can preside over us with impartiality, in fairness to all, interested only in obtaining a good Constitution for the State of Alaska. Madam President, I nominate Earnest B. Collins for President.

MCCUTCHEON: Madam Chairman, I would like to place in nomination the name of a man who came to Alaska and our northern country as a babe in arms, one whose name has been before the people of Alaska for a good number of years. He took his school in the mining camps and passed into a profession as an adult as a civil engineer. In the sessions of 1937 and 1939 he was the president of the All-Alaska Chamber of Commerce, and he served as a Senator from the Fourth Division. In 1947 and 1949 I had the pleasure of serving with him as a Senator from the Third Division. He made the great economic studies that lay behind the plans for our finance and revenue measures of the Legislature of 1949 which, I might say, has placed the future State of Alaska on a sound economic basis. That man whose integrity is above reproach and whose ability has been recognized and honored throughout Alaska is Senator Victor Rivers. I would like to place his name in nomination.

MRS. HERMANN: The name of Victor Rivers has been placed in nomination.

ROSSWOG: Madam Chairman?

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Rosswog will have the floor now.

ROSSWOG: Madam Chairman and fellow Delegates, I would like to nominate a young man whom I believe, by his residence in the Territory and his experience with Mason's to serve as our President of this Convention, Mr. William Egan of Valdez.

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Egan has been nominated. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I have tread on ground that no human being has tread on before in climbing mountains, and I walk softly and with great expectation and I think we are travelling on new ground today in making this Constitution the thing we planned. I could address you as men of the tundra, and that is where my heart is in twenty thousand igloos among the Eskimos, the Indians and the Aleuts. One-third of the population of the area of Alaska is the tundra out beyond the timber line, the firmly frozen ground. I could address you as men from the timber or the plains. I elect to address you as people of Alaska. I guess after this morning's address I should say "fellow colonists". I have traveled the great width of Alaska, about a half million miles, and there are two bodies of water of this great piece of land, they run from the East to the West. The great Kuskokwim River and the great Yukon River.

MRS. HERMANN: Pardon me Mr. Marston, but are you going to nominate somebody?

MARSTON: I am coming to it. We have 75 days here if we have to use them, and I want to take the time to make this nomination. May I proceed, Madam Chairman?

MRS. HERMANN: You may proceed. I just wanted to be sure you were on the subject.

MARSTON: I am on the subject definitely. The reason I am coming to it this way is because of a former nomination. The man's name I wish to place in nomination is a man who lives on the Yukon, the great river, the Yukon, and I can say exactly as Senator McCutcheon said for his nominee, this man came only three years old to Alaska and has lived upwards of a half century in the snows of the Arctic or its part of Alaska. He has been a member of the Attorney General of this Territory of Alaska and has been mayor of Fairbanks two or three times. I wish to place these two great Rivers, are great Rivers. I know them both, I have traveled both of their courses, I am proud of both of the two great mighty Rivers. The Yukon is a little deeper and a little older, and I wish to place in nomination the name of Ralph Rivers for president of this Convention. (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: The name of Ralph Rivers has been placed in nomination. Are there further nominations?

MARSTON: I move the nominations be closed. BARR: I object.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved that the nominations be closed. All in favor signify by saying "aye".

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: There has been no second. MRS. HERMANN: Oh, we didn't get a second. Pardon me. BUCKALEW: I'll second it Madam Chairman.

MRS. HERMANN: It has been moved and seconded that the nominations be closed. All in favor signify by saying "aye", contrary, "no". The "ayes" have it and the nominations for President of the Constitutional Convention have been closed. I will ask, we did retain the ballot didn't we? I will ask two members of the group to act as talliers on the ballot and to work with the Secretary of the Convention in doing so. Now we don't want anybody who is too close a friend to any of the nominees, do we? On that I don't know. I will appoint Dorothy Awes and Leonard King to be talliers for this election. The ballots are now being distributed.

You may be at ease until they are distributed. The ballots have been prepared. The Chair will ask the two talliers to check them and place them in the hands of the Clerk.

MR. JOHN HALL: Madam President, the vote is

Collins	--	11
Victor Rivers	-	17
William Egan	--	18
Ralph Rivers	--	8

MRS. HERMANN: There being no majority and 28 votes not being cast for any candidate, we will ballot again. Do we leave off the lowest one this time?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: No, next time.

MR. JOHN HALL: Does everyone have blank ballots?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Nobody does.

MRS. HERMANN: The Chair will direct the Secretary to destroy the previous votes.

(Mr. John Hall destroyed the previous votes and took them out.) (The second ballot was cast at this time.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Did somebody not turn in their ballot or did somebody not vote? There are only 53 on the tally:

Collins	--	8
Victor Rivers	--	17
William Egan	--	24
Ralph Rivers	--	4

A total of 53, Madam President.

(Mr. John Hall destroyed the ballots for the second vote.)

KILCHER: Madam President, it seems to me I heard a mumbled "Egan" down there once and you didn't tally it.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: It doesn't matter anyway.

MRS. HERMANN: It's immaterial. The Chair rules that it's immaterial in that nobody has a majority vote of 28. We will cast a new ballot.

MR. JOHN HALL: Is there anybody who needs ballots for the next vote? Is there anyone else who needs a blank ballot?

MRS. HERMANN: According to the temporary rules that you have just adopted, low man is eliminated from this ballot, leaving only three candidates to be voted upon.

R. RIVERS: Madam Chairman, I would like to amend your last remarks. It is with pleasure that I withdraw as a candidate of this race. I certainly recognize what the poor old President is going to be up against and to clear the air and get around this Yukon-Kuskokwim struggle, it is my pleasure to withdraw.

MRS. HERMANN: Now that raises the question of whether the low man is eliminated. I think Mr. Collins --

R. RIVERS: No Ma'am. You said that the rules say that the low man is eliminated. Then they also say that anyone may withdraw.

MRS. HERMANN: That is correct but it doesn't necessarily make Mr. Collins withdraw, too. Or is he eliminated? I don't think he is.

R. RIVERS: Well I thought we were following a rule. The rules say that after the second ballot and prior to the third ballot the low man is eliminated. It also says that anybody else who wants to may withdraw.

MRS. HERMANN: That's right.

R. RIVERS: Well, we're following a written rule so I invoke the rule Madam President.

MRS. HERMANN: I would like to hear further from the members on that particular point.

SWEENEY: The ballot as called by the Clerk showed Mr. Collins in fourth place. He is not placed in third place until the withdrawal of Ralph Rivers. I do not believe that Mr. Collins is in a position to be eliminated.

R. RIVERS: I apologize to Mr. Collins. I thought I had you beat by one, but you have me beat by one. Yes, I am eliminated two ways now.

MRS. HERMANN: The ballot will be cast for three candidates --

Mr. Egan, Mr. Victor Rivers, and Mr. Collins. The Secretary is instructed to destroy the last ballot.

MR. JOHN HALL: I have destroyed them, Madam Chairman.

(The third ballot was cast at this time.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Madam President, this last vote was

E. B. Collins -- 7

(applause)

MRS. HERMANN: The Chair declares Mr. Egan elected permanent President of the Convention and will appoint a committee to escort Mr. Egan to the Chair. On that committee we will ask Douglas Gray, W. O. Smith, and Burke Riley.

(Mr. Egan was escorted to the Chair at this time.) (applause)

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Egan, I congratulate you upon your election to be President of the Alaska Constitutional Convention, hand to you this gavel, symbol of your authority. I commend you to act with courage and humility.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Madam Chairman and Delegates, I feel deeply humbled and proud of this honor you have bestowed upon me, and I want you to know that you can rest assured that I will at all times strive to carry out the responsibilities that go with this office with the dignity and fairness, that your Temporary Chairman, Mrs. Hermann, has done.

MRS. HERMANN: Thank you.

SMITH: Mr. Chairman, may we have the honor of escorting the Temporary Chairman to the floor?

(At this time Mrs. Hermann was escorted to the floor.)

DAVIS: Mr. President, I would like to offer the motion that the Convention give a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hermann for her fair and able handling of the office of Temporary President of this Convention.

JOHNSON: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention give a unanimous vote of thanks to Mrs. Hermann for her able handling of the position of Temporary Chairman of this Convention. Hearing no objection Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I move to amend Mr. Davis' motion to read "rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Hermann."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Walsh has moved to amend Mr. Davis' motion to give a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Hermann.

DAVIS: I accept the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There being no objection it is so ordered.

(At this time the Convention gave Mrs. Hermann a rising vote of thanks.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I believe the act of establishing a Convention calls for the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and if I am not out of order, I would like to propose that that be done at this time.

BARR: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: I believe that the Act states that that will be done after the organization of the convention and that has not been completed yet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, would it be in order to leave that order of business until we have the complete permanent organization? The Chair will order that that be held in abeyance. The next order of business to come before the Convention is the election of the First Vice President. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. President, I wish to place in nomination for the position of First Vice President of this Convention the name of a man of long residence in Alaska, one who has on numerous occasions served us in the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska and served as President of the Senate during the 1955 session. He is a man highly esteemed not only in the First Division but throughout Alaska. He has a reputation for honesty and fair play, a man whose interest is territory-wide and a man who can be a source of great strength and help to the President of this Convention. It is my privilege and real pleasure to nominate James Nolan of Wrangell, Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to offer to this Convention as a nominee for the office of First Vice President, a man who also has had long residence in the Territory, in fact, he was born here. His ancestors have been born in Alaska as far back over as many generations as this land was populated by human beings. He, too, has been a member of the Territorial Legislature serving with distinction in both the House and the Senate, and he too has been the President of the Senate of the Alaska Territorial Legislature. I would particularly like to see this Convention honor the nominee who I am about to name, by giving him a position of high rank in the Convention, because he is a member of the aboriginal inhabitants of this Territory, a representative of the Indian people who lived here long before any of the rest of us came on the scene. And the man whose nomination I now urge upon you is Frank Peratrovich of Klawock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So at this time we have the names of James Nolan of Wrangell and Frank Peratrovich of Klawock before us for the position of First Vice President of the Convention. Are there other nominations?

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, I would like to nominate Mrs. Mildred Hermann for this First Vice President. In case there is a vacancy, with her fairness and handling of this thing, I would like to nominate Mrs. Hermann.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf has placed in nomination the name of Mrs. Mildred Hermann for the position of First Vice President. Are there other nominations?

MCNEES: Mr. Chairman, I would like to put before the Convention the name of a man who I think has served the Territory for a number of years both Houses of the Legislature, a man who is on the Board of Regents of the University of Alaska, a man who has served the Territory ably and well for a period of nearly fifty years, Michael Walsh.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Michael J. Walsh of Nome has been proposed as the First Vice President. Are there other nominations for the office of First Vice President. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I would like to place in nomination a man highly respected in the Territory of Alaska. He practiced law for a good many years. He comes from the Third Division and is on the Board of Governors, the Bar Association, and I think a man who can ably fill the office of First Vice President, and I place in nomination the name of Ed Davis of Anchorage.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The name of Mr. Ed Davis has been placed in nomination.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I would like to thank Mr. Taylor but would like to decline the nomination.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis declines the nomination. Are there other nominations for the office of First Vice President?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move that the nominations be closed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves. Is there a second? BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the nominations for the office of First Vice President be closed. We have the names of Mr. James Nolan, Mrs. Mildred Hermann, Mr. Michael Walsh and Frank Peratrovich before us as nominees for the office of the First Vice President of the Convention. Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: How do you spell "Peratrovich"?

(Ballots were passed at this time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The same people can collect the ballots who collected them before, if you will.

MR. JOHN HALL: The following is the result of the first ballot Mr. President:

Mrs. Hermann	-- 10
Mr. Walsh	-- 10
Mr. Peratrovich	-- 18
Mr. Nolan	-- 15

PRESIDENT EGAN: So on the first ballot no one has received a clear majority for the position of First Vice President. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, point of order. I don't want to be technical and it may be a matter for the Rules Committee Mr. President, but the fact that Delegate Peratrovich was not sworn in and the fact that he has not taken his oath of office and not present and that before proceeding, all of the officers must be elected, sworn in before the Convention can continue with the business. I just wondered what the rule might be on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, does the -- if the Chair may, was there anything in the law that said that. I mean that, Mr. Peratrovich, the way the Chair understands it, is detained, not of his own choosing but because of weather. Are you asking for a slight recess Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I would ask for a two-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy asks unanimous consent for a twominute recess. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I don't find anything in the law that requires that a Delegate take an oath of office for election. I think Mr. Peratrovich is qualified.

RIVERS: Mr. President, Delegate Peratrovich has been certified for the office here and he cannot assume his duties until he is sworn in, well he is not going to start work until he gets here. I think he is still eligible at this point.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy has asked unanimous consent that the Convention recess for two minutes. If there is no objection the Convention stands at recess for two minutes in order to possibly look into this question. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Before we recess I would like to point out that there is nothing in the Act that said that you could not elect a man if he isn't present but it does state: "The Convention shall be the judge of the qualifications of its members, their election or appointment." So it doesn't state whether or not--

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there's no objection, the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

(The Convention recessed for two minutes)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President I wish to withdraw my point of order. I believe there is nothing in the Act itself that requires taking the oath of office. It is merely a general Territorial law and I believe the point of order should be withdrawn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will proceed with the second ballot on the nominations for permanent First Vice President. Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: I hope all the delegates understand clearly now that Mr. Peratrovich is qualified. The fact that he is not here does not disqualify him, and the fact that he has not taken the oath of office yet does not disqualify him. I hope all of you understand that Mr. Peratrovich is qualified.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection, the Chair will hold that Mr. Peratrovich is qualified to hold the office if elected. Does everyone have their ballots? You people may go around and collect the ballots then.

(At this time the ballots were collected.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. President, the second ballot for First Vice President is:

Mr. Nolan	-- 17
Mr. Peratrovich	-- 22
Mrs. Hermann	-- 7
Mr. Walsh	-- 7

PRESIDENT EGAN: At the end of the second ballot no one has received a clear majority for the office of First Vice President. Under the Rule the two low candidates were eliminated. So now at the beginning of the third ballot you have Mr. Nolan and Mr. Peratrovich as candidates for the office of First Vice President. The Clerk can destroy the ballots of the last voting.

MR. JOHN HALL: Yes sir.

(At this time the third ballot was cast.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. President, the third ballot for First Vice President was

Mr. Nolan	-- 26
Mr. Peratrovich	-- 28

PRESIDENT EGAN: So by vote of the Convention Delegates, Frank Peratrovich of Klawock has been named the First Vice President of the Convention. We will now proceed with nominations for Second Vice President of the Convention. Nominations are in order. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, we have heard many fine nominating speeches before and therefore I would just like to nominate Mr. Ralph Rivers of Fairbanks.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer nominates Mr. Ralph Rivers of Fairbanks as Second Vice President of this Convention. Are there other nominations? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. President, I would like to renew my nomination for Second Vice President, Mr. James Nolan of Wrangell.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney nominates for Second Vice President of the Convention, Mr. James Nolan of Wrangell. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, the nominating speech has been already made for the man I would like to name. We have also been told that there are two great Rivers in this Territory. I would like to submit the name of Mr. Vic Rivers again.

V. RIVERS: I think once is enough in one day Frank. Thank you very much. I appreciate the nomination. I will do my best to work effectively on the floor and would prefer to be there at this particular stage of the proceedings. Thank you Frank.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other nominations for the office of Second Vice President? Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: I don't want to be out of order but Colonel "Muktuk" Marston forgot his punch line. What he meant to say at the close of his speech that Ralph Rivers got more votes than anybody in the Territory and ran at large. I wanted to add that.

R. RIVERS: Thanks for making that speech.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other nominations for the office of Second Vice President of the Convention? If not MCCUTCHEON: I move and ask unanimous consent that the nominations for Second Vice President be closed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon asks unanimous consent that nominations for Second Vice President be closed. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, nominations are closed and if the Clerks will distribute the ballots and papers, we will proceed with the election. There are two candidates -- Mr. Ralph Rivers and Mr. James Nolan for the office of Second Vice President.

(At this time the first ballot was cast.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. Chairman, the votes for the office of Second Vice President on the first ballot was

James Nolan	-- 22

PRESIDENT EGAN: So by your vote you have elected Mr. Ralph Rivers Second Vice President of the Convention. (applause) The Chair will now declare nominations in order for the office of Secretary of the Convention. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to move for a recess for ten minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for ten minutes. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess.

(The Convention recessed at 3:35 p.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Nominations are now in order for the office of Permanent Secretary of the Convention. Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to place the name of Katherine Alexander, Secretary of the Senate and a very capable lady as Secretary of this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy offers in nomination the name of Mrs. Katherine Alexander.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I want to nominate a man whom I think is extremely well qualified for the job of Secretary of this Convention. I visualize the job of Secretary as the man who has to know all the delegates, all the consultants, who will act as a liaison between the consulting staff and the delegates, liaison between the various committees, there will be eleven or twelve of them, an aid to the President. If there is difficulty with personnel in the clerical staff, the chief clerk would refer those problems to the Secretary and not bother the President with them. I visualize the Secretary as being the man who has to watch the press relations, the publicity for this Convention on a nationwide basis, who may have to have a press aide and a person on the very top side of this Convention. Now this is one of the positions provided for by the Alaska Legislature. It is not something to be treated lightly. I think the man who is to be the Secretary of this Convention, elected by this body, should be a man with the qualifications who could meet the duties I have just outlined to you. I am talking about Tom Stewart of Juneau, a man who is a graduate in both liberal arts and political science and also a graduate of the Yale Law School, a man who helped draft this initial bill, a man who visualized this thing in a big way, who consulted with various professors in political science departments and institutes back East when he was on a trip, prior to the last Legislature, a person who has worked his head off putting all these small points together, who has worried about the housing, about the consulting service, about the transportation and who has gotten to know all the delegates and knows all the consultants, a man who has had a lot to do with the press and with public relations, a man who has stubbed his toe and made a few mistakes, as any of us would have done, but a man on the over-all picture knows the thing right from the ground up and is admirably qualified to be the Secretary of this Convention, so I nominate Tom Stewart.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers has placed in nomination the name of Mr. Tom Stewart to be Secretary of the Convention. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: A point of order, Mr. President. As I remember, Mr. Rivers said Mr. Stewart was a member of the Legislature which helped adopt this bill which calls for a Constitutional Convention and as he further said, the bill itself establishes the office of Secretary. My point of order is the Alaska Organic Act prohibits the serving by Mr. Stewart in the position of Secretary of this Constitutional Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, your point of order is one, to raise a point of order of that nature is one that the Chair would certainly not want to rule upon because you raise what might be in your mind a legal objection. We do not have, right at this time, a Rules Committee, a permanent Rules Committee, to refer any matter of that nature to unless the Convention wants to ask that the temporary Rules Committee that we had under the temporary set-up take up that question for consideration at this time. The Chair will entertain further discussion as to how we should proceed. Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I will make a motion to refer any further questions to the temporary Rules Committee as constituted which is still available for that use. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. Chairman, this is not in the nature of an objection but point of inquiry. Have you still a temporary Rules Committee with any injunction from the body? I believe we've performed our function as stated by yesterday's resolution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is true, Mr. Riley. You have raised a question that is good. At the present moment there is no Rules Committee. The Chair would probably have to with the aid of the members of the Convention appoint a temporary Rules Committee to take over in this permanent setup to be legal. What is the -- Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: I move that we have a ten-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What does the Convention desire? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Chair appoint the previous temporary Rules Committee to serve on this question and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney asks unanimous consent that the Chair be authorized to appoint the members who served on the previous rules committee take this matter under advisement and report back to the Convention after a recess. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, those members of the delegates who were on the previous temporary Rules Committee are appointed as a temporary Rules Committee now to take this matter under advisement and if there is no further objection, will the Chairman of the Rules Committee state how long that would take.

RILEY: Mr. Chairman, I don't expect to pick up that ball with any particular accuracy, but I think we could come out with a report of progress at least in ten or fifteen minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Convention is at recess for twenty minutes. The Convention is at recess.

(At this time the Convention recessed for 20 minutes.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I don't know what the lawyers have gotten themselves into here. This audience and this body is strong enough and big enough to create a job of secretary general from our own organization and appoint Tom Stewart and proceed. Then we aren't involved with the laws down at Juneau or anywhere else.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: We have a specific order of business which is a report of the Rules Committee at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct Mr. Rivers and the specific order of business is the report of the Rules Committee upon which they were deliberating. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Your reconstituted temporary Committee on Rules has considered the problem put to it and has adopted two guides, namely Chapter 46 of the last session of the Legislature of which provided for this Convention and Section 11 of the Organic Act which states prohibition against the holding of office on the part of legislators. It is the feeling and the report of your Committee that Section 11 in this case does apply, that the office was constructively created by the last legislature and Mr. Stewart would be ineligible for nomination, due to ineligibility to hold the office. It may be that Colonel Marston has anticipated the Committee. The Committee will have other aspects of its report to present in the morning but meanwhile the recommendation of the Committee is that nominations remain open.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the recommendation of the Committee that nominations remain open and that the completion of the committee report be reported to the Convention tomorrow order that that will be the case. Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: I move that we adjourn until the usual time tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann you may come to the rostrum.

HERMANN: I want to give you some more information about traveling out here. The persons who want to come out on the bus are requested to be at the Nordale as usual but subject to the time of adjournment. If you are going to meet at 10 o'clock we think maybe it might be well not to come out till 9:30, but anybody that expects to ride on the bus should keep that in mind and be on hand. Now, Mr. Chairman, I have a request for a special privilege that I want at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mrs. Hermann that request is granted, Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: I have in my possession a little poem that was written for the delegates to the Constitutional Convention. It is called "A Prayer for Convention Delegates." I want to read it to you because I think it is something that all of you will be interested in:

"How many strive for immortality.
 How few achieve it!
 Yet in history's pages--those remembered
 Were merely doing every day
 The homely tasks with which they were confronted.
 So let those common people--
 Elected by their neighbors, friends and fellowmen,
 Remember to be humble, and retain
 The Common Touch, and Sense, that makes them great.
 And So write Alaska's Constitution--
 That children yet unborn may bless their memory!"

Mr. Chairman, I move that this poem be spread on the minutes of this day's proceedings. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to this unanimous consent request? If there is none, --

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Who is the author?

HERMANN: The author is Sarah von Riesen, whom I do not know, Box 154, Mountain View.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the prayer is ordered spread upon the minutes of the Convention.

HERMANN: Any time you don't have a Chaplain, you can take it out and read it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mrs. Hermann. Before we adjourn the Chair would like to Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, if I recall correctly, in adopting the report of the temporary Rules Committee this morning we left undone the passing of a resolution calling for the appointment of a nine-member permanent rules committee by the Chairman. Having in mind that the Chairman may need some time to make these appointments, I offer a resolution to the Convention: "RESOLVED by the Convention that the Chairman appoint a nine-member permanent rules committee."

V. RIVERS: I second the motion and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, does your motion mean that the Chair will appoint the committee?

WHITE: That is correct.

PRESIDENT EGAN: As subject to the consent of the Convention. Now there is another subject upon which the President feels should be brought to your attention and that is that the Chair feels that every delegate tonight should think about what committees he would be most interested in and the type of subjects that he is interested in and probably attempt to bring a paper with him tomorrow, each of you, with the committees you would like to be on or the subjects that you are most interested in. It will certainly help when we get the Committee on Committees functioning to expedite the appointments of committees, if that information with your name on it is available for the Committee on Committees when it goes out. If there is no objection then each of you can attempt to bring your suggestions of the committees you would like to serve upon. Another subject that has come up is the question of permanent help. I don't believe we can appoint any Committee on Permanent Help until after we have had the permanent Rules Committee. I stand corrected on that, if there is correction. Mr. White?

WHITE: A point of clarification, Mr. President. On the resolution that I offered I should have asked for unanimous consent. Was unanimous consent granted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, unanimous consent has been granted that the President appoint a nine-member permanent Rules Committee and report the names of those members to the Convention tomorrow morning. If there is no objection the President will do that. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the President be authorized also to appoint a Committee on Permanent Help without further reference to a Rules Committee or any other committee of this body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is permanent help other than the permanent Secretary? Then everything will be ready to go when we get completely organized.

SUNDBORG: Yes sir.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request? Hearing none, then the President -- Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, I do object temporarily because I think the matter of employment of permanent help is in the suggested rules that the temporary Rules Committee requested us to study, and until the permanent rules are adopted I don't think we ought to take a stand on anything that is covered by those suggested rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I wonder if they are making any progress in getting those prepared rules out so that everybody can take them home tonight and study them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, aren't those proposed rules already mimeographed? They're still being mimeographed? Is it possible they can be available for the members tonight?

MRS. ALEXANDER: They are being mimeographed. In about forty five minutes they will be ready.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the Convention's desire that we stay here until the proposed rules are ready for distribution? Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I'll throw out two things for discussion that might utilize some of the time. One is the possibility of a holiday on Friday. I think we might as well square off on that and determine whether or not we will be in session Friday. As I understand it, it is a Territorial holiday, Veteran's Day. Secondly, I see no reason for that bus picking us up at 9 o'clock and bringing us here at 9:20 when we have to wait until ten. I think we should either have the bus pick us up a little later or start a little earlier.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are suggesting perhaps that the Convention convene at 9:30?

HELLENTHAL: I suggest we start at 9:30 and leave the bus scheduled at 9, as before.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you make that in the form of a motion Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Yes, I would like to make that motion. I move that the bus continue to pick us up at 9 o'clock at the Nordale and that we convene at 9:30.

KILCHER: I second that motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal moves and it has been seconded by Mr. Kilcher that the Convention meet at 9:30 each morning and that the members get on the bus at 9 o'clock. Is there objection to the motion? Hearing none, that will be the order of --

WHITE: Mr. President, I would like to direct a question in connection with the motion. Does that imply that the Convention will continue to pay for the bus?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: That is my implication although that's my goal but I hadn't thought of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, we voted the other day that the Convention continue to bear the bus service expense until we have a complete permanent organization and after that the Convention can decide whether it wants to pay for a permanent thing or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe that is correct. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I have a parliamentary inquiry. I asked unanimous consent a moment ago for the authority for the President to appoint a Committee on Permanent Help and Mrs. Hermann said she objected temporarily and we just sort of left it there. Was that adopted?

HERMANN: Well, I objected permanently I think. SUNDBORG: Well, I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves that the Chairman appoint a Committee on Permanent Help other than a permanent Secretary.

COGHILL: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Committee on Permanent Help be appointed. The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, all that this committee is going to do is to make some recommendations to the Convention which the Convention can either adopt or reject. Here we are running along getting almost into our third day. We have asked a lot of people to do mimeographing, stenographic work, typing and we have not made any provision at all for paying them and I think it is time, in fact it's past time for us to get started on this business of creating some kind of an organization here in the secretariat.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, if I'm not mistaken, the Statehood Committee has authorized the employment of certain people during the initial days of the session when we anticipated the Convention would be organized, and provision was made, they have committed themselves to the payment of those people who were employed, subject we hope, to reimbursement by the Convention. but, in any event, it is a commitment, a continued liability that we have assumed in the interest of getting the Convention started off in an orderly manner. I don't think that angle of it needs to be too serious, and it seems to me that we will be ready to consider those rules tomorrow anyway, the permanent rules, and it would seem that nothing could be gained by appointing a committee, by passing a motion to appoint a committee, now. I will not object to it if we don't get off to a pretty good start on it tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion; If not the question is, "Shall the President appoint a committee on permanent help?" Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Point of order, Mr. President, I think it was a request for unanimous consent which I objected to.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then Mr. Sundborg moved and it was seconded, Mrs. Hermann. All those in favor of having the President appoint a committee on permanent help at this time say "aye" all opposed say "no". The Secretary will call the roll.

(The roll was called with the following result:

Yeas: 30 - Armstrong, Barr, Buckalew, Coghill, Cooper, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Poulsen, Rosswog, Stewart, Smith, Sundborg, VanderLeest, Walsh.

Nays: 23 - Awes, Boswell, Collins, Cross, Davis, Doogan, H. Fischer, Hermann, Hurley, Johnson, McCutcheon, McNees, Nolan, Nordale, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Sweenoy, Taylor, White, Wion.

Absent: 1 - Peratrovich.

Not Voting: 1 - Mr. President.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the Chair has been instructed to appoint a Committee on Permanent Help at this time. The Convention can be at ease for about a minute or two. The Chair will attempt to -- Mr. Taylor? The Convention is at ease.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The President has wondered about this Committee on Permanent Help, and if there is no objection we would like to name three members at this time to form a nucleus of the Permanent Help Committee. Perhaps they could get together this evening and the rest of the members we could name in the morning. If Mr. Ralph Rivers, Mr. Kilcher and Mr. Coghill could more or less look into the situation this evening and in the morning the Chair will name the rest of the members of that Committee. We felt that the people in the Fourth Division would know considerably more about the persons who might be wanting a job here so if that is satisfactory we'll carry the Committee over until tomorrow morning. Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I am going to move for adjournment at this time till 10 o'clock tomorrow at the suggestion that the bus was set up at 9:30. My reason for that is this, out of consideration for the Chair and the help we have I think we should give them a chance, the Chairman to consider his people and the timber he has for his committees as the next order of business. Also, the permanent help are starting in new quarters, their supplies, see what they need in the way of help and so I suggest that we do not convene until 10 a.m. I move that we adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

COLLINS: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Mrs. Hermann, your point of order?

HERMANN: Something will have to be done when we've already got it through that we were going to meet at 9:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Without objection, of course it would have the same tendency as a unanimous consent or two-thirds majority would and it could overrule the other motion for this particular session. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I realize that it might be a burden on some of the help, but maybe until we can get fully organized and start operating as committees, the committees themselves could meet earlier in the morning. We might stay by our previous action and meet at 9:30 tomorrow so that we can get organized that much sooner.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the 10 o'clock adjournment? If not, the Convention will stand adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The Convention is adjourned.

(The Convention adjourned at approximately 5 p.m.)

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 10, 1955

THIRD DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order and the Secretary will call the roll. (10 a.m.)

(Mr. John Hall called the roll at this time.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. President, I find that all delegates are present excepting Frank Peratrovich who has not yet appeared, sir.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will please stand while Reverend Armstrong comes forward to give the daily invocation.

ARMSTRONG: Let us bow in prayer. Almighty Father, who hath placed in our hands the lives of our fellow Alaskans, bring us to this Convention as delegates in their behalf. Continue to bring Thy spirit of wisdom upon us. Thou dost know that we will differ from one another as we search for true precepts for the great land. Thou dost know how our voices will rise as champions of ideals we hold eternal. Father, keep the good pace of brotherhood within us as we have started on this journey, and impose Thy will when we fail to surrender. Depose wrong when it is bred in selfishness, anger and sectionalism, and O God, our Father, we pray Thee of all to be our constant guide. In Jesus' holy name, amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will read the minutes of yesterday's meeting. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, in order to expedite the proceedings, I move the reading of minutes of yesterday's session be dispensed with. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the minutes of yesterday's meeting be dispensed with. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: In view of the developments since yesterday's nominations for Secretary of this Convention, and at the request of Mrs. Alexander, I wish to withdraw her name which was placed in nomination by me.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you put that in the form of a motion, Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I so move Mr. President and ask unanimous consent of the body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy asks unanimous consent that his nomination of Mrs. Alexander for permanent Secretary be withdrawn. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. Secretary, do you have any communications? Here's one if you would like to read it to the Convention.

MR. JOHN HALL: "To the President of the Constitutional Convention, The Fairbanks Board of Education extends a cordial invitation to each delegate to the Constitutional Convention to be present at the dedication of the Austin E. Lathrop High School on Sunday, the 13th of November, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon, Lathrop High School Gymnasium. James C. Ryan, Superintendent, November 9, 1955."

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe at this time the Chair should announce the names of the proposed additional appointees to the Permanent Help Committee. Yesterday the Chair announced the names of Ralph Rivers, Mr. Yule Kilcher, Mr. John Coghill as members of the Committee. In addition to those names the names of Helen Fischer, Dora Sweeney, John Hellenthal, John A. McNees, Mr. William Laws and Mr. William Knight. If there is no objection those people will stand as the members of the Permanent Help Committee. The Chair at this time will read to you the names of the persons he has chosen as appointing to the Committee on Rules: Mr. Burke Riley, Mr. John Rosswog, Mr. M. J. Walsh, Mildred Hermann, Mr. Steve McCutcheon, E. B. Collins, George Sundborg, Mr. Ralph Rivers, and Mr. Edward B. Davis. If there is no objection those delegates will be named as the Permanent Committee on Rules. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, it seems to me that the Convention should have a Committee on Committees appointed for the purpose of advising upon the selection of the various committees which are going to function during the Convention. Either we have to do that or it is going to be a matter of the President appointing all of the committees without reference to any advice from the body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair feels, Mr. Taylor, that the quicker the Convention can do something toward that end, the better it will be in expediting the real business that will confront the Convention, and just what do you propose, is there any proposal at this time?

TAYLOR: To get this under way, I would make a motion, Mr. President, that a committee of seven be appointed from the Body to act as a Committee on Committees and that they, after the selection, be instructed immediately to pursue their work in regard to the recommendation for members of the various committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent that the Chair appoint seven, Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I ask unanimous consent.

JOHNSON: I rise to a point of information. It seems to me that the Convention is not yet duly organized since we have not elected a permanent Secretary. Until such time are you in a position to appoint a permanent committee?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, with relation to the Committee on Committees, it was the Chair's feeling when Mr. Taylor asked that, that the matter be held over until we get along a little further in our business this morning and then at that time it would be in order, although the Chair feels also it was in order to bring the urgency of the matter before the Convention. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I have a recommendation or suggestion to the Chairman for instructions to be issued to the Rules Committee. It is my understanding that the Rules Committee that you have constituted does contemplate reporting out on the subject of committees, and I would request or suggest to the Chair, I'm not making it a motion, that the Chair instruct the Rules Committee immediately after it goes into session to consider first those sections of the rules concerning the establishment of committees and those sections of the rules concerning the appointment of those committees and immediately thereafter, after the consideration of that portion, that it report back to the assembly. I believe that would properly expedite things so that we could get on the road.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is a very pertinent idea Mr. McLaughlin. If there is other discussion from the Convention floor on the matter, it will be welcome. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would like to incorporate the suggestion of Mr. McLaughlin's in the form of a motion and ask unanimous consent, because I do not feel that the Chair can instruct the committee, but maybe the Chair might have the authority to but probably would not want to do that while I feel that the Convention should ask the Chair to so instruct the Rules Committee, so I make that in the form of a motion and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, your point of order.

SMITH: Point of order, Mr. President; it appears to me that we are back to the same question that we are not yet organized. If I remember correctly, the nominations for a permanent secretary were left open from yesterday's meeting. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are correct, Mr. Smith.

SMITH: It would appear to me that that would be the first order of business this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, the Chair feels that Mr. Johnson's question there was in order and that the Convention should proceed first, before having the Rules Committee go out at all as a permanent committee. We could proceed first with the completion of the election of the permanent secretary.

SMITH: With that thought in mind, and without any reference to the frozen tundra of the north or the sparkling streams or leaping salmon of Southeastern Alaska, I would like to place in nomination the name of George Sundborg as Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith has placed in nomination the name of Mr. George Sundborg as Secretary of the Convention. Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Since we have one nomination now, I would like to submit the supplemental report which was suggested would be forthcoming when your Committee on Rules last reported. That Committee has given more considered judgment to the question propounded yesterday afternoon than was possible in fifteen minutes then available to us, and we have concluded that because the Legislature left the option clearly with the Convention to create the offices of president and secretary, and such other offices that were deemed necessary, that Section 11 of the Organic Act does not apply in this situation, and if any member of the 1955 Legislature would be eligible to hold the office of Secretary, as well as the others indicated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the report of your Committee, Mr. Riley?

RILEY: That is the report of the Committee, and I ask unanimous consent for its adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the report. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Are there other nominations for Permanent Secretary? Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I would like to direct a question to the Chairman of the temporary Rules Committee and that is whether the Committee had any recommendations as to whether the Secretary should be a member or should not be a member of the Convention.

RILEY: Mr. Fischer, I find Mr. Chairman, through the Chair, the Committee came forward with no recommendation but as proposed last evening we might have a resolution to submit but in view of this further consideration and the infallibility of human judgment, we reached a different result in our deliberations and have no resolution or recommendation beyond this report.

BARR: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Is it the thought of the body that we should have an administrative officer also, or is this secretary going to be a working secretary? I don't believe that any member of the Convention would want to be a working secretary as that would take up too much of his time, and I would like to place a name in nomination for secretary if you also have an administrative officer.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there anyone who can answer that question?

RILEY: Mr. President, the rules under which we are operating at the moment don't provide for an administrative officer as such. The rules adopted yesterday to cover this situation I believe are still in effect.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, the rule we adopted yesterday stated that the Secretary need not be a delegate.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mrs. Sweeney.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that the nominations be closed.

SWEENEY: I object.

MCCUTCHEON: I will so move that nominations be closed. METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves, seconded by Mr. Metcalf, that nominations be closed. The subject is open for discussion at this time. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Before nominations are closed or before that motion is put to a vote, I would like to have the privilege of the floor to decline the nomination for the position of Secretary. I feel that if the Secretary is to do what our rule sets forth he is to do, that is be the principal administrative officer of this Convention, it is not practical for a member of the Convention to be the Secretary or a Delegate to the Convention, so I would ask to decline nomination as Secretary of this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asked unanimous consent that his name be withdrawn from permanent Secretary of the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing none it is so ordered. Mr. Sundborg's name will be withdrawn. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I want to know if the name of Tom Stewart still remains as a nominee for this position?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The name of Tom Stewart has been presented to the Convention and it still is before us, Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Then I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other nominations for permanent Secretary of the Convention. What was the motion?

MRS. ALEXANDER: The motion was for closing nominations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Pardon me, the Chair forgot about Mr. Stewart's nomination having been before us at the time the motion was made. The question is ___ Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, the objection to my request for unanimous consent has been withdrawn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

HELLENTHAL: I object to the request for unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard from Mr. Hellenenthal. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would like to ask if the name of Katherine Alexander is still before the body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been withdrawn, Mr. Sundborg. It has been moved and seconded that nominations be closed. All those in favor of closing the nominations say "aye". All opposed say "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will call the roll.

(The roll was called with the following result:

Ayes: 30 - Coghill, Davis, Doogan, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McCutcheon, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien.

Nays: 22 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Emberg, Gray, Harris, Hellenenthal, Hinckel, Johnson, Kilcher, McNealy, Nolan, Nordale, Robertson, Smith, Sundborg, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - Peratrovich.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, I would like the privilege of changing my vote. I must have been asleep. I want to vote "yes" instead of "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann asked to change her vote to "yes". If there is no objection, it is so ordered.

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. President, the "ayes" have 30 votes and the "nays" 24, and there is one absentee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion is carried and the nominations for permanent Secretary are closed. Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Is the only name in nomination the name of Mr. Stewart, is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct Mr. Rivers.

MCCUTCHEON: In view of the one nomination, I ask unanimous consent that the body cast a unanimous ballot and the record show unanimous ballot for Tom Stewart for Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention cast a unanimous ballot for Tom Stewart for permanent Secretary of the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection Mr. Tom Stewart is now the permanent Secretary of the Convention. (applause)

(Mr. Stewart came forward and shook hands with Mr. Hall and with Mr. Egan.)

MR. JOHN HALL: Mr. President, I want to thank everybody here.

(Rising vote of thanks)

I will tell Judge Forbes what a rousing cheer we got when I got relieved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hall, on behalf of all the Delegates to the Convention, we wish to thank you for your services, the wonderful services you have rendered.

MR. JOHN HALL: I am glad I met all of you. I am not running for any office, but if I do don't you all forget me.

(Mr. Hall left Convention Hall at this time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I rise to a point of information on your Committee on Permanent Help. It was brought up in our meeting last night whether this committee would be eventually the third committee listed on the consideration of Convention committees prepared by the Alaska Statehood Committee, which is the Committee on Convention Administration, or whether it would take in the full scope of this work, or whether it would just be the hiring of the permanent help for the beginning of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would feel that when the Committee on Committees gets functioning and has its first meeting that perhaps that committee might consider that question. If there is no objection from the Convention floor, then the Committee on Rules will consider that question in their first meeting, if possible. We don't have anything on the floor before us at this time. Here is another announcement that the Secretary will read.

SECRETARY: From the University of Alaska to "President, Alaska Constitutional Convention, This is to remind you that tonight, between the hours of 8:00 and 11:00 P.M. at the President's Residence, Mrs. Patty and I are giving a reception in honor of the delegates, their wives and husbands. We hope that you can all be present because this will give you an excellent opportunity to meet the members of the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce, the officers of the City government, some of the staff members of the air bases in this area, plus the deans and department heads of the University faculty. Mrs. Patty has suggested that the delegates all wear their name tags to facilitate introductions. Will you please announce this so the delegates will be reminded of the affair?"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Last night you appointed three members of a committee, the Permanent Help Committee. This morning you appointed several other members. Well, those three had a rump meeting last night and I wish to report that the Statehood Committee has provided us with seven people, five of whom were on duty yesterday, and two more typists who will be available from now on. That is only seven. We still need a sergeant at arms and a messenger and mail clerk, etc., but until the committee meets as a complete group and looks over some thirty-five applications which have been processed through the Employment Security Office here, we recommend that the body just simply approve, probably in the absence of objection, of our going ahead with the staff of people thus far provided by the Statehood Committee, and then we will render a complete report with a job line-up and specs and things, after consultation with the Secretary on what the personnel needs are going to be.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair is wondering if it might be, inasmuch as the other six members of the Committee had not been announced last evening, if it might be possible during the first recess to have a private meeting with the new members and enlighten them on the help so far and then make that request after having had a complete full committee meeting. Would that be in order?

R. RIVERS: Quite all right. All I am asking now is that the group coincide with the idea of just going ahead with those who have been selected for us until your committee has a chance to render a full report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Rivers' request? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: I don't quite understand if Mr. Rivers intends that this group be considered as permanent and we add to it or what.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I don't think that's what he means Mrs. Sweeney. I think he means that until our full committee can have an opportunity to bring back a complete report, to go on with the help we have now until that time. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Just to validate what the committee has done in regard to this help they have at the present time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is true. Is there objection? Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Mr. Chairman now that the Convention is organized I deem it appropriate at this time to bring to the attention of the delegates the great loss that this Convention has felt through the passing of Senator Howard Lyng of Nome who was duly elected from the Ninth District, Second Judicial Division, as a delegate to this Convention. Out of recognition to the service he has rendered this Territory by Senator Lyng I ask at this time unanimous consent that the members, with respect to the memory of Senator Lyng, rise and maintain silence for one minute.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will rise.

(The Convention stood and maintained silence for one minute.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention may be seated, and the record will show the manner in which the Convention honored Mr. Lyng. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I have prepared a brief resolution covering the passing of Senator Lyng which I would like to send to the desk to be read by the Clerk, after which I will ask unanimous consent for its passing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The resolution will be brought forward and the Secretary will please read the resolution.

SECRETARY: "WHEREAS the grim hand of death has reached into our midst and suddenly removed from us Senator Howard Lyng, of Nome, duly elected delegate to Alaska Constitutional Convention from the 9th District, Second Judicial Division; and

"WHEREAS Senator Lyng rendered distinguished public service to Alaska over the years, both in the House of Representatives and Senate of the Alaska Legislature; and

"WHEREAS Senator Lyng was an early and ardent advocate of statehood for Alaska and represented the Territory on one occasion before Congressional committees in Washington, D.C. pleading the cause of statehood; and

"WHEREAS in the passing of Senator Lyng, Alaska has lost one of its leading statesmen and this Convention has been deprived of his counsel, wisdom and experience.

"NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the members of Alaska Constitutional Convention in regular meeting assembled at College, Alaska, do hereby extend their profound sympathy to Senator Lyng's sister, Mrs. A. F. Bullard, the only surviving member of his family, whose address is Box #10, Porterville, California, together with a copy of this Resolution, and that this Resolution be made a part of the permanent record of this Convention."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the resolution. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I ask unanimous consent of the adoption of this resolution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Walsh asks unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted by the Convention. Hearing no objection the resolution is ordered adopted by the Convention. The Secretary is instructed to have copies made and to particularly see that the sister receives a copy of this resolution. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Now that we are completely organized I would like to renew the motion which was made here earlier, and which died because objection was made to it and that is the motion that the Rules Committee when it convenes shall first take up the matter of committees and shall as soon as it reaches a proposed rule on that subject, report the same to this Convention. I move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Point of order. Yesterday another motion was made and died because it was made too early and that was for the adoption of the Constitution which probably should precede this motion, and maybe the maker of that motion yesterday could renew it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I was out of order yesterday and I do not believe that we have yet reached the point where that action is indicated. After going through the handbook completely it would appear to me that the work of the organizing of the committees should come before that action is taken. That should be the first action of the Convention after the committees are set up and before it begins its work. That is the feeling I have at the present time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: It seems appropriate to me in order to function smoothly and to get all of our Committees out that we should, and also to prepare an order of business, perhaps to get a personnel organization chart approved so we can have our staff including our Chief Clerk, assistant, etc., we should at this time take a recess. I am going to move and ask unanimous consent that we recess for a period of one-half hour for the purpose of these committees to bring in recommendations and at the same time an order of business be prepared. We are going ahead here now without any established order of business. I think it is highly appropriate to the assistance of the Chair for the orderly functioning of this body that we establish an agenda and order of business and I ask unanimous consent for a half-hour recess in order to do that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers so moves. Is there a second to the motion?

JOHNSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It's been moved and seconded that the Convention stand at recess for one-half hour. It is not debatable.

WHITE: Point of information?

PRESIDENT EGAN: For a point of information, the Chair will hear you Mr. White.

WHITE: Yesterday, it was moved that the draft of the proposed rules as suggested by the Alaska Statehood Committee and the PAS be mimeographed in order to provide each delegate with a copy. I would like to inquire if those copies are ready?

SECRETARY: They are ready. They are available upstairs if you wish.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the Secretary would send for them now it would probably be in order that Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: I was wondering if Mr. Sundborg's motion on Committees was accepted without objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, it's not. We have before us the motion to recess for one-half hour so that the Rules Committee particularly can meet and bring back some sort of report. Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, although this motion is not debatable I have no way of knowing how to vote without information. I would like to hear the basis of the objection, before I vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The basis of the objection? Would there be objection allowing as a point of information for Mr. Sundborg to explain his objection? If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg you may explain your objection.

SUNDBORG: My objection was only for the purpose of trying again to propose to the Convention that it adopt the motion, that before we take this recess it instruct its Rules Committee on ##'at it should do and that instruction specifically would be that the first thing it take up would be the matter of committees and the rest of the organization, and that as soon as it shall reach a proposal, a decision on a proposal to the Convention on the subject that it come in and make a report to the Convention. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers do you object to that?

V. RIVERS: I understood that we already had unanimous consent on that point, is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is what the Chair understood, that the Rules Committee was instructed to do.

V. RIVERS: I again ask unanimous consent for a one-half-hour recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection? Hearing none, the Convention is at recess for one-half hour.

(At this time the Convention recessed, 10:45 a.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the Chairman of the Rules Committee have a report to make to the Convention?

RILEY: Mr. Chairman, the Rules Committee regrets holding the Rules Committee so long. Perhaps I can spread this out. I think each of you has copies of the suggested rules which were prepared by PAS and the Statehood Committee. Referring to these Rules on Page 5, Chapter 5, as a part of the Committee report I shall suggest that we are not necessarily adopting the numbers in each case of these rules, but we are proposing a sequence because the earlier rules yet to be considered may affect the numbering. I will refer to them by number as shown here, however. Rule 12, as adopted by the Committee and recommended to the body is unchanged. It is adopted as written, "The President shall appoint the members of and shall name the Chairmen of all Standing Committees unless the Convention shall otherwise order. The President may fill vacancies on Standing Committees in the same manner." What is your pleasure, Mr. Chairman?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the pleasure of the Convention that as each rule is read that a move for adoption to be made in order to open the particular rule for debate or to adopt it? That is your wish then?

RILEY: I shall move and ask unanimous consent that Rule 12 as written be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Rule 12 be adopted. Mr. Hellenthal objects.

HELLENTHAL: I object. I object on the grounds that I feel the rule should be amended so that the members of the committee should pick the chairman of the committee which I think is more in keeping with the spirit of this group.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, just for a moment, did any one second, did you move?

RILEY: I asked unanimous consent, I so move. MCCUTCHEON: I'll second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon seconds Mr. Riley's motion. Now the subject is open for discussion. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL. I so move and ask unanimous consent that Rule 12 be changed to read that the President shall appoint the members of the standing committees and chairmen shall be appointed within the committees.

MCCUTCHEON: I rise to a point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Riley's motion to adopt has been seconded by myself. Mr. Coghill proposes another motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: He moved to amend the amendment. MCCUTCHEON: I beg your pardon.

COGHILL: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moved and asked unanimous consent.

DAVIS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been objected to by Mr. Davis.

COGHILL: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second to Mr. Coghill's proposal for the amendment to the amendment?

KNIGHT: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight seconded Mr. Coghill's motion on the amendment to the amendment so we now have before us the question of changing Rule 1# to read that the President shall appoint the members of and shall name the chairmen of all the standing committees, that the members of the committees shall name the chairmen of all standing committees. The amendment to the amendment is open for discussion. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, as I stated in brief, I support this amendment because I feel it is democratic. It leaves the power over the selection of the chairman with the members of the committee who will work with the chairman, and who presumably will wait a few days until they know the qualifications of the members and then finally pick their permanent chairman. I believe that the Rule 12 as proposed by the Rules Committee came from the standard method which is more applicable to a political convention or more applicable to a legislative body such as a house of representatives or senate, but in this body, which is a working body pledged to the one aim of writing the best constitution that we can have, I think it would be more democratic to let the members themselves pick the chairmen of the committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the amendment to the amendment? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I have no strong feelings on this subject, and I think probably the other members of the Rules Committee do not have strong feelings either. We felt, however, that here we have a group of fourteen committees, and in order to achieve balance between the committees and not have it occur that one member of this Convention for example might be the chairman of three separate committees, which conceivably could occur if we leave the organization to the committees or members thereof. We felt we should give our President, and it says here, "unless the Convention shall otherwise order on any specific matter the right to name the chairmen of the committees."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the amendment to the amendment? Or rather on the amendment to the proposed rule? Mr. Metcalf did you have something --

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, speaking from my own point of view, many of these folks I am unacquainted with, and serving on a committee I would not feel qualified to pick the best available person for the chairmanship, and I would not feel qualified, and therefore feel that the chairman of the convention would be much better qualified to pick the chairmen of the committees.

HURLEY: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I am speaking for the amendment. I too feel that it is more of a democratic process to elect the chairmen from the committee. I feel that the committees will be small enough so that in the matter of a small time we will become well acquainted with each other and the choice of a chairman will then be unanimous consent of the Committee.

BARR: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. Metcalf has stated my views pretty well. There are quite a few of us who don't know each other and I am confident that the President does know most of us, and we have chosen a President with confidence that he is able to fill his job and run this Convention properly, and although it is more democratic for the members of each committee to choose their chairman, it is certainly the least efficient and if they wanted to put off choosing a chairman until towards the end of the Convention they would probably be pretty well acquainted with each other by that time. I think each committee should start out with a chairman and if they don't have a chairman to start with, there will be nobody running the show.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further debate?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall the amendment to Rule 12 of the Proposed Standing Rules be adopted?" All in favor signify by saying "aye," all opposed "no." So the amendment to Rule 12 has failed.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now the question is, "Shall Rule 12 be adopted?" Are there further amendments? Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: Now does this preclude the possibility of this committee on committees that we were talking about? Does the part there in which the Convention shall take such action as they feel wise still prevail? I would contend that the Convention can still, if they so desire appoint a committee on committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That wording would give the Convention jurisdiction over anything they desired in the future. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I don't know if this is the proper time for this but we proposed a resolution as a Rules Committee that there be established a committee on committees, if that is what the body wants, to assist and advise the President in the appointment of members of the various committees of the Convention. We still believe that the President should do the appointing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair feels that that statement was in order and might clarify Mr. Nolan's question. If there is no further debate the question is, "Shall Rule 12 be adopted." All in favor signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying, no."

So Rule 12 has been adopted by the Convention. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with the reading of Rule 13.

RILEY: Rule 13. The Standing Committee of the Convention and the number of members thereof, respectively shall be as follows:

1. Committee on Rules, nine members
2. Committee on Administration, nine members
3. Committee on Style and Drafting, nine members

In Subdivision 4 is the first change that the Committee has proposed and that change is that the word "resolutions" be stricken so it will read:

4. Committee on Ordinances, and Transitional Measures, nine members
5. Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights, seven members
6. Committee on Suffrage, Elections, and Apportionment, seven members
7. Committee on Legislative Branch, seven members
8. Committee on Executive Branch, seven members
9. Committee on Judiciary Branch, seven members
10. Committee on Resources, seven members
11. Committee on Finance and Taxation, seven members Committee on Local Government, seven members
13. Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision, seven members and then the Rules Committee had proposed a fourteenth committee to be entitled:

14. Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations, seven members

You have all noted, just from an aside here that the duties of the several committees are spelled out later and we have added coverage for resolutions and recommendations. Now to put the matter on the floor I will ask unanimous consent that Rule 13 be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Rule 13 be adopted.

SMITH: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

MCCUTCHEON: I will second the motion to adopt.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon seconds Mr. Riley's motion to adopt Rule No. 13. The motion is open for debate. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I would like to make inquiry -- would the adoption of this rule prevent the establishment of other committees in case the need arises?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chairman of the Rules Committee perhaps might answer Mr. Smith.

RILEY: No. The Convention may always take such further action.

SMITH: If I just might say, I do have in mind at least three and possibly four more questions which will require committee action, and just as an illustration, I see no provision in here for a public welfare covering education and health, etc. It might be that matter could be referred to some of the committees, but I just wanted a clarification as to whether additional committees could be established.

RILEY: It was the consensus of the committee, Mr. Smith, that those matters you mentioned might properly fall under the Executive Branch for which a committee has been provided.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other debate on the motion to adopt Rule No. 13?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall Rule No. 13 be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of Rule No. 13 say "aye," all opposed "no." So Rule No. 13 has been adopted. You may proceed with the reading of Rule 14.

RILEY: Rule No. 14 that was adopted as written in your suggested rules: "Each Delegate except the President shall be appointed to at least one but to no more than three Standing Committees." I ask unanimous consent for its adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Rule 14 be adopted. Is there objection? Hearing no objection Rule No. 14 is ordered adopted. Proceed with reading No. 15.

RILEY: "The President shall be ex-officio member of all Standing Committees but shall not vote except to break a tie." I move its adoption and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked by Mr. Riley for the adoption of Rule 15. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and Rule No. 15 is adopted. Proceed with the reading of Rule 16.

RILEY: "Rule 16. The respective Standing Committees shall have the following duties and functions and in addition shall consider and report upon any other matters referred to them:

1. The Committee on Rules shall consider and report upon such changes in the rules of the Convention and changes in organization" the word "Convention" on the third line of Sub 1 has been stricken for clarity. I beg your pardon, the word "its" has been stricken. ## notes are not the best. "and changes in organization" is the way it will read.

"..as shall be referred to it. It shall consider and report on appeals from rulings of the Chair which may be referred to it. It shall determine appeals regarding the daily calendar of the Convention in accordance with these rules."

Now that is all one rule in some half dozen sections. Perhaps I should proceed to read the whole --

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe you should read the whole rule Mr. Riley.

RILEY: 2. The Committee on Administration shall generally oversee the administrative or business affairs of the Convention, including finances, personnel, printing, physical arrangements for the Convention, and related matters.

3. The Committee on Style and Drafting shall examine and edit all proposals for inclusion in the Constitution which are referred to it for the purposes of avoiding inaccuracies, repetitions, inconsistencies, or poor drafting. The Committee shall have the authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language or sections of the proposed Constitution but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it. The Committee shall also be empowered without reference back to the Convention to refer proposals submitted to it to other Committees which may have an interest in the proposal. Where a proposal referred to the Committee appears inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted upon favorably by the Convention at second reading, the Committee shall undertake to resolve the inconsistency or conflict by reference to the Committees concerned."

Now here is new language as proposed by the Rules Committee:

"If the Committee shall fail to resolve any such inconsistency or conflict it shall notify the Convention and await its instructions."

We don't feel that we have changed the sense of the matter, but we do think it has been clarified.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Would you read it once more please.

RILEY: "If the Committee shall fail to resolve any such inconsistency or conflict .." and then we strike four words in your text, those four words being "failing to do so" -- "it shall notify the Convention and await its instructions." Subdivision 4, the word "resolutions" is stricken on line 1 to tie back with our earlier recommendation and it reads now: "The Committee on Ordinances, and Transitional Measures shall be responsible .." the next two words on that line, the third line and the first four words on the following line are all stricken. To back track, "shall be responsible for the consideration of ordinances specified by the Act creating the Constitutional Convention and for the consideration of transitional measures which the Convention enacts in anticipation of statehood." The rest of your text is stricken from this subdivision.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Would you read that again please.

RILEY: Yes. As it is proposed by the Rules Committee, it reads:

"The Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures shall be responsible for the consideration of ordinances specified by the Act creating the Constitutional Convention and for the consideration of transitional measures which the Convention enacts in anticipation of statehood."

Now we have inserted an entirely new subdivision 5, which goes back to Committee No. 14, that on resolutions and recommendations and 5, as proposed just spells out the duties of that committee. It reads, the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations shall consider resolutions and all other matters not germane to the work of other committees and shall make recommendations for action thereon." The paragraph numbered "5" on your text has been renumbered "5" and changes have been made which read as follows:

"The remaining standing committees shall consider such proposals as are indicated by the titles of the respective committees. Such committees shall draft and submit to the Convention for its consideration sections of the proposed Constitution pertaining to the business of the Committee."

Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that Rule 16 as read be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Rule No. 1# as read be adopted. Is there objection? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I have no objection but a question. Will that abolish the rules provisions for proposals by individual delegates later on in the rules?

RILEY: No, no coverage of any sort as I see it. That was not the intention of the Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Rule No. 1# is ordered adopted. Proceed with the reading of Rule No. 17.

RILEY: Rule No. 17. "Each Standing Committee shall submit to the Convention a report or reports, in writing, setting forth its recommendations on all matters referred to it. Any member or group of members of a Standing Committee may submit a minority report to the Convention. A petition signed by one fourth of the elected Delegates shall require any Standing Committee to report to the Convention within the number of days specified in the petition." In short, it is the text as it appears with changes on the last line "within the number of days specified in the petition." Mr. President, I move adoption and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of Rule No. 17. Is there objection? Mr. Barr?

BARR: I object. I would like to, just a point of information, know if that would open up a way for somebody who just wants to heckle the committee to require them to report before they have time to report or maybe they think the committee is falling down on the job when they're actually not. I believe they should be given a certain amount of time before they are required to report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well Mr. Barr, the Chair feels that you should be allowed a question. Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Directing a comment to Delegate Barr through the Chair, I would like to point out that the petition will require fourteen signatures, and I think it would be difficult for anyone to be frivolous about drawing from a committee something that has not been given full consideration. It would be difficult to get fourteen names, I think, on a petition for a frivolous matter.

BARR: I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr withdraws his objection. Is there any further objection? If not, Rule No. 17 is ordered adopted by the Convention. Proceed with Rule 18.

RILEY: "No Standing Committee may hold meetings during the sessions of the Convention without permission of the Convention." I move its adoption Mr. President and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked for the adoption of Rule No. 18. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, Rule No. 18 is ordered adopted.

RILEY: Rule 1#. "The deliberations of the Standing Committees shall not be open to the public except upon invitation of the Committee. Each Standing Committee shall notify the Secretary of the time and place of meetings, and the Secretary shall make such notice public." I move its adoption Mr. President and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, would you read it again.

RILEY: The word "not" was inserted and that was qualified with the addition of the words "except upon invitation of the Committee." It does not propose public meetings but there must be an invitation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of Rule No. 19 as read. Is there objection?

HELLENTHAL: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

BARR: I'll second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr seconds Mr. Riley's motion for the adoption of Rule No. 19. The subject is open for debate. Mr. Rivers?

RIVERS: I rise in support of the motion. The committees have a lot of work to do and need freedom to express themselves to arrive at a consensus of their thinking and, accordingly, the committees in all fairness, could hear anybody who requested to be heard, and that is the reason for saying that the time of these committee meetings shall be posted or publicized by the Secretary. Everyone is supposed to know when we are meeting so that anyone can request to be heard, but we don't want to have them open to the public while we try to develop a consensus of our thinking during all of our exploratory work. We think the committees can do better work if the public is there on invitation or if particular persons who want to be heard, do so upon request, and that is the reason for the rule.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: This is an unusual rule. I doubt if any other body such as this has such a rule. I know the Congress of the United States does not have such a rule, and I think we would put ourselves open to the well-deserved criticism that we are meeting in secret session, which has an ugly connotation, but which criticism will be leveled at the group unless we adopt a more normal method. I would suggest the method of executive session, that by majority or two-thirds vote of the members of the committee, that the public be excluded to consider stated objects such as, the typical rule would be a matter involving personalities, a matter involving the decorum of the Convention, that is the typical rule. That is the rule of the United States Congress. I think this rule will involve us in great difficulties, and I see absolutely no need for it. Now if the occasion develops that crackpots or someone (I don't think there are many crackpots in Alaska) start plaguing us, then we can take a prophylactic rule such as the one recommended here, but in the absence of that demonstration I think that this rule has no place before our body. I have been through this before with city councils where they elected to meet secretly" is the word the newspapers always use, and I tell you that it does not work, and I see no need for it. If the need arises then let's handle the problem, but not now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Many another body --

NOLAN: Point of order, do we have a motion before us? PRESIDENT EGAN: A motion is before us and open for discussion.

SUNDBORG: Many another body and I think practically every deliberative body has a rule such as this. Committee meetings of the United States Congress are not open to the public except upon invitation of the committees. Hearings are but committee meetings, I've been excluded from them many times, in Congress. I might say our legislative committee meetings are not open to the public except upon invitation. I might mention to you that the Federal Constitutional Convention not only did not bar the public from its committee meetings, it barred the public from its plenary sessions and it placed a prohibition upon its members even reporting outside of the halls of the Constitutional Convention, and what had gone on, therein and they came out with a pretty good result. I feel we do have to have the freedom which we would have in committee only if we can speak without having a lot of people sitting around breathing down our necks. If a matt or comes before a committee which would require the presence of the public, or where the presence of the public would help the committee reach a solution, I am sure any committee would be glad to invite the public in, or if any member of the public ever makes a reasonable request to be admitted I am sure that almost every committee would admit the public, but I just don't think that business can be conducted efficiently if the public is walking in and out wandering around through these committee rooms all the time we are trying to do serious business.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, this Convention is being held in behalf of all of the people of Alaska. We hope that sometime or another many Alaskans will have an opportunity to come to College and listen in on some of these sessions. If they come here they may very well find that most of the time will be spent in committee sessions. If the standing rule is that the public is not admitted, these people may have to sit out in the lounge some place or being having coffee in the cafeteria. I think it is our responsibility to the public to give them an opportunity to watch this Convention at work. The provision in the rule should not be negative. It should be an open committee deliberation with provisions for executive sessions, and since Mr. Hellenthal did not make a motion, I move

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is a motion on the floor.

V. FISCHER I would like to move an amendment to Rule No. 19, in the second line, after the word "public", eliminate the period, substitute a comma, and insert the words "unless the Committee by two-thirds vote of all the members to which it is entitled votes to hold an executive session." And also in the first line remove the word "not."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer then offers an amendment to Rule No. 19 removing the word "not" in the first line, inserting a comma after the word "public" in the second line and inserting "unless the Committee by two-thirds vote of all the members to which it is entitled votes to hold an executive session."

WHITE: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that Mr. Fischer's amendment be adopted. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I think that probably the Convention should remember that no business conducted in the committee itself is even final. What we shall be doing in these committees is threshing out minor details, maybe some major ones too, but the point of the matter is that we have no power to translate that into action until it is brought before the Convention as a whole.

If the public meetings are open to the Convention, which they certainly will be at all times, any discussion on any matter pertinent to the Constitution will be open to the public. It is just a matter of operating a little more efficiently and not burdening the public ear with some of the trivia that often comes up in committee meetings that impelled us to put this in. I am sure that any committee would at any time have a public hearing on any issue that the public was interested enough in to ask for or which we felt they should be interested enough in to ask for. But we have got small committee rooms up there. They are just about big enough for the committees themselves, and when I got in one they're a little crowded. It is just the matter of efficiency and getting the lesser important details ironed out before presenting it here to the Convention. We cannot adopt any section of any important action without Convention approval, and that is the time when the public should come in and hear the arguments. I hope the amendment will fail and that we will have the rule adopted as the committee has written it because we have carefully considered this from all the angles, and I believe it is a good rule as written and recommended by the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Clerk read back the amendment as it appears in the record? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: I rise about a parliamentary inquiry about the privileges of the whole body. Aren't we somewhat obligated to our host, the University of Alaska? Don't we have a definite meal hour that we're required to be there?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, that matter was brought to the attention of the President of the Convention some time this morning by some of the members present. It was suggested that we possibly recess at 12:30 instead of 1 o'clock, in order to give them a break over at the cafeteria during their big rush period. If that is the wish of the Convention why it would be the proper time to do so now and get over there and eat but I would like to have the Clerk read the proposed amendment as it appears in the record right now, if it is in order.

CHIEF CLERK: I don't think Mr. Fischer took into consideration the fact that the wording was changed by the Rules Committee and it was added that and unless he asks to have that stricken it is going to be real complicated. If it's not, can we strike the rest?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps the answer would be to wait until after the recess --

CHIEF CLERK: "except upon invitation of the Committee" goes in there after public" unless you --

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, may I submit --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Excuse me Mr. Fischer. Mr. Taylor has been attempting to get the floor here. Mr. Taylor you are recognized.

TAYLOR: I was going to speak upon the amendment to Mr. Fischer and is more to reiterate the matters that Mrs. Hermann brought forth. Now in my experience in the Legislature, quite a number of sessions since 1933, I have been on many committees, I have been chairman of a great many committees. I think it would not be for the best interest of the committees doing efficient work to allow the public to indiscriminately come into these little committee rooms, take up your time, distract your thoughts from matters of great importance. In the Legislature I never knew of any committee that ever refused to hear somebody; when they told us that they wanted to talk to us about we let them come in and have their say and we were glad to because many times we got worthwhile ideas which we maybe would incorporate in a bill. But just to let them come in to see what we are doing in a committee, it would be crowded, and I feel that it would defeat the purpose of what we are there for and when we are in committee and are studying and discussing these matters to try to bring onto this floor a concrete matter which then the entire public will always be welcome to be here, has a right to be here.

BARR: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: In working in committee, a committee which is drafting a law or some provision of the Constitution for the future, many times a past event is related, perhaps to illustrate a point, a past event which might possibly hurt someone of the public. Also, if the committee room is filled with lobbyists, the committee members may be subject to pressure from lobbyists. They may be considering a measure which they may have to consider for a series of days. Between meetings, of course, they are open to this pressure from lobbyists and I do not think that it is to the best interest of the people of Alaska to open these committee meetings to the public. Now I have been a member of a great many legislative committees and have never been on one that was open to the public, although many people have been invited in to testify or to observe and there is no intention of anyone, so far as I know, to have a secret meeting. It is only for the purpose of better efficiency and to the best interest of the public that the public is excluded.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I move the previous question.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the previous question be ordered, but the Chair would like to announce that at the present moment the wording is not exactly in order, and the Chair would wonder Mr. McNealy if it might be in order, thinking of Mr. McLaughlin's request that we do have some obligation to use the facilities there.

MCNEALY: I withdraw the motion to move for the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: I move for a recess until 1:30 this afternoon. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin asks unanimous consent --

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I object. I don't think three-quarters of an hour is long enough.

TAYLOR: I would like permission to bring up a special order of business. It is a motion having to do with the Convention. I move that the Secretary be authorized, subject to the approval of the Committee on Rules, to arrange for the tape recording of all plenary sessions of the Convention.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Secretary have the authority to arrange for the tape recording of the Convention.

SUNDBORG: That is a pretty big subject which I don't think we should get into before lunch.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Chair will ask that that be held over until after the luncheon recess, as a special order of business. If there is no objection the Convention is recessed until 1:45 p.m. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS (1:45 p.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have before us at this time a special order of business. The Chair would ask unanimous consent that we pass the special order of business until we have the completed action on Rule No. 19. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. We have before us Mr. Fischer's proposed amendment to Rule No. 19. Mr. Fischer? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. Chairman, the noon recess enabled us to discuss this matter informally, and with the consent of my second I would like to withdraw the committee's motion for adoption of Rule 19 as voiced by the committee.

BARR: His second consents.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, with the consent of his second, asks unanimous consent to withdraw his motion asking for the adoption of Rule No. 19. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: That automatically removes the amendment previously offered by me, does it not?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would, in effect, remove the amendment offered by you, Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I move that Rule 1# be amended to read as follows:

"The deliberations of the Standing Committees shall be open to the public at such times as may be designated by the respective committees. If a committee finds it to be in the public interest, upon application any citizen may attend committee sessions. Each Standing Committee shall notify the Secretary of time and place of meetings and the Secretary shall make such notice public."

I move for the adoption of this amendment. UNIDENTIFIED DELEGAT#: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves and asks unanimous consent that his amendment be adopted. Is there objection? Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, that is not an amendment, that is the rule. It was moved that the rule be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves and asks unanimous consent that his amendment be adopted.

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, that is not an amendment; that is a rule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair stands corrected, that the rule as offered by Mr. Fischer be adopted. Will the Clerk read the proposed rule again as offered by Mr. Fischer.

(The Chief Clerk read the proposed rule.) PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection? Mr. Kilcher. KILCHER: Point of clarification -- that is, we assume that the committees normally will be closed, that they only will be open on request?

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, this language of the rule is that the committees be free to act as they feel will promote the work of their particular committee. In some cases they may feel that the committee sessions should be closed, but we certainly hope that in most cases unless they are just trying to work out ideas and talking very informally that the meetings will be open, but even if there is a closed meeting, under the second sentence, upon application the committee could still open their sessions up to specific individuals who may be from out of town, or a guest.

KILCHER: I agree with the spirit of the thing, but I don't think the wording is explanatory enough.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you offer an objection, Mr. Kilcher? Unanimous consent has been asked that the rule that is proposed by Mr. Fischer be adopted. Is there any objection?

KILCHER: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection Rule No. 19, as proposed by Mr. Fischer is ordered adopted. Mr. Riley, would you proceed with the reading of Rule No. 20.

RILEY: Mr. President, that concludes that portion of the committee report. We were given a limited assignment this morning, and we will proceed after adjournment today with consideration of other rules to offer. I might add, however, that the committee this morning authorized me to introduce a resolution which will correspond with the rules we have adopted and clarify one situation which concerns the Committee on Permanent help and that resolution is that, "RESOLVE#, the Committee on Permanent help be discharged after completion of its initial duties and that thereafter permanent help be the function of the Committee on Administration." To explain that in part, you will see on Page # of the draft that the Committee on Administration, among its other duties, is charged with that of personnel. I offer that resolution and ask unanimous consent that it be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is that the committee that is at present known as the Committee on Permanent Help, be relieved under that title immediately following their report being presented to the Convention, and then a new committee be appointed to be known as a Committee on Administration. Do you all understand the resolution? Do you ask unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted? Hearing no objection, the resolution is ordered adopted. At this time we have the special order of business before us that was in the form of a motion by Mr. Taylor. Mr. Taylor is not here at the present time.

Perhaps it would be better to pass it again until Mr. Taylor arrives. It has to do with the authorization to the Secretary allowing him to arrange for permanently taping the proceedings of the Convention. Is it the wish of the Convention that we pass or discuss that matter at this time? Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: In view of the fact that Mr. Taylor is absent, I would request the Chair to revert to the business of Committee Reports. I shall give the report on our first meeting of our Committee on Permanent Help.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection you may proceed with the report of the Committee on Permanent Help.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, your Committee met and organized by electing myself as Chairman of the Committee, and I in turn appointed Mrs. Fischer to act as Secretary for the Committee. Our first order of business was a resolution passed by the Committee as such. It was moved that, "No relations of Delegates shall be hired as Convention help, either clerical or administrative." This is a recommendation set by the Committee on Permanent Help to the Convention. It was also felt by the Committee that a nucleus of the more important members of the administrative staff be set up at this time with a chief clerk assigned, a sergeant at arms, a doorkeeper and a messenger. We were without the Rules Committee at the time and were shooting in the dark, so we in turn recommended to the Convention that Mrs. Alexander be appointed as Chief Clerk of the Convention, the salary to be determined later. It was decided that we will meet with Mr. Jack McKay and Tom Stewart for a salary schedule and positions to be filled as recommended by the Statehood Committee and the Rules Committee of this Convention with the salary scale coming from a survey of local wage schedules. The Committee shall meet later on in the day at the pleasure of the Chair. That is my report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Committee on Permanent Help. What is your pleasure? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Question, Mr. President. We've heard a rule read there which would not allow the hiring by this body of any relatives. The question is, how would it effect the Secretary who is the son of one of the delegates whom we elected yesterday. It seems to me that the rule has a broad implication there, so the question comes to mind that we have a Secretary that is the son of one of the delegates. I think that --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, if you have no objection and the Convention has no objection, the Chair will order a recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: With the consent of the other members of our Permanent Help Committee the word "hereafter" has been inserted in the resolution to read as follows: It was moved that no wives or relatives of delegates shall be hereafter hired as Convention help, either clerical or administrative."

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I accept the amendment and still ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Did you offer that as an amendment Mr. Coghill?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, may I inquire?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Merely for the information, has any other, since the word "hereafter" has applied, have any other relatives been hired?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The record will show that Mr. Coghill has offered the amendment to his resolution and that Mr. Johnson accepted the amendment. The question before you is Mr. Johnson's unanimous consent request that the resolution as amended be adopted by the Convention, or rather the report be adopted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection

V. RIVERS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a motion?

JOHNSON: I move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves for the adoption of the report. Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal seconds the motion to adopt the report of the Committee. The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I'll explain my objection Mr. President. This is a motion which would adopt a rule for this body. As long as I've lived in the Territory at different levels, you are automatically creating a prohibition which might bar competent people from seeking employment with this group by the very reason of the fact that they are blood relation. This is the old anti-nepotism clause that has been argued in the Territory for 40 years that I know of and I feel that if we are going to start adopting prohibitions now that it would be a very poor thing to start. It doesn't seem to me logical that we should do otherwise but to base the employment of help upon their qualifications and ability. That should be the only measure, their qualifications, ability and honesty. I have every confidence that our Committee that is going to handle the personnel and the help can take care of that without setting up a prohibitory rule by this body and so for that reason I objected to the unanimous consent and object to the measure for passage.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to agree with Mr. Rivers in major part. I think that the term "relatives" is awfully broad and has no definition at all, and possibly it might be limited to wives and husbands. I do not know if the Committee would agree to that, but the thing is that there may be qualified relations of some of these people here. Some of the local residents might be distant relatives who might qualify for particular positions which would in no way be injurious to the success of the Convention. I do not want to make a motion to amend. I would just suggest to the Committee that they might possibly consider amending their rule.

COGHILL: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, did you hear the suggestion?

COGHILL: I believe that this resolution was brought up in the Committee to allow assurance to the general public that there would not be any closed corporation in the permanent help of the Constitutional Convention and that preference would be shown to outsiders of the Convention and not solely to the wives or relations of the delegates here at the Convention. It was a precedent set up by the Committee only to be brought upon the floor as such, in that meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Rivers.

R. RIVERS: The motion was to approve this report. In the report we said that we recommend to the body that we don't hire wives and relatives. Well, that isn't binding on us, I don't think. Accepting the report doesn't bind the Convention to the substance thereof. That is not a resolution, adopting such a fixed policy. We are just a temporary committee. We made a recommendation in connection with the report. You accept the report, you adopt the --

V. RIVERS: The motion was for the adoption of the report.

R. RIVERS: Was it for adoption?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion was for the adoption of the report, Mr. Rivers. The Committee was the Permanent Help Committee and the permanent committee of this Convention, so the motion is to adopt the report of the Committee on Permanent Help.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion, the question is, "Shall the report be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of the report say "aye". All opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it and the report is ordered adopted. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Do you wish this Committee to continue in its work?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the recommendation of the Committee on Rules, which was adopted, recommended that the Committee on Permanent Help be abolished immediately after submission of your present report and that a new Committee on Administration be appointed to take its place. Of course, that would have to come before the Convention. Someone would have to make such a motion to actually abolish your Committee. Then it would be probably in the providence of the Chair to appoint a new Committee on Administration. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: The recommendation was at the time they completed their work on which they were engaged and they haven't completed their work yet. They've only made an interim report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, is your report completed?

COGHILL: No it isn't Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well then, you are still a committee. Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: I move and ask unanimous consent that the Chair be directed to appoint a Committee on Committees for the purpose of aiding him in selecting the names for the various committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves and asks unanimous consent that the Chair appoint a Committee on Committees for the purpose of aiding him, is that solely in an advisory capacity, Mr. McCutcheon? For the purpose of expediting the selection of the membership of the committees, the Chair reserving at all times the right to make any changes the Chair might desire. That's my understanding of your motion. Is there objection to the request? That the Chair appoint an advisory Committee on Committees to aid him in selecting the membership of the committees. Hearing no objection, then later today the Chair will announce the advisory Committee on Committees to aid him in selecting the membership of the committees. We still have Mr. Taylor's motion before us, which was carried over as a special order of business, not acted upon because Mr. Taylor has not arrived yet. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: The motion that Mr. Taylor has made has to do with business that was transacted at a meeting of the Statehood Committee last week, the executive committee of the Statehood Committee, at which Mr. Taylor and I and Mr. Atwood only were present, and if there is any explanation needed in connection with this motion, I don't think Mr. Atwood is still here, but I can give it to you I am sure. Mr. Taylor informed me that he had a motion calendar to that he had to attend this afternoon in the Court, and I think he may be delayed for some time. He knew that was set up for a specific time and he discussed it before he left.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the wish of the Convention? Shall we pass over it again or consider it at this time? Do you feel it important that it be acted upon as quickly as possible Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, it must be acted upon today. HELLENTHAL: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I move that this group, other than committees in which case the committees if appointed shall have discretion, that this group observe tomorrow Veteran's Day, which is a national and territorial holiday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You move that the Convention stand, when it does adjourn today, agree to adjourn, stand adjourned until Saturday then Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: That would be agreeable.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Because tomorrow being Veteran's Day, a national holiday. Is there a second to that motion? Mr. Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Did Mr. Hellenthal ask unanimous consent or not? May I remark that when this Committee on Committees is announced to advise with the President on the filling out of the entire list of committees that is about a 2#-hour job, and tomorrow could well be observed as a holiday for the members in general, but it proves to be a pretty hard working day for the President and the Committee on Committees. In New Jersey they adjourned for 24 hours while the President consulted and processed the creation or the filling of positions on the committees. By Saturday morning perhaps a complete slate of committees could be announced and we could go ahead and be organized. Tomorrow would not be wasted, even if we acted in that manner. I also think we should have a 10-minute recess sometime this afternoon for the members to write down and place on the Secretary's desk his preference for committee appointments. Now I observed the request the other day that we do that, but half of us haven't done it because there was nothing too definite about it and at that time we didn't even know what the duties of the committees were going to be. Now we all know, so that if we could all do that Mr. President, during a particular recess for that purpose we'd probably all attend to it and then you and the Committee on Committees could have a hard working day tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, the Chair agrees with you. It believes that perhaps while many of the delegates have already turned in their list of preferences, they would do so again and give them to the Secretary now that we've gone through the rules and come to a general understanding of just what this committee functions are going to be. Perhaps it would be better if there might be those delegates who would like to change some of their preferences. Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I will second the motion of Mr. Hellenthal and ask unanimous consent that we observe tomorrow as Veteran's Day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention observe Veteran's Day and that when the Convention adjourns tonight that it adjourn until Saturday. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I believe Mr. Coghill may have neglected to mention that if any members have applications for clerical or administrative work in their pockets that they should turn them in to Mr. Coghill.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If anyone has applications for clerical or administrative work turn them into Mr. Coghill, Chairman of the Permanent Help Committee. Is there anything else to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I think we should refer back to the motion of the special order of business by Mr. Taylor. I ask unanimous consent that we do so. As a member of the Statehood Committee I've gone into that with the other members of the Committee and we should, I believe, discuss it. Unless there is something more pressing that the other members want, I would like to refer back to that order of business.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers asks unanimous consent that we refer back to Mr. Taylor's motion which has to do with having the proceedings of the Convention taped. Hearing no objection we are now back on Mr. Taylor's motion. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: This is not in the form of debate, it is merely suggestions and I think suggestions are in order without a motion on the floor, so I will proceed. As a member of the Statehood Committee, we investigated the matter of sound scribing certain parts of the proceedings of this Convention. I might say that it's not new. The precedents established in other bodies, it was particularly established in the instance of this kind in New Jersey convention. They kept the verbatim notes by the secretary and they sound scribed certain portions, the major portions of formal debate portions of the proceedings. In line with that thinking the Statehood Committee discussed the matter and we talked it over with various technically competent people in that field, and we came up with a proposal that certain portions of the proceedings be sound scribed in addition to the Secretary's notes. I don't know whether this is an appropriate time to discuss cost. The cost did not seem to be on the basis proposed, prohibitive but very much in line and it is my suggestion, it is my thought and the thought of the members of the Statehood Committee that this Convention should make a decision that certain formal parts of the proceedings of this body as a whole be sound scribed, and that was the motion which Mr. Taylor put today, and it was that we would place the handling of the arrangements for those subscribing in the hands of the Secretary and the President as I recall it. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the way I remember it.

V. RIVERS: I'll make a motion and ask unanimous consent that we adopt the motion authorizing the Secretary and the President to do that at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, the motion as Mr. Taylor read it did not include that being in there, -- the President being in there -- however, in the discussion I#here you mentioned it as you --

RILEY: will you read the motion?

CHIEF CLERK: "I move that the Secretary be authorized, subject to the approval of the Committee on Rules, to arrange for the tape recording of all sessions of the Convention."

RILEY: The Committee on Rules rather than the President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That's right.

V. RIVERS: I ask unanimous consent that the motion be adopted.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It's been moved and seconded that the motion be adopted. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I think we should know quite a bit more about just how much more it's going to cost before we decide that we are going to do it. I talked a little bit this morning with Mr. Stewart, our Secretary, and it did not seem to me that it was a very minor charge at all. It seemed to me that it was quite substantial and I'm not convinced that it is worth what it is going to cost. Maybe we could have Mr. Stewart come before us and give us the figures on it, then we'd know what we were voting about.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: It seems to me the resolution as read is a little different from Mr. Rivers's. He said the major or more important parts as I understand it whereas the resolution would mean all proceedings. It would be quite a difference there.

V. RIVERS: The explanation I will give on that is that the resolution allows broad latitude in the hands of the Rules Committee to decide the amount they would spend and the amount they would want transcribed. It wasn't the intention to limit them but to allow their judgment some free exercise. As I understand the motion, that is what it would do.

MRS. HERMANN: Mr. Chairman?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: At the time we discussed this matter in the Executive Committee of the Statehood Committee, we had a technical advisor from one of the radio stations there to give us a general estimate of the cost. He isn't able to give us complete until he saw what he had to do in the way of printing it but the idea was that all the proceedings of the Convention as a whole would be tape recorded as a permanent record for its historic value in the future and that it would be preserved for all time to come in that manner. Now the Statehood Committee was considerably impressed with the fact that it was not a costly venture and that it was of vast historical significance and importance. Therefore, we accepted a contingent liability for the transcribing of the proceedings for today and yesterday. The first day over at the gymnasium, the opening session, its a station contribution. They did not charge for that. It was a public service program that they meant to put on anyway and there was no charge for it. And in order to give this Convention time to effect a permanent organization and decide for itself if it wanted to keep the permanent record available, we underwrote it for the first two days after the first day ourselves. Now our liability to the station ends today. If you want a permanent record continued you will have to take action today in order to be sure that you have the mechanical staff and others here to handle the recording on your next business day. Portions of the time that were to be covered were the sessions of the entire Convention and not of the committees in their separate sessions. And it was to be recorded exactly as it happened with all of our grammatical errors and wisecracks, which probably ought to be eliminated because of the seriousness of the situation, and we personally felt it was of vast importance that the Territory and perhaps historians of all times should have available for them this particular record. Now I have not talked to the station since we discussed the matter with them, but Mr. Taylor told me that the total cost would be $8,000, and that certainly is terrifically light in view of the importance of the job that we would like to have them do. We will pay for the first two days if the Convention thinks we should, we will pay for them. We have obligated ourselves to that amount, but actually it is a Convention expense the whole thing is a Convention expense that should be borne, and for the sake of future students of history I hope that this Convention will decide to continue with the sound scribing until the end of the Convention, so far as the full plenary sessions are concerned.

WHITE: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White is trying to get the floor here.

WHITE: I can barely hear you but I rose to the same point of inquiry as Mr. Sundborg merely to say that I am entirely in sympathy with the desire to preserve this Convention for frozen posterity but I am not prepared to vote on anything without knowing the cost of it. Are my figures correct then that if the Convention ran for 75 days the cost would be approximately $160 a day?

HERMANN: I have the figures only from Mr. Taylor. I have not talked to the station itself. That is what he told me.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, I might offer one other bit of information, that it is estimated that the recording charge is $29.00 per hour.

SUNDBORG: And that I understand would be on top of an initial $2500 flat charge for the installation. There would be a $2500 charge, then $29 an hour and that may be perfectly reasonable. It sounds like an awful lot of money to me and maybe the Committee has looked into it sufficiently that they know that is the cheapest and best way to transcribe these proceedings. I am not sure that they have, therefore I would not want to vote in favor of this until I have quite a bit more information about it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I wanted to add one point that the sound scribing of the activities of the New Jersey Convention were used as a partial basis for the compiling of their journal. The journal covered a period of some ninety days and filled a thousand pages, to say nothing of the resolutions and extraneous matters. I feel that this will be of inestimable help in transcribing the journal and also for historical purposes. I feel it will be of help in the courts in determining if they seek intent behind the various clauses of the Constitution when they interpret it. I feel that the cost, again I point out, I feel that the cost as indicated to us was reasonable. I also want to point out that while it was intended to transcribe the plenary sessions, any of the sessions such as the Committee of the whole or any informal or special sessions not dealing with Constitutional business, it was not, I understood, the intent to transcribe that.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Maybe I'm lost here but we apparently have a court reporter taking everything down. I don't understand then the necessity of the sound scribing. It seems like that would be sufficient. I've talked about $5 worth and I'll sit down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: I would like to know who would be the keeper or where the records will be kept providing the sound scribing is okayed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would that be the Territorial Museum? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: At the time we discussed it, we felt it would be able to be kept in the museum or historical library, either in the University or in Juneau. They will be certainly in the public custody and not in private custody, and the point raised by Mr. Buckalew about the stenotypist's records is that we took that into consideration too, but we felt that perhaps it should be supplemented for checking purposes if anybody ever wanted to do it. We would have a record and she would have a record, and it would be possible to play that back at any time anybody wanted the information, and it was well worth the price that it was going to cost. I hope the Convention will agree to the sound scribing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does anyone else wish to discuss the subject. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President, I think it is very fine to have equipment here and men that can do this job and they are here and that is the modern way today to make a voice recording of your dealings and this is a modern Convention and probably the last one to be held. I can see in the foreseeable future no more constitutional conventions and I think maybe it should be done. I vote for this recording.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: I would ask unanimous consent that the Chair be directed to have Mr. Stewart present himself and advise us of the information he discovered in Hawaii when he was down there visiting to get the information about the Constitutional Convention in the Hawaiian area.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon, the Chair might inform you that Mr. Stewart asked leave to go to the plane to meet the wife of one of the advisors or research men who had been taken ill and his wife is coming in on the plane and he went out to meet her.

MCCUTCHEON: In lieu of your remarks, Mr. President, I withdraw my request.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I think it might clarify it if the resolution as submitted by Mr. Taylor were made more specific. Might I see it. (Now has in hand. This says "approval of the Committee on Rules to arrange for the tape recording of all sessions of the Convention." We could stick the words "plenary sessions" in front of the word "sessions". We would know then that only those hours when we were in plenary session would the tape recording expense go on. I move an amendment to the motion now before us by inserting the word "plenary" in front of the word "sessions".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers offers an amendment to the motion to insert the word "plenary" before the word "sessions".

R. RIVERS: And I ask unanimous consent.

JOHNSON: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I am not objecting. I simply rise to a point of information, would the word "plenary" include sessions of the body when sitting as a committee of the whole?

R. RIVERS: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the motion has been amended to include the word "plenary". Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I am inclined to agree with the statement made by Mr. Buckalew about having a reporter present. And in view of the fact that what I say may be recorded and in public hands for posterity, and in view of the fact that I gained no small number of votes to be elected as a delegate on grounds of getting the Convention over if possible in thirty days and in any event, an attempt to save the taxpayers money, I therefore am opposed to that and the record will so show for posterity.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: It has been on my mind for a little while. We have two situations in this Convention. My brother and I, Ralph, both happen to bear the same name and these minutes are going to show a number of "Mr. Rivers's". Some of the things he says I might not entirely agree with and some of the things I say he might not subscribe to. So I wonder how the minutes would be kept in regard to the name, "Mr. Rivers". I also see the same situation at times arising in the case of Mr. B. D. Stewart and Mr. Tom Stewart. We also have the case of Mrs. Helen Fischer and Mr. Victor Fischer so as a point of order it seems to me that where we have duplication of names that we would necessarily with this transcribing method without the sound scribing. where you could identify the voices, it would seem to me very important that we have the prefix of the given name before each of the surnames every time that we are recognized by the Chair. The sound scribing. I think would help partially in clarifying it because there would be a voice distinction.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers your point of order is well taken and the Chair shall remember that in the future. The Chair stands corrected. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I think we have overlooked one basic part of our job in coming here to the University of Alaska to prepare this Constitution. According to law, one of our jobs is to secure ratification of this document if at all possible. Modern selling today is by ear and by eye and also by the written word. We are going to have to use all of them here in Alaska, and this certainly is a modern way of selling and imparting information. The press is fine, the radio is fine, by itself, every other medium is fine, but we have to get this across, and this will be the modern way of doing it, and we might just as well comply with the law.

METCALF: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: The price worries me somewhat. I wonder if we could hear from Mr. Stewart as to what this is going to cost for the plenary sessions.

HINCKEL: I would like the information as to whether or not a permanent recording could be made. I have known of recordings of various things having been made in the past and then inadvertently the recording would be erased from the tape while being in use. If this can be a permanent recording I would be in favor of it. If there is any chance of it being erased while being in use I would not be in favor of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Stewart can probably answer that. Mr. Stewart, we have had a discussion here on a motion by Mr. Taylor to authorize the Secretary, with the approval of the Rules Committee, to arrange for the tape recording of all plenary sessions of the Convention. (Secretary Stewart is now on the Convention floor.) The question of cost has arisen, other questions have arisen and the Convention is wondering if you could enlighten the members, give them a thorough enlightenment as to the purpose of the request.

SECRETARY: May I take the floor to do that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If you would. If there is no objection, you may do so Mr. Stewart.

SECRETARY: I don't know whether Mr. Taylor has reported that the Statehood Committee investigated this matter and authorized me, as its executive officer, to meet with representatives of the radio station KFAR here which was making the recording for the first three days and to ask them to submit a statement as to what the arrangements would be and what the cost would be and they did that and I have a statement here signed by Mr. Vincent Carroza, Manager of KFAR Broadcasting System. If I may, I'll just read the letter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may proceed.

SECRETARY: "Dear Sir: This is in reply to the request of the Alaska Statehood Committee for an estimate of expenses from KFAR radio for the tape recording of the Plenary Sessions of the Alaska Constitutional Convention. This estimate, which was requested in two parts (installation charge and hourly rate), is hereby submitted:

1. Basic installation of Midnight Sun Broadcasting

Company equipment and use thereof for the length of the Alaska Constitutional Convention $2,500.

2. Charge for each hour of recording the Plenary Sessions. This fee includes engineering labor, maintenance of equipment, cans for tape storage, recording tape, and labeling of tapes, storage, and transportation -- $29.20."

Someone raised the question about the recording in Hawaii. In Hawaii they did record their full plenary sessions. They have since transcribed that tape which is still in existence there. I have in my files a full statement on the cost of their recording and the way it was handled. If you wish a further report on it, I don't recall in detail from memory what it was, but this figure, if you want it transposed into total cost, assume that you had an hour a day on the average or even as much as two hours a day on any plenary session, you could arrive quickly at what it might ultimately cost for 75 days. I think it is relevant to consider at this price that through your Committee on Permanent Help we are preparing a statement of the monies available in terms of how much it must necessarily be committed in terms of your per diem and your transportation and other things so that maybe later today we could give you a better statement on what is the total available.. I think at this moment there would be sufficient monies for this if you desire to do it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mr. Tom Stewart. Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: What I would like to find out is what the difference in equipment would be for the duration and the equipment we have right now recording these first two days.

HERMANN: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: As I understand it, the equipment is sufficient. Maybe the radioman here can tell you that they installed it for the opening day themselves and they would have equipment I think sufficient to right now that is already installed. I don't think there is an additional installation charge.

LONDBORG: Then we are not being billed with $2,500 installation charge?

HERMANN: I think that is being billed to the Alaska Statehood Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Should the Chair ask Mr. Bullock that question? (President Egan spoke with Mr. Bullock.) I am informed that they could have the manager of the station out here in a few minutes and we could take this up with him in a Committee of the Whole if it is so desired by the Convention. It would not be very long time until we could reconvene in a Committee of the Whole and take up this subject. Is there objection to doing that and requesting that the manager of the station be brought before us?

LEE: Mr. President, I come from a country where we can't go out and pick up gold nuggets off the ground. That seems like a considerable amount of money. I would like to direct a question to Mr. Stewart and ask him if there are any other agencies to do this type of work, other than this agency that is doing it at the present, and if is there any reason to believe that this is the best company to do the work?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for about fifteen minutes recess while the Chair seeks to secure the station manager who may possibly give us further information and also while Mr. Stewart secures the actual cost of the Hawaiian delegation's taping of their recordings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until such time as the station manager can be requested to come here and also -- Mr. Lee?

LEE: Do I have permission to request that information from Mr. Stewart?

PRESIDENT EGAN: What was the question you asked, Mr. Lee? What is about the availability of other facilities?

LEE: I asked whether other agencies were available to do this kind of work.

SECRETARY: I don't know. Maybe I should give you a little more background. In anticipating this problem some months ago, the Statehood Committee wrote to about six of the national foundations the Ford Foundation and others and asked them if they might be interested in contributing funds to do this in the national interest and one of the foundations was interested and we had asked for $50,000 to do it. We had got some indication from an engineer that it would run up to that much to do a good job of it. Ultimately we were turned down on it and nothing more was done about it until about .a week ago when at the direction of the Statehood Committee, I made this contact with KFAR. I don't know whether anybody else here has adequate facilities to do it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Lee, perhaps if we could have Mr. Carroza out here we could get all that information. Does that answer your question as far as Mr. Stewart could answer it?

LEE: Yes, I am sure that will answer it. I am slightly concerned with the proposition that we might be accused of showing favoritism to certain business and I would like to avoid that.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Does the engineering department of the University have any facilities to take care of the problem for us at a minimum cost?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does anyone know if that has been investigated by the committee? Well, Mr. McCutcheon's motion was a unanimous consent request. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that these fifteen minutes be equally used to investigate whether the University has any facilities or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, during this recess, where do you desire us to put these renewed requests for committee assignments?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would be a good suggestion, Mr. McLaughlin and if everyone would, during this recess -- if we have a recess -- put their new requests on the Secretary's desk. Unanimous consent is asked, is there objection to recess? Hearing none, Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Can't we appoint a committee with power to act in this matter? I think everyone is very generally agreed that we don't want to waste any money. We have men here that know a lot about electronics and recordings. I can think of Chris Poulsen. He's in the theatre business. He knows about it. I have faith in those men. Why don't we just appoint a committee to talk to the radio people, talk to the University authorities, see if other people are available and let them take care of it? It seems awful trivial for the entire body to take up.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: I am heartily in sympathy with Delegate Hellenthal's remarks. However, it appears that there are many of the membership here concerned with some of the technicalities, especially the technicality of money; I think they should all be advised on that premise.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Carroza will be right out. If there is no objection then the Convention will stand at recess. The Convention is at recess. (2:50 p.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair has been informed that there is a green Dodge Coronet out front, license No. 4778. The doors are locked and the lights on. We have before us Mr. McCutcheon's motion which was to resolve ourselves into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing Mr. Carroza on this question of the cost of taping this Convention. Unanimous consent is asked that the Convention resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is resolved into a Committee of the Whole.

(At this time the Committee of the Whole met.) The President appointed Mr. Sundborg to preside.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

DELEGATE SUNDBORG: Mr. President, your Committee of the Whole met and report progress.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President...

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I move to divide the question and first put the proposition to the Assembly as to whether the proceedings should be recorded by tape and then take the second question. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent that the question be divided. Is there any objection?

BUCKALEW: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

HELLENTHAL: I so move.

SMITH: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It's been moved and seconded that the question be divided. Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: I would like to be advised what the division amounts to, what is the second portion that needs to be divided?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: The second portion would be that the matter be referred to the Committee on Administration or such other committee as the Chair thought proper to meet and secure competitive bids, if available, for the installation or rental of the device.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the Committee on Administration is not yet constituted, in fact we don't even have a Committee on Committees which was going to advise with the President on the selection of members to that and the other committees.

HELLENTHAL: The alternative was that it be left to the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion as it appears on the record will be read by the Clerk up until the time of Mr. Hellenenthal's suggestion. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Is the matter open for discussion at this point?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, it would be if you would allow the Clerk to read the original motion please.

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. Taylor moved that the Secretary be authorized subject to the approval of the Committee on Rules, to arrange for the tape recording of all plenary sessions of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal, yours was more inclusive than that, your statement as to what would happen if the Convention decided to go ahead with taping the proceedings.

HELLENTHAL: I am a bit confused because there have been so many new thoughts injected. I thought if we divided the question first into the basic question, shall we make the tape. If that is decided in the negative then there is no further problem. Let's get that out of the way, then implement the Chair to take steps to set the machinery in motion if that is the wish of the body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon does that satisfy your question as to what the division of the question would be?

MCCUTCHEON: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the question is, "Shall the question be divided?" All those in favor of dividing the question will say "aye". All opposed say "no". The ayes have it and the question will be divided. Now we have before us the question, Shall the Convention order the taping of the plenary sessions?" The question is open for debate.

V. FISCHER: I don't want to make a motion to table this particular motion, because that would close off debate, but it seems to me that we are not ready to discuss and vote upon this motion until we have the answers that will be supplied by the second part of the divided motion. I would appreciate some comments on this particular point.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are saying, Mr. Fischer, that it is your belief that perhaps the division should, in order to give everyone an opportunity to really decide in their minds, should be reversed?

V. FISCHER: That is more or less my opinion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Or do an investigation and then allowing the information, is that your position?

HELLENTHAL: My thought was a little different than that. Frankly, I think we are all in favor of making a record of the proceedings. Let's get that out of the way, then let's decide or get a committee to tell us how much it's going to cost after they've investigated and then decide whether we're going to pay for it or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I don't see the need of committing ourselves to have this service performed before we know what it is going to cost. I think that Mr. Nerland's approach as suggested during the Committee of the Whole is the proper one, and that is that it be assigned as an investigation to a committee. We have two or three days ahead of us. We might obligate ourselves for the one or two days involved. For my own part I would like to reserve judgment until we know what it will cost and for that reason I think Mr. Fischer's suggestion is right and that the question should be stated in reverse order. Perhaps the one first proposed by Mr. Helleenthal should be deferred until next week.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: I move then that all of the motions I don't know how many there are all be tabled and that the Chair appoint a committee to consult with the gentlemen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, it is questionable in the mind of the Chair whether you can do a blanket tabling of all motions.

BUCKALEW: I make a motion then that the first one be tabled and then when that one is tabled, I'll move that the second one be tabled.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question before us is, "Shall the Convention order the go-ahead with the taping of the plenary sessions?" BUCKALEW: That is the one I wanted to move tabled. PRESIDENT EGAN: Will you state the motion, Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: The motion is that whether we contact these people and order a tape be tabled. I don't know the exact words of the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Point of order is that the question is merely an expression of opinion, not whether we shall order, but we want an opinion of this body as to whether we desire to have the tape. The question of whether we can afford it as Mr. Hellenthal said, will come up after we have the figures. The question has already been divided and I think the main question is in order and I am going to call for the main question.

MCCUTCHEON: I second it.

BUCKALEW: I have a motion it be tabled.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It was never seconded Mr. Buckalew. Mr. Rivers offers a motion and it has been seconded. It has been moved by Mr. Victor Rivers, seconded by Mr. McCutcheon that the previous question be ordered. In effect you are voting on whether or not to close off debate on the main motion. All those in favor of ordering the previous question say "aye", all opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered and the question is, how does that read? Will the Clerk read that please?

CHIEF CLERK: "Shall the Convention order the taping of the session?"

PRESIDENT EGAN: The intention then Mr. Hellenthal, wasn't to order the taping, it was to HELLENTHAL: No, if I said that, I stand corrected. I merely ment, shall the Convention favor the principle of taping the plenary session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the Convention favor the principle of taping the plenary sessions?" All those in favor of the motion say "aye", all opposed say "no". The question is carried. So the Convention is in favor of the principle of taping the plenary sessions. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: I would move that the Chair appoint a committee of not to exceed five members to work with the radio stations or anybody else involved, to see what the cost of taping is going to run and along with that we continue to tape the sessions at least through Saturday of this week until we can get that information.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order. I believe the second half of the divided question remains to be voted on.

HELLENTHAL: I consent to Mr. Davis' amendment. I believe it incorporates what I had in mind.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Hellenthal would agree with a revision of the second half of the question. You have heard Mr. Davis's motion and unanimous consent was asked. Is there objection?

V. RIVERS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

DAVIS: I so move.

METCALF: Second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded -- Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: It seems to me we are in the process of appointing committees and this would normally fall under and the motion originally submitted falling under the Administrative and Rules Committee. It seems to be an unnecessary duplication of committees. Because I hope or see at least that maybe the Rules Committee we have constituted a Rules Committee at this time, which is a temporary one, or do we not?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is a permanent one.

V. RIVERS: We have a permanent Rules Committee, then I would suggest then that we don't need another committee to enter into this picture.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: The Rules Committee however has an awful lot of work to do it appears to me. We have adopted only one very small portion of the rules that are going to be required by this body until we are really in position to proceed effectively here and as one member of the Rules Committee I would hate to have our Committee saddled with this problem of going into the rather technical matter of getting costs on recording equipment and deciding what we should do about taping the proceedings of this Convention. I would certainly hope that a special committee that is not involved in the deliberations of the Rules Committee could be appointed by the Chair and go into that matter.

TAYLOR: Mr. President... ,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I agree heartily with what Mr. Sundborg says about that. I feel that if we do as suggested by Mr. Davis we are making a negotiating and purchasing committee out of the Rules Committee. It is beyond their province. This is one little isolated thing that has come up before this body of whether we are going to tape the proceedings. We have negotiated with the broadcasting company, and he is going to be here Monday with some figures. This is a place where a select committee for that particular purpose should be appointed by the Chair to carry on the negotiations with Mr. Carroza. I feel that the Rules Committee, as constituted now is a little top heavy, it's not their province and I think a like committee should be appointed by the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the effect, Mr. Taylor, of Mr. Davis's proposal.

V. RIVERS: I withdraw my objection to the unanimous consent request.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers withdraws his objection to the unanimous consent request. Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: It would appear to me that we are involving ourselves in discussion that is not necessary. The body has expressed a desire to develop figures on taping. The man here who is able to produce those figures understands that. By Saturday we will have a duly constituted Administrative Committee which would be a portion of their regular duties. Our man over here can't possibly develop the figures before Saturday. Consequently the committee would be organized and prepared for work by the time that any figures can be developed. It seems to me we're running around the hill here.

DAVIS: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: With the consent of my second I would amend my motion to say that the matter be referred to the Administration Committee when it is constituted. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request of Mr. Davis to amend his motion to say that the matter be referred to the Administration Committee when it is constituted. Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: I thought Mr. Carroza wanted some people to work with him between now and Saturday. That was my understanding. Maybe I misunderstood.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Carroza, would you like to answer that question?

MR. CARROZA: I should like to get to work on this project as quickly as possible. If it's possible to get together tonight, perhaps with several members for an hour or so, we might get these figures and get the answers as quickly as possible.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis, if the Chair may, Mr. Davis, I would like to call to the attention of the body that there is a Permanent Help Committee which more or less in the past in different organizations is in charge of that type of thing, and it still is a legally constituted committee of this Convention. It might be that immediately following adjournment tonight that that Committee could take this up with Mr. Carroza.

DAVIS: I have no objection.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that you need a special committee for this work, and it should be composed of people who understand figures and have an intelligent comprehension of business. I don't accuse the Permanent Help Committee of not having it, but it has its job to do also, but it seems to me that you could get yourselves some good business men, accountants or people of that type, that would make a better committee to confer with Mr. Carroza than just a committee appointed for an entirely different type of work.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I was rising to make exactly the same point. There are probably people here who are highly qualified to work on such a specific question. This will not be a committee of long standing. There will be no general session tomorrow and that will be a good time for them to get together on this.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis, your motion is still before us. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: It appears to me that this is a special problem calling for immediate action, and actually the only way to solve it is by the appointment of a special committee. That committee would not have to stay in session after their job was finished and it appears to me to be the logical answer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, since we have expressed the will to have this thing taped if financially possible, I am also in favor of having a special committee of any kind appointed today because a large part, maybe one of the most important parts, the beginning of this Convention, are already substandard, and if we prolong it any further, a larger proportion of the Convention will be substandard recording so we'd better go ahead and have it done quickly.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any objection to Mr. Davis's unanimous consent request that a special committee be appointed?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, his last request was to refer it to the Administration Committee.

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, may I restate the original motion, then, that a special committee of not more than five members be appointed by the Chair to work with the radio stations or other people involved to find out the cost of taping these sessions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the motion. Mr. Davis asks unanimous consent. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. The Chair will appoint a committee as quickly as possible. The Chair, if there is no objection, will at this point declare a ten-minute recess. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to announce at this time the appointment of the following committee as the select committee to confer with Mr. Carroza: Hilscher, Chairman; Mr. Harris, Mr. Nerland, Mr. White and Mr. Cooper. If there is no objection that committee will stand as the select committee. Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: I understand that we got a wire from some place down in the Third Division. I would like permission to have the wire read by the Clerk and put into the records of this Convention. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the wire can be read.

(The Secretary read the following wire.)

"Bill Egan, President

Constitutional Convention

The People in Valdez are very proud of you. Our best wishes and prayers are with you.

Judy Johnson, Secy.

Valdez Chamber of Commerce."

(Applause)

HINCKEL: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel.

HINCKEL: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that the hour be established for the convening of the Convention at 9 o'clock in the morning on future days and that the arrangement for transportation be made prior to that so we can convene at 9 a.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel asks then that it be the policy of the Convention to convene at 9 a.m. on every future working day and that the transportation be arranged to fit in with that time, which would mean leaving the Nordale then at 8:30 in the morning rather than 9 o'clock. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: We ran across a little difficulty in arranging the original schedule because of the conflict with the school bus operations. I think 8:30 might be difficult with the bus.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr?

BARR: I object to that and I wonder if Mr. Hinckel realizes that later on when these committees really get down to work that he'll be on a committee and he'll be working some evenings as late as 10:30 or 11 o'clock at night and then if he has to be here by # o'clock plus of course your transportation is earlier, he's going to be a little bit over-worked.

COLLINS: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: I agree wholeheartedly with Senator Barr. In past experience his words cover the situation, for we are going to be loaded with committee work. The work is not all done right here. It will be in night sessions, and I for one have been tied up in a committee meeting until midnight or later, and to get up that early in the morning is out of the question. I think the old rule should be 10 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Actually, we don't have anything before us then if these statements are in the form of objections. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: I make it in the form of a motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel moves that it be the policy of the Convention to convene at 9 o'clock in the mornings of every working day. Is there a second to the motion?

POULSEN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Poulsen seconds the motion. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBBORG: I move to amend the motion of Mr. Hinckel to provide that the hour shall be 9:30 o'clock rather than 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moved an amendment to the motion that the motion be amended to read 9:30 o'clock instead of 9 o'clock.

ROBERTSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion was seconded by Mr. Robertson. The question now is on the amendment to the motion.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: All those in favor of the amendment to the motion, making it 9:30 o'clock in the morning, say "aye", all opposed "no". And so the motion has been amended, and the question before you now is "Shall the Convention meet at 9:30 daily on every future working day?" Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: No. President, it occurs to me that some people here don't realize that this time of the year we very frequently get extremely cold weather. If they have to get up that early, even at 9:30, it is going to be a considerable difficulty, and it seems to me that once the committees are appointed and functioning that major work of this Convention will be done by the committees and they should be given more time to operate during the day. I would think that rather than meeting at 9:30 the plenary sessions could well begin at 11 o'clock because otherwise the committees are not going to have any time to work unless they do it all night.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: It seems to me that we are setting ourselves a time certain to adjourn here, and it does not seem entirely fitting and it doesn't seem entirely necessary. We, in the early stages of the session, I am inclined to agree with what Maurice Johnson said a moment ago, that it is entirely possible that due to committee work we may desire to adjourn to 10 or 11 o'clock, but I can see possibly how we could want to start work before 10 o'clock in the early parts of the session. I can readily see how we might want to reduce that time to 9:30 or 9:00 o'clock a little later or when we have some special work load or some special order of business. To tie ourselves down to a time certain for adjournment at this time does not seem to me to be the ideal thing to do. I think we should possibly establish a precedent and as the work load increases, change it and increase the hour to meet.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, we of course can change this time at any time in the future that the Constitutional Convention desires to do so. I believe the way the motion was put, that it shall be the policy of the Convention to meet at #:30 o'clock in the morning. For the time being that seems to me to be a good policy. When there is a different situation, if the weather is cold or if our work load changes from what it is at present, that is the time in which to change this, which we can do by a simple motion just as we are doing here. So I would ask support of the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? If there is no further discussion, then the question is "Shall it be the policy of the Convention to convene at 9:30 o'clock in the morning of every future working day?" All those in favor of the motion say "aye". All opposed say "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Clerk will call the roll, please.

(The roll was called with the following result:

Ayes: 36 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Doogan, E#nberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNees, Nerland, Nordale, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Walsh, Mr. President.

Nays: 18 - Barr, Buckalew, Davis, H. Fischer, Harris, Johnson, Laws, McCutcheon, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nolan, Reader, V. Rivers, Robertson, Taylor, White, Wien.

Absent: 1 - Peratrovich.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so it will be the policy of the Convention to meet at 9:30 a.m. each morning. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that we stand at recess for 20 minutes for the purpose of the Committee on Permanent Help meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair will declare a 20 minute recess in order that the Committee on Permanent Help may have its meeting. The Convention is at recess.

(The Convention recessed at this time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to announce that the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce is anxious to supply a name card to any delegate who does not have one. If all delegates who do not have their cards will report their names to the Secretary those cards will be made for you. The Chair would like to announce at this time the advisory Committee on Committees it has chosen to work with the President on the selection of the different committee assignments: Mr. White, Mr. Victor Rivers, Mr. Nolan, Mrs. Nordale, Mr. Londborg, Mr. McLaughlin, Mrs. Wien, Mr. Barr, and Mr. Gray.

HERMANN: May we have those again so that we can write them down?

(The Chief Clerk read the names.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary states that he has recommendations for committee assignments from everyone except Mr. Laws. I note that Mr. Laws is not in the delegation right at present. Someone should tell him to turn in his slip. What is the pleasure of the Convention at this time? Is there any business to come before the Convention right at this moment? Mr. Riley.

RILEY: I would like to make an announcement of a Rules Committee meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in 1013 in the Polaris Building. I note that our rules indicate public notice will be given, and this is in line with that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley announces a meeting of the Committee on Rules at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in Apartment 1013 of the Polaris Building.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, where do you desire the advisory Committee on Committees to meet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair was going to announce that before we adjourned Mr. McLaughlin. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: I wonder if busses might be available to the members for attending the reception at the Patty house tonight.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there anyone here who has information on that? Are there busses that run out here in the evening or is it possible to get a bus?

HERMANN: It might be advisable to find out how many want bus transportation. I think we can get our own. I don't think that should be a Convention --

DAVIS: Oh, I don't think it should either, I thought we might charter one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I don't think Mr. Davis meant that the Convention was having anything to do with it.

HERMANN: Well, I think we ought to find out how many would want busses.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray?

GRAY: Here is a bus schedule. A bus leaves the depot every hour on the half hour - 2:30, 4:30, 6:30, 7:30 and 9:30 and the fare is 50 cents.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Where is the depot?

GRAY: Across the street from the Northward, I think.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This reception is at 8 o'clock out here tonight, is that right?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: 8:00 until 11:00. When does the last bus run, Mr. Gray?

GRAY: The bus schedule that I have at the present time, they leave from down town at 7:30, 9:30 and 11:30, and they leave from the University at 7:50, 9:50 and 11:50 p.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then if, I suppose it is just up to the members and the delegates to get together beforehand and see how many want bus service and try to be at some place at some appointed time to get ready to come out here. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCER: As a former resident of the Fourth Division and knowing how gosh darn cold it can get, I doubt if very many people are going to want to walk from the bus depot down here up to the Patty residence and taxi fare is, I guess, around $3.00 or $3.50, something like that. Everybody just as well had better figure on getting together and going in cabs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr?

BARR: I wonder if there will be a reception line. If so, we should all be there on time.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: There will be.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I don't see why we can't arrange for a special bus to go out and come and get us on the same basis as in the morning, just as they do for the delegates.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: When I met with the committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Victor Hart who was with the bus service, he said he was going to do everything he could to make it pleasant for the people here and he has given efficient service and I am quite sure if he was contacted immediately after adjournment that he would be glad to run a bus for those members of the Convention and their wives or husbands who want to come out to the Patty's.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor would you be willing to contact Mr. Hart immediately upon adjournment and then before, or everyone stay here and you could phone from upstairs

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: How many want the bus?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps right now, it wouldn't be out of order to find out how many want to come out on the bus. (Delegates raised their hands). About 20 or 21 and probably close to 30.

TAYLOR: Say 30? I will contact him immediately.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: The reason I believe that they set this reception from 8:00 until 11:00 that we would come in groups or at least would not all arrive at one time. Certainly if 35 of us arrive with our wives and all arrive at one time and the local Chamber of Commerce people should be there, we would be standing in a line from the Patty residence down to the bottom of the hill.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is something to be kept in mind. Mr. Nolan?

NOLAN: Mr. President, I think that was Mr. Barr's question. Is there going to be a reception line?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Evidently there isn't going to be a reception line where all the delegates stand, Mr. Barr.

NERLAND: The local people are going to be in the line I believe.

MARSTON: Mr. President, I happen to know that there is going to be a reception committee and we are to be received. There will be a line to receive us there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to ask at this time that the members of the advisory Committee on Committees remain here after adjournment for a time and we will attempt to find out when we can get together and go over these committee assignments. Is there anything else to come before the Convention now?

Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: I request a temporary recess until we ascertain whether the committee that is now out, will have something to report to us so we can decide whether or not we can adjourn or wait their pleasure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon that is a good suggestion. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a few minutes. The Convention is at recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, we have a report from the Committee on Permanent Help. We wish not to submit it as a report for adoption but for a report as information to the Convention. It seems that your Committee on Permanent Help is somewhat tied to the permanent Committee on Administration, and we find we cannot devise a permanent help schedule until a budget is formulated to run the Convention. So therefore your Committee on Permanent Help has only submitted as a suggestion to the Committee on Administration the following: a 15% raise over the last legislature's pay scale for the Chief Clerk, sergeant-at-arms, four stenographers, a clerk typist, mimeograph operator, receptionist, messenger, doorkeeper and recording clerk. I can read the figures on that if you wish, but we feel that this is a recommendation from our Committee to the Chair, that we cannot operate successfully in the capacity in which we are endowed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention? Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: I would like to supplement by saying that we agreed in the committee room that we have done all we could now in the way of exploratory work and preliminary processing. With the assistance from Mr. McKay and the Secretary we have quite a bit of the budget information available and are prepared, then if we are dissolved, to turn all our material over to the Committee on Administration as soon as it is organized.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Committee report be accepted and that the Committee be discharged from its duties.

PRESIDENT EGA#: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the Committee report be accepted and that the Committee be discharged from its duties. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: I don't want to make an objection but I want to question one point in that report. Was there a chaplain named?

COGHILL: Mr. President, we were only acting in an exploratory measure. We have not set down the full scale as yet because we have not been able to go into the full budget of the clerical and administrative help. So it is left undone to the Administrative Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, didn't you state at the beginning that this was not a complete report?

COGHILL: This is not a complete report this is only as information to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I would object then to a unanimous motion for vote to discharge this Committee if they have only submitted a partial report. We should hear the rest of the report before we discharge them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, Mr. Coghill stated, as I understand, that the reason it is only a partial report that they worked on this and they found that they, with the authority that would be vested in them, didn't have the authority to go ahead with the partial report because they are not the Committee on Administration. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, if you wish I could form it in a form of report that our exploratory measures of our Committee have been formulated and are ready to turn over to the permanent Committee on Administration -- if that will answer the question of Mr. Taylor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers had already asked unanimous consent that the committee be discharged from its duties. There was no objection. The Chair is of the mind that unanimous consent request was adopted. Is that right Madam Secretary?

CHIEF CLERK: The motion was to accept the report, but there was no report because Mr. Coghill said it was just for information.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers's motion, his unanimous consent request stated the acceptance of the report, you could amend that to say the acceptance of the statement of the Committee on Permanent Help. Mr. Armstrong.

ARMSTRONG: Is it possible that this Committee might be working until the permanent Committee is appointed? Is the research that they can follow through on to even bring more complete report in to the Committee? If so then I think the thought of the language used is preliminary and they should be continued until the other committee is formulated and then turn over their files.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention as regards to Mr. Armstrong's suggestion? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Having worked on this Committee, I would urge the Convention and the Chair to do away with the Committee on Permanent Help and to constitute the Committee on Administration so as to expedite the working gears of the Convention and get it rolling for our Saturday morning session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chairman had been thinking of this change that was going to be necessary and except for one addition to the Committee, the name of Mr. Hilscher, the Chair at this time would constitute the Committee on Administration with the same membership that the Permanent Help Committee had with the addition of Mr. Herb Hilscher's name to that list of committee members. If there is no objection

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I still have a unanimous consent request, which has not been accepted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I thought that was accepted. What is the status, Madam Secretary?

CHIEF CLERK: There was objection.

TAYLOR: I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection has been withdrawn.

R. RIVERS: I would ask that the Chair name the chairman of that committee, Mr. Coghill has been doing a good job...

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the way the Chair feels.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, in adding Mr. Hilscher to that committee do you now have eight members?

PRESIDENT EGAN: I think we have nine members the way the Chair has it is: Mr. Ralph Rivers, Mr. Kilcher, Mr. Coghill as Chairman, Mr. Fischer, Mrs. Sweeney, Mr. McNees, Mr. Laws, Mr. William Knight, and Herb Hilscher.

HERMANN: That makes nine members.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That makes it nine members. Yes Ma'am. Mr.

Nolan.

NOLAN: I think that somewhere in the rules that it states that a member shall only serve on so many committees, and I wonder if all the members of the committees know that they would be tied to that one. I was thinking that Mr. Ralph Rivers --

R. RIVERS: Two more would be enough for me. Three is the limit.

H. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hellenthal has also been serving on that committee and I don't think you mentioned him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Fischer, it was probably the Chairman's fault for not mentioning that. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, you had nine members on that committee before you made the other appointment.

BARR: Did I not hear you name Mr. Hilscher twice?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair has for some reason neglected on his list to put Mr. Hellenthal's name although the Chair had appointed Mr. Hellenthal. Mr. Hellenthal has been serving all day on that committee. If there isn't any objection to having that committee as a ten-member committee Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Might I withdraw from the Committee on Permanent Help then so that Mr. Hellenthal, whose name was omitted, may be put on there, because I am more interested in the matter of the legal phases of the committee work.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers is on the Rules Committee which is continually having a lot of work to do and he asks that his name be withdrawn from the Committee on Administration. If there is no objection it is so ordered and, with the addition of Mr. Herb Hilscher's name to the Committee it will leave the Committee with nine members. Is there objection? Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: The special Committee on Transportation is reporting. The bus company is very glad to furnish busses to leave the Nordale Hotel at 8 o'clock tonight, and the arrangements can be made as to the coming back as the group wishes. Also, they would like to know a little bit in advance before we adjourn so they can get the bus on the way out here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention thanks the Committee for your report. It might be well right now to have the messenger phone the bus company and tell them the bus can leave town at this time. That would give a half hour before we're ready to go back if there's no objection from the Convention delegates. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Just a point of order. I don't think Mr. President, you ever acted on the motion to abolish that Committee. Did the .Chair ever rule on it? Do you have to rule on it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was unanimous consent. The Chair thinks the unanimous consent request was accepted. The Chair will state that the unanimous consent request was adopted by the Convention and the Committee was abolished.

BUCKALEW: I just didn't want the Chair to have to appoint a committee to find out what committees weren't abolished that should have been abolished.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, the Chair will state that the unanimous consent request was adopted by the Convention and the Committee was abolished. Is there anything further to come before the Convention?

TAYLOR: Has the messenger phoned in?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The messenger went to call the bus company. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, subject to the announcement of any meeting, I move that the Convention stand adjourned until 9:30 Saturday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves that the Convention stand adjourned until 9:30 Saturday morning. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I will second that motion that is on the floor but I would like to ask Mr. Stewart what time he would be available for our Committee to meet tomorrow?

SECRETARY: At your pleasure; anytime you desire, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there anything further to come before the Convention. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I think we should arrange as to whether or not a bus will be available Saturday morning and if so where and how.

PRESIDENT EGAN: At 9:00 o'clock. Now there is no bus schedule at 9 o'clock, regular bus schedule. It is 8:30 and 9:30 on the regular schedule. As of now, unless there was a special bus called for at 9 o'clock -- Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: The bus picked us up this morning at 9 o'clock at the Nordale and that fits in with our policy so we should arrange to have a bus Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Stewart said that he would take care of that chore. The question before the Convention is adjournment until 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.

COGHILL: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked. Is there objection?
Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I would like to announce the committee meeting of the Administration Committee at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Nordale Hotel, in the lobby.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other committee announcements? If not, is there objection to adjournment? Hearing no objection the Convention stands adjourned until 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

(The Convention adjourned at 5:15 p.m.)

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 12, 1955

FIFTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (9:30 a.m.) The Secretary will call the roll. (Secretary Stewart called the roll.)

SECRETARY: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. Will Reverend Londborg please come forward and give the daily invocation.

(Mr. Londborg goes forward and Convention stands.)

LONDBORG: Let us pray. Our gracious Heavenly Father, again we come before you as citizens of this great country, realizing the important task that is laid before us, and again we seek Thy wisdom and Thy guidance. We pray that our deliberations may truly be as you would have them to be, that this land may go on in the freedom that we have enjoyed in the past. Bless us throughout this day with Thy wisdom in all deliberations. We pray in Thy Name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will proceed with the reading of any communications that might be before us.

SECRETARY: You have a communication from the Farthest North Fairbanks Lodge No. 1551, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. (The Secretary read the communication from E. P. McCarron extending the privileges of the club rooms to the delegates during their stay in Fairbanks.)

JOHNSON: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I move and ask unanimous consent that the minutes of the previous plenary session be considered read and approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson asks unanimous consent that the minutes of the previous plenary session be considered read and approved. Is there objection? If there is no objection it is so ordered. Now we are ready for the presentation of committee reports. Does the Rules Committee have a report to make to the Convention?

RILEY: Mr. President, the Rules Committee met all day yesterday and will have a formal report to submit once it is in shape for reading by all the delegates. That may not be till Monday. While I am on my feet I would like to announce to the Rules Committee however that we will meet again this morning at the First recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, does your Committee have a report to make to the Convention?

COGHILL: Mr. President, your Committee on Administration met yesterday, and the report is in the making. As soon as it has been passed by the Committee at our first recess we will submit it to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to report to the Convention that the advisory Committee on Committees worked hard for a good number of hours into the night. They completed their work, but the Chairman has not quite completed his work on that important assignment, and the Chair will say that it will not be too long before the report will be in the hands of the Secretary for proper mimeographing for each delegate. It will, however, take a recess, and the Chair stands ready now for any other business that is proper to come before the Convention. Mr. Secretary, you might read that communication that you have in your hands.

SECRETARY: There are two announcements -- the tea given by the wife of the President of the University this afternoon for wives of delegates for which there will be transportation. Cabs will leave at 2:30 from the Nordale Hotel, at 3 o'clock from the Northward Building, at 3:30 from the Polaris Building. The Hospitality Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which has planned numbers of social engagements in these succeeding days, wishes very much to have a complete list of the wives or other family members of each delegate who may be here in addition to delegates, and would appreciate it if you could perhaps give the name of your wife or husband, if he or she is here or coming soon, so that the record may be complete on that. They do have some further apartment space available, that is knowledge of it, at the Hospitality Committee, if anyone is still looking for apartment space.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Each member could during the recess inform the Chief Clerk as to whether or not his wife is here with him. Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, the advisory Committee on Committees has a recommended amendment to the rules that might be well to pass on at this time so that the President can be sure of this feature in making his decision on committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, the Chair feels that it would be proper at this time to bring that before the Convention for the reason that the Rules Committee does not yet have its report mimeographed, and if it were adopted by the Convention the suggestion could go right along with the suggestion on the report of the Rules Committee.

already passed I believe by the Convention. It is presented with the approval of your President and with the recommendation of the Committee on Committees that it passed. The explanation of the motion that we wish to make, first of all, is that the membership of the Committee on Resources be increased from 7 to 9. I might explain that the reason for it is partly that the greatest interest in it by the delegates was shown in that Committee. Also by so doing it creates a total of 108 permanent positions to be filled by 54 delegates, which works out very nicely mathematically. I therefore so move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked that the suggestion of the advisory Committee on Committees be adopted by the Convention to increase the membership of the Committee on Resources from 7 to 9. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Reverend Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, I believe all of us want to show our appreciation to Dr. and Mrs. Patty for the wonderful reception that was shown in our behalf the other evening, and I would ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter of thanks to these wonderful people for the hospitality shown to us. That would be my suggestion, sir.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Reverend Armstrong asks unanimous consent that a vote of thanks be sent to Dr. and Mrs. Patty for the wonderful reception for the delegates the other evening. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege and I would like this not to be on the record.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair wonders if, is in doubt as to whether we can go off the record as far as you insist it be off the record. If there is no objection, the Chair will declare a two-minute recess. Will that be objectionable to you Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: No that is quite all right.

(The Convention recessed for a few minutes.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. If there is no objection Mr. Hilscher may proceed under a question of personal privilege. Mr. Hilscher.

(At this time Delegate Hilscher spoke under a question of personal privilege.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair at this time would like to Introduce to the delegates of the Constitutional Convention their first Vice President, Mr. Frank Peratrovich of Klawock. (applause) Is there further business? Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I would like to rise to a point of order. I would like to have the Convention send a letter of sympathy to my brother and mother because this morning I just got an emergency telephone call that again vandalism has struck at Nenana, and our store has been robbed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would move and ask unanimous consent that our Secretary be instructed to write a letter of thanks and appreciation to the Fairbanks Lodge of Elks for extending its hospitality to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You've heard Mr. Sundborg's request. If there is no objection it is so ordered.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, your Committee on Tape Recording will have a detailed report for you a little later on in the day after we get the figures from the other radio stations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mr. Hilscher. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time?

DOOGAN: Mr. Chairman, I would ask unanimous consent that the roll call record be changed to show that Mr. McLaughlin and myself are present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the roll call be changed to show that Mr. Doogan and Mr. McLaughlin are present. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. If there is no further business to come before the Convention at this time the Chair will entertain a motion for a recess.

TAYLOR: I move that we recess until a call of the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess subject to the call of the Chair. Is there objection? If there is no objection it is so ordered. The Convention is at recess.

(The Convention recessed at 9:55 a.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. (10:30 a.m.) The Chair feels that inasmuch as it is going to be some time before the Committees are through meeting and the reports are in, that it would probably be wise to recess until a said time, say 2 o'clock this afternoon or some such time that would be acceptable to the Convention. That subject is open

For discussion. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Convention stand at recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked.

TAYLOR: I would like to amend that to 9:30 on Monday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked that the Convention stand at recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Did you object, Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I moved for an amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is no motion on the floor, Mr. Taylor. It isn't seconded.

JOHNSON: I so move.

COOPER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded then that the Convention stand at recess until 2 o'clock, and Mr. Taylor moves to amend the motion so that the Convention will be adjourned until 9:30 Monday morning. Is there a second to the proposed amendment?

JOHNSON: A point of order -- is a motion to recess subject to amendment -- that would change it to a motion to adjourn?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken, Mr. Johnson. The question before us is "Shall the Convention recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon?" All those in favor -- Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I would like to announce that your Committee on Convention Administration will meet immediately after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill announces that the Committee on Administration will meet immediately upon recess. Are there other committee announcements? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, the Rules Committee will resume its session immediately during recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley announces that the Rules Committee will resume its session immediately upon recess. The question is, "Shall the Convention recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon?" All in favor say "aye". All opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it. The Convention is in recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (2:15 p.m.) Mr. Hellenthal, did you have a motion you would like to place on the floor, or a request?

HELLENTAL: Mr. Chairman, I request that unanimous consent be granted so that my name can be taken from the Committee on Administration and the name of Senator Jim Nolan substituted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent that his name be withdrawn from the Committee on Administration. Is there objection?

COGHILL: I object, Mr. President until I find out what Mr. Hellenthal's motive is. He is a good man on that Committee and I hate to lose him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the reason is that in the makeup of the committees, as they will be presented to you, Mr. Hellenthal will be on other committees, and Mr. Nolan has consented to be on the Committee of Administration.

COGHILL: I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. At this time the Chairman will hand the Clerk the list of committees and if the messenger can distribute a copy of this list at the present time it will be appreciated. First named on the committee is the chairman of the particular committee. Mrs. Wien?

WIEN: While the papers are being distributed, I would like to state that Mr. Corcoran, who was Field Supervisor for the PAS, has worked closely with the Statehood Committee since July 9, and was taken ill and is in the hospital. His wife from the States came to join him. He will be here for several days but will be unable to work further for the Convention or the Public Administration Service. I would like at this time to move that the President instruct the Secretary to write a letter to Mr. Corcoran expressing our regrets, our sympathy and our wishes for his speedy and complete recovery. I move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Wien asks unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to send a message to Mr. Corcoran expressing the Convention's regret at his not being here and our wishes for his speedy recovery. Is there objection? Hearing no objection -- Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, may we add "and our appreciation for the services Mr. Corcoran has rendered"?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no object the words "and appreciation for the services that Mr. Corcoran has rendered" will be added to the request of Mrs. Wien. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. It might be well to announce that the Committee on Rules and the Committee on Administration do not appear on this list for the reason that they as permanent committees were appointed earlier. However, later those committees will be added to appear with these on another sheet. The Chair wishes to state that your advisory Committee on Committees worked many hours in advising the President as to the makeup of committees. The President then took the advice under consideration. Some changes were made and the President feels that this is the best that he could come up with. He realizes that each and every member of this Constitutional Convention is well qualified on any committee or as chairman of the committees. It was a terrific job. At this time the Chair will announce that he is appointing the committees, as listed on the desk of each and every delegate, as the permanent committees and their chairmen, of the Convention. The Chair would like to request that all committee chairmen meet with the President immediately following recess time this afternoon. Is there a report of any other committee? Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Your Committee on Convention Administration respectfully submits the following report: For purposes of planning the balanced and co-ordinated use of the Convention appropriations so as to carry out the intent of Chapter 46, SLA 1955, your committee has prepared a tentative allocation of the funds available to the Convention. This allocation is predicated on the possibility of the Convention's lasting the full period of 75 days and therefore indicates the maximum liabilities which might be incurred. The budget is not intended to restrict the later adjustment of particular items, should necessities demand changes, and does not by this allocation authorize any expenditure of funds, without the approval of the Convention. The tentative allocation is as follows:

GRAND TOTAL:

Estimated Convention Costs: $262,000.

EXPLANATION OF ALLOCATIONS

APPROPRIATIONS FOR CONVENTION: The appropriation of $300,000 was initially diminished approximately $38,000 by the expenses of the election of Delegates, and there is now available to the Convention $262,000.

ESTIMATED CONVENTION COSTS:

A. DELEGATES: The costs indicated in this item are fixed by the terms of Chapter 46, SLA 1955. 79 days are shown to include four extra days for travel to and from the Convention.

B. SECRETARIAT:

1. This item is recommended as the table of organization of permanently assigned staff personnel with salary figures as shown. The salary scale is based on the schedule used by the 1955 Alaska Legislature for similar positions, plus a 15% increase. This increased scale is recommended because of the temporary and specialized nature of the work, and the increase is commensurate with that allowed to teachers in the Second and Fourth Divisions as compared to teachers in the First Division. The Committee recommends that the employment and discharge of staff employees be placed in the discretion of the Secretary. It is contemplated that some of the positions indicated may not be filled until the work load increases, and recommendations for additional part-time personnel may be later made. The salaries indicated would be paid for each calendar day during the full session of the Convention except for any recess called pursuant to Section 1 of Chapter 46, SLA 1955. No overtime salaries will be paid, but the personnel will be engaged with the understanding that overtime work necessary is compensated for by the regular salary.

2. Salary of the Secretary: The Committee recommends that the salary of the Secretary, as stated in the estimate of costs, which is the same amount received in his capacity as Executive Officer of the Alaska Statehood Committee be continued together with the regular Territorial per diem of $12.00; and it further recommends that this salary be paid by reimbursing the Statehood Committee for such salary and per diem for the period commencing November 8, 1955, to the time of final adjournment of the Convention.

3. The item for other staff expenses is intended to cover any contingent expenses that may arise and be authorized for payment by the Committee on Administration.

4. The item tentatively allocated for technical and consulting services is shown in the same amount as was budgeted in the report of the Statehood and Federal Relations Committees of the 1955 Legislature to the full Legislature in recommending the appropriation of $300,000. When technical and consulting services may be requested by the Convention, this amount will be available.

5. The item tentatively allocated for equipment is to cover the obtaining of typewriters, mimeograph machines and such other equipment and furniture as may be necessary.

6. The item tentatively allocated for supplies and postage is to cover the purchase of stationery supplies of all kinds, including letterhead stationery for the Convention for the use of Delegates bearing the names of all Delegates on a margin, postage for official mail of the Convention, and other necessary supplies.

7. The recording item is allocated for the possibility of the making of a tape recording of the plenary sessions.

8. The item for postage is allocated as an allowance of $25.00 for each Delegate.

C. OTHER CONVENTION COSTS:

1. The item for printing of the Constitution is intended to provide for the printing of copies of the Constitution as finally adopted.

2. The item for miscellaneous expenses is the otherwise unallocated balance of available convention funds.

OTHER MATTERS

It was further determined to recommend as follows:

1. Weekly pay: That all employees and Delegates be paid weekly.

2. Committee Rooms: That the recommendations of the Secretary as to committee room locations be accepted and the Secretary asked to report said room locations to committee chairmen.

3. Lockers for Delegates: That lockers be provided for each Delegate without cost to the body except for drayage.

4. Bus Transportation: That the Secretary make recommendations to the committee as to daily bus transportation for Delegates and for administrative and Technical staff, at the expense of the Delegates and staff.

5. Privacy of Convention Floor: That the floor of the Convention Hall be appropriately designated by ropes across posts.

6. Expenditure of Funds: That the Secretary be authorized to incur obligations for purposes budgeted for the period November 8, 1955, to date of final adjournment, provided that approval of the Committee on Administration is first obtained as to any one item exceeding one hundred dollars in cost.

7. Reports and Records: That the Secretary maintain such records and render such reports on financial matters as may be requested by the Committee.

8. Flags: That suitable Alaskan and American flags be procured for the Convention Hall.

9. Desks and Chairs: That the matter of desks and larger chairs for Delegates be explored.

10. Daily Prayers: That henceforth prayers imploring the assistance of Almighty God and His blessings on our deliberations be held in the Assembly every morning before undertaking the daily business of the body, and that one or more of the clergy of the area be invited to officiate in that service and that the Secretary be requested to make the necessary arrangements.

Mr. President, this is our report, and I move and ask unanimous consent for its adoption.

BUCKALEW: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I so move.

JOHNSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the report of the Committee on Administration be adopted. The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, if we would vote now to adopt this report, would it mean that we are in effect establishing this budget and authorizing expenditures?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If you accept the report, I believe would be the better word.

COGHILL: No, it does not. It is so stated in that, and in preparing the report we carefully stated in our report that this is a tentative allocation of funds so as to have the Committee give an overall report. The only part of the report that will be held is the Secretariat or personal services and administrative staff, that will be the only part held to.

SUNDBORG: That would be carried into effect if we now vote "yes" on the motion to accept the report?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg I don't mean to interrupt you but is the motion to accept or to adopt the report?

COGHILL: To adopt.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That's the motion then to adopt the report. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: If the motion before us is to adopt this report I am against it. I don't mind accepting the report as being an expression of the view of that Committee, but to go ahead here and decide how we are going to spend $262,000, when the delegates don't even have any knowledge of what that is except what they've heard read very rapidly here by the Chairman, I just don't think we should conduct the business of Alaska in that way. I certainly want to see before me in written form the breakdown of how this Committee would propose to spend the money available to us before I vote yes on it.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Sundborg is incorrect in his statement. The report expressly states that approval or acceptance of the report will not constitute authorization for the expenditures involved and that the Committee will have to come back to the floor to get that approval. That is very clear in the report, and the Chairman could read that portion and I think it should be read very clearly. The only approval that the Committee asks is the approval of the salary scale of the employees. That the Committee felt should be approved now, not later, but as for every other item in that report we ask for no endorsement whatsoever. It is merely a tentative estimate. I don't know what clearer words could be used to indicate that it is not a mandate, not an authority for an expenditure but merely a possible expenditure if this body later directs that it be made.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that in one point in the report you are in direct violation with Territory and federal law, in that no overtime shall be paid. Your law clearly states any time over 40 hours and I notice we'll run up against that a little later on in the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, it appears to me as a matter of order that the authority to appoint the committee has stemmed from the body through the President. The President has directed the appointment of the Committee and consequently has requested them to make a report. The President may accept this report on behalf of this body without going through a formal motion. Action for adoption may come at a later date.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon, if the Chair may, I believe what the Chairman of the Administration Committee is worried about is that they want some type of authority to allow them to pay and hire the necessary help at this time. It might be in the best order of the Convention to stand at recess for two or three minutes. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, if it is the wish of the body I would withdraw my motion and replace it to just have Section B, the first of subsection 1 and 2 of Section B, adopted at this time which would give us our working group, our stenographer group, and then we will go ahead and have the report mimeographed in full for Monday and then go over it again then, if that is agreeable with the objections on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: Mr. President, I think the suggestion of Mr. Coghill covers this. Why not adopt those sections that are deemed necessary at the present time and accept the balance of it later. That will meet the objection.

RILEY: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for a five minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will be at recess for five minutes. Hearing no objection, the Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (3:10 p.m.). Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention receive the report, report No. 1

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, before you continue has your previous motion been withdrawn? Would you ask unanimous consent first that your previous motion be withdrawn, with the consent of your second?

COGHILL: I so ask consent that my previous motion be withdrawn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, with consent of the second, asks unanimous consent that the previous motion be withdrawn. You are now in order Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Committee report on Administration for the Convention, Report No. 1 be received by the Convention, and that sections B1 and B2 of the report be adopted insofar as they specify the positions stated therein and the daily rate of pay.

BUCKALEW: Objection.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, do you object?

BUCKALEW: I do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds Mr. Coghill's motion. The motion is now open for discussion. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, the first point I would like to bring to the body's attention is that I don't believe there is any necessity for an Assistant Chief Clerk, and I think if the need ever arises the body can then authorize the position. I don't think anyone would argue at this time we need an Assistant Chief Clerk and I think this body ought to retain the authority to itself as to whether the Assistant Chief Clerk will be hired. At $24.00 a day I don't think it's proper to leave that authority --

COGHILL: Point of order, Mr. President. In our Committee report it was spelled out that as far as the secretariat was concerned, the positions would be filled as necessary and not immediately.

BUCKALEW: My point is, Mr. President, that this body should retain the authority themselves. This body itself should decide when we are going to hire an Assistant Chief Clerk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, the Chair will hold that Mr. Coghill's point of order is well taken. That is the function of that Committee, the Committee on Administration as far as recommending to the body.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I don't think you get my point. My point is that if we accept the report the secretariat has that position authorized at this time and I move to strike it from the report and ask unanimous consent.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Object.

TAYLOR: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: There is already a motion before us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The point of order is well taken at this time. At this time the motion is out of order because there is another motion before us on the floor, and the question is, "Shall the report of Mr. Coghill be adopted, or portions of the report as he suggested? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may we have it read again, rather slowly, the portions of the report we would be adopting if this motion prevails.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, would you do that?

COGHILL: Section B pertains to the secretariat, with an estimated 80 days, we are going on the assumption that --

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Mr. Coghill, would you come up to the microphone please?

COGHILL: We are under the presumption that the Convention is going to run its full time in making these estimates.

(Mr. Coghill reread Sections 1 and 2 under B.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention? The motion is still before us as to whether or not to adopt those portions of the report that Mr. Coghill has brought before us. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, for the purpose of getting this before the Convention I will move that Sections B1 and B2 --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, it has already been moved and seconded that those portions be adopted. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I want to address myself on one other subject on this report and do it with extreme reluctance. It seems to me that I don't see why the permanent Secretary should get more than the presiding officer. I was led to believe earlier during the session that the permanent Secretary's salary was coming from the Statehood Committee. Now I see it is coming right out of the money that the Legislature appropriated

For this Convention. I will admit that the permanent Secretary is a capable young lawyer, but I see no reason for paying him $43.00 a day, and I object to it strenuously. I see no reason why the permanent Secretary should get more than the presiding officer. I don't think it is reasonable.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, this matter was given careful thought by the Committee. Mr. Stewart was engaged by the Statehood Committee, and his salary was fixed by them. He has worked at that salary as I understand it, for some considerable period of time, far longer than we have been in session, many months. I have no recollection whatsoever of anyone telling this body that Mr. Stewart's wages would be $35.00 at all, and I differ with Mr. Buckalew in that respect. I want to point out that Mr. Stewart is serving as a technical person. He is not a delegate. His job is as complex as that of a delegate's and much more so. I believe that the Statehood Committee made a wise move in fixing his salary in the manner that Mr. Coghill's Committee now seeks approval for. His work is much more difficult now than it has been in the past, and to now reduce his salary would seem to me to be pretty small. His work has increased. His salary should be held the way it was. If it was good and just three months ago it is far, he is far more deserving of it at this time and throughout the duration of our session, and I see no reason why my salary should serve as a ceiling for that of every person employed by the Convention. I think that distinction is without logic.

WHITE: A point of order, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, your point of order.

WHITE: Did I understand the ruling of the Chair to be that amendments to this motion in the nature of striking or revising certain items are out of order at this time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, Mr. White, that would be in order, but Mr. Buckalew moved, he didn't move to amend, he just moved, that it be stricken. He should have moved to amend the motion for a specific purpose. His motion was not stated properly.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I will state the motion. I move to delete that section which refers to the salary of the permanent Secretary. I would like to state one more time that I was informed and lead to believe that his salary was coming out of another fund than which we are now taking it out of.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew moves that that portion relating to the Secretary's salary be deleted from this consideration.

TAYLOR: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor. There is nothing before us at this time Mr. Taylor. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PPRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion.

SUNDBORG: I wondered if Mr. Buckalew's motion includes the portion dealing with the $12 per diem for the Secretary.

BUCKALEW: It pertains to the whole section.

SUNDBORG: The whole section? Then you are moving to strike it?

BUCKALEW: I am moving to strike it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to speak on the amendment here. I don't think there was anyone except Ken Johnson that worked any harder on the Ways and Means to try and save money for the Territory, and I feel the same way in this Convention. I feel that money can be saved by endeavoring to shorten the time of the Convention and at least get out of here with a well-written Constitution before Christmas, but knowing Tom Stewart, our Secretary, and knowing the way he does work and knowing the way he will work, I believe this amendment should be defeated, and he will earn every cent of his $43.66 a day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I think Mr. President, it would be false economy to quibble over some money for the Secretary when we have one with the capabilities of Mr. Stewart. Now Mr. Buckalew says he has been led to believe. Now has there been one word on the floor of this Convention that would lead Mr. Buckalew to say that the Statehood Committee was going to pay Mr. Stewart's salary? If he wants to listen to some idle gossip by somebody else as to whether or not Mr. Stewart is going to get paid by the Statehood Committee, he should verify these statements before he comes here and says he has been led to believe by somebody, and I will say, as a member of the Statehood Committee, he has not been led to believe by what any member of the Statehood Committee has said regarding that. Nothing has come up here. I think it is a case of wishful thinking on his part to cut the salary of Mr. Stewart.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew. Is there anyone else who desires to speak first? Mr. Barr has been attempting to get the floor,

Mr. Buckalew. Mr. Barr has the floor now. You can have the last say on the discussion Mr. Buckalew.

BARR: I see no reason for comparing Mr. Stewart's salary with that of the delegate. Mr. Stewart was handpicked for this job because of his abilities and his experience. There is actually no one in the Territory today, I believe, who has the same experience he has in these statehood matters. He has done a tremendous amount of research work on it. Here we may of course receive a little less money, but we were not handpicked the way he was. We are here because the people decided to vote for us. I would rather compare Mr. Stewart's salary with that of a truck driver. There are truck drivers operating out of Fairbanks who are receiving more than this proposed figure. Their only responsibility is to truck and a great deal is going to depend on Mr. Stewart's action here, the whole success of the Convention in fact and I believe he is entitled to, if not a truck driver's salary, at least very little less.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: Mr. President, I don't know, I have no idea of the total amount of Mr. Stewart's compensation but I question the propriety of paying him a per diem. The reason he was receiving a per diem from the Statehood Committee was that the Statehood Committee sent him from Juneau to perform a service up here and so he was entitled to per diem. We engaged his services when he was here on the grounds. It seems to me there is a question whether it is proper to pay him a per diem in addition to salary, anymore than we would any other of the staff who do not live in Fairbanks.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: We lost money the other day in talking about this taping of the question, about a thousand dollars in time, and we're getting in the same position now. We've lost more than the additional money we're paying him by this time right here. Let's bring this to the question and get it over with.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there anyone else who desires to speak before the question?

Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I feel as Mr. Marston does. I will move for the previous question.

TAYLOR: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN Mr. Rivers moves the previous question. The motion has been seconded. The effect of this motion is to stop Debate, and if this motion carries we will then vote on the original motion. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All those in favor of ordering the previous question will say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. Will the Chief Clerk please read the motion again, the one we are voting on.

CHIEF CLERK: That the Committee report on Administration, Report No. 1 be received by the Convention and that Section B1 and B2 be adopted so far as they specify the positions therein and the daily rate of pay.

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, it is the amendment by Mr. Buckalew we are voting on.

CHIEF CLERK: Move to delete that section pertaining to the permanent Secretary.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Was there a second to that motion? I didn't hear one.

BUCKALEW: George Sundborg.

PRESIDENT EGAN: All those in favor say "aye", all opposed "no". The "nays" have it and the amendment is lost. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move an amendment to strike the item one doorkeeper at $18.00 per day. We don't even have a door here. I don't see why we need a doorkeeper, and it seems to me this is just one of those sort of pension or honorarium things which has crept into usage for legislative sessions and there is no reason to perpetuate it in this Constitutional Convention because that person would not serve any useful function.

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves to strike the salary of the doorkeeper. He is in effect amending the motion that is not pending before us. It is an amendment. Mr. McCutcheon? Was that motion seconded?

BUCKALEW: I seconded it.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I move to lay the matter on the table concerning the receiving and adoption of this report until the report has been placed in the hands of all of the group here, because to work on a relatively technical matter such as this without everyone having the full benefit of the knowledge of the full contents of the report places us all at a disadvantage. I so move that it be laid on the table pending reproduction of this report and placing it in the hands of the committee.

COGHILL: I object.

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves that the original motion be laid on the table. It's been moved and seconded that the original motion be laid on the table. All those in favor of laying the original motion on the table pending receipt of these portions of the report say "aye". All opposed say "no". The nays have it. The motion to table is lost. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, is this open for debate on the amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The amendment that is by Mr. Sundborg relative to the doorkeeper? That is correct, Mr. Coghill, it is open for debate.

COGHILL: Mr. President, in the Committee on Administration we have been working two days on this report and we have tried to round out a complete and desirable secretariat and a personnel services staff, and in doing so we feel that a sergeant-at-arms is not enough to keep order on the floor of the Convention when things start rolling. Now most of us have been down to Juneau at some time or other during the legislative session. You know how stormy the lobbyists, visitors and the confusion can get. With having two people at our service to serve us at our desks or to keep people quiet or to have somebody brought in at the call of the Convention or to adhere to the rules and regulations set down for the Convention by the Rules Committee. We must have at least two people. We in the Committee are not desirous of spending $262,000. That is not our intent. The economy of this Convention is going to come on how long it is going to take us and not on our professional or secretarial services. We have weighed this matter carefully. We have submitted it to you earnestly. We would like to have you consider it as such.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, this is the last time I am going to get up today. I've had the cure. But I see no necessity for, I too served in the Legislature and supposedly in the noisiest and most raucous house they ever had, and I can assure you that a sergeant-at-arms can handle the door and the business on the floor. I'll use the same words -- I think it is ridiculous, I think if you're looking after the taxpayer's money, we hope we can get through with this Convention in 30 days and when it is $2,000 I think it is a waste of money and Should be cut off. I see no necessity for blowing it.

COGHILL: Point of information, Mr. President. It is not $2,000 at all. That estimate is taken on the full 80 days or the full time of the Convention -- 75 days plus mopping-up procedures after the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any further discussion on the motion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the salary of the doorkeeper be stricken from this report?" All in favor of the motion signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The "noes" have it and the motion is lost. Is there further discussion on the main motion?

DAVIS: I move the main motion.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, point of information.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would like to know if the motion, not the previous question, but the main motion to which we seem to be proceeding to a vote, authorizes any particular person to hire these people, or is it only authorizing a salary scale and that these positions be established.

COGHILL: I can answer that. By not accepting and adopting our full report these positions will be on hand but we have no authority to hire anybody for them. In the report it was brought out by the Committee and it is desirous of the Committee to have the Secretary hire--as to keep pressures from any one particular part of this body, but that would be left out now, not accepted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis moved the obvious question, seconded by Mr. McCutcheon. The question is, shall the previous question be ordered?" All those in favor say "aye", all opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. We are about to vote on the original motion, and the question is, shall those portions of the report as presented by Mr. Coghill be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of adopting the report say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it, and those portions of the report are adopted. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I believe at the beginning of the session today we inadvertently overlooked acting upon the minutes of the previous plenary session. Therefore, I ask Unanimous consent that the minutes of the previous plenary sessions be considered read and approved and that this notation be inserted in its proper place in today's record.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Johnson's unanimous consent request. If there is no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I am fresh at this sort of thing. I just wonder though if that means that we will go for many days without knowing what kind of minutes are being kept. We all seem to agree that a record of this Convention is of great, great importance and it will be for many years to come so I merely suggest that some day soon we take a look at the minutes to see if we are getting good minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your suggestion is probably well taken, Mr. Hellenthal. It probably will not be too great a time now. Before we'll have that, we will have to have the staff first. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Committees be discharged.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the advisory Committee on Committees be discharged. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I move that the Secretary be directed to procure a gavel for the use of the Constitutional Convention, a nice gavel, and that at the conclusion of the Convention that it be presented to the University Museum. I might say in passing that the one you have been using is mine.

JOHNSON: I ask unanimous consent to the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked that Mrs. Hermann's request be adopted. Is there objection?

BUCKALEW: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Buckalew.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded by Mr. Johnson that the Convention purchase a gavel for the use of the President during this Convention and at the conclusion of the Convention the gavel be given to the Museum of the University of Alaska.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I would like to know how much this Body is going to spend for this gavel. You can spend as much as $500 for a gavel. I think we are going to run out of money, that is all. I will move that they don't spend over $2000 for that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The President would like at this time to appoint a committee to purchase that gavel. I would like to appoint Mr. Buckalew Chairman and Mr. Johnson as the Committee to purchase the gavel that was ordered by the Convention. Did the motion say that the Secretary do it? The President is out of order and will withdraw the Committee. The Secretary may do the purchasing.

CHIEF CLERK: We haven't adopted the motion yet.

SUNDBORG: We have not adopted the motion yet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew objected to that? The question is "Shall the request of Mrs. Hermann be adopted?" Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like, with Delegate Hermann's consent, to move an amendment that rather than the Secretary purchasing this that the Chair appoint a committee to purchase the gavel.

HERMANN: I will accept the amendment.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I ask for unanimous consent for the adoption of that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers asks unanimous consent that the motion as amended be adopted. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, then Mr. Johnson and Mr. Buckalew may purchase the gavel. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention stand at ease for one minute.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at ease for one minute. Hearing no objection, the Convention will be at ease.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be authorized to fill the staff positions, authorized to the extent that they may be necessarily needed, subject to the approval of the Committee on Administration.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked by Mr. Coghill, that the Secretary be authorized to fill the staff positions as much as will be necessary to carry on the business of the Convention. Is that your intention, Mr. Coghill? The Chief Clerk will read the motion exactly as Mr. Coghill read it.

CHIEF CLERK: "That the Secretary be authorized to fill the staff positions, authorized to the extent that he may determine necessary,"subject to the approval of the Committee on Administration.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request. Is there objection? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I object only temporarily and for the purpose of determining whether that might be in conflict with a rule which the Rules Committee has drawn up on that subject. I wonder if we could ask Mr. Riley to straighten that out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley. Could you answer that question?

RILEY: I think not, Mr. President. I think it amplifies it a little but does not conflict at all. We expect to propose to the body Monday morning. I might add that the Rules Committee has virtually concluded its deliberations but we have nothing yet to put before the full Convention.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the one thing that occurs to me is that in the proposed rule which will be presented to you, there is a provision that the hiring of the staff, while it may be done by the Secretary, will always be under the direction of the President, which would not have been covered by Mr. Coghill's motion.

RILEY: Mr. President, to touch on that very briefly - the proposed rule will state that under the direction of the President the Secretary shall assign and supervise the work of all administrative, clerical, and custodial employees. Now there is no coverage on employment.

COGHILL: In the rules that we adopted for committee, that the definition for your Committee on Administration includes finances, personnel -- it is page two of the mimeographed form, Section 2.

(Mr. Coghill read from this.)

SUNBORG: Mr. President, that is correct that is the province where you are to bring forth recommendations to the Convention but that does not necessarily mean that the Committee will do the hiring unless the Convention so directs. What you would not direct is that the Secretary would do the hiring subject to the approval of your Committee. For the record I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any further objection? If not, the motion by Mr. Coghill has been adopted, and the Secretary is instructed to hire the particular personnel that are needed. Is there any further business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, your Committee on Tape Recording, would you like to have that report?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, that is the special Committee on Tape Recording.

HILSCHER: Your Committee, consisted of Mr. Barry White, Mr. Nerland, Mr. Harris, George Cooper, and Hilscher. We met with KFAR. We also talked with KFRB. We also talked with Colonel Sawtelle of the Air Force at Ladd Field to see what we could get from them or what assistance we could get. KFRB in a letter advises in essence that this station feels it should not submit a bid for recording the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention due to the fact that a set-up is here already, too short notice, purchase of equipment from the states, time of arrival, set-up, etc., would practically preclude them from being of any direct value to us. The Air Force advised us that such equipment as they have at the present time is somewhat old, is inadequate, they do not have enough and probably could not put it together in a theater, and furthermore, if a civilian concern or a civilian operator who could do this, very obviously, the Air Force would be stopped from offering this service to us, because it would then be in competition with civilian service. KFAR has proposed two bases which we requested specifically at your instruction: one, if we were to buy the equipment and then attempt to sell it later on, what such equipment would cost and the cost of handling the deal. The other would be to carry on as they are at the present time with new equipment which they would probably string across here and carry through. KFAR has offered us what your Committee believes to be a satisfactory proposition as follows: KFAR would assume the cost of the equipment and would retain ownership of the equipment for a guarantee of 150 recording hours, at $31.20 per hour, in addition to $6.00 rental charge per hour, or $37.20 per hour. Total cost to the Convention for the minimum period, 150 hours of plenary session would be $5,580. That is the base cost. In Mr. Coghill's report there has been an allowable sum of $8,000 for tape recording. Duplicates would cost at the rate of $18.00 per hour. Now there is no possible way for your Committee to come up and tell you that you are going to have to spend $6,000 or $4,000 or $8,000 to cover this Convention. It is just as impossible to tell you that as it is if you are going to the hospital for a serious operation how long you are going to be there and how much it will cost. We submit this as a base figure, $5,580, we have as good a proposition as we can possibly get. Mr. President, a bearing on this question of whether we tape it or whether we do not continue, I should like you to call on Mr. Peratrovich to give us his reaction to the first day's broadcasting and on making this information available to the public, as he heard it in Ketchikan.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Peratrovich, would you be kind enough to tell us your reaction.

PERATROVICH: The reception, as I told some of you delegates, was very well received. Fortunately, the reception was good, and in my area of the woods practically everyone in the little communities was commenting on the ceremonies here. It was well received. It was clear. The speeches were all taken in pretty well, and after arriving at Ketchikan I talked to at least five or six individuals there that have homes in Ketchikan, and their comment was in the same manner. And I attended the Chamber of Commerce gathering there, and I noticed the interest is being shown a little more than at the start which leads me to believe perhaps this broadcasting did some good --at least the public has taken an interest. I am sure that if you keep them informed in this matter by the time you present a constitution you will have wonderful cooperation. I know it was well received. I heard part of it, and I enjoyed it myself. I hope you folks will see fit to continue it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, at the risk of exposing my lack of knowledge, I would just like to ask anyone who is capable of answering the question, just how long it would take to reproduce duplicates -- say that we run the 150 hours. I would judge they could be run at the rate in excess of what they will be recorded, and I just wonder if there is any information on that.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, point of order. I don't think we have anything before us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. Mr. Smith stated he was rising to a point of information. The Chair feels that under the circumstances that might be a good question for Mr. Hilscher to answer.

HILSCHER: Mr. Harris is an electronic engineer and he is on our Committee and could possibly answer the question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, we were discussing this same thing yesterday. You can only make duplicates at the same rate of speed as the originals are made. In other words, when the Convention winds up we have 150 hours of tape then it will take 150 hours to duplicate that tape.

HELLENTHAL: That is $2700.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, here is one point I cannot understand here. The Committee Chairman says that the duplicates would cost $18.00 per hour. The tapes, if I am correct, cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $4.00 an hour for recording plus the storage, I can't see that it would cost over $10.00 per hour and I wonder why its $18.00

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. Barr, on that situation, we feel that if these tapes are made they should be made the best that is possible and to do that we changed the original estimate of KFAR to record at 3 and 3/4 speed. We specifically asked that it be recorded at 7 1/2 due to the fidelity and the chance to use it later on broadcasting work. That means two rolls of tape for every hour's recording.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, we don't want to get into a technical argument on a highly technical subject. We would like to offer this thought. It will be necessary to tape, first of all, all of the plenary sessions, then we can cut out such trivia as we will have plenty of, and then make duplicates on the essential material which will be of value and interest to the public. I presume when we get through that we will have a far less quantity of hours than we have in the original. It is going to require considerable editing to get it down to that point. I should like to make a motion in order to get this on the floor, that the Convention go on record in favor of soundscribing the plenary sessions to the extent of 150 hours.

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention go on record as favoring the soundscribing of the plenary sessions to the extent of 150 hours. The motion has been oved and seconded and is open for discussion. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. President, I don't see how we can restrict the tape to 150 hours. Are we going to cut off at 150 hours?

HILSCHER: A guarantee of 150 hours.

KILCHER: I would like to have that incorporated in your wording.

HILSCHER: A guarantee of 150 hours.

TAYLOR: I would accept the change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher with the consent of his second, desires to have the motion changed to read that the Convention will "guarantee a 150 hours of recording." Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: If it is relevant I would like to ask a question of Mr. Coghill through the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If it is relevant to this question you may if Mr. Coghill desires to answer it.

SWEENEY: Would you ask Mr. Buckalew to speak a little louder please.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you speak a little louder please, Mr. Buckalew? Mr. Coghill if there is no objection you may answer the question through the Chair.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Coghill, did you make arrangements or set money aside for printing the journal for the proceedings of this body?

COGHILL: We did not specifically set aside money for printing the journal. We thought the journal could be mimeographed and therefore it would come under the supplies -- the postage, the $3500. That would be under Section 6, supplies and postage of which was not adopted. Does that answer your question?

BUCKALEW: Then may I have the floor, Mr. President? PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, you may have the floor Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: It seems to me that the most positive record of the proceedings of this body would be a printed journal. It seems to me we should make provisions for printing a journal before we start spending $5,000 for a tape recording which I understand is going to be censored by somebody I don't know.

V. RIVERS: I noticed on the Committee report which we received Mr. President, there is a miscellaneous item set up for some $23,500. I feel confident that the printing of the journal could be included under that.

KILCHER: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: In reply to Mr. Buckalew, I might state that there was no implication in Mr. Hilscher's motion that it would be edited later on. That remark was not connected with the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any further discussion. Mr. Poulsen.

POULSON: Is it possible that we vote on this question and it by roll call?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If you request a roll call Mr. Poulsen, the Chair will ask for a roll call vote. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Does the motion before us include the matter of duplicates or is it only the original recording?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion before us would only include the original recording. Is there further discussion on the motion?

V. RIVERS: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the plenary sessions of the Convention be transcribed with a guarantee of 150 hours being given to the people transcribing the sessions of the Convention?" The Chief Clerk can call the roll.

V. RIVERS: Point of order Mr. Chairman. I think the word "transcribed" is improperly used. I think "soundscribing" is correct.

PRESIDENT EGAN: "Soundscribing" is correct, Mr. Rivers. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I wonder if this has been developed. After this complete soundscribing record is made, all we have is the tape. Is that what I understand? If it is to be transcribed into written words that would be an additional duty of somebody and an additional expense we have not yet authorized.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I believe that the making duplicates of those records can certainly be left to the future. I think it would be within the province of the Legislature if they saw fit to have as many duplicates of that tape made as they needed. We know that there should be at least three or four made. They will go on into the permanent archives of the Territory, it should go to the Congress, the Library of Congress, and then have the original put away in some safe place where it would not be used again unless it be necessary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, this particular motion only takes care of the original soundscribing.

TAYLOR: The only reason I spoke on that matter, Mr. President, was the fact that they did inject into it about these duplicates they were going to have but I think that should be left for the Legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Longborg

LONDBORG: As I understand it, one of the original reasons presented for soundscribing is to have a record through which the stenotypist can check for accuracy. As we have it KFAR will be through at the end of the recording. We will have no equipment for her to play it back on and will be of no value to her unless some provision is made for an engineer, tape recording equipment, etc., to have at her disposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, I might mention this, in speaking to KFAR yesterday the recording machines will be set up here and they will tape the plenary sessions and naturally, if they are taped here, if the Secretary or anyone else would like to request that portion of the tape, the engineer will be here, the recording machine will be here and they could do so at that time. Those records could be checked. I might also point out the fact that personally I feel we are quibbling over something that actually is invaluable. I wonder how many of us here, how much we would pay, if it was possible to go back and listen to the original Constitution of the United States played back to us now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I am going to be through after this, but it seems to me this body is premature. From the report of Mr. Coghill I can't see there has been any definite money set aside for a printed journal. A printed journal is the most important portion of any proceedings. That is like a book that you could use in court, the legislature and there has been no adequate provision made for a printed journal. It seems to me that would be the most important thing to take care of first. This business of buying this tape and putting it in a waterproof can and putting a brass knob on it or something and burying it in Juneau is not going to be of any earthly use to anybody. The printed journal is what this body should have. There has been no adequate provision made for it and it is premature at this time I think to order tapes and cans to put it in.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: The thought has just occurred to me that in the event this particular constitution is turned down by the people there would not be much need for a printed journal. In the event that our constitution is accepted by the people, certainly from the records we will have from the daily journal as it goes along, the Territorial Legislature will be able to appropriate the session monies to have it printed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, there are two points I would like to bring up. First of all, one of the arguments that has been used for taping is that it could be used for informing the people of Alaska of what is going on on the Convention floor through use of duplicate tapes. That point is not substantiated at all in the authorization of the expenditure of $5,580. In other words, unless we make an additional appropriation, the people of Alaska will have no use of this tape. Another argument that has been raised has been that it may help the stenotypist in keeping a good record. Now, it might very well be much cheaper and a more efficient way to get another stenotypist and have two good-looking young ladies in front of us transcribing all of this, because in many ways a written record is so much more valuable, even a word-for-word record, than would be a sound recording. A sound recording would be very difficult to use for reference purposes, for the simple reason that there would be no easy way of finding particular portions that you may be interested in if you could. In a written record where you can index and cross index, certain pages skip over it as rapidly as you desire.

HELLENTHAL: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I move that the motion on the floor be tabled and made the first order of business Monday morning and ask unanimous consent.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second to your motion?

BUCKALEW: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and Mr. Buckalew seconded a motion that the question before us be tabled until Monday morning.

HERMANN: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is undebatable, Mrs. Hermann.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the question be tabled?" All those in favor of tabling this question of soundscribing the plenary session say aye, all opposed say "no". The "noes" have it and the motion has failed. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I now move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy moves the previous question.

JOHNSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion. All those in favor of ordering the previous question say "aye", all opposed "no". The ayes have it and the previous question is ordered, and the question is, "Shall the Convention order the soundscribing of the plenary sessions with a guarantee of 150 hours?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 46 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Laws, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, Vanderleest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 9 - Buckalew, Coghill, V. Fischer, Gray, Knight, Londborg, Poulsen, Reader, Sundborg.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has carried and the Convention has gone on record as ordering the soundscribing of the plenary sessions with a guarantee of 150 hours. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be empowered to proceed according to the recommendations made by the Committee and make the necessary arrangements for the soundscribing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the Secretary be empowered to proceed with the necessary arrangements. Is there objection? Hearing none, the Secretary is so ordered. Mr. Barr?

BARR: I move that the Secretary also be empowered to authorize transcriptions of each day's soundscribing to be made as soon as practical after the end of that day's transcribing so that it may become available to radio stations.

KILCHER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr moves and Mr. Kilcher seconds the motion asking that the -- KILSCHER: As a point of information, Mr. President, on Mr. Barr's motion, I just wonder whether or not Mr. Barr intends that the entire day's proceedings such as we have been running along now, I just wonder how successful we would be in presenting our best foot forward if a lot of this trivia that's been going on now is made directly available to the radio stations. It is our thought at the present time that the more important speeches and discussions would be made available to the radio stations in a program form when the time arrives.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, on that point either you are going to authorize full transcription or you are not going to authorize anything. Who is going to be the censor on what is important and what is not. The only censor, if you desire it, should be the public. If we look bad then we deserve it and if we look good we should be flattered and amazed. Frankly, I don't think you can separate the good from the bad. We have no censors. If we are going to provide it to the public, we should provide the public with the whole proceedings. Possibly it might help to cut down some of the trivia that has been suggested.

BARR: I would like to answer Mr. Hilscher and also check to see if I stated my motion properly. I meant to say that each day a transcription could be made of what had been soundscribed. In other words, the transcription has to be the same as what has been soundscribed, so the question here is to decide what we should put on here in the first place. It has no bearing on my motion.

KILCHER: As far as I understand this technically, is that original soundscribing should be available to the Chief Clerk for correction of minutes and such matter and for that purpose the copy of transcription should be used. The original should be used as little as possible. In order to transcribe and even in order to censor later on, which I hope will not happen, we would have to have a complete transcription and that transcription itself should be a copy. Correct me if I'm wrong.

HINCKEL: I would like some information also. Would it be possible to make two soundscribings simultaneously cheaper than to make a copy. Anybody know that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, if I may answer Mr. Hinckel's question. In order that these tapes be taken so that not a word of the Convention is missed, (whether that is good or bad we will not debate) but it is necessary to have two recording machines. KFAR is having to purchase those machines and in return is leasing them to the Convention. In order to take two tapes and I don't think that would be economically feasible for KFAR or the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That should answer the question. Mr. Barr, the original intent of your motion then was to have the Secretary each night or the Chief Clerk transcribe everything off of the soundscribed tape?

BARR: No that is not it. I said that as soon as practical after these proceedings had been soundscribed, a transcription should be made, a duplicate, so that we would not have to use the original tape. The duplicate which was transcribed, could be used for both checking on our proceedings here ourselves, or for the radio station, or for any purpose whatsoever. We would not have to touch the original after the transcription was once made. It would be safe.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Who would make that duplicate, Mr. Barr?

BARR: According to the Committee here there would be a man hired to do that. They figure on buying the tape and hiring a man at so much per hour.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, might I interject a thought. I am convinced in my own mind that with a modern, true and accurate tape representing every word that is uttered at the Convention that the necessity for a journal will be totally eliminated. Journals came from the past when tape recording machines were not invented, and so I feel that we should not think that superimposed on the cost involved here would be the additional cost of an archaic and totally useless printed journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I think we are talking about two different things, and I was interested in Mr. Buckalew's remarks about a printed record. A daily working journal would show official action taken and roll calls performed as we do in the Senate and House of Representatives. The Chief Clerk is taking that kind of minutes of these meetings now for a purpose of a daily working journal. Mr. Coghill had in mind that that kind of a daily working journal could be mimeographed and we would each get a copy every day. The Clerk would keep a record of those mimeographed journals. We could refer back during the course of the session as to what happened on the eighth day or the twentieth day. Now then we would have a tape of a verbatim record of the proceedings. We would also have the record of the stenotypist here as a verbatim record. Well, we are certainly not going to type up a verbatim record of all these conversations for journal purposes. We are going to rely upon

A daily working journal showing official action taken. I don't think that that daily working journal which can be rather condensed, just like the minutes of any meeting would be archaic or of no use. I think we need that kind of a record for the continuity of our proceedings.

HELLENTHAL: My objections were to the printed archaic record. The printing I think is totally uncalled for.

R. RIVERS: Well, we don't have to decide that now. So I say we should have an understanding that as soon as clerical assistance is made available, the Clerk will provide us with a daily working journal in mimeographed form along the lines I have suggested. Somewhere along the line we are going to have to make a decision as to whether to transcribe the word-by-word proceedings of the plenary sessions. The young lady who operates the stenotype I am sure could read her notes back a month from now or six months from now. At that time, either this body or the Legislature might say "get busy on those stenotype notes and that tape transcription and let us go ahead now and print a printed record of the entire proceedings." So with that distinction Mr. Chairman, I will sit down. I think we have before us the need for having a daily working journal and we can postpone the decision as of what to do with the tape and stenotype records.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, the lady who runs the stenotype here has agreed to transcribe her records as I understand it. The Chair understands it anyway.

R. RIVERS: Fine.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Chairman, I think we have been using some terms here rather loosely and that has added to the confusion of the body. I wonder if Mr. Barr might grant permission, and if the body would, to change his motion from "transcriptions" to "duplicate tape". I believe that was his intention that a "duplicate" tape be prepared nightly rather than a "transcription".

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the original motion will show that change. Instead of the word "transcriptions" being used the words duplicate tape".

MCNEALY: Point of inquiry, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, your point of inquiry?

MCNEALY: Then does that motion embody the $18.00 an hour to pay for the duplicate tape?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would embody that, Mr. McNealy. Is there further discussion of the question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Lee.

LEE: Mr. Chairman, my impression at the beginning of this discussion concerning the soundscribing was that we were to make an effort to see that we have a continual soundscribed record, one record at least. I think we have decided upon that, and it seems to me that that settles the question temporarily.

SWEENEY: I was under the impression also at the beginning of the session that if we took a tape recording of the plenary session the duplicate would not be made until the session was over, that that was the arrangement the transcribers were to be working under. Will this make a difference in the price if we insist on a duplicate tape being made after the day's business?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You mean right at this time, you mean each day Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Are they going to have to set up and make a duplicate right away? Will it make a difference in the cost? Do they prefer to do it at the end of the session? That was the point I am bringing up.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher, could you answer that?

HILSCHER: In our discussion with KFAR, if my memory serves me correctly, we could have the duplicates made at any time. In other words, we could finish up our session at 5 o'clock that evening and probably by 7:30 or 8:00 o'clock that evening, providing they had a couple of hours, we could have our duplicate tape. We could have it that same day, by 9 o'clock the next morning, our duplicate tape.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall the Convention have the duplicate tapes be made each day?" All in favor of the motion say "aye", all opposed "no". The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 38 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilschor, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White.

Nays: 17 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cooper, Gray, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, Nerland, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, Rosswog, Smith, Sundborg, Wien, Mr. President.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has carried and the Convention will have a duplicate tape transcribed each evening. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, request to the Chairman on Convention Administration that you instruct your Committee to give us a complete cost of this operation as soon as possible.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The special Committee has already come forward with that report, Mr. Coghill. You can get it from Mr. Hilscher, probably as soon as we recess. Is there anything further to come before the Convention? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: There will be a meeting of the Committee on Rules following the recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley announces a meeting of the Committee on Rules immediately after recess. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention adopt the portion of the report of the Committee on Administration which dealt with the salary and per diem of delegates with the exception that where it is provided that delegates would be for 79 days, that it be changed to 75 days.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves that the Convention adopt the portion of the Committee on Administration report Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL? Point of order. I think the motion is out of order in that that matter has already been determined by the Territorial Legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: Mr. President, Section 19 of the Act I think covers that.

COGHILL: Mr. President, the reason why that was in the report was just to allocate out the funds. It is the same as trying to pass an approval on the $38,000 which has already been spent for election out of the $300,000 allocated for the Convention.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I address a question to the Chairman of the Committee?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Did someone second that motion Mr. Sundborg?

BUCKALEW: I'll second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew seconds it. Your question is in order Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President may I address a question to the Chairman of that Committee through the Chair?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Do we understand then that the figure "79" which appeared in the description of the salary was a mistake and that actually the members will be paid salary for only 75 days?

COGHILL: That was a mistake, Mr. President. It was meant that the "79" was to be on per diem for travel.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have Mr. Sundborg's motion before us. Is there further discussion? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Parliamentary inquiry. Do I understand this motion is unnecessary, that it has already been taken care of by the 1955 Territorial Legislature?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, for the information of the Chair, Mr. Stewart, of the Statehood Committee, prior to the opening of this Convention, asked me as a courtesy to write an opinion of the Attorney General as to how often the delegates would be paid. I did write that opinion and the Attorney General accepted it. I think under the circumstances I must confess sorrowfully that my opinion was rather vague but it satisfied the Attorney General. I think as a point order, Mr. Hellenthal's objection is well taken. That is, the determination as a matter of law as to how often and when we are going to be paid and how long has already been determined in fact and in theory by the Act of the Legislature and we cannot in substance ratify or change the intent of the Legislature when it prescribes the rules. If I may suggest Mr. Sundborg, I would recommend that you withdraw your motion.

SUNDBORG: With the consent of my second and the consent of the Convention I would like to withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks for the consent of the second and asks unanimous consent to withdraw his motion. If there is no objection, it is so ordered. The motion is withdrawn. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, once I was absent and this is a point of inquiry. Has the Convention formally adopted the Constitution of the United States? Are we organized to a point now so it can be adopted as the law requires?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would feel that the time has arrived when the adoption of the Constitution of the United States would be in order, Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would move that the Convention declare on behalf of the people of the proposed State of Alaska that the Constitution of the United States is hereby adopted.

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Constitution, on behalf of the people of the proposed State of Alaska, that the Constitution of the United States be adopted.

JOHNSON: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked and it is so ordered. The Secretary has a communication. Without objection you may proceed to read it.

SECRETARY: Mr. President, the Assistant Postmaster in Fairbanks asks that this announcement be read.

(Mr. Stewart read the communication from the Post Office Department stating that all mail addressed to delegates had been forwarded to College.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: It further states that Delegate Rosswog has mail at the post office? What is the pleasure of the delegates as to bus service this evening. What time should the bus come and pick us up?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the bus be summoned now to be here one-half hour hence.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the bus be summoned now to arrive here approximately five minutes after five. Is there objection? Hearing none it is so ordered. If someone would notify the bus company that we desire the bus here in half an hour, it would be appreciated. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention stand adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Just prior to the adjournment the Chair would like to announce again, he would like a brief meeting with the chairmen of the various committees immediately after adjournment. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I opposed that. The other day we adopted as policy that we should meet at 9:30 daily instead of 10 o'clock. We set up a bus arrangement based on that. I think we ought to stick to the 9:30 hour.

JOHNSON: I will accept the amendment to the motion to adjourn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion before us is that the Convention stand adjourned until 9:30 a.m. on Monday morning. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is adjourned until Monday morning at 9:30 a.m.

(The Convention adjourned at 4:30 p.m.)

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 14, 1955

SEVENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (9:30 a.m.). Reverend Griffin, would you come forward and give us our daily invocation.

(Convention rises as Mr. Griffin comes forward.)

THE REVEREND FELTON GRIFFIN: Our Father in Heaven, we pray that this group of delegates here may see and seize the opportunity that is theirs and come forth with the very best in thinking, the very best in character that they have ever been. We pray, Lord, that they may be divinely led as they frame for Alaska the constitution, and may they present to the people a constitution that we shall happily ratify, that our nation shall approve, and may it forever be an instrument of good for the people, for our happiness and our prosperity. In the name of Christ our Redeemer we pray, amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Griffin. That is Felton Griffin of the First Baptist Church in Anchorage. The Chief Clerk may call the roll. (The Clerk at this time called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: All present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary may proceed with any petitions, memorials or communications that are here before us.

SECRETARY: Mr. President, there are communications addressed to the Governor of Alaska in connection with the opening of the Convention which have just been transmitted from the office of the Governor. Do you wish them read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may proceed and read them, Mr. Secretary.

(Communications from Governor Arthur B. Langlie, Governor of the State of Washington, and Honorable Douglas McKay, Secretary of the Interior, to Governor Heintzleman, expressing regret at not being able to be present at the opening ceremonies of the Constitutional Convention and extending best wishes for a successful Convention, were read by the Secretary.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: An outline of the contents of the Communications that were read will become a part of the permanent record.

SECRETARY: Communication from the National Congress of American Indians.

COLLINS: Mr. President, it is absolutely impossible to hear a word being said.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will be at ease.

COLLINS: We can't hear anything. The loudspeaker isn't working.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This particular speaker only affects the gallery in the other room, as I understand it. It's the noise from the pounding. If there is no objection we will hold the reading of this document over until a later time so we won't be disturbed by outside noises. The Secretary may proceed with the reading of communications.

(An invitation from the Home Economics Club inviting the delegates to an open house and tea, Thursday, November 17, from 2 to 4:30, was read by the Secretary.)

SECRETARY: That is all the communications, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there are no other communications, then we are ready for reports of standing committees. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, if we may have a recess for about one minute the drafted report of proposed rules is here and we should distribute these before undertaking the whole report. I ask unanimous consent for a one-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will be at recess for a brief time. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does everyone have a copy of the proposed rules on their desk? Do you have a copy for the press, Mr. Chairman? The Convention will be at ease until the copies of the report arrive. The Convention will come to order. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, at the risk of presuming on the entire body, it was the wish of the Rules Committee that these rules, as now proposed, be read in their entirety. That will take a little time. As you all know, we have adopted portions in the past, piece-meal. I would ask unanimous consent that time be given for the reading of these from the start through Rule 60 and at that time, if they have been adopted as we have gone along, I would ask that they then be adopted in their entirety to supersede anything adopted previously. In that way I think we have a fairly clean operation and we will know exactly what our permanent rules will be. At this time I will ask unanimous consent that the Convention indulge a rather lengthy report from the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection it is so ordered and the convention will receive the reading of the report of the Rules Committee.

V. RIVERS: Question, Mr. President. Is the intention that they shall be read and acted upon chapter by chapter as we finish each chapter?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the feeling of the Chair. Mr. Riley you may proceed if there is no objection.

(Mr. Riley came to the front of the hall)

RILEY: These are all proposed rules adopted by the Rules Committee submitted for your consideration and action. Chapter I -- you will note as we go through that some of these have been adopted in the past.

"Officers and Administrative Staff

Rule 1. The officers of the Convention shall be a President, a First Vice President, a Second Vice President, and a Secretary; the President and Vice Presidents to be elected from the Delegates by the vote of at least 28 delegates.

Rule 2. The Secretary of the Convention need not be a Delegate, and shall serve under the direction of the President as the principal administrative officer of the Convention.

Rule 3. The Secretary with the approval of the President and the Committee on Administration shall determine the administrative, clerical and custodial staff required by the Convention, and shall appoint and determine the compensation of such employees.

a. The President pro-tem shall first entertain nominations for President of the Convention, shall recognize in order all who seek the floor, shall receive and state all nominations made, and shall allow ample time for all who seek recognition to be recognized and heard before entertaining a motion to close nominations.

b. A nominee may decline nomination only while nominations are open, but may withdraw from consideration for election at any time after the first ballot is taken.

c. Voting shall be by secret ballot and balloting shall continue by successive ballots until one candidate shall have received at least 28 votes: PROVIDED, However, that in the event no candidate receives as many as 28 votes in either the first or second balloting process, the low man (or, if there be a tie in low position as to votes received, those so tied) shall be removed from consideration on the third ballot and succeeding ballots; and, following the third and succeeding ballots wherein no nominee receives at least 28 votes, the low man or those so tied shall each time be eliminated from further consideration.

d. The first person who receives at least 28 votes on any one ballot shall be elected President of the Convention.

e. Nomination and election of other elective officers shall be conducted in the same manner as provided for the office of President."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter 1 of the proposed rules as read be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Chapter 1 of the proposed rules be adopted.

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, there are at least two typographical errors in the draft as made.

RILEY: May I amend that request to indicate correction of those. I spotted them too, and there may be others.

DAVIS: Rule 4 subsection "a", it has "recognition" instead of "recognized".

PRESIDENT EGAN: On those typographical errors, the Chair would entertain a unanimous consent that they be included in the motion by Mr. Riley. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of information. On Rule 3 does that rescind our action of Saturday to the request and adoption of the Committee on Administration report?

RILEY: Point of inquiry, Mr. Coghill. I was wondering about that myself, if this were in line with your Committee report of Saturday. With the approval of the President and the Committee on Administration, I know we touched on that point here in discussion Saturday. I have not your exact language.

COGHILL: Well, we did not adopt the report in entirety -- just that one section on the staff of our working organization. The point of inquiry was, is this rule's adoption at this time, going to rescind our action of Saturday as to the adoption of those portions of our Committee report?

RILEY: The Secretary just advised me that there is no conflict between your proposed coverage and this rule. Is that your impression?

COGHILL: That is my impression, but if those rules are adopted

Now we would have to go through that procedure again to have it permanently on the record to have it conform with our new rules.

RILEY: I think not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair feels that would be up to the Convention. It would not nullify that action we had taken previously as had been adopted by the Convention. Is there objection to adopting the rules under Chapter 1 as read by Mr. Riley with the instruction that the typographical errors be corrected? Hearing no objection then, the rules under Chapter 1 are ordered adopted. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I think instead of having to make a motion for correction of typographical errors, where a typographical error is obvious, that it be called to the attention of the body as they are noted so we can make those corrections without having to make the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I am still not clear on this subject, if I may address the Chairman of the Rules Committee. In your motion for adoption, Mr. Riley, you asked that these rules supersede all other rules and action.

RILEY: I suggested that I would do that after we adopt them.

COGHILL: In effect, then, if we adopt Chapter 1 that will make all of our action of our Committee on Saturday, null.

RILEY: I think it would simply establish the rule from this point forward.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would not nullify the action in the opinion of the Chair, Saturday because those rules at that time were permanent. We just superseded them.

COGHILL: That answers my question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may proceed, Mr. Riley.

RILEY: "Chapter II,

Duties of President and Vice Presidents

Rule 5. The President shall take the chair each day at the hour to which the Convention shall have adjourned. He shall call the Convention to order, and, except in the absence of a quorum, shall proceed to business in the manner prescribed by these rules.

Rule 6. The President shall possess the powers and perform the duties herein prescribed:

(a) He shall preserve order and decorum, and, in debate, shall prevent personal reflections, and confine members to the question under discussion. When two or more members arise at the same time, he shall name the one entitled to the floor.

(b) He shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal to the Rules Committee and thereafter to the Convention. On every appeal he shall have the right, in his place, to assign his reason for his decision. In case of such appeal no member shall speak more than once.

(c) He may substitute any member to perform the duties of the chair while he is present, but for no longer period than that day, except by special consent of the Convention.

(d) When the Convention shall be ready to go into Committee of the Whole, he shall name a chairman to preside.

(e) When necessary or required, he shall certify all official acts and all vouchers for payment of expenditures of the Convention.

(f) He shall designate and assign to seats or authorize the designation and seating of the persons who shall act as reporters for the public press and radio within the Convention Hall.

(g) He shall not engage in any debate, or propose his opinion on any question, except the assigning of his reasons for his decision on appeal therefrom, without first designating another Delegate to occupy the chair.

(h) He shall be entitled to vote on all questions in the same manner as other delegates except that he shall vote last.

(i) He shall declare the vote and announce the result according to the fact on all questions and divisions.

Rule 7. In the temporary absence of the President, or in event of his temporary inability to preside, his duties shall be performed by the First Vice President, or if he also be absent by the Second Vice President.

Rule 8. In the event of a vacancy in the office of the President or of either or both Vice Presidents or of the Secretary through death, resignation, or otherwise, or in the event of absence from the Convention of any of these officers for more than 5 consecutive Convention days without the approval of the Convention, the Convention shall by majority vote of the elected Delegates elect another to fill such vacancy." Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the proposed Chapter II of the Rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the proposed Chapter II of the Rules. Is there any objection? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Just a question, Mr. President, did you leave out the portion where the President would not vote in case of a tie?

RILEY: That is changed, Mrs. Sweeney. In the first draft which was proposed, the draft which we received from the PAS through the Statehood Committee, that said that the President would vote only to break a tie, the recommendation of the Rules Committee was that he be entitled to vote on every vote. That is a change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection? Mr. Peratrovich?

PERATROVICH: As a point of information, under "b", does this mean that instead of appealing to the floor you first have to appeal to the Rules Committee?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is subject to the appeal of the Rules Committee.

RILEY: Ordinarily, as I recall procedure, it goes to a vote of the body as to whether an appeal shall be taken from the ruling of the Chair. At that point it goes to the Rules Committee. If, for example, an appeal is asked from a ruling, a vote is taken at that point, shall the Chair be sustained or shall the Chair be appealed from.

PERATROVICH: That is appealed to the floor instead of the committee?

RILEY: The first reference is to the floor but it goes from there to the committee. The first reference is to the floor by vote as to whether an appeal shall be taken.

PERATROVICH: Thank you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: At that point, Mr. Riley, the Chair would have the opportunity to rule or pass the matter to the Rules Committee.

RILEY: The Chair would have ruled already.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, that is right. Is there objection to the request of Mr. Riley? If not, Chapter II is ordered adopted. Mr. Riley, you may proceed.

RILEY: "Chapter III,

Duties of the Secretary

Rule 9. Under the direction of the President the Secretary shall have the following powers and perform the following duties:

(a) He shall be the official custodian of and shall provide for the ultimate disposition of all roll calls, proposals, reports, records, books, documents and papers of the Convention.

(b) He shall arrange to keep a journal of the proceedings of the Convention.

(c) He shall prepare each day a calendar of the business of the Convention as provided by these rules.

(d) He shall number consecutively each proposal of subject matter to be incorporated into the Constitution and, in other series, shall number each resolution, ordinance, or other action introduced for Convention consideration.

(e) When necessary or required the Secretary with the President shall certify all official acts of the Convention.

(f) He shall assign and supervise the work of all administrative, clerical, and custodial employees and shall be responsible for the printing or other reproduction of all proposals and other documents as required.

(g) He shall arrange for the utilization of the services of such technical consultants as may be desired by the Convention and provide liaison between such consultants and the Convention.

(h) He shall perform such other duties as are required of him by the President, these rules, or the Convention."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter III of the proposed rules be adopted as a permanent part of the rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Chapter III of the proposed rules be adopted as part of the permanent rules. Is there objection?

DOOGAN: Point of information, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of information Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: Under "b" is that a daily Journal for the whole session or is it a printed journal?

RILEY: It is not spelled out what the ultimate form will be, but I think by general agreement in terms of the other day, we are talking in terms of a mimeographed journal. This does not limit the Convention to what type as long as there is a journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: Mr. President, I think we should note that there is a misspelled word in the third line of "g", page 5, "liaison".

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been noted. The Convention will come to order. Is there objection to the adoption? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I rise to a point of information from the Chairman of the Rules Committee. Should it not be spelled out in the assignment of the Secretary's work with regard to printing, the reproductions, etc., in his work? Should it not be spelled out through our Committee some way or another, the Administrative Committee, so that we can have a working agreement with him or a form to watch the budget so that RILEY: Mr. Coghill, while the original proposed draft made reference to several points to reproduction of documents, we felt that was an administrative detail and need not clutter the rules. If he were charged with doing a job, there were certain methods which would be employed whether we spelled them out or not. Is that satisfactory?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I think as far as Mr. Coghill is concerned, if he will look on page 7 under "b", the Committee on Administration, I think his query will be answered.

HERMANN: Point of information, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Several times during the course of considering this in the Rules Committee we made mention of the fact that the Secretary should have some responsibility toward publicity. I don't see anything in there about it. I don't know whether it got lost in the shuffle or did we abandon it? I would like an explanation from Mr. Riley.

RILEY: I don't recall, Mrs. Hermann, that it was deliberately abandoned. I do recall that we discussed it but no explicit coverage was ever arrived at. It is my information as an aside that we may hear more today about publicity, apart from this report. Am I correct on that, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is true, Mr. Riley. Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: This general grant to perform such other duties as the Convention assigns could be handled by separate action.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further objection to the adoption of Chapter III of the proposed rules as becoming a part of the permanent rules? Hearing none it is so ordered, and Chapter III is adopted as a part of the permanent rules. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with Chapter IV.

RILEY: Chapter IV,

Quorum and Majority

Rule 10. The presence of at least twenty-eight delegates shall be necessary to constitute a quorum of the Convention, but a lesser number may meet and adjourn the Convention from day to day when necessary.

Rule 11. There being a quorum, a majority of delegates present shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action except where the affirmative vote of a greater number shall be required by these rules."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter IV as read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter IV as read. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with the reading of Chapter V.

RILEY: "Standing Committees

Rule 12. The President shall appoint the members of and shall name the Chairmen of all Standing Committees unless the Convention shall otherwise order. The President may fill vacancies on Standing Committees in the same manner.

Rule 13. The Standing Committees of the Convention and the number of members thereof, respectively, shall be as follows:"

RILEY: Now at this point, for an aside, I have been asked by the staff, the secretariat, to designate the committees by Roman numeral on copies before you. The reason for that request is that it ties in with their reference system in other respects concerning their work. I would read these as Roman numeral designations from I to XIV.

- "I Committee on Rules, nine members
- II Committee on Administration, nine members
- III Committee on Style and Drafting. nine members
- IV Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures, nine members

- V Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights, seven members
- VI Committee on Suffrage, Elections, and Apportionment, seven members
- VII Committee on Legislative Branch, seven members
- VIII Committee on Executive Branch, seven members
- IX Committee on Finance and Taxation, seven members
- X Committee on Resources, nine members
- XI Committee on Finance and Taxation, seven members
- XII Committee on Local Government, seven members
- XIII Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment, and Revision, seven members
- XIV Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations, seven members

Rule 14. Each Delegate except the President shall be appointed to at least one but to no more than three Standing Committees.

Rule 15. The President shall be ex-officio member of all Standing Committees but shall not vote except to break a tie.

Rule 16. The respective Standing Committees shall have the following duties and functions and in addition shall consider and report upon any other matters referred to them:

(a) The Committee on Rules shall consider and report upon such changes in the rules of the Convention and changes in organization as shall be referred to it. It shall consider and report on appeals from rulings of the chair which may be referred to it. It shall determine appeals regarding the daily calendar of the Convention in accordance with these rules.

(b) The Committee on Administration shall generally oversee the administrative or business affairs of the Convention, including finances, personnel, printing, physical arrangements for the Convention, and related matters.

(c) The Committee on Style and Drafting shall examine and edit all proposals for inclusion in the Constitution which are referred to it for the purposes of avoiding inaccuracies, repetitions, inconsistencies, or poor drafting. The Committee shall have the authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language or sections of the proposed Constitution but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it. The Committee shall also be empowered without reference back to the Convention to refer proposals submitted to it to other Committees which may have an interest in the proposal. Where a proposal referred to the Committee appears inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted upon favorably by the Convention at second reading, the Committee shall undertake to resolve the inconsistency or conflict by reference to the Committees concerned. If the Committee shall fail to resolve any such inconsistency or conflict it shall notify the Convention and await its instructions.

(d) The Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures shall be responsible for the consideration of ordinances, specified by the Act creating the Constitutional Convention, and for the consideration of transitional measures which the Convention enacts in anticipation of statehood.

(e) The Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations shall consider resolutions and all other matters not germane to the work of other committees and shall make recommendations for action thereon.

(f) The remaining Standing Committees shall consider such proposals as are indicated by the titles of the respective committees. Such Committees shall draft and submit to the Convention for its consideration sections of the proposed Constitution pertaining to the business of the Committee.

Rule 17. Each Standing Committee shall submit to the Convention a report or reports, in writing, setting forth its recommendations on all matters referred to it. Any member or group of members of a Standing Committee may submit a minority report to the Convention. A petition signed by one-fourth of the elected Delegates shall require any Standing Committee to report to the Convention within the number of days specified in the petition.

Rule 18. No Standing Committee may hold meetings during the sessions of the Convention without permission of the Convention.

Rule 19. Each Standing Committee shall notify the Secretary of the time and place of meetings, and the Secretary shall make such notice public. All Committee hearings shall be public."

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter V as read.

HERMANN: Point of information, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: The Committee on Ordinances, subdivision "d", "shall be responsible for the consideration of ordinances specified by the Act" -- is that the only ordinances it shall be responsible| for? Can there be other ordinances besides those specified in the Act itself that the Committee may consider?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, can you answer that?

RILEY: I am not sure I can answer that, Mrs. Hermann, unless it would be in able to consider other ordinances under this broad language, consideration of transitional measures. We might refer this question to one more familiar than I with the background of the Act, namely the Secretary of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Secretary, would you attempt to answer that question?

SECRETARY: It is unlimited ordinance power and such other ordinances as may be deemed necessary.

HERMANN: That was my impression but I think at present it is limited to ones that are specified in the Act.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, to clarify the point, any ordinance conceivable can be considered by that Committee because the Act specifically proposes, authorizes, and for this purpose the Convention shall have power to make ordinances. It is not qualified so apparently it is any ordinance they desire to consider.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, in order to clarify Mrs. Hermann's objection, I wonder if we might not add a couple of words to read: "the consideration of ordinances including those specified by the Act." Do you think that would take care of it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have nothing before us at this time. Mr. Riley asked unanimous consent. Possibly it might be best to act on the unanimous consent request and then ask for an amendment, if necessary after that is done. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: I believe there is a correction on Page 6. One committee was named twice. Perhaps we should get the proper one in order.

HERMANN: I object to the unanimous consent Mr. Chairman, until we have ironed this matter out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent request is objected to.

RILEY: I withdraw my request.

JOHNSON: I move then that the report be accepted.

BARR: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves that the report be accepted, seconded by Mr. Barr, that that portion in Chapter V be adopted by the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, the portion as read by Mr. McLaughlin a moment ago seems to me would be covered exactly by the language as it is now contained in the Act because, as he points out, the enabling Act makes no limitation on ordinances that the Convention may adopt. The language here is that, "The Committee on Ordinances, and Transitional Measures shall be responsible for the consideration of ordinances specified by the Act." Well, there is no limitation, so the ordinance as specified by the Act wouldn't mean anything. I don't believe it requires any change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, in view of what has been said about this paragraph there, I think it is mainly a question of grammar. I would suggest that that probably should have to be amended. There are no specified ordinances in the Act, but if we read it to read "of ordinances as specified by the Act" it would solve this grammatical uncertainty. The Act specifies that ordinances be enacted but the ordinances themselves are not specified.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it seems to me that to add the preposition "as" simply would make it redundant.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I think what Delegate Kilcher is getting at is "as authorized by the Act."

KILCHER: That's what I mean.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I feel an important point has been raised here. It may or may not be covered in the Act but in order to cover any eventuality I move that Section "d" of this Chapter be amended as follows: following the word "ordinances" insert a comma and substitute the words, "including those." I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White moves and asks unanimous consent that in subsection "d" the second line after word "ordinances", a comma be inserted and the words "including those" be added. Is there objection?

KILCHER: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. As now we have nothing then before us.

V. FISCHER: I second Mr. White's motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White's motion has been seconded by Mr. Fischer. Now, Mr. Kilcher you are in order.

KILCHER: As mentioned before, I am of the opinion that there are no specified ordinances in the Act, so I don't see where the amendment would clarify the situation in any respect. "For the consideration of ordinances, including those specified" in other words, you have ordinances and more ordinances. According to the Act or as authorized by the Act, as Mr. Rivers said awhile ago. It is a matter of wording. We don't have to specify any ordinances at all. Leave the word "specified" out in any case or in any form and shape.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: I see in Section 16 of the Act that it does provide for a definite ordinance. I think that even if it provides for one, that is enough. I am in favor of the amendment.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Hearing no further discussion, the question is, "Shall Mr. White's proposed amendment be adopted?" All those in favor of adopting the amendment say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the amendment is ordered adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, on Page 6, under "i", I believe that should read "Committee on Judiciary Branch, seven members", as in "k" it duplicates the "Committee on Finance and Taxation, seven members".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are you asking unanimous consent, Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: As it appears, it wouldn't just be a typographical error. How does your original copy read, Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Your point is well taken.

TAYLOR: Strike one and renumber.

MCNEES: Judiciary is omitted. No. 9 -- Judiciary Branch.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees asks unanimous consent that the words under litte "i" on Page 6, "Finance and Taxation", be stricken and the words "Judiciary Branch" be inserted in their place. Is there objection? Mr. Emberg.

EMBERG: Mr. President, is the number of committee members the same in both cases?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The number of committee members, as the Chair understands it, remains at seven members. Hearing no objection, Mr. McNees's unanimous consent request is ordered adopted. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that on Page 6, Roman numeral IV, which appears on the draft as "d", that we strike the comma after "ordinances". I might explain that in the original draft there was another word in there, "Resolutions" and we struck out the word "resolutions". We don't want the comma, and strike it also on Page 8, "d", where the duties of that committee are specified.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, it might be best then where you go to other pages to ask unanimous consent for adoption of that amendment, page by page.

SUNDBORG: I first ask unanimous consent then for elimination of the comma in "Committee on Ordinances, and Transitional Measures." That is Roman numeral IV on Page 6, the first comma.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered.

SUNDBORG: I now ask unanimous consent for the elimination of the comma on Page 8, subsection "d", the comma following the word "Ordinances".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent to eliminate the comma after the word "Ordinances" on the first line. Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's request? Mr. Robertson.

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, does the word "Resolutions" include "proposals" on page 8, under "e"? "The Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations shall consider resolutions . . .?"

RILEY: "Resolutions" does not include "proposals" in the sense used in these rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now we are back to Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder if we could hear from the Secretary or Chief Clerk the text of the amendment of Mr. White's that was adopted.

CHIEF CLERK: Add a comma on the second line after "ordinances" and add the words "including those".

SUNDBORG: In view of that, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that on Page 8 "d", the fourth line, after "Convention", insert a comma. I might explain that. If we are starting that off by putting a comma after "ordinances" in the second line, the phrase following is in apposition and should be set off by a comma at the end of it. We can either have no commas or if we have one after "ordinances" we should have one after "Convention" too.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request.

MCNEALY: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I was wondering what disposition was made of Mr. Johnson's motion to adopt paragraph "d" on Page 8 which was amended, as I understood, by Mr. White.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposed amendment by Mr. White was adopted, Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Was that an amendment to Mr. Johnson's motion?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, my motion was to adopt the entire chapter since the unanimous consent had been objected to.

PRESIDENT EGAN: These amendments we are making now are just amendments to that motion. Are there other proposed amendments? The Chair thought that the last unanimous consent request by Mr. Sundborg was adopted. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I move that the following words be added to the last sentence in Rule 19 --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, before proceeding, the Chair was of the opinion that Mr. Sundborg's last unanimous consent request was adopted. Does the Clerk's record show that it was? If not, then, is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's request for the insertion of the comma after the word "Convention" in the fourth line in little section "d"? Hearing no objection, it is ordered adopted. Mr. Taylor, you have the floor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I was going to move that the last sentence in Chapter 5, Rule 19, be amended by the addition of the words "except when in executive session."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, we're not on that. Your point of order, Mr. Barr?

BARR: Point of order, we are still on Rule 16, are we not?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor is not in order because there is a motion on the floor for the adoption of the whole section. Was there not a motion to make Roman numerals in Rule 13? Mr. Taylor, you may proceed. Mr. Barr's point of order is not well taken at this time.

TAYLOR: I move to amend the last sentence in Chapter 5 by the addition of the words "except when in executive session".

SUNDBORG: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second to that motion?

BUCKALEW: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the words "except when in executive session" be added to the last sentence in Rule 19. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, that last sentence in Rule 19 says "All committee hearings shall be public." You don't have hearings in executive sessions. This does not say "all committee meetings" but "all committee hearings" shall be public. With that thought, Mr. Taylor, I think the matter should be left the way it is.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Taylor, would you give me permission to withdraw my second in view of that new intelligence?

TAYLOR: If that is the explanation of it I will withdraw it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask unanimous consent for the withdrawal of your motion, Mr. Taylor? With the consent of your second, it is so ordered.

DAVIS: Mr. President I would like to call for the question on Mr. Johnson's motion to adopt the chapter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis, before that is done, did the body adopt the Roman numeral change that was suggested? The Chair does not believe that that was ever adopted by the Convention.

RILEY: Mr. President, I suggested in reading it that reference would be by Roman numerals. I did not actually read the Roman numerals but it would be in Mr. Johnson's main motion I believe.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You meant that as you were reading it, that that change was made?

RILEY: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is -- Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I have been trying to get the floor several times, I've practically worn my knees out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, you have the floor.

BARR: Rule 16, I believe it is, section "c", Committee on Style and Drafting, there are two things I would like to have cleared up for me -- perhaps by the Chairman of the Committee. It says the Committee on Style may "rephrase" or "regroup" proposed language of sections of the proposed constitution, but I think it is important that the whole constitution, once it is completed, should be edited and everything arranged properly, and I don't see that spelled out here.

HERMANN: It is later on.

RILEY: It will be, if I may advise, later in these rules, clarified. I believe it is implicit in the language that you refer to here, that power exists. That is the concept the Rules Committee has of the function of Style and Drafting. They are, in a sense, a coordinating committee from the standpoint of draftsmanship. Check with Rule 50, Mr. Barr, as to a complete recital of that function.

BARR: Well, I'll take your word for it if you say it spells it out somewhere.

RILEY: I will read that if it will help.

"After the Constitution has been framed and before final agreement thereon, the Convention shall refer the proposed Constitution to the Committee on Style and Drafting for final arrangement in proper order and form."

BARR: My second question, at the bottom of that page it says, "Where a proposal referred to the Committee appears inconsistent", etc., . . . the Committee shall undertake to resolve the inconsistency or conflict by reference to the committees concerned." I would like to see a close liaison between the originating committee and the Committee on Styling. Now there never was a reporter that didn't feel that the editor cut the heart right out of his copy and there was never an editor who didn't think that the reporter was too verbose and I believe that when the proposal is in this Committee on Styling that any member of the originating committee, especially the chairman, should be able to work with them so there will be no conflict, that the originating committee will not think that they have changed the meaning. There should be something spelled out there. The way this reads, when it comes out of the Styling Committee and goes on to the floor -- of course it can be debated there -- but then that is where the conflict may arise.

RILEY: I wonder if there is not a misunderstanding there. "Where a proposal referred to the Committee appears inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted upon favorably by the Convention at second reading, the Committee shall undertake to resolve the inconsistency or conflict by reference to the Committees concerned." Well, that in itself widens then to take the initiative on effective liaison between the committees concerned and in getting the committees concerned, you get to the source of the proposal, as I read it.

BARR: In the previous sentence it says: "The Committee shall also be empowered without reference back to the Convention to refer proposals submitted to it to other Committees which may have an interest in the proposal." If that word "other" was changed to "any" then it would read that it could be referred back to any committee including the originating committee and that could provide for closer cooperation.

RILEY: Is "any" broader than "other" in that usage?

BARR: Yes, you might interpret that "other" to mean any other committee than one which had already considered it. On Page 7, third from the bottom.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr would it be objectionable to you if the Chair declared a recess so you and Mr. Riley could get together. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for about five minutes. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I am going to make a motion which makes a slight change only for the purpose of clarity and to obviate the chance of misinterpretation. It really doesn't change the meaning very much. I move and ask unanimous consent that in Rule 16, section (c), page 7, third line from the bottom of the page, change "other" to "any" and that the following word, "Committees be changed to the singular, "Committee", so that the sentence will now read, "The Committee shall also be empowered without reference back to the Convention to refer proposals submitted to it to any Committee which may have an interest in the proposal."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr moves and asks unanimous consent that on the third line from the bottom the word "other" be deleted and that the word "any" be inserted and that the "s" be stricken on the word "Committees", leaving the word as "Committee." Is there objection to Mr. Barr's request? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the amendment is adopted. Are there any other amendments to Chapter 5 of the proposed Rules?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Chapter V of the proposed Rules be adopted as part of the permanent rules of the Convention?" All in favor say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it, and Chapter V of the proposed rules is adopted as part of the permanent rules of the Convention. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with the reading of Chapter VI.

RILEY: Chapter VI,

Committee of the Whole

Rule 20. The Convention may upon motion resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of any matter. In forming the Committee of the Whole, the President shall appoint another Delegate as chairman to preside. A quorum of the Convention shall constitute a quorum for the Committee of the Whole.

Rule 21. All proposals, amendments, reports, resolutions, and other matters may be debated in the Committee of the Whole section by section, and recommendations with respect thereto shall be reported to the Convention.

Rule 22. The rules of the Convention shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole so far as they are applicable. Where there are no provisions, the proceedings shall be in accordance with Robert's Rules of Order, Revised.

Rule 23. A motion for the rising of the Committee of the Whole shall always be in order unless a member of the Committee is speaking or a vote is being taken, and shall be decided without debate."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter VI as read be adopted as a permanent part of the rules of this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Chapter VI as read be adopted as a permanent part of the rules. Is there objection? Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, on a typographical error, I would say that on the second line of Rule 21 there should be a comma after the word "Whole".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent that be adopted?

R. RIVERS: Yes I do, unless it would come under the head of "typographical". I think I will ask unanimous consent that a comma be added after the word "Whole" in the second line.

RILEY: I so move that Chapter VI be adopted.

MCCUTCHEON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves that Chapter VI be adopted, seconded by Mr. McCutcheon. Mr. Rivers asks that in the second line of Rule 21 a comma be inserted after the word "Whole". Is there objection to Mr. Rivers' request? If there is no objection it is so ordered.

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Chapter VI of the proposed rules be adopted? All those in favor say "aye", all opposed "no". The ayes" have it and Chapter VI is adopted as a permanent part of the rules. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with Chapter VII.

RILEY: "Chapter VII,

Order of Business, and Roll Call

Rule 24. At meetings of the Convention the order of business shall be as follows (except at times set apart for the consideration of special orders)

1. Calling Convention to order
2. Prayer
3. Roll Call"

At this point we noted an omission. There was no provision made in the text for reading the journal of the preceding day. I shall insert that as "4" in your text.

- "4. Reading Journal of preceding day
5. Presentation of petitions, memorials and communications from outside the Convention
6. Reports of Standing Committees
7. Reports of Select Committees
8. Introduction and first reading of proposals
9. Reference of proposals
10. Motions and resolutions
11. Unfinished business
12. Special orders of the day
13. General orders of the day

Rule 25. The Secretary shall prepare for each Convention day a calendar of the general orders, setting forth the title of each matter for consideration. Consideration of the general orders of the day shall be in the following order:

1. Consideration by Committee of the Whole
2. Reports of the Committee of the Whole
3. Committee reports
4. Second reading and referral to the Committee on Style and Drafting
5. Action on reports of the Committee on Style and Drafting
6. Third reading and agreement.

Rule 26. If a matter is not considered in its order it shall lose its precedence for the day, but it shall appear on the calendar on the following Convention day in its regular order. Any matter may be made a special order of business for any particular day or time by a majority vote of the delegates present. Any matter having been made a special order for a particular day, and not having been reached on that day, shall be on the order of "Unfinished Business" on the next succeeding Convention day.

Rule 27. Except that the President's name shall always be called last on roll call votes, the names of Delegates shall be arranged alphabetically. At the first roll call of the Convention following adoption of this rule the roll shall be called starting with the first of such alphabetically arranged names. On each succeeding roll call the name next in order alphabetically shall be first called so as to rotate the order of voting through the entire list of Delegates.

Rule 28. In case of the absence of Delegates, the Delegates present shall take such measures as they shall deem necessary to secure the presence of absentees.

Rule 29. After a question has been stated by the President and the calling of the roll has begun, the President shall not recognize a Delegate for any purpose whatever until the call is completed; but nothing in this rule shall abridge the right of any Delegate to change or record his vote on any question previous to the announcement of the vote.

Rule 30. No member shall be entitled to abstain from voting on any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts. Upon any announcement of intention to abstain the Delegate making such announcement upon request of five Delegates may be required to state his reasons.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter VII as read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter VII as read as a part of the permanent rules of the Convention.

JOHNSON: Point of information, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Is there any particular reason why the roll call should be rotated? It seems to me that it is just a cumbersome procedure and has no particular purpose.

RILEY: Well, in reply, I don't believe it would be cumbersome in the first place. The Secretary may merely note, or the Chief Clerk, on each succeeding roll call where to start the next time. The purpose of rotation is the same purpose served by rotating names on a ballot -- namely, in this case, that there be no crystallized form of voting. Everyone will have the same opportunity to be first on the list, as it were. That was the Committee's view, in response to your question.

JOHNSON: It seems to me this rotation of voting is all right in a secret ballot, but here we stand up and be counted, or we are supposed to be counted. I don't see that it makes any difference.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Along the same general lines Mr. Johnson mentioned, -- where we stand up and be counted -- I see no particular reason for the qualifying language in Rule 30. It would appear to me that it would be a very adequate move if it just read: "no member shall be entitled to abstain from voting on any roll call". The rest is unusual. The last sentence I think is not only unusual, it is impractical. The mechanics of it are kind of silly, so I throw this out I think everyone should vote, and I can't think of any sound reason why someone should abstain from voting on anything. If they don't want to vote they can go out in the hall and hide. Why should we go through that falderal?

RILEY: I think your suggestion, Mr. Hellenenthal, that there be a period after the word "voting" and the rest stricken makes it altogether too rigid. Conceivably there will be circumstances when personal interests will virtually oblige members to abstain from voting and your Committee felt that that should be recognized, by making it a little less rigid than you suggest.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

SWEENEY: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Point of information. Rule 26 says "If a matter is not considered in its order it shall lose its precedence for the day, but it shall appear on the calendar on the following Convention day in its regular order." According to the next sentence a majority vote could still put it on the calendar for say, today. Is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mrs. Sweeney. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Question, Mr. President. Under general orders of the day -- does it entitle announcements of committee meetings shall fall under that particular item of order or should there be a special announcement of committee meetings item on the calendar?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, would you care to answer that question?

RILEY: Well I would say it is up to the body. . It could be either way. Normally of course they are made before recess or adjournment. An amendment could go in.

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, that could come under your "Committee Reports." That may be all you would have for the order of the day, a report of your meeting time.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Riley, what personal reason would prevent one of us from voting on a question properly before this body?

RILEY: Do I hear a reply coming from a member of the Committee?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. Riley, I will say what Mildred said in our Committee meeting. In our Committee meeting Mrs. Hermann pointed out for example, she felt it would have been embarrassing perhaps for her to have voted on the first day of the Convention on the election of the President pro tem. She asked to abstain and that permission was granted because she was one of the candidates.

HELLENTHAL: Can you think of anything other than preliminary organization?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President. I might be a big oil man and we might be voting on a subject in regard to oil resources and how they were to be controlled. It might be very controversial so I might decide it would be nice if I did not vote.

HELLENTHAL: I do not think that is a valid reason. I think we should stand up and be counted. We were elected for that purpose. We were not elected to win a popularity contest.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, just to give another example of where I might want to abstain from voting. If for instance, the issue of waiving the rule adopted the other day, I came before the Convention to say, hire my grandmother or someone related to me, I should certainly abstain from voting on that issue. So I think there are lots of things that might come up, so I think the rule that states it is proper.

HELLENTHAL: If you want your grandmother hired, say so.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. McCutcheon has been trying to get the floor.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, in the Committee on Rules it was my opinion that every member should be forced to vote because we were sent here by the people who elected us for a specific purpose and that our vote should be recorded. However, after hearing the arguments of the various other committee members I deferred to this type of a rule. In the second place, it appears to me that we would be unable to force a person to vote if they did not wish to. The only action that we could take that might force them to vote would be to suspend or expel them from this group. I am not clear whether we could or not. So if a person chose not to vote, how could we force them to vote? We felt, however, on the other hand, that if five members of the Convention desired to hear the reasons for a person's desire to abstain from voting, that five members should be sufficient cross section, and that the person desiring not to vote should give some sort of reasonable answer. And in the view of that answer I am sure this body would permit a person to abstain from voting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Chapter VII of the proposed rules be adopted as a portion of the standing rules of the Convention?" All in favor say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and Chapter VII is adopted as a part of the permanent rules of the Convention. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with Chapter VIII.

RILEY: Chapter VIII,

Motions

Rule 31. When a motion is made it shall be stated by the President, or, if in writing, it shall be read aloud before debate.

Rule 32. A motion may be withdrawn by the maker with consent of the second at any time before amendment or decision.

Rule 33. When a question is under consideration by the Convention only the following motions shall be received, which motions shall have precedence in the order stated:

Motion to, or for:

- | | | |
|--|---|------------------------------|
| (a) Adjourn |) | |
| (b) Recess |) | Not amendable or |
| (c) Call of the Convention |) | debatable except |
| (d) Lay on the table |) | as hereinafter |
| (e) Previous question |) | provided. |
| (f) Postpone indefinitely. |) | Not amendable, but debatable |
| (g) Postpone to a certain time. |) | Amendable and debatable |
| (h) Go into Committee of the Whole. |) | " " " |
| (i) Commit (or recommit) to
Committee of the Whole |) | " " " |
| (j) Commit (or recommit) to a
Standing Committee, or to a
Select Committee |) | Amendable and debatable |
| (k) Close debate at a specified time |) | Amendable but not debatable |
| (l) Amend |) | Amendable and debatable. |

Motions "g" through "k" inclusive, preclude debate on the main question. A motion to adjourn, to take a recess, and to adjourn for a longer period than one Convention day shall always be in order. A motion to adjourn for a longer period than one Convention day shall be amendable and debatable. Calls for information, for division of a divisible question, for the yeas and nays, for a standing vote, for a vote by a show of hands, and a motion for reconsideration shall always be in order, but shall not be amendable or debatable.

Rule 34. An appeal from the decision of the chair must be taken at the time the ruling is made.

Rule 35. The previous question shall be put by the President in this form, "Shall the main question be now put?" It shall be admitted when demanded by a majority of the Delegates present, and its effect shall be, if decided affirmatively, to end debate and bring the Convention to a vote upon pending amendments, if any, to the main question, and then upon the main question. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

Rule 36. Notice of intention to move reconsideration of any vote must be stated on the day such vote is taken. A motion to reconsider must be made before the end of the first Convention day after the day on which such vote was taken and by a Delegate who voted in the majority. The same majority shall be required to adopt a motion to reconsider as was required to take the original action. When a motion for reconsideration is decided, that decision shall not be reconsidered. No question shall be twice reconsidered. No vote shall be reconsidered upon any of the following motions:

- (a) To adjourn;
- (b) To lay on the table;
- (c) To take from the table; or
- (d) For the previous question.

Rule 37. Any Delegate may call for the division of a question which is in its nature divisible. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible. A motion to strike having been lost, motion to amend or a motion to strike out and insert shall not be precluded.

Rule 38. No Delegate shall speak more than twice on one question, or longer than fifteen minutes the first, or longer than five minutes the second time, or more than once until other Delegates who have not spoken shall speak if they so desire, without first obtaining leave of the Convention. The mover of the proposition shall have the right to close the debate, provided that the person in charge of a proposal on third reading and final agreement shall have the right, if he desires, to close the debate and he may announce such desire at any time before the commencement of the vote on the question."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter VIII be adopted as read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent for the adoption of Chapter VIII. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I am going to object temporarily.

EGAN: Mrs. Hermann's objection is heard.

HERMANN: I think at the time these rules were considered in Committee we had added to Rule 36 a statement that we consider a motion to reconsider could not be considered during the last three days of the Convention. And I do not see that in there and think it is very highly important that it appear. I think it is an oversight in getting the copy organized but until that is added or until we have taken some decision so that whether or not it is added I am going to object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you so move then Mr. Riley, to get this question on the floor? Do you move for the adoption of Chapter VIII?

RILEY: I so move.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves that the Chapter be adopted and Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: In reference to Mrs. Hermann's inquiry it occurs to me that it would be rather difficult to include that type of provision in our rules since we do not know when we will adjourn other than the 75th day. It is conceivable that we could adjourn any time less than that and without knowing definitely, how could you have such a rule that would be effective?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? Mr. Barr?

BARR: On Page 14, the fourth line from the bottom, it says: "The mover of a proposition shall have the right to close the debate, provided that the person in charge of a proposal . ." Just what does that mean, the person in charge of a proposal"? Does that mean the chairman of the committee?

RILEY: In that case it would be. "Proposal" is used in the sense employed here of being a constitutional proposal. The . person in charge would be the chairman or the spokesman for the committee.

BARR: I see on Page 13 where a comma should go in. I am not going to make a motion. Perhaps the original motion could be amended to include it, Page 13, A motion to adjourn, "Calls for 6information for division of a divisible question, for the yeas and nays," after the word "information" there should be a comma.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Barr's request?

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, I could argue its grammatical significance. I don't think a comma belongs there. That is a series of statements there and "Calls for information for division of a divisible question" is one. Then we have a comma for the "yeas and nays" and then a comma for "for a standing vote" down to we get to "and a motion for reconsideration". That is a grammatical series and I do not think a comma is indicated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, the Chair would feel that suppose you rise from the floor on a question of Information, well, you are in order when you state that. If you left the comma out then it does not say that. It would not have that meaning.

It would say calls for information for the division of a divisible question would be the only thing you could rise on. The Chair would hold that the comma would be in order. Is there further objection to Mr. Barr's unanimous consent request to insert a comma after the word "information"? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President. I should like to ask a question of Mr.

Riley. In this same section I am not sure whether the Committee intends that one delegate may call for the "yeas" and "nays", or whether it will require a majority vote. I am on Page 13, Section 33, in the sentence that starts "Calls for information, for division of a divisible question, for the yeas and nays," etc.

RILEY: It certainly is silent on the point. I would feel whereas in other deliberative bodies the percentage is often stated for requiring a roll call vote, it would appear to me that one member could here do so.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The reading of the rule would allow any one member to make those calls. Is there further discussion? Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I don't understand the last sentence of Rule 38.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Rule 38, the last sentence. Mr. Riley, could you attempt to explain that sentence?

RILEY: Well, I think that Mr. Hellenenthal has the same question in mind as Mr. Barr raised a moment ago. Am I right?

HELLENTHAL: No, I have another. The words, "The mover of the proposition", I don't know who that means. Who is that?

RILEY: The maker of the motion perhaps.

HELLENTHAL: What motion?

RILEY: Any motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, it appears to the Chair that the question in Mr. Hellenenthal's mind is that who other than the mover would be in charge of the proposition?

RILEY: I would say that in approaching the matter with reference to both the mover of the proposition and the person in charge of the proposal you have covered every conceivable handler of a given proposition. It may be a little superfluous to add this passage about the person in charge of the proposal, but by the same token, a committee spokesman who might be charged with the conduct of that proposal on the floor need not always be the mover of a proposition, in this respect. There might be other intermediate actions taken. Now, if it is desired to recess on that point I think we can get together with Mr. Hellenthal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Before we go into recess, I would like to make one point clear. The rules as we probably will adopt them provide that the mover of a proposition in other terminology it is the person who submits a resolution to a body. The resolution is then referred to its appropriate committee. It may lose its identity in that committee, but the person who originally submitted that resolution may have under these rules, the opportunity to close the debate on it. He may argue that the text of his resolution has been so changed that it precludes his original thought. Then it would be the decision of the house as to whether or not the man or woman who originally introduced the resolution would have the opportunity to close the debate or whether the person in charge of the resolution, which would be the chairman of the committee who returned it to the house for consideration, would close the debate on the matter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I also have an inquiry with reference to this rule which might be considered during the recess. It appears in the first part of Rule 38 that the debate is limited to any one member to 20 minutes -- not longer than 15 minutes on the first occasion on which he speaks and not longer than five minutes on the last occasion. Now, if a person were in the position of being the mover and would want to close the debate, it would seem to me that he might very well wish to reserve the longer portion of his debate time in rebuttal after everyone else had been given an opportunity to speak. He might not be able to answer in five minutes, and I would think that that first part could be changed perhaps to permit anyone to use the time allotted as they saw fit, either in the beginning or on the end of their argument. I don't know whether that is feasible or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Mr. President, that is a subject I would like to talk on a bit. I can well conceive that 15 minutes of time won't be enough sometime for a man to present a program properly to this body -- not that he should do it more than once in the Convention, but I think he should have an opportunity to do that. I don't like that 15-minute limitation there. I think some men who use a lot of time here maybe should be scotched on that, but I think men who save their time up should have more time than 15 minutes on one occasion in this Convention at least.

NORDALE: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: It seems to me that the last phrase takes care of any possible contingency. It says: ". . . without first obtaining leave of the Convention." and the Convention might be so disposed to let someone talk a half an hour if he had an important enough contribution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, I do believe that 15 or 20 minutes is sufficient. I am sure I could tell all I know in 15 minutes, but I agree with Mr. Johnson that a man may present a proposition to the floor and then so many people talk on it and bring up additional questions or arguments against that he can't answer those arguments in five minutes. It seems to me he could talk longer in closing the debate.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I feel the same way about this. This rule automatically establishes a standing rule closing or limiting debate. I feel that on many subjects, this body may desire to adopt a limit of debate motion, but I'm not in favor of making it a standing rule limiting the time. I feel that if a limiting of debate would be desired by this body that was getting too lengthy, we could well adopt it at the time we are going to act on it, and that is the procedure followed, I believe, in your national Congress and many other state legislatures. Limitation of debate should not be a standing rule in my opinion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, I think I support Mr. Rivers in his views on this. There is no question in my mind as to sometime in the future some of these propositions will be received on the floor and be very controversial, and I don't think it is a good policy to set a limit on debate. There will be other times when we will have minor problems when we won't need so much time. We have provisions in Robert's Rules of Order to take care of all this, and if it comes to a time where we feel that a debate should be limited, there are provisions for that also. We can do it by a two-thirds vote. I don't think we should tie our hands because some of it is going to require more time than the other. We should allow all the time that we possibly can to arrive at something that will be acceptable to the people that we are going to submit this proposition to in the end.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I make the point of order that there is nothing before us, and I ask unanimous consent for a five-minute recess.

SWEENEY: I object for just one moment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Was the motion first made to adopt Chapter VIII by Mr. Riley? That motion is before us. Mrs. Sweeney has the floor.

SWEENEY: I want to bring up one thing that bothers me a little. Rule 36 -- under the first two sentences the way it is constructed now, it appears that if I were in the minority I would have a right to give notice of reconsideration of my vote, provided I could get somebody from the majority to move it the next day and I don't think that is the intent at all. I think in order to give notice of intention to move reconsideration, you also have to be on the majority. Is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It says that Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Well it says that on the motion but not for the notice of reconsideration.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are probably right. Perhaps that could be taken up during the recess. Mr. Riley, how long a recess did you call for? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would like to renew my request for unanimous consent for a five-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for five minutes. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to object for just a moment to perhaps get a little more clarification on Rule 38. I think there has been some misunderstanding of the meaning where it says that the mover of the proposition shall have the right to close the debate. Some people have understood that to mean that the mover of the proposition shall have the right to shut off debate or preclude further debate. If it were clarified that the mover of the proposition shall have the right to present the last argument, you might say, I think that might clear up some of the misunderstanding and I would like to ask Mr. Riley to possibly clarify that.

RILEY: I think that is a proper matter to consider during recess, Mr. Smith. I might ask if we recess that the Rules Committee reassemble at the customary spot in the rear of the hall.

HERMANN: I would like to amend the motion to take at least ten minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mrs. Hermann's request?

SUNDBORG: I will accept your amendment, Mrs. Hermann.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: I would like to get some information from the Rules Committee as to why Rule 36 has been changed from the original draft of Rule 34, "A motion to reconsider must be made before the end of the first Convention day after the day on which such vote was taken . ." and as I understand it the other draft is on the same day. Is that correct?

RILEY: That is correct. The change was suggested Mr. Londborg, by the Rules Committee simply to make each day current, shall we say. Otherwise, every action taken would be in a sense tentative until the period had passed for reconsideration a day or two later.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It might be well at this time before we recess that the Chair inform all delegates that they are free to attend committee meetings at any time and they are free to request the chairman of any committee to be heard on any subject at any time. If anyone has any questions, that is the answer to your question. If there is no objection the Convention will be at recess for ten minutes. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. It seems to be the consensus among many of the delegates that inasmuch as the Rules Committee still has these questions under advisement and haven't completed their work, it might be wise and proper to recess for lunch at this time. If there is discussion of that proposition -- Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I move and ask unanimous consent that we recess until 1:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30. Mr. Coghill, your point of information?

COGHILL: Point of information, Mr. President, I would like to announce a committee meeting of the Committee on Administration to meet at 1 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill announces a meeting of the Committee on Administration to meet at 1 o'clock. Where, Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: In the same committee room as we have been meeting in Before.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to announce that there are post office boxes upstairs in the message center and that there is evidently some mail for some of the delegates that has been there for a few days. That is on the third floor and everyone might take a look up there and see whether or not they have any mail. It will always be delivered to the message center. The question is "Shall the Convention stand at recess until 1:30?" Is there objection? If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30. The Convention is at recess. (12:06 p.m.)

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (1:40 p.m.). Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, during the recess the Rules Committee has had the benefit of the views of a good many of the members and accordingly would like to submit Chapter VIII again in its entirety, and to pave the way for that, I wish to withdraw my earlier motion that Chapter VIII as read be accepted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Riley's unanimous consent request that his motion to withdraw the earlier motion relative to Chapter VIII that his earlier motion be withdrawn? Is there objection? Hearing none it is so ordered. Mr. Riley, you may proceed and read Chapter VIII of the Rules.

RILEY: I won't burden the Convention with the preliminary portion which appears on Page 12 but will start on Page 13 with the word "Motions", which I note is misspelled about one-third of the way down the page.

"Motions "g" through "k" inclusive, preclude debate on the main question. A motion to adjourn, to take a recess, and to adjourn for a longer period than one Convention day shall always be in order;" Now here is new material: provided, however, that before a motion to adjourn is put to a vote, opportunity shall be given for announcements of notice of intention to move reconsideration as hereafter provided. A motion to adjourn for a longer period than one Convention day shall be amendable and debatable. Calls for information, for division of a divisible question, for the yeas and nays, for a standing vote, for a vote by a show of hands, and a motion for reconsideration shall always be in order, but shall not be amendable or debatable."

Now, there has been no further change proposed by the Rules Committee for Rule 34 or 35 which we will submit as read earlier. Rule 36, it comes to mind that we had a preliminary statement there.

DAVIS: "A motion for reconsideration may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side."

RILEY: Thank you. "Notice of intention to move reconsideration of any vote must be stated on the day such vote is taken. A motion to reconsider must be made before the end of the first Plenary Session day after the day on which such vote was taken. The same majority shall be required to adopt a motion to reconsider as was required to take the original action. When a motion for reconsideration is decided, that decision shall not be reconsidered. No question shall be twice reconsidered. No motion for reconsideration shall be in order after the 72nd Convention day. No vote shall be reconsidered upon any of the following motions:

- (a) To adjourn;
- (b) To lay on the table;
- (c) To take from the table; or
- (d) For the previous question."

SWEENEY: Will you repeat the reading of the first line?

RILEY: "A motion for reconsideration may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side." That was responsive to your suggestion, Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Well the motion to reconsider is stated on the second line there is perfectly all right. It is the question regarding the notice of reconsideration which you can make today. For instance, you give notice of reconsideration today and you might make the motion tomorrow and if I'm not on the prevailing side, according to the way that it is written, I could still make it and have a motion made by somebody on the majority side.

RILEY: You don't feel that this clarifies that point?

SWEENEY: I think it should read ". . notice of reconsideration may be made by . ." -- not a motion but a notice. The motion is made after the notice.

RILEY: I see your point -- either notice or the succeeding motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, the first sentence though says, "Notice of intention to move reconsideration of any vote must be stated on the day such vote is taken." Doesn't that take care of it? That is in line with the accepted procedure.

SWEENEY: That is right, Mr. President. My point this morning was that it does not state that the one giving notice must be on the prevailing side. The motion which is made tomorrow must be by one on the prevailing side.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, does the motion have to be made by the one who gives the notice?

RILEY: It would seem implicit even though it doesn't state it. That is your point isn't it?

SWEENEY: I understand how it is supposed to be done but I am just wondering if we got into a hassle here some day and if I were on the minority side, I could move reconsideration today and hope that I could get somebody on the majority side to make the motion tomorrow.

RILEY: Would you accept "neither notice of intention nor motion of reconsideration"?

DAVIS: It should have to be "either" rather than "neither".

SWEENEY: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, do you have that?

RILEY: Without objection from the Rules Committee or any of its members, "Notice of intention for reconsideration and motion for reconsideration may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side."

DAVIS: Would you repeat that please?

RILEY: "Notice of intention for reconsideration and motion for reconsideration may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side." Now to review that -- the next change in that rule was a substitution of "plenary session" for the word "Convention" in the third line of the printed text and to strike in that same sentence everything after the word "taken" and then to insert just before the last sentence in the rule "No motion for reconsideration shall be in order after the 72nd Convention day." Rule 37 will be submitted by the Committee as earlier read as appears in your text.

STEWART: Mr. Riley, I would suggest that you reread Rule 36.

RILEY: Yes, indeed. "Rule 36. Notice of intention for reconsideration and a motion for reconsideration, may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side. Notice of intention to move reconsideration of any vote must be stated on the day such vote is taken. A motion to reconsider must be made before the end of the first plenary session day after the day on which such vote was taken. The same majority shall be required to adopt a motion to reconsider as was required to take the original action. When a motion for reconsideration is decided, that decision shall not be reconsidered. No question shall be twice reconsidered. No motion for reconsideration shall be in order after the 72nd Convention day."

No vote shall be reconsidered upon any of the following motions:

- (a) To adjourn;
- (b) To lay on the table;
- (c) To take from the table; or
- (d) For the previous question"

Rule 37 is unchanged from its former reading from your text.

"Rule 38. No Delegate shall speak more than twice on one motion, or more than once until other Delegates who have not spoken shall speak if they so desire, without first obtaining leave of the Convention. The mover of the proposition shall have the right to speak last, provided that the person in charge of a proposal on third reading and final agreement shall have the right, if he desires to speak last and he may announce such desire at any time before the commencement of the vote on the question."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter VIII of the proposed rules be adopted as Chapter VIII of the permanent rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I don't wish to object to unanimous consent, but I wonder, Mr. Riley, if I might have your consent to change very slightly some of the language which we've just inserted here. I would like to propose that at the beginning of Rule 36 instead of saying "Notice of intention for reconsideration and a motion for reconsideration", etc., which seems to me to be a little awkward, I would propose to say "A motion for reconsideration, as well as the preliminary notice thereof, may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side."

RILEY: I will accept that without any objection from members of the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will assume that was the manner in which the rule was read in the first place. We have before us Mr. Riley's unanimous consent request that Chapter V III of the proposed rules be adopted as Chapter VIII of the permanent rules of the Convention. Is there objection? Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, as a point of order, could all of those changes be dictated to us so that we could make our copies conform? I missed completely, as I know others did, the change in Rule 33, and I think this new suggestion of Mr. Sundborg's should likewise be dictated, as well as the changes in Rule 38.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will hold up the unanimous consent request and, Mr. Riley, would you dictate very slowly again each and every proposed changes in Chapter VIII?

RILEY: On Rule 33 the first change occurs after the word "order" on Page 13, on the left margin, the first word in line 4 of the solid text, semicolon follows "order" and here is new matter: "provided. however, that before a motion to adjourn is put to a vote opportunity shall be given for announcements of notice of intention to move reconsideration as hereinafter provided." I will ask Mr. Sundborg to dictate his change.

SUNDBORG: Page 14, first line after "Rule 36.", a new sentence, "A motion for reconsideration, as well as the preliminary notice thereof, may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side."

JOHNSON: Gentlemen, is the word "preliminary" necessary?

SUNDBORG: I am willing to dispense with it if Mr. Riley is.

RILEY: Yes.

SUNDBORG: Strike the word "preliminary" then it will read, starting again, "Rule 36. A motion for reconsideration, as well as notice thereof, may be made only by a delegate who voted on the prevailing side." That is all inserted ahead of the first sentence in your mimeographed text which begins "Notice of intention", and the next sentence remains just as it was in the mimeographed text.

RILEY: Barring one substitution -- the next change occurs in the second sentence of the mimeographed text, line 3, strike the word "Convention" and substitute the words "Plenary Session", so it reads "first Plenary Session day." On the next line a period goes after the word "taken" and the rest of the sentence as originally written is omitted. The words "and by a Delegate who voted in the majority" are stricken, and then the printed text continues down to the last line. As an insert before the last sentence, this sentence is proposed, "No motion for reconsideration shall be in order after the 72nd Convention day." The last sentence of Rule 36 remains the same as shown on your draft copies. There is no change in Rule 37. Rule 38 reads as follows: "No delegate shall speak more than twice on one motion or more than once until other delegates who have not spoken shall speak if they so desire, without first obtaining leave of the Convention."

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Will you go a little slower on that new matter?

RILEY: That is not new matter. We have stricken all of line 2 of Rule 38, is out, and the first four words on line 3 of Rule 38 are now stricken. The next sentence reads as follows: "The mover of the proposition shall have the right to speak last." The words "close the debate" have been stricken -- provided the person in charge of the proposal on third reading and final agreement shall have the right, if he desires, to speak last" -- same change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So we have before us Mr. Riley's unanimous consent request that Chapter VIII of the proposed rules become Chapter VIII of the permanent rules of the Convention. Is there further objection?

KILCHER: Point of clarification. Rule 38, line 2 and 3, that is stricken or proposed to be stricken? It looks on the surface as if we are getting five minutes there to speak on any matter. Actually, we are curtailing our time by striking these two lines.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, it is the Chair's feeling that Robert's Rules of Order does not limit debate. Robert's Rules of Order I believe leaves it up to the particular assembly that question. There is no restriction as the Chair understands it or remembers it on debate in Robert's Rules of Order.

KILCHER: I accept the information as such.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further question on this request of Mr. Riley's to adopt the proposed rules, proposed chapter No. VIII of the rules as the Chapter No. VIII of the permanent rules of the Convention? If there is no further discussion or objection the question is, "Shall Mr. Riley's request be adopted? All those in favor of adopting Chapter VIII as the permanent Chapter VIII of the Convention Rules say "aye"; all opposed say no". The motion has carried and Chapter VIII has become Chapter VIII of the permanent rules of the Convention. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with Chapter IX.

RILEY: "Chapter IX.

Procedure for Drafting Constitution

Rule 39. Any subject matter to be incorporated in the Constitution shall be by proposal. A proposal shall be introduced only by one or more delegates or by a Standing Committee.

Rule 40. Each proposal shall be typewritten on white paper which is 8 1/2" wide and 11" long with one original copy and five carbon copies thereof, and shall be dated and signed by the introducer(s) or by the Chairman of the Committee introducing it.

RULE 41. The caption of each proposal shall be:

'Constitutional Convention of Alaska

PROPOSAL

Introduced by

(Name of Delegates(s) or

Name of Committee)'"

Now, at this point, it was called to my attention to make this caption consistent with the text immediately above we should insert in parenthesis "date" in the upper right corner so that the files show the chronology of proposal introduction. "Each proposal shall contain a short title stating concisely the general nature of its subject matter. Thereafter the proposal shall state:

"RESOLVED, that the following be agreed upon as part of the Alaska State Constitution."

Rule 42. Each proposal upon introduction shall be delivered to the Secretary, who shall number all proposals as presented. At each session of the Convention the Secretary shall read the number and title of each new proposal, which shall constitute the first reading of the proposal.

Rule 43. Each proposal shall receive three separate readings in the Convention previous to being agreed upon, but no proposal shall be read twice on the same day. Except on the first reading all proposals shall be read in their entirety. Amendment of any proposal may be made only in second reading.

Rule 44. The regular order to be taken by proposals shall be as follows:

1. Introduction and first reading.
2. Reference to a Standing Committee by the President.
3. Report by Standing Committee.
4. Placed on the general orders on the following day.
5. Second reading and action on proposed amendments.
6. Reference to Committee on Style and Drafting.
7. Report by Committee on Style and Drafting.
8. Action on report of Committee on Style and Drafting, and action on amendments as to phraseology only.
9. Third reading and agreement.
10. Reference to the Committee on Style and Drafting for arrangement and numbering of sections and articles and for form.

Rule 45. The President shall refer each proposal introduced to the appropriate Standing Committee. Where a proposal embraces subject matter which falls within the proper consideration of two or more Standing Committees, the President may divide the proposal or he may refer it to one Standing Committee with instructions to consult with other Standing Committees.

Rule 46. The Convention may set a date after which no proposal shall be introduced, except by a Committee.

Rule 47. Each Standing Committee report recommending any matter for incorporation in the Constitution shall be accompanied by a Committee proposal containing a complete article or other appropriate subdivision or group of articles or subdivisions of the Constitution.

Rule 48. A report shall be made by the Standing Committee as to each proposal referred to it. Such report shall state whether the proposal has been:

- (a) adopted in whole or in part in a Committee proposal;
- (b) disapproved;
- (c) disposed of otherwise.

Rule 49. On the question of the agreement upon any proposal on third reading, the vote shall be taken by roll call and entered on the journal of the Convention. No proposal shall be declared adopted unless at least twenty-eight Delegates shall have voted in favor of its adoption.

Rule 50. After the Constitution has been framed and before final agreement thereon, the Convention shall refer the proposed Constitution to the Committee on Style and Drafting for final arrangement in proper order and form. After the report of said Committee, the Convention shall by the affirmative vote of at least twenty-eight Delegates agree upon the final form of the Constitution.

Rule 51. When the Convention shall have agreed upon the final form of the Constitution, the original and at least four copies thereof shall be signed by the President and by the Delegates and attested by the Secretary. Facsimile copies shall then be prepared and certified by the President and delivered to each Delegate."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter IX of the proposed rules as read be adopted.

V. RIVERS: Question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I would like to ask the Chairman of the Rules

Committee, if he -- as a proposal is submitted and receives a number, is the identity of the introducer then dropped? If so, does it say so in the rules?

RILEY: It receives a number -- and I am wondering where that coverage is. Mr. Rivers, there again I will correct myself. It was the feeling of the Committee that the numbering need not be spelled out. We had it in the original draft. I may have to look to some of the Committee members for correction on this. We had a Rule 44 touching on numbering which was stricken altogether. I believe that to retain some mention of the Secretary's numbering documents as they come in -- I would like to hear from any of the Committee members that have a clearer recollection than I.

JOHNSON: It is in Rule 42.

RILEY: Oh yes, Rule 42. Each proposal and I think we will find the same thing about resolutions later, but Rule 44 on your original draft, if you were referring to that, has been stricken in its entirety as being just an administrative process.

V. RIVERS: Do I understand that under the rule now the name of the committee introducing or individuals introducing, will carry along with the number all the way through the handling of the proposal?

RILEY: The identity is lost on a matter introduced by an individual.

V. RIVERS: As long as the records show that, I am satisfied.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that proposed Chapter IX become Chapter IX of the permanent rules of the Convention. Is there objection? Mr. Stewart?

STEWART: No objection, just a suggestion. On Rule 45, the rule that the President shall refer each proposal introduced to the appropriate standing committee-- I think it would be clearer if stated this way: "The President shall refer to the appropriate standing committee each proposal introduced." Otherwise it might read that you are introducing a proposal through the standing committee.

RILEY: Without objection on the part of the Committee I shall accept that suggestion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley states that he is agreeable to accepting that suggestion of Mr. Stewart's with the consent of the Committee. It is just a grammatical rephrasing.

SMITH: Mr. President and Mr. Riley, referring to the last Sentence of Rule 50 I would like to ask if in your opinion this would allow amendment in substance of the provisions of the constitution up to that point?

RILEY: It is open to amendment in second reading. That would be Point 5 under Rule 44, and then it goes back under your succeeding steps to Style and Drafting for action on amendments as to phrasing only. I would say that no substitute amendment could be made at the point described in Rule 50.

SMITH: Well, Mr. President, I will then enter an objection to unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith objects to the unanimous consent request.

RILEY: Let me say this in further reply. You will see that the Committee on Style and Drafting must report back to the body, and acts on amendments as to phraseology only. Rule 50 is descriptive of that process as I read it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is nothing before us then.

RILEY: I move adoption.

SUNDBORG: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves the adoption of the proposed Chapter IX to become the permanent rules of the Convention, seconded by Mr. Sundborg. The motion is open for discussion.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment to Rule 50 and the amendment is in the form of an addition and will read as follows: "Every provision of the Constitution shall be open to amendment in substance until such time as the Convention shall have agreed upon the final form of the Constitution. Provided that any amendment provision shall be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting for proper wording."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you so move the adoption of that amendment, Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I do move the adoption.

KILCHER: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, Rule No. 50 does not preclude at any time the referral of the complete constitution back into second reading for the purpose of specific amendment. It never precludes that possibility. So until the time the final vote is taken after approval in final form it can always be referred to the committee for the purpose of putting in the amendments. Consequently, it would appear to me that your additions there are already taken care of in the formal procedure of the rule.

SUNDBORG: Our Rule 43 says in its final sentence, Page 16, "Amendment of any proposal may be made only in second reading." If we adopt Mr. Smith's amendment we would be permitting amendment in third reading. I believe it is a most orderly process to return a portion of the constitution to second reading which may be done by the body at any time if it appears an amendment is in order and that we should not permit amendment of portions of the constitution in third reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it occurs to me that that is correct procedure, and I certainly believe that if we adopt this amendment we never will get a constitution. We will be amending it all the time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, if Mr. Smith also desires to, I should like to have a couple minutes of recess to discuss the matter with him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention is at recess for a few minutes.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Smith, did you have the floor?

SMITH: Mr. President, I still am not convinced that the amendment does not have merit, unless someone can show me where the action explained by Mr. McCutcheon can be taken by a simple majority vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, you are raising a question there to return to second reading for specific amendment would take a two-third majority vote of the Convention? That is the question that is in your mind? Mr. Nolan?

NOLAN: Mr. President, we have been following the majority rule all the way through here and that was my intention. I think it would be a good time to clear it up and move it be referred to the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nolan asks unanimous consent that this question be referred to the Rules Committee. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, the Convention stands at recess while the Rules Committee considers this question. The Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, the Rules Committee, or the Chairman speaking for the Rules Committee, renews its request that Chapter IX as read be adopted by unanimous consent as a part of the permanent rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We still have before us Mr. Smith's motion, Mr. Riley, to amend Rule No. 50, adding a new sentence at the end of that rule. Is that not correct?

RILEY: You are right.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith's motion is the matter of business before us at this time. Is there further discussion of the motion by Mr. Smith? Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to ask first that the proposed amendment be read. I handed my copy to the Secretary I believe.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will read the proposed amendment as submitted by Mr. Smith.

CHIEF CLERK: Is this sentence to be added at the end of the paragraph? "Every provision of the Constitution shall be open to amendment in substance until such time as the Convention shall have agreed upon the final form of the Constitution. Provided that any amendment provision shall be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting for proper wording."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the reading of the motion. Is there discussion of the motion? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, to be frank with all of you, I am not nearly so sure as I was before of the necessity of this amendment, although there is still a strong doubt in my mind whether it is proper to leave Rule 50 as it now stands. I have tried to explain my feelings here several times, and I don't know whether I have at any time succeeded in making my thoughts clear. But my thoughts again are this: We are going to have to consider the provisions of this constitution in a piecemeal or haphazard manner. In other words, the provisions will come in as individual provisions and they will be considered as such, and my thought is that after the provision has been adopted, that under Rule 50, it is no longer subject to change. That means that if this provision is not in conflict with another provision, but if it is such that a change in a later provision might be to the advantage, might strengthen the Constitution, that change would not be possible under Rule 50. And I think to give the Convention a chance to decide this question on its merits that I will ask that the amendment be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That motion has already been made by yourself, Mr. Smith. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: For the members who were not sitting in on the Rules Committee the issue might be obscure. The way Rule 50 is written, it does not provide that the entire document when it is finally put together by the Committee on Style and Drafting shall be put through a second reading. It simply says that all portions of the constitution which have been adopted and which have been debated and thereafter put together are brought back to us in a final form as one final document. Now the Rules Committee is confronted with this. If someone wants to offer an amendment to any part of this final document, then a motion would be in order to put that particular portion back into second reading for specific amendment. That takes a two-third majority vote. The author of this proposed amendment here thinks that that should be done by a plain majority vote. In other words, in effect Mr. Smith, supported by Mr. Kilcher, would favor putting the whole document through a second reading at which time the amendatory process could be invoked as a matter of right. Now the Committee then discussed this, we have controversial points as we go along section by section, article by article. We debate those We resolve them. If you will throw the entire document open to the amendatory process by putting the entire document through a second reading, those same arguments can be debated step by step all over again and you begin to wonder whether we will ever get a constitution written or not. The only other alternative is, if the people who want to amend the final document without putting it through a second reading can get the support necessary they will move to suspend the rules to put the particular portion back into second reading for specific amendment and that will take a two-thirds vote. That is the issue before us. I personally subscribe, after thinking it over, although I recognize the points that Mr. Smith has, I think that it would not be advisable to put the whole document through a second reading and fight the whole battle all over again. If there is real merit to a desire for a change of a particular provision or a specific point, then there will be no trouble getting a two-thirds majority to suspend the rule to put that particular point back into the second reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I subscribe to Mr. Smith's amendment at this time. I feel that until the need for the more stringent rule is manifest that we should at this time resolve the doubts in favor of easy amendments, amendments that can be Made quickly and expeditiously. The argument of those who take the opposite side seems to me that it might be predicated upon the assumption that some in this body are going to use obstructionist or dilatory tactics, and that we should take out insurance at this time to avoid that. I see no indication of such an eventuality or possibility, so at this time let us take the more liberal approach, the easy approach. Then if the necessity develops for a more limited rule then I have enough faith in this body to think that we will adopt it without any trouble at all, but not now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I believe that any proposal should be amended at any time that it can be improved. However, I am in favor of the two-thirds vote because under that rule it will not be returned to second reading unless it is necessary, and if it is necessary it can be returned to second reading. If it is returned to second reading by a simple majority vote we actually won't have any rule. Practically anyone can do as he pleases. It is like sitting in on a poker game and making your own rules as you go along or doing things when you want to, not when they are supposed to. I believe we should have a rule like that to expedite business and to keep too many people from wanting to make unnecessary amendments. If an amendment is necessary I am sure we can get a two-thirds vote to return to second reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the proposed amendment? Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. President, I think it is fair to present my and Mr. Smith's point of view further on the floor. We all assume the element of good faith present. It has existed so far and we hope to see it in the future and the remarks that were made with regard to having to hash the whole thing over again item for item, I think was not really meant the way it sounded because we are not hashing things through now I think. We are working through them as best as we can. I for one will be more than glad if 95 percent, 98 percent of all the committee work done will stay done. However, the possible two or three percent that it may be desirable to change may not be desirable to a two-thirds majority necessarily. It may be desirable to a 51 percent majority. It may be desirable to change a matter of substance in the final draft as much as a same item may be desirable to change when it goes through committee but as it goes through committee we have not got all the facts available in certain matters. As Mr. Smith said, we are forced by circumstances, we have adopted committee suggestions on these matters, we are forced to treat them to some extent haphazard. Even if we establish an order as much as we can foresee, consecutive order, delays and so forth will come out, like a horse race -- one horse will go ahead of the other one. We can't foresee that, so we will necessarily have a certain amount of disorder in our subject matter. I can very well see that a subject will come up and with the very best of intentions, I will vote with the possible 51 percent majority for a certain proposal pertaining to the powers of the executive. It will go through all the committee readings, will be accepted as final, as far as 50 percent voting it is final. However, three weeks later, when local government or apportionment or some other committee comes with another part of the picture that we have not foreseen -- we are not prophets that will throw a new light on the whole situation. I maybe have given my consent to the executive having more power than I feel now is good in view of the fact that local government is not given enough power, or vice versa, so I receive the same 50 percent majority right to change in substance that which I was not able to decide properly three weeks ago. And I consider that in essence committee reports should be tentative, although we hope and I am confident that 90 some percent of their reports will be final. The matter is one of philosophy in that respect. Shall we have a final document the last two days and assume that the committees are infallible or shall the committees, all of us, do the best work in the committees and then reconsider in the light of the final report possible adjustments in substance. I adhere to this latter school of thought, and I owe it to my constituents to give this matter some thought.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: For information, following the line of Delegate Hellenthal here, can we at a later date, if we want to keep this open on only a majority vote now for discussion, tighten up on these rules and put this rule in effect without too much difficulty?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, you are asking if this rule is adopted now, can we at a later date with a majority vote change that rule?

MARSTON: No. If it is not adopted now and becomes necessary to make a provision which this rule calls for a two-thirds vote, can we then invoke that two-thirds vote?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would mean that you would be changing the rules and it would take a two-thirds majority vote at that time.

MARSTON: But it could be done?

PRESIDENT EGAN: With a two-thirds majority vote, yes. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Commenting on Mr. Marston's remarks, I would further state that in case undue advantage should be taken of the proposed amendment, then I do not doubt at all that a two-thirds vote to change the rule to throw it back on the two-thirds majority would easily be obtained for undue taking advantage. I would agree myself, I would vote for it myself, to tighten the rules up then after I had been shown on the floor that undue advantage had been taken.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, writing this constitution is going to be a very slow and a very painful process which is going to be safeguarded every step of the way by these rules which I think are just right the way they are now written. There will be many subjects come up which will be controversial in nature. They will be considered not only by the committees but on the floor of this Convention and they will be resolved by a simple majority vote. I believe that after they have been resolved they should not again later be opened up to jeopardy when there may have been some log-rolling in the interval -- you vote to change this provision and I will vote to change that one", where there may have been some lobbying in the interval, with people coming down here and exerting pressure in cases where it would take only one or two changes of votes in order to completely change the earlier decision of the Convention on any subject. I believe that once we have decided a question before this Convention substantively, that should be it and that later, if there is a good reason for changing it, when we see the final document all in order before us, we could then very easily muster a two-thirds vote to put back in second reading the portions of the proposed constitution which the delegates would like to change, but I would not like at that point to be able to do so by a simple majority vote because I don't think we would ever finish with the constitution under those circumstances.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves the previous question.

MCCUTCHEON: Second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the previous question be ordered. All those in favor of ordering the previous question say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall Mr. Smith's motion amending Rule 50 be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of Mr. Smith's motion signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and Mr. Smith's motion has failed. The question now is Mr. Riley's motion to adopt the proposed Chapter IX as the permanent Chapter IX of the standing rules of the Convention. Is there further discussion on that motion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion, the question is to adopt Chapter IX which is Rule 39 through Rule 51.

KILCHER: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard from Mr. Kilcher. It is open for discussion.

DAVIS: Has there been a second to Mr. Riley's motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It was moved and seconded previously Mr. Davis, but it is still open for discussion until we call for the vote, Mr. Kilcher. You may discuss it.

KILCHER: If I make another amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is still open for amendment.

KILCHER: Well, I move to amend -- let's see, it's not an amendment -- I would like to have this particular motion on this particular rule tabled until later, tomorrow for further consideration and thought and study.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is your wish, Mr. Kilcher? You should move then that Mr. Riley's motion be laid on the table and the Chair will help you in stating the motion if that seems to be your desire to make that motion, that is the way you do it.

KILCHER: Can I state the reasons for it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, the motion is undebatable. If you want to make the motion that is up to you.

KILCHER: Well, I herewith make that motion to table that decision on this rule and the first order tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher moves that Mr. Riley's motion be laid on the table until tomorrow. Is there a second to the motion? Hearing no second, the motion of Mr. Kilcher dies for lack of a second.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion the question is on whether or not the Convention will adopt the proposed Chapter IX as the permanent Chapter IX of the Convention rules.

All in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". Mr. Riley's motion has carried and Chapter IX of the proposed rules has now become Chapter IX of the standing rules of the Convention. Mr. Riley you may proceed with Chapter X.

RILEY: "Chapter X,

Resolutions and Ordinances

Rule 52. Consideration of ordinances required by the Act establishing the Constitutional Convention or otherwise as introduced by Delegates or Standing Committees shall follow the same procedure as is provided by these rules for proposals.

Rule 53. Resolutions relating to the business of the Convention may be introduced as provided by these rules and their consideration shall follow the same procedure as is provided by these rules for motions."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter X as read be adopted and incorporated in the permanent rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves and asks unanimous consent that the proposed Chapter X of the rules become Chapter X of the permanent rules of the Convention. Is there objection or discussion? Hearing no objection, Mr. Riley's request has carried and Chapter X has become the permanent Chapter X of the permanent rules of the Convention. Mr. Riley, you may proceed with Chapter XI.

RILEY: "Chapter XI,

General Provisions

Rule 54. When a motion to adjourn, or for recess, shall be carried, no delegate or officer shall leave his place until the adjournment or recess shall be declared by the President.

Rule 55. Any delegate may at any time rise and speak to a question of personal privilege.

Rule 56. No delegate rising to speak shall proceed until he shall have addressed the President and been recognized by him as entitled to the floor.

Rule 57. While the President is putting a question or a count is being had, no delegate shall speak or leave his place. While a member is speaking no delegate shall engage in any private discourse or pass between the speaker and the chair.

Rule 58. Only Delegates and Officers of the Convention shall be admitted to the floor of the Convention, except that the President shall designate, by name, representatives of the press, staff assistants, or others that may be admitted. Privileges of the floor may be extended by unanimous consent to other persons.

Rule 59. Any rule of the Convention may be suspended, repealed or amended, by a vote of at least two-thirds of the membership to which the Convention is entitled.

Rule 60. The rules of parliamentary practice set forth in Robert's Rules of Order, Revised shall apply in all cases which are not covered by or are not inconsistent with the rules of the Convention."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Chapter XI as read be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that Chapter XI as read of the proposed rules be adopted as Chapter XI of the permanent rules of the Convention. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: I have no objection, Mr. President, but I would like to point out what is an obvious punctuation error on Page 19, Rule 59. In the second line there should be no apostrophe in the word "thirds". That should be eliminated. I ask unanimous consent to include that in Mr. Riley's unanimous consent request.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Riley, that will be included in your unanimous consent request. Mr. Stewart?

STEWART: In Rule 54, as I understood the reading, ". . no delegate or officer shall leave his place until the adjournment or recess . ." My copy reads "be declared" and I understood the reading to have been, "or recess shall have been declared".

RILEY: "shall be declared" is how it appears in the text.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request of Mr. Riley. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I would like to ask a question of Mr. Riley.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may ask the question.

ROBERTSON: Why is it considered necessary in Rule 58 that ". .privileges of the floor may be extended by unanimous consent.. ." Wouldn't the two-thirds rule protect the Convention?

RILEY: I know of no reason Mr. Robertson, why unanimous consent is necessary but that was the position taken by the Committee. It has been my observation in the past that unanimous consent is ordinarily the procedure adopted for granting the privilege of the floor.

ROBERTSON: I am content with the explanation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any objection to the unanimous consent request of Mr. Riley for the adoption of the proposed Chapter XI as the permanent Chapter XI of the Convention rules? Hearing no objection Chapter XI of the proposed rules is ordered adopted as Chapter XI of the permanent rules of the Convention.

RILEY: Mr. President, I would like to refer back to Page 3 of this particular draft of the rules to another matter which has been discussed in one of the Rules Committee recesses today. It has to do with paragraph "b" on Page 3 concerning appeals from the Chair. Now this particular rule was adopted this morning. This rule as adopted is identical to the draft which was submitted by the PAS through the Statehood Committee. However, it is more stringent and perhaps more time consuming than any previous rule adopted by deliberative bodies in Alaska on this particular point, and the Rules Committee would like to supplement its earlier report on this particular subdivision in order to propose it to the body in the following form: "He", (meaning the President), shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal to the Convention". In short, that intermediate appeal to the Rules Committee is removed. The rest of the subparagraph remains the same. I should like to ask unanimous consent at this time that this particular paragraph be adopted superseding that adopted this morning as paragraph "b" under that particular rule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, if the Chair may, now in that proposed amendment that you offered, did you strike the words on the second line in little subsection u , the words "and thereafter to the Convention" also?

RILEY: No. I struck "to the Rules Committee and thereafter". "He shall decide all questions of order, subject to appeal to the Convention."

PRESIDENT EGAN: And then you strike all words after that? If you didn't how would it read then?

RILEY: "On every appeal he shall have the right, in his place, to assign his reason for his decision. In the case of such appeal no member shall speak more than once."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The reason the Chair is asking that, it would seem to the Chair that it will now read, "He shall decide all questions of order subject to appeal to the Convention and thereafter to the Convention."

RILEY: No, that was not my purpose. It may not have been clear but it was just taking out the intermediate step.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask unanimous consent that the amendment to subsection "b" of Rule No. 6 be adopted?

RILEY: Rule 6, subdivision "b", yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Riley's unanimous consent request? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the amendment is adopted.

RILEY: In line with our remarks this morning I should like now to ask, Mr. President, for unanimous consent to the adoption of this body of rules as adopted rule by rule throughout the day to be the permanent rules of this Convention, and to supercede all previous action taken.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: As long as we are being quite particular about commas and wording, I should like to propose that on Page 7, subsection "c", in the second line, that the word, and I shall spell it, "w-o-r-d" be substituted for the word "edit", the reason being that the word "edit" has an accepted definition which is change in substance, and I am sure that that is not the intent of the rule because the qualifying language so indicates, but if we are going to be precise I think we should avoid the use of that word in the most important rule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent for the adoption of that amendment, Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection?

JOHNSON: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. We have nothing before us. Is there a motion?

HELLENTHAL: I so move, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal so moves.

SMITH: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith seconds the motion. The subject is open for discussion. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it occurs to me that if you change that word "edit" for the word, "word" you change the intent and meaning of the section, because by using the word "word" you have given to the Committee on Style and Drafting the power to add or take away the substance of the proposal, whereas their job is to "edit" it, and it seems to me that the word is correctly used.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I am of the opinion that Mr. Johnson has it backwards. Maybe I have it backwards, but the word "edit" to me would connote to me the right to change in substance, and that the Committee on Style and Drafting is precluded from doing by the rules, so I think the word, "word" is correct.

HERMANN: I would rather use the word "phrase".

HELLENTHAL: I have no objection to the word "phrase" as Mrs. Hermann suggests, and I amend my motion accordingly with the consent of my second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal then with the consent of his second, asks unanimous consent that on the second line of subsection "c" on Page 7, the word "edit" be deleted and the word "phrase" be inserted in its place. Is there objection?

BARR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr objects.

HELLENTHAL: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal so moves.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, we seem to disagree on what the word "edit" means. I agree if you "edit" something you can't change the meaning but also it means more than that. It means changing the punctuation and a lot of minor things. Now if we leave the word "edit" in there, it means they can do all that, but down here in the next sentence it specifically prohibits them from changing the meaning. Therefore, you can edit it completely with the exception of changing the meaning. If you put the word "word" there, that prohibits them from doing anything except changing the word, so I think we should leave it the way it is. Under this rule they cannot change the meaning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of the proposed amendment? Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, Delegate Barr's statement sounds rather clear and convincing to me.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion the question is, "Shall Mr. Hellenthal's amendment be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of the amendment say "aye", all opposed say "no". The noes have it and the amendment has failed. Are there other amendments to the proposed standing rules of the Convention?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, your motion was a unanimous consent request, was it?

RILEY: The motion now I believe was that the rules as of now adopted individually or by chapter be in their entirety adopted, and supersede earlier adopted temporary rules, any earlier adopted rules as the permanent rules of this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, you ask unanimous consent, is that right?

RILEY: I do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Riley's request. Is there objection? Hearing no objection then the rules as they have been adopted here have become the standing rules of the Convention and supersede any previous rules that have been adopted. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to prepare a complete copy of the rules as adopted and furnish one copy to each delegate.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to have a copy of the rules as adopted available for each delegate. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter to the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce expressing the appreciation of the Convention for the souvenir booklet, which were prepared under its direction, for the work it has done in helping to house the delegates, for the invitation it has extended to us to attend a social function Wednesday evening and for the work of its hospitality committee generally.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the letter will be written by the Chief Clerk to the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I move that it is the policy and intent of this Convention that the constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic law, and contain only the framework for state government, with all the details to be ordained in the discretion of future legislatures, and I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Robertson's request. He asks unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted as a policy of the Convention. Is there objection?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to object to the use of the word "all". It might be construed to prevent "any".

ROBERTSON: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson so moves.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion. The matter is open for discussion.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move to amend the motion to provide that Mr. Robertson's proposal be referred to the Rules Committee for report.

HERMANN: I second that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and Mrs. Hermann seconds that the proposal by Mr. Robertson be amended so that the proposal will be sent to the Rules Committee for its consideration and report. The subject of the amendment to Mr. Robertson's motion is open for discussion. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President. I don't think my motion is anything more than a simple motion. It is not a proposal within the terms of a defined proposal as just set out in the rules that we just recently adopted, and my thought is that that is the sentiment, generally of the members of the Convention and I thought it appropriate to put something on record just before the committees go out to commence their work so they might know that we are going to try to keep it fundamental and basic law instead of trying to get statutes, that is, having people bring in statutes, and that is the reason for my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any discussion on the amendment to the motion? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I certainly don't oppose the sentiment expressed by Mr. Robertson's statement but I feel it would be an orderly process on anything as fundamental as this which purports to express the policy of this Convention, that it should go through a committee for study before it comes before this body for action on the floor and that was the purpose of my motion.

JOHNSON: Point of order, Mr. President. We have just adopted a rule on resolutions which says that they shall be treated in the same manner as motions. It would appear then that it is not necessary for any committee reference.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Ordinarily it would not be, Mr. Johnson, but it would be up to the wish of the Convention so long as someone asks that it be done.

JOHNSON: I did not understand that Mr. Sundborg's motion was a suspension of the rules. If it is, that is different.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I want to comment on this resolution in view of the possibility it may not be referred to committee. If it is going to be referred to committee I will comment on it after it comes out. Now what is the thought on that? What is your ruling on that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under those circumstances Mr. Rivers, the Chair believes it should possibly wait until after the vote on this proposed amendment as has been consummated by the delegates.

V. RIVERS: I would like to speak on it if the floor is open for discussion. I feel that the intent of this resolution is a good one, the idea being that I think practically all of us have expressed the intention that we shall try to confine the constitution to fundamentals. However, for us to start circumscribing the authority that lies within this body, as a final body by a resolution establishing policy now, to my way of thinking, could be at least, very limiting in our final action. It is something that could enter into every debate. It is something that could enter into every expression of opinion or proposal brought on to this floor and it could extend to a great degree the debate that might occur on this floor during the discussion of any proposal and that of course would all rest around the concept of what was fundamental law and what was legislative or constitutional law. So I feel that I would, for one, have to oppose this blanket expression of policy by this group, that would have a tendency to limit the power and circumscribe the action of this group in anyway whatsoever.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, with the consent of my second I will withdraw the words "policy" and just leave it as the "intent".

JOHNSON: I will consent to the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson consents to the amendment. Is there objection to Mr. Robertson's request? The Chair realizes an amendment to the particular motion is also before us. Do you object, Mr. Sundborg, to changing it?

SUNDBORG: I would like to make an inquiry of the Chair -- whether he intends to treat Mr. Robertson's in the manner specified by our rules for the handling of resolutions? In other words, it has to be introduced on a certain size piece of paper, it has to carry a particular heading, it has to be handed to the Secretary who shall give it a number, it shall then be referred to certain committees and to the Committee on Style and Drafting, all before it is adopted, If that is going to happen I have no objection to Mr. Robertson bringing in his resolution, but if we are going to vote on it here and now I certainly do object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under Rule 53, Mr. Sundborg, it states resolutions relating to the business of the Convention may be introduced as provided by these rules and their consideration shall follow the same procedure as provided by these rules for motions, which, unless there is another rule, is possibly contradictory to other provisions that are contained previously in the rules. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I wonder if someone would then read to us what is the procedure as outlined in these rules for motions? What rule covers that?

RILEY: Rule 31.

PRESIDENT EGAN: "When a motion is made it shall be stated by the President or, if in writing, it shall be read aloud before debate."

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would then like to move to amend Mr. Robertson's motion to provide that his resolution shall be referred to the Committee on Rules for a report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, your motion is already pending on that particular question.

SUNDBORG: He changed his original motion didn't he, which I thought carried my amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No. It hasn't been changed yet, Mr. Sundborg. If no one objects to Mr. Robertson changing the word "policy" to read "intent" in the original motion, if you as the maker of the proposed amendment do not object and the second does not object, then the Chair will declare that in the original resolution that the motion has relation to, will carry the word "intent" instead of "policy". Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I might say that I have no objection to my simple motion being referred to the Committee on Rules if that is what Mr. Sundborg desires, that is entirely agreeable to me.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any objection to the resolution, to the motion relating to the resolution by Mr. Robertson being referred to the Committee on Rules? Is there objection? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I am wondering why the resolution should be referred to the Committee on Rules when we have a Committee on Ordinances and Resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, your point is pretty well taken.

SUNDBORG: With the consent of my second I will amend my motion, amending Mr. Robertson's motion, to provide that it shall be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request. Your point of order, Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order. As I understood it, the matter was a motion rather than a resolution. Is that true?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon, the position the Chair is in, is this. Mr. Robertson read, as the Chair understands it, read the particular matter in question as if it were a resolution.

ROBERTSON: I beg to differ with you. I just moved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the Chair stands corrected. Then it is just a motion.

MCCUTCHEON: My point of order, Mr. President is, if it is just a motion then we have no right to try to refer it to a committee. It should be acted upon on the floor. If it is a resolution, then it properly goes to a committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was the position the Chair was holding on. If it is not a resolution then it is a matter to be acted upon on the floor. You are correct, Mr. McCutcheon. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I dislike taking up more time on this, but as I recall it, it said, "Be it resolved" is that not the first word? May I have the motion read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk read the particular subject to us.

CHIEF CLERK: "I move that it is the policy and intent of this Convention that the constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic law, and contain only the framework for state government, with all the details to be ordained in the discretion of future legislatures."

HERMANN: I don't think the fact that that begins with the words "I move" changes it from being a resolution. You don't move a policy, you move to do something.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal has the floor.

HELLENTHAL: My point is along Mrs. Hermann's lines. The label does not determine whether a matter is a motion or a resolution but it is the content that determines it. Matters of a permanent important nature of lasting duration are commonly referred to as resolutions. Matters of a transitory nature are handled by motions. The label is unimportant the substance is what counts. Now I could move that the senate of the state of Alaska be composed of 77 members. I would certainly feel that my motion should be referred to the Legislative Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then, if there is no objection, the Chair the motion as amended will be referred to the Committee on Resolutions. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, are you still on the order of committee reports?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the position we are in right now Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Does the Chair wish to recognize the Committee on Administration for Report No. 1?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If you have Report No. 1, you are recognized.

COGHILL: I would like to request a two-minute "at ease" for the Convention in order to distribute mimeographed copies of the reports to all the Convention delegates.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will be at ease for two minutes. The Convention is at ease. The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill, you can proceed with the reading of the Committee report.

COGHILL: Mr. President, your Committee on Convention Administration respectfully submits the following report, Report No. 1 which was read to you yesterday, and you all have a copy. I might interject here, Mr. President, do you wish to have these adopted as subsections or do you wish to have the whole report read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair feels you should go through at least to Page 3.

COGHILL: "For purposes of planning the balanced and coordinated use of the Convention appropriations so as to carry out the intent of Chapter 46, SLA 1955, your committee has prepared a tentative allocation of the funds available to the Convention. This allocation is predicated on the possibility of the Convention's lasting the full period of 75 days and therefore indicates the maximum liabilities which might be incurred. The budget is not intended to restrict the later adjustment of particular items, should necessities demand changes, and does not by this allocation authorize any expenditure of funds, without the approval of the Convention. The tentative allocation is as follows:

TENTATIVE ESTIMATE OF COSTS

GRANT TOTAL:

Estimated Convention Costs: $262,000."

I might interject here, Mr. President, there was an error made on that and it should be $27,000 instead of $28,000. This is on item 2 under C so will you correct that on your copy?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the Chair feels that at this point that before we go on to the explanation of allocations that anyone who desires to bring up any question on the sections that have been previously read, it would be in order. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I would like to ask Mr. Coghill if that correction he made has to do with the salaries of the three clerk-typists at $21.00 a day, which I get to be $5,040 instead of $3,360.

COGHILL: There is a $1,000 error if I remember correctly, in the addition of it. That would raise it and diminish that other.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Convention may be at ease for a few moments. The Convention is at ease. The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: It was probably an oversight in getting the draft worked up here. The clerk-typists would read $5,040. The total personnel services would be $31,813. Your miscellaneous item would then be reduced to $25,840. Your miscellaneous is actually a balancing fund of what we have left in our $262,000. It is the total amount of money that your Committee is endowed with.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, may I address a question to Mr. Coghill? Is it not possible that rather than the monetary figure being incorrect, your number of clerk-typists is incorrect? If that had been two instead of three your sum of $3,360 would have been correct.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is supposed to be three, Mr. White. Mr. Stewart said three is correct. Is there other discussion on the salaries or other expenses so far? Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I would like to ask a question. Has any estimate been made on the cost of the approval of the constitution, on the referendum?

COGHILL: On the election itself -- no we have not. The ratification election will be incorporated into that $25,840, one of the items that we have considered, but we haven't come out with an allocation yet because it will take a little study to figure just what proportion we will have to pay if it is put on the primary election basis.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further questioning? If there are no further questions, Mr. Coghill, you may proceed with the "Explanation of Allocations.

COGHILL: "EXPLANATION OF ALLOCATIONS

APPROPRIATIONS FOR CONVENTION: The appropriation of $300,000 was initially diminished approximately $38,000 by the expenses of the election of Delegates, and there is now available to the Convention $262,000.

ESTIMATED CONVENTION COSTS:

A. DELEGATES: The costs indicated in this item are fixed by the terms of Chapter 46, SLA 1955. 79 days are shown to include four extra days for travel to and from the Convention."

You will notice that is on the per diem only as amended on my report on Saturday. This is at the end of "Convention" at the end of "A " under "Estimated Convention Costs".

"B. SECRETARIAT:

1. This item is recommended as the table of organization of permanently assigned staff personnel with salary figures as shown. The salary scale is based on the schedule used by the 1955 Alaska Legislature for similar positions, plus a 15% increase. This increased scale is recommended because of the temporary and specialized nature of the work, and the increase is commensurate with that allowed to teachers in the Second and Fourth Divisions as compared to teachers in the First Division. The Committee recommends that the employment and discharge of staff employees be placed in the discretion of the Secretary. It is contemplated that some of the positions indicated may not be filled until the work load increases, and recommendations for additional part-time personnel may be later made. The salaries indicated would be paid for each calendar day during the full session of the Convention except for any recess called pursuant to Section 1 of Chapter 46, SLA 1955. No overtime salaries will be paid, but the personnel will be engaged with the understanding that overtime work necessary is compensated for by the regular salary.

2. Salary of the Secretary: The Committee recommends that the salary of the Secretary, as stated in the estimate of costs, which is the same amount received in his capacity as Executive Officer of the Alaska Statehood Committee be continued together with the regular Territorial per diem of $12.00; and it further recommends that this salary be paid by reimbursing the Statehood Committee for such salary and per diem for the period commencing November 8, 1955, to the time of final adjournment of the Convention.

3. The item for other staff expenses is intended to cover any contingent expenses that may arise and be authorized for payment by the Committee on Administration.

4. The item tentatively allocated for technical and consulting services is shown in the same amount as was budgeted in the report of the Statehood and Federal Relations Committees of the 1955 Legislature to the full Legislature in recommending the appropriation of $300,000. When technical and consulting services may be requested by the Convention, this amount will be available.

5. The item tentatively allocated for equipment is to cover the obtaining of typewriters, mimeograph machines and such other equipment and furniture as may be necessary.

6. The item tentatively allocated for supplies and postage is to cover the purchase of stationary supplies of all kinds, including letterhead stationary for the Convention for the use of Delegates bearing the names of all Delegates on a margin, postage for official mail of the Convention, and other necessary supplies.

7. The recording item is allocated for the possibility of the making of a tape recording of the plenary sessions.

8. The item for postage is allocated as an allowance of $25.00 for each Delegate.

C. OTHER CONVENTION COSTS:

1. The item for printing of the Constitution is intended to provide for the printing of copies of the Constitution as finally drafted.

2. The item for miscellaneous expenses is the otherwise unallocated balance of available convention funds.

OTHER MATTERS

It was further determined to recommend as follows:

1. Weekly pay: That all employees and Delegates be paid weekly.

2. Committee Rooms: That the recommendations of the Secretary as to committee room locations be accepted and the Secretary asked to report said room locations to committee chairmen.

3. Lockers for Delegates: That lockers be provided for each Delegate without cost to the body except for drayage.

4. Bus Transportation: That the Secretary make recommendations to the committee as to daily bus transportation for Delegates and for administrative and technical staff, at the expense of Delegates and staff.

5. Privacy of Convention Floor: That the floor of the Convention Hall be appropriately designated by ropes across posts.

6. Expenditure of Funds: That the Secretary be authorized to incur obligations for the purposes budgeted for the period November 8, 1955 to date of final adjournment, provided that approval of the Committee of Administration is first obtained as to any one item exceeding one hundred dollars in cost.

7. Reports and Records: That the secretary maintain such records and render such reports on financial matters as may be requested by the Committee.

8. Flags: That suitable Alaskan and American flags be procured for the Convention Hall.

9. Desks and Chairs: That the matter of desks and chairs for Delegates be explored.

10. Daily Prayers: That henceforth prayers imporing the assistance of Almighty God and His blessings upon our deliberations be held in the Assembly every morning before undertaking the daily business of the body, and that one or more of the clergy of the area be invited to officiate in that service and that the Secretary be requested to make the necessary arrangements."

PRESIDENT DEGAN: Is there discussion of this report?

COGHILL: I move and ask unanimous consent that the report be adopted as read.

BUCKALEW: Object.

NOLAN: I raise a question on Page 7.

COGHILL: I so move.

BARR: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved by Mr. Coghill and seconded by Mr. Barr that the report of the Committee on Administration be adopted.

NOLAN: I would like to raise a question on Page 7, subsection 6. That looks to me like he is kcut off from I curring any indebtedness after that date, and it will be necessary in the clostig up of the work of the Convention for him to incure certain expenses in order to wind it all up, and I think it should be reworted there. There will be obligations coming up, Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would move then to amend item 6,

Page 7, in its third line by striking after "1955j" the words "to date of final adjournment" and inserting in lieu thereof "until the work of the Convention and its secretariat may be completed," and I ask unanimous consent.

HERMANN: Mr. President..

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent for the adoption of that amendment. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: On Page 4, section 2, that same statement appears -- "to the time of final adjournment of the Convention," and I think the amendment might cover both of those.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you accede to that suggestion, Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Is that in the section dealing with the salary of the Secretary? I think that we should probably tie down somehow, how long after the adjournment of the Convention the secretariat could continue to work. I think it is a little different problem than the one brought up on Page 7. Conceivably the Secretary could continue to work on matters of this Convention for the next ten years.

HERMANN: I think that might be true.

SUNDBORG: I will just confine my unanimous consent request to the language outlined on Page 7 for this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg offers an amendment on Page 7, section 6, line 3, striking the words "to date of final adjournment" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "until the work of the Convention and its secretariat may be completed." Is there objection? Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: Mr. President, as I read it here the day of the final adjournment will be somewhat simultaneous with the discharge of the administration. If he works beyond the Convention who will he appeal to if he wants to spend over one hundred dollars for any one item?

NOLAN: The President will probably have to stay here for a while and he is authorized, I think, to sign the vouchers.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I was wondering if there was any conflict, I was thinking about the election after the Convention. Of course, that is the big duty of the President of the Convention to certify the vouchers there. I believe under the Act -- I raise this point for discussion, of course. The money that is expended by the Secretary will first have to be disbursed to him by the President in order to comply with the terms of the law.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This is only to incur the obligation, Mr. McNealy.

COGHILL: I might add that the thought of the Committee was there to allow the Secretary leeway on a working fund so that the President of the Convention and the Committee on Administration would not be bothered with signing the voucher for a box of thumb tacks or such other items, and that is why the allowance was made there. That was the intent of the Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have before you then the unanimous consent request of Mr. Sundborg to make that change on line 3 of Page 7, lines 3 and 4. Is there objection? Is there objection to adopting the unanimous consent request of Mr. Sundborg? If not, the request is adopted by the Convention and so ordered.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move further to amend the motion of the Chairman of the Committee on Administration. On Page 4, the last sentence in Subsection 1, strike the entire sentence. It now reads as follows: "No overtime salaries will be paid, but the personnel will be engaged with the understanding that overtime work necessary is compensated for by the regular salary." I believe we are bound by Territorial law on this subject. We cannot legislate in that. We would be in conformity with the law if we strike that out and in violation of the law if we leave it in. So I ask unanimous consent.

HELLENTHAL: I object.

SUNDBORG: I so move.

COOPER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved by Mr. Sundborg, seconded by Mr. Cooper, that the amendment be adopted. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I was a member of the Committee when this was adopted and careful consideration was given to it, and the Committee was of the opinion that Territorial law did not preclude the recommendation as it is made. This is merely what the Territorial Legislature does with its employees and it was felt that the same rules that applied to the employees of the Legislature applied to the employees of this body. It is not practical otherwise to pay overtime, and I would not recommend the base pay contained in this report if I thought overtime would be superimposed upon that base pay.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I am not arguing that we should pay overtime. I think I agree with Mr. Hellenthal, but we are bound by the Territorial law in the matter in any event. Since we are, why state here what we should do? These people are all Territorial employees and they are going to be covered by the general provisions of Territorial law. I think that we should not state here something which is gratuitous and meaningless and that what would probably be offensive to some people in the politics of Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I am not clear what Territorial law Delegate Sundborg is referring to. In the last session the legislature passed an act providing wages and hours for people comparable to interstate wages, but it did not bind the Territory to be bound by any wages and hours law; with a 40-hour week and time and one-half and double time, we are not bound by that. The Territory was legislating for society not for the Territory. So, therefore, I think as a matter of clear statement of our purpose it is a good idea to tell these people and for us all to know that you are not going to be paying overtime and that you don't have a base week of 40 hours. Now what it amounts to is this, ladies and gentlemen. „ As it happens in the legislature, the first few weeks the going is not too tough; the staff people have their Sundays off along with us. They are paid seven days a week just like we are. When the pressure mounts we work Saturdays, Sundays, and some nights. Now they don't get docked for Sundays the first part of the session and they don't get paid double time for Sundays the latter days of the session. It all balances out. Tell them all they are not going to get overtime.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, I would like to point out that this could go on. However, you state to no end on this overtime business. You state in here that no overtime salaries will be paid. You commit yourself to overtime work and that every person is entitled theoretically by federal law. Apparently Territorial employees are an exception. However, every person is entitled to an overtime rate after performing duties of a certain number of hours per week. That is your 40-hour work week, I would suggest that some advice be sought In this case and hire on a contract labor basis, that you hire for a total lump sum for so many days or a daily rate so that when they are hired, they may be working one day for $22 or one hour for $22, or the work may entail 20 hours. You are going to run into overtime difficulties in working over 40 hours in one week.

SUNDBORG: The Territorial law to which I refer is not one to which Delegate Rivers referred. That one sets up a 40-hour week generally for industry within the Territory, except Territorial employees. There is a separate Territorial law which provides that no overtime will be paid if the employees work a greater number of hours than that. It goes on to say that Territorial employees will, insofar as it may be possible, be granted compensatory time over another period. I believe that is the provision which is going to govern here because it is the Territorial law,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, this Constitutional Convention is vested with inherent powers to spend this $300,000 to accomplish our purpose. We are no more bound by that 40-hour week than the Alaska legislature is.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion we have before us the amendment by Mr. Sundborg. Does everyone understand the amendment striking that portion that says "No overtime salaries will be paid but the personnel will be compensated for by the regular salary." All in favor of the amendment signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noe's" have it, and the amendment has failed. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I still think we should do something about the tenure of office for the Secretary as shown on page 4, Section 2, when we take it to the time of final adjournment, because he certainly cannot walk out of here at the same time, and I would like to propose an amendment, "until such time as the Convention may determine" to replace "to the time of final adjournment".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I have written a line here which might fulfill the need. That was instead of saying "to the time of final adjournment of the Convention" say "to the time of completion of his duties as determined by the President." The President will be here and can sign the vouchers for the release of funds. I will ask unanimous consent to amend page 4, Section 2, the last line strike "final adjournment of the Convention" and insert "completion of his duties as determined by the President." I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked by Mr. Victor

Rivers for the adoption of the proposed amendment. Is there objection? If there is no objection it is so ordered and the amendment is adopted. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to have an explanation of two statements, one of them being on Page 7 In subsection 6. Under the expenditure of funds it provides that the Secretary is authorized to incur obligations, etc., "provided that approval of the Committee on Administration is first obtained as to any one item exceeding one hundred dollars in cost." On the first page of the report in the latter part of the main paragraph we have a sentence, "The budget is not intended to restrict the later adjustment of particular items, should necessities demand changes, and does not by this allocation authorize any expenditure of funds, without the approval of the Convention." There is some question in my mind as to exactly what we will be doing when we approve this report. Are we approving a budget and authorizing the Secretary to go ahead or are we approving the first part and all of us would have to approve the expenditure of money?

COGHILL: The only part of this report that is binding to the Convention or to the Committee is that of the Secretariat that you adopted the other day. The rest of it is all tentative allocations, and it is spelled out in the explanation of allocations as being tentative. We had to form a basis where the money might have to be spent, such as the $25,000 for technical consultant services. We don't know whether we will even tap any of that. It is just a matter of having that set up on an estimated figure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, my question still remains. Can the Secretary go ahead on the basis of this tentative budget and make the expenditures specified in subsection 6 on Page 7?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, what Mr. Fischer means is that that sentence on Page 1 states In effect that the Convention, that the approval of the Convention would infer that the Convention itself would have to approve all those expenditures of funds, a contradiction there.

HELLENTHAL: I think It is poorly worded and perhaps Mr.

Fischer's good objection could be handled by Inserting the words "except for any one item under $100" on the first page.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, that would not cure the particular defect that Mr. Fischer states because it probably should not have the words "of the approval of the Convention" inasmuch as the other parts of the report gives that authority to the President and the Committee on Administration. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, the suggestion was that we put a period after the words, "should necessity demand changes" and strike the balance of that line. That would then set this up as a budget which could then later be adjusted should there be a demand. It would also take out this fact that it could not be expended without the approval of the Convention. Strike the balance of the sentence down to the colon, rather to the period. I would ask unanimous consent that that part be stricken. That puts us in position of not being contradictory.

SWEENEY: I object. Without the approval of the Convention on the first page it simply means that none of this money can be spent. For instance, we can't tape record, we can't authorize the printing of the Constitution, we can't go on with the hiring of technical consultants without the approval of this body. Then Mr. Stewart cannot spend any of that money without the approval of the Committee if it is over $100, so I think it is poor, that it should stay as it is. If you delete "without the approval of the Convention" here, this Convention could go ahead and spend all the money it wants on machinery and a few other things.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight.

KNIGHT: Mr. President, I think it should read on the last line of that paragraph instead of, "of the Convention" it should be "of the Committee." I so move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now we have a unanimous consent request before us at the present time. Objection was made by Mrs. Sweeney.

V. RIVERS: I will so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves that his proposed amendment be adopted.

JOHNSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Seconded by Mr. Johnson. The motion is open for discussion at this time. The motion was that a period be inserted on Page 1 on the third line next to the bottom of the first paragraph, insert a period, and delete the rest of the sentence down through the word "Convention" including the period - starting with the word "and" - "and does not by this allocation authorize any expenditure of funds, without the approval of the Convention." Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I don't want to make an issue of this. It seems rather minor, but we still don't free the Committee to go ahead with the expenditure of funds even removing that because this is only a tentative estimate, and actually what I meant to bring up originally is that at one point we have a budget upon which the Administration Committee can spend funds -

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under other provisions in this report it gives that authority.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of information, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: It would appear to me under Rule 16 we have already adopted, subsection B, Page 7, "The Committee on Administration shall generally oversee the administrative or business affairs of the Convention, including finances, personnel, printing, physical arrangements for the Convention, and related matters." It would appear to me that under Mr. Rivers' proposed amendment subsection B would fully apply.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would appear that way to the Chair. Is there any further discussion on the motion for the adoption of Mr. Rivers' amendment? If not, the question is, "Shall the amendment offered by Mr. Victor Rivers be adopted?" All those in favor of adopting the amendment signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the amendment is ordered adopted. Are there other proposed amendments to the report on Administration? Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I am looking at Page 2 of the report, the section that deals with the secretariat. Now I am assuming that all of the personnel listed under there are permanent employees of this body, and I renew my objection as I don't see the wisdom of paying the Secretary a per diem when he is a permanent employee of this body just like Mrs. Alexander.

Now if we are going to be consistent we ought to pay Mrs. Alexander a per diem too, and I doubt very much if the Secretary of the Territory of Alaska will honor that. I offer this amendment that the salary of the Secretary be $37.00 per day and strike "$12.00 per diem."

JOHNSON: Mr. President, is that motion in order when the matter was already voted on yesterday?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would be in order for the reason it is a different motion than was before us before. It involves a different sum of money. Mr. Johnson, the Chair would declare it in order, SUNDBORG: I second the motion for the purpose of making an inquiry. I wonder if the point of order on this should not be we had already adopted all of this yesterday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This is the portion, if the point of order is on that ground...

SUNDBORG: Mr. Buckalew should move that he wants to rescind what we did yesterday, to the extent of deleting the Item of $12 per day and raising the salary to $37 a day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are right, Mr. Sundborg. This particular portion of the report is not before us at this time because it was permanently adopted yesterday. You are out of order,

Mr. Buckalew. There is a motion on the floor of Mr. Coghill's.

A motion to rescind the action would be out of order at this time because we have a motion on the floor to adopt the portions of this report which have not yet been adopted. So at the present time the objection raised by Mr. Johnson will have to be sustained by the Chair, and we will proceed with the motion on the floor.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, I feel that first of all I am not sure what we are being asked to do by Mr. Coghill. But in any event I feel that a number of these sums set out here are still subject to question and so subject to change. I feel that the matter of ratification and election was crossed over rather quickly when if this Convention does not adjourn at an early date it will not be possible to hold the ratification on the same date as the primary election. I feel it may very well be a good use to which to put some of the money saved out of this Convention, and for those reasons move that further debate on this section be postponed until tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White moves that further debate and consideration of this motion at this time be postponed until tomorrow.

RILEY: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the motion of Mr. Coghill for the adoption of this tentative report be laid over until tomorrow?" Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest to the mover of the postponement that he incorporate a request that estimates on the election for ratification be obtained.

WHITE: I am willing to so amend the motion with the consent of my second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is ordered amended to read that way.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, by tomorrow morning?

PRESIDENT EGAN: By tomorrow morning if possible, evidently.

WHITE: That was a request for an attempt only.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the motion that was made by Mr. Coghill for the report to be held over until tomorrow be adopted?" Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: Mr. President, I rise to a point of information. We are now postponing again. Was not this adopted?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris, the section we are postponing is only the sections that were not adopted yesterday. We can't postpone anything we have already adopted. The question is, 'Shall the motion be held over until tomorrow? Shall the Convention hold over this question of approval of this report until tomorrow?' All in favor of the motion say "aye", all opposed say "no." The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

Ayes: 18 - Awes, Buckalew, Collins, Cross, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hinckel, Laws, Marston, Nordale, Riley, R. Rivers, Rosswog, Sundborg, Walsh, White, Mr. President.

Nays: 36 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Cooper, Davis, Doogan, H. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Wien.

Absent: 1 - Taylor.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed and Mr. Coghill's motion is now before us. Will the Chief Clerk read that motion again as stated by Mr. Coghill?

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. Coghill moved and asked unanimous consent for the adoption of the report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, I understand that this is a tentative report, in other words there is nothing definite about the figures, and the motion is to adopt it. Can't we resolve the situation by accepting it and adopting a definite report later on?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may have a point there, Mr. Barr.

COGHILL: Mr. President, on our report we also have other matters which relate to pay of the delegates and the assignment of the committee rooms, the lockers for delegates, bus transportation, privacy of the Convention floor, expenditure of funds for recording records, flags, desk and chairs and other matters that if we don't have the acceptance of this report by the Convention, our Committee can't go ahead with its work.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would just like to make an inquiry. If we now adopt the motion before us, is not the Committee and the Secretary, are they not empowered to go ahead and spend this money?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would certainly be the feeling of the Chair.

SUNDBORG: That would be the last chance that this Convention would have to vote upon any item here unless it should again be brought up under the provision saying that should necessity demand changes, later adjustment of particular items might be made.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Or if at a later date someone desires to move to rescind some particular action, and it would be the wish of the Convention to do so.

SUNDBORG: What vote is needed on a motion to rescind?

PRESIDENT EGAN: A simple majority. Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, could not the matter be reopened on an amendment, the original action, which would require only a majority?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That could be done, Mr. McCutcheon. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I don't believe it is the Committee's intent at all to set itself up as an agency to spend these $262,000, and if it is the wish of the Chair we shall bring that out in our next report, if that is sufficient to speed things on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair feels you have brought it all out here, Mr. Coghill. Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: I would like a point of information. I would like to ask a question as to whether this item concerned with salary schedules has or has not been adopted by this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is the Chair's understanding that that was one of the portions that was adopted yesterday, Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Why are we discussing it today?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We did not have all of it on there, I don't believe yesterday.

HURLEY: It is different than what we adopted yesterday?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, Mr. Hurley, there are additions on there, DAVIS: Might I inquire, Mr. President, as to what portions we did adopt. Unless I am mistaken it was B1 and B2, that was all we adopted.

COGHILL: The Committee report Mr. Chairman, has not been changed in that portion, if it has it has just been changed on that error of $5,040.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair thought that you added another stenographer.

COGHILL: No, because the report I read off was the report which went up to the mimeograph room. The objection was on the floor yesterday was that it was a lengthy report and should be in the hands of each delegate before they acted on the full report and our Committee requested that the secretariat part be accepted so as to get our working staff in order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley, then we would just be adopting those portions of the report other than B1 and B2.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I would like to make a statement. I think there is a motion on the floor and it's under discussion. I think the very nature of the material we are considering here is something that a final result could never be brought to the floor of the Convention. I think it is a type of thing in which this Convention must place its trust within the limits as prescribed in the Committee which you have appointed. With the amendments that have been proposed which have clarified the item, that we can do well to accept it now and still not be bound by a committee of highbinders who might run off with all our money.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I gathered from what the Chairman said there that I would like to ask are we or are we not voting on the matter under "Other Matters"? The heading under "Other Matters" seems to have one item authorizing funds and the rest are of a more or less different nature. I am perfectly willing to vote on Item 6. The rest of them might bear some future discussion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers., it is the Chair's understanding that Mr. Coghill's motion incorporated all that part of this report that was not adopted by this Convention yesterday. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, practically speaking, perhaps the only item that might worry some of the delegates is Item 4, technical and consulting services, which is considerable, $25,000, and I call the body's attention to the fact that paragraph 4 on page 5 says 'when technical and consulting services may be requested by the Convention this amount will be available.' So that $25,000 item is still under the control of the Convention, and as to the other items of possible expenditure, none of them are of any significance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, I don't wish to hold this up forever or be an obstructionist. I like to be conservative with expenditures but my purpose is not too quibble over every penny. If I understand the motion correctly, in approving this report we are allocating certain sums to certain classifications. We are authorizing the expenditures of those sums. I have every confidence in the Committee and the Secretary. I know how difficult it is when sums for expenditures have been authorized, how difficult it is to withstand pressures to spend those sums, and I feel by approving allocation of money to certain classifications in this report we are precluding their expenditures on what may be other classifications. Without going too far afield, though I could, I will merely repeat an example of the possible necessity of holding a ratification of this constitution at some time other than in conjunction with another election and they had to pay for it. You have here under "miscellaneous", $25,840. Perhaps that could be allotted for that purpose, perhaps it couldn't be. In any event, I doubt very much it is sufficient. How, if you adopt this sum, you can spend close to $25,000 for technical and consulting services for a matter of conducting elections, I'm sure I don't know. I was merely in my previous motion trying to avoid what I know is going to happen if this is not gone over in some more detail and that is, objecting to items 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 and some others - perhaps, one motion after another asking to rescind action taken yesterday. There is one on the floor already - I'm quite sure there will be more. For that reason I will have to vote against it.

KILCHER: Mr. Chairman?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I think I could put Mr. White at rest with the possible item that might come up with election for ratification of the constitution. That would only happen in the event that the Convention will come to a close very early and that will save more money than the possible cost of ratification will amount to so that will take care of itself.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Armstrong.

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, it seems to me that if we as a group have placed confidence in you to appoint a committee, as Mr. Hurley has stated, we certainly feel they will bring to us as their committee reports repeated statements on finances. If at any time we want to call them and question them we have the power through rules to call them out on to the floor and give us an adequate statement of these expenditures. I for one feel we should give a vote of confidence for a committee in saying this is the best that can be done. They have done a good job. Let's tell them to get to work. I will vote in favor of this proposition.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin has been trying to get the floor.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

JOHNSON: I second it.

MCLAUGHLIN: I request the President adhere to Rule 35.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All those in favor -

MCLAUGHLIN: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: State your point of order, Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: I requested the President to adhere to Rule 35.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, will you give the President time to look it up? "Shall the main question be now put?" All those in favor of having the main question now put say "aye". All those opposed to having the main question now put say "no". The main question will now be put. The question is, "Shall the Convention adopt this report of the Committee on Administration?" All those in favor of adopting the report say "aye", all those opposed say "no". The motion has carried and the report has been adopted.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, I voted with the affirmative..

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Point of order. Is a notice of reconsideration good on anything but a roll call vote?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken. A notice of reconsideration can only be given on a roll call vote, Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I move that subject to committee announcements we now adjourn until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

STEWART: I second it.

EMBERG: Mr. President, have we taken any action today regarding yesterday's journal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would someone wish at this time to make a motion regarding the reading of yesterday's minutes,

JOHNSON: I don't know whether it is in order when there's a motion to adjourn on the floor.

BARR: I momentarily withdraw my motion.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the journal of the last plenary session of this Convention be considered read and approved.

DOOGAN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection? Hearing no objection, the journal of the previous session has been considered read and approved. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I renew my motion to adjourn until 9:30 a.m. tomorrow morning and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr renews his motion. Are there committee announcements? Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the Committee on Style and Drafting will meet at the committee table at the rear of the audience chamber immediately following adjournment for a brief committee session.

AWES: Has the bus been called to come out tonight?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The bus was just called. The Chair would like to have a meeting of all committee chairmen as soon after adjournment as possible. The Chair would also like to announce before adjournment that it has been brought to the attention of the Chair that the Rotarians meet on Thursday, the Lions on Wednesday, the Kiwanis on Monday, so if there are any members in this group of delegates they can remember that and remember the days when they might have an opportunity to attend those meetings. Are there other committee announcements? If not, the question is, "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning?" Is there objection?

Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 15, 1955

EIGHTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Now Reverend Armstrong will come forward and we will have our daily invocation. (Delegates standing as Armstrong comes forward)

ARMSTRONG: Our Heavenly Father, we are mindful of the blessings that we have, of the freedom of our country, for the building of our communities, for the raising of our families. Thou hast made us protectors of the faith of democracy. Lord, give us wisdom in the development of this constitution for the State of Alaska to proceed with Thy wisdom, Thy power and charity. In Christ's name, amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please call the roll.

CHIEF CLERK: I would like to be clear on the point. Does the change in the rule apply to attendance roll call also?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, I would say it that rule does not apply to attendance roll call.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We will proceed with the reading of yesterday's journal. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the reading of yesterday's journal be dispensed with at this time and that the journal be approved as written.

LONDBORG: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent. Mr. Londborg objects.

SUNDBORG: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves.

JOHNSON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion that we dispense with the reading of yesterday's journal and that the journal be approved. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: I would like to just find out how many days we go on this way. We should at least have some assurance that the journal will be on our desk. We did some very important business yesterday. It would be nice to know just exactly what the business was.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I am sure we are going to have a journal shortly. We are still in the early stages of organizing the secretariat, and it has just been physically impossible as I understand it for a completed journal to be on our desks each morning while the staff is so limited. It has not been filled out yet with all the employees that we are going to have here a bit later, and during this time I would like to ask that the delegates show a little consideration for the secretarial staff by not requiring it to produce a daily journal by the early hour in the morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I am not opposed to dispensing with the reading of it, but I think we should reserve the privilege of approving it when it is on our desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Chair will hold that when the journals do appear that any delegates will have the right to bring to the attention any possible errors in the journal of any date prior to the time that it finally shows. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Before I know how to vote on this motion, I would like to know if the Secretary can give us an estimated time when we will have yesterday's journal available.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Could the Secretary answer this question?

CHIEF CLERK: It's ready. It just has to be reproduced. We have to get some typists. All the journals are all written. I have one copy of it but last night's was not completed, but as soon as we get some typists all that has to be done is the stencils cut and run off. If anyone wants to look at the journal, they are available.

SECRETARY: Mr. President, a typist is now available, it can be reproduced this morning, I am sure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you mean today sometime we will have a copy of yesterday's journal?

CHIEF CLERK: If we adjourn and I can get out of this seat.

NOLAN: It takes quite a few hours on a day like yesterday with the amount of business that went through, it takes quite a few hours afterward so the help would have had to work up to Probably midnight last night to have it on your desks this morning, so you would have to actually wait until later in the day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Nolan. Is there any other discussion on this motion before us of Mr. Sundborg's? The motion was that the reading of yesterday's journal be dispensed with at this time. Is that your intention, Mr. Sundborg?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Did he also ask that it be approved?

SUNDBORG: I will drop that from the unanimous consent request.

LONDBORG: I will withdraw my objection in realizing the impossibility of reading it now considering he drops that part of his motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We will consider that part of any motion previously adopted on any other day was also dropped as far as the Chair was concerned. If there is no objection the reading of yesterday's journal is ordered dispensed with at this time. Mr. Secretary, here is a communication.

SECRETARY: Operation Statehood, Anchorage Chapter, Anchorage. Alaska.

"Honorable William Egan, President

Alaska Constitutional Convention

College, Alaska

Dear Mr. President:

"Operation Statehood presents to the Alaska Constitutional Convention, this, the Alaska Flag.

"To members of Operation Statehood, the Constitutional Convention is an historic and solemn occasion, and it is our objective to, through this presentation, take a small and humble part in your deliberations.

"We rest in the knowledge that yours will be a job well done, and we have abiding faith that your labor will assist measurably in bringing to a happy conclusion our long struggle for full citizenship as the 49th State of the United States of America.

Respectfully,

/s/Ancil H. Payne

Ancil H. Payne

President

Operation Statehood"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, as the former president of Operation Statehood, I believe you have the flag. If the Sergeant at Arms could come forward and attach the flag to the standard it would be appreciated at this time.

WHITE: On behalf of Operation Statehood it gives me great pleasure to present this Alaska flag to the Alaska Constitutional Convention.

(The Sergeant at Arms came forward.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention may stand at ease. The Convention will come to order. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter of appreciation of the Convention to Operation Statehood for the gift of the Alaska flag.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent. You have heard his request. Is there objection? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: No objection. I would like to add to that motion that if Mr. Sundborg has no objection, the communication which we received be spread upon the journal of today's proceedings in its entirety.

SUNDBORG: I accept that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The request of Mr. Johnson has been added to Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request. If there is no objection it is so ordered. Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Secretary, you may read the communications.

(The Secretary read communications from the President of the University of Alaska calling attention to the fact that the facilities of the infirmary were available to delegates and to the American Association of University Women meeting to be held November 21 at which the women delegates and wives of delegates are to be honored guests, were read. Reminder of the Home Economics Department open house, Thursday, was read.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to at this time bring to the attention of all delegates that the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce is having its no-host dinner tomorrow evening at 7:30 at the Rendezvous. In as much as the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce has put so much effort in attempting to make the hospitality part of our stay here very pleasant, the Chair hopes that every delegate can be there. Mr. Secretary, you might read the communication that was interrupted yesterday.

The Constitutional Convention

P. O. Box 4003
College, Alaska

Gentlemen:

Some years ago the Indians throughout the United States found it necessary to organize in an effort to protect their rights as established by law and treaty. They realized that freedom, even in these United States had to be protected, nurtured and defended against the common enemy of human selfishness.

Thus the National Congress of American Indians came into being and a proclamation was issued by the organization to the People of the United States to further establish a common bond of understanding.

It seems appropriate at this time, on the eve of Alaska's historical moment, to present the same message to the Constitutional Convention assembled at College, Alaska with the thought that it may influence the members of the convention to a greater responsibility in protecting the lives and liberties of all the citizens of the new state of Alaska and any rights that have been established from time immemorial in the relationship between the people who have settled here in Alaska and the aborigines.

We offer you our unconditional friendship and faith in accomplishment to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty for all.

Sincerely yours,
/s/ Elizabeth Peratrovich

SECRETARY: The letter includes a copy of the original proclamation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the wish of the Convention that it will be made a part of the record and that the scroll be filed?

MARSTON: Mr. President, I move that this communication be made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston asks unanimous consent that this communication be made a part of the record. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Are there reports of standing or select committees? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, before we make reports I would like to make the motion that the Secretary be instructed to provide a small bulletin board on which we can post these communications on meetings. We have no way of remembering that phone number for instance or any other information that might be desirable. This is not a part of that motion but as a suggestion, it is kind of hard to put anything on these concrete walls, but I notice there is a wooden frame around that switchboard over there (pointing to fuse box) and if it were hung on that it serves a double purpose and save the delegates from electrocution before this Convention is over. I ask unanimous consent that the Secretary provide a bulletin board.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr asks unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to provide some sort of bulletin board. Mr. Secretary, had you already made arrangements?

SECRETARY: There is one, placed by the mailbox in the Convention information headquarters. It could easily be arranged to have one here if that is the desire of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The desire evidently of the Convention is to have one also established here in Convention Hall. We are down to introduction and first reading of proposals. Are there any proposals to be introduced for first reading at this time? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I request a three-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for three minutes. Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Convention will revert to the introduction of committee reports. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, in the absence of the chairman of the committee on gavels, I should like to report that we have acquired a gavel which I believe is symbolic of Alaska and certainly as fine a piece of ivory carving that I have ever old, maybe a little more than that and it was carved about five years ago and is absolutely without flaw. It is an unusual thing in the ordinary mammoth ivory that's found around Alaska so outside of the fact that we have to get a plate and put it on here, I do believe your committee has performed its function and I will now turn over the gavel to you. These were thrown in by the man from whom I obtained it. I bought the gavel however, but he put in these two letter openers which the President may use as he sees fit.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We certainly appreciate your efforts Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Incidentally, it was Mr. Al Retzlaf of U. S. Smelting Refining and Mining Company who carved the gavel. That is a hobby with him. He does not do it as a commercial proposition at all. This particular gavel had been his own and rather a prized possession, and he did finally agree to sell it to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair will instruct the Secretary to write a letter to Mr. Retzlaf expressing the appreciation to Mr. Retzlaf for being able to obtain a gavel of this nature.

JOHNSON: Incidentally, we also will, as quickly as possible, procure a working gavel which will probably be a wooden mallet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Johnson, and the Chair would like to inform Mrs. Hermann it will possibly be two or three days before we can release her gavel but it will be held under lock and key until that time.

HERMANN: Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now we have before us the introduction and first reading of proposals. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I would like to introduce a proposal entitled, "Courts, Judicial, Tenure, and Juries."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson desires to introduce a proposal entitled, "Courts, Judicial, Tenure, and Juries." The proposal will be referred to the Committee on Judiciary. The Secretary may read the proposal for the first time.

SECRETARY: "Constitutional Convention of Alaska. Delegate Proposal No. 1. Introduced by R. E. Robertson. COURTS, JUDICIAL, TENURE, AND JURIES."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Committee on Judiciary. Are there other proposals to be submitted at this time? If there are no further proposals are there any motions or resolutions to be presented? Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that we amend our rules, Page 13, Rule 35, the second line, strike the words "main question be now put and substitute in lieu thereof the words "previous question be ordered" so that the whole sentence will read "The previous question shall be put by the President in this form, shall the previous question be ordered?"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg"asks unanimous consent that the amendment changing the words Shall the main question be now put?" to read "Shall the previous question be ordered?"

MCLAUGHLIN: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A second to Mr. Sundborg's motion is heard and the question is before us for discussion. Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. President, I was wondering if the first motion would not be to rescind our action on this taken yesterday. We have adopted the rules as a whole and then section by section.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, a proposed amendment to the standing rules takes a two-thirds vote of the assembly. It would not necessarily come that we would have to rescind the action but would take a two-thirds vote to amend any of the rules. The matter is before us for discussion. Is there further discussion? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, my only concern on the matter now is, it appears to be good English, and I am sure the Rules Committee would not confess the whole thing was unnecessary in the first place. If I may inquire -- does the President find it awkward?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The President will have to take that question under advisement.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I withdraw my objection under the circumstances.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin withdraws his objection.

V. RIVERS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's proposed amendment be adopted?" All those in favore of the adoption of the amendment signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the proposed amendment is ordered adopted. Are there any motions or resolutions to come before the body at this time? Is there any unfinished business? If there is no objection, the Chair at this time would like to ask Mr. Emil Sady to come forward to give a brief explanation as briefly as possible on this proposed chart relative to committee meetings and on various other matters that might aid the delegates in their functions at committee meetings, and to give any other pertinent information that Mr. Sady might think helpful and necessary before the committees start to function. If there is no objection the Chair would ask Mr. Sady --

V. FISCHER: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Do we not go into the Committee of the Whole?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would be the proper procedure, Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I so move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer asks unanimous consent that the Convention resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing Mr. Emil Sady. Is there objection? Mr. Barr, would you come forward and take the Chair please? (Mr. Barr came forward and took the Chair.)

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

(At this time the Committee of the Whole met.
The President appointed Mr. Barr to preside.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I ask for a ten-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Johnson asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for ten minutes. If there is no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to announce the telephone number upstairs in the information center at which you might have messages left is 5830, and the Chief Clerk has just informed the Chair that she spoke to the person in charge of the cafeteria upstairs and that about 12:30 would be the best time for the Convention delegates to try to get in there to have their lunch, and if there is no objection the Chair would like to request that the records show that Mr. Buckalew was present this morning. And on that, Mr. Buckalew, we had a report of one-half of the select committee to purchase a gavel and wonder if you had the other half of the report. The Convention will come to order. Is there any other unfinished business to come before the Convention now? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, regarding the last half of that report, if we may refer back to the committee reports, I have just learned that the working gavel should be here tomorrow and will be furnished by the Fairbanks School District. It will be ready tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you for that information. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, yesterday I gave notice of intention to reconsider a motion but got tied up in intricacies of parliamentary procedure. I object to the back row being roped off. I wonder if it is the intention of that committee to go ahead and rope us off. If so, I would like to move that they cease and desist.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White has raised the question as to the propriety of roping off the delegates to the Convention. Is there any other discussion? The Chair will open the discussion. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I would just like for the record to show at this time to avoid further controversy, that the price of the gavel was satisfactory to the minority half of the committee, Mr. Buckalew.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you for that information. If there is no objection, Mr. White, you might confer with the Chairman of the Committee on Administration as to the roping procedure. Is there any other unfinished business?

COOPER: Mr. President, I would like to inquire -- just immediately after recess I asked the engineer on the recording system if any duplicate tapes had been made yet. He advised me that they had not been. They were awaiting the arrival of equipment coming from the States in which to accomplish the duplication. Now as I recall, the motion was made that the duplicate tapes would be edited. Now am I correct in that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No.

COOPER: All right then, the duplicates are merely going to be a duplicate of the entire proceedings of the plenary session, is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the way in which the motion was adopted.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, may I say a word on that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: It is going to be my recommendation to the Statehood Committee that from those duplicate tapes we tape certain parts in to certain length programs which will then be furnished to the various radio stations, the parts which may prove interesting to the electorate. So the duplicate tapes, I anticipate will later be used for that purpose so that any of the proceedings that will be of an informative nature and will be adaptable to use on the radio stations and television, may be made available that way. I don't say the Statehood Committee is going to do that but I'm going to recommend and see if we can't do that in our program for advertising and publicizing the Convention and the Constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: Mr. President, it is a matter of small importance but it seems that each night our different chairs have been scrambled and it is a hard matter in the morning to find your location. I hesitate to take my jackknife and cut my initials on these chairs. I think something might be done to prohibit changing of the seats.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the desire of the delegates that they maintain as their desks the particular desks they are sitting at at the present moment? Then, if there is no objection, the Chair would like to request the Secretary at this time to have the Sergeant at Arms and the messenger working together, identify in some manner, each chair so the seats will be identified in the regular meeting of the Convention. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, it was felt it was the intention of the Convention that the Committee on Administration acquire tables and chairs. We have some but we do not have all the tables yet so we felt that we would have to leave the armchair type desk until we acquired the full amount of tables necessary, and then at that time a procedure of assignment would be made.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then is it your observation, Mr. Coghill, that it might be, so long as you intend to change the seating here, it might not be necessary to go to the trouble of identifying these desks at this time?

COGHILL: Yes.

JOHNSON: I shall object to any change in the seating so far as I am concerned. I like it where I am.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps anyone with objection could arrange to meet with the Committee on Administration and talk the matter over with that Committee at some time. Mr. Nolan?

NOLAN: Mr. President, all it would take would be a typewritten slip and some Scotch tape to the desk right now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no serious objection, the seats will be identified until such time as the Convention insists there will be a change made. At this time under unfinished business the Chair would like to state that at this dinner that is to be a no-host dinner to be held under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow night, it is necessary that reservations be made. The Chair would like to request that before leaving here today, immediately after a recess, that each delegate who plans to be present tomorrow night at the dinner, leave his or her name with the Chief Clerk so that she might make the proper reservations as quickly as possible. Is there any other unfinished business? Special orders of the day? Any general order of the day? Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I have a question. What is a special order of the day?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, something that may have been held over as a special order of the day by request or if you have something real special that you thought might not be in the category of unfinished business it would be considered as a special order of the day. If there is nothing else to come before the Convention at this time the Chair would entertain a motion for a recess, but the Chair would like to announce that immediately following the next recess we would like to have a meeting of the chairmen of all of the committees of the Convention. Mr. King?

KING: Mr. President, last Saturday we had a paper left here, a newspaper on our desk. That of course was the Colonel Eielsen Memorial edition of the Eielsen Friendly News. It was timely and very well put together, and I am sure a great number of us here appreciated it very much, and I think it would be a nice gesture of the Convention to write a letter to the Commander of the Eielsen Air Force Base in appreciation, and I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. King moves and asks unanimous consent that a letter of appreciation be written to the Commander of the Eielsen Air Force Base commending him on the particular edition of the Eielsen Friendly Times of November 11, 1955. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, might I amend that so that a copy of the letter also will be addressed to the editor of the paper?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr asks unanimous consent that the particular motion be amended to have a copy of that letter sent to the editor of the paper at Eielsen Air Force Base. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Do we have anything else to present to the Convention at this time? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, may I ask if the wives of delegates are invited to attend the dinner at the Chamber of Commerce?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The wives are invited. If there is nothing else to come before the Convention the Chair will accept a motion for a recess.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for a recess until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 4 o'clock this afternoon. Is there objection? Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I had hoped that following the meeting of the committee heads that some schedule of committee meetings could be arranged, and I can't see any reason for the lateness. Is there maybe a good reason I am not aware of?

V. RIVERS: I will amend that time to any time the body sees fit but I thought it might be a very good time for us previous to recess, to announce committee meetings at this time. I can visualize the first committee meeting of all committees will take about approximately one hour in getting their organization set up. I thought that would allow them enough time to start off.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If we are going to have a general discussion, will someone second Mr. Rivers's motion.

GRAY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been seconded by Mr. Gray, that the Convention stand at recess at 4 o'clock this afternoon and while ordinarily such a motion is not debatable, for a point of information, the Chair will allow it in this case.

HELLENTHAL: We may be putting the cart before the horse, because following this committee meeting I think we will be able to call meetings without conflict and in an organized manner rather than in uncoordinated manner. I would suggest that we meet here again at 1:30 and then make the announcements.

V. RIVERS: I will accept that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers asks unanimous consent that his motion be amended to read that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Is there objection? Mr. Barr?

BARR: I have no objection. I wonder if it has been announced that the best time for going to lunch is 12:30. Is everybody aware of that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was announced from the Chair, Mr. Barr, that 12:30 would generally be the best time for the Convention delegates to eat lunch. If there is no objection then, the Convention is at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, may I refer to the order of business of introduction of proposals?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Johnson will refer to introduction of proposals at this time. The Secretary will read the proposal in its first reading.

SECRETARY: "Constitutional Convention of Alaska. Delegate Proposal No. 2, introduced by Maurice T. Johnson, TO BE INTRODUCED IN BILL OF RIGHTS".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal will be referred to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I have a resolution which I would like to offer and ask the Clerk to read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will proceed with the first reading of the resolution.

SECRETARY: Constitutional Convention of Alaska, November 15,

1955. Resolution: "RESOLVED, that the Alaska Constitutional Convention formally invite the Honorable William Knowland, U. S. Senator from California, to address the Convention sometime during his stay at the University of Alaska.

RESOLVED further, that the invitation of the Convention be issued to Senator Knowland through the President of the Convention."

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the rules be suspended, and that this motion be acted upon immediately without committee reference.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that this motion be acted upon immediately without committee reference. Is there any objection?

R. RIVERS: I will object just for a point of information. What is it going to cost the Convention?

JOHNSON: I would not think it would cost anything since Senator Knowland is to appear at the University on November 29 at the convocation at which he is to receive an honorary degree, and it just occurred to me, since he is a national figure, that it would be fine for this Convention to have him appear briefly.

R. RIVERS: He is coming anyway? We are just inviting him to address the Convention? I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers withdraws his objection. If there is no further objection it is so ordered and the Convention will extend an invitation to Senator William Knowland to address the Convention at some appropriate time during his stay here in Fairbanks.

JOHNSON: Under the suspension of the rules I was simply asking that the matter be acted upon immediately. If that motion was carried then, I now move that the resolution be adopted in order that the record might complete.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair misunderstood your request, Mr. Johnson. The Chair understood that you meant that in your original request. The Chair has ruled that your original request has been adopted and that an invitation will be extended to Senator William Knowland to address this Convention at some appropriate time during his stay. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I want to refer back to introduction of proposals again. I would like to introduce a proposal if I may.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection. Hearing no objection, Mr. Robertson, you may present your proposal. The Secretary may read the proposal.

SECRETARY: "Constitutional Convention of Alaska. Proposal No. 3, introduced by R. E. Robertson, TAXATION.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is ordered referred to the Committee on Finance. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would just like to make an inquiry here whether these proposals that have come in have been in conformity with our rules as to the matter of brief title. I don't know who can answer that question. Our rules say that each proposal shall carry a brief title. I would assume that as in the case of a bill before the legislature that the title would in some way describe what is in the proposal. It wouldn't just be a word like taxation. It should say something about what treatment it would give to the subject of taxation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would hold your point is well taken, Mr. Sundborg and all proposals should have some sort of brief title in order that in its first reading some idea can be obtained to the nature of the proposal. Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: It would appear to me that the title, "TAXATION" is a relatively short instrument, the title of "TAXATION" is sufficient. If you were to go into the title, why you would give the whole body of the text or material. I would be inclined to agree with Mr. Robertson's proposal in this particular instance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: In this particular instance, Mr. McCutcheon, but you go along on the premise that each proposal should have something that would adequately describe briefly, the body of the text? The Chair didn't realize that that was such a brief title. Are there other proposals to be introduced at this time? If not, the Convention will proceed with its business. At this time again, the Chairman would like to remind all delegates that in order to attend t[[paragraph]],e dinner to be given by the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce at the Rendezvous tomorrow night it will be necessary that you secure reservations, and it will be necessary that you secure reservations, and that you notify the Chief Clerk as quickly as possible as to your intentions of attending that dinner so she can make the proper reservations in time. At this time the Chair would like to announce that a committee of committee chairmen during the noon hour have arranged a tentative Convention schedule during the sessions of Monday through Saturday. This is the tentative schedule they have set up for presentation to you:

9:00 a.m. to 9:20 a.m. Plenary Session

9:30 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.

- I Rules
- II Administration
- V Rights
- VIII Executive Branch
- XIV Resolutions

Now, those five committees are set up to meet on Monday through Saturday, 9:30 - 10:50 a.m. You will note that included in those five committees are two or three committees that at this time won't have too much to do, so your committee of chairmen felt there would be ample time, at least for the time being, to set them up from 9:30 - 10:50. The second group of committee meetings are set up from 11:00 a.m. to 12:20 p.m.

 III Style
 VI Elections
 X Resources and the next group of committees are set up tentatively to meet from 2:00 p.m. to 3:20 p.m.

 VII Legislative Branch
 IX Judiciary
 XI Finance

and the fourth group of committees are set up to meet from 3:30 p.m. to 4:50 p.m.

 IV Ordinance
 XII Local Government
 XIII Amendment

Now all these committees are set up in such a manner, these groups, that the attendance of any member of those committees at a committee meeting during those times will not interfere with his membership on any other committee that might be meeting, and so while this is a tentative suggestion and possibly won't hold through the entire Convention, the Chair feels that it is so important to get the committee meetings under way that if there is no objection the Chair for the time being, at least, will declare that these will be the official times for those particular committees to meet until further notice. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I have no objection except I want to discuss it briefly and to say if we are going to start meeting in plenary session at 9:00 o'clock, and have Committee meetings through the day that that will then foreclose any evening committee meetings because if you are going to work from 9 in the day until 5:00 or 5:30 I don't believe there will be many of us fresh enough to do much after dinner. I thought that one of the work sessions should possibly fall in the evening for some of the committees that will be at certain periods, heavily burdened.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, first of all, on the explanation, this runs Monday through Saturday, it is tentative. There is nothing in here that is a mandate to Mr. Rivers if he is a chairman, to prohibit Mr. Rivers. from having a meeting either at any time after 4:50 on any week day or having one all day Sunday. These rules were essential to prevent the conflict which was inevitable. It is almost as Dr. Sady said, a mathematical miracle that we can provide that every day of the Session that there will be an opportunity for a chairman to say, "We will have a meeting at such and such a time." This is not compelling, it is understandable, upon the Convention but it is compelling upon all other committee chairmen, in a sense that if the chairman of any committee desires, or exercises his right to use the specific hour for the meeting of his committee, it will not be interfered in by any other committee. To me it is obvious, it is not intended to be prohibitive, it is merely prohibitive if Mr. Rivers shall be prevented in the future.

V. RIVERS: Point of order. I object to having my name used and put it in the record. I made a point of discussion only, and I want to say this does not preclude us from meeting at 9 a.m. That was the point I made. After meeting at 9:00 a.m. you might not want an evening meeting.

MCLAUGHLIN: Forgive me. It is merely explanatory, sir. That is not compelling upon the committees, but that is reserved time for each committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I have an inquiry as to how rigid this schedule is, would it be possible for instance for a committee to meet at a time other than that which is assigned to the committee, even if all members may not be present at that time if the committee chairman feels that otherwise insufficient time is available? For instance, the committee in Group IV might possibly want to meet in the morning, and at that time say they meet during the time assigned to Group II.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, it would be the Chair's opinion that in a case of that nature, it would then become the committee chairman's duty to attempt to arrange such a thing by finding out just what other committees were meeting at that time and whether there would be a conflict. The Chair can see no reason why as Mr. McLaughlin stated, there is no compelling reason, even then, if there is no conflict, against having a meeting at a different time if necessary so long as it does not conflict with any of the memberships on other committees.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, my point was that in some cases a committee might possibly want to meet even if there is a conflict, with one or two members maybe absent. Would there be any basic objection to that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair does not feel if the majority of the committee members want to meet that there could be any objection to it if they decided that. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the Secretary for a point of information in connection with the bus schedule.

It seems to me at one time he informed us that the bus was not free to bring delegates out at 8:30 since it conflicted with the school bus schedule, and I think we ought to take that into consideration before deciding on that 9 o'clock hour.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, that is what the Chairman pointed out to the members of this committee, and then on the other hand the Chairman remembered that he has been coming out on that 8:30 bus every morning and there are usually only three or four people on the entire bus the bus that leaves for the University at 8:30 in the morning is practically empty every morning.

HERMANN: It is a small bus, however, Mr. President. Does it come all the way to this building or stop further down?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It stops in front of the old cafeteria. It probably would not take too much effort to get them to come over here, but that is a point on which we will have to be clear. The Chief Clerk has suggested that perhaps we have overlooked one thing here on the Convention schedule -- that is that between 1:30 and 2 o'clock it might be wise to call an afternoon session in the event there might be resolutions to present or proposals to present or other business to come before the Convention. If there is no objection, then in between the second and third schedules on your sheet we will assume there will be a brief plenary session to begin at 1:30 p.m. each day. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Is there further business to come before the Convention at this time? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask one point. These proposals that have been introduced now and assigned to committee -- as I understand it, copies will be distributed among the delegates -- is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair does not recall what the rule says but copies of all proposals it would be assumed, would be available to all the delegates of the Convention.

SWEENEY: Will they be mimeographed so we will have copies?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the Chair's understanding. Is that correct, Mr. Secretary? Is there any other business.

GRAY: What is the effective time of this schedule as of now or as of tomorrow?

PRESIDENT EGAN: As of now.

GRAY: I think arrangements should be made, if they run a small bus out at 8:30, make arrangements to use the largest bus.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration would do so immediately upon recess, if possible, if they could find out the answer to that question.

COGHILL: Mr. President, could we have a two-minute recess and I ask unanimous consent, to confer with the Secretary on assignment of committee rooms?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: A point of information. Mr. Stewart informed me a few minutes ago that there are six rooms upstairs available for the six committees that will meet this afternoon, and when the committees get up there he will show them their rooms.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It will also be possible that every committee can have its committee room in this building if some of those rooms are used by two different committees at different times. In that way the membership of the committees will not have to run around to some other building. That is a matter that will have to be resolved between the committee chairmen as to what committees will use a particular room. Mr. Coghill, you asked unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for two minutes so you consult about this bus schedule. If there is no objection the Convention will be at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I find that committee meetings scheduled here for 2 o'clock there is no conflict; there is no member of the Ordinances Committee on either the Legislative, Judiciary or Finance, at least for this day I would like to announce a meeting of the Ordinances and Transitional Measures after any recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Pursuant to the established periods, the Legislative Committee will meet immediately upon adjournment or recess as the case may be.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy and Mr. McCutcheon announce meetings of the Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures and the Legislative Committee immediately upon recess. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: The Judiciary Committee will meet upstairs in the Judiciary Committee room immediately after this session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin announces a meeting of his Judiciary Committee upstairs immediately after recess or adjournment. Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: Mr. President, the Finance Committee will also meet immediately after adjournment upstairs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nerland announces a meeting of the Finance Committee immediately upon adjournment. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, in accordance with the Convention schedule there will be arrangements for a large bus to leave the Nordale at 8:30 in the morning and to come to the front of the Convention Hall.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement by Mr. Coghill. Are there any other committee announcements at this time? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: A meeting of Local Government Committee at 3:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog announces a meeting of the Local Government Committee at 3:30. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: The Committee on Amendment will not meet this afternoon. One of our members is absent and we will try to find time sometime tomorrow for organization. If that is agreeable with the majority of the members here we will postpone until tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins announces there will be no meeting of the Committee on Amendment this afternoon. Is there any other business to come before the Convention? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow at 9 a.m. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is adjourned until tomorrow at 9 a.m.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 16, 1955

NINTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to introduce to the delegates the Reverend Mr. B. P. Wilson of the Assembly of God Church in Fairbanks. The Reverend Wilson will now give the daily invocation.

THE REVEREND B. P. WILSON: Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that Thou art a God of grace and mercy and truth. We thank Thee for Thy interest in the affairs of men, in that Thou didst send Thy only begotten Son who gave Himself for us, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. We humbly ask Thy blessing upon this Convention and the framing of this Constitution. We pray, our Lord, that Thou wilt give wisdom and direction, for Thou hast said in Thy word that "if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." May this be just and equal, and when it is finished may it be that which pleases God. We ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Fifty-four present, one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. Now we have the reading of yesterday's journal.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I suggest in view of the time schedule for the daily sessions, which was agreed upon yesterday, that it would be more practical to have the reading of the journal at each afternoon plenary session instead of the morning session. That would give the staff a chance to mimeograph the journal during regular working hours instead of having to stay up all night to do so. So I would like to suggest as a regular way of doing business that the journal be considered in its order at the afternoon plenary session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's request? If there is no objection then the reading of the journal will be considered at the afternoon plenary session. Are there presentations, petitions, memorials, or communications from outside of Convention to be read at this time?

SECRETARY: The Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce wishes to announce that all delegates would be the guests of the Chamber at the party this evening, that is, this is not a no-host affair insofar as delegates are concerned. Some few delegates who were to be sponsored by particular members of the Chamber will still receive calls from those Chamber members who will transport them to the Chamber dinner.

PRESIDENT EGAN: In other words, it is free.

SECRETARY: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of any standing committees? The Secretary has an announcement to make.

SECRETARY: So the delegates wondered about punching the proposals and including them in covers. We had ordered covers in which to keep proposals and other materials, the minutes and the journal for example, and they were delayed in the order. We expect 35 covers today and the balance by the end of the week, so that your materials will all be collected at least by that time under a separate cover where they will be tabulated and kept by the staff in the proper order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to know if the special committee on wire recording was released?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper, the special committee on wire recording was not released as yet because it seemed it might possibly be necessary for some more technical information they could report to us later. Are there reports of standing committees then? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I can report for the Local Government Committee which met yesterday and organized. The Committee elected Delegate Londborg as Vice Chairman, and Victor Fischer as our Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Delegate Rosswog reports that the Local Government Committee yesterday met and organized, and the Committee elected Delegate Londborg as Vice Chairman and Victor Fischer as Secretary.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the Committee on Style and Drafting can report it has organized by electing Ed Davis as Vice Chairman and appointing Mrs. Katherine Nordale as Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Style and Drafting has organized and elected Ed Davis as Vice Chairman and appointed Mrs. Nordale as Secretary. Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: Mr. President, Committee No. XI, the Committee on Finance and Taxation, organized yesterday and appointed Frank Barr as Vice Chairman and Delegate Barrie White as Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Finance and Taxation elected Mr. Frank Barr as Vice Chairman and Mr. Barrie White as Secretary. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, so there will be no question, the Committee on Resources will meet at 11 a.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Resources will meet at 11 a.m.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, the Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures met and organized yesterday. Delegate James Hurley was elected as Vice Chairman and Delegate Herb Hilscher as Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures met and organized with James Hurley elected as Vice Chairman and Delegate Herb Hilscher as Secretary. Delegate Collins?

COLLINS: Mr. President, the Committee on Direct Legislation failed to organize yesterday because of the absence of one of its members, Mr. Taylor. He is not here this morning. The Committee will meet at its regular time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Direct Legislation will meet this afternoon at the regular time. Miss Awes.

AWES: The Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights will meet at the regular time, 9:30 this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights will meet at the regular time. Mr. Victor Rivers.

RIVERS: Mr. President, Committee No. VIII on the Executive will meet immediately after adjournment of this plenary session, 9:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers announces a meeting of Committee No. VIII, the Executive, immediately after adjournment of this plenary session. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment will likewise meet on schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment will meet as scheduled.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet at 11 O'clock, according to schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet at 11 o'clock. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Administration will meet on adjournment of this morning's plenary session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration will meet on adjournment of this morning's session. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: Committee No. XIV will meet immediately after the session, the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Delegate Cross reports there will be a meeting of the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations immediately following this session.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, the Committee on Judiciary Branch met yesterday and elected Mr. Robertson as Vice Chairman, and Mr. Johnson was designated as Secretary. There was such a state of concord in that committee that it was not deemed necessary to meet again until Friday at the regular time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Judiciary Branch has named Mr. Robertson as Vice Chairman and Mr. Johnson as Secretary. Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: Mr. President, I would like to make a suggestion for the sake of the journal. Would it not be better if the committees announce only when they are not going to meet or whether they're going to meet at sometime not mentioned in the schedule? Otherwise, the journal every day will carry a long list of committee meetings which are already scheduled and in our hands.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would feel that a proper suggestion, Mrs. Nordale.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I think there should be a positive record of each committee regular meeting announcement shown in the journal each day. I think it should be as I mentioned once before, an order of business announcement of committee meetings it should show under that as a positive record, not by omission but by actually a statement for inclusion in the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, do you think that subject would be a proper one to be brought before the meeting of the Committee Chairmen, so then later in the day we will have such a meeting.

V. RIVERS: Yes, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other reports?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, Committee VII on Legislative Branch has organized. Delegate Sweeney is Vice Chairman, and Mr. McNeas is Secretary, and we will meet at our regular time today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon announces that Committee No. VII has organized with Mrs. Sweeney as Vice Chairman and Mr. John McNees as Secretary. Committee No. VII will meet at the regular time today. Are there other committee announcements? Are there reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced? Any motions or resolutions? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to be recognized at this time on a matter of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg, you are recognized as a matter of personal privilege.

SUNDBORG: Two days ago when we were considering the rules and adopting them, there was a difference of opinion with respect to one of the rules, and I think that though the Convention arrived at a decision in the matter that some of the delegates were perhaps convinced against their will, and some not convinced at all. Since that time I have heard from at least one delegate that there is a feeling that we were moving a little too fast and may have run roughshod over a minority which had a different opinion. In view of that, I think that it might be appropriate for us to consider again at this time the rule that was then under discussion. It was Rule No. 50. There had been a proposal by Mr. Smith that when the constitution is put in what is practically final order, any section of it could be sent back to second reading for specific amendment. We debated that at some length here. We discussed it also in the Rules Committee, and the majority decision was that it would not be wise to open up the whole constitution again at that time without a two-thirds vote of the members. In view of some comment which I have heard off the floor since that time, however, and the feeling by at least one delegate that the majority may be trying to have its way over a minority without due consideration of their ideas, I think it would be appropriate for us to open up the subject again. I don't feel that we should spend a whole lot of time on our rules, and I don't feel once having adopted them that we should in very many cases open them up again and try to amend them. Even less, however, do I feel that there should be any feeling that the Convention as a whole or the majority of members were trying to move too fast for even one member who has a different idea. So at this time I would like to present a motion. The motion would be, in Rule 50 which on the preliminary draft from which we were working --

MCCUTCHEON: I rise to a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: First the Chair, Mr. McCutcheon, the motion would be out of order while Mr. Sundborg was speaking on his question of personal privilege. Mr. McCutcheon you may have the floor.

MCCUTCHEON: Under the Chair's ruling then, of course, I can say nothing until motion has been presented, but I rose to the point of the matter that he was introducing an amendment offering an amendment or a motion under point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I be recognized under the order of business at this time, which is the introduction of motions?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg you are recognized.

SUNDBORG: I would like to move, and I suggest that perhaps the Convention would want to refer it to the Rules Committee and not take action on it at this time, I would like to move that the rules be amended by providing in Rule 50, line 2, after the word "thereon," insert the following: any article, other appropriate subdivision or group of articles or subdivisions may be returned to second reading for specific amendment by a vote of at least 28 members. After final action on all portions of the Constitution separately,". That is the end of the insertion, so the rule would read as proposed: "After the Constitution has been framed and before final agreement thereon, any article, other appropriate subdivision or group of articles or subdivisions may be returned to second reading for specific amendment by a vote of at least 28 members. After final action on all portions of the Constitution separately, the Convention shall refer the proposed Constitution to the Committee on Style and Drafting for final arrangement in proper order and form. After the report of said Committee, the Convention shall by the affirmative vote of at least 28 delegates agree upon the final form of the Constitution." I move that the proposed amendment to the rules be referred to the Rules Committee which thereafter shall bring a report to the Convention on the subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: First, Mr. Sundborg, it would be necessary to move the adoption of the amendment to get it before us.

SUNDBORG: I so move then.

WHITE: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Another suggestion the Chair has is that whenever there are more than two or three words in the proposed amendment that the delegate should write out the proposed amendment and hand it to the Chief Clerk. In that manner we will expedite the proceedings. and we won't get twisted -- your point of order, Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Point of order, Mr. President. Shouldn't that motion, the content being as it is, properly be a motion to rescind action that has already been taken?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, that would not be necessary. A motion to amend the rules would take a two-thirds majority vote and would be in order, but the motion is that the proposed amendment by Mr. Sundborg be adopted by the Convention. Then, if it would still be Mr. Sundborg's intent to request that it be referred to the Rules Committee, he could move that the matter not be taken up at this time but be referred to the Rules Committee for consideration. Was there a second to the motion?

WHITE: I seconded it.

V. RIVERS: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: In as much as we have acted upon this identical item once, it now has to be received and acted upon again, it is my impression, should we suspend the rules to receive this particular motion at this time? I ask for a ruling from the Chair on that point.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, the Chair would feel that this is a different approach to the matter. The wording and the manner in which this would be brought about is different than the suggestion or proposed amendment that Mr. Smith offered the other day. The Chair would rule that the proposed amendment by Mr. Sundborg would be in order at this time for that reason. It is a different amendment that was proposed originally.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that the proposed amendment be referred to the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg's motion was seconded to adopt it, but now he asks that rather than act on that motion at this time that the question contained in the motion be referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration. Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's request?

BARR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr objects.

SUNDBORG: I so move.

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and Mr. White seconds

Mr. Sundborg's motion to refer the question contained in the original motion to the Rules Committee for its consideration. The question is open for discussion, the question of referring the matter to the Rules Committee. Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, that would serve no good purpose except to open everything up to unimportant amendments. Anybody who had any kind of amendment could probably get it referred back to second reading. Under the present rule, of course, you can get it referred back by two-thirds vote, and any important amendment, I am sure --

SUNDBORG: Point of order, Mr. President, Mr. Barr is not talking on the subject which is before us, which is a motion to refer this matter to the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will hold, Mr. Sundborg, that Mr. Barr is probably getting around to the point of referring it back to the Rules Committee. Mr. Barr, you may continue.

BARR: Since this is already practically the same motion which was referred to the Committee, and I remember we had a recess of over half an hour while we considered it, it may not have been the same motion but it was the same subject matter, it seems to me they have already taken it under consideration. I don't believe they should do it again. It is holding up our progress here. The rule that we have now has worked in many cases before. I don't know about other Conventions but I know in legislatures it has worked, and it tends to speed up the work by sidetracking any unimportant amendments. I believe that we might be here several more days if we worked under such a rule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, I think to save time, it appears to me now since this motion is opened up for discussion, it would only be fair to the Convention if the mover of the motion explain the object of referring this question to the Rules Committee. His amendment states clearly just what is to be corrected, and it seems to me that. as Mr. Barr states, it will be just a waste of time to refer this to the Committee. Perhaps you can act on it on the floor unless he has a reason we don't know about.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, as I recall yesterday, after another motion was made to amend our rules, several members came to me after we had acted upon that and suggested that any motion to amend the rules should be referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration before being acted upon on the floor, and it was for that purpose that I felt this rule should be referred to the Committee. The Committee has a meeting Scheduled for immediately upon adjournment of this plenary session, and it would not take the time of the Convention which it would not be spending on other matters anyway, for the rule to have the consideration of the Rules Committee which could bring in a report at our afternoon session when we could act upon the main motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of Mr. Sundborg's motion? The question has been called. All those in favor of referring the question contained in Mr. Sundborg's original motion, of referring that subject to the Rules Committee for its consideration, signify by saying "aye". All opposed "no". The ayes have it and the question will be referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, to refer back to committee announcements, the Rules Committee will meet immediately upon recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Rules Committee will meet immediately upon recess. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, I note the presence on our desk this morning of a certain newspaper, The Juneau Independent and also the addition of a column entitled "Sauerkraut and Queens". I have not read it yet, but I don't know whether that's a special edition for the Convention or not but in any event I move and ask unanimous consent that the publisher of The Juneau Independent be thanked for his courtesy.

JOHNSON: I don't have a copy.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for recess.

GRAY: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. If there is no objection the Convention is at recess until 1:30.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Mr. Chairman, I have just observed that we have in the gallery a very distinguished citizen of Alaska, a man who was a member of the first Territorial legislature and helped to organize that body and who has served at different periods of time subsequent to that legislature and in the Senate of this Territory, and he is now a member of the Senate of the Alaska Legislature, Senator Charles D. Jones of Nome.

Mr. Charles Jones has devoted the greater part of his adult life to the promotion of the best interests of this Territory, and at this time I ask unanimous consent that he be given the privilege of the floor.

COLLINS: Just a moment. I wish the body would bear with me just a moment. In carrying out the remarks of Mr. Walsh, I wish to say that it was a very happy moment for me personally to see Senator Jones here today. Senator Jones was a member of the first Alaska legislature. In 1913 when we organized the House of Representatives, Mr. Jones was a member of that body. He and I are the only survivors of that body, in 1913, the House of Representatives. It was very unfortunate that the Honorable Henry Roden, the only other survivor of the Senate of 1913 is not here with us. The legislature consisted of 24 members at that time. Twenty-one have answered the last roll call, but there are two of us here today. We can answer the roll call here, and I am glad to see Senator Jones here with us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection -- Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I certainly have no objection. I was thinking, however, that we could enlarge on Mr. Walsh's unanimous request by including "that he be given the privilege of the floor for the duration of the session."

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Senator Charles Jones of Nome is granted the privileges of the floor for the balance of the sessions of the Constitutional Convention. (applause)

(Senator Jones came in from the gallery at this time.)

SENATOR JONES: Mr. President and members of the Constitutional Convention. Now when Mr. Collins, ex-speaker of the House of the first legislature and many subsequent legislatures, why he dated me like that I don't know. Now when he said that I was a member of that first legislature, that is a good many years ago, and I am 81 and I have no apologies for any years, so you are listening to maybe a garrulous old man when I am talking. I want to say I am very pleased to be here and to see the earnestness with which this Constitutional Convention is being conducted. I will say without any apology that I have always questioned the necessity of statehood at this time because I could not see where it was going to be paid for, but I'm a little bit "Scotch" that way. But I say I belong to the years, and the younger people are going to have to carry on anyway. My son and I have had very serious arguments about statehood. He is for it and I am opposed to it. I am glad to see it is being carried on but you are the ones who will have to carry it. My doctor told me I had 20 more years to live and he thought I was ornery enough to live it. Maybe

I will be around to see how it does work out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Senator Jones. (applause) Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I ask for the floor on a matter of personal privilege of interest to the whole body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers asks the personal privilege of the floor under a question on personal privilege.

V. RIVERS: Now that we are organized and have some matters of moment coming up in a short time, it seems to me that we should discuss and have an opinion in our records on the matter of whether or not the delegates of the Convention have and enjoy legislative immunity. There are things we are going to want to talk about that will involve possibly libelous questions if we do not enjoy such immunity. It seems to me that we should spread on the minutes of this body an opinion. While I realize it would only be an opinion and while I realize there are 13 lawyers here, most of whom will all have an opinion on it, I would like to have spread on the minutes of this record an opinion so I am going to ask unanimous consent that the question, "Are the delegates to this Constitutional Convention entitled to full or limited legislative immunity?" and I ask that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee for a written report, indicating their opinion on the question, that their opinion be spread upon the journal of this Convention when submitted. I ask unanimous consent that that be done.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request of Mr. Victor Rivers Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, for information only, would it not perhaps be better to submit such a question to the Attorney General rather than burden the membership of this body with passing on such a delicate question involving the membership of this body?

V. RIVERS: I have discussed the matter with the Attorney General and have a verbal opinion from him. However, his opinion, I don't think in any final court of law action would have any more bearing on the matter than would the opinion of our legal members here. At least the opinion on the minutes of our daily actions would give the members here confidence to open their mouths and say what they have to say, and I feel the matter should be handled through our Judiciary Committee rather than through the Attorney General.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I feel that we do not have a Judiciary Committee. We have a committee on the Judiciary Branch, and I think it is a committee that is studying what should be contained in the constitution with respect to the judiciary branch of the State of Alaska. It is not a committee that is properly constituted to rule and even give an opinion on a subject of this kind.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, there really is nothing before us, it is a unanimous consent request.

MCLAUGHLIN: I object for the purpose of discussion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Rivers, do you so move?

V. RIVERS: I so move.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the motion offered by Mr. Rivers be carried by the Convention. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, as Chairman of the Judiciary Branch and as a member of the bar who is quite willing to give an opinion with or without request, my suggestion to the Chair is that if Mr. Rivers or any member of the body desires to libel, or the occasion may arise when the Delegate from the 18th District is prepared or any other member is prepared to libel, I think at that time if they approached any one of the numerous lawyers in the body that they would be able to give an opinion which I am sure would vary from that of twelve others on the subject. I don't feel it is the function of the Convention to determine at this time when the problem hasn't arisen, whether or not it enjoys a limited or a complete immunity on the subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I think that it is proper to have a common understanding as to the position of the delegates in this regard. Now if it were referred to a special or select committee of lawyers here to just report back to the Convention and that report was spread upon the record, it would accomplish that purpose. Mr. McLaughlin would have to go and do a little research, I am sure, to find whether we have a complete immunity or limited legislative immunity. Rather than wait until someone begins to get into hot water, let's have a common understanding in advance. I support the motion but don't care what committee it is referred to.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: Mr. President, may I ask the Secretary to read the motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will please read Mr. V. Rivers' motion.

CHIEF CLERK: "I ask unanimous consent that the question, 'Are the delegates to this Constitutional Convention entitled to full or limited legislative immunity' be referred to the Judiciary Committee for a written report indicating their opinion on the question and that their opinion be spread upon the Journal of this Convention when submitted."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, it is not my intention at any time on this floor to make libelous statements as such about any organization or firm or person. It may be, however, that in arguing some of the principles we hope to include in the constitution with respect to say natural resources, that the information we put forth here on the floor will be misinterpreted by outside interests or by the newspapers or perhaps deliberately by some attorney for a corporation or firm or person. Consequently, it appears to me that such a decision spread upon the minutes of our Convention would at least make some of the people here a little freer to go more fully into the ramifications of the natural resources that we may desire to control where we may touch upon some very sensitive points. I think, however, that rather than making a committee here responsible for the decision, that it would be properly the office of the Attorney General's authority to issue us such a decision.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, if this body passes on the question, it will give us no immunity. It will not change the status that we now occupy one whit. I just can't see what can be gained by having this body, or for that matter, the American Legion pass on the question. What good does it do? Our legal status will remain the same afterwards as it does now. The Attorney General's opinion would have some sanctity, it might serve as a guide to conduct, but there is always insurance against libel available for a premium -- a bullet-proof vest.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: I think I am in favor of this motion as put that this Body of lawyers here, who are as good as any we have, should pass on this decision and forward it to the Attorney General for his comment. That is my position on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move to amend Mr. Rivers' motion by providing that instead of the question being referred to our Committee on the Judiciary Branch, that it be referred to the Attorney General of Alaska.

RILEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that Mr. Victor Rivers' motion be amended

V. RIVERS: No objection. I'll accept the amendment. I'd like to see the opinion on the minutes, that's all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers asks unanimous consent that the proposed amendment be incorporated in the original motion. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, the proposed amendment is ordered incorporated in the original motion. Before the question is put the Chair would like to let every member of the Convention know that this question does not involve any member of the Convention as being able to libel any other member of the Convention because the Chair would instantly step on that but it involves in the course of debate whether or not a libelous charge could be entertained upon the Convention from outside the Convention. You have heard the motion. The Chief Clerk may read the motion as amended again.

CHIEF CLERK: "That the question, 'are the delegates to this Constitutional Convention entitled to full or limited legislative immunity', be referred to the Attorney General for a written report indicating his opinion on the question, that his opinion be spread upon the journal of this Convention when submitted."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the question. If there is no further discussion -- Mr. Riley?

RILEY: As a point of information, Mr. President, I think we should clearly state the Attorney General of Alaska. I believe that was Mr. Sundborg's reference.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, those words will be included in the original motion. The question is, "Shall the motion offered by Mr. Victor Rivers and as has been amended by Mr. Sundborg be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of the motion will indicate by saying "aye". All opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the motion is adopted.

Is there other business to come before the Convnetion at this time?
Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, in view of administrative technicalities, I would move and ask unanimous consent that we revert to the order of business of the resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Convention will revert to the order of business that includes the presentation of resolutions.

COGHILL: Before presenting the resolution, I might add that in our Report No. 1 on the Committee on Administration, under the item of technical consultant service, it was requested by the Administrative Committee and passed by the Convention, Section 4, Page 5, that "when technical and consulting services may be requested by the Convention, this amount will be available." There has been a request for technical services, so therefore, Mr. President, I, as Chairman of the Committee on Administration, report to you as follows: Report of the Committee on Administration, recommended resolution, services of technical consultant. The Committee on Administration recommends adoption of the following resolution:

"WHEREAS the Convention may have need for the services of technical consultants on various subjects during its deliberations; and

"WHEREAS the Legislature of Alaska anticipated the possible need for such services and included provision therefore in the total appropriation for the Convention;

"NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That the Convention hereby authorize the obtaining of the services of technical consultants upon request for such services being made by a Committee Chairman and approved by the President of the Convention.
2. That the President of the Convention shall have authority to select the consultants after consultation with the Committee Chairmen.
3. That the administrative arrangements for employment of any consultant shall be approved by the Committee on Administration and be executed by the Secretary of the Convention."

I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the resolution. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I am willing to object.

COGHILL: I so move.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and Mr. McCutcheon seconds the motion for adoption of the resolution. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. Chairman, my objection is based on the first paragraph of the resolution, and the objection is to the word "Chairman" which appears after "Committee". I think that word should be omitted. In other words, the decision should be left to the committee rather than to the chairman, and if it is in order to do so, I will propose that the word "Chairman" be stricken from this paragraph.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, then you are asking that an amendment be made to the original motion by Mr. Coghill, that the motion be adopted, but the word "Chairman" be deleted?

SMITH: That is correct.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order, Mr. President. How can the committee ask for technical help? The chairman is the authorized agent of the committee. It seems amazing to me that the chairman would ask for technical assistance if the committee objected to it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon, do you think that it might be entirely clarified by the words, committee through its chairman"?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to withdraw my proposed amendment. I think it's fair enough.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith asks unanimous consent that his proposed amendment to the motion be withdrawn. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I just have a question as to form. The resolution itself, nowhere in its body refers to the Convention as the Constitutional Convention or otherwise identifies it, and it seems to me for proper form it should at least once in the resolved specify the Constitutional Convention of Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, would you mind holding that until this particular motion is acted upon? It would then be in order. The original motion hasn't been voted upon yet.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, what is the motion before the Convention?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion before the house is the motion of Mr. Coghill, seconded by Mr. McCutcheon, for the adoption of this resolution by the Constitutional Convention.

R. RIVERS: Wouldn't an amendment by Delegate Fischer to change the language be in order before we act on the motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It could be in order. The only thing the Chair thought that possibly it might be simpler to --

R. RIVERS: Well, I don't like to adopt something until the corrections are made. As a point of information, what does "Convention/4" mean up on the second line? Does that mean Resolution 4? "Convention" is not a Convention report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the Secretary might explain that to Mr. Ralph Rivers.

SECRETARY: If you will recall the recommendation on documentation, this is the fourth report by the Committee on Administration and that documentation series number is applied that way on committee reports.

R. RIVERS: Aren't we numbering resolutions separately from proposals for instance? Why don't we call it Resolution/4 then?

SECRETARY: Resolutions on substantive matters, not on the general management of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair doesn't have any number on his copy. Mr. White?

WHITE: As a point of order, or rather information, I suspect that these experts from the States come at rather a high price, and I have been given to understand their time is limited. I don't see any provision in here for coordination between two or more committees who may have need of the same expert or consultant. It occurs to me that Committee "A" might be ready for Consultant Jones today. Committee "B" might not be ready for him until two weeks hence. Consultant Jones conceivably might only be able to come to Alaska for a period of one week. I don't know quite how to cover this. I would like to ask of the Committee on Administration if this point had been discussed and if the resolving of it can be worked out.

COGHILL: That subject has been brought up and has been discussed to some length in our Committee. This resolution is in effect an authorization for the administrative staff to obtain upon the request of the committee chairman. It is not an authorization immediately ordering them. I think that can follow in an administrative memorandum instead of by resolution, coordination of technical services.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: It would seem too that that would be taken care of due to the fact that you meet with your committee chairmen, and it has to be approved by you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, I think it is specifically covered here in No. 2 of the Resolution, "That the President of the Convention shall have the authority . ." The authority does not lie with the individual committee chairman. It must be cleared through the Chair and the Secretary.

WHITE: Mr. President, I don't read No. 2 that way. I read that to mean that the President of the Convention shall have the authority to decide which consultant is best suited to the need that has arisen. I don't read that to mean that the President shall have the authority to coordinate between committees as to the needs for consultants. This point has come up again and again. I get confused between authority to proceed and --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, as a point of information, if the Secretary could tell you of another memorandum that is available.

SECRETARY: There is a draft memorandum on this subject of the organization of the services to insure their coordinated use which has been prepared for the use of the committee chairmen for their consideration, criticism and evaluation. The memorandum was not distributed because, if I state the desires of the President correctly, he wished to put it to them at their next meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mr. Secretary.

WHITE: Mr. President, apparently the matter has been given due consideration between two or three individuals, bodies or committees and I will withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state that Mr. Ralph Rivers' point was well taken. The Chair was a little confused. It had Mr. Smith's amendment to the motion in mind. Mr. Victor Fischer, your proposed amendment is in order before we vote on the original motion.

V. FISCHER: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that the first line in Resolve No. 1 be amended by inserting before the word "Convention" the word "Constitutional" and inserting after the word "Convention" the words "of Alaska."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the request of Mr.

Victor Fischer? If there is no objection it is so ordered and the amendment is ordered adopted.

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the Resolution be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of the adoption of the resolution signify by "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it, and the resolution is ordered adopted. Is there further business to come before the Convention? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I was informed that Mr. Taylor has been absent due to illness. Therefore I move and ask unanimous consent that since Mr. Taylor's absence was due to illness that he be paid salary and per diem for the past two days.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request of Mr. Johnson.

MCLAUGHLIN: May I, through the Chair, suggest to Mr. Johnson that the words "per diem" and "salary" be stricken and that Mr. Taylor's name be included on the roll call as present.

JOHNSON: Anyway is satisfactory to me. I have no objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you consent to amending the request, Mr. Johnson to say that Mr. Taylor's name be included on the roll call?

JOHNSON: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection, there being no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. President, I am not quite certain whether we have or have not a motion on the floor from this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are correct, Mr. Kilcher. There was a motion on the floor this morning that sent the Rules Committee out for a meeting. That is right. Is the Rules Committee ready to report?

RILEY: Mr. President, I should like to defer for the moment to Mr. Kilcher.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, you may have the floor.

KILCHER: After discussing the difference of opinion expressed by that motion this morning with the Committee on Rules, I have come to the following position. I am satisfied that the Committee on Rules has recognized a basic difference of opinion and am therefore willing to postpone any action on the matter until the Committee on Rules has had time to further consider the situation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That motion, as the Chair remembers it, was made by Mr. Sundborg. The Committee on Rules went out to consider the motion, as the Chair recalls.

RILEY: Mr. President, I had had in mind that Mr. Kilcher had intended to ask postponement of that matter to a time stated and perhaps that is his wish, and if so I should like at this time to defer a committee report from Rules. The Rules Committee did not wish to be in position of foreclosing or discouraging discussion or debate from any source. With Mr. Kilcher's consent I should like to suggest and I so move and ask unanimous consent that the matter referred this morning to the Committee on Rules be put off until Monday morning, first order of business.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the request of Mr. Riley's? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I do not object but I do want to say it was my motion under discussion and I do assent to this procedure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Sundborg. Then, if there is no objection this matter will be held in abeyance until Monday morning. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Is there any other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would like to inquire whether it is going to be our procedure here to go through the call of the order of business at the afternoon as well as the morning session, or what does the Chair feel?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is not usually done, Mr. Sundborg. Whatever the wish of the Convention is -- the Chair will adhere to that wish. Whether or not it might be more expeditious to go down through the regular order of business is a matter for the Convention to decide and the Chair will hold that the subject is open for discussion.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, for instance we deferred the reading of the journal for today, and I believe for each day, until the afternoon session. I wonder if that should not be called for as a regular order of business instead of just left to happenstance as to whether the journal will be called for.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It might be well because of that to just start down the regular order of business when we convene in the afternoon session, Mr. Sundborg. If there is no objection, that is the position the Chair will take. From now on the Chair will call for the regular order of business in the afternoon sessions except that the roll will not be called. Mr. Nolan?

NOLAN: Was it not your suggestion, Mr. Sundborg, that it come up the first thing in the afternoon? It seems to me that if we start the regular order of business and get tangled up with propositions, etc., we are liable to run over our scheduled meeting times, and I would suggest, as Mr. Sundborg stated, it be the first order of business in the afternoon session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That the reading of the journal and dispense with any other going down through the regular order of business?

NOLAN: Yes, if its already been deferred, then bring it back as first order of business, because otherwise we are liable to lose track of it again.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, but the Chair just felt that like what is taking place this afternoon, it has extended into a considerable length of time. Perhaps it would have been more advantageous to start down the regular order than to have gone on as we are. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I just think for the purpose of having an orderly journal it would be well to have some order of business at each session, the morning session and afternoon sessions. For example, I think that every afternoon there is going to be at least one committee report and probably several because some of our committees will have been meeting during the morning and will have reports to bring in. There should be a stated place in the order of business for those reports to be made so that our journal won't be a jumping from one subject to another and back again.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: I feel that at 1 o'clock we should have the reading and the approval of the journal and then go on with whatever business we have not finished at 9:30. I believe the committee meetings should start promptly at 2 o'clock and then go on until 4:50. If we have other business that should be taken care of, then we should take care of it at 5 o'clock and not adjourn until those things have been taken care of. But I do not think we should start with the first order of business in the morning. We will never get to the end of a day's calendar that way. At this time we should have the approval of yesterday's journal. We are already past the time for committee meetings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is the journal before us at this time?

SWEENEY: I will call for the reading and the approval of the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney is asking for the reading and approval of the journal.

SWEENEY: I believe I am in order to make a correction in the journal, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney wishes to make a correction in the journal.

SWEENEY: On the first page --

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I don't have a copy.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Have those copies been distributed?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: The first row was missed I guess.

SWEENEY: On the first page, beginning with the words "Mr. Sundborg moved and asked unanimous consent that the reading of the journal of the previous day be dispensed with and that the journal be approved. Mr. Londborg objected. Mr. Johnson seconded. Mr. Sundborg asked unanimous consent to amend his motion to delete the reference to approving the journal. There being no objection, it was so ordered. Mr. Londborg withdrew his objection to the original motion so it was ordered adopted." What actually happened was that we did not dispense with the reading and the approval of the journal. We held it off until later in the day. Mr. Sundborg deleted the approval of the journal and the approval of all previous journals was also deleted. So we still have the opportunity to approve the journals of each business day. So that should be corrected that it would not dispense with or postpone to a later time in the day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, that is covered on the next page. It says, "The President stated that in line with this motion when the journals for the previous days' sessions are available, any delegate will have the right to bring to the attention of the Convention any possible errors."

SWEENEY: We could go on for two weeks, Mr. President, with no reference to the effect that the journal for the 9th, 10th or 11th day had been approved. We could only assume that by the lack of any reference, any objections or corrections. But I believe that each day our journal should show that the journal for the previous day had been approved. If there are no corrections then it would be a simple motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course the idea was, Mrs. Sweeney, that it would be impossible to actually approve until the members could see the journal. Was that not the original intent?

SWEENEY: Then the journal should be placed on our desks earlier than before 1 o'clock or 1:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Up to today that was not possible because of the help shortage. From now on it will be placed there at an earlier time.

SWEENEY: I still maintain, Mr. President, that each day at a certain time there should be a motion stating that the journal of the previous day has been approved or is approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask unanimous consent that the journal of the eighth day be approved by the Convention -- is that your motion, Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Yes, I would ask that with the correction that we make the change in the word "dispense" because we did not dispense with it. We actually asked that it be postponed until later in the day. We did not get it later in the day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mrs. Sweeney's request? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to suggest that the first full paragraph on page 2 which deals with this matter of the journal is out of order and it should appear ahead of the subsection on communications on the first page, instead of following the letter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection that correction will be made. Are there other proposed corrections to the journal of the eighth day?

HELLENTHAL: On Page 7 I think the time of the adjournment should be stated, Page 7 in the closing paragraph, the way I read it and I read it only hastily, it does not indicate what time, the time at which the adjournment took place, I think should be stated.

SWEENEY: I would object to that because we would have to show we adjourned at 1:30 and actually we did not because there were committee meetings all afternoon. It might not look right, while we know that we are in session some days, someone might pick this up and it would look like we are adjourning pretty early in the afternoon.

HELLENTHAL: I defer to Mrs. Sweeney.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection. Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Just a matter of correction for the sake of the permanent record the matter of the titles under the "invocation". It should read "Mr." If the title is to be used, it should be "Reverend Mr." or Reverent R. R. I make this suggestion not because of my name here but because of a technique in reporting that should appear in reference to other men as it goes into the permanent records.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Which would be more preferable, Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: I would prefer it to be "Mr."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then if there is no objection the invocation was given by "Reverend Mr. Armstrong" and will appear in the journal. Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: On Page 2, I was just wondering why the name of Ancil Payne is signed twice.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It appeared twice on the original letter. Are there other corrections? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, it occurs to me that we are going to spend an awfully lot of time of all 55 members of this Convention looking over the journal each day and suggesting minor corrections. I wonder if we should not do what is the practice in the Legislature in Alaska and designate a committee of several members to look over the journal very carefully, perhaps while it is still in draft form, and before it has been mimeographed. Most of these little errors could be picked up at that time instead of on the floor of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, that is going to delay the works. It would mean someone would have to come here before 8:30 in the morning, go over the Chief Clerk's draft before it can be mimeographed. I think the committee idea is good, and I believe that if Mr. Sundborg would consent to having the mimeographed journal read by this committee they could report to the chamber here that the journal has been approved with a few minor corrections or some such thing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair would name the Committee on Administration to do that. Now they will probably have a meeting almost every morning. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: I don't believe that is the business of the Administration Committee. I am sincere in that, Mr. President. I think we are going to take care of all the nails and door knobs and things like that, but I am not sure this belongs in the Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I might for a moment appeal to the Chair that the Rules Committee might be the best committee for that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. If there is no objection, the Chair will name a committee to accomplish that matter of going over the journal and attempting to find any errors and report them to the Convention. The Chair would appoint Mr. Knight, Mr. White, and Mr. Doogan as a committee of three to take that responsibility of the prior inspection of the journal. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: On Page 1 of the journal, after the item on roll call, it occurs to me that in order to perfect the record, there should be a statement that a quorum is present, and while it is obvious that a quorum is present from the fact that only one or two are absent, it still should be a matter of record.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection it is so ordered and hereafter the Chair will announce that a quorum is present at that time. Are there other proposed corrections? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. President, I don't have a proposed correction. I was wondering now that the entire secretariat staff is hired, at what time does the journal reach the form it is now in -- mimeographed and ready for disbursing to the delegates?

CHIEF CLERK: Today it was ready at 1:15, mimeographed.

COOPER: What I was going to bring up was that I personally have faith in the committee but I would also like to have the journal, if I could have it sometime early in the morning at a predetermined time ahead of the actual reading and accepting of the journal for the previous day then a lot of the minor mistakes that have been noted at this time could be presented in an orderly fashion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk explain that?

CHIEF CLERK: I believe you can have the journal tomorrow morning possibly by 9 o'clock because it is already half drafted. It is just the business of this afternoon that needs to be finished, and the stencils can probably be cut tonight and run off and maybe it will be ready at 9:00. I would not promise that for every day. It depends on the length of your plenary session.

COOPER: What I was going to point out -- there are 51 individuals here excluding the Chairman and the committee that will be reporting on this, and each and every one might find some minor infraction in the journal after the committee has ruled it be accepted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The committee will ask that it be accepted.

COOPER: You will go through this discussion and time-consuming process every day?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would suggest simply that the mimeographed copies of the journal be distributed each day to all members at as early an hour as possible upon the mimeographed copies being ready and that no matter what hour that is that the journal always be considered for reading, correction, adoption at the beginning of the afternoon session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That suggestion will be considered as the policy of the Convention relative to the journal. Is there further discussion? If there is no further amendment to the journal it is ordered approved. The journal of the eighth day is ordered approved.

HELLENTHAL: I move, Mr. President, we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, unless there is a prior motion before the House.

MCNEALY: Before acting on that motion, I would like to announce Committee No. IV, Committee on Ordinance will meet directly after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. IV, Committee on Ordinance will meet directly after recess. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: The Committee on Local Government will meet at 3:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Local Government, Committee No. XII will meet at 3:30. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, met this morning and wishes to report to the Convention that it decided to prepare a manual on style which will contain suggestions on format, arrangement --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Helleenthal, your point of order.

HELLENTHAL: I rise to a point of order. I believe the committee report should be submitted in writing according to the rules.

SUNDBORG: No, the only committee reports which should be submitted in writing according to our rules are reports on matters referred to a committee by the Convention. Is that correct?

HELLENTHAL: I stand corrected.

PRESIDENT EGAN: For purposes of making it easier for the Clerk, it might be well if reports were in writing after this insofar as it would be possible to do so.

SUNDBORG: All committee reports?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would feel that should be in order.

SUNDBORG: Shall I proceed with this one?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes you may, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: The Committee decided to prepare a manual on style which will contain suggestions on format, arrangement, titling, numbering and phrasing of articles and sections of the constitution, which manual will be distributed to all the committees dealing with proposals for the constitution. The Committee decided also to investigate the feasibility of preparing a wall chart which would keep account of progress being made in building the constitution. A subcommittee was appointed to take charge of each of these matters, with Mr. Armstrong being the Chairman of the Subcommittee on the Style Manual and Mr. Davis the Chairman of the Subcommittee on the Wall Chart.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that Mr. Sundborg forgot to name the elected officers of his committee.

SUNDBORG: They were named yesterday, Mrs. Hermann, reported to the committee.

HERMANN: We did not elect them until this morning -- pardon me, I meant Rules, Mr. Sundborg.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Rules Committee, Mr. Riley.

RILEY: The Rules Committee today organized itself with the election of Mrs. Hermann as Vice Chairman and Mr. Rosswog as Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Rules Committee. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: Committee No. XIV, the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations, met and organized. All members were present. Mr. Gray was elected Vice Chairman and Mr. Robertson was appointed Secretary. One item of business came before the Committee and a report is being prepared for the consideration of the Convention. This Committee will meet at the scheduled time but only on call of the Chairman or the Vice Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mr. Cross. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Committee No. VIII, on the Executive, the Committee met this morning and organized and held the initial meeting. All members were present. We elected Mr. John Boswell Vice Chairman and Mr. Harris was appointed Secretary. We will meet again at the regular time tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Executive Committee. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Committee XIII will meet on schedule for purposes of organization.

SMITH: Mr. President, Committee No. X on Resources met and organized. Mr. Riley was named as Secretary and Mr. Boswell was elected Vice President. The Committee began the review of the subjects to come before the Committee and will continue that review at its next regularly scheduled meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Resources Committee. Mrs. Awes?

AWES: The Committee on the Bill of Rights and Preamble met at the scheduled time. Ada Wien was elected as Vice Chairman and Mr. Armstrong was named Secretary. We began discussion of the subjects to be considered and will meet tomorrow at the schedule time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Mr. Robertson, your question?

ROBERTSON: Do I understand that now the order of business will be called at the plenary session in the morning and then in the afternoon will be continued on -- that part that is not finished after first reading and approving the minutes of the previous day?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mr. Robertson. That is the wish of the Convention. Mr. Johnson your point of information.

JOHNSON: Point of information. Will it be possible in the afternoon sessions to refer to matters in the order of business that have taken place in the morning, or would it require unanimous consent?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would depend on how the matter came up, Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I was thinking particularly of the matter of introduction of proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: By two-thirds vote you could revert back to the introduction of proposals in the afternoon. Yes. Is there anything else to come before the Convention? The Chair would like to state that we had hoped to have a meeting of the committee chairmen this afternoon. However, inasmuch as it is such a late hour, that meeting will be deferred until tomorrow afternoon immediately following the recess. Is there anything further to come before the Convention at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion to adjourn.

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. Hellenthal has made such a motion already.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You already made your motion, Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal moved and asked unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 17, 1955

TENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. I would like to introduce to the delegates the Reverend Mr. A. E. Purviance, minister of the First Methodist Church of Fairbanks. Reverend Purviance will give us our invocation.

THE REVEREND MR. PURVIANCE: O God our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the night of rest and sleep that we may gather together here this morning. We recognize in Thee that for which we hunger. We do not trust ourselves and our own wisdom and judgment, and so we begin the day's meetings turning to Thee, asking that Thou wilt give us a portion of Thy wisdom and Thy strength. We thank Thee, Our Father, for this very momentous occasion. We thank Thee for these delegates and for the way in which they have been chosen, for this country of ours and for the principles for which it stands, for this method which we choose in elections. We pray now that Thou would so bless each delegate and each worker here that great good may come from the sessions of this day and when it is over that we may look back upon it and find that the Hand of God has helped us in writing these laws and statutes which shall lift our people in days to come to a greater height in their daily living. Wilt Thou hear us now. Bless us and guide us with Thy presence and we shall praise Thy name forever more. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

CHIEF CLERK: Fifty-four present, one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with its business, the presentation of petitions, memorials and communications from outside of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication can become a part of the record.

(A communication from the President of the University of Alaska calling the delegates' attention to a special lecture series at the University Gymnasium Thursday evening November 17 -- the speaker to be Dr. Thomas R. Davis of the Arctic Aeromedical Laboratory was read by Secretary Stewart.)

(Announcement of the Music Department's fall concert at the University Sunday, November 20, at 3 p.m. was read by Secretary Stewart.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communications can be filed.

(Resolution from the League of Alaskan Cities extending greetings to the Constitutional Convention, stating its interest in a good and equitable solution to the local government needs of Alaska and offering its help in every possible way, was read by Secretary Stewart.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication can be filed. Are there any petitions or memorials? If there are none, are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Cross.

CROSS: This is a report of the Committee on Resolutions:

"WHEREAS the Convention on November 14, 1955, referred to this Committee for action the following motion which was made by R. E. Robertson and seconded by Maurice T. Johnson, namely:

'I move that it is the intent of this Convention that the Constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic law, and contain only the framework for state government, with all the details to be ordained in the discretion of future legislatures.'

"Now, upon consideration of said motion,

IT IS RECOMMENDED THAT it be adopted and enacted by the Convention in the following amended form, viz.:

'I move that it is the intent of this convention that the Constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic government, and contain the framework for state government.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Committee on Resolutions. What is the pleasure of the Convention? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. Chairman, I move the report be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson moves for the adoption of the report.

JOHNSON: I second the motion and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion and asks unanimous consent. Is there objection? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: It says "...document of fundamental principles of basic government, and contain only the framework for state government,". It appears to me that is a little bit strong. We limit ourselves only to the framework of state government. I, in principle, am for this but I think we are pinning ourselves down for the time being.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I believe in the recommended version as set forth by the Committee the word "only" is removed. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The word "only" does not appear. Mr. Johnson, you are correct. Is there further discussion on the motion. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the motion is ordered adopted.

ROBERTSON: Question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson.

ROBERTSON: Is it now necessary to move to renew the motion or will the motion now be called up itself? Does the adoption of the report carry the motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would carry the motion, Mr. Robertson. The effect of that report would carry the original motion. Are there other reports of standing committees? Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Mr. President, the Committee on Direct Legislation, No. XIII, wish to report that the Committee met yesterday on schedule, and Mr. Taylor was elected as Vice Chairman, Mr. Metcalf as Secretary. We are organized and report progress.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of Committee No. XIII. Mr. Taylor was elected Vice Chairman and Mr. Metcalf, Secretary. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, Committee No. VI met yesterday. Douglas Gray was elected Secretary and George Cooper elected Vice President. The Committee will meet again as scheduled.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment. Mr. George Cooper was elected Vice President and Mr. Douglas Gray was elected Secretary. Are there reports of other standing committees? If not, are there reports of select committees? Introduction and first reading of proposals. Does anyone have a proposal. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. Chairman, I have two proposals I would like to introduce. One is already on the Secretary's desk and here is the other one (brought forward by Sergeant at Arms).

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 4, introduced by R. E. Robertson, FINANCE: TO LIMIT THE AMOUNT OF CURRENT, BONDED,

SCHOOL DISTRICTS, PUBLIC UTILITY DISTRICTS, AND OTHER TAXING AUTHORITY DISTRICTS SHALL BE SUBJECTED OR WHICH THEY MAY INCUR."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Committee on Finance and Taxation, Committee No. XI. It might be well before the Secretary reads any more proposals that the messenger collect all proposals that might be available. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask in regard to the previous proposal, is that a fundamental principle of basic government that you limit debt, in accordance with the resolution we just adopted?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers, of course it says "it will be the intent". What the outcome of any such proposal might be will be left to the judgment of the membership of the Convention.

V. RIVERS: I just wanted an interpretation in the minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other proposals? If you have proposals, have them ready when the messenger comes around to your desk and he will bring them to the Secretary.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 5, introduced by R. E. Robertson, DEFINITION OF NATURAL RESOURCES AND THEIR CONTROL."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Proposal No. 5 -- that would be Committee No. X, the Committee on Resources. The Proposal is referred to the Committee on Resources.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 5, introduced by Maurice T. Johnson and John B. Coghill, EDUCATION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that the only title?'

SECRETARY: It is the only title that appears. Do you wish a brief statement of content?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the Secretary would, would he read the brief statement.

SECRETARY: Section 1 relates to providing the rights of education; Section 2, the State's responsibility for education; Section 3, Legislature to establish the school, etc.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII, Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision. The Chair would ask an opinion of the maker of the proposal what committee you would rather have it go?

JOHNSON: It occurs to me that either the committee you have suggested, Mr. President, or else the Executive Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Proposal will be referred to the Committee on Direct Legislation. If that Committee would make another recommendation later, another disposition could be made. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: No further proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any motions or resolutions to come before the Convention at this time?

SECRETARY: No resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have with us this morning Colonel Sawtelle from Ladd Air Force Base. Colonel Sawtelle, you may come forward.

(Colonel Sawtelle came forward and shook hands with President Egan.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Colonel Sawtelle would like to be granted the privilege of the floor to make a statement. If there is no objection, Colonel Sawtelle, you may proceed.

COLONEL SAWTELLE: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, thank you for the opportunity to speak to you this morning concerning the activities which we have planned for you at Ladd Air Force Base this coming Saturday, pending the decision of the Convention to adjourn for the purpose of touring Ladd's facilities this coming Saturday. We have prepared an agenda which I feel all of you now have at hand. The necessity for having the tour in the morning is necessarily predicated on the fact that you can best see when it is daylight, and another factor came to mind, and that was the luncheon and I think fashion show which is being planned for the ladies of the delegates present. Another item which we have caused to be passed among you is a small slip which I would appreciate your indulgence and have you fill out while I am here in order that we may more adequately plan our activities in relation to transportation and the evening entertainment. Mr. Stewart has the invitations from the Commander in chief, Alaska, Lt. General Joseph H. Atkinson, who will be your host for the evening. On the invitations it is noted that the activities commence at 6:00. However, there has been a change, and we would again ask your indulgence to be available for the bus pick-up at the Nordale Hotel at 4:30 in the afternoon in order that we could have you at the club at 5:00. We are going to have a radio broadcast in which there will be several speakers, among them, your President, we hope Mr. Bartlett and General Atkinson. That will continue for approximately 30 minutes, following which time there will be a reception by General and Mrs. Atkinson, and then the evening activities commence. I bring you the good wishes of our Commander in chief and the good wishes of my Commander, General Bennett, Commander of the 11th Air Division at Ladd. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Colonel Sawtelle. Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Subject to the question of whether or not the motion is in order at this time, I should like to move that this Convention adjourn Saturday for the purpose of attending the planned reception at Ladd Air Force Base.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal, would the purpose of your motion be just for the afternoon session or the whole day?

HELLENTHAL: The whole day. I think it is unnecessary to give the pressing reasons why we as delegates should take advantage of this very kind invitation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then you are asking, Mr. Hellenenthal, in your motion that on Friday the Convention adjourn?

HELLENTHAL: Until Saturday morning, at I would suggest, 9 o'clock, and I so move, or rather Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are asking the general consent of the Convention? The Chair was wondering if it might be better to delay that action until later in the day when the delegates have had ample opportunity to think the question over.

HELLENTHAL: My point on that is that I know a vast amount of preparatory work goes into a matter of this kind, and it certainly would accommodate our hosts if we would make up our minds as soon as possible.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second to the motion?

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention agree to adjourn on Friday until 9 o'clock a.m. on Monday in order that the Saturday activities at Ladd Air Force Base might be enjoyed by the delegates to the Convention. The question is, shall the Convention agree to adjourn on Friday until 9 a.m. on Monday?" All those in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye". All opposed by saying "no". The "ayes have it and it will be the general agreement of the Convention that the Convention will adjourn on Friday until 9 o'clock in the morning of Monday. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time?

JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, may I ask for a two-minute recess while these slips are filled out?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter to the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce thanking them for the wonderful party, dinner, and reception they gave in honor of the delegates last night.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight moves and asks unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter of thanks to the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce for the wonderful party given in honor of the delegates last night. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the rules be suspended and that reconsideration be given to the vote for adjournment of a full day on Saturday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state that the maker of the original motion plans to offer an amended motion at the afternoon session.

COOPER: I withdraw my motion.

SECRETARY: Mr. President,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY: Colonel Sawtelle asks that one or two amendments be stated concerning this invitation. The Ladd Air Force hosts prefer that in the morning visit all the delegates ride on the buses because it will be a sort of guided tour, and if they were all together there the information given during the tour would be more easily handled. In the afternoon, however, those delegates who desire to bring their cars, it would be appreciated. They can be identified at the gate by the delegates' coat lapel tag or by the Convention courtesy parking ticket that was issued for the cars, and they should assemble at that time at the officers' club at Ladd. And the last item on the schedule -- buses leaving Ladd Officers' Club at midnight -- that has been amended, there will be a bus leaving there at 10 p.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there anything else to come before the Convention at this time?

SECRETARY: There is one other matter. The delegates may bring their cameras if they so desire.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business to come before the Convention? If not, the Chair would entertain a motion for a recess.

DAVIS: Mr. President, before recessing, the two subcommittees on Style and Drafting will meet at the usual time and in the usual place.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Davis's announcement. Are there other announcements? Mr. Gray.

GRAY: I move that the Convention recess until 1:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention recess until 1:30. The President would like to meet again with the committee chairmen at 1 p.m. in the regular meeting place on the third floor. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: The Committee on Convention Administration will meet at the usual place and the usual time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration announcement has been made. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (1:40 p.m.) We will have the reading of the journal of the ninth day. Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: The Committee has read the journal and made the corrections as they see them. I am only going to read the corrections since everybody has a copy of the journal. Mr. White, I believe will have a report of some recommendations after I am through." On Page 2, the last paragraph where it starts "Mr. Rivers , that should be "Mr. R. or Mr. Ralph Rivers". All other references in the journal to Mr. Rivers should be "Mr. V." or "Mr. Victor Rivers . On Page 5, the fifth paragraph, starting "Mr. Johnson moved and asked unanimous consent," strike the words "paid salary and per diem" and insert "shown present on the roll call." On Page 6, paragraph 10, after 9 o'clock insert "the following morning. Those are the corrections in the report as your Committee sees them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent of your proposal?

DOOGAN: Yes, I ask unanimous consent that the journal be approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan asks unanimous consent that the changes as proposed by the special committee to read the journal be approved. Is there objection? Hearing no objection -- Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Just a moment. The Secretary just picked up a matter that I think should be straightened out. Also on the fifth page, in paragraph 4, starting in the middle of the paragraph, Mr. McLaughlin asked Mr. Johnson to amend his motion to read that the roll call show Mr. Taylor as present." That whole sentence should be stricken. The reason for that -- I might explain -- when Mr. Johnson made the original motion and Mr. McLaughlin asked him to change his original motion there was not an amendment, so the motion in effect reads, "Mr. Johnson moved and asked unanimous consent that since Mr. Taylor's absence was due to illness, that he be shown present on the roll call. There being no objection it was so ordered."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan, do you include that in your original unanimous consent request? Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: In that case, to erase any mention of the amendment in there, "Mr. Johnson accepted the change" should also be stricken.

HERMANN: It seems to me there are too many "thats" in the first sentence of that paragraph.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you accept that, Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan asks unanimous consent then that the proposed changes as contained in his unanimous consent request be adopted by the Convention and that the journal be approved as per that request. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Miss Awes?

AWES: Mr. President, I just noticed that in the reports of the various committees it usually says that the committee elected a secretary. Technically that is not right. A vice chairman was elected and a secretary was appointed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would instruct that wherever it might say a "secretary was elected" that it show that the secretary of the standing committee was appointed by the chairman of that committee. The vice president of each of those standing committees was elected by the committee. Mr. White?

WHITE: Am I right in thinking that has been disposed of, the reading of the journal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unless there are further objections or corrections found. Mr. White.

WHITE: I ask unanimous consent to return to the business of committee reports for the purpose of a report of the committee on reading and correcting the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to returning to reports of special committees? If not, Mr. White, you may proceed with your reading of the committee report on the reading of the journal.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, the report of the Committee on reading and correcting the journal is entitled "CONVENTION POLICY AS TO READING AND CORRECTING THE JOURNAL.

1. That copies of the journal be placed on delegates' desks as soon as possible.
2. That the journal be read for approval at the opening session of the second day following the date of the journal.
3. That delegates be responsible for reporting errors and changes to Chief Clerk's office prior to one-half hour before the convening of the opening session of the second day following the date of the journal.
4. The report of the committee on reading the journal be accepted as final subject to ruling by the Chair.
5. That it shall be the policy of the committee to dispense with the reading of the journal except for changes, except when otherwise requested. That two copies only -- one in possession of the Secretary of the Convention and one in possession of the committee -- be corrected, except in cases of important changes, when such changes will be remimeographed.

Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of the report.

HELLENTHAL: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second?

DOOGAN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan seconds Mr. White's motion. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I may not know how parliamentary rules are practiced here, but in that Page 5 "Mr. Johnson moved and asked unanimous consent that since Mr. Taylor's absence was due to illness that he be reported present. I do not like to be a party to a thing that is not true. I don't object to paying his per diem but it seems to water down this body, and I don't understand that.

SWEENEY: Mr. President, point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, your point of order.

SWEENEY: The Delegate is not speaking on the business at hand.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken. Mr. Marston, could you hold that? The question is on the adoption of the report of the Special Committee to read the journal and report corrections to the Convention. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I objected to the unanimous consent request on that, and I would like to hear the second point read again.

WHITE: The second point was, "That the journal be read for approval at the opening session of the second day following the date of the journal." May I elaborate on that? In other words, that yesterday's journal rather than being read for approval at this session today, it will be read for the approval of the opening session of tomorrow morning. The theory behind it is this, that you have on your desk now copies of yesterday's journal which would serve most purposes for the time being. It is conceivable that the boiler room upstairs could get so jammed up that these copies would not have been available to you until just now. There would have been no chance for the delegates to read them and suggest changes prior to approval at this session.

SWEENEY: I object to that, Mr. Chairman. We have a 20-minute plenary session in the morning and about 20 minutes in the afternoon, and yesterday the Chief Clerk advised us that she had her journal practically up to time, and I see no reason why the journal cannot be on our desks fairly early in the morning and taken up the first thing in the afternoon. I think it is important that we have the journal and have it approved for the reason that those who wish to reconsider their votes I believe they can still do that on the next day whereas the day following would be too late. I think if we make a practice of putting this off until the second day we are going to have it the second day and perhaps even later than that. I believe we can have it on the following morning, and I will certainly vote to defeat the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? If there is no other discussion then the question is -- Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I think before we can intelligently pass upon this matter as to whether Mrs. Sweeney is right or whether Mr. White is right, we should ascertain from the boiler room when those journals can be put out each day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, do you think it would be proper at this time to ask the Chief Clerk to make a statement on that? Perhaps she could enlighten us.

TAYLOR: If the Chief Clerk can give us that information, I would certainly like to know.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chief Clerk might straighten out this matter.

CHIEF CLERK: The journal was ready this morning. The stencils were cut but they had to be run. We had the rules to run last night, we had committee reports to run last night, there are going to be more things being run every night as your committees get going, and I have told them that the journal is the most important thing in the morning, but that does not mean that there would not be a committee report that would be more important, and I certainly intend to see that you have the journal on your desk as soon as possible in the morning, but it is a physical impossibility due to the fact that we are out here and the people live in town and there isn't any transportation late in the evening for people to get back to work, and they come to work at 8:30. When Mr. White asked me about that I thought that it would simplify the facts for the members to have a chance to read the journal. You would have it on your desk to consult any references to action of the previous day, but for the actual corrections, you would have all day long to read it to check any changes that would be made. That was why I accepted his idea. It was not to delay your getting the copy of the journal -- it was to delay the approval of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? The question is, "Shall the report of the Committee to read and correct the journal be approved by the Convention?" All those in favor of approval of the report will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying no. The "ayes" have it and the report is ordered approved. Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, after conferring with the administrative people of our staff and the experts on the various fields of Convention activity, and in relation to the problem this morning of the visit to Ladd Field, I asked that it be noted on the record that it is in the interest of the business of this Convention and of the matters properly before this Convention that the delegates visit Ladd Air Force Base on next Saturday, November 19. Now my reasons and the reasons given me for this notation are, that we have many problems involving the military that will come before our body, virtually every committee of our body. For example, the Committee on Bill of Rights will have to determine whether or not there should be a right to suspend the writ of habeas corpus in the state of Alaska because of the imminence of attack or of invasion. It would seem to me that those of us who have not lived close to the military would want to know what steps the military have taken for the protection of the state of Alaska. Again, the problem of the quartering of troops in our homes will present itself to our body and no matter how you look at the analysis of the economy of Alaska today and Alaska as a state, the military must be considered. It must be considered in every projection of estimates or growth, population, everything, so for that reason it would appear that the notation on the record is in order, that it is the proper business of the group to visit this military installation and again, I have been assured that this matter will take care of all of the administrative details that seem to bother our technical staff.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, are you asking unanimous consent that the summary of your remarks be included as a part of the journal?

HELLENTHAL: I do, Mr. President. I so move.

BUCKALEW: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent. Objection is heard. Is there a second? Do you so move?

HELLENTHAL: I so move.

BARR: I'll second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal moves and Mr. Barr seconded the motion. The question is open for discussion. Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: I can see no reason for a tour of Ladd Field which takes up approximately three hours. I can see no reason to take that time. I don't think any questions or issues could be settled in three hours by merely touring the facilities available on one particular military base. Personally, I would rather see the Convention in plenary session until such time and then adjourn a little earlier in the afternoon possibly and take in the formalities -- they begin at 4:30. For a particular reason that each and every delegate here has the authority within himself to attend this morning session if he so chooses, but I don't like the motion made whereby it would be the will of the entire body to be present at Ladd Field during the morning tour.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on Mr. Hellenthal's motion? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, it seems a question of whether or not this tour is important enough to this Convention to suspend operations here for awhile. I certainly feel that it is. Mr. Hellenthal mentioned several things that we should learn about the military because we are concerned with them but he could go on further than he did -- there is a long list of them we are all concerned about the withdrawal of lands by the military, and people who are not closely connected with the military I am sure only see one side of it. We should learn a little more about their needs for land. Now, the events in the evening are mostly entertainment with the exception of an address by General Atkinson, but what they put on for us out there in the morning is for instruction, and I understand that General Bennett is going to give us a briefing on the operation of air defense they'll put on a practice scramble for us and that sort of thing and I think it is important that we know how the military works as well as their needs. That is a part of our business.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to add to Mr. Barr's statement and Mr. Hellenthal's. I have had the privilege on four different occasions in the past few years of going on this particular tour and particularly listening to the briefing by General Bennett which will be given the delegates of this Convention, and in addition to the things that they have mentioned, I think it is of importance to the members of this Convention to find out where we are spending a million and one-half dollars for one of these jet planes and the kind of building that it takes to keep that plane in operation, and the money that is spent for taxes in connection with the military in addition to other items that have been mentioned here. This briefing will be beneficial to the members of this group who have not had the opportunity before of getting the firsthand information. I think it will play very possibly an important part in writing some parts of this constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, none of the speakers has brought up the question of common courtesy and also advantageous public relations with the Army. As a state we are going to be living with them for quite a long time, and when the Commanding General of a department of the Army puts himself out to put out a program for the members of this Convention, want to show what their problems are and what they are up against, I think the hours can be very well spent on Saturday morning for those members of the Convention who want to go out there and see what they have to offer. It might be well to hear what General Atkinson has to say. He is a pretty big man in the Army. I feel that the loss of those few hours on Saturday morning will not make or break this Convention, and it might be a means of achieving a good public relations between the Army and the state. They know that this is a Convention that is going to enact a constitution for the state of Alaska, and if we act in a boorish mood, take a boorish attitude toward them that we don't care to go out there, we might as a state suffer a little bit from the actions of the Convention delegates.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, obviously I am in the minority. I agree with Mr. Cooper. I feel that these things are important that have been spoken about. I also feel that in peace time there should be some semblance of supremacy over the military. I don't know whether or not the matter was taken up with our Secretary. or President before, but I think it is somewhat presumptuous to present us a schedule from morning to night and say this is it -- come if you want and stay away if you want. I think those things are all important, but I think it is more important we get this session over with as soon as we can do so by writing an excellent constitution. I am against adjourning for the day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: Mr. Chairman, in that regard I have no objection either way, but if we approve this adjournment for all day Saturday we are in effect setting a precedent. Now in the brochures you have from the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce, you will notice particular for the wives and women delegates, there is approximately ten teas, most of them I believe are scheduled on a Saturday afternoon, and what I mean by setting a precedent is should you accede to the wishes of the military without acceding to the wishes of the various community and service clubs for these teas and again for the tea this afternoon that is being held in the Home Economics Room for the benefit of the delegates. I would just like to throw that in.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Mr. President, I would like to know whether I can find my application blank. I said I was going out in the afternoon. I would like to go out in the morning now.

HERMANN: I just want to ask a question about this, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: If we adopt this motion as it was made by Mr. Hellenthal that this will be a part of our official duties, are we required to go on the tour of the Base?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Point of order. The motion did not say that it would be a part of your official duties in so many words.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would hold there is no way that a delegate could be forced to do much of anything off the Convention floor.

HERMANN: I still want to know if I have to go.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray has been attempting to get the floor.

GRAY: To be a politician you have to satisfy both sides of the question. I believe that we can have our cake and eat it too if everybody will just give a little. What I see about this is that we have an entertainment in the morning and in the evening, and we have a plenary session in the morning and afternoon. I believe fully that we should use this day as a constitutional day and I believe fully that we should have a plenary session at 1:30 in our regular schedule, and I believe in adopting Mr. Hellenthal's notice and at this time I wish to rescind the motion of Mr. Hellenthal and introduce another motion that we adjourn until 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order. I may be misinformed on this matter, but it appears to me we took the action for adjournment this morning and we are merely concerned now with the adoption of the summary of the intent of substantiating our reason for adjournment. We have already decided to adjourn over Saturday. This is merely a matter to put this intent in the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right but Mr. Gray was saying that while he is for the statement of Mr. Hellenthal, he wants to let it be known that he is going to make another motion later. Your point of order, Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Point of order. I question the propriety of a motion to adjourn at a future time. I don't see how you can possibly put such a motion when you don't know what the situation will be before that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would hold that if the Convention set a time for another day at which they were going to adjourn, that it would be in order, for the majority of the Convention can decide to do almost anything they want to relative to this Convention. If they want to say now that on Thanksgiving day they are going to adjourn and not work, then they can do that. They could overturn that action later. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Would you have the Chief Clerk read the motion as it was stated this morning on adjournment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, that would not have anything -- would the Chief Clerk read the particular motion that related to adjournment?

CHIEF CLERK: "Moved that the Convention adjourn Friday until Monday morning at 9 o'clock for the purpose of attending the activities planned at Ladd Air Force Base.

NOLAN: Mr. President, did that pass this morning?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, it passed this morning, Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: In getting a little off the subject and following Mr. Gray's thoughts, I have thought along the same lines. I thought maybe the morning part of it could have been pushed up and the buses leave from here immediately after our plenary session rather than to come back here at 1:30 in the afternoon -- meet, have the roll call and then go through the 20 minute business and board the buses here and finish for the day, rather than come back at 1:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nolan, then that could follow after action is taken on Mr. Hellenthal's motion, any motion along the line you are suggesting. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Point of order. If there was a motion made to adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday morning we have nothing before us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion was to adjourn from Friday until Monday morning at 9:00 is before us. We have Mr. Hellenthal's motion before us, Mr. Coghill. At the present time we are discussing the motion that is before us that was made by Mr. Hellenthal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I might have started all this. I objected to what Mr. Hellenthal said. The only reason I objected was it seems to me that the purpose of the trip is sort of a tenuous extension of what we are going to accomplish by it. Mr. Hellenthal would apparently have people believe that 20 years from now that by going out to Ladd Air Force Base tomorrow we would get some enlightenment on suspension of writ of habeas corpus and billeting troops in our homes, which as my grandmother would say, is hogwash .

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Contrary to Mr. Buckalew, I would say that the Commanding General of Alaska had a great deal to tell us about the military plans of the future, perhaps with respect to land withdrawals, and it might be pretty important as far as the state was concerned.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Was there further discussion on Mr. Hellenthal's motion? Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I believe that we ought to appreciate the invitation of the military to visit Ladd Air Force Base, but if we could arrange so we could go in the morning and visit the bases, then it could be possible that we have an afternoon session at 2 o'clock or 1:30. I think we should appreciate the invitation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

MCCUTCHEON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis moves the previous question, Mr. McCutcheon seconded the motion. All those in favor of ordering the previous question say "aye", all opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is on the proposed motion by Mr. Hellenthal. All those in favor of Mr. Hellenthal's motion say "aye", all opposed say "no". The "ayes" have it and Mr. Hellenthal's motion will become a part of the journal. Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. President, I would like to move that the motion as made by Mr. Hellenthal this morning be rescinded.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves that the Convention rescind the action on the motion to adjourn that was made and carried by Mr. Hellenthal this morning. Is there a second to the motion?

COOPER: I second it.

GRAY: I might tell you at this time the purpose for rescinding is merely for introducing the same motion again and changing the time. After the motion is rescinded, if it is, then we will introduce another motion, set another time for the plenary session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, following Mr. Gray's remarks here, talking to the Colonel this morning, I would see no reason why the buses on their return from Ladd Air Force Base couldn't and wouldn't deliver the delegates right back to the Convention Hall where we could have lunch together and go into plenary session at 1:30 in the afternoon. I am making this just as a suggestion. I do feel we ought to meet in regular business session sometime tomorrow afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: We have accomplished something here. We have set up a time certain for adjournment on Friday to Monday, and we have also set up a special order of business for this Convention tomorrow. Now if we were to come here, if we had a big journal full of work, if we had some reason to come here besides the roll call and reading of the minutes, but merely as a gesture to satisfy possible criticism of somebody 15 or 20 years from now, I see no reason for it. There are a number of those I noticed, who feel we should convene here and who do not want to go to Ladd Air Force Base who live in this general area. But there are a number of others who are not acquainted with circumstances. We have set up a special order of business. For those who want to observe it, it is a full day's activity. I see no reason to rescind this motion. I point out the motion to rescind takes a two-third's majority.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct. Is there further discussion on the motion to rescind the action on the adjournment from Friday to Monday?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall the adjournment action be rescinded?"

MCCUTCHEON: Roll call. There has to be a two-thirds count.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 18 - Coghill, Cooper, Doogan, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Laws, Lee, McNees, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Smith, Sweeney, Mr. President.

Nays: 33 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Collins, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, Hellenthal, Hermann, Kilcher, Knight, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Reader, Riley, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien.

Absent: 4 - Hilscher, R. Rivers, Robertson, Sundborg.)

CHIEF CLERK: Eighteen ayes, 33 nays and 4 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion to rescind the action has failed. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, in calling the roll I noticed that we started again with "Armstrong." I think this particular roll should have started somewhere down the line.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are happy you called that to the attention of the Chair and the Chief Clerk, Mr. Davis. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I rise to a point of information. Through the Chair possibly the Chairman of the Rules Committee could help me out on this. I am a bit confused on when you make a motion to adjourn, it is a privileged motion and cannot be amended and in effect, you amended the motion by the previous adoption of Mr. Hellenthal's other motion to take action.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That we did not, Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: We adjourned then from Friday evening until Monday morning and there is nothing held on the delegates of this Convention as to attend any part of the doings at Ladd Field?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, there was no way you could force a delegate to attend that visit at Ladd Field. It just is that the motion would give them ample time to attend it if they thought it would be their duty or if they wished to attend.

COGHILL: The way I understood the motion was that the motion carried the intent that it would be official business and it would give the Convention a shield to work under for critics.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? If there is no other business, the President will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock -- excuse me, I guess the adjournment time is 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is adjourned until 9 o'clock a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 18, 1955

ELEVENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Robert Sheppard of the First Church of the Nazarene of Fairbanks who will deliver the daily invocation (9:00 a.m.). (Delegates stood.)

REV. SHEPPARD: Shall we pray. Almighty God and Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for this moment of worship at the beginning of this day's activities. We thank Thee for that precious knowledge that comes to us through Thy word that "the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom", and that as we pray for Thy blessing upon the assembled delegates today and their tremendous responsibilities we ask that there shall be an acknowledgment of Thee, a turning to Thee for Thou art the fountainhead of all knowledge and understanding and blessing. Guide, we pray, and make this a good day in the formulation of our state constitution. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Sheppard. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Fifty-four present, one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. Presentation of petitions, memorials, communications from outside the Convention.

SECRETARY: Communication from outside of the Convention. The manager of the Co-op Drug Store says he will open the lunch room daily at 7:55 a.m. for those who want morning snacks there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication may be filed. Are there other communications?

SECRETARY: There are none.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are their reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Are there proposals to be introduced at this time? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I have a proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The messenger might pick up the proposal. Are there other proposals? If not, the Secretary may read, may proceed with the first reading of the proposal by Mr. Johnson.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 7, introduced by Maurice T.

Johnson, DEALING WITH WILD LIFE CONSERVTION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Committee on Resources. Are there any motions or resolutions to come before the Convention at this time? Is there any unfinished business? Any special orders of the day? Any general orders of the day? If there is nothing else to present to the Convention at this time -- Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, I would like to announce that the Committee on Style and Drafting will meet at the usual place at 11 o'clock. The Committee will meet a few minutes as a Committee before breaking into subcommittees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement by Mr. Davis. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: Committee No. XIV will meet immediately after the special recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIV, the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations, will meet immediately upon recess. Miss Awes?

AWES: Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights will meet immediately after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights will meet immediately upon recess. Are there any other announcements? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: The Committee on the Judiciary Branch will meet today at the established time.

MCNEALY: Committee No. IV on Ordinances will not meet until Monday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. IV on Ordinances as announced by the Chairman, Mr. McNealy, will not meet until Monday. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: The Committee on the Executive will meet immediately after this meeting adjourns.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers announces that the Committee on Executive will meet immediately upon recess. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: The Committee on Resources will meet at the scheduled time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. X, the Committee on Resources will meet at the scheduled time. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Committee No. XII, Local Government, will meet at our regular time at 3:30 this afternoon. At our yesterday's meeting we continued our study of the staff papers, and we agreed to join in on the TV program and we have asked for a consultant, Mr. Weldon Cooper, of the University of Virginia to help us at a later date.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of Committee No. XII. Are there other committee reports? Collins? Mr.

COLLINS: Committee No. XIII, Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision, will meet Monday on schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins announces Committee No. XIII the Committee on Amendment and Revision will meet Monday on schedule. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I move we adjourn then until 9 o'clock on Monday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked that the Convention adjourn at this time.

MCLAUGHLIN: I object. May I inquire, is it Mr. Buckalew's intention we not hold an afternoon session?

BUCKALEW: That is sure what it sounds like, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. You will have to put your proposal in the form of a motion, Mr. Buckalew. There is nothing before us at this time.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman, I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew moves that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

V. RIVERS: Second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers seconds the motion. The motion is undebatable. The question is, "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock Monday morning?" All those in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye". All opposed to the motion will signify by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the motion is lost and the Convention is still in session. Mr. Barr?

BARR: I ask unanimous consent that we recess until 1:30 this PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr asks unanimous consent that we recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

TAYLOR: I object for the purpose of a point of information. Is it not a fact that we acted upon this motion the other day and agreed to recess until 9 o'clock Monday morning?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was the agreement as of the time the Convention might deem it to be proper, Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I believe it would be in order would it not to rescind that former action of the Convention?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, it would not, because the Convention has not signified its intention of not adjourning at this time, until later in the day evidently.

TAYLOR: I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The meeting will come to order. Is there anything to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to revert back to the introduction of proposals. I would like to introduce a proposal that I had on my desk this morning and mislaid.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson asks unanimous consent to revert back to introduction of proposals at this time. Is there objection? There being no objection, Mr. Robertson's proposal is received.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 8, introduced by R. E.

Robertson. LEGISLATURE: TO CREATE A LEGISLATURE WITH QUALIFICATIONS OF ITS MEMBERS, AND TO ESTABLISH LEGISLATIVE AND SUBLEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS, AND REPRESENTATION THEREFROM, AND TO REQUIRE DECENNIAL REAPPORTIONMENT."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Legislative. Is there anything else to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Point of order. Perhaps the resolution should be jointly referred to two committees, because apparently it deals with two topics. I am sure Mr. McCutcheon and I can work this out among ourselves but apparently it deals with composition of the legislature and secondly with a method of apportionment, which would be under the jurisdiction of committee VI.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, your point of order is well taken, and perhaps Mr. McCutcheon's committee, No. VII on the Legislative Branch, could take the proposal first and refer it later to the Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment. It is so ordered. We have before the delegates a very important item of business -- the receipt of the first paychecks to Convention delegates. Five days of your salary is covered in that. Perhaps the Chief Clerk could explain that situation so there will be no question in anyone's mind as to what this is.

CHIEF CLERK: This is for the first five days, starting with last Tuesday through Saturday, and from now on you will get a weekly check for salary which has all the withholding tax taken out, and then you will get a per diem check. The first per diem check should be here Monday I think if the planes fly, according to how long it took to get the voucher down and back with the checks -- it was about five days. I think you will get a per diem check on Monday and then next week you will get another salary check and another per diem check. So next week will really pay off.

MCNEES: May I ask the Chief Clerk if this check is large enough to hold us over until Monday.

CHIEF CLERK: I hope. (laughter)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to revert to the order of committee reports.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill asks unanimous consent to revert to the order of committee reports. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, Mr. Coghill, you may proceed with your report.

COGHILL: Administrative Committee Report No. 3. Mr. President, your Committee on Administration respectfully submits the following report for the week of November 14 - 18, 1955: The officers of the Administrative Committee consist of Herb Hilscher, Vice president and Dora Sweeney, Secretary. The Committee felt that it would be advisable to dress up the Constitution Hall -- the Convention Hall -- and therefore, has ordered additional American flags and Alaska flags. The Administrative Committee will make weekly reports to the Convention on finance, personnel, etc. The Committee wishes to report that the secretariat is completely organized. Job descriptions have been cared for by the Committee and Tom Stewart is in charge of the mechanics and operation of the secretariat. Memorandums have been distributed to the delegates concerning the use of the library and securing the use of consultants. The Administrative Committee wishes to advise the delegates that a clip file of items of Territorial newspapers is being kept at the library. The Administrative Committee has worked out with the Secretary a method of supervision of official business long distance calls and telegrams and memorandums to that effect are forthcoming.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your pleasure with regard to this report, Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I will move and ask unanimous consent that it be accepted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and asks unanimous consent that the report of the Committee on Administration be accepted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the report is ordered accepted by the Convention. Is it the desire that reports of this nature go in the minutes in their entirety? If it is not the desire of the Convention that reports of this nature go in their entirety the Chair will instruct that a summary of the report be placed in the minutes of today's proceedings. Is there objection to that?

MCNEES: I would like to suggest that the report be filed, however.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The report will be filed, Mr. McNees, but a summary of the report will go in the journal. Is there anything else to come before the Convention? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: I would like to make a committee announcement at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog requests permission to make a committee announcement at this time. Hearing no objection, Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Committee No. XII, Local Government Committee, will hold our regular meeting at 3:30 and will have an extra meeting tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock in Apartment 6 of the Alaskan Inn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of Mr. Rosswog. He plans to hold a special meeting of the Committee on Local Government at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Apartment 6 of the Alaskan Inn.

ROSSWOG: We wish to finish our consideration of the staff reports at that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, this doesn't have to appear in the journal but I did want to ask, in connection with the payment of salaries, the salary checks show the deductions withheld, Social Security and other deductions from the total, so we will have a record. In other words, we have to have that in keeping, at least we do in our office, to keep books in that manner. We then know what parts have been distributed to each part of the monies paid in full and what has been deducted for what purpose.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk answer that question?

CHIEF CLERK: That cannot be done under the Territorial setup. But at the end of this period of your service you will get a statement which will cover that. You mean you want it weekly?

V. RIVERS: That will be sufficient. A summary will be sufficient. If we get it in a file at the end, that will be all right for our purposes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That answers the question for Mr. Victor Rivers. Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. Chairman, a minor point, but we will need it before the first of the year.

CHIEF CLERK: You will get it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary has some communications. You may proceed.

SECRETARY: The hosts at Ladd Field wish that the request be placed as to whether any other persons might be going on the morning tour than had yesterday indicated their intention. If anyone who did not so indicate, could notify the Chief Clerk at the end of the meeting, please.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request of the Secretary. If anyone else who did not originally signify to go to Ladd Field in the morning wishes to do so, please notify the Secretary at the end of this meeting. Did you have another announcement Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY: The room at the end of the hall, the far end of the building upstairs has been set aside as a typing room for delegates. There are now two typewriters and tables and we can provide more there if you wish to use them. The doorkeeper has been designated to act as a sort of clearing house on transportation, so if any person going to town and has available transportation would notify him, and vice versa, if you need individual transportation, he may have the information for you as to who is going and when and where. I wanted to say that on the newspapers, the newspapers that were being received by the Statehood Committee in Juneau, are going to be sent here three times a week. They include all the daily newspapers of the Territory plus the principal weekly newspapers. We intended to put them in the library for the delegates' use but after a few days to use them for the maintenance of a clip file, so they need to be kept there in order for that to be performed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, there will be a brief meeting of the Rules Committee in the rear of the gallery space following adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a brief meeting of the Rules Committee following adjournment. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it occurs to me that we have done nothing about the minutes of the meeting for yesterday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, in accordance with the action taken yesterday, it was decided that the journal would be approved every other day, which in this case with the adjournment decided upon, will not be until Monday. On Monday we will have yesterday's journal and the journal of today to approve. Mr. Knight.

KNIGHT: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak to a personal privilege. I ask unanimous consent today to say a very, a day which is a very auspicious one for one of our delegates. However, he has one failing, that of not wanting to reveal when he first saw the light of day, and today after only 39 summers, so at this time I would like this Convention to extend hearty congratulations to our beloved Maurice T. Johnson because it is his birthday.

(Mrs. Sweeney brought Mr. Johnson to front of hall.) (Cake brought in at this time.)

JOHNSON: Holy smoke.

SWEENEY: You know, Mr. Johnson, it is quite an achievement for a man to reach 39 and not get beyond that so this is a plain white carnation, consider it a Legion of Honor or decoration of some kind.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, let the record show that it was Mr. Johnson's birthday, and immediately following adjournment, the delegates partook of a delicious birthday cake in honor of Mr. Johnson's birthday. Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me in order to move that the Convention adjourn until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention is adjourned until Monday at 9 a.m. The Convention stands adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 21, 1955

FOURTEENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend John C. Stokes, pastor of the University Community Presbyterian Church. Reverend Stokes will give us our daily invocation.

REV. STOKES: Let us pray. Almighty and gracious God, we beseech in earnestness Thy blessing upon this Convention and this day, that all things that are said and done here may be done not only with the knowledge that we are making laws for men by which to live, but that we are living the lives that Thou has given to each of us. We ask Thy blessing upon those who are members of the committees, upon those who rule the sessions and upon those who formulate the ideas. Now grant peace, understanding, love, justice and mercy in all that is done in the formation of the constitution. In the name of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: All present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. Proceed with the reading of the journal -- that is for this afternoon's session. Dispense with the reading of the journal at this time. Are there any petitions, memorials, or communications from outside the Convention? Reports of standing committees? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, last Thursday or Friday it was asked that the report from the Rules Committee be made a first order of business this morning. Your Rules Committee asks now that that be made a special order of business this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks that the matter be held over as a special order of business this afternoon. Are there any other reports? First reading of proposals? Are there any proposals that the delegates would like to submit at this time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other proposals for the Sergeant at Arms to bring forward at this time? If not, the Secretary may proceed with the first reading of proposals.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 9, introduced by Victor Fischer, AN ARTICLE ON EDUCATION, HEALTH AND WELFARE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Education.

CHIEF CLERK: There is not a Committee on Education.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. The proposal is referred to that committee.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 10 introduced by Victor Fischer, INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS".

PRESIDENT EGAN: That proposal will be referred to Committee No. XIV, the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 11, introduced by Thomas Harris, LOCATION OF THE STATE CAPITAL."

PRESIDENT EGAN: That proposal will be referred to the Committee, Committee No. VII, Committee on the Legislative Branch.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 12, introduced by Edward V. Davis, PERTAINING TO THAT SECTION OF THE CONSTITUTION RELATIVE TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE JUDICIAL BRANCH OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE STATE OF ALASKA."

PRESIDENT EGAN: That proposal is referred to Committee No. IX, the Committee on the Judiciary Branch.

SECRETARY: No further proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Those are all the proposals. We are now down to motions and resolutions. Are there any motions and resolutions to come before us at this time?

SECRETARY: "Resolution introduced by Chris Poulsen, LOCATION OF THE STATE CAPITAL."

PRESIDENT EGAN: That resolution will be referred to Committee No. VII, the Committee on Legislative Branch. Are there other resolutions?

SECRETARY: No further resolutions, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Other unfinished business? Are there any special orders of the day? General orders of the day? If not, the Chair would entertain a motion for recess.

V. RIVERS: I move a recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is at recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Knight.

KNIGHT: Reporting for the Committee on the reading of the journal, this covers the reading of the journal for the tenth day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are now proceeding with the reading of the journal of the tenth day.

KNIGHT: We recommend the following changes:

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee to read the journal recommends the following changes for the tenth day:

KNIGHT: On Page 2, line 12, after the word "and" insert the word "appointed". In line 15, after the word "and" also put in the word "appointed". On line 15 delete the word "proposal" and place in the word "principle". On Page 3, line 14, delete the word "of". In place thereof put the word "at". On Page 4, the sixth line from the bottom of the page there is a typographical error in the word "remarks".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

METCALF: I don't know what he is talking about.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is the journal of the tenth day of the Convention, November 17. The Chair does not have a copy. (Received copy at this time.) Mr. Knight, the Chair is sorry to interrupt you but some of them did not have their copies. You may proceed with the reading of the proposed changes.

KNIGHT: Page 4, sixth line from the bottom, typographical error in the word "remarks". That is all the changes. We ask unanimous consent they be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight asks unanimous consent that the corrections brought to the attention of the Convention relative to the journal of the tenth day be adopted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal of the tenth day will be corrected as the Chairman of the Committee to read the journal has requested. Is there anything else to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we revert to the order of business of the Introduction of Proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson asks unanimous consent to return to the order of business of introduction of proposals. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, you may introduce your proposal, Mr. Johnson. The Secretary may read the proposal.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 13 introduced by Maurice T. Johnson, DEFINING INHERENT RIGHTS.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Defining Inherent Rights -- Committee No. V. The proposal is referred to Committee No. V on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 14, introduced by Maurice T. Johnson, THE EXECUTIVE.

PRESIDENT EGAN: "The Executive?" The proposal is referred to the Committee on the Executive Branch.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 15, introduced by W. O. Smith, TO MAKE PROVISIONS OF CONSTITUTION MANDATORY."

PRESIDENT EGAN: "To make provisions of the Constitution mandatory" would that be, Mr. Smith -- The Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights? Would that come under that? To what committee would you like to refer that?

SMITH: Mr. President, my sole purpose in introducing this proposal before the Convention was to lay that burden on the President's shoulders.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal will be referred to the Committee on the Executive. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: No further proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there are no further proposals, is there anything else to come before the Convention? Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, as a special order of business last Wednesday Mr. Sundborg proposed a motion that would operate to modify Rule 50 as adopted earlier in the session, and that motion was in turn referred for a recommendation to the Rules Committee. Now properly this report should be in two parts, but I will ask the indulgence of the Convention to state the whole proposition in view of the fact that the latter part of our report may bear on the Convention action. The motion which was referred to the Committee for recommendation has received an adverse recommendation. The Committee does not endorse it for adoption. On the other hand, the Committee has determined that Rule 50 could be clarified, its language could be improved, and it does submit for the consideration and adoption of the Convention a redraft of Rule 50. That redraft, it should be clearly stated, does not reflect the terms of Mr. Sundborg's motion which was specifically referred to us. On each desk is a copy of the proposed redraft and any action of course on that would have to await action on the motion which was referred to us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question before us at this time is on the motion that was previously made by Mr. Sundborg. Will the Chief Clerk read the motion please?

CHIEF CLERK: "That the rules be amended as follows: In Rule 50, line 2. after the word 'thereon' insert the following: 'any article, other appropriate subdivision or group of articles or subdivisions may be returned to second reading for specific amendment by a vote of at least 28 members. After final action on all portions of the constitution separately.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the wish of the Convention as regards Mr. Sundborg's original motion? The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's motion be adopted?"

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: All those in favor say "aye" -- Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, I think it will take a two-thirds vote since it is a change in the rules. I think it will have to be a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 4 - Buckalew, Collins, Kilcher, Sundborg.

Nays: 50 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - Doogan.)

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, can I change my vote from "no" to "yes".

PRESIDENT EGAN: You Mr. Buckalew. Your vote will be changed from "no" to "yes". Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I move --

PRESIDENT EGAN: The roll has not been announced.

CHIEF CLERK: Four ayes and 50 nays and one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the motion as proposed by Mr. Sundborg has failed and the rules have not been amended. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, does that leave us in position where the rules stand as they were before this motion was made?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right.

SMITH: Then this suggested redraft would be an additional amendment? I will make a motion that the suggested redraft be adopted, although I believe that possibly it would have to call for suspension of the rules again, is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith moves that the suggested redraft of the Rules Committee as relating to Rule 50 be adopted by the Convention. Is there a second?

TAYLOR: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor seconds the motion. The subject is open for debate.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I think the Secretary should just read it even though we have it before us and then I will ask for unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk read the proposed redraft?

CHIEF CLERK: "Rule 50. After all proposals which are to be included in the Constitution have been agreed upon the Convention shall refer them to the Committee on Style and Drafting for final arrangement in proper order and form.

When the Committee submits the Constitution in proposed final form for adoption, any part of the document may, by an affirmative vote of at least 37 delegates, be opened for specific amendment by reversion to second reading. Should the proposed document be amended it shall again be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting. After the report of the Committee, the Constitution in final form shall be adopted by the Convention by the affirmative vote of at least 28 delegates."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, so that our record may be clear on this, I wonder if I may have the indulgence of those who have put the motion, to rephrase it in this way. I move that we strike Rule 50 as it now appears in the rules and in lieu thereof insert the following, and then the text of what has been read by the Chief Clerk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, would you. object?

SMITH: No objection.

HERMANN: I would like to ask unanimous consent to put a comma after the word "upon" in the second sentence.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then Mr. Smith's original motion will be worded to state that Rule 50 as it now appears in the permanent rules be deleted and that the suggested redraft as proposed by the Rules Committee of Rule 50 be inserted to take its place. Unanimous consent has been asked that the suggested redraft contain a comma after the word "upon" in the second sentence. The question is open for discussion. If there is no discussion, the Chief Clerk -- Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I think the point of clarification on this subject and for the record some remarks pertaining to the change would be in place. I would like my fellow delegates to observe that in essence Rule 50 has not been changed. The wording in some respects is clearer now, as the first sentence indicates, we don't deal in the first sentence any more with a framed constitution but with an amount of separate proposals. But the 37 votes, the majority of 37 votes required, to amend any of the separate proposals is in essence the same thing as we had before. Here it is spelled more explicitly, but actually this 37-vote majority is the normal majority required to suspend rules, so in essence the situation is the same as it was a week ago. Actually, I do not see why we should go through the motions of adopting this new redraft of Rule 50 unless we also go into a further matter for the record's sake as to the essence of Rule 50, which I last week have tried to change. If I am correct, my objective last week in bringing up this matter was mainly to have the separate proposals considered separate, to make them subject to a straight majority amendability if the need arises, if there should be a substantive conflict, etc. Now there seems to be a possibility to reach the very same objective in another manner through the act of rescinding. Now, if I am wrong, I would like to be corrected. If I understand correctly, any change in a proposal at any time could be effected by reverting to rescinding, and rescinding with given notice would only require a straight majority vote, so actually the objective that I was trying to reach last week can be reached within the rules themselves as they were all along.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves the previous question. Is there a second?

BUCKALEW: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the previous question be ordered.

TAYLOR: I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor asks unanimous consent that the previous question be ordered.

SUNDBORG: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. All in favor of moving the previous question will say "aye", all opposed, "no". The ayes have it. The previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall the suggested redraft of Rule 50 take its place in the permanent rules in lieu of the present Rule 50 of our permanent rules?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 47 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, Marston, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 7 - V. Fischer, Harris, Hermann, McCutcheon, McNealy, McNees, Metcalf.

Absent: 1 - Doogan.

CHIEF CLERK: Forty-seven ayes, seven nays, and one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the suggested redraft of Rule No. 50 as proposed by the Rules Committee has become a permanent part of the rules. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I move and ask unanimous consent that purely in the interest of uniform form that the new Rule 50, when it is typed into our rules, be typed all in one paragraph and not be broken down into two as it is in the draft which is before us. That would be uniform with the rules which we already have. There are no two-paragraph rules any place else.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request? If there is no objection the Secretary is ordered to draft Rule 50 as if it were one paragraph. Is there further business to come before the Convention? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to ask unanimous consent to revert to committee reports.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith asks unanimous consent to revert to committee reports. If there is no objection you may proceed, Mr. Smith.

SMITH: The Committee on Resources would like to request the services of Ernest R. Bartley and Vincent Ostrom, and I think it would be pertinent to ask the Secretary to make a statement on the qualifications of these men at the appropriate time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then you have heard the request of the Chairman of the Committee on Resources. He requests the services of Ernest R. Bartley and Vincent Ostrom for aid in the research work that is necessary in the Committee on Resources. The request will be taken under advisement by the President and the Secretary of the Convention, if that is the wish of the Convention. Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, Committee No. VI on the Elections, Suffrage and Apportionment will hold what may be the first of a series of public hearings at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, next Saturday, and we ask that the delegates take note of that and that appropriate publicity be given of the fact through the office of the Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement of the Chairman of Committee No. VI. The hearing will be in Convention Hall in this room. The public hearing that Mr. Hellenthal is speaking of.

HELLENTHAL: No, Mr. President, it was our intention that the Committee hearing be held in the regular meeting place, and should sufficient people appear there it will be recessed to a larger meeting place if the need develops.

TAYLOR: Just for a point of information, I would like to ask what particular matter would be brought up at this time?

HELLENTHAL: Any matters pertinent to the jurisdiction of the committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Public notice will be given. Miss Awes?

AWES: Committee No. V, the Committee on Bill of Rights will also hold a public hearing on Saturday and it is scheduled for 9:30 in the regular committee room. Also, the Committee will not meet tomorrow but again Wednesday at the regular time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement of Miss Awes. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Committee No. III on Style and Drafting would like to request that the services of Mr. Jack McKay be requested for the duration of the Convention and specifically that the Legislative Council be asked to assign Mr. McKay here with the Legislative Council to bear his salary but the Convention to pay his per diem.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request of Mr. Sundborg. If there is no objection the President and the Secretary will ask that Mr. McKay be assigned here for the duration of the Convention. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: May I ask if that was for the use of the Convention at large?

SUNDBORG: Yes. We know we will want him to some extent for the Committee on Style and Drafting, but our thought was that we don't need him just yet and do not know just yet and we don't know yet until the substantive committees begin to get further along with their proposals, when we will need him, but we think the whole Convention should have the advantage and use of his services.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Legislative Council will be notified at the request of the Convention to have Mr. McKay here. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I have a question to ask along the subject I was discussing with you this noon. Possibly Mr. Riley of the Rules Committee could tell me. What is the procedure if the proponent of a proposal desires to propose an amendment to the proposal other than to bring it simply before the committee itself so that it would come to the attention of all members that proposed amendments?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would seem to the Chair that you would have to go before the committee, but, Mr. Riley, as Chairman of the Rules Committee, have you taken that particular question into consideration?

RILEY: Mr. President, I don't believe it has arisen any time up to now, certainly not in any committee meetings I have recalled. It would seem one possible solution would be to simply put in another proposal on the same general subject matter which in turn would get it before the same committee which is considering the earlier basic proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I have an idea along that line. I think it was used in the legislature for many years. It is the fact that the bill is in committee now, in the Judiciary Committee. The fact that it is in there, the committee can amend that bill and report it in as a committee amendment or rewrite the proposal and call a committee substitute for Mr. Robertson's proposal. I think it can be left up to the committee to take care of those particular --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. Chairman, is there any reason why the author of a proposal cannot amend it himself in second reading after it comes out on the floor?

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is no reason why he could not attempt to do so Mrs. Hermann. There is also no reason, the Chair would feel, why the maker of the proposal might not ask unanimous consent or move to have the proposal withdrawn. Is there further discussion? Mr. Secretary do you have something? The Secretary states that the Committee on Administration has completed its arrangements for having new chairs and tables for the delegates' pleasure here in Convention Hall and that they plan to make this change immediately following the adjournment this afternoon, and if the delegates are around and wish to choose their various seats they are welcome to do so after the change has been made. Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee is going to meet at the TV station at 4 o'clock today, and I thought perhaps Mr. McLaughlin, our Chairman, would like to tell about transportation or such.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you like to comment, Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: There will be a rump session of the Committee on the Judiciary immediately after the adjournment of this session. Transportation is available to members of the Committee if anyone desires to go downtown immediately.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, you will appear on Channel 11 at 4 p.m.? Mr. Nerland, did you bring out that TV set?

NERLAND: Yes, it is all set up upstairs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If any delegates who are still here wish to view the Committee on the Judiciary on television beginning at 4 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Nerland has been kind enough to bring a television set out for the delegates. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: It might be well to point out that the Committee on Convention Administration made the proposal in their first report for the chairs and tables, and it was the wish of this Committee to have it brought before the floor as to whether they want the chairs and table arrangement placed in the Convention Hall this afternoon. I don't believe that was followed through after your announcement.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the Chair has stated to the members it was going to be done. The Chair did not hear any objection. The Chair would feel the Convention delegates are practically unanimous in their feeling for that change. Is there anything further to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I notice that some new equipment has appeared before us today, the soundscribing equipment. I take it this is the permanent equipment for which we arranged. I notice too, that Mr. Carozza of the company that installed the equipment at our request, is here. I wonder if we might request that he explain to us just how it works and what he would like us to do when speaking if we're not doing it right and subjects of that kind?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request of Mr. Sundborg. Is there objection? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I would move that we revert to a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing Mr. Carozza.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy asks unanimous consent that we revert to a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing Mr. Carozza explain the ramifications of the new equipment. Is there objection? Hearing no objection then the Convention will resolve itself into a Committee as a Whole. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: I would like to make one comment here today. Day after day in this afternoon session we are losing an important portion of our own committee time due to the fact that we must adjourn on schedule so that they can go into an additional committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to resolving the Convention into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing Mr. Carozza? If there is no objection the Committee is resolved to a Committee of the Whole. Mr. Hilscher, will you take the Chair please?

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

(At this time the Committee of the Whole met. Mr. Hilscher presided.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Unless it is entirely out of order or unless the Committee on Style and Drafting or somebody else has objection, I would make a suggestion to the Chair, as in the case of the Mr. Rivers, and with Mr. Hilscher, that we all four be called by our first names. If I am not wrong, the Chair awhile ago has called Mr. Kilcher, "Mr. Hilscher".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hereafter the Chair will call Mr. Hilscher and Mr. Kilcher by their first names also. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I move we adjourn until the regular time tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow morning. Is there objection? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to announce immediately after recess Committee No. IV on Ordinances will meet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 22, 1955

FIFTEENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Victor Alfsen of the Presbyterian Church in Fairbanks. Reverend Alfsen will give our daily invocation.

REVEREND ALFSEN: Let us pray. Almighty God, unto Whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from Whom no secrets are hid, deliver this assembly, O Lord, from arrogance and from impatience, from wilful misunderstanding of each other's difficulties. And grant unto each member a full measure of kindness and love, through Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with the regular order of business. Mr. White, the reading of the journal of the 11th day?

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal recommends the approval of the journal for the 11th Convention day, November 18, with the following changes: On Page 2 --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does everyone have a copy of the journal for the 11th day? Mr. White, would you mind deferring that until the members all have a copy of that? How many do not have a copy of the journal of the 11th day? If there is no objection we might just pass that order of business until later in the session. The presentation of petitions, memorials and communications from outside the Convention. Are there any communications, petitions or memorials?

SECRETARY: Mr. President, there is a letter from the Mayor of Skagway discussing certain provisions of a right-to-work clause in a possible constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication can be made available to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Are there other communications?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I would like a copy of that communication also if it is going to be mimeographed, for my own information.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Secretary will run off a few copies of that communication. So ordered. Are SECRETARY: No other communications.

MARSTON: May I make a communication direct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: At the suggestion of Delegate Truman Emberg, I move and ask unanimous consent that this organization extend to the Air Force appropriate appreciations for the party and the fine instructions they gave us out there. I wish to comment on that. I notice that he said one-fifth of our information came from the Natives along the coast line on enemy operations. I think that is a civilian operation and that young man, Sergeant Walunga, who has been decorated by the Navy just yesterday, I swore his father into the Alaska Territorial Guard as an officer 13 years ago. The General said, and I think we should take heed of what he said and take it back to our respective villages, that if you want to lay down a propaganda or good will missionaries to America, you make friends with these 80,000 soldiers here and coming each year to our shores. He also said that you look out for yourself. This Army is not out here to defend us as individuals. They are there to defend that piece of ground they are on for America, for all of America and not us. General Simon Buckner told me during the war, "You tell the people of Anchorage they are on their own -- I am here to defend this plot of ground." He said we should look out for our civilian defense. That is a warning we should take back home to all the people of Alaska as delegates. I think these things should be made note of and that we as representatives of this group carry the information back. That is all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, were you asking unanimous consent that a proper communication be written by the secretariat and sent to General Atkinson and General Bennett, the Commander at Ladd Air Force Base and General Ruggles of the Army?

MARSTON: Yes, that is the request.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection so ordered and a proper note of appreciation will be sent to the generals. Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to announce that the Committee on Resources will meet at 11 a.m., our scheduled time, in this room rather than our committee room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith announces a meeting of the Committee on Resources at 11 a.m. in this room here.

SMITH: I might say further that the reason for that is that we will have present at our meeting this morning Delegate Bartlett to discuss the relationship between the various enabling acts and the constitution, and it was thought that a considerable number of delegates might wish to hear this discussion, and that was the reason for holding the meeting in this room, and that of course is provided that no other dispensation of this room at that time has been made. I have one other announcement to make in regard to the Resources Committee. The Resources Committee will hold its first public hearing Saturday afternoon, a week from this coming Saturday. I do not have a calendar so I don't know the date, but it will be a week from this coming Saturday afternoon, and I will try to get a time to you later.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith announces that the Resources Committee will hold a public hearing one week from this coming Saturday. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, the Local Government Committee No. XII will hold their meeting at 11 o'clock this morning because of a conflict with one of the other committees this afternoon. We may hold our regular meeting but this will be a special meeting this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement. Committee No. XII will meet at 11 o'clock this morning rather than in the afternoon. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Committee on Direct Legislation and Revision, No. XIII, will meet as scheduled.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII will meet as scheduled today, the Committee on Direct Legislation. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: The Committee on Administration will meet on schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration will meet on schedule. Mr. Cross:

CROSS: The Committee on Resolutions, No. XIV will meet in the gallery immediately after this session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Resolutions will meet in the gallery immediately after this session. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet at 11 o'clock as usual.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet at 11 o'clock. Are there other reports? Introduction of first reading of proposals. Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Question. Is Proposal No. 12 ready for distribution yet?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Proposal No. 12? Is it ready for distribution?

CHIEF CLERK: I don't think it is ready. It is not assembled yet.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Evidently it is not quite ready, Mr. Robertson. If there are no proposals, are there any motions and resolutions to come before us at this time?

SECRETARY: Mr. President, "Resolution introduced by Mr. Yule Kilcher restoring the original name of 'Denali' to the mountain now called 'Mt. McKinley'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: A resolution by Mr. Kilcher restoring the name of -- Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I move and ask unanimous consent that the rules be suspended and this resolution advanced to third reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher moves and asks unanimous consent that the rules be suspended and that this resolution be advanced to third reading.

SUNDBORG: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

KILCHER: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher so moves.

PERATROVICH: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich seconds the motion. On a suspension of the rules it cannot be debated. A suspension of the rules is undebatable. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I rise to a point of order. I don't believe that under the rules of parliamentary procedure you can advance a resolution from direct to third reading, from first and bypass second reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, your point of order from first reading to third reading on a suspension of the rules, the Chair will have to admit -- if there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for one minute. The Convention is at recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would feel that in the absence of any definite restriction that a suspension of the rules on anything in this body, due to the absence of any organic act governing the action of this body, that a suspension of the rules would technically be in order, but as to the propriety of such a move the Chair is in doubt. The question is, "Shall the rules be suspended?"

DAVIS: I call for a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll. "Shall the rules be suspended and Mr. Kilcher's resolution be advanced to third reading?"

BARR: Is there anything in Robert's Rules of Order about jumping from first reading to third reading? I can understand how it could be advanced to second reading and then the rules be suspended and advanced to third reading. Is there anything to allow that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, so far as the Chair can determine, there is nothing in Robert's Rules of Order that covers that question. In certain other assemblies there are such things as the Alaska Organic Act that takes care of that, but here we don't have such a restriction. The question is, "Shall the rules be suspended and Mr. Kilcher's resolution be advanced to third reading?"

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, may we have the resolution read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will read the resolution in its entirety.

SECRETARY: Resolution by Yule F. Kilcher, "Restoring the original name of Denali to the mountain now called Mt. McKinley.

WHEREAS Alaska's mountains command our love and and admiration, and Whereas one mountain more than any other is identified with Alaska, and

WHEREAS the beautiful, ancient name of this mountain is familiar to all Alaskans

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

That the original name of Denali be restored to Alaska's most majestic mountain and North America's highest peak, now called Mt. McKinley."

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. It would appear to me that this body has no jurisdiction over the subject matter of this resolution. We adopted a resolution that the constitution would be confined to basic matters, matters of principle, rather than matters of minute legislation.

Surely this patently on its face, violates the resolution of this body. It would seem to me the expeditious and quick way of disposing of it would be to rule that it was beyond the jurisdiction of the body and then perhaps there could be an appeal from the ruling of the Chair. That is my point of order. We have no jurisdiction over this matter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, the Chair would feel that a resolution would not necessarily become a part of the constitution, and regardless, that it might be a directive or request of this Constitutional Convention that some matter be taken under consideration. The Chair could not quite see that under those circumstances that the Chair could declare it completely out of order. The question is on the suspension of the rules to advance this resolution from first to third reading at this time, and the Chief Clerk will call the roll.

Ayes: 6 - Collins, Harris, Kilcher, Peratrovich, Stewart, Smith

Nays: 49 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.)

CHIEF CLERK: Six ayes and 49 nays.

MCNEES: I would like to explain my vote on that. I am heartily in sympathy with the idea, but the proposer of the resolution told me he had done it without purpose.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion has failed and the resolution will be referred to the Committee on Resolutions. Are there other resolutions to come before us at this time?

SECRETARY: No further resolutions, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business? Are there special orders of the day or general orders of the day?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, are the journals before the delegates at this time?

WHITE: Mr. President, I understand the Sergeant at Arms has copies of the journal. I wonder if with unanimous consent we might return to the order of reading of the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will return to the order of business of the reading of the journal at this time.

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee on reading the journal recommends the approval of the journal for the 11th Convention day, November 18, with the following changes: On Page 2, paragraph 2, before the name "Rivers" insert "V." Same page, first paragraph under Committee Reports, line 6, last word, change "memorandum" to "memoranda". That is all the changes, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Committee that has been designated to read the journal. You have heard his suggestions for corrections. Is there objection? Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Not an objection, but I would like to be shown present on the roll call even if I was a little late.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Doogan will be shown present on the roll call even though he was a few minutes late. The Chair has been asked to ascertain whether each delegate is satisfied with his new seating arrangement. If there should be any changes that you would like to have made during the recess or during an adjournment that undoubtedly could be accomplished, and later all your seating places will be marked. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would just like to observe that one of our two "Fischers" has ended up stranded between two "Rivers".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Quite an observation, Mr. Sundborg. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I move that we unanimously approve the installation of the tables and chairs here, much as we are sorry to get rid of the little chairs we have had.

JOHNSON: I ask unanimous consent to that motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked that approval be given to the Committee on Administration for the manner in which they have made the new seating arrangements. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? If there is no objection, the Secretary has a statement he would like to make to the Convention at this time.

SECRETARY: We received reports that in some of the constitutional studies issued on behalf of the Statehood Committee, there were pages either upside down or improperly printed. Not to apologize, but there were difficulties in the operation of the machine at the beginning of the production process. There are now extra copies available if anyone has a faulty copy they may be obtained through the librarian, a replacement for a copy you may have that is not perfect.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I noted on reading the daily newspaper last night in the schedule of events that this Convention is apparently invited to attend some kind of affair at Eielson Air Force Base tonight, and that is some miles out of town. I wonder if any arrangements have been made or if there is such an invitation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We had attempted to learn something about that yesterday. Mr. Secretary, do you have a report on that?

SECRETARY: I apologize. We received a report late last night that the entertainment scheduled had been cancelled or postponed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business at this time? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: I move that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Hearing no objection the Convention stands at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention revert to the order of business on introduction and first reading of proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Johnson asks unanimous consent that the Convention revert to the introduction of proposals. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Johnson, you have a proposal?

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 16, introduced by Mr. Maurice T. Johnson, A SUGGESTED PREAMBLE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights, the proposal is referred to.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 17, introduced by Warren A. Taylor, PUBLIC WELFARE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal will be referred then to the Committee on the Executive Branch. Are there other proposals?

DOOGAN: Point of order, Mr. Chairman. I believe that should be referred to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair is taking your suggestion under advisement, Mr. Doogan. Mr. Taylor, you suggested that you would like to have it go to the Committee on the Executive Branch, but perhaps Mr. Doogan is correct that the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights would be where those sections might appear. Miss Awes?

AWES: Maybe I can say something on that. The other day there was a proposal dealing with both education and welfare, which was referred to Preamble and Bill of Rights. There was another proposal on education which was referred to Mr. Collins' committee, and Mr. Collins and I talked it over and he said he was going to refer it to our committee so it would all be in one committee, and I would suggest this on welfare, whether it's our committee or some other committee, it should all be in the same one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Let the journal stand corrected then and the statement of the Chair is that the proposal is referred to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Are there other proposals? The Chair would like to announce at this time that the President would like to meet with the secretaries of all standing committees tomorrow afternoon at 1 in Room 208 on the third floor. Do you have any communications?

CHIEF CLERK: A letter from Acting Governor Waino E. Hendrickson.

(The Chief Clerk read a letter from Acting Governor Waino E. Hendrickson requesting a leave of absence for John B. Coghill to attend the President's White House Conference on Education.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The leave that would be requested for Mr. Coghill would be from this last Saturday until coming Monday a week about a nine day period of time, and if there is no objection the Chair will adhere to the request from the Governor of Alaska and allow Mr. Coghill a leave of absence in order to attend this important conference at the White House. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Coghill is granted a leave of absence during that period of time. Are there other communications?

CHIEF CLERK: I don't have any more.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the prayer given this morning be spread upon the journal of today's proceedings in its entirety.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the prayer given this morning be spread upon the journal of today's proceedings in its entirety. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the prayer will take its proper place in the journal. Is there any other unfinished business to come before the Convention? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: I have just one. The Committee on Ordinances will meet in the gallery immediately following this session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other announcements or anything else to come to the attention of the Convention? If there are none the Chair will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 23, 1955

SIXTEENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Jess W. Thompson, pastor of the Fairbanks Evangelical Lutheran Church. Reverend Thompson will give the daily invocation.

REVEREND THOMPSON: Let us join our hearts in prayer. Come let us give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good and His mercy endures forever. Our Heavenly Father, for the night of rest and the beautiful new day which has been given to us, we give Thee thanks; for all the blessings which have been given to us, for life, health, and every good thing. Tomorrow when we as a nation and as a community pause in our duties to worship and give thanks to Thee for the blessings of the year, wilt Thou grant to the heart of all people a spirit of thankfulness. We pray that since Thou art Lord of all, Thou wilt be present here in this assembled Constitutional Convention, and we pray for the awareness of Thy Presence. Wilt Thou grant to these delegates the wisdom of knowing what should be done, the skill of knowing how it should be done and the virtue of doing it. May there be no cobwebs in their brains nor lead in their feet as they continue to carry on in this important work of preparing the constitution which shall govern the State of Alaska. Be with us, be with them. May Thy will be done, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: All present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with the regular order of business. We will have the reading of the journal of the 14th day.

DOOGAN: Mr. President, on page 4 of the journal, in the first paragraph starting "Mr. Sundborg" line 2, strike the word "that". On page 5 where the name "Mr. Hilcher" appears in two places, it should be "Mr. Hilscher". With those corrections I move and ask unanimous consent that the journal be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan moves and asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 14th day with the recommended corrections of the committee that has read the journal be accepted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal will become approved. Are there any petitions, memorials, or communications from outside the Convention? Are there reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced?

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 18, introduced by Mr. Emberg and Mr. Hellenthal, NATURAL RESOURCES: MAXIMUM PUBLICITY AND PUBLIC HEARING AFTER NOTICE, WHERE DISPOSAL OF NATURAL RESOURCES INVOLVED."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Committee on Resources, Committee No. X.

SECRETARY: No further proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any motions or resolutions? Is there any unfinished business? Is there any new business or general orders of the day? If not, the Chair would entertain a motion for recess. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I would move that we recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Do we have anything before us at this time, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY: Mr. President, a communication from outside the Convention from Ernest Patty, President of the University of Alaska. Do you wish me to read it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may read it.

(The Secretary read the communication advising the Convention of the special convocation to be held November 29, at 2 o'clock p.m., to hear speeches by Senator Knowland and former Governor Gruening. At the end of the ceremony, honorary degrees will be presented to these two outstanding men. A special invitation was extended for the delegates to attend in a body.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the wish of the Convention relative to this subject? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we accept the invitation of the President and arrange to recess the Convention during the convocation and attend in a body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that we accept the invitation extended by the President of the University and the Convention arrange to adjourn during the convocation and attend in a body. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Is there other business to come before the Convention? If there is no objection the Convention will be at ease for a few moments. The Secretary has a request for information from the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce. If there is no objection the Secretary may proceed and the Convention is at ease. The Convention will come to order. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to inquire whether we have had any answer from Senator Knowland to our invitation which we extended to him to address the Convention during his visit to Fairbanks or College.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, no such answer has been received, but the Chair does not believe that the communication went out as quickly as that. Is that right, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY: About a week ago. I don't remember exactly.

SUNDBORG: It occurs to me that if we attend in a body the convocation and hear Senator Knowland give what will certainly be a major address, perhaps that will suffice and we should not put him to the additional trouble of trying to devise a particular speech for the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course that will probably be contained in whatever answer we receive from Senator Knowland. Is there further business to come before the Convention at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: I move that we adjourn until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. Friday. Is there objection? Objection is heard. Mr. Metcalf?

METCALF: I object. I am a little confused on these minutes here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The journal, Mr. Metcalf?

METCALF: The 14th Convention day, dated November 21, and then the journal of the 15th day, November 18.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf, the Chair might state that the journal of the 15th day has not been approved as yet, so that will probably be caught by the special committee to read the journal, Mr. Doogan. Is there objection to the Convention standing adjourned until 9 a.m. Friday? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I have no objection, but I want to know if Friday is the same kind of holiday as the Veteran's Day was -- a Territorial holiday?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is the understanding of the Chair that most business establishments would observe Friday as being the Thanksgiving Day in certain areas, but Thursday is the official day for Thanksgiving. Is there objection to the adjournment?

TAYLOR: Does that mean we are going to work on Thanksgiving, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Not officially as it relates to the Convention. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Is Friday a Territorial holiday? I might ask that question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair has no reason to believe that Friday is a Territorial holiday. No.

WALSH: What was your request on Friday, Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: The same as yours.

PRESIDENT EGAN: She asked the same question. If there is no objection the Convention will stand adjourned until 9 a.m. Friday. The Convention is adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 25, 1955

EIGHTEENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Richard Lambert of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church of Fairbanks. Reverend Lambert will give the daily invocation.

LAMBERT: Let us pray. Most gracious God, we humbly beseech Thee as for the people of Alaska, and so especially for the Constitutional Convention delegates here assembled that Thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all consultations to the advancement of safety, honor and welfare of Thy people, that all things may be settled by their endeavors upon the sure foundation that happiness, truth and justice may be established. We humbly beg in the name of Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Five absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with the order of business. Does the Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time?

KNIGHT: The committee on the journal reports just two minor corrections. Top of page 1 should be "November 22" instead of "November 18", and the last line on page 1 should be "November 22" instead of "November 18". At this time I ask unanimous consent that the journal be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight asks unanimous consent that the corrections as proposed by the committee to read the journal be accepted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and unanimous consent is asked that the journal of the 15th Convention day be adopted. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal of the 15th day is ordered adopted by the Convention. Presentation of petitions, memorials, communications from outside the Convention?

SECRETARY: None.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There are none. Reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Introduction and first reading of proposals?

JOHNSON: I have a proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson has a proposal.

SECRETARY: "Delegate proposal No. 19, introduced by Mr. Maurice Johnson, DEALING WITH THE DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Distribution of Powers -- the Committee on Executive? The proposal is referred.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I believe that should be referred to the Committee on Bill of Rights.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the suggestion of Mr. Johnson will be the reference of the Chair and the proposal will be referred to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: No further proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We will revert back, if there is no objection, to the reports of select committees. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I almost forgot that our committee was a duly constituted and I wish to report along with Mr. Johnson that we have the gavels returned to the President with the necessary engraving.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, the Chair would like at this time to express appreciation to the special committee to take care of these gavels. They have done a wonderful job in the opinion of the Chair. At this time, the Chair would like to ask the Sergeant at Arms to come forward and deliver this gavel which belongs to Mrs. Hermann, to her, at this time with very appropriate engraving on the gavel, and it is with pleasure that we present the gavel to Mrs. Hermann. Mr. Buckalew, perhaps you can read the inscription.

BUCKALEW: I was going to ask Mr. President to do it. I feel the Chair would have more dignity.

"Gavel used by Hon. B. Frank Heintzleman to open Alaska Constitutional Convention, University of Alaska, 1955, Mildred R. Hermann, President Pro tem"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, we wish again to inform you that you really did a wonderful job as temporary Chairman of the Convention, and we are certainly happy to have that engraving inscribed on your gavel in appreciation of you. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, as a point of information, is there anything significant to the fact that Mrs. Hermann is not wearing a hat today? Does that mean she is going to stay until the Convention is finished?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps there is some significance there, Mr.

Hilscher. The President, in line with Mr. Buckalew's suggestion, will read the inscription on this gavel:

"Official Gavel, Alaska Constitutional Convention, 1955, University of Alaska"

JOHNSON: Mr. President, you left out a line.

PRESIDENT EGAN: "William A. Egan, President". The President would also like to express his appreciation to the special committee for the wonderful letter opener that they have presented to the President.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Egan, would it be all right if I presented that letter opener to you on behalf of the Convention? Send it over and I will read the inscription. Delegates, we are presenting this to Mr. Egan. Somebody gave it to us and we in turn are giving it to Mr. President. It says:

"Presented to William A. (Wild Bill) Egan, President, Alaska Constitutional Convention, by Delegates."

I wanted to put that "Wild Bill" on the one we put in the museum but I figured it would confuse the historians.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any motions or resolutions to come before us at this time?

SECRETARY: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business? Are there any special orders of the day? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I think the Chairman of the Recommendations and Resolutions Committee has a report to submit.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will revert to the reading of committee reports at this time. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: I have been requested to delay this report for a day or two. If there is no objection I would like to delay the report.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cross asks that the report be delayed for a day or two. The Chair would like to at this time ask that if members, as soon as they rise, they would speak out and address the Chair for the reason that the seating arrangement as it is now it is very hard sometimes if you are busy on the floor, and several people might be rising, to see right off to the direct right and left. The other day an occurrence happened where the Chair did not see a person who had risen before the other. Under those circumstances it would be well that as soon as you rise on the floor to address the Chair so the Chair can hear someone is attempting to get the floor. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: If a resolution which I was asked to present on the first day of the session had received a second and carried, that would be a regular rule of this Convention. You may recall that. It failed because of the want of a second. I do not know why.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: I wish to announce Committee XIII, Direct Legislation, will meet on schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Direct Legislation will meet on schedule. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: The Committee on Convention Administration will meet on schedule. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: The Committee on Legislative Branch will not meet at its regular time this afternoon but will join with the Committee on Apportionment at 11 o'clock this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the announcement relative to the Committee on Legislative Branch. Are there other reports of committees? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for recess.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I move we recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. Is there objection? There will be a meeting of the secretaries of the committees at 12:30 -- a no-host lunch. The Convention will come to order. There will also be a meeting of the committee chairmen at 1 p.m. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Do we have any business to come before us at this time? Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I would like to ask unanimous consent to revert to introduction of proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor asks unanimous consent that the Convention revert to the introduction of proposals at this time. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, Mr. Taylor's proposal may be introduced. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: There are, Mr. President. "Delegate Proposal No. 20, introduced by Mr. Hinckel, TO LIMIT THE ASSESSED VALUATION OF A SINGLE FAMILY DWELLING, OCCUPIED BY THE OWNER AS A HOME AND PLACE OF RESIDENCE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Finance.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 21, introduced by Mr. Harris, RIGHT OF SELF DETERMINATION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. V on Preamble and Bill of Rights.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 21, introduced by Mr. Taylor, JUDICIAL BRANCH."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. IX, the Committee on Judiciary Branch. Are there any other proposals to be introduced at this time? If not, any other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: I move and ask unanimous consent that the committee on gavels, engraving and other trivia be dissolved as they have accomplished their mission.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew asks unanimous consent that the committee on gavels be dissolved. If there is no objection the Chair will order the committee dissolved. Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. King?

KING: The University of Alaska has a large oil painting of the Cathedral mountains in the Chilkat mountain range. I asked Dr. Patty this morning if we could use it here in Convention Hall. It has particular significance to the President of this chamber as the same artist painted the picture behind your seat as Speaker of the House. I have permission to use that here, with your permission.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention as regards Mr. King's request? Is there objection to having Mr. King --

KING: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked by Mr. King that the picture in question be brought here and accepted from Dr. Patty for the use of the Convention while we are in session. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Chair will appoint Mr. King and Mrs. Sweeney as a committee of two, to take care of that matter. Is there other business to come before the Convention? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for recess. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn until 9 'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 26, 1955

NINETEENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Charles C. Powers of the Totem Park Church of the Nazarene who will give us our daily invocation.

REVEREND POWERS: Gracious Heavenly Father, we pray that Thou wilt be with us this morning. We thank Thee for this Convention and for the work that is being accomplished at this time. We pray, our Heavenly Father, that Thou wilt bless each member and their family. Help them as they labor here that they will give us a constitution to show us American rights. Give them courage and help. Give them blessing from God in Heaven. Be with us at this time. In Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: Six absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. Does the Committee to read the journal have a report? Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal recommends the approval of the journal for the 16th day without any changes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee to read the journal recommends the adoption of the journal of the 16th day without any changes. Unanimous consent is asked by Mr. White. Is there objection? There being no objection, it is so ordered and the journal for the 16th day is adopted. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? If not, are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: No. I, Local Government Committee, will meet at 11 o'clock this morning rather than this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: No. I, Local Government Committee, will meet at 11 o'clock this morning rather than this afternoon. Are there other committee reports?

COLLINS: Committee No. XIII will meet on schedule as this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII will meet on schedule this afternoon. Are there other committee reports? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I would like to ask the privilege of the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston asks the privilege of the floor. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would just like to observe that the soundscoring machine does not seem to be operating today. If Mr. Marston would like his remarks taped maybe he should wait.

MARSTON: I would like to have that. I think it should be. Thank you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, would you like to delay your request until later?

MARSTON: I will do that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston withdraws his request at this time. Are there other reports of standing or select committees? Introduction and first reading of proposals.

TAYLOR: I have one.

MCNEALY: I have one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Sergeant at Arms will pick them up.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 23 by Mr. Robertson, LEGISLATURE: TO CREATE A LEGISLATURE WITH QUALIFICATIONS OF ITS MEMBERS, AND TO ESTABLISH LEGISLATIVE AND SUB-LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS, AND REPRESENTATION THEREFROM, AND TO REQUIRE DECENNIAL REAPPORTIONMENT."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. VII, the Legislative Branch.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 24, by Mr. Taylor, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, REGARDING THE LOCATION OF THE STATE CAPITAL."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision.

TAYLOR: Mr. Speaker, I doubt very much that that would come under the function of that committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What one would you suggest -- the Resolutions Committee?

TAYLOR: I think the Resolutions Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection I will refer it to the Resolutions Committee.

SWEENEY: We had two similar proposals or resolutions and they were sent into No. VII.

GRAY: I think there are probably enough that probably every committee will get one of those.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mrs. Sweeney, we will refer it to the Resolutions Committee.

METCALF: With reference to Proposal No. 6, it was the consensus of the opinion of Committee No. XIII that you be asked to reconsider and possibly with the idea of resubmitting this particular proposal to Bill of Rights and Preamble, titled EDUCATION by Maurice T. Johnson.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair will resubmit that the Proposal No. 6 be referred to what committee?

HERMANN: I think we have a rule, if I am not mistaken, that any committee can refer any proposal to another committee without reference back to the house.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair is not quite clear on that whether it should have to go through the Chair or not. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: We considered that but the Chairman of the Committee thought it advisable to refer it back to the President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal has been referred to Committee No. V on Preamble and Bill of Rights.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 25, by Mr. McNealy, LEGISLATURE TO DELEGATE AUTHORITY TO, AND RESTRICT, AGENCIES."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. VII, Legislative Branch. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: No further proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there motions or resolutions to come before us at this time? If there is no objection, the Convention will stand at recess for one or two minutes. Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the Secretary have a resolution?

SECRETARY: Resolution by Mr. Kilcher pertaining to apportionment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The author of the resolution has requested that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Suffrage, Election and Apportionment. Therefore, the Chair will refer the resolution to that Committee, No. VI. Are there other resolutions?

SECRETARY: No further resolutions, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business? Is there anything to come before the Convention at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and the Convention is at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there any business to come before us at this time? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: I would like to add that there will be no meeting of the Legislative Branch Committee this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be no meeting of the Committee on the Legislative Branch this afternoon. Are there other announcements of committees? The Secretary has an announcement he would like to make.

SECRETARY: The bus schedule has been changed. There will be no regularly scheduled bus leaving the University between the hours of 4:05 and 5:50 beginning this afternoon, so there needs to be consideration as to whether or not there should be a special bus. I wish only that the announcement might be made at this time so that Monday there might be an expression of desire on the part of the delegates whether you wish other bus arrangements. This new schedule goes into effect Monday afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other business? Mr. White?

WHITE: I ask unanimous consent to return to the business of introduction of motions and resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will return to the business of the introduction of motions or resolutions. Mr. White, you may proceed.

WHITE: Mr. President, on behalf of Mr. Riley and myself, I offer the following resolution:

"Any person who appears before the Constitutional Convention or any of its Committees to offer testimony in support of, or in opposition to, any proposal or subject matter under consideration for inclusion in the Constitution of the State of Alaska shall first register with the Secretary of the Convention and shall identify himself as to principal business pursuit. He shall state also whether he appears before the Convention or any of its Committees in an individual or in a representative capacity. If in a representative capacity, he shall be required to state whom he represents in advocating or opposing the inclusion of any subject matter in the said Constitution."

I move the adoption of the resolution, Mr. Chairman, and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White moves the adoption of the resolution and asks unanimous consent. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: Mr. President, I don't exactly know what all that may mean. It is probably good. I don't want to see any committee restricted in any pursuit or analysis of the problem by some technical details.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray, perhaps, since you are rising with an objection, there will have to be a second.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion. You may proceed, Mr. Gray.

GRAY: I assume that it is perfectly all right, but I believe it is enough text that if he would have it printed so we could see it, then I think we could do something about it. I don't want to see the committees in any way limited in their investigation on any of these subjects.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray, then are you asking perhaps that this subject be held over until possibly the next meeting when copies could be available?

GRAY: That is my idea, and if the mover of the proposal could change his motion as such to fit this condition it would simplify things.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the proposal seems to me very clearly to be a regulation requiring the registration of lobbyists. I believe it is very closely patterned after one relating to the registration of lobbyists who want to appear before the Legislature. I certainly feel it is a proper thing for our Convention to require. I don't object to having it set over for a day or two, but I think in the long run, we should set the regulations.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, on a point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, your point of order.

JOHNSON: If this is a resolution as Mr. Sundborg says relating to the business of lobbyists and registering them as such, then it occurs to me that it should be handled under the provisions of Rule 53 and submitted to the proper committee for any action.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, the Chair considered that, but there is a rule that states resolutions can be treated as motions. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes. Hearing no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, may I ask Mr. White how this would relate to the condition where a committee is in hearing and testimony has been completed by those who have registered and their testimony has been recorded and the chairman of the committee asks if there is anyone else to be heard.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Before we proceed, Mr. Armstrong, the Chair would state that the point of order raised by Mr. Johnson which should be taken care of first. In the opinion of the Chair it was not well taken under this particular circumstance, under Rule 53. Mr. Armstrong, you may now have the floor.

ARMSTRONG: I wonder if Mr. White would answer the question. I would like some satisfaction of that point, sir.

WHITE: I am not sure I understood the question. It was not intended to be retroactive. I think it would be impossible to make it retroactive. I would assume from the content of the resolution that if an individual wishes to propose or oppose any matter for inclusion in the Convention, if he wanted to cover himself, he should register with the Secretary of the Convention. Obviously it is impossible for us to impose any penalties by a resolution of this nature or by the nature of the Convention, but I think it is intended at this time to clear the air and to put it on record that we would like to have any individual identified.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I cannot see the necessity for this. It is trying to legislate common sense in committees. There is no committee here that is not going to ask each person who appears before it who he is and if he represents any group or organization. There is no member of a committee here who is going to be fooled by anyone. I don't anticipate and we have no reason to believe there will be fifth columnists who will sneak before our committees and perhaps talk us out of our common sense and our ability to judge matters correctly. I think this is detailed legislation. It amounts to a change of our standing rules. I think it has absolutely no place before this adult body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would like to know when someone approaches me to talk about a matter who he represents and if he is being paid to make that representation or whether he is doing it entirely on his own. It seems to me that that is information to which we are entitled to and which we cannot get from anyone unless we do have a requirement of this kind requiring registration.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Just a point of information, I want to know if this applies to the witnesses appearing at a public hearing like we had here this morning.

WHITE: That would be my interpretation.

PERATROVICH: In that case I would oppose that myself because I think we should encourage the citizens of the Territory to appear before these committees on the various hearings. I for one while I wasn't a member of this Committee this morning, learned something from the people that testified, and I think that is the thing we are seeking, to get all the information we can so we can come out with a constitution that is acceptable. I am against the proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, my thought on the subject is that if it is necessary to contain lobbyists, the Convention Bill provides for ordinances. Now an ordinance could be adopted by this Convention requiring a lobbyist or those representing any interest to register, but when it comes to a matter of people, there was one instance I know of in a committee meeting this morning where a party appeared who had not intended to testify but decided to testify before the committee while the hearing was in progress, and I believe that rather than attempting to discourage anyone from testifying they should be encouraged and no restrictions put on them unless the Convention should see fit to go forward in what I deem the proper manner and prepare an ordinance restricting lobbyists. I think our big trouble during this Convention is going to be the lack of expression from the people and not an over abundance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that this motion be referred for review and recommendation to the Rules Committee.

RILEY: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that this motion be referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration. Did you say you asked unanimous consent, Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer asks unanimous consent that the motion and the resolution be referred to the Rules Committee.

TAYLOR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second? Who seconded the motion? It was moved by Mr. Fischer, seconded by Mr. Riley then that the motion be referred to the Rules Committee for their consideration. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, I notice the Chairman of the Rules Committee objected if he has a specific objection, why

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, he seconded the motion, Mr. Gray.

RILEY: You misunderstood me, I believe.

PRESIDENT EGAN: He seconded the motion to refer it to the Rules Committee.

TAYLOR: Mr. Chairman, I object. I can't see that this is any part of the rules at all. If it is going to be referred to anybody it should be referred to the Committee on Resolutions. It would not be an amendment or addition to the rules whatsoever.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I would like to explain my motion by saying that this is not within the province of the Resolutions Committee of the Convention itself. This has to do with conduct and behavior before the Convention and its committees, and it seems very proper that it be referred to the Rules Committee even though it is not proposed as an amendment to the rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

BUCKALEW: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the resolution be referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration?" All those in favor of the motion to refer to the Rules Committee will signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the resolution is referred to the Rules Committee for its consideration. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President, may I have the privilege of the floor?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Marston asks for the privilege of the floor.

MARSTON: I am speaking to you representing citizen George Lockwood who sent a message to me at this Convention to try to save his home from the encroaching of a new civilization, and on his hopes and the outcome of this case rests the hopes and ambitions of 30,000 people, the Native people of Alaska. We are going to have to face up to this, and I hope we can face up to it and step out boldly and do something that has not been done all these years we have been here. May I go back a little ways to bring this case up to date. Three years ago I went down the Yukon with my boat -- 1400 miles with lumber and material to build a place in the Unalakleet River with seed and fertilizer the building is up and the seed is ripe. I tried to get the land in the hands of the Eskimos of the Unalakleet River. I could not get one foot of land in their hands in three long years of trying and spending of money, and there it is in that situation. They like to farm that land. It is good rich soil, but under the present land laws it is impossible to get the land into their hands. There are too many complicated ramifications, and I think the land laws of this country are due for overhauling -- not only in Europe but here we have a problem with our land laws. If we face up and comply with the requirements we got as a treaty made with the people from whom we bought this land we will then step up to this issue and recognize it and do something about it. There are petitions here in the land office from the people of Unalakleet to get their lands subdivided so they can have the land their homes are on. Those petitions lay in the land office and are gathering dust and will end there -- petition after petition goes to the "great white father" and nothing happens. It dies. He is too far away. He has too many agents. These petitions die and these people become discouraged and despondent. Mr. President, if I could show a map here I could tell you what I want to tell the body.

(Held map up.)

This is the Unalakleet River. This is the village of Unalakleet where some upwards of 500 people live. This is the ocean here. What I ask here, what these people want, George Lockwood is a citizen here and his folks have lived right here on a little five-acre tract and fish off the ocean for over 50 years. He has petitioned the United States government. I put his stakes in three years ago on that piece of ground. He has gotten no place today and he's not going to get any place. Under the requirements they are supposed to have a frame house and they live in a tent, which is "more better", as they say, in the summer than a frame house. Therefore he does not comply. The Army now runs across his property. They have taken his logs and they've broken it up and he is so confused, he has had to move his family away. What I want to request here, in the name of George Lockwood and 30,000 other citizens of Alaska is that he be given from the State of Alaska that five-acre tract where he fishes and hunts and has his summer home. I want the government in Alaska to give him a deed to the land where his house rests in Unalakleet so he can build a good home to rear his family. Now he has squatter's rights. He can't afford to put a lot of money in his home because when he moves away, he practically loses squatter's rights. The State of Alaska should give him a deed to that little piece of ground there. Up the river here they have many little fishing sites 35 or 40 of them. Each one of those people should be given outright a five-acre tract and in addition to that the 160 acres any place in the unclaimed land of the State of Alaska where he can have a 160-acre homestead -- these three requirements -- a, b, and c -- spells life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for those people. It is a very small thing. You and I all have the right to take these three requests that I am making here for George Lockwood. We are entitled to land we live on -- four corners put down and a deed to that piece of ground. We are entitled to 160 acres any place in the State of Alaska if we want to take it up. I want you to issue from the State of Alaska those three deeds. During the Civil War they offered and gave to every soldier a script which entitled him to 160 acres of any unappropriated land. If we can give it to them outright without them going through the tedious laws of letter upon letter. The Land Department here wrote George Lockwood, "Come into Fairbanks and talk to us." It is 600 miles away, 1500 miles by water and it takes months to come in and talk it over, and so his letters have come to no good end. I have spent my three years and gotten not one foot of land in the hands of those Eskimos. If they all took advantage of that 160 acres, the five acres and the little plot of ground where they live, it would take up just a few thousand acres of land. They are entitled to it, and I am going to ask that the President of the that piece of property, where he fishes and hunts, land on which he had his home and 160 acres up that River any place he wishes and that would be a gesture of the State of Alaska from this Convention and I think some people here do not comprehend the great moment of this time and the position we occupy. These people have looked to us, all these years, in petitions and petitions and they have come to naught. Let us step out boldly here and give them this three little pieces of property. It would be a great gesture and it has nothing to do with aboriginal rights. This every citizen is entitled to. I am going to make a request of that. That is my mission today in the name of George Lockwood that he protect his home there where he has lived for 50 years, that he have the land where his home is in the village and 160 acres of homestead land any place in the unappropriated lands within the future state of Alaska. When you select the land for the future state of Alaska I hope you select land so he can have industrial sites and take land that can take care of these people on this request here. I thank you. I am now going to present this if I may?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, are you going to revert to the introduction of proposals, Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I would like to do that if I may.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Marston you may present your proposal at this time.

MARSTON: Thank you for this time. I appreciate it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Secretary may proceed with the reading of the proposal.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 26, introduced by Mr. Marston, DISPOSAL OF STATE LANDS TO ACHIEVE CERTAIN SOCIAL AND ECONOMICALLY BENEFICIAL PURPOSES."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal will be referred to Committee No. X, the Committee on Resources. Is there other business to come before the Convention? If not, the Chair will entertain a Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, I move that we recess until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and the Convention is adjourned until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 28, 1955

TWENTY-FIRST DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Reverend Londborg, would you come forward and give us our daily invocation?

LONDBORG: Our Heavenly Father, we thank you for this new day that lies before us. We thank you for the health and strength that is ours. We thank you for the opportunities that are ours this day to work in this way as delegates at this Convention. Our Heavenly Father, we pray that you would give us each one clearness of mind, understanding hearts of one another, determination to carry out our convictions. We pray that the thoughts that are here, though they may be different, may be fused into one draft as we work together to put out this constitution for the State of Alaska. Bless us, we pray, as we continue. We ask it in Thy Name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Three absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. We will postpone the reading of the journal until the afternoon session. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

SECRETARY: I have none, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, calls the attention of the delegates to -- we started to call it a manual but maybe it is not that substantial -- a few pages of drafting suggestions which are on every delegate's desk this morning prepared by our Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Committee on Style and Drafting. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Committee No. XIII at the scheduled meeting Saturday found it very inconvenient for some of the members to meet at the time scheduled for us originally -- 3:30 - 4:50. By discussion we found that our committee could meet at 9:30 in the morning until 10:50 without having to inconvenience any of the members, and I would like to give notice that that will be our schedule -- from 9:30 - 10:50.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins then announces and asks unanimous consent that the meeting time of Committee No. XIII the Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision be changed to 9:30 a.m. each day. Is there any objection to that? No objection, Mr. Collins, that will stand as your meeting time then.

COLLINS: We will have to adjust the meeting place.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other reports? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: The No. XII Committee on Local Government will meet at 11 this morning and we will not have a scheduled meeting this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Local Government will meet at 11 this morning and will not have a scheduled meeting this afternoon. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: Your Committee on Resolutions reports on the resolution introduced by Delegate Kilcher on November 22. "Upon consideration and after general discussion of the Resolution introduced by Delegate Yule F. Kilcher on November 22, 1955, to change the name of Mt. McKinley to the name of Denali, the Committee upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried, reports that in its opinion said Resolution does not constitute either Constitutional or Legislative matter, and recommends that it be postponed indefinitely.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Resolutions Committee on the resolution by Mr. Kilcher. What is the pleasure of the Convention? Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to withdraw the resolution for special reasons of my own.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Kilcher's unanimous consent request that he be allowed to withdraw the resolution at this time? Is there objection to that unanimous consent request? Hearing no objection then, Mr. Kilcher, you have been authorized to withdraw the resolution and it is no longer before the body. Are there other committee reports? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, it is not in the nature of a report, but to announce the Rules Committee will meet immediately after recess in the gallery.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a meeting of the Rules Committee immediately upon recess in the gallery. Are there other announcements? Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, while we still are on the subject of committee reports, I want to make reference to the drafting suggestions of the Style and Drafting Committee. I am very disturbed about paragraph 2, on the first page of those suggestions. It is stated that the constitution in speaking for itself must be written in the present tense. Now all the other constitutions, including that of the United States of America, are written in what I think is the future perfect. Maybe Mildred can prompt me on that. In other words, we will say the judicial power "shall be" vested in a supreme court and in certain superior courts or in a superior court. We are all accustomed to that "shall be". We are drafting something that won't become valid unless and until it is ratified by the people of Alaska, and there are many references to what the legislature is going to do in the future and that sort of thing. For us to say the judicial power "is" vested in a supreme court and the superior courts consist of such courts as the legislature from time to time creates, you are getting your "is" mixed up with something that has not happened yet. You are running that all the way through this thing. I think Style and Drafting should be consistent. If we are starting out with the "is" or the present tense, Style and Drafting is going to get into the most hopeless editing -- final drafting job it ever got into. Now I am trying to rescue Style and Drafting as well as this constitution and think that we should all go to the "shall be". Then we have patterns to go by and we will all know how to write up what we have in mind in patterning after other constitutions. So therefore, I move that this report be sent back to Style and Drafting for the rewriting of paragraph 2 on page 1. Aside from that I want to thank Style and Drafting for what I think is a nice piece of work.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers asks unanimous consent that the report be sent back to the Style and Drafting Committee for the proposed change as explained by Mr. Ralph Rivers.

MCLAUGHLIN: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Do you so move, Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: I so move.

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers so moves. Mr. McNealy seconds the motion. Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: The motion would be to recommit. I may not have used the right expression, for redrafting of paragraph 2.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: I don't speak for the Committee but I speak individually having been aware of the difficulty the Committee has had in drawing the drafting suggestions. I might point out that we discovered that several times we violated our own drafting suggestions while we were drafting the suggestions. I might point out, finally having accomplished this, we made the point merely as a suggestion and I think it would be difficult to send the suggestion back to the Committee when it is merely presented here on the floor as a suggestion which can obviously be ignored, as I suspect it might be, but it is merely presented here as an idea for unification. As a matter of fact, the Style and Drafting, if I might speak for them without contradiction, they treated the constitution something in the same sense as a will, it became effective only upon death or adoption and under those circumstances, treating it as a living and existing document after much learned discussion they decided it should speak in the present tense. That in itself is beside the point because I believe this is merely a suggestion so that we might have something that when the bills are presented, within reasonable limitations, the committees might be guided by this and the suggestion itself is not compulsory upon any committee or the assembly. That is my reason for the objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, would you not consider Mr. River's motion as being that the suggestion be amended? Is there further discussion of the motion to commit? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, having been appointed Convention grammarian by Mr. Rivers I rise to say that the use of the word "shall" does not necessarily connote future tense. It is probably in the way of an instruction that they shall do this and they shall do that and becomes more or less the expression of a mandate to the legislature as to what it should do. I don't believe that the purpose of "shall" in any of the constitutions is necessarily to limit the action of the legislature in the future. Naturally, we have yet no state legislature, and the mandate of the constitution to the state legislature cannot be effective until we do have. I do not take the use of the word "shall" to mean future tense. I recognize some of the difficulties that Mr. Rivers has mentioned, and I like to say in that connection that I think that we may have to work pretty hard in the Style and Drafting Committee to translate our intentions into effective action, but I believe that the constitution would have greater dignity and greater strength if we do and if we can and do express everything in the present tense. I approve of the thought, and I believe that the Style and Drafting Committee is going to be equal to the challenge of it, if and when any of the Committees give it anything to do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I probably will only add to the confusion. I would simply like to read a definition of the word "shall" as given in Black's Law Dictionary. "The word 'shall' as used in statutes is generally imperative or mandatory, but it may be construed as merely permissive or directly as equivalent to 'may' to carry out the legislative intention and in cases where no rights or benefit to anyone depends on its being taken in the imperative sense and where no public or private right is impaired by its interpretation in the other sense. Also, as against the government, it is to be construed as 'may' unless a contrary intention is manifest. Although the word usually denotes an obligation, it also implies an element of futurity."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Just to point out I am not talking about the word "shall", I am talking about expression "shall be".

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I think this discussion has brought out some differences of opinion, and the Committee on Style and Drafting certainly had in mind that there may be a lot of other differences. If the Convention as a whole starts going through this point by point now, each and every one of us could find other suggestions. The best thing to do is for each committee to take into account what they believe is worthwhile in these drafting suggestions and not keep sending it back. Otherwise, the Committees will never have the manual before them so they could start using it in their daily work.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: There is in that. This points out that there should be uniformity in our work. This suggestion is stated in this manner: "It must therefore be written in the present tense." Now, I have had suggestions made to me before, and I have had objectives pointed out before. Here we find this is just a suggestion, it is not mandatory as stated. Mr. V. Fischer says we should all go on our own routes and then see what happens. I believe this body ought to decide. Maybe not now, maybe we could put it over and all sleep on it tonight but this body should decide whether we're all going to say "shall be" this or "shall be" that or whether we're all going to try and say "is". So I submit my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I want to add a note to this. It is certainly too bad that the state of New Jersey and the State of Missouri did not have the benefit of our Drafting Committee. They followed the procedure which our Drafting Committee frowns upon.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other discussion? Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I have only one thing to add, and I say this without any reflection on the Style and Drafting Committee. The reflection may be on myself here, but I certainly am going to take my hat off to them and even attempt to eat it if they can take the Bill of Rights and eliminate the words "shall be in there and still preserve all of the rights.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? If not, "Shall the suggestion of Style and Drafting be recommitted to that Committee for their consideration?" All those in favor of the --

R. RIVERS: Roll Call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll. The question is, "Shall the suggestions be recommitted to the Style and Drafting Committee?"

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:)

Yeas: 19 - Awes, Boswell, Doogan, H. Fischer, Hinckel, Londborg, McNealy, Marston, Nolan, Peratrovich, Poulsen, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Taylor, Walsh, Mr. President.

Nays: 34 - Armstrong, Barr, Buckalew, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Reader, Riley, Rosswog, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, White, Wien.

Absent: 2 - Coghill, Harris.)

CHIEF CLERK: Nineteen yeas, 34 nays and two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed, We suggest a report of the Committee on Style and Drafting is still before us. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, there will be no meeting of the Style and Drafting Committee this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Style and Drafting Committee. Are there other reports of committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time?

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 27, by Mr. McNealy, ELECTION IN DISTRICT OTHER THAN PLACE OF RESIDENCE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. VI on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment. Are there other proposals?

SECRETARY: No further proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business? Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: I should like to ask permission of this body to spend not to exceed $3.98 of our Convention fund. It was, as I understand it, the desire and intention of this organization to obtain as much national publicity on the Constitutional Convention as possible; that we're going to be favored with a number of celebrities as guests of the Convention and to date, with the exception of the address by former Governor Gruening on "American Colonial Policy" we have had very little in the way of outside publicity or matters which might possibly hit the national wire or receive national attention. In the past those of us who lived in Fairbanks a number of years ago got to know Fred Waring pretty well through the Fairbanks Winter Carnival. As a courtesy and gesture to the Fairbanks Winter Carnival, he played and sang the Alaska Flag Song, which as you know, his version of it is probably the most popular and thrilling of all of them. I should like unanimous approval to send this wire to Fred Waring:

"Fred Waring, 1697 Broadway, New York.

Fifty-five Alaskans are now in session at the University of Alaska drafting the Constitution for the future State of Alaska. This is the last time that a Constitution will be written for the admission of a state into the United States. Knowing your interest in Alaska and the affection Alaskans have for you and your inspiring rendition of the Alaska Flag Song, we would be highly honored if you and your crew would sing our state anthem and send the Constitutional Convention a recording which will be made a part of the permanent archives of this historic Convention. /Signed Herb Hilscher, Delegate to the Alaska Constitutional Convention."

The idea I had in my mind is this. He will undoubtedly read this over a nation-wide TV circuit and would favor us with the playing of it. I feel it would be $3.98 well spent in getting us nationwide publicity. I therefore ask unanimous consent that we be permitted to send this telegram.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher asks unanimous consent that he be permitted to send the telegram. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder if Mr. Hilscher would consent to a modest amendment. At the very beginning of it he says, "Fifty-five Alaskans are now in session . . ." I wonder if he would agree to say, "Fifty-five delegates elected by the people of Alaska" so that it will be very clear that this is an official duly constituted body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have no objection to the change in this message?

HILSCHER: That is in the present tense, is it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Hilscher's unanimous consent request? Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I would like to ask Delegate Hilscher whether he would be willing to have the telegram signed by the President. I think, with all due respect, it might be more proper and carry more weight to have it signed by the President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you offer that as a suggestion?

V. FISCHER: As a suggestion to Mr. Hilscher.

METCALF: Mr. President, this is not actual constitutional matters here. I would rather pay the $3.98 myself instead of establishing precedent here. I am a little afraid we will be censured for establishing a precedent and I therefore object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf objects to the unanimous consent request.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds Mr. Hilscher's motion that the telegram be sent. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I move to amend the motion to provide that the telegram will be signed by either the President or the Secretary on behalf of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the motion be amended so that the telegram will either be signed by the President or Secretary of the Convention. Is there objection to that amendment? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I move that the President and the Secretary sign it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston moves that Mr. Sundborg's motion be amended to amend the motion so that the President and Secretary will both sign.

SUNDBORG: I accept that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. President, I kind of feel like the gentleman from Seward there. This is a personal matter. I would just as soon send it myself. I think it is a fine idea and I am all for the idea, but I think it should be a personal matter. We are starting in something new in this little telegram and tomorrow we are going to have another little event. It's going to be good. There's going to be a thousand of them and I believe we have to watch this thing. It's a matter of precedence and not a matter of $4.00, it's not a matter of being signed by a delegate. I think its a marvelous idea and I think it should be done but it should be done on a personal matter rather than an official matter and I am going to vote against the measure but I will furnish the $4.00 to send it.

WHITE: Mr. President, this body is charged, and I think rightly so, with doing all those things necessary to prepare Alaska for statehood. I feel that this and any other measure in the nature of publicity is very much the business of this body. I hope there will be more similar suggestions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: Mr. President, I heartily agree with Mr. Metcalf and Mr. Gray. This is an outside matter -- a wonderful gesture. We are letting the bars down -- there is no limit to how far we can go. We can well afford 15 or 20 cents apiece and make it personal rather than stab the treasury. We are writing a constitution. Still I think it is a nice gesture, but we are letting the bars down, and there will be others come in. First thing we know we are way off the trail. I think we better make it personal. I will pay for the telegram.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, a point of information. Is the Statehood Committee still alive and functioning? I personally think this is a perfect matter to be handled by the Statehood Committee. It is a matter of publicity and they should send the wire. It is a very good wire. They should sign it. Somebody on the Statehood Committee should send it and draw the attention of the public to the fact that there is a Convention and what it is about.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr has been trying to get the floor.

BARR: Mr. President, to begin with, I won't pay for the wire. I am going to make approximately the same motion as Mr. Kilcher. It seems to me the wire would not mean anything unless it were more or less official. However, I also have the feeling it would be setting a precedent. I would like to remind you that the Statehood Committee is charged with doing everything possible to promote statehood, and this does fall within that category. It seems to me that it would be more or less official if they sent it and they are also authorized to do so.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this Convention take a 20 second recess to pass the hat and reconvene.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I am very pleased that this suggested telegram has brought all this discussion. One of the responsibilities of this Convention is to sell the end product that we are here to write. If it takes $3.98 of Territorial funds to help sell this document, then I am all for it. If it takes $3,000 or $30,000 to sell the end result, I am all in favor of it. This organization is committed to not only produce a document that will be our basic constitution for years and years to come but we have the job of selling this to our people and of selling it to the United States Congress and to the American people.

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, I move the previous question.

COOPER: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis moved, seconded by Mr. Cooper, that the previous question be ordered. Did you ask unanimous consent, Mr. Davis?

R. RIVERS: Point of information. What is the previous question at this point?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent was asked that Mr. Sundborg's amendment to the motion be adopted. There was no objection as the Chair recalls. So it would be the original motion as amended by Mr. Sundborg. Is there objection to having the previous question ordered at this time?

SUNDBORG: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. If there is no objection then the question is -- would the Chief Clerk read the motion as it would be before us at this time?

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. Hilscher moved and asked unanimous consent to send the telegram which I did not take down, to Fred Waring, and it will be signed by the President and Secretary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the motion. All those in favor will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the motion is carried. The telegram will be sent. Is there other unfinished business to come before us? If there is no other business to come before us at this time the Chair will entertain a motion. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: I move and ask unanimous consent that we adjourn until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the Committee to read the journal have a report to make? Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: Speaking for the Committee, we did not find any errors in the journal of the 18th day. I ask unanimous consent that it be approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 18th day be approved by the Convention. Is there objection? Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I find what I think is an error in tense here or numbering. In Reports of Committees it says "Mr. Buckalew reported that the Committee appointed to obtain a gavel" -- only one gavel is mentioned there. It should either be "gavels" or "it".

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your proposed change?

DAVIS: My suggestion is that we either put an "s" on "gavel" or change the word "them" to "it", one or the other.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention? Mr. Davis, you suggest then and ask unanimous consent that where it says a "Committee appointed to obtain a gavel for the use of the Convention.." should be "to obtain gavels". Strike the word "a" and pluralize the word "gavel" . Is there objection? If not the correction will be ordered. Mr. White?

WHITE: I would like to move to a point of order. To save time in the future I would like to call attention to the agreement adopted previously that members of the Convention would report any errors to the Chief Clerk's office prior to the one-half hour before the opening session and reading of the previous day's journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hereafter that procedure will be adhered to wherever possible, Mr. White. Is there objection to Mr. Davis's request? Hearing none, the correction is ordered made. Unanimous consent is asked that the journal of the 18th day be approved by the Convention. Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal of the 18th day is ordered approved. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Does the Chief Clerk have any communications to read?

CHIEF CLERK: A communication from Mr. Salisbury.

(The Chief Clerk read at this time a letter from Professor Lee H. Salisbury of the University of Alaska inviting the delegates to attend the performance of "Bell, Book and Candle" Friday and Saturday of this week and offering complimentary tickets.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is Friday and Saturday evening then at the University Gymnasium at 8:15 p.m.

CHIEF CLERK: And the matter of a bus schedule has to be decided whether a bus will be needed at 5 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the desire of the Convention relative to the necessity of having a special bus around the hour of 5 o'clock or at such time as you may deem to be most appropriate.

CHIEF CLERK: The last bus leaves at 4:05 and the next bus at 5:50. We would have to have a show of hands to see how many we needed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there discussion on that matter? Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: I am wondering how many have found it necessary to use the bus to get home in the afternoon. It seems to me quite a number are going home by private car. Could we have a show of hands?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would those who have used buses almost exclusively in the afternoon please raise their hands. Then from the lack of hands it would seem there is no necessity at this time in the minds of the delegates for a special bus. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I think if we ever get down to holding longer plenary sessions it will be necessary to make some arrangements.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That might be necessary in the future. If not, then the matter will be held over until such time as the delegates feel it is necessary to take it up before us. Is there anything else to come before the Convention? Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: I would like to move that we meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 for the purpose of resolving ourselves into a Committee of the Whole to discuss the matter of bicameralism and unicameralism in such a Committee of the Whole. I will ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention meet on Wednesday evening at 7:30, at that time to resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of discussing the question of unicameralism and bicameralism as it relates to the legislature. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Point of information. We all know the need of this Committee of the Whole and in view of the fact that the need is dire and that a lot of labor will hinge upon decisions that we will reach at that time, I wonder if Mr. McCutcheon couldn't tell me why we shouldn't meet sooner.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Day after tomorrow, is that right? Mr. McCutcheon, you may answer the question.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Kilcher, I had in mind setting it as a matter of business of Wednesday evening. It would give the public information services ample time to get out across the wire, and we might have expressions from elsewhere in Alaska and it also might provide people an opportunity here locally to attend the evening session.

KILCHER: In other words, you would make it a public hearing?

MCCUTCHEON: Well, I hadn't thought of it in the sense of a public hearing, but it certainly would be open to the public.

V. FISCHER: I would like to address a question to Mr. McCutcheon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer, without objection you may address your question.

V. FISCHER: Mr. McCutcheon, a meeting of this type without a definite program could easily develop into a free for all from which it would be very difficult to make any kind of determination of opinion among the delegates. Would it be possible for your Committee to present the issues, the two sides, one unicameral and one bicameral to start with and thereupon have a discussion rather than just throwing it open?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Fischer, it was not our Committee's intention to make a matter of settlement final. As far as a free for all is concerned, that is what I personally would like to see. Perhaps your idea of an agenda so to speak, having each side present themselves, might be well to have -- one protagonist from our committee supporting bicameralism present their views and one supporting unicameralism present their views, and from there let the discussion take its course. We are interested in hearing all the facets and shades of opinions without arriving at any conclusive action on the subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray, did you have a question?

GRAY: I had a question on the bus schedule, Mr. President. I notice you have the meeting at 7:30. We have a bus leaving at 6:30 from downtown. Do you think we ought to move the meeting up to 7 or have a special bus in that deal?

MCCUTCHEON: I had not thought a great deal about it. I thought to give the delegates ample time to conduct whatever business they might have in town before coming out here again but I wished it early enough in the evening so that we would have time to discuss it and also to provide ample opportunity for the people of Fairbanks to partake in the hearings and in the discussion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr?

BARR: I would like to make a statement also as a point of information for Mr. McCutcheon. I suppose his Committee would like an expression of opinion from the body as a whole on this before they make a decision. Was it Mr. McCutcheon's idea that after we had this discussion we should take a vote on it to see the thinking on it?

MCCUTCHEON: It was not, Mr. Barr.

BARR: Then how will your Committee arrive at its decision as to what the body thinks?

MCCUTCHEON: I believe that most of the delegates here if their sensibilities are in order will probably have a pretty good idea of what the sentiment of this group is when we arise from the Committee.

BARR: That isn't so definite. Some people just naturally talk more than others. A minority might be on the talkative side. I don't see any reason for having it in the evening at all. It is a regular order of business. If it develops into a free for all, which I favor, in the evening after we've been working all day, it might be more interesting but more argumentative than it would be in the morning. I think anything like that should be taken up during the day.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, my thought was to try not to interrupt other committees, because as we go along here and proposals are put on the floor from other committees we are going to require both all day and all evening to discuss the things, I am sure and we are now feeling our way along. I'd rather not interrupt the other committees. However, if the body feels they want to do it in the daytime, it is of no consequence to me.

DOOGAN: Mr. President, I might direct a question to Mr. McCutcheon. In asking for this Committee of the Whole in the sense of a public hearing, are you anticipating, then precluding argument after your Committee submits their proposal to the body as a whole?

MCCUTCHEON: Of course not. That would not preclude any discussion because the proposal would have to come in and take its normal course through the channels of our progress, according to the rules.

DOOGAN: I question then the advisability of it, because we are going to get the same old arguments twice. We are going to get them in this Committee of the Whole before the proposal is submitted then we'll get the identical arguments again after the proposal is submitted on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon made the motion, then he said that he was asking unanimous consent. Evidently from the discussion here, there should be a second to the original motion.

SUNDBORG: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconded Mr. McCutcheon's motion that the Convention meet at 7:30 on Wednesday evening at that time resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of considering the question of the unicameral or bicameral legislature. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I want to rise to express the same opinion as Mr. Barr expressed in the informal discussion. I feel this meeting should be held during the regular session of the Convention and it won't do any harm if the work of the committees is interrupted for such a meeting, because after we have this Committee of the Whole consideration of this measure I think all the committees are going back to their own work probably a little better able to reach and formulate decisions than they were before they heard it. To me it seems apparent that much of the business of this meeting that is ultimately going to be finalized depends upon the approach to the question of whether we are going to have a unicameral or a bicameral legislature. I think it overlaps to some extent almost every committee's deliberations, and it might be a very good time at this time to interrupt the committees for one half day if necessary and get down to some fundamental discussion on this important and perhaps controversial issue so the members of all committees will know where the body as a whole stands on this particular thing. I believe they can practically all of them do more effective work after such an interruption, if it takes an interruption, than they are doing at present, because they are all of them coming up against this particular snag in their deliberations. So I would like to say while on that subject too, I think the committee meetings should be lengthened. Instead of an hour and a half, the committees should meet for half a day almost, on alternate days. I think they would make greater progress if they had longer meetings and fewer of them. I don't see why we could not start off with this Committee of the Whole meeting either Wednesday or Thursday morning or afternoon, whichever is desirable, and I don't think the fact that it is going to interrupt committee meetings need be given any consideration at all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: I would like to see an evening session held for this primary reason. It will permit the general public in the Fairbanks area especially, to attend if they would like to, where a day time session would largely prohibit it. I would go in favor of Mr. McCutcheon's original request that we meet at least this first time in the evening on Wednesday either at 7:00 or 7:30.

HELLENTHAL: I move to divide the question. I am not sure how to do that but I should like the first problem to be considered be the problem of whether the Committee as a Whole meeting be held and that the second problem then be considered as to when it should be held. I therefore move to divide the question into two parts the first part being, shall the meeting as proposed by Mr. McCutcheon to be held irrespective of time.

MCCUTCHEON: In order to negate a vote at this time, with the consent of my second, I would divide the question originally.

SUNDBORG: I agree.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the division of the question. If there is no objection, the second consents.

MCCUTCHEON: I would therefore change my motion to read that we assemble Wednesday for the purpose of discussing in a Committee of the Whole the matter of unicameralism and bicameralism.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves then that the Convention assemble Wednesday for the purpose of discussion the question of a unicameral or bicameral legislature. Mr. Hellenthal, do you withdraw your request?

HELLENTHAL: Yes indeed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Do you want to tie that down to Wednesday? If I may address the question to Mr. McCutcheon, it is now too late to get it in this, in the newspapers for Monday. If we are going to have it Wednesday morning it is a little bit late.

MCCUTCHEON: I don't know --

PRESIDENT EGAN: At this time, Mr. McCutcheon, as the Chair understands it, your intent in making this motion originally was so the question of time could be considered in another motion.

SUNDBORG: Time as well as day. Did you want it on Wednesday?

MCCUTCHEON: I was hoping for Wednesday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Has the motion been seconded?

MCNEES: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is then that the Convention meet and resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole on Wednesday for the purpose of discussing the question of the unicameral or bicameral legislature. Is there discussion on the motion? Mr. Cooper, your point of order?

COOPER: Point of order. As I understand it, when the question was divided a day is symbolic of time. I think the question should be "Shall we meet in a Committee of the Whole to discuss this problem?" and the second question would be when.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper, your point of order is in the mind of the Chair, probably well taken. Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order. In view of Mr. Hellenthal's objection as to a time element, his point did not come to issue. Therefore, unless Mr. Cooper raises the point of issue as to an actual time outside of a date, I think my motion should stand as to date but not to time of the meeting on that date.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The point of order is before the Chair. It seems to the Chair that in the division of the question Mr. Cooper raises a question. The Chair has a feeling on it but if there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a couple of minutes. The Convention will be at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Cooper, your point of order would probably have been well taken all right if Mr. Hellenthal had not withdrawn his original division of the question motion. Mr. McCutcheon's motion is now before us. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Is an amendment in order to Mr. McCutcheon's motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, an amendment would be in order, Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I would then like to amend Mr. McCutcheon's motion to add that after this Committee of the Whole, the Convention, the regular Convention, shall take up the matter and definitely decide the issue immediately after the Committee of the Whole.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, that motion would probably be more well taken after the time would be decided for the reason that it was stated that deciding the fact as to whether or not we would have a meeting is the main reason for this motion.

KILCHER: I dare to disagree Mr. President, not knowing what parliamentary form or shape that should be done. I think that if that amendment should be added to the motion it then would indicate what time would be preferable for the amended motion. If the amendment should pass then we would know what time would be most adequate. I think time should be subordinate to the amended motion.

PERATROVICH: I think I grasp Mr. Kilcher's idea there. He might have a point but that depends upon the recommendation of the committee, as I understand it. Am I correct in that, Mr. Chairman? The committee when it arises will have to give a report, and if they care to go into detail further as a body they can make such a recommendation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee of the Whole could recommend --

KILCHER: I concede this point. I did not intend to say that the Convention after having risen would be mandatory to reach a decision, but they should consider it. The Committee of the Whole should resolve itself into a Convention again and they should consider reaching a final agreement on the issue, seeing that it's vital.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your proposed amendment, Mr. Kilcher, would ask that the Committee of the Whole that would be hearing this meeting, that would be meeting, would render a definite report on the question that would be considered by the Convention in plenary session? Is that the sense of your proposed amendment?

KILCHER: Yes.

SUNDBORG: I object if Mr. Kilcher asked unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Do you so move?

KILCHER: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher moves. Is there a second? There does not seem to be.

SWEENEY: I will second it to get the motion on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney seconds Mr. Kilcher's motion. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: There is some question in my mind as to whether Mr. McCutcheon was entirely right in saying we were not going to take a poll of the delegates here. It was my understanding that we would have this Committee of the Whole and then get a definite feeling of the sentiment in the Convention Hall as to the bicameral or unicameral legislature. I would like to hear more about that from Mr. McCutcheon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, may I ask Mrs. Sweeney -- don't you think that would be an order of business say for the next day at the regular plenary session, after people have had a chance to think about it following the Committee of the Whole meeting whenever it is held.

SWEENEY: If we could be sure it would come up the next morning or if we have this in the morning and have it come up in the afternoon or something like that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, up to this point in a Committee of the Whole, a report could be made, the Chair would like to state. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I believe Mrs. Sweeney's question touches on the same question raised by Delegate Kilcher and replied to by Mr. Peratrovich, that this body has an entity apart from the Committee of the Whole, and it would not be proper for us to seek to direct how the Committee of the Whole shall conduct itself, but in due course probably the desire of each will be expressed within the committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: That question will come up of course in the third reading in front of the plenary session for decision, but this Committee of the Whole, as I understand it, is to allow us to hash this over among ourselves, argue back and forth and perhaps form our opinions for the benefit of the committee and also for our own benefit. Now it seems to me that this Committee of the Whole, their word would be ineffective unless we had some showing of their opinion when it is all over. We would not necessarily put ourselves on record, but if we had a showing of hands before the Committee arose why then all these committees that are working with this question would have some indication of what the body thought. It would merely serve as a guide. I think that is necessary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to report here, if I may, that discussion along this line took place today at a meeting of the committee chairmen, and after we had talked it over at some length I think it was the consensus of that group and probably unanimous, that it would be best not to try to reach a decision right away that same evening on a matter as important as this, but let's have a full discussion of it, bring out the issues if we can, maybe take a few days at it -- maybe we can't do it all in one evening and not try to bind the Convention with a decision on a matter as vital and substantial as this after a single evening's discussion. I might say further that the chairman of one of the other committees, which is very much interested in the matter of unicameral or bicameral, the Committee on Apportionment, said that his Committee would have a report a few days hence on how they would propose to apportion a House or a Senate if we had a bicameral system or just a single body if we had a unicameral one which might relate directly to this question. He hoped we would not make a decision immediately but would just air the issue and try to bring out the facts.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I believe that under our present rules and Robert's Rules of Order that if the question is put on Mr. Kilcher's motion it will take a two-thirds vote to carry it because it is a departure from the rules and requires suspension of the rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is Mr. Taylor, that the proposed amendment made by Mr. Kilcher would be a departure in that it would require a certain specific report from the Committee of the Whole?

TAYLOR: No, you're waiving the report and asking an immediate decision upon whether or not we agree upon a unicameral or a bicameral legislature instead of letting it take its usual course of business into second reading and then on into third reading for a vote. We are not doing that so that would require suspension of the rules and this motion now would take a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules and allow this motion to be put.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich, your point of order.

PERATROVICH: I doubt if you can tie the hands of your Committee of the Whole prior to their meeting. As I stated here before, we are going to discuss this question as the object of this Committee of the Whole, and your Committee is going to make a recommendation. If it sees fit to take this question upon the floor immediately after arising, they will make such a recommendation. If they want to set some other day that is their privilege. I don't think it is in order for us to act upon what the Committee shall do before they meet.

R. RIVERS: I pursue Mr. Peratrovich's point on the point of order. Mr. Kilcher's amendment would ask this Convention to tie its hands by commanding us at this point to take official and final action immediately after the Committee of the Whole arises. We retain the power to act from day to day as the Convention sees fit. So I don't think that his proposed amendment is in order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was more or less the feeling of the Chair in the beginning. Mr. Doogan are you rising on the same point of order?

DOOGAN: I am rising on the same point. If I recall the rules, when in calling for a meeting of the Committee of the Whole, when the Committee of the Whole is through, they are to rise and report and that throws the matter out on the Convention floor for a decision. I think possibly what Mr. McCutcheon had in mind was that possibly what he wanted was a committee meeting with the hearing where it is mandatory that all of the delegates be here to discuss it and for the delegates alone and then the matter could remain within the committee until such time as they are ready to report.

COLLINS: I might throw some light on this discussion of the Committee of the Whole --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are you rising on the point of order that is before us?

COLLINS: Section 6, Rule 21, "All proposals, amendments, reports, resolutions, and other matters may be debated in the Committee of the Whole section by section, and recommendations with respect thereto shall be reported to the Convention."

HELLENTHAL: I had hoped that I would not have to talk on this matter, but I want to go back to the reasons for this proposal that is now before us. Three weeks ago we would all have agreed unanimously that this motion was out of order because it runs contrary to the committee system that we have adopted for following and handling the work of this Convention. I think we can all agree on that. Three weeks ago when we first arrived here it would have been grossly improper to even suggest a means whereby the delegates could be polled on a fundamental problem that was facing the Convention. With the passage of some ten meetings of the committees, and that is all that on the average have occurred, we now an attempt is being made or the possibility is being made for the group here to instruct their committees. Now Mr. McCutcheon very carefully said that it was to discuss matters. He avoided any mention of a poll or a vote. Mr. Kilcher, on the other hand, wants a vote right after the meeting of the Committee of the Whole or, as he could see it proper, during the meeting of the Committee of the Whole so that the committees would know what to do. Now, it may or may not be desirable to instruct your committees in advance as to the practice, within which they are to operate, but these committees are working seriously, honestly, they are trying to keep an open mind, they are trying to gather facts. Now this goes to a basic principle in government. Are we going to have government by poll or are we going to have government after selective work. Some of the committees facing this matter of apportionment are going to bring in experts from the States who may not arrive until January I understand. Would we look kind of peculiar if we said on their arrival, "We all got together the other night and decided this. You just confine your remarks to bicameral or you just confine your remarks to unicameral. We know all about it so don't try to influence us one way or another." Now these committees are working seriously. They are calling experts in from Alaska and some of them from other places. I don't think we should try to influence or tell them how to decide matters after three, four, five, six or maybe ten hours discussion on the floor. I think it is basic. It goes to the very root of the system that we have chosen to adopt for doing our Convention business. Now, one more point on it. We might as well face it, the basic reason for this request is that all of us left home thinking that the problem of unicameralism was a remote possibility -- that there would doubtless be a small minority effort to obtain a unicameral body but that it would not gain any weight at all. To our surprise the movement is rapidly gaining weight, gaining momentum, and it may very well be that after great deliberation this body decides to adopt a unicameral house, but we want it voiced around the Territory. That is the reason for this motion. The reason for this motion is not to force the committees to think or arrive at a solution, but it is to let the public know that a grave problem has arisen here -- one that was not anticipated, one in which we were unable to go to our friends and get their opinion on it. Now if I am wrong in that statement I am sure some of the members that attended the committee meeting of committee heads will correct me.

V. FISCHER: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I hate to interrupt Mr. Hellenthal but previously a point of order was under discussion and we never had a ruling from the Chair which might dispose of this question altogether.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer's point of order is well taken. There can be no further discussion until that point of order is resolved. Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Under the point of order, I feel that Mr. Hellenthal's remarks are entirely pertinent and if the Chair feels inclined to rule him out of order, I will have to appeal the ruling of the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that your intention, Mr. Hellenthal, to address to that point of order?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You're getting around to that?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If that is your feeling, then continue.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, could I interrupt?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: I don't like to go too far with this either but I think the Chair has to make a ruling on the point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If he is speaking to this point of order, Mr. Peratrovich, that has arisen, if that is his intention, he can - it might affect the Chair's decision.

HELLENTHAL: I do touch in other problems because I find it difficult to divide this, but to sum it up, there is nothing wrong and it is entirely proper that the people of Alaska know the problem that we are faced with, and if this opens discussion we will promote discussion throughout the Territory and lend others to give us a view of their opinions, I am all for it, but to ask the body or to put ourselves in the position where immediately following or during the thing we are going to take a vote or a Gallup poll, I am vigorously opposed to that, and I am sure the intention of the men who spoke for the original motion, that that was not their intention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, as Chairman of the Rules Committee, the Chair would request that you hold a meeting of the Rules Committee, if there is no objection, and resolve this question as to whether or not Mr. Kilcher's amendment to the proposed motion by Mr. McCutcheon is in order under the terms of Rule 23 of the permanent rules. If there is no objection, the Convention will stand at recess. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: In order to save time I would rather withdraw my amendment. I for one am as interested as anybody of seeing some headway made in this matter. If we want to let the pendulum of public opinion swing back and forth from unicameral to bicameralism we might even swing several times between now and next Spring. I am very surprised that our astute professional and politicians didn't all during last Summer or Fall have formed some sort of opinion upon some source of information as to what they are roughly in favor of . I don't think we should have a special college to decide --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, are you asking unanimous consent that you withdraw your proposed amendment?

KILCHER: I ask the personal privilege to speak a couple of minutes on the subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Kilcher's personal privilege?

V. FISCHER: I object only to the point that his opinions can be expressed fully in the motion of Mr. McCutcheon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

KILCHER: I would like to withdraw my amendment and give the reasons for it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, you may give your reasons for withdrawing the amendment.

KILCHER: In order to save time on the floor and to save the Rules Committee time I withdraw my amendment and declare myself in general agreement with Mr. McCutcheon's motion, and having studied and listened to other interpretations of the rules, I am aware that a committee report would amount to what I actually had in mind, a recommendation to the Convention and I hope the matter will be settled soon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question before us then, if there is no objection to Mr. Kilcher's withdrawing his proposed amendment, the question is, "Shall the Convention meet on Wednesday for the purpose of considering in Committee of the Whole the question of a unicameral or bicameral legislature?" Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: All in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes have it and the Convention will meet in the Committee of the Whole on Wednesday for considering the questions of the unicameral or bicameral legislature. Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I now move that the Committee of the Whole hearing be held at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

MCNEES: I second the motion.

BARR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and Mr. McNees seconds a motion that the Committee of the Whole be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. The question is open for discussion. If there is no discussion the question is, "Shall the Committee of the Whole meeting be held for the purpose of discussing the unicameral and bicameral legislature at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday?" All in favor of the motion signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no".

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 32 - Armstrong, Collins, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Sundborg, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 19 - Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Cooper, Hermann, Kilcher, Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Nolan, Reader, R. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White.

Absent: 4 - Coghill, Harris, Metcalf, VanderLeest.)

CHIEF CLERK: Thirty-two yeas, 19 nays and four absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The "ayes" have it and so the Convention will meet as a Committee of the Whole at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening for the purpose of discussing unicameral and bicameral legislature.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the secretariat arrange to have a bus leave the Nordale Hotel for the University at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection? Hearing none, then the Secretary or Chief Clerk is ordered to make arrangements for a bus. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: Will we be excused for our TV program then on Wednesday evening?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We will take that under advisement between now and tomorrow, Mr. Londborg. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: This memorandum that is on our desk in regard to TV appearances has the Committee on Rules scheduled to meet tonight? I was just thinking that in the event all of them are moved up we might leave Wednesday free because there will be left only five after the Rules is eliminated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to announce that President Patty of the University has requested that the delegates meet in a body about 1:50 p.m. tomorrow here and then go to the gymnasium for the convocation proceedings that will be held there. Senator Knowland was due in Fairbanks at 2 p.m. this afternoon. We think that he might be available for a brief talk before the Convention at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. That is in the process of being arranged and if that should be in agreement with Senator Knowland we will have the honor of his presence with us at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning when we convene and immediately following the roll call we will have an address by Senator Knowland. Are there any questions relative to this convocation?

V. RIVERS: Does that invitation include our staff? Are they also invited to attend in the matter of this invitation -- the secretarial staff?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, in the letter that came from Dr. Patty a short time ago I don't think they mentioned the staff. However, I don't think there would be any objection to the staff going to the convocation.

V. RIVERS: I move and ask unanimous consent that those members of the staff who desire to attend the convocation also be granted such a privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that those members of the staff who desire to attend the convocation be invited to do so. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and the members of the staff who desire to do so will attend the convocation. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, could we refer to the committee announcements?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will refer back to the committee announcements.

ROSSWOG: The Local Government Committee, No. XII, will meet at 3:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Local Government Committee No. XII will meet at 3:30 this afternoon. Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: Finance Committee No. XI will meet briefly in the gallery following this adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Finance Committee No. XI will meet briefly in the galleries following adjournment. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: I would like a point of information upon this memorandum here regarding radio and TV broadcasts. Is this a directive, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: A directive?

HILSCHER: For appearances by committees?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, Mr. Hilscher, this is all by just mutual agreement between the chairman of various committees. There is no directive to it.

HILSCHER: I really would like to make a comment on this. I fear that after all -- I wonder if it is not true that KTVF originated this idea of having TV programs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, but if I may interject that the moment they did so we made it known to them that if the other station broached the subject we would have to give them exactly the same consideration. This on Channel 2 will also be over the radio stations.

HILSCHER: I just hope that keeping us old fellows up until after 10:30 at night isn't going to wear us out for the next day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I move and ask unanimous consent that the prayer offered by Delegate Londborg this morning be spread upon the journal in its entirety.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the prayer as offered by Reverend Londborg this morning be spread upon the journal in its entirety. Is there objection? Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Point of information. Could we continue to spread them all on the journal every day -- I don't see the point of one -- why not have them all there if they are not too long?

SUNDBORG: I object, Mr. Chairman. I don't see any particular reason to put them on our journal. We hear them. I think they give us guidance for that day. It is a great deal of work for the secretariat to type and cut stencils and mimeograph the journal, and I really don't think that these prayers, at least picking out an occasional one and putting them in is quite the material we should put in our journal.

JOHNSON: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Johnson so moves.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Was there a second?

SWEENEY: I seconded the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney seconded the motion. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I want to speak in favor of Delegate Londborg's prayer going on the record and then make this ruling that the Delegate from Juneau just made -- that it be ceased from there on.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the prayer as offered by Reverend Londborg this morning be spread upon the journal in its entirety?" Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I don't see the fairness of Mr. Marston's remarks to cease at a certain time. That would be discriminating against some who might have prayers just as appropriate as those we have heard. I believe that each day the minister or the clergyman should offer the prayer, that it should all be inserted in the record, every day.

KILCHER: If Mr. Walsh would make this a motion I would be glad to second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is a motion before the house at this time, Mr. Kilcher. The question is, "Shall Mr. Longborg's prayer be inserted on the pages of the journal in its entirety?" All in favor signify by saying "aye". All opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the prayer will be inserted on the pages of the journal. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Is it in order to make a motion now that all prayers from now on be spread on the journal?

SUNDBORG: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that all the daily prayers be spread upon the pages of the daily journal. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: If we're going to spread them all from now on, we ought to go back and get all the ones we had in the past. I very much want that one on the journal of the man who said he hoped we "would have no cobwebs in our brain and no lead in our feet."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there further discussion on this motion by Mr. Kilcher? Mr. Gray.

GRAY: If we are going to keep running into these honorable, well meaning phrases that I question whether they should be on the journal. They were not given to us to be put on the journal. They were given to us for our daily thought. We are the recipients of them personally. This is a personal question. I don't believe there has been a minister here that ever spoke for the fact of getting it on the record. He is speaking to us individually and personally, and I believe that if the individual delegate will listen and absorb what is being said, they should be able to retain it and not have to refer back to a journal. Again I say you are getting into things that are personal and honorable, and there is just no limit to this and I do hope we have a minister every day, and I don't want to be in the position of voting for one to be spread on the record and voting for one not to be on the record, and I wish we would confine our journal to a working journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We would be voting on this to spread them all on the journal, Mr. Gray. Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Are amendments in order?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Amendments are in order if it is a proper amendment.

MCLAUGHLIN: I move that the motion be amended by adding after the word "prayers", "of less than 75 words."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. McLaughlin's amendment to the motion. Is there objection?

BUCKALEW: I second it, Mr. McLaughlin's amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It's been moved and seconded that Mr. McLaughlin's amendment be adopted. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: I am surprised that Mr. McLaughlin would limit the words pertaining to the province of the Almighty and limit the wording of the prayer when we get so much extraneous matter that does not mean a thing. I think a little more of the prayer would help out a lot.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The question is on Mr. McLaughlin's proposed amendment. All in favor of the proposed amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the amendment has failed. The question now is, "Shall all the daily prayers be spread upon the pages of the journal?" Is there further discussion? If not, then all those in favor of the question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying no

SUNDBORG: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Ayes: 22 - Armstrong, Collins, Cooper, Doogan, H. Fischer, Hilscher, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Laws, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, Walsh, Wien, Nays: 29 - Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Knight, Lee, McCutcheon, Marston, Nerland, Nolan, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Sundborg, Taylor, White, Mr. President.

Absent: 4 - Coghill, Harris, Metcalf, VanderLeest.)

CHIEF CLERK: Twenty-two ayes, 29 nays and four absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion has failed. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Gray?

GRAY: I move that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention will stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 29, 1955

TWENTY-SECOND DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (9:00 a.m.). This morning we have with us the Reverend Orland Cary of the First Baptist Church of Fairbanks. Reverend Cary will give our daily invocation.

REVEREND CARY: Our Father, we are grateful for the privileges of this day's work; we are grateful for the night's rest we have just had. We are grateful for this great land that is ours, for the privileges we have of living in a democracy. We are grateful for the work that is being done by the delegates to this Convention. We are grateful for the safeguards that are being set up for this future state regarding the resources of the land, for the people that shall live here in the succeeding generations. We pray that as we do the work that is before us today that we may have the wisdom of the Holy Spirit to lead us and that we may do this work acceptably. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(At this time the Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Fifty-three present, two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We are very happy to have with us this morning one of America's most distinguished citizens, a man whose abilities and responsibilities are well known to each of us, the man who in 1953, in his capacity of majority leader of the greatest deliberative body in the world, called up the combined Alaska-Hawaii Statehood Bill, steered it through a long and thorny debate and voted for its passage. It is my great pleasure and high honor to present to you the Honorable William F. Knowland, United States Senator from California. Senator Knowland.

SENATOR KNOWLAND: Mr. Chairman, members of the Constitutional Convention and fellow Americans, I am highly privileged to have this opportunity to meet with this Constitutional Convention which is carrying on this most important of tasks. And perhaps this may be the last Constitutional Convention for statehood in our entire American history because our 48 states, of course, are now members of the sisterhood of states, the Territory of Hawaii has already drafted its state constitutional convention, and it is highly unlikely, perhaps at least during our lifetime or our generation, that any other territory unorganized and now under the American flag is apt to be an organized territory for the ultimate purpose of statehood. So this is indeed a historic occasion. It is my first opportunity with Mrs. Knowland to visit this great area of our country.

We have been tremendously impressed not only with the area, the limited time we have had here in seeing a very small segment of your Alaska, but we have been even more impressed with the greatest of all human resources, of course, the people of this great Territory, and I have a very deep conviction -- no one has a crystal ball that can predict with certainty at the precise time that you will come into statehood -- but I have a deep conviction that in the not too distant future this great Territory will join the sisterhood of states. I also have full confidence that within the lifetime of most of those in this room today you will see Alaska not only as a state of the Union, but I think as one of the great and important states of the American Union.

Now, if I could bring you in the brief time I have today, could bring you a message, it would be to not in any sense be discouraged because you have not become a state as yet or that you may not become a state even at the coming session of Congress, though I pledge to you, as I have already to the people of Alaska and the people of my own state, that I shall do everything I can, as the minority leader of the Senate as well as a Senator of the State of California, to expedite action on Alaska and Hawaii statehood. And I hope that at least it will be given favorable consideration at the coming session of Congress. If it does not come then, it will inevitably come in the very near future. Now all of the states almost that came into the Union after the original 13 went through a difficult period. My own state was not an exception, and perhaps I may be pardoned for reading a paragraph or two out of the Congressional Record of some of the things that were said about my own State of California to show how wrong even members of Congress could be.

Mr. John Maquee, 1850 --the state was admitted to the Union on September 9 of 1850 -- had this to say and I quote:

"The inhabitants, I beg pardon, the floating population of every color and nation who happened in California, have since that time clothed themselves with the habiliments of sovereignty and demand admission as one of the states upon equal terms with the others. This whole thing of the sovereign State of California would look better in the pages of the Arabian Nights than in the archives of this body."

Now the Honorable Representative James A. Sedden of Virginia, in the House of Representatives on January 3 of 1850, declared and I quote again,

"A very large proportion of them are mere sojourners, adventurers and wayfarers, roaming over a wild, uninhabited expanse in quest of treasure with which to return to their homes. The right of such a population to establish a state government can surely not be gravely entertained by any. It is not to be tolerated, and at whatever hazards California ought to be remanded to territorial subordination." Well, of course, since that time my state has grown from a population of some 65 thousand to a 13 and a half millions of people, and it is not beyond the realms of possibility, some Californians feel, perhaps unfortunately so, that by the census of 1970, we will have a population of some 25 millions of people. I think the present pressures of population will undoubtedly make Alaska look even more attractive to some of the Californians who will want to come up into this beautiful country of yours.

I think the great challenge that faces us as free people is how we can do what Americans have always sought to do, and that is, to leave to our land and to our children a better land than we ourselves have found. This has been the objective of Americans ever since we won our independence. It has been the spirit which has helped us to grow from a small colony of three million on the Atlantic seaboard to a great nation of 165 millions of people, the most productive industrially and agriculturally the world has ever known, with the highest standard of living that any people have ever enjoyed. I don't believe we would have had that great growth except under our great constitutional system. The men who drafted our constitution were wise men. They were operating under a divine inspiration, as I believe this great deliberative body is acting under a divine inspiration. They wanted to preserve for themselves and for all posterity the freedom which they had won at so great a sacrifice. Now, they knew the history of the world up to their time. They knew that where the men had lost their freedom they had primarily lost it because of the concentration of power in the hands of a single individual in a national government, and in order to protect their generation and all future generations of Americans, they established our federal republic. They limited the power of the federal government and reserved all other powers to the people and to the states thereof, and in the federal government itself, they wanted to divide the powers so that they could not be concentrated in the hands of a single individual. And in our constitution, perhaps with some significance, they set up three great coordinate branches of the federal government -- the legislative, executive and judicial -- and named them in precisely that same order. Now, if we are half as wise as men who gave us our republic and helped to preserve it in the intervening period of years, we will preserve our federal republic, our constitutional system of divided powers of the federal government, one of limited and specified powers.

I do not believe that even under our constitutional system our great nation could have grown, and I feel certain my own State of California could not have grown under and waiting for a paternalistic government at Washington. I think it has only been that the resources of our area were opened up to enterprise, the competitive system of free enterprise, has done more to build our country and give our people the high standards of living that we have. It will be very difficult for your own great area to have its ultimate economic development, and, I am sure that those in this room know far better than I, where the federal government is the owner of approximately 90 percent of your land area, it is going to be important that you invite investment of thrift capital. Our own great country developed its railroads, its mining resources and its industry first from the development of capital abroad and then from the development of capital from various parts of the United States of America. Our great neighbor of Canada has shown tremendous progress. It has been making some of the greatest advances of any nation in modern times. I think Alaska has all the background and all the qualities and all the resources to have a development as great as has Canada during the past few years.

I want to say in conclusion that your work is being watched by not only the Congress of the United States, but, I think, by our 165 millions of people. Despite the objections that have come from some people to statehood, I think the overwhelming proportion of the American people expect, and I think ultimately they will demand that both Alaska and Hawaii become states of the American union. Anything I can do in my individual capacity or in my capacity as a minority leader of the Senate of the United States to expedite that day and in the meantime to help you work out the many problems that you have, which in equity, should be worked out with the federal government, I will be prepared to do. I can think of no pledge which as American citizens, regardless of the party we belong to, and after all, some of these great problems facing the world today are American problems -- they are not party problems in any sense of the word -- I think of no pledge we might take as American citizens better than the pledge of Thomas Jefferson, the great architect of the Declaration of Independence, who said, "I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility on every form of tyranny over the minds of man."

(Standing ovation)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair notes there are many distinguished guests in the gallery. At this time I would like to call the attention of the delegates and visitors to the fact that Mrs. William Knowland, wife of the distinguished Senator, is in the gallery, that Governor and Mrs. Ernest Gruening are also in the gallery and that President and Mrs. Patty are with us this morning. (applause) The Chair will declare a ten-minute recess at this time. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Mr. President, there are no errors or omissions in the journal for Saturday November 26. I ask unanimous consent that it be approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 19th Convention day be approved. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal is ordered approved. Are there petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

SECRETARY: I have none, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Committee No. XIII will meet immediately after adjournment in the committee room where we met yesterday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII will meet immediately after adjournment. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Committee No. XII, Local Government, will meet at 11 o'clock this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XII, Local Government will meet at 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Rules will meet immediately after recess in the gallery.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other committee reports? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I have a proposal. It is on the Secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary may proceed with the reading of the proposal.

SECRETARY: "Delegate Proposal No. 28, introduced by Mr. Robertson, ESTABLISHING THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. XIV, Committee on Resolutions. Are there further proposals?

SECRETARY: I have no further proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any resolutions or motions? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that Senator Knowland's address be spread upon the pages of the journal in its entirety.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper moves and asks unanimous consent that the address of Senator Knowland be spread upon the pages of the journal in its entirety. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. Is there any unfinished business? Is there anything to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I move and ask unanimous consent then that we adjourn until 1:30 to meet our obligation over there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, the Chair, before we adjourn, had two or three remarks to make, if you would not mind holding it. The Chair would like to announce again, that because of the fact that a group of people have been invited from Fairbanks to eat here today it would be appreciated if the delegates would start eating not later than 12:15. Also, that the delegates should assemble here not later than 1:45 in order that they can be on their way to the gymnasium by 1:50, and the adjournment probably should be until tomorrow. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, then I will move that we adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9 a.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary has a brief statement to make.

SECRETARY: Mr. President, the University asks the indulgence of the Convention. They do not have sufficient tables and chairs for the seating of the luncheon party today, and they wish to use all tables and chairs from the Convention floor and to move them upstairs as soon as the adjournment is had. The tables will be put back in the same place, but it will be necessary to make some disposition of the delegates' personal things in order to accomplish that this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the statement of the Secretary. We are certain each delegate will cooperate with the request. Mr. Victor Rivers then asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

November 30, 1955

TWENTY-THIRD DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order (9:00 a.m.). We have with us this morning to deliver our daily invocation Mrs. Zora Banks, Chairman of the Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'i World Faith of Fairbanks. Mrs. Banks.

MRS. BANKS: Dear Heavenly Father, we are grateful that Thou hast created us to know Thee and to love Thee. I am grateful, dear Heavenly Father, that Thou hast enabled these people to gather again in this assembly. Dear Heavenly Father, we do ask that they will be able to cope with anything that might come in their path. Our dear Heavenly Father, should there be anything that needs agreement we would ask you to deliver them. We ask You dear Heavenly Father, for Thou art the Almighty, Thou art the gracious, the powerful, and Thou art able, dear Heavenly Father, to overcome all circumstances. Dear Heavenly Father, in this great assembly we do ask Thee to be with those persons who are bereaved today because of the terrible disaster we have in our midst. We ask you, dear Heavenly Father, to stand by them. And, dear Heavenly Father, we ask that you will give these people here in this assembly the power to do the things you would have them do according to the will of God. We ask these blessings in the name of your kind Son who said, "Ask and you shall receive." In Thy name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: One absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with our regular order of business. The reading of the journal will be delayed until the afternoon session. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

SECRETARY: No, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, the Rules Committee reports back to the body a Committee substitute for Resolution No. 6 which is before each of the members, a considerably modified version of the resolution which was referred to the Committee last Saturday. I believe all had ample time to read it, but on chance that it hasn't been seen, I will read it now before moving its adoption:

"Any person who appears to offer testimony in support of, or in opposition to, any subject matter under consideration by the Constitutional Convention or any of its Committees shall be required to state whether he appears in an individual or a representative capacity. If in a representative capacity, he shall be required to state whom he represents in so appearing."

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report and ask unanimous consent.

COLLINS: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves and asks unanimous consent that the report be adopted. Is there objection?

ROSSWOG: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog objects. Mr. Collins seconded the motion. The question is open for discussion. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I might mention my reason for objecting. I opposed this rule in the Committee, and I feel we should vote on it. The main thing is, the idea behind it is all right, but I feel that we want all the witnesses we can get here, and if any rule is put up here now and the publicity with it might keep some witnesses from appearing, why I would be against it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I should like to reiterate my opposition to it -- the watered-down version of the rule which, in the words of the chairman, "is considerably modified." First, it serves no useful purpose whatsoever. Secondly, it is virtually meaningless. It is like asking the delegation to use common sense or to behave or to act nicely. Thirdly, it is unenforceable. It has no sanctions whatsoever. If someone refuses to give the information, which of course no one would do, but just for the purpose of argument assume they did, it would make us look rather ridiculous, and it is needless. There is no danger, apparent or otherwise from which to guard against. This you might call something along the line of fighting windmills.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall the resolution be adopted?" All those in favor of adopting the resolution will signify by saying "aye", all opposed no". The "ayes" have it and the resolution is ordered adopted.

COOPER: Roll call.

JOHNSON: I rise to a point of order. The result of the vote has been announced and it's a closed issue.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken, Mr. Johnson. The Chair didn't mean to go too fast there. Are there other reports of standing committees? Are there reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be presented to us this morning? Are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I move and ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations be charged with the responsibility of making certain that proposals covering the seven requirements of H.R. 2535 are submitted to this Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you have that resolution in writing, Mr. Smith?

SMITH: In very rough writing, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would wonder if it might be more in order if you had it to offer to the Convention, possibly at the next plenary session this afternoon so it could be a matter of record.

SMITH: Yes, that is all right.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to that -- until it is in resolution form? Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Could we refer to committee announcements? Committee XII, Local Government, will meet at 11 this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee XII, Local Government, will meet at 11 this morning. Mr. Cross?

CROSS: Committee No. XIV on Resolutions and Recommendations will meet at the scheduled time this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIV will meet at the scheduled time this morning. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: I rise to ask unanimous consent of the Convention that we may meet Mrs. Laura Jones who is an eighth-grade teacher in the Fairbanks Schools. Mrs. Jones created quite a sensation in her talk before the AAUW last Monday night, about the job she is doing with the school youngsters in the way of inspiring them with the work that is being done at the Constitutional Convention. Mrs. Laura Jones was for ten years an ANS teacher in the Territory. She is an author of a very splendid book and if it meets with the approval of the body I should like to introduce Mrs. Jones at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Hilscher, you may introduce Mrs. Jones.

HILSCHER: Ladies and gentlemen, Mrs. Laura Jones of the Fairbanks Schools. (Applause)

MRS. JONES: Mr. President and delegates, it is indeed an honor to be invited to come before the Constitutional Convention, and I appreciate it very much, and I hope that what I have to say will be of interest to you.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to move that the Convention resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to hear Mrs. Jones.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to hear Mrs. Jones.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, and Mr. Fischer would you take the Chair?

(Mr. Fischer came forward to the Chair.)

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

(At this time the Committee of the Whole met) Mr. Fischer presided.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, the Committee of the Whole has risen and would like to express its appreciation to Mrs. Laura Jones for the very fine presentation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: I imagine making a motion to this matter is in order. I would like to make a motion and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter to Mrs. Jones's class issuing a formal invitation that that class attend one of the plenary sessions, that they might include a letter on our letterhead as an official act of this Convention in their scrap book.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the unanimous consent request of Mr. Cooper? Hearing none, it is so ordered, and the letter will be written.

BUCKALEW: This is probably not too relevant but before it slips my mind, I was in favor of an 18 year old franchise. From listening to the remarks of some of these 13 year olds, they can serve in the Legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business to come before us at this time? Mr. Sundlorg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we recess until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Do we have a report from the Committee to read the journal? We might postpone that until we are just about ready to finish the plenary session. Mr. Smith, you had a resolution or motion this morning, which ever manner you would wish to consider it.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to ask the Chief Clerk a question. Mr. President, there is no hurry on this and I suggest we forget it for now and continue with the business.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then we will continue with the business we have before us. Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal is now ready to proceed with the journal for the 21st day. The following changes on page 2: All reference to "Mr. Rivers" in the middle of the page should be "R. Rivers". Page 3, third paragraph from the bottom, the word "Convention" should be "Convention's". On page 7, end of the first paragraph. insert, "There being no objection, it was so ordered. That was at the end of the first paragraph on page 7. The second paragraph on that page after "1:30", insert "p.m."; in the same line following "Tuesday" delete "so they could" and substitute "and"; same paragraph, third from last line, delete "it is agreeable with the Senator" and substitute "possible."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your desire, Mr. White?

WHITE: I should say some of these changes were suggested by the Chief Clerk before we got to them. With those changes we recommend approval of the journal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 21st day be approved as corrected by the Committee. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I did not get his first correction, and I would like to have it restated.

WHITE: The first correction was on page 2, paragraph 5, two references to "Mr. Rivers" should be "Mr. R. Rivers". On same page, paragraph 6, one reference to "Mr. Rivers" should be "R. Rivers".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the adoption of the journal of the 21st Convention day with the proposed changes? If not, the journal is ordered approved as read. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: I would ask a special privilege of the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection? No objection, you may proceed.

DOOGAN: Tomorrow morning there is a funeral in town for a woman who died here recently. She lived in the community for many years and was a pioneer of the Territory, and it was suggested to me by one or two of the other members of the Convention that if possible those that choose to go to the funeral tomorrow morning be excused and be shown present on roll call if they choose to attend the funeral.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request. Do you ask that in the form of a unanimous consent request? You have heard the request. Is there objection? Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Mr. Chairman, I am included as one of those in Mr. Doogan's request. I too feel that I should as a pioneer and as a long acquaintance of the Eagan family. They played a great part in the development of Fairbanks and the Territory as a whole. I would like to attend that funeral and would also like to be excused and marked present on the roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection that these delegates who desire to attend the funeral tomorrow be excused but shown as being present on the record? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered and the delegates will be shown as present on the record. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I move that the remarks made under "personal privilege" shall not be soundscribed in the future.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves and asks unanimous consent that when a delegate asks for the floor under the question of "personal privilege" that the remarks at that time not be soundscribed. Is there objection?

V. RIVERS: I object.

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. White seconds the motion of Mr. McLaughlin. The motion is open for discussion. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, would this also include "special privilege of the floor" or just "personal privilege"?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would include, in the mind of the Chair, Mrs. Sweeney, any motion made under a privilege, whether special or otherwise. Is there discussion? Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: I rise for a point of information. What is the point involved? What is to be accomplished by clicking that machine off and on so frequently?

MCLAUGHLIN: The purpose of the motion is to cut off the human machine rather than the transcriber here. I feel that in the future, not that it has been abused in the past, but there might be a danger, a tendency for too many people to attempt to memorialize their friends on transcriptions, and terminating transcriptions and saving money would be conducive to a brevity of remarks on any subject given under any privilege. The privilege is bluntly that is, by the experience of all here, there is a tendency to abuse it. To prevent it in the future and prevent the problem from arising in the future, I think it would be appropriate now that the Convention so vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I think the motion and the action behind it is ill-advised for this reason. When we grant the privilege of the floor to someone to state something in regard to this Convention it may be in regard to the Convention as a whole or to the individual member of the Convention, it should definitely be a part of the record. We can grant personal privileges as we did this morning to a woman to appear before us and she has the privilege when that privilege is granted of having the speaking privileges of a member on this floor. They should be entitled, after that privilege is granted to the privileges of a member on this floor. I think personal privilege comes under the head of one of the privileges of the delegates and as such should be a part of the record. It is hard to foresee what they might say, but in any event, it might be under the personal privilege, they desire their comments, for the good of the body and for the good of their own thinking as a delegate, to appear on the record. I see no reason for this attitude of every time we have personal privilege or every time we have someone who has something to say being taken off the record. It is not the purpose. The record is to keep as near a complete record as possible. I, for one, feel we should vote this motion down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I think I probably should mention here that this subject has been under discussion at least two or perhaps three daily meetings of the committee chairmen and after a great deal of discussion it was finally decided unanimously, I believe -- perhaps you were not there, Mr. Rivers -- that we thought the soundscoring should be shut off when a delegate arises under "personal privilege". The thought behind it being not only that it might limit remarks but so many of the remarks made under that heading really have nothing to do with the business of this Convention -- they might be something entirely aside from the question of the Constitution of Alaska. One other consideration is that we are running out on time on soundscoring, and it is pretty clear to us that we are going to be far over the number of hours which we guaranteed, so this is really costing us money if we keep it on for things that don't have a whole lot to do with the direct business of the Convention.

HURLEY: Point of information.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Suppose I want to say something that is directly related to the business of the Convention but I do not desire to make a motion. What is the procedure that I use other than asking personal privilege of the floor?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley, if you desire to speak on some matter that is the business of the Convention you could ask for unanimous consent to refer to a certain subject that may have been before us previously. If you got that unanimous consent, which would mean that the rules were suspended, you could have that privilege.

HURLEY: Mr. Chairman, I have reference to one of the rules that says any delegate may have the privilege of the floor at any time on the matter of personal privilege. I feel that is a convenient way of making general remarks sometime regarding the Convention, whereas it may be undesirable to refer it to some particular item which may have gone before or may be encompassed in a motion made in the future.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? If not, the question is, "Shall the soundscoring facilities be shut off when a person has gained the floor under a question of privilege?" All in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the motion has carried. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. President, I want the floor on personal privilege but to get discussion on this I imagine I am going to have to make a motion and I know there has been a lot of discussion on this. Therefore, I am going to make a motion that the late evening TV sessions of the TV programs be suspended, and I ask unanimous consent.

H. FISCHER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion has been made by Mr. Cooper and seconded by Mrs. Fischer that the late evening TV programs be suspended by the Convention. Mr. Cooper, if the Chair may, that subject was brought up at the meeting of the committee chairmen this afternoon, and quite thoroughly discussed and it was the feeling of the committee chairmen that we would suspend for at least the time being all of the TV appearances. The committee chairmen were to report back to all committees on that subject.

MCLAUGHLIN: Point of information, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, your point of information?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is they will be terminating effective Saturday, is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Effective Saturday because of the press of detailed work here by the committees.

ROSSWOG: Was that not effective Friday night?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It was effective Friday night so that there would be no program on Saturday night. The President has had no opportunity to contact the radio and TV stations as yet. Would that take care of your motion?

COOPER: With that in mind and with the consent of my second, even though we will go down there Thursday night, I will withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Cooper's motion is ordered withdrawn. Is there other business to come before the Convention? The Secretary has some announcements to make.

SECRETARY: The Convention stationery is available in the office of the message center chief and can be obtained in the amount desired by the members from Mrs. Russell. There are two announcements from the President of the University. On Saturday, December 3, between the hours of 2 and 4:30 p.m., there will be a tea at the President's residence honoring women delegates and wives of delegates to the Constitutional Convention, women members of the faculty and wives of faculty members and others. The Panel Discussion Group of the American Association of University Women would like to have the women delegates to the Constitutional Convention as their guests at a luncheon to be held in the private dining room in Constitution Hall on Saturday, December 3.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to announce a short meeting of Committee No. IV on Ordinances immediately at the end of adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a meeting of the Ordinance Committee immediately upon adjournment. Is there any other business? The Chair would like to at this time remind all the delegates of the Committee of the Whole meeting here this evening at 7:30. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention now adjourn subject to a meeting of the Committee of the Whole at 7:30 o'clock this evening and that they adjourn as a Convention until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

METCALF: Is there a special bus to run this evening, the same as it does in the morning?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The bus will leave the Nordale Hotel at 7 p.m. tonight. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, point of information. Since we are meeting as a Committee of the Whole tonight -- therefore the soundsciber will not be working?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: I happened to run into one of the radio men down town today and he was asking whether the transcription of this would be available to send to other radio stations throughout the Territory.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, the Chair has been allowing for this discussion on point of information relative to the effect of the meeting tonight. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I wonder, Mr. President, if I may be permitted to rephrase my unanimous consent request and say to make it simply that we now recess until 7:30 this evening?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg's motion is a unanimous consent request that the Convention stand at recess until 7:30 but before we do that -- should we have the stenotypist here tonight during the Committee of the Whole? What is the wish of the Convention? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I withdraw my motion and I would like to move at this time and ask unanimous consent that we resolve ourselves into a Committee of the Whole to discuss the subject of what arrangements we will make for that meeting tonight.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then, the Convention will resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of discussing the Committee of the Whole tonight. Mr. Sundborg, will you take the Chair.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

(At this time the Committee of the Whole met. Mr. Sundborg presided.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that we instruct -- SUNDBORG: Mr. President, point of order -- the only matter now in order is for a report of the Committee of the Whole.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. Your point of order is well taken Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, your Committee of the Whole has arisen and it reports that during the Committee of the Whole session it was informed that Radio Station KFAR will soundscribe tonight's proceedings without charge to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you make a motion?

SUNDBORG: I move that the report of the Committee of the Whole be adopted.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and Mr. Robertson seconded the motion. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I move to amend the motion by adding the words, "and that the stenotypist not be called upon for further services today."

WHITE: Second it.

HERMANN: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Now the Chair would rule that that motion would not be in order at this time, Mr. Hellenthal because the report of the Committee of the Whole is as Mr. Sundborg reported and the question is, "Shall the report Mr. Sundborg made as to the action taken by the Committee of the Whole be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of adopting the report signify by saying "aye", all opposed by "no". The "ayes have it and the report is ordered adopted. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, I move the services of the stenotypist be dispensed with this evening during any hearing of the Committee of the Whole.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves that the services of the stenotypist be dispensed with for the remainder of the day and that she not be required to be present this evening.

WHITE: I second the motion.

RILEY: Point of information, in adopting the report of the Committee of the Whole the body as I understand it has not yet accepted the offer of KFAR, is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right.

RILEY: It seems to me we might better see how we stand as to soundscribing before we act on the dismissal of the stenotypist.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We adopted the report but we did not actually accept the offer of radio station KFAR. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: I so move and ask unanimous consent that this body accept the invitation of KFAR to soundscribe tonight's meeting.

RILEY: Point of order. Is there not a motion on the floor? Perhaps Mr. McLaughlin would accomodate us by withdrawing his motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you hold your motion for a minute, Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: I shall consent to any suspense for less than five minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin asks unanimous consent to withdraw his motion with the consent of his second, Mr. White. Hearing no objection, the motion is withdrawn for the time being and Mr. Hilscher's request is asking unanimous consent that the Convention accept the offer of KFAR to soundscribe the proceedings at no cost to the Convention this evening. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, it is so ordered and the Convention goes on record as accepting the offer of radio station KFAR. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I request unanimous consent that my motion be reinstated. I will make parliamentary inquiry if somebody can move the previous question as soon as my motion is reinstated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White seconded the motion. The question is, "Shall the services of the stenotypist for tonight's meeting be dispensed with?" Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I do not see why we should dispense with the services of the stenotypist for tonight's meeting. After all, what some of us want, and I think it is more or less a universal hunger, is to have a printed record of who says what and what the arguments are, and that we cannot get from the soundscribing, and I also call the attention of the body to the report of the Administrative Committee at the time the original report was given on salaries and appointments to the effect that no overtime is to be paid and that all the people who were employed were to work as needed at night. I don't see that it needs to cost the Convention anything except the extra time for typing the report, but I don't want to do without this report. I would rather have it than the soundscribing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: I would like to point out then that this soundscribing record to be of use, it would have to be typed and mimeographed and distributed to all members. It might run two or three hours, if we are all here listening and all participating, that is an unnecessary expense and waste of time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: Mr. Chairman, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris moves the previous question.

DOOGAN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan seconds the motion. It has been moved and seconded that the previous question be ordered. The motion automatically stops debate.

MCNEES: Point of information. This record that KFAR soundscribes tonight, does that belong to the Convention?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, it will. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?"

KILCHER: I think there is a conflict of information. Mr. Hilscher, could you correct me on there as to whether the soundscribing will belong to the Convention or the radio station.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair just stated, Mr. Kilcher, that the soundscribing will belong to the Convention. Mr. Carozza kindly stated that he will turn the tapes over to the Convention at no cost. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All in favor of ordering the previous question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall the services of the stenotypist be dispensed with for tonight's Committee of the Whole meeting?"

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 18 - Barr, Boswell, Cross, Doogan, Emberg, Harris, Hellenthal, Hurley, King, Knight, Lee, McNealy, Nolan, Peratrovich, Rosswog, Sweeney, White, Mr. President.

Nays: 33 - Armstrong, Awes, Collins, Cooper, Davis, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Johnson, Kilcher, Laws, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, Walsh, Wien.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, Coghill, R. Rivers, Taylor.)

HILSCHER: I want to have the stenotypist here tonight, will you tell me which way to vote. I want to change my vote.

KILCHER: "No" for me too.

CHIEF CLERK: Eighteen yeas, 33 nays, and four absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed, and the stenotypist will be with us tonight. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention pay the stenotypist the sum of $25 for recording the session tonight, and if I may explain why I suggest that, I would like to say that we are enjoying the services of the stenotypist for what anyone who knows what stenotyping normally costs, it is really a very nominal sum. I don't believe it is proper to require the girl to come down here for a long evening session and then to transcribe those notes all within the range of the very modest daily stipend which we are paying her.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves that the stenotypist be paid an additional $25 for her services tonight.

MARSTON: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is seconded by Mr. Marston. The subject is open for discussion. Mr. Poulsen?

POULSEN: I object for the reason the salary has already been set.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I object too. We have already broken one rule in that we are going to record the Committee of the Whole. We are going to have the Committee of the Whole on at least 13 other committees, and are we going to be going through the same process of recording the sessions. If we set a precedent now of paying an additional $25 I think we should follow through on that, and we just won't have the money. While I feel she is doing a very fine job for the $25 she receives and I know it is not the fee that is generally ordered or paid for her services, I still feel it would be a very bad precedent to set. I am going to vote against the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? Mr. Barr?

BARR: I feel that some of us voted to have the stenotypist present because we thought it would be free. That is the only reason I can think of. Since we are having a record made of it on the tape, it's just as good a record, I see no reason to have two records made, and especially when this girl has to work after hours to make it. I don't believe in breaking rules either but if people insist on having her come here and work after hours when it is not necessary as today, then they should pay her.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? The question is, "Shall the stenotypist be paid an additional $25 for her services tonight?" All those in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no".

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 22 - Awes, Barr, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, Hurley, Johnson, King, McCutcheon, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nordale, Peratrovich, Robertson, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Mr. President.

Nays: 29 - Armstrong, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Kilcher, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNees, Nerland, Nolan, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Smith, Sweeney, Walsh, Wien.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, Coghill, R. Rivers, Taylor.)

CHIEF CLERK: Twenty-two yeas, 29 nays and four absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed. Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: Mr. President, I would like to move that when the stenotypist's notes are transcribed, that a copy be placed in the library for the reference of the delegates and that it not be mimeographed in sufficient quantities so that each would have one. It seems to me quite unnecessary, and I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale moves and asks unanimous consent that when the stenotypist's notes are transcribed that a copy be placed in the library and that it not be mimeographed for each delegate.

MCNEES: Point of information. Would the maker of the motion go along with the suggestion that the copy not be removed from the library?

NORDALE: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That will be understood then that the copy will remain in the library and anyone wishing to read the copy will also remain in the library. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Would the maker of the motion agree to possibly include in her motion that five copies be typed -- it is the same labor, just a little more paper.

ARMSTRONG: I object. There is a great deal more work to making carbon copies from originals, and I don't believe it is necessary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale asked unanimous consent. Is there further objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and there will be a copy of the stenotypist's reports in the library available to the members. Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I move that the Convention adjourn until 7:30 this evening.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention adjourn until 7:30. Is there objection?

LONDBORG: I object. I would like to introduce a motion along this line -- that the journals of the first 13 days be placed on our desks at the earliest possible time. Sometime ago there was reference made to something and we had no journal to go by. I think the understanding was when we started getting our journals that we would have our complete journals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the journals for the first 13 days be placed on the delegates' desks at the earliest possible time. Would the Chief Clerk explain that situation please?

DOOGAN: First eight days.

CHIEF CLERK: There are three of them ready. The girls have not had time to get them typed. They are finished but they just haven't been mimeographed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will state the journal will be available as soon as the help can make them available.

LONDBORG: I withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg withdraws his request. The motion is asking unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 7:30 p.m. Is there objection? The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there any business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I would move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of discussing the proposal of unicameralism and bicameralism.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of discussing the unicameral and bicameral legislature question. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, then the Convention will resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole. Mr. Victor Rivers, would you take the Chair?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I would like to ask to be excused as I have comments to make from the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, would you take the Chair?

BARR: Mr. President, I had hoped to be able to talk on the floor on this. I feel quite strongly on this.

PERATROVICH: Mr. President, the chairman can participate in the discussion in the Committee of the Whole, so I don't see why these capable men are refusing to take the Chair.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chairman of course during the Committee of the Whole could give the Chair to someone else if he so desired. Mr. Riley, will you take the Chair?

RILEY: Obviously, Mr. President, I have little that I can say.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The Committee will come to order. Being among those who were late to arrive, I did not hear the motion for our resolution as a Committee of the Whole, but I presume that the order of business is as announced and the matter before us is discussion of the structure of the legislature as proposed, I believe, by Mr. McCutcheon yesterday. The matter is now open for discussion. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, in adding up the discussion of the chairmen of the committees the other day, it seemed to me we would have a long session unless we came to some conclusion in this Committee of the Whole as to the time limit of the debate. Now the questioning of this subject and bringing it up before us at this time was for the purpose of determining an opinion -- not for the matter of final debate. I move and ask unanimous consent that we limit debate to ten minutes for each individual member on this subject.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that we limit debate to ten minutes for each individual member on this subject. Is there objection? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. Chairman, I object for the moment for a point of information. Does that mean that ten minutes at one time? If a man has a chance at a second time, what then?

V. RIVERS: I had thought in adding up here that we have 55 numbers; if each uses ten minutes we have 55 or ten minutes less than ten hours. I thought if each member got a chance to speak that ten minutes would be the maximum we could allow. Some of them will not desire to speak that long.

BARR: Some will not speak at all, but I have great powers of endurance myself.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Do you object, Mr. Barr?

BARR: I do not object to limiting it to ten minutes each time that a member speaks, but if it comes around to him the second time I believe he should be able to speak again if he wishes for another ten minutes.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Rivers, does that constitute an objection to your motion?

V. RIVERS: No, it constitutes no objection.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Without objection it is so ordered. There will be a ten minute limitation. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. Chairman, are you going to appoint a time keeper?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I am going to ask the Clerk to give the Chair a copy of the roll call and I shall undertake to keep track of the time. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. Chairman, will there be any yielding of time on the part of one delegate to another?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I know of no reason why that cannot be allowed. We have nothing in the rules on the subject. I would say that each member has ten minutes allotted to him under the proposal. Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I would object to that if that is a form of unanimous consent request on the grounds that we are trying to limit the total time of debate here to some reasonable figure. I think that if a member does not use his time, does not have ten minutes of time to devote to the subject, we should not allow that time to go to someone else.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I would suggest in that event if the Chair may, that the matter be clarified right now with a request for unanimous consent or motion as in the case is necessary.

V. RIVERS: I ask unanimous consent that any member be limited to speak not more than ten minutes at this one time, the first time and his ten minutes if not used, not be transferable to some other member.

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: It has been moved and seconded that each member be confined to ten minutes discussion and that his ten minutes not be transferable to some other member, if not exhausted by the one speaking. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. Chairman, point of information only. This ten minute time -- if the first time -- is that to be construed that it is only one time if it is only three or four minutes, or can the ten minutes be cut into two or three small parts?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Kilcher, as I construe the rule, if one does not use his full ten minutes the first time, he must allow all others who wish to speak on an intermediate basis, to speak before him on the same subject before he resumes.

KILCHER: Will the whole evening be one subject?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I suspect it will be one subject as indicated by the call. You've heard the motion. Is there further discussion?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: All in favor signify by saying "aye", all opposed saying "no". The "ayes" have it. So ordered. You each have ten minutes.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman, if no one is going to speak, I request that we rise and report progress.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, the purpose of our discussion here is to develop some of the thinking on the side of the proponents of unicameralism in showing the contrast between the two types of legislatures. There has been a good deal of condemnation in past years of the fashion in which our Territorial Legislature has proceeded on the several subjects, and there has been a good deal of thinking by people not well acquainted with the legislative constitution as the way it is in effect currently, believing that in putting the total membership of both the houses into one body the matter of the affairs of the state may be expedited and that an economy may be there effected. There is considerable argument in behalf of bicameralism predicated upon the historical aspects of our legislative assemblies throughout the United States, in England and in other countries. There have been a good number of proposals for unicameralism in the United States during the history of the United States, and it appears that currently only one is functioning. Our particular committee seems to be of two different opinions, and it is possible that some of the debate tonight may serve to strengthen either side or convince either side that they are incorrect. Consequently, I prefer, Mr. Chairman, to have someone take up the cudgels in behalf of either side and get the wheels going around.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that the matter of ten minutes allocated to each delegate with possible chance of twenty minutes, and with the thought in mind that I don't want to be here at the end of ten or twenty hours, I seize this opportunity of being able to lead off and so have my brethren, and possibly sisters, who can speak longer and more fluently than I, have the privilege to carry on their speaking while I am enjoying much needed rest. To get down to the subject, I don't know whether -- first I will back up. I want to make my standing and my premise very clear. I am unalterably opposed to the unicameral legislature. I don't know whether there is any other delegate here who is from Nebraska. I was born and raised in Nebraska and practiced law there a good many years. I will have to say that I did not live too much time under the unicameral system. In fact, it was only in operation for a period of two years where before I came to Alaska to make my home. However, I have been back to Nebraska, I have exchanged correspondence with attorneys, politicians of Nebraska, and this being a Committee of the Whole I feel that I can safely say "Republican" and "Democrat" without any fear of criticism, because that is one thing that we have very admirably avoided in the meeting of the plenary sessions of the Convention and even carried on by those two great statesmen yesterday who referred to greater statesmen in both political parties. I believe we can more or less call a spade a spade. One of the reasons I left Nebraska was that I was probably one of the last Democrats who stayed in Nebraska, and to have freedom and get out from under a one-party system, I felt that a new, growing and progressive place such as Alaska would hold some future, a place where a two-party system could exist and continue in operation. Nebraska is, and I probably don't need to say this, Nebraska is a Republican state. The chances of a Democrat being elected in Nebraska are even less than that of the rich man mentioned in the Bible, getting into heaven. In Nebraska the unicameral system -- there are objections to it there -- on the whole it has worked and is working very well. That much I am going to grant in favor of the unicameral legislature as far as Nebraska is concerned. There my friends, we have a system whereby the Republicans, you have practically a one-party system setup on the non-partisan basis, for one thing. The second is that Nebraska has a stable population. "Stable" is hardly the word. It is not only stable but they are ultra ultra conservative. The largest town in Nebraska (I may be off a little on my figures now as I am probably using figures of ten or fifteen years ago, the population of Omaha (my home town was south of Omaha where the few Democrats were still able to congregate) was about 300,000 as against a state population of 3,000,000. That is not a bad deal under a unicameral system. You compare the size of Anchorage, or the greater Anchorage area with the population of Alaska and you will find your percentagewise that the unicameral system on that basis would not be as fair here as it is in the State of Nebraska. There you have your sound and conservative farmers throughout the state and they see more or less eye to eye, there is not a chance of ramrodding things through the unicameral legislature in Nebraska because they are all as I said before the ultra conservative type, and it is only conservative measures that are going to get through that unicameral legislature in Nebraska. I can recollect back to the bicameral days when we tried to get some measures through that were not so conservative, and they failed pretty flat even when we still had some semblance of the two-party system in Nebraska. Now I am going to close off here very shortly. I am going to say some things to some of my fellow legislators who served with me in the House of Representatives, it is going to hurt me a little to say this. There are a number of Senators here that I served with in the last legislature. It hurts me but I am going to have to say a kind word for those Senators. There were times when I thought they were wrong and when I thought they were wrong, why they were wrong. There were other times, ladies and gentlemen, when in that House of Representatives things were ramrodded through by a certain segment of the members of the House of Representatives, of which I was one, and had we not had a Senate over there, much as I hate to say this had we not had a Senate there to cool off the House a little and water down some of these bills that we sent over to them, maybe if we had not known there was a Senate over there, very likely we would not have shoved some of these bills through. We depended a large part on the Senate to kill them. I can see -- is my time about up?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Three minutes, Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I can see whereby the unicameral legislature with the same ideas and the same thoughts, ladies and gentlemen as the House of Representatives in which I served this last time, on a good number of measures, a unicameral legislature could ram through legislation there that the people of Alaska would bow their heads in shame to think it had passed a representative body. It is a dangerous proposition from that point. In closing, I forget whether it was Hamilton or Madison, when he was asked about the bicameral deal in the United States, (incidentally the Senate and House of Representatives have worked pretty well for almost 170 years in our federal government) he said why the two-house system remember in the old days about Madison's time, when they used to pour the coffee out in a saucer and blow it off a little to cool it? Well, he said here is a hot cup of coffee and a hot cup of tea, which he said represented the House of Representatives -- a hot, impetuous body. The saucer here represents the United States Senate -- we pour a little of the hot tea into the saucer, we cool it off a little bit and drink it. I believe that more fully shows that I think that we could stand in this hot impetuous, a growing Territory, we could stand a little cooling off by a Senate. Incidentally, I am not now nor do I intend to be a candidate for Territorial Senator.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there further discussion? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. Chairman, may I speak? How much time do we have here?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Ten minutes sir.

MARSTON: I am the only man that comes from Spenard, Alaska, who is in this Convention. That group of people represents the largest single group of people back of any group that came here as a delegate, and I am thinking back over the people who live there, the 200 homes at Turnagain By the Sea. I am thinking seriously about the people and why I am here and I have used my influence here. Helen Fischer and some others and I have declared that I would vote for the one-house system. I don't think I had too much influence on them, and I have thought it over here tonight and this afternoon. Those 200 families who live in my development, they expect me to help write a constitution that will be acceptable to the United States group and I think that is my first duty. If we need reforming I think I want to join up with a family of states and then reform from within and not start my reforming from the outside. I believe that is what I am here for, and I am going to go along with the system, the pattern that has built a great United States of America, and I am going to throw my influence along the side of the two-house system that has made America great. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, apparently I am laboring under some false ideas here. I thought there was going to be an argument. I prepared my little speech on the basis that someone would already have been on the floor for the unicameral legislature, but apparently right at this moment, just to stir up some debate, I would like to make the statement. I don't think they are very proud of it, so I will present mine with the full idea that I know very shortly there will be more people on the floor. I have one thing to say in reference to our first speaker. If he could guarantee a certain party in a unicameral legislature, I would swing my opinions to the unicameral. With indulgence I to read this. I really haven't time to study it out well enough to speak freely. Many of the strong points for a bicameral legislature and, of course, strong points for a unicameral legislature have been presented here. Primarily, unicameralism points out economy and expeditious legislation. My concern with the mentioned economy and expeditious legislation is, will this be accomplished at the sacrifice of good, strong comprehensive acts of legislation for the people. Very true, as has been pointed out, unicameralism could possibly forestall and correct some of the "log rolling", "passing the buck" and other undesirable means by which legislators in the past have used to gain personal fame, rather than vote an issue for the good of the Territory and their constituents. I, for one, would like to assume that had a unicameral house existed in the past, the same caliber of representative referred to above would have been present in the legislature, and could have found other undesirable methods to further his or her purpose at the expense of the voters. Naturally, a bicameral house cannot legislate in the reported fast, economical manner of a unicameral house. However, for our age-old American custom of checks and balances, a bicameral procedure is far more desirable. Secondly, unicameralism cannot give the representation desired by the people. With a two-house system the lower house would be apportioned for representation on population alone. This guarantees each and every election district of 2500 population or more at least one representative in the House and naturally that representative would have the one vote. To enlarge on this, the election districts would be, where necessary due to greater population, multiple member districts based on the total population. The Senate, however, by custom (and I am not attempting to run for Senator in any way, shape or form) a more learned, sedate and responsible body, would be apportioned for representation by geographical areas. Possibly, to go further, geographic and economic areas. This body, the Senate, would then be responsible not to an immediate area, due to population, but would be responsible to the territory or the state at large. The Senate as such would be, in effect, a board of directors for the corporation which in this instance the State of Alaska. Individual Senate members would not be so apt to be concerned about minor legislation but would be instead the liaison between the lower house which is represented by population and the government of the State of Alaska based on over-all population, economics and geographic districts. To summarize, a great deal of the concern voiced in this body against a two-house legislature has been and is based on the supposed incompetence or lack of faith of the representatives to be elected by the people. We were told yesterday by a most distinguished gentleman that the words "politician, politics, government", are in most cases referred to or thought of as synonymous of graft and incompetence. The capabilities of the elected representative or senator we cannot control or guide. They are elected by the people, and rightly so, but a two-house system does install checks and balances, not otherwise obtainable to hold in check any ill-advised or unwanted legislation which would not benefit all.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a question but not be docked any time.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Without objection Mrs. Sweeney, the question may be entertained.

SWEENEY: I do not think bicameralism has to be sold and so I came here expecting to hear unicameralism sold, but if there is no sales talk on it I think we might just as well adjourn.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I would say that any motion is entertained that is in order.

MCNEES: Mr. Chairman, may I answer the question and not be docked any time?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: There are several proponents of unicameralism in the crowd. I well know that. The only reason I am reserving my comments at the present time is that I have had on committee work, a preponderance of public time for the presentation of the subject of unicameralism. I felt that it was better that it come from the floor for the time being rather than by committee. I am prepared to go at any time.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, Mr. McNees I believe is an able proponent of unicameralism and I subscribe to the old idea that the one who advocates the proposition should have the affirmative and also should have the rebuttal. I think to help this Committee proceed that we would all welcome the argument of Mr. McNees for unicameralism. Then I am willing to have him make his rebuttal after I get through talking without being docked any time.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The opportunity is open to all.

EMBERG: Mr. Chairman, as a result of the recommendations from the Committee, I would like to hear from that Committee and the members of it.

HINCKEL: Well, I am a member of the Committee, and I came here to learn. I never learned anything by listening to myself, and I did not intend to say anything, but from the study I have made of the subject I feel unicameralism is the type of house that I think will give us the best representation. I come from a portion of Alaska that has never had any representation in the legislature, and there are a lot of other parts that never have either. To me, to devise a lower house that will give us the representation we should have Territory-wide and then also give us a Senate that will also be a fair distribution throughout the Territory in any way so that the seats in the Senate will not be monopolized by the big heavily populated centers, we will have a complete legislature of such size that we cannot afford it in my opinion. The arguments they have against the unicameral house, that is that they will rush legislation through in the heat of the moment, so to speak, and without sufficient judgment, I don't think it is true. I think if we only have one house that the people in that house will give more deliberation to the subject that they are discussing, and I think they will vote the way they feel they should and the way the people they represent expect them to, and not just vote any old way having free knowledge that the Senate is going to kill the thing anyway. I am not a very good speaker, and I can't express myself too well, but I feel real strongly about the subject, and probably on a different kind of debate, where I could get up and speak in rebuttal after somebody else talks, I could probably get up and say something that might make sense. But for the time being I have said about all I can. I am for a unicameral house on the basis that we will get a truer and better representation and have a better legislature.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The Chair is noting just three and one-half minutes so you'll have ample opportunity, Mr. Hinckel.

NOLAN: Mr. Chairman, I don't think the people in the back are hearing what is going on.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: What is the situation as to the PA system in the gallery? Is there any hookup?

SOUNDSCRIBING ENGINEER: We have seen nothing of the amplifier -- I believe it is over in the gymnasium as of yesterday, however that is not our equipment and we have no control over it.

HELLENTHAL: Might I suggest, Mr. Chairman, that we move our tables up and permit the people that have visited us here this evening to bring their chairs into the main body. It will not offend my dignity.

LEE: May I move that we recess for five minutes so we can move the chairs?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Lee asks unanimous consent without objection for a five - minute recess for rearranging purposes. If there is no objection so ordered.

(People moved chairs in from gallery at this time.)

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The Committee will come to order. I might suggest that to simplify the audience's hearing, the Chair certainly has no particular need to be addressed, except for recognition, and that the speaker, wherever he may stand, could perhaps address the audience to maximum advantage and catch most of those in the room from where he stands.

JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I doubt that we can do that because of the transcribing. We will have to face the microphone.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Would it be the pleasure of the Committee that the speaker step forward?

COMMITTEE: No.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: We will see how it goes from the rear of the room. Is there further discussion? Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, the purpose of the meeting was to try to give the Committee some idea about the way the delegates felt on the question of a bicameral house and a unicameral house. So far as I am concerned, I am not going to take ten minutes or any fraction thereof. I believe that we should keep the traditional two-house system, and so far as I am concerned I have seen no demand or, for that matter, no request from the people of Alaska that we depart from that system, and I doubt seriously that were we to experiment with a one-house system that the people would be pleased with what we have done. My opinion is not such that it could not be changed, but that is the way I feel now, and I am willing to go on record that way.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I am not committed to myself one way or the other on unicameralism or bicameralism. I would like to make one point though before speaking on a specific point on unicameralism, and that is that I don't think we should talk in terms of will the people accept what we do. We are here as representatives of the people of Alaska. The people have not told us to go one way or the other. They have not demanded that we adopt unicameralism or that we preserve bicameralism. I think if this body by majority vote adopted unicameralism, that the people of Alaska are just as cognizant of all the factors as we would be in taking such action and would go along with this kind of a system. What I want to emphasize is that we are the people here and we should not worry about being on a higher plane than the rest of the people of Alaska. Insofar as unicameralism is concerned, I would like to bring out one particular point that to me carries more in its favor than anything else, and that is the better committee operation that you can have under a unicameral system. All of us who have worked here within the last few weeks have been engaged in committee work. We have seen the importance of committees for the actual formulation of proposals. A legislature basically is a similar body from that standpoint. The United States Congress is a good example. Most of the basic work is done in committees. Most of the studies and research and debates take place there. Most of the arguments are worked out there. Once a proposition gets on the floor of Congress, of either house, it is only a matter of final debate in the most serious questions of national importance. Most of the other things are pretty well worked out. Now I draw upon the example of the national Congress even though it has two bodies for the simple reason that they have worked out a committee system due to the large number of congressmen and senators that they have. It has generally been agreed that Alaska or any state legislature should not be overburdened with too many members due to cost factors and other considerations.

Taking this into account, if you have a 20-member House or a 20-member Senate or 22-member Senate in Alaska, if you have a 30-or 37-member House that means that each house of the legislature has to subdivide itself into a series of basic committees. They cannot get around that. They must study each bill, they must analyze it fully. That means that 20 people may have to spread themselves over 12, 14 or 15 committees, meaning that very little attention can be paid to any piece of legislation. In the unicameral legislature all the effort of all legislators can be concentrated in the work of the same number of committees that would be sufficient in one house of the two-house legislature. You could have twice as much study for each bill and probably much more thorough study since you would not have duplication and multiplicity of membership as you have in a two-house legislature, especially with a small number of members. I don't want to point to the Alaska Territorial Legislature. We probably should get away and think in terms of the state and the future rather than in thinking of what we have had in the past, although we are used to it and sometimes have to draw upon that as an example, but I am sorry to say that the committee system certainly does not work in a small legislature, as shown by what we have had during recent years. What happens is that the committees do not have time to go into the proposals, the members rush through bills, report them out to the floor because they feel they do not have time in committees to give them full consideration, therefore, let's throw them on the floor and give everybody a chance to talk about them. That is exactly what happens. You talk and talk and talk about various bills. They are amended time and again and sent back and forth to second reading, and the result is that the committee work is done on the floor of the legislature. To me this kind of operation does not result in the enactment of good legislation, and therefore I throw this out as one of the aspects of unicameralism that I feel has much to offer for the legislature of Alaska.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: Mr. Chairman, I have not said too much at this Convention so far because I was sent up here by a bunch of people that told me, "Tommy, it is always best to stay quiet and let people think you are a fool than to open your mouth and prove it. But I have heard a lot of talk tonight on the one-party, two-party system. Alaska for the past two to three sessions has been a one-party system, kind of a one-party at a time, but we still must keep a system of checks and balances. Therefore, to my mind the two-house system has been more or less tried and proven and 47 of the 48 states seem to like the two-house system. In 1836, I believe, Virginia went from the unicameral house to the bicameral house. Evidently they had a reason. So since we have got something that we know has worked pretty good, I can't see much use in changing it.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. Chairman, the legislature was originally organized as a check to curb the power of royalty. It had no representative functions. They did what the king desired and gradually this began to take shape and model out a form that we now know today as a democracy. They gradually assumed powers as the king was weakened. The king's powers lessened, the legislators' powers grew. It gradually split into a two-house system of legislation, one as a check upon royalty, the other one in the interest of legislation for the people. The members of the two-house system or the two houses of our present system are elected by the same people, from the same class of people. They are given the same legislative authority. There is no division on the basis of aristocratic lines or on the lines of wealth. There is no qualification whatsoever with regards to wealth and property. There is no need to give the two branches the same authority to do the same thing. Where they possess the same qualifications for office and where the work of the two bodies is identical, requiring that the work be done twice, identical action by each branch, although each branch has the same jurisdiction unreasonable, illogical, and required by no other government agency. This illogical procedure is well illustrated by what happened in our courts of justice. The case in court may involve a lifetime of savings. It may involve the liberty of one or more of the litigants. It may even involve human life, but however important may be the issue, it is unnecessary to have more than one trial. Under the guidance and control of the presiding judge each side offers all the evidence deemed important or relevant. When all the evidence is in, the attorneys argue the case to the jury. The jury retires and after deliberation renders a verdict. The judge renders judgment upon this verdict. This determination of the issue is then settled. It is ended unless the jury or the judge has violated some constitutional provision, in which case the entire trial is set aside and held for naught by the appellant act. This same check would exist in the legislative matters if we had the one house. First point -- if the legislature exceeded its constitutional authority in the enactment of any law, it would be set aside by the supreme court. Number two there would also exist the veto power of the governor. Number three -- there would also be the referendum provisions of the state constitution so that the people could by such referendum nullify any law passed by the one-house legislature, as they have the power to do so now. Let me trace, by way of an example, a bill through our present two-house system. A bill is introduced, we shall say in the house, stemming from the people. The first step by the house, it is referred to a committee whereupon the committee holds hearings. The committee then debates the question. The committee then reports the bill to the house. The bill comes up for discussion and debate. All members have the right to be heard. The bill is argued in all its phases. The House votes. If the bill is passed the House then sends it to the Senate. We now have the bill in the Senate, and what happens? The same thing all over again, usually the same people testify before the Senate as testifies before the House committees. Finally it is reported out, debated, perhaps this time amended in some particular way, and so they pass the bill. The bill is then returned to the House for action upon the amendment. The House rejects the Senate amendment. The bill is sent to a conference committee. Practically all legislation over which there is any controversy goes to a conference committee. What is a conference committee? It is the third house. The conferees, usually free from the House and free from the Senate, take up the bill for consideration. Usually these deliberations are held behind closed doors. There is no roll call. There is no provision of law for a record of proceedings. The conference committee perhaps writes a new bill, modified perhaps, without any hearing whatsoever, modified perhaps without any publicity whatsoever, modified perhaps without any recorded vote. Is that democracy? If they agree, they report it to the House and the Senate. The conference bill comes up in the House and the Senate and it must be voted either up or down and that without amendment. That is a big point, remember it. There is no such thing as the amendment of a conference bill. Members may find provisions that they think are wrong, they cannot move to strike them out, they cannot move to insert good provisions that may have been left out. They must accept the evil to get the good. To reject the evil is to reject the good. This places the members of the House and Senate in a very unfavorable and unfair light. Modifications or changes of a bill have been made finally without public discussion, without the knowledge of the public, without any roll call, without any record, and it must be approved or disapproved as a whole. If the House or Senate (either one) rejects the conference report, it goes again to the conference committee, and in the last days of a session especially, this means death to what otherwise might have been a good bill. What a terrible waste of man power, time and expense. Now let us trace a bill through the one-house legislature. The bill is introduced to the single house, considered by the proper committee, hearings are held, subject is exhausted on the floor with every person given a chance to speak. A vote would be taken, any amendment offered would there be fully discussed and voted upon. The vote would be out in the open. Immediately the public would know with the next issue of the paper or the next radio broadcast at breakfast time, just what the record of the public servant was. Not only would they be able to punish the unworthy servant, but they would be better able to reward the one who is faithful. I could go on and on, but I'm not going to do it. My time must be about up.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: One minute.

MCNEES: The merits claimed for the unicameral system -- membership in a single chamber carries greater prestige, dignity and greater opportunity for public service than membership in a bicameral legislature, and hence attracts more distinguished, outstanding and representative citizens. A single chamber operates more efficiently than two and is able to give more thorough consideration to proposed legislation than two chambers. By the adoption of suitable rules of procedure and the establishment of effective committee systems it can insure that every measure is carefully reviewed before it is acted upon, with adequate safeguards to prevent hasty action and thus avoid the serious ills of the closing rush that pertains in many states. The jealousy, friction and rivalry in the two houses is gone. Responsibility can be definitely fixed. A single house facilitates the development of essential leadership. The single house permits closer and more effective relationships between the governor and executive departments and the legislature. Some observers in the Nebraska legislature claim that a single chamber law-making body reduces the power of special interest groups and lobbyists to defeat needed legislation and at the same time makes it easier for the groups of citizens who are interested in pending legislation to present their recommendations openly and above board to the legislature. The unicameral legislature does away with the need for conference committees. We have covered that. I won't go into detail on it.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. McNees, the Chair is obliged to call time on you.

R. RIVERS: I ask for unanimous consent to give Mr. McNees another five minutes. He is making the primary presentation of the affirmative of that proposition.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Without objection, Mr. Rivers has asked unanimous consent. So ordered. Proceed, Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: The unicameral system facilitates public reporting of the work of the legislature and this is very important. If the press is in, the public is in, and the issues before it enables the public to keep informed on the course of legislation which should serve to increase the public confidence in the legislative body. The unicameral legislature results in substantial savings money-wise, and whooes that not make an appeal to? The cost of the legislature itself is reduced because the number of its members and the size of the legislative staff are reduced. There are many many other advantages, but I want to take just a few minutes that I have left and point out that unicameralism is not limited to Nebraska. Canada -- nine provinces with eight of the nine, unicameral. They have found that they have better laws and less expense, while the activities of corrupt lobbyists are cut to a minimum. Finland -- the little republic of Finland has been so well governed that it is the only European power that has the financial ability to meet the installments of war loans due to the American government. Finland has been a one-house legislature for 37 years. England -- even though the House of Lords exists it is in name only, and it is essentially a one-house legislature. The history of unicameralism in the United States is not, has not, and will not be limited to Nebraska's very short term with it. It is significant that three states -- Pennsylvania, Georgia and Vermont for varying periods of time operated with unicameral legislatures. Georgia abandoned its unicameral plan in 1790, apparently influenced by the pattern of the national Congress. Pennsylvania did likewise in 1789, apparently because of dissatisfaction with the council of censors and with the executive council which acted as a plural executive. The new constitution created a second house of the legislature, abolished the council of censors and established a single executive. Vermont -- the longest experience of any American state with the unicameral legislature was that of Vermont, from the year of 1777 until 1836 -- a period of over 59 years. This experience, after a legislative deadlock that year in the election of a governor, none having received a minority at the last general election, the recommendation of the council of censors for the adoption of a bicameral legislature was approved by a close vote. It was found after close study of the merits claimed for the bicameral system were not realized, and that as far as can be judged from historical evidence, the previous unicameral legislature worked as well as if not better than the succeeding bicameral legislature. Now the big question -- why have not more states adopted it if it is so good? Here is the answer. Out of 197 bills introduced into the various state legislatures across the nation in the last 25 to 30 years, 189 were introduced by the House, the body representing the people. Eight were introduced by the Senate. Of the eight introduced by the Senate, they all died in the Senate. Of the 189 introduced in the House, 176 of them passed and went on into the Senate and were all killed in the Senate. I thank you.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the sincerity and the persuasiveness of Mr. McNees's case. I wonder if the Senate did not kill those bills for changing the form of those state legislatures because it exceeded the constitutional authority of the legislature to change its own form. I would not know. The reason that I advocate staying with the bicameral system is largely a matter of representation. I think of the United States, as big as it is, having had through the years the heavy center of population east of the Mississippi River. I think of a one-house body based upon proportional representation which would absolutely dominate the whole United States. I think of the western states and the more sparsely populated area as not having any check on legislation, such as would be controlled under proportional representation in a one-legislature congress. The reason that our constitution was drawn to give equal geographic representation to all the states, and that is in the form of two senators for each state, was that the highly populated area could not absolutely control and dominate the whole country without some check in behalf of the less populated area. The United States Senate sometimes shows as much liberality as the House of Representatives, at one time showed a little more with regard to statehood for Alaska. The Territory of Alaska, one-fifth as big as the United States, is a diversity of economies and could be several states if you want to look at it from the standpoint of size and also from the standpoint of industries and diversity of activities. Southeastern is as different with its forests and its fish from the Fourth Division with its mines and furs, as one state would be from another. Then westward, the Alaska peninsula, the Arctic, Nome, and the northern westward is so different that very few people in Southeastern Alaska have ever been up to see what it looks like. I used to be grateful when the First Division had headquarters with the capital and all the brains and all the influence used to "wag the whole dog around" and practically run the Territory of Alaska. The only safeguard in those days was that you had a Senate with two senators from the Second Division, two from the Fourth and two from the Third. Now conceivably as the golden heart of Alaska might be the great power with the big build-up in the future, that would be "wagging the dog", but I am not saying that it will. You have the example of the Third Division that now outstrips by population any other division by two at least, and you can visualize that a one-house legislature with straight proportional representation would place at the present stage of history a preponderance of strength in the hands of the Third Division. It is conceivable that in the course of events the First, with its forests and its development down there might again become strongly preponderant over any other part of the Territory. But nevertheless, we are so widely scattered, we have such a diversity of economies, there are so many people in the Second Division that have never spent any time in the First and so many in the First that have never spent any time in the Second or the Fourth or the Third, that don't know anything about the rest of the country, that I hesitate to see a unicameral legislature based entirely out of proportional representation. I feel that with a country as big as Alaska that you should have one body with equal geographic representation. I am not saying that we would be sticking to the four divisions as we have known them, but from the standpoint of economic areas based on widespread geographic locations, you would have something similar or comparable to the four divisions as far as districting for senate representation is concerned, so that is the primary reason for Alaska. Notwithstanding all the good arguments in favor of unicameralism which have been introduced by Mr. McNeese, I favor the bicameral system for the State of Alaska.

MCNEESE: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Rivers a question? Does he not consider this present group representative of the people of Alaska, our 55 Delegates to the Convention?

R. RIVERS: Yes, I do consider this group representative for the purposes of writing a constitution. There is no great diversity of policy to be considered. We are not appropriating money or taking anything away from the taxpayers. We are not trying to "slice the pie" a little thinner for one group or thicker for the other. I have every respect for the fine widespread representation that exists in this body.

KILCHER: Point of information. If I am right, I am of the impression that the public was also invited to take the stand on the issue tonight, or am I wrong?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I recall noting the story in the press, Mr. Kilcher. I don't know its source. I believe that if any member wishes to call on the public that he may ask for the privilege of the floor for that member of the public. Subject to correction, why that's the way I understand it.

KILCHER: In that spirit I would invite the public in general to do so. I have no personal acquaintances among them that I know would like to speak.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. Barr, this Committee of the Whole was called for the purpose of airing the views of the different delegates. This matter of the one or two-house legislature is the business of the Legislative Committee. Our different committees hold public hearings and invite the public to take part, and I believe that is the time the public should state their views, when the Legislative Committee holds a public hearing.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: Mr. Chairman, I may have to be corrected, but if I recall correctly when Mr. McCutcheon, the Chairman of the Committee that asked for this public hearing, he stated that the purpose was for the delegates and for the public to participate.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Egan.

EGAN: Mr. Chairman, in order to attempt to clear the situation, I would put a motion on the floor and that would be that if there is any member of the audience who would desire to be heard before this Committee of the Whole on this question, that he be granted the privilege of coming before us and stating his opinions if he so desires. I would ask unanimous consent.

V. RIVERS: I would object temporarily until we have heard the delegates express their opinions. I think we should not invite the public as a whole until after each member has had a chance to say what he has to say on this subject.

EGAN: Mr. Chairman, that would be acceptable, waiting until all the delegates who wish to speak on the subject have been heard.

DOOGAN: Second the motion.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Doogan, would you withhold your second for a moment? Is there further discussion from the membership? Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. Chairman, I rise to point out what appears to me to be an inconsistency (I may be wrong here) on the part of the people that support the unicameral legislature. I can't think of any way of organizing a unicameral legislature without by necessity diluting the area representation. I can see where they will get area representation coupled with population representation, but by nature I think it will reduce area representation over a two-house legislature. I wonder if those people, while advocating that dilution, will also demand of the United States Congress the seating of two Senators from Alaska which is purely on a basis of area representation. If they do, I think they would be inconsistent.

ARMSTRONG: I agree.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there further discussion from the delegates? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say a few words. In connection with Mr. McNeese's statement concerning the three states which at one time had unicameral legislatures, he also mentioned that at the present time Nebraska was the only state. He failed to mention that Nebraska has a non-partisan legislature and attempts have been made at various time to return the legislature to a bicameral system. You might be interested to know, and I believe many of you do know, that there have been attempts made to have the unicameral system in Alaska. In 1945, House Joint Memorial No. 12 was introduced by Representative Chris Henning. This was introduced on the 33rd day and of course was sent to the Committee on Elections, Election Returns and Mileage. It was reported out by the Committee the following day with a "do not pass" with one of the committee members not concurring. It was placed on the calendar then for a second reading. No one was interested enough in that House Joint Memorial to see that it was read or that action was taken on it until 17 days had elapsed. On the 51st day it was read for the second time. The rules were suspended, it was considered engrossed and was read for the third time and the question was asked -- "Shall the memorial pass?" and it failed. It failed by a narrow margin -- 11 to 12 and one absent.

Later in the day one of the representatives gave notice of reconsideration which was then taken up on the 52nd day, and during the night he was able to swing not only himself but another to the other side, and so the memorial passed. However, it was so late in the session that the Senate refused to accept it on a vote of three to thirteen. That was in 1945. In 1946, House Joint Memorial No. 4, also by Chris Henning, was introduced on the 13th day. It went to committee and reported out "do not pass", with three members of the committee, Stan McCutcheon, Andrew Hope and Mr. Taylor returning it "without recommendation." It went to second reading and was brought up for reading on the 19th day when there was a motion made to lay it on the table which carried eleven to nine and three absent. It was laid on the table. Absent at that time were Stanley McCutcheon, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Peterson, The following day the author moved to call the Memorial from the table, and the call was successful and then it was to be brought up on the 23rd of March for final consideration and second reading but it was delayed and not brought up until the 29th. At that time it was read the second time, the rules were suspended, it was considered engrossed, read the third time and the question asked, and it failed. Now I bring this out to show you that in '46 it failed in the House. In '45 it failed also, except that on a reconsideration vote it squeaked by. If someone were really interested in unicameral legislature it seems to me that the author at least would have seen to it that that memorial, since it had already come out of committee, would have been read. It was on the calendar. It would have been read and action would have been taken before it was too late to be received in the Senate without the necessary vote after the certain period when no bills or memorials could be received. I think that the most important consideration on this business of whether we are going to have a unicameral or bicameral legislature is whether we can get the approval of the citizens of Alaska and the members of Congress. Now Mr. Fischer has told us that we have been elected by the people. We are the people and that if we put in a unicameral system or any other system, that should be all right. We should accept it then as all right, but if that is the case, why are we putting the constitution before the people for approval? I believe this is not just something that is up to us entirely. I think we have to reckon with the fact that we must get approval of a unicameral legislature if that is what we put in the constitution and there is a question in my mind whether you can get that and whether you get it from the people of Alaska and Congress too, I am not sure, but I think we should be very careful. I feel very strongly about this, that we must have the constitution so good and so easy to get an approval on so that it will go through, and I hope that everyone will consider the importance of that. I think that if we do not go to Congress with some assurance that the unicameral legislature is going to work in Alaska, then we will find ourselves waiting, not to be the 49th state but the 50th state. The legislature in Nebraska being a non-partisan legislature, is no criterion for success of the unicameral legislature in Alaska. We have a two-party system here. Since coming to the Constitutional Convention I recognize that there is even a third party on the way, and so with a three party or two party strong system in a unicameral legislature, we cannot say because it is successful in Nebraska, it will be successful here. Mr. Hinckel thinks we would get better representation under the unicameral system. I hardly think that is an argument for the unicameral system. I believe that the apportionment of delegates to the Senate and House of Representatives in the new State can be worked out so that all the areas will be properly represented. I can't go along with many of the arguments that Mr. McNees stated. He would have you think that he has gone through a legislative session in both the House and the Senate, that it is very easy to get a bill through the House and the Senate, and I would grant you that that might be easy if you had a very simple bill such as the bill which was passed in this last session to designate Marie Drake's "Alaska Flag as the song for Alaska. However, in the question of introducing a bill on which there is a great deal of question and the bill squeaks through one house on a majority of one, it is not as easy as he has made it appear. I think it is very important that where there is division of opinion that we should have the check of the other house. If you have a wide difference in a single house, even though those representatives were all elected by the people of the state, you would still have, maybe just one person throwing the bill into an act -- he tells you that the legislators will have greater prestige and dignity, there would be more distinguished legislators, more effective legislation, closer relationship between the legislature and the executive. It would reduce lobbying, it would facilitate publication or newspaper printing and save moneywise. How can he say that this is so? How does he know that we will have more distinguished representatives? How can he say that it will be more effective? We will we have a two-party house, if it is unicameral and we cannot go by and base it on the Nebraska legislature. I have a number of other things here that I would like to mention. There was something about better legislation but as I said before, I don't know how they figure they can have better legislation on the unicameral system. If our procedure under a two-house is not good enough, it is our own fault and it is our business to see that our legislators are doing a better job than they are. As I mentioned the other night, we are a republican form of government, and operating under democratic principles and under the republican form of government you have a system of checks and balances which gives us our executive, judiciary and the legislative branches. It is a system that has been in effect for centuries, and I feel with this experience that we should go along rather than to go on the untried unicameral system for which we have absolutely no basis of success.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I have listened with a good deal of interest to the unicameral comments. When I came to this Convention I did not come here with any direction from the people whom I knew in our home country, to give deep consideration to unicameralism. I saw no one run on any ticket in which they came out and strongly advocated that we should have a unicameral legislature. I happen to know that there were three people in the Territory who advocated unicameralism and who were candidates for delegates and all three of these people were defeated. They are not here with us tonight. We have no mandate that says that we should give deep consideration or go to a unicameral type of legislature. I was a member of the Statehood Committee, and as such I am a great believer in presenting to the delegates all of the facts insofar as we possibly could. I was a strong advocate of the idea that we get the best theory that we could possibly get and that that theory then be presented to us in a form such that it was unbiased, present the theory from both sides of view, and we have done so with the work of the PAS. They have presented you as nearly as possible a balanced opinion on the questions that would come to this Convention. Along with that I have been a strong advocate, as you all know, of having with us the best theory we can get in the way of personal consultants. I want that theory. I want to know what the theorist thinks is the very best for us and then from that point we must take a hold and apply the long experience, the practical approach and the touch that we know that is best for the people of Alaska. We must apply the common sense touch that will be the answer to the problems of government for our people here. I have heard it said tonight by one of the delegates that it was not our problem to answer back to the people, or words to that effect, in regards to what we did here. We were their elected representatives and as such, were the people. However, I feel differently than that. I feel we are answerable to the people, and I feel we should come up with something that we know is not only the best for us and the best for them and also satisfactory and acceptable to them. I just wanted to read a little bit from the comments of the PAS in their handbook to us on this subject. On the one line they say, "The advocates of unicameralism can make, on paper at least, a very reasonable case." I want to read you this summary now of the two types of legislature. "There are no inherent reasons why either sort of legislature cannot work satisfactorily. The theoretical case for the unicameral body is good, yet only one state has adopted this form and no more are likely to in the near future, unless Alaska chooses the unconventional but not unprecedented course. As Dr. Graves observes, the opinions of . the people who ought to know vary widely, in fact they are often diametrically opposite. A large majority of political scientists favor unicameralism while an overwhelming majority of persons with actual legislative experience are opposed to it. Delegates to the Convnetion can weigh arguments, on the one side -- tradition, experience, the possibility of the double check, on the other side -- simplicity economy, clear responsibility." I want to go into that matter just a little bit. We have had in the United States, as you know, through all history, with the exception of the first three states, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Georgia, the bicameral type of legislation, and on the other hand in Canada you have provinces all of which have unicameral legislature except the one of Quebec. Quebec has some 594,000 square miles, is the largest of the provinces and very similar to Alaska. However, I want to say that in Canada they did not have the separation of the legislative and executive powers. They have the governor general appointed by the Crown. The Crown appoints in each province a lieutenant governor. The lieutenant governor then is the governor of that particular province. They elect the representatives to their one house. From that one house then is chosen what is called the cabinet. The cabinet sits as the year around executives under the lieutenant governor. You really always have sitting a second legislature in the form of that cabinet who are from among the elected representatives in the one-house system. It is in no way comparable in my opinion to the problems of government in the United States. We have had a good chance to observe in the United States three states which have chosen to go from unicameralism to bicameralism -- Vermont, Pennsylvania, and Georgia. Now it is my opinion we were told otherwise by another delegate tonight -- it is my opinion that in all probability those states went from unicameralism to bicameralism at a time when communications were slow, travel was difficult. It is my opinion that the people in those states did not feel they had the proper check and balance. I have been in the legislature a number of times, as many of you know. It has been my experience that even though after careful weighing, careful consideration, the hearing of all arguments by each house or by the first house that handled a bill, that many times after that measure had passed the first house, that there were voices heard from different parts of the Territory, there were different issues brought into the picture, that radically changed the condition and the situation of the thinking, even of the people in one house who had sometimes passed the bill. I have had men come to me from one house and say "we did not find this out; we did not know this was something that affected the First Division, the Third Division, the Fourth Division; we did not have their voice so for that reason we wish you would change this matter in the Senate." I have had the same thing happen in the Senate where they did not have the complete details. Some people might say that we have a similarity between a one-house legislature and a city council. I want you to realize that in a city council, the people that the city council is serving are people living within a radius of perhaps five or ten miles. A city council sits every week. People can come to the city council and express their opposition, and they do frequently.

The next week if they haven't had their voice heard they can raise their voice again, but that does not compare to handling the area of a state as large as ours would be, 684,000 square miles, one-third of the area of the whole United States. It seems to me we must have this additional check and balance of the two house system in order to get a proper voice from the people in the more remote areas. I feel sure that the people who espouse this matter of a unicameral house are sincere. I feel certain by that they are honest, but it says here that the practical men in politics realize that the two-house system best serves the American system. It's so because in Canada your people are a different type of thinking people. They are not the driving, aggressive, energetic people, that we have in the United States, in many ways. At least that should be true in the matter of forcing legislation through their government. They don't pass as many laws, they don't seem to have as many lobbyists. We know it's a fact that our government

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I'm sorry Mr. Rivers, I don't like to break in on you but the stenotypist is having a little difficulty. May we call a five-minute recess while the machine cools off and your time stands still?

RECESS

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The Convention will come to order. On recessing Mr. Barr asked that unanimous consent be allowed Mr. Rivers to extend his time two minutes for the interruption of trend of thought. Without objection, was there an objection?

V. FISCHER: I would like to object for the sake of saying this has given Mr. Rivers more chance to think. (Laughter) I withdraw my objection.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there objection? Without objections, so ordered.

V. RIVERS: I want to say then I have watched this Territory prepare for statehood and in my small way have been a part in helping it prepare for statehood for many years. I want to say briefly that after the big depression of the '30's, Alaska was in dire circumstances. We had elected Tony Dimond to office and his first move, of course, was to try with the administration to help get a raise in the price of gold. We got it. The next thing, of course, was to try and stabilize and get temporary employment for people who were unemployed. That came through, and it became evident that Alaska was geographically very strategic and a strong defense program was organized. But at that time the military coming into Alaska saw the undeveloped condition of the Territory, and at that time it became more and more evident we should have a well developed economy functioning normally in order to have the best defense. It seemed only logical to get such an economy functioning normally that we should have a state government, and as far back as '37 we talked about such things and began to prepare for it. And under the two-house legislature which we had, 16 members in the Senate and 24 in the House, it was changed, pardon me, in '41. However, under that we passed many things. First came Social Security, welfare department, public health. We instituted and established a highway patrol which was to be the nucleus of the state police. It was told us by members of one of the congressional hearings that we did not have a firm revenue program. Under our system of legislation we passed a firm revenue program. We have no bonded indebtedness. We have money in the treasury. We are paying our bills. Those things have all been done with our two-house legislature, and I for one want to say that it has worked successfully in the Territory of Alaska. I also want to concede that there are areas in which there should be better geographic representation. I think that is one of our duties here to get proper proportioning in the matter of representation in this legislature when we set up this constitution. I just want to read you again though one line here, but before I do I want to say that in this Constitutional Convention and in this constitution we draft, we have many hours of work by many people. We have many private dollars invested on trips to Washington and hearings before Congress. We have at stake here some $300,000 of taxpayers' money who want to see us come up with a constitution which is acceptable, not only to the people of Alaska, but also to the members of Congress." I want to read a line to you again which I read before: An overwhelming majority of persons with actual legislative experience are opposed to it. (Meaning the unicameral legislature). Now remember that if those men are opposed to it, the practical men with practical experience, those are the men who are going to have to approve the constitution for the State of Alaska and grant us statehood when it comes before Congress. I want to say again that I believe the people here are all honest and all sincere. Those who are favoring unicameralism -- I believe they are sincere in their beliefs, but I believe it is up to us and believe that if we did not adopt a bicameral legislature that we would be guilty of a great error in judgment, and I want to say that I hope and I will work hard for and continue to work hard for the establishment of the bicameral legislature or the two-house system of representation because I think for an area this large, where transportation and communications are apt to be delayed, it is the best system for Alaska. It has also proven to be, with our energetic, fast-moving, hard-pushing American people, I think it has also proven to be best for the states, or there would not be 47 states using it today. (Applause)

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to have permission to clarify a statement I previously made. Apparently it is being misunderstood or misinterpreted.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: You may proceed, Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I said before that among other things that we, the 55 delegates are the people. I did not mean in the least to imply that since we are the people that we are above the people, that we are not answerable to the people. What I meant to say is that we should not put ourselves in a separate category from the 200,000 Alaskans who sent us here. They are as intelligent as we are. If something makes sense to us, it will make sense to them, and therefore, we should not keep talking about them as something apart from us, something a group that we aren't sure will understand what we are talking about. In other words, what I meant to say was that as representatives, we reflect the thinking of Alaska. Certainly what we come up with is subject to a referendum approval. There is no question about that, and certainly we are answerable to the people.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Miss Awes.

AWES: I would like to make just a few remarks prompted by statements made this evening.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: You may proceed.

AWES: We just had read to us the portion of the summary of the considerations of the two methods of two types of legislatures. I would like to fill out the picture by reading the last two sentences of that summary. Alaska's relatively small population and the economy and simplicity of the unicameral legislature seem to argue in the favor of a single house. On the other hand, the apparent satisfaction with the two-house system in the Territorial legislature makes any departure from tradition difficult." That again places the final argument in favor of the two-house system on the basis of tradition. It seems to me that most arguments in favor of the two-house system so end. Now I am not opposed to tradition as tradition. However, I do not think we should follow it blindly but ever so often we should reconsider tradition in the light of present-day conditions. I did not run on the platform of the unicameral legislature. However, I did run on the platform that this body should seriously consider the unicameral legislature before deciding on which form it should adopt. As you can see, I was not defeated by running on that platform. There has been much talk tonight as to what the people want and putting in what the people want. I agree that we are here as representatives of the people, but I believe the people elected us to draft the best possible constitution. We have an opportunity that Alaskans have probably never had before, in our opportunity to study the two types of legislature. I think we have the obligation to do that and to adopt the legislature we conclude is the best type, and if those reasons are sufficient to convince us, they will probably be sufficient to convince the people, if adequately presented to them.

HINCKEL: I have already spoken. May I speak again.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: You have not used your time, Mr. Hinckel. I believe you have several minutes left.

HINCKEL: I stated before I am on the Legislative Committee, and I ran for this body not on any particular platform of one type house or the other, but I did tell the people that I would try to see they got the best type of constitution that we were able to write for them. And I think that, as Miss Awes more ably stated, well in other words I concur with most of the things she said. I think there are some things we have forgotten on the apportionment. I know that from attending the committee meetings I not only attended our own meetings but I attended a lot of the other meetings, that it is quite possible to apportion the legislature so we will have better representation with a single house than we could hope to have with both. That is merely my opinion. The main thing I wanted to say when I got up this time was the constitution must be written for one type of house or the other, and the Committee in discussing it felt that the time to decide that was now. It is my opinion that a lot of the state legislatures, had I been sitting on them, I would have gone along with them just exactly the way they did and refused to change because they already had everything else set up for it. But the experts that have written all the data that has been submitted, both for our own and for the Hawaii constitution, they all tell us that the one-house system is the best but usually go back to the same answer that Miss Awes stated -- that it is a tradition that we have the other kind. If we are going to have two houses, why now is the time we have to know it because if we write a constitution for one house and then attempt to change to two, we are going to have to have a constitutional convention and rewrite the whole thing and make it work and vice versa. If we write it for the two, and then want to change to a one because all of a sudden everybody else thinks it better too and they all start changing, we are going to have to tear ourselves all apart and put it together again. It was the concensus of opinion in the Committee that those are things we ought to find out now so as to stop wasting time and get things rolling in all the committees. That is the reason that I have spoken in favor of it as poorly as I have done, but that was my idea in working for it that I think it should be considered very thoroughly, and if we are going to consider it at all, now is the time to do it and not later on.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: If the Chair may make an observation, Mr. Hinckel, I think your point is well taken in that it represents the thinking of the body in resolving itself into a Committee of the Whole because of the inter-relationship of the two questions. Is there further discussion? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I just wanted to add a little historical footnote to the remarks that Mrs. Sweeney made about the efforts to secure a referendum on the matter of a unicameral legislature. I am a little older than Mrs. Sweeney and I have probably been watching legislatures a little longer, but way back yonder in the '30's there were two attempts made to pass a referendum providing for a unicameral legislature. There was also a bill introduced to provide for a unicameral legislature, and it was killed in the House, not in the Senate, but in the House. Both of the bills providing for referenda on the matter -- one in one session and one the next session, were likewise killed, and it is my recollection that they were killed in the House and not in the Senate, so that the legislature of Alaska itself has written a considerable volume of history in regard to the unicameral legislature. I think Mr. Fischer's statement of comparison with the value of committee work as applied to this Convention is probably a little bit premature. His suggestion that it is working so well here might also have a footnote in a day or two when some of these committee reports are turned loose on the floor. I hope he will not have a rude awakening at that time. There is little to say as far as I am concerned in regard to the merits of unicameral or bicameral houses. I think the time to say it is on the floor when we finally are going to vote on this measure, but I do think that it is advisable that everybody here stand up and be counted on how they stand on the matter at the present time, so that the committees may have some idea on what sort of report to bring out in regard to that particular angle of their work, and I am perfectly willing to tell the world here and now and next week also, that I favor the bicameral system.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Egan -- if I may correct the Chair and recognize Mr. Barr. While I had recognized Mr. Barr earlier, no time was charged against him.

BARR: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Egan for the time being.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Egan.

EGAN: Mr. Chairman, I know that each delegate who is in favor of the unicameral system is absolutely sincere. I have talked to every one of those people who have spoken on that subject so far, and it has occurred to me and been my observation in my conversations with those delegates that one of their chief worries and one of their chief reasons for being for the unicameral system is that there has been a fear in their minds because of the past situation that has existed in Alaska. Now, I am absolutely certain that we are coming out of this Convention and are going to write into the constitution that comes out of this Convention, an apportionment feature in the constitution that will be accepted by, if not all the delegates, by almost all the delegates in the Convention and will be adopted into the constitution that it will be as fair an apportionment as is humanly possible to come up with at this time. I would like to point out that in Alaska the trouble has been, and I think the trouble that has caused most of these fears and most of the support for the unicameral system has been that we have not even had a bicameral system of legislative apportionment in Alaska. We have had a running-wild system, you might say, both in the makeup of the Territorial Senate and the makeup of the Territorial House. Our citizens here have not had the opportunity to view, so far as their Territorial government is concerned, a bicameral system of legislative bodies in action, and I feel very strongly, personally that at this time it would be unwise to adopt the unicameral form of government. We know that our United States has become the freest, the fairest and the greatest nation on earth under the bicameral system, and I hope that this Convention will continue that form of legislative government.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. Chairman, I would ask the Chair to give me a warning about a minute before my time is up, as I don't want to leave a thought or a participle dangling in mid-air. I will submit to you that the ideal system for a legislature is the unicameral or one-house legislature, and that is just exactly what is wrong with it. It is an ideal. It is backed by theorists who have never had any experience in the practical applications of their theories. The unicameral system would work very well if human beings ceased to be human, if every voter got out and voted and every voter was aware of what he was voting for and acquainted with the candidates and if every elected man that was a member of that legislature were a statesman, then it would work, but unfortunately human beings are human. Now, I would like to give you a couple of illustrations of why we should have two houses. You have heard many times that our American system of government is based on checks and balances. It is in our present legislature. There are three forms of government to serve as a check on each other, and we have courts for that purpose -- we even have auditors, examiners and erasers on lead pencils for that reason. Now in the past I have served in the legislature, and I have seen the time I was very thankful we had two houses. I will give you two examples. The first one most of you are acquainted with, so I will not go into details on that. That was the time the House passed a so-called "luxury tax" which in effect really was a sales tax. It was passed by a large majority in the House. They thought it was a good tax and they were concerned with raising more tax revenues. It was needed, I will grant you that. They were immediately flooded with telegrams and letters from everywhere protesting this tax, but meanwhile it had gone to the Senate and was in the taxation committee in the Senate. I doubt it would have passed the Senate even before the protest came in, but it failed in the Senate, and I have never seen anyone more thankful for two houses than all the members of that House of Representatives. The Senate really got them off the hook. Now, I will reverse the case. In the Senate there was a member who was an experienced legislator and a well-respected lawyer in the Territory. He submitted a bill which was a fairly complicated one, that was designed for a very good purpose, but during the debate in the Senate it was brought out that if one section of that bill was interpreted a certain way it would stop all the placer mining in the Territory, or at least start litigation in that direction. That bill passed the Senate and went to the House, but by this time the author of the bill was greatly concerned. He was afraid he would not be able to go home and face his constituents because it was a mining division that he came from, so he contacted certain members of the House and it was amended in the House to take that possibility out, that there would be any harm done or restriction on placer mining, and that bill is now a law, and the mining fraternity is still in existence and still doing business. That was through an oversight which is a very likely thing in a long and complicated bill, and it was corrected in the House. I have seen many other examples but those are two. We should stick to the system of checks and balances. I want to say that I was just as concerned as Mr. Hinckel here with the lack of representation from the outlying districts. I have been in more outlying districts perhaps than Mr. Hinckel. I have spent all my life in Alaska. I know they would like to be represented. I know there are able men who are willing to represent them. The reason they don't is because they can't be elected. We only have four election districts, the four judicial divisions and each one has a large center of population. But a unicameral or bicameral legislature does not cure that problem at all. The only thing that will cure that is the redistricting for the election and reapportionment. No matter what form of house we have, if the electors in a certain outlying district have a chance to vote for their man, they will get representation. Mr. Rivers here said that this body very well represented the people. I grant you it does, it represents the people a great deal better than the legislature, and why -because the Territory was redistricted for the election that sent us here. Now Mr. Fischer here has studied this matter from books, but there are a few things he does not seem to realize, even says that everything in a unicameral legislature will be brought out in the open and debated on the floor. He seems to think there will be no committees or at least no committees behind closed doors. That is a system that has been in existence for 170 years in all state legislatures and in the Congress of the United States. There is a reason for it because they can do their business better. They are not afraid of what you think of them for what they do. They are afraid testimony might come up that will hurt some outsider and I have seen that happen in committee right here. When we were talking about former governors, things were said about former governors that brought up points that we wanted to bring out to clinch an argument. That could not be done in the public. We are operating under a republican form of government. The people delegate their authority to members of the legislature and they trust those members of the legislature to do their business for them and do it the best way possible, which sometimes should not be open to the public. It is said that the State of Nebraska, the one state that has a unicameral legislature which works very well. I am not well acquainted with Nebraska. Very likely it does, but a state more unlike Alaska could not have been pointed out. The geography is different, the terrain is different, the people are different. We have different races up here, different industries, most of the people in Nebraska are farmers or cattle raisers. They are all very conservative and while every Alaskan that I ever met was a distinct individual. Also it was brought up that it works in Canada and Europe. Well, it probably does. Our forefathers came to this country to get away from the European system of government. Don't let us import it to Alaska. Now it was said also that the closer relationship could be had between the governor and a unicameral legislature. I believe that is so, especially if the governor was trying to control them and also perhaps if the governor was of the opposite political faith then the majority of the legislature there would be more wrangling, more confusion and less done. A one-house legislature also might be more easily controlled by a special interest group or lobbyists. It would be very difficult to control two houses. Now, when we are granted statehood, we are going to launch our ship of state on her maiden voyage -- an untried ship with an untried crew. What system of navigation shall we use? Shall we try the old tried and true system that has steered 47 states through these past years or shall we try a new system advanced by theorists that has no system of checks and balances and one in which we would not know where we are going? I don't believe that the people of Alaska would want to try that. It is too early in the game when we are starting our state, and we want everything to work and work properly.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, what I have to say will be very brief, but I want to get up, as Mrs. Hermann suggested, to be counted. I have expressed my view to quite a number of delegates here upon my arrival. Much to my surprise this has been a primary question in this Convention, and I am glad we gathered here tonight to try to arrive at some conclusions and with that thought in mind I wish to offer my conclusions tonight.

I gather from what has been said here, the primary concern is the true representation of all areas, and I can sympathize with Mr. Hinckel, because I am more or less representing people of this type. However, I made it very plain when I was approached on this topic that I would never obstruct any constructive move. I am here to see that if I can contribute, in my own little way, to draw up a constitution acceptable to the people of the Territory. I might add, friends, that I worked mighty hard for statehood of Alaska and I'm still plugging. My area is limited, but there are voters there too. They are very much concerned, and I think it is only fair that they should have a voice in the state of Alaska, and I am very much encouraged after I listened to two or three speakers here tonight. Perhaps there will be reapportionment. I think that is the solution. My mind has been open on this thing and it is just about made up tonight. If that angle is thrashed out, I am sure they will forget about everything else. We will go back to the two-house system. That is all I have to offer.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, I am on the fence on this proposition, so as not to frustrate the team who are checking off one side or the other, I lean toward bicameralism, but I have the feeling that a much better case can be made by more people for unicameralism than has been made tonight. I have just jotted down a few notes here that I would like to go over at random with a preface that I am not the one to make the case for unicameralism. I don't know enough about it. But in the two examples given by Mr. Barr, as to the legislature, it seems to me, the one in regard to the placer mining bill and the other the luxury tax, it seems to me it could be argued equally well that if there had been a one-house legislature in those two instances it would not have come to pass. I have heard that argued before here by people who were in the legislature at the time and particularly in the case of the luxury tax -- that that was designed to jar something loose from the other house. That makes sense to me. In the other case of a bill slipping through with a mistake in it, I think it might be argued equally well that if you had the one-house legislature, it would tend to make that one house considerably more careful in what it does than would be the case with the two-house legislature. Each member would be well aware his action is final and not subject to revision or review by another house. In that same vein I think it is equally logical to argue that when you give a person, properly qualified, additional responsibilities you generally get a better performance, a better qualified person running for the office or applying for the job. We have heard a good deal on the subject of representation. I don't know how you can get better representation than you would have in a one-house legislature. The point has been brought up that the lower house in a two-house legislature is generally representative of the people and the upper house, representative of areas. I am not sure that that is too good an argument for maintaining two houses. It seems to me that one of our primary problems in Alaska in the past has been the problem of sectionalism. I wonder if in having a single house we might not tend to reduce that problem, make each member of a one-house in Alaska more conscious of the fact that he represents all of the Territory. In this case I submit that a system of checks and balances could equally well be called a "deadlock system". If one house represents the people and the other house represents areas and you have an irreconcilable problem, you get nowhere. I am not particularly impressed by the argument either, as to tradition. This will probably startle some of my friends. There is always friction when you suggest a change. There is always resistance to change. I think it has been made amply clear here the reason why there has been resistance to change in this particular matter. I think it is a rare case indeed when a body votes to do away with itself or to radically change its form, and it has been shown to my satisfaction that the death of most of the one-house unicameral bills that have been introduced, can be laid at the door of the Senate, which would be abolished were you to have one house. Also, I think we sometimes make a mistake of viewing a new idea in the context of the old. By that I mean that merely because certain procedures have been followed in the past with a certain system, we should not assume that the same rules, same customs, same reactions to problems, are going to apply in the future in the new system. I think that is a mistake often made. These are just random thoughts. The last one -- I think it would be very proper for us, should we decide to stick with the two-house system, to provide for an automatic referendum at some stated time or stated intervals so the matter could be brought up before the people. I think the reason for that is amply clear again, because once you start out with a two-house system you are never going to change it except by vote of the people. The legislature itself is not going to vote. Conversely, perhaps if we should decide on a one-house system, some of the fears of the people who don't like to experiment could be allayed by a similar provision to submitting the one-house legislature to a referendum after a stated interval of years. Two arguments given by one of the proponents of unicameralism impressed me as possibly worthy of further amplification. If they could do so I would like to have it. One of them was that a one-house legislature tends to reduce the effectiveness of lobbyists. I would like to have that amplified if that is possible. Secondly, that a one-house legislature tends to reduce the log jam of bills that plagues all legislatures at the last minute. I think those are two problems that have been very much before us here in Alaska in the past and if it can be shown that a unicameral legislature would eliminate or substantially reduce those problems, I think we should give it careful attention.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman, I did not intend to address this body tonight, but I feel that I am compelled to speak, probably because we have such an attentive audience is another compelling factor. To begin with, as I recall the campaign of all of the delegates about the general nature of their campaigning was that the constitution should be clear, concise, short, confine itself to fundamentals. I don't recall even one candidate addressing any particular remarks to bicameral and unicameral. I got the impression that we were going to have a bicameral house, and I frankly did not give it much thought until Mr. McNees talked to me several times. My thought is that if we went ahead and adopted a unicameral house, we will be taking the voters of Alaska by surprise. I mean this was a nonparty election and I think we would be more or less slipping the people a gimmick which they did not expect. Then we are going to have the burden, and I don't care how fine this new system is, we are going to have the burden of selling this new idea to the people of Alaska, and I don't think it will do us any good. I think it will put an additional burden on the ratification of the constitution. I want to say a few things about the evils of the two houses. Mr. McNealy said that he was thankful that we had a Senate. I can recall on several occasions that I would have leaped to an opportunity to abolish the Senate during the last session of the legislature. I disagree with Mr. McNealy in that one particular. I think I should for the purpose of the public, clarify this luxury tax, this progressive fish tax and this property tax. Now this is a result of a conflict which developed between the two houses, and that is the most controlling and compelling argument that I see for the unicameral house. It will make it awfully difficult for the lobbyists to get control of the one house. If it was not for the fact that we hadn't put this idea to the people beforehand, I would vote for the unicameral house. The only reason I am not going to vote for it is that I think we are taking the people by surprise. It puts an additional burden on us to sell the constitution. Now, back to this luxury tax, this progressive fish tax and property tax, the idea of the House was to get a progressive fish tax or property tax. We figured we would put the luxury tax through and we were hoping that the Senate rather than tax the individual Alaskan, would tax the traps. I have only been in one session of the legislature, but the thing that shocked me and something I was never aware of was when I was in the halls there in Juneau and I observed a lobbyist by the name of Mr. Gilmore writing amendments on House bills. Right then I said if we could do away with that Senate, I am for it. Now I would be for the unicameral house except I think we are taking the people of Alaska by surprise and it is not fair to the people of Alaska but Mr. McNees certainly convinced me with the lobby argument.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: Mr. Chairman, I have sat here and listened with a great deal of interest to the statements pro and con for the one-house and two-house legislature. Personally, I am in favor of a two-house legislature, and Delegate Barr brought to my attention a happening in favor of the two-house. I had presented a health bill in '45, ten years ago, and in that it had to do with the pollution of the streams of Alaska. It was a health bill, and we passed it, not thinking, not realizing the danger that might happen to the mining industry throughout the Territory of Alaska. After that bill had passed the Senate and went to the House, my attention was drawn to that dangerous provision in that bill, had it passed. I immediately contacted the committee in the House and presented the fact that if they did not amend that bill to protect the mining industry of the Territory of Alaska, 90 percent of all the mines in the Territory of Alaska would be shut down. It gave us that time to reconsider that, brought to our attention. It was inadvertently on the part of the drafters of that bill that it would affect one industry in Alaska. Mr. Barr brought that to my attention. I had forgotten it. Now, the question of one-house or two-house. We have if we pass the one-house proposition and have that in our constitution and present that to the Territory of Alaska for the voters to ratify, we have two hurdles to make. We have got to make that hurdle and then that bill of the constitution is sent on to the Congress of the United States. One state in the United States is practicing the one-house proposition. Each state is given two Senators throughout the states. What will they think of us if we present this constitution to the Congress of the United States? Will we make that hurdle? Can we sell our constitution under those conditions? Those gentlemen in Congress of the United States have been practicing under the proposition of the old tradition of a two-house legislature. Shall we break that strong thread of tradition with admission of our constitution for the coming state of Alaska? I say no, and I am very much in favor of a two-house legislature.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Nolan.

NOLAN: Mr. Chairman, I am for the bicameral system. Now you have just heard an argument by Delegate Buckalew that it would probably be easier to control lobbyists under a one-house system. I have served in both houses over quite a few years, and if Mr. Buckalew had been down there a few years ago he would have seen a lobbyist passing notes in the House. Now I have found in my terms in the House and the Senate, that there has never been a time that the lobbyists have been able to control both houses.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Stewart.

STEWART: Mr. Chairman, I am in a position to make an observation or two on that myself. I have attended nearly every session of the legislature since the first and often. Session after session I have seen measures that were for the benefit of the people as a whole pass through the House with a heavy majority, come up to the Senate, which in the earlier days had eight members, two of those members were employees of one large mining company, one of them their chief attorney. If those two men alone with one other could persuade a fourth person to join them, they would kill any beneficial legislation for the benefit of the whole people by producing a tie. I have seen that happen over and over again. I don't know that the unicameral system is the cure for that. It may be that with better representation from all the districts those things can be controlled, but the history of the past I think demonstrates that something should be done to eliminate that, not control it but eliminate it. It may be that with the representation of the apportionment being provided in a way that will give representation from all districts in a fairer way. It may be also that having more frequent sessions of the legislature so that measures originating at one session cannot be passed on finally but held over between two sessions, and thereby giving a chance for the people to express themselves on what has gone on in the first session. That may help, but anything we can do to eliminate the painful effects of the lobbying I have seen in the legislature ever since I have been here, I am for.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Stewart, did not that situation improve when they enlarged the Senate to 16 members?

STEWART: To a degree.

R. RIVERS: Do you think that if we had a larger Senate so that not such a small group of people could cause a tie, that that would minimize the lobby effect?

STEWART: It might improve it, I wouldn't say that it would eliminate it. I think to eliminate it, some means should be provided whereby the people throughout the Territory, maybe that's possible now with the communications the way they are, let the people know what is going on in those halls, the way we who live in Juneau and attend the legislature observe.

R. RIVERS: I would like to observe, Mr. Chairman, that one of the historic reasons for increasing the Territorial Senate was that that closeknit group of eight men could kill any measure coming up from the House was the reason for increasing the Territorial Senate to 16 members.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it seems to me that Mr. Rivers' observation is a perfectly good answer to Mr. Stewart's objections of the bicameral system on the ground that it is too easily controlled by lobbyists. Certainly with the question of a proper proportionment being once settled by this Convention, then I think we have found the answer that is necessary to give every person in Alaska the proper representation in the legislature. I am unqualifiedly in favor of the bicameral system. I was in the House when in 1945 and '46, when these matters were before us by way of a joint memorial. I recall distinctly that I voted against those projects at that time, and I think the record will substantiate that, and I certainly feel no differently today, or I feel no differently after having listened to all the arguments here tonight. Mr. McNees argues that the unicameral system would still provide us with the so-called checks and balances and he says by way of illustrating that that we would have the supreme court to check us on faulty legislation. However, he did not point out that the supreme court rules, not on wise legislation, but only on illegal legislation. And besides that, every once in awhile the supreme court can make a mistake. In addition, he argues the check of the veto power. I have seen many times the veto power overridden by the legislature, and when it can be overridden by two houses with a two-thirds vote in each house, it certainly stands to reason it could be overridden in one house. So the two checks and balances he talks about do not seem to be sound. He made some reference, or rather comparison, to the one-house system with our courts. Well, everybody has his day in court, he gets a fair hearing, and if he does not like it he has an appeal. That is exactly the same as the Senate. This litigant appeals to the supreme court. The House perhaps has a bill that is not proper and the appeal is taken to the Senate and vice versa, so I don't believe there is any comparison between the unicameral system and the court system. He made reference to the fact that many countries have the unicameral system. He did not mention the name of a single country that I would trade for the United States of America, and he made reference to the fact that this bicameral system was, as he put it, "an illogical procedure" and yet it seems to me that that is not a very tenuous argument because if this bicameral system is such an illogical procedure, then the United States of America acting under that system for 175 or odd years could never have reached its present position of economic, political and military strength. I am unalterably opposed to the unicameral system. I believe that if we are going to keep faith with the people who sent us here to write the constitution that we should write it on the basis that was set out in the federal Constitution so many years ago so wisely by 55 men.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. Chairman, I don't like to hear myself misquoted as I have two or three times tonight. I am going to pass over most of them but this latest one I am going to have to take up. I am going to quote directly as I quoted before. I referred very closely to my notes tonight due to the time limitation that was politically pulled on me here, but my quotation, Mr. Johnson, was this: "If the legislature exceeded its constitutional authority in the enactment of any law, it would be set aside by the supreme court." I did not say a supreme court would pass upon the measure of a good bill or a bad bill. I have another point I would like to make if no one else would desire the floor right now.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: You may have the floor, Mr. McNeese.

MCNEESE: Thank you. Mr. Barrie White asked a question awhile ago about control of the lobbying in a one-house legislature as compared to that in the bicameral legislature. There are six points at which the lobbyist can gain very effective control in the two-house system. First, and I pointed that out rather graphically and spent a little time on it, the conference committee where he may gain control. We know session after session of the legislature where there is the constant battle over who is going to be speaker of the House. Why does that battle take place? It is a jockeying for position, so to speak, and don't think the lobbyists don't have their hands in that. Control of the election of the speaker is an important point. By control of the Senate at large, which Mr. Stewart pointed out here awhile ago, or by control of the House, the larger body and the hardest one to control, or getting down basically, if he can control the speaker of the House or the presiding officer of the Senate he might be in a position as a lobbyist, to name those two members to that conference committee from either the House or the Senate. If he only named those two he would have control of the conference committee. That I think is the important point to make here is that we have a conference committee squeezed in between two houses where everything is out of sight and where you can get at one, two or three men to maintain very, very effective control. If I were to make a rebuttal it would be this -- there is a committee known as the Committee of State Government made up of a very fine list of the top political scientists, statesmen, in our nation today, and those men recognize, as I do, the beauty of the theory of the unicameral system. I too feel the people of Alaska sent us here to represent them. I knew when I took hold of this issue that I was representing a minority group, but I believe that minority group should have a right to be heard. I got a very good hearing tonight and I am very pleased with it. I know that during the course of these many discussions we have had, there have been some of you won over but there have been a lot more of you have modified your thinking. During the course of the last 20 years or better, paralleling the growth or the interest, the information so to speak, of the unicameralistic theory of thought has been a group that I think is to be reckoned with, and that is your Legislative Council. Today there are 35 states of the 48 that have active legislative councils. Prior to Nebraska switching to the unicameral system in 1937, there was a total of two legislative councils in the nation. Today there are 35. If you could have traced, as I did, over a period of many weeks running into months, the story that I painted to you tonight of the introduction of bills in favor of unicameralism and how they died, you would have seen this parallelism that I would like to draw your attention to tonight, and that is that prior to 1943 now we had 10 legislative councils. Today there are 35. Since the war ended there has been a very, very great increase in it and primarily that increase has been in the interest of more efficient government. The legislative council is a policy-making group. The usual size of the group -- we have to take a median number -- that median number across the nation as a whole is 18. That is hardly a fair number to reckon with because many states make the provision that every member of their legislature is on that legislative council. But the main thinking behind the idea of the legislative council is that here is a board of experts that sits through the year or meets quarterly, at least much more frequently than your biannual sessions of your legislature. There is a great trend of thought here on the present conference floor for an annual session, and I would not be at all surprised to see it come up with an annual session and more easily called special sessions because we must survey our laws constantly. We must introduce new laws constantly. We must revise laws constantly. The general policy of these legislative councils across the nation is that they meet not less than four times a year, some of them meet in continuous sessions. We have here in the Territory a Legislative Council that is very active and very fine, but the point I want to make and stress particularly is the fact that with the growth of the legislative council, we have a greater interest, greater participation judged primarily by the number of bills introduced in the unicameral system. I might say there has been only one state ever to repeal their legislative council. The principal thing that I think stands out in my thinking on this is that in a one-house system you have immediate reflection of how your public is going to react, how they feel, and if we have an annual session of our legislature meet annually instead of biannually as we have in the past, you are going to see that reflected in the voting, and in time it will give you a house that truly represents your people to the very best of their ability. I don't think I would have anything more to say except this -- that if 28 people, which is the number it will take to swing this issue one way or the other, go for a bicameral session, which I probably might weaken my own cause by saying that, I rather think that is the trend that will take place, but if 28 people here in the present Constitutional Convention vote for bicameral legislature, I will be one of the first to go out and try to help sell this constitution to the people of Alaska, will give my full efforts for it just as I would hope and feel sure that if it went the other way you would do likewise. (Applause)

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: Mr. Chairman, I want to compliment my colleague from the Second Division, Mr. McNeese, for the very able, earnest, and efficient manner in which he presented his case for unicameralism. I know that Mr. McNeese has put a lot of time and research into that subject. He has studied it. I have talked with him prior to tonight many times, and I have great admiration for the amount of work and the intelligent approach that he has made to present his case here tonight. I think he did an excellent job. I regret, however, that I cannot agree with him for a unicameral legislature. I am not going to bring in the State of Nebraska, or I am not going to take up any time of the members here and go into details. I look to our Federal Constitution, and from there I take my views. It has withstood the test of time. It has gone past 150 years and today it is respected the world over as the greatest form of government known to man. We have, of course, 47 states to counteract the one lone State of Nebraska. That has been gone over by other people. I rise here principally on the statement made by Mrs. Hermann that I think we should stand up and be counted. I want to be counted for bicameralism.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Lonsborg.

LONSBORG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say a few words at this time. I don't wish to condemn unicameralism as such. In theory it may be good. I have not had a chance to study it through and through. I would like to say that as far as Alaska is concerned, I believe it is just good for the theorists. I had a chance to observe unicameralism to a small degree, having been raised in the State of Nebraska. I had the privilege of seeing it come into effect. I remember in high school we were very much interested in it, and as we noted this morning the interest in this one school grade here in Fairbanks in our Convention, we took a similar interest in our little part of Nebraska and had a chance to see it come into effect and also see it operate. I attended a few sessions sitting in the gallery at Lincoln when I lived there. One argument that we have heard over and over again, not just here but elsewhere, is that it works in Nebraska. I believe it was adopted there to simplify the government and also to give representation. However, they were able to sell it to the Nebraskans or Nebraska adopted it because at that time, in the 1930's, Nebraska was largely a rural population. According to Mr. McNeely who is also from Nebraska, he said that the largest city according to proportion would be about 10 percent of the total population. Now that is not too bad a proportion, city versus rural population, taking your largest city, but now due to the larger farms, many of the farmers moving to the cities, etc., Omaha has grown and the rural areas have declined in Population so that Omaha has about 20 percent of the population. The metropolitan area around there is close to 33 percent. The representation that some people in the outer regions of Nebraska thought they were getting, is slipping away. It is slipping away because the population is moving toward the cities, and I believe now that it is largely impossible for Nebraska to return to the bicameral system because the heavily populated area is not likely to turn back the representation to the rest of Nebraska. So much for the state at this time. I don't think, as has been mentioned, that we can really compare Nebraska and Alaska except they sound similar at the end of the names. We have, as has been mentioned, the larger area, the floating population, many who will not vote, but I believe will be counted in apportionment. They will of course be in the larger areas, giving more representation to the areas -- I don't mean larger areas but the more populated areas yet they will not take an active part in voting. Representation in Alaska, I think we find that about 50 percent of our Alaskan people live in just a few of the larger cities and if we go on that basis we are going to have representation by the cities alone, if we go to direct population apportionment. Taking it on the national scales when we become a state, if the United States was on apportionment in the Senate and the House, we would have probably one senator out of 1000 less representation than we now have in our non-voting Delegate Bartlett. Take some of the fairness now and apply it to Alaska. Each division should be entitled to equal representation. That would be playing fair on that standpoint just as we expect the United States of America to play fair with us and give us two full-fledged voting senators. The argument of cost -- it may cost a little less to operate with one house, but if the two houses give us better government I think it is worth it. There was mention of the log jam of bills that seemed to flood in the two-house system at the end of the session. I don't know much about that. I think we will probably have something like that here in our one-house if we keep on, toward the end of the session, but I think one reason that Nebraska gets their bills in early is that their congressmen, I believe they're called, I think are paid $200 for the whole session, stay as long as they like. You can be sure they get their bills in early to get back home again. As far as the lobbyist system, I think the lobbyists would have an open house if they had just one house because they would have all their eggs in one basket and only the one house to worry about. I think the way to get rid of the undue and unfair lobbying is the suggestion that we received from Dr. Gruening yesterday to educate the people of Alaska in our school system and on up to whatever is necessary, that they take more interest in the government, more schools with teachers in the schools as we were privileged to observe this morning, teachers training the youngsters to really get interested in the government of Alaska. Last year in our high school at Unalakleet we requested that all the proposals in the House and the Senate be sent to us. We did not get a chance to read through them all, but it stimulated some good interest among the students. I think that should be done all over to create an interest among the students so that when they grow up they will take an interest in their government and then the men and women in legislature will vote for the people and not for the lobbyists, because they will know the people are watching them. As far as tradition is concerned, I don't particularly like tradition as such. I like to start out on something new. Yet I will never forget the advice that was given to me once. "Be not the last to leave the old nor the first to try the new." Now it is true that we would not be the first in one sense of the word, as Nebraska now has unicameral legislature but we would be the first state to start with unicameralism in the last 150 years. I don't believe we dare take such a gamble as to put unicameralism into the constitution that we will operate under when we first become a state.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there further comment? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to announce I am strongly for bicameralism. I doubt if it is necessary to state so because I have introduced two proposals to this Convention based upon the bicameral system, but I would like to emphasize one thing. Views have been expressed by so many which accord with my own views, but I would like to emphasize the fact that I don't think we should discard the nearly 42 or 43 years of experience in the two-house system in Alaska. We don't want to discard the experience that our government is based on a two-party system and we don't want to risk the chance that Congress will say that those Alaskans are simply trying to experiment in a new kind of legislation. Therefore, I hope this Convention adopts the bicameral system

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there further discussion? Mr. Armstrong.

ARMSTRONG: Mr. Riley, I think I can make this very brief. I would want to be counted for the bicameral system because I believe that this constitution will correct any error that has been perpetrated on the people of Alaska under our Territorial form of government. We will have adequate representation, we will provide for an annual meeting where we will not have all these log jams which have cluttered up the halls and wastebaskets of Juneau. I did not come here feeling that I had any mandate to change the form of government under which we are to operate. I believe that we would have a terrific job in the 120 days to educate the public to a change of form. I doubt that we would have the acceptance of the right kind of publicity from press, radio and TV that would be necessary in this type of an endeavor. I am also aware too that we have people from every state in the Union who have come into the family of Alaska. I do not believe that we can at this time afford to confuse them by this type of change, and I would add this one other word -- that I have been in the halls of the legislature of Juneau, and I can say personally that I have been blessed to see the checks and balances that have been made available there to the people of Alaska. So you know exactly how I stand and how I will vote when this comes out of the committee. I hope we won't tarry many days before this does come for final action.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Metcalf?

METCALF: I want to make a few brief remarks along the line Mr. Londborg has made. I am for the bicameral legislature, though I came to this meeting tonight with an open mind. The meeting has been very educational. I certainly sympathize with folks that are in favor of a unicameral legislature. There are abuses there. There certainly are but I believe could be corrected with the system of reapportionment and whereby the people out in the rural areas will have more active interest in government affairs. There is one other angle that has not been mentioned in adjusting this system of checks and balances. If we become a state or after we set up this constitution we would also have the initiative, referendum, amendments and revision clauses plus the recall which will give the common man further checks and balances on his legislature. I mention this because I don't believe it has been mentioned before.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Cross.

CROSS: Mr. Chairman, we came here to build a constitution. This constitution has two basic requirements -- one is that it must be workable, the other that it must be acceptable. I believe Alaska could work a constitution with either form of legislature. . I doubt very much that we could sell one with any but a two-house legislature. I am for the two-house legislature.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say just a few words. I have not served in the legislature but I have served on city councils and quite a few other boards, and I am in favor of a two-house system. I know at times on these boards we would have been glad to have some other check so that we would not have had to reverse ourselves. There is another thing that I think I am concerned about is the distribution of our representation, but I am sure that this Convention and the committees can work out distribution of representation so the areas are represented.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Chairman, we have heard this evening thus far from 29 delegates and if my box score is correct, 23 of them have spoken in favor of a bicameral system and only six against. The six who were against, and this bears out something that appeared in the reference work that we had from the technical services which were employed by the Statehood Committee, were all men who had never served in any session of the legislature. By men that are against, I mean men who are for a unicameral system. The 23 who were for included six delegates here who had served in the Alaska Senate, and everyone of those men was in favor of a bicameral system. It included five men who have served in the Alaska House of Representatives, and every such representative who has been heard has been in favor of a bicameral system. We have heard from "the two great Rivers of the North", from Senator Barr, Senator Collins who served in the very first Territorial legislature and in many others, from Senator Nolan who was the President in our most recent Alaska Senate and from our own President, Bill Egan who is held I know in as high respect by every one here as any member among us and probably in higher respect. We owe much to the judgment of these men, and yet I feel that in exploring a problem of this kind that we should look at the problem itself and not necessarily only at those who advocate one course or the other. As for my own views on this subject, I was one, I found out after I got here, of a relatively few who answered a poll from the Associated Press after we were elected and before we had come here to serve, which asked a number of questions including the one, "Do you favor a one or two-house legislature?" I answered very readily that I favored a two-house legislature. The other evening I had the privilege of watching a television show. It was a televised committee meeting of our Committee on the Legislative Branch, and because of that show and the things that were said there I was pretty well convinced by a presentation that was made, particularly by Mr. McNees and also by another member who has not been heard from tonight, but who was very eloquent and persuasive on that occasion, Mrs. Helen Fischer, that a unicameral system had much to recommend it. Tonight, as I think has been the case with most of the delegates here, I have been pretty well won back to the other view that a bicameral system is the thing for us. This argument, if it is an argument, is not over yet. We are still going to hear from a Committee. We are going to debate the Committee's recommendations on the floor. We are going to arrive at some kind of decision and then after that there is still a whole lot more. For example, I think the Committee of which I happen to be Chairman, Style and Drafting, might conceivably drop out the second house as a matter of redundancy in the language. The best purpose served I think by this discussion tonight has not been at helping us to arrive at a decision in this one matter of whether we should have a one-house or two-house legislature. It has been most valuable because it has thrown light on so many other problems which will concern us. There is this great problem of representation, supreme in the minds of so many of our delegates.

This body I believe is the first ever elected in Alaska where we had actual representative districts. I think the result is commendable. We have a fine Constitutional Convention here which I think represents all sections and all elements of the economy and all interests of the people. It is a unicameral body. Let's look for a moment at what kind of a body it would be if on that same election day last September, we had been electing, the people of Alaska had been electing, not a one-house but a two-house body. Let us look at what it would be -- first of all there were 19 members elected from separate representative districts. Those districts did not overlap and they covered the whole Territory. So every area of our great Alaska is represented here. Then in addition to that we elected 36 from larger areas, we elected a number of them from the Territory at large. We elected another number of them from each of the judicial divisions, and the results of those elections if we look at them are as follows: one member came here from each of six small places, Wrangell, Klawock, Haines, Sitka, Unalakleet and Valdez. Three came from Nome, seven came from Juneau, eight came from Fairbanks and twelve came from Anchorage. Just from those at large elected. Now that would be your Senate if this were a two-house body, and if the election had been held on that same day and we were a bicameral Constitutional Convention. The delegates here from Anchorage and Fairbanks alone would control more than one-half of the upper house, and it does not matter how preponderant the sentiment may be in the body that has representatives from all over the Territory, nothing is ever finally passed through a two-house legislature unless it passes both houses. Getting through one house is not getting half-way there, it isn't getting any place. You have to get through both of them or you haven't got a law, you haven't got a bill or an act. So I think we need to give some thought to the matter of representation. It is supremely important and I hope we have another session such as this, with attendance such as this and with as eloquent expressions of opinion from the delegates as we've had tonight on that subject, in a Committee of the Whole. The matter of checks and balances has been mentioned. In my view, there is a need in government for checks and balances among the three coordinate equal bodies of any government. There needs to be checks between the legislative on the one hand and the judicial and the executive on the other, and between those three we do not find any system of checks and balances within any of the coordinate branches except in the legislature. We don't find that we have two courts on an equal level trying the same case and that there will never be a verdict unless the two courts come up with exactly the same decision on any matter. We have one court and when it decides something, that is it. There is a court on another level to which an appeal is possible in some cases, but only one. You don't go to two more and have no verdict unless both of them happen to decide the same thing. If it is good to have two houses of the legislature why is it not good to have two governors? Indeed, if it is good to have two houses of the legislature why is it not good to have three houses, to make it even more certain that no bad legislation will get through, or four and let's be perfect. I believe that responsibility is the thing and that responsibility will be developed by placing the responsibility upon a number of people, whether that may be a one-house legislature or in a two-house legislature. There would be no five percent luxury tax passed by a one-house Alaska legislature if we had had a unicameral system, at the last session. I am convinced of that. I was close to it and watched what happened. I think that there is no argument either in tradition. The reason we have a two-house legislature in our national government, in our Congress, is because there was need of a compromise. There never would have been a nation, there never would have been a Congress, or Constitution if we had not been able to have one house which would be based upon representation of people and the other that would be based upon areas. We would not have had a nation. Now this matter of lobbyists of which Mr. Stewart spoke so feelingly. I can speak feelingly of that too. It was mentioned here a few minutes ago that one of the members who has had long legislative experience has never seen a lobby control both houses. A lobby doesn't have to control both houses. It has to control only one house, it doesn't even have to control a whole house. When we have a situation such as we have in Alaska at the present time where perhaps the executive is on a different side of the fence from the preponderant feeling of expression in a legislature and something comes up on a measure to override a veto, all that the lobby has had to do and all that the lobby had to do in the last session of our legislature was control just five members and no piece of legislation which the governor opposed could ever get through that legislature, although there were 40 members there, the lobby that could control five members (and believe me they did) can stop it. It was mentioned here too that somebody once saw a lobbyist pass a note to a member of the House. Of course, that happens all the time. It would happen in a one-house legislature. But what is the real meaning of that? In order to control a house, even if the house were only as large as that of our Alaska at present, the lobby would have to control 13 members. If we had a lobby trying to control this body, it would have to control 28 members, vastly more difficult than controlling a little group even if we doubled the size of our present Senate, the lobby would still only have to control 10 members.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I'm sorry Mr. Sundborg but your time is past. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: If there is no further discussion, I move that we report progress.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Mr. Buckalew has made the motion that the Committee rise and report progress.

HARRIS: Point of order, did the motion come before the house that the visitors would be allowed to speak?

CHAIRMAN RILEY: That was discussed a few minutes ago. We will have two minutes of recess. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

CHAIRMAN RILEY: The Committee will come to order. Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Mr. Chairman, I think that most of the Committee, all of the Convention delegates who want to be heard have been heard from. I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that if there is anybody in the gallery that wishes to be heard, that they be granted the privilege.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Without objection it is ordered that anyone in the audience who wishes to comment on the subject under discussion this evening may step forward and do so.

DR. HUGH FATE: I feel that this group should be represented and if others are too timid to do so, I shall pass a few remarks. We have heard the pros and cons of this debate. If I were to judge the debate I would say on the basis of brilliant presentation, the pros resolved that the unicameral system be adopted, would have won. On the basis of solid argument, I feel that the negative side would have won. We have had a classic example of how, if this house were evenly divided, one brilliant speaker might change the whole complexion of the house and a measure be passed, and that would be your unicameral system. It could be, and if that one brilliant speaker, which does not exist here, happened to be under the thumb of a lobbyist you might have a law that you did not want. I want to remark also that if this body thinks that the people of Alaska are not watching you, you are mistaken. We expect you to come up with something good, and we believe you will do so, and the attentiveness of your audience I think proves that point. It might be a good idea to take a straw vote among the audience. That is all, sir.

DOOGAN: Mr. Chairman, may I ask that the people that speak from the audience state their name for the benefit of those people who are not from Fairbanks and where they are from. That was Dr. Hugh Fate.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Are there others who care to address any remarks?

MR. KOPONNEN: My name is Neil Koponnen. I am a homesteader on Chena Ridge and an electrician by trade, an unsuccessful candidate for the last election and I stuck my neck out on the unicameral issue. Nobody knows me very well. I don't belong to any party, I don't belong to any lodges, I don't have much voted for me and I think largely because I stuck my neck out, so I guess that is about what I would be said to represent. I never could see any sense in the taxpayers hiring two bunches of politicians to go off in to opposite ends of a big building and argue the same bloody question and take twice as long to come to an answer and then finally disagree. But as it was pointed out, the control is always in the joint committees and if the lobby controls the joint committees, they control everything. I have heard a number of speeches by a number of people over the years, not necessarily running for this, but running for some other office, especially running for the legislature up here. They rant about the bureaucracy, they rant about executive, about how the government outside is doing something. One of the things that has lead to government by the executive and government by executive decree and judicial decree has been the fact that the legislature is unable to function. It is internally checked, I wouldn't say that there was very much balance to it. There are checks and balances but it's the complete brake on the system, on the legislature itself. It is unable to express itself, it is unable to act when it needs to act. Action has to be taken in a crisis sometimes, like during the depression or during a case of war, it is taken by the executive. To whom do we turn if something is wrong with that? Do we turn to the legislature for a good law? We don't give a damn, if we have enough money we go and hire a lawyer and go to the judges to secure relief. I don't think there is any argument in tradition as has been said or in the fact that the bicameral system has lasted 175 years. If you study history, the bicameral system is a simplification of what went before, when you had a four-part system. The medieval courts, the medieval legislatures were very often split amongst the nobles, the house of lords. You had a house of clergy, well let's have a third house if two houses are so good. I think that always we've tried to simplify our government so the people themselves can better express themselves through it. The government, I think I said, exists to do for us collectively that which we cannot individually do ourselves. If it cannot act, then how can we act in a question which concerns us? I am glad I had some representation here even if it comes from Kodiak and Nome.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Thank you Mr. Koponnen. Is there other comment? Mr. Barr?

BARR: I would suggest that the public here be informed that their remarks are being taped probably will be broadcast from a radio station. In any case if they are groping for words, they will at least look at a dictionary and use some words that are in the dictionary instead of something that I don't recognize as English.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Is there further comment from the audience?

ALICE STUART: I am also a defeated candidate. I got 2616 votes at large. I also don't belong to either political party nor do I belong to any civic or fraternal groups. However, I thought we should have a good constitution that should be based on fundamental American principles. One book that I have read that has been of great interest to me is The Federalist. I haven't read it all but parts that I have read, I enjoyed. There is one I would like to refer you all to and that is No. 62, credited to either Hamilton or Madison. In it is refers to ". . . inquiring into the purposes which are to be answered by the senate and in order to ascertain these, it will be necessary to review the inconvenience . . ." You will find that many of these reasons, I think there are five or six of them, will apply equally to the State of Alaska and I think you would all, if you haven't read The Federalist No. 62 will find it of great interest. It is in favor of the two-house system.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Thank you, Miss Stuart.

CONSTANCE GRIFFITH: I am one of the three that lost in spite of sticking my neck out for unicameral legislature but I don't think in all fairness it is fair to say that was the reason I lost. It seems to me that the three points that have been advanced against unicameral legislature -- the embarrassment of a member of the House or the Senate because something passed that he was sorry he voted on, I would say that in the unicameral legislature, you would take more time and that would save the groping around, the running back and forth and the embarrassment, and that that would perhaps make much better legislation because a bill would not have to be rushed through the other house. In taking more time, then people would have a chance to get their views to the one house and the deliberations would be more gratifying to all concerned. The other two things are ratification and tradition. Now the tradition of our government in having a two-house legislature is because we have states and then the government. We don't have anything comparable to states in a state that needs representation in a separate house, so I don't see that purpose is served and that tradition needs to be so clung to in this particular instance. As far as ratification, I think the people trust you and are willing to go along with anything that you at the Constitutional Convention devise for us to ratify, and I don't think you need to be afraid if you really think this thing through and come out with either unicameral legislature or bicameral legislature, I am pretty sure the people of Alaska are going to get behind you and will ratify anything you do. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: Thank you, Miss Griffith.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN: It has impressed me tonight how many people have said we must sell the constitution to the people of Alaska, and sell it to Congress, but somehow that smacks of something small to me. Maybe that is wrong, but all the great theories that have come from history have been something new, something different, and they have not always been impractical, because they haven't been done before but quite often the thing that turned out to be the most practical as well as the most inspirational for most people. I think a lot of people came to Alaska because they felt the United States was not completely God's country, that it wasn't perfect, but no country is. Maybe it's strong but strength isn't everything. I love Alaska because I feel that there is so much wrong up here, but there is still so much that can be done and so much future and that we need to have the courage to step forward and that we need not rely and say that we must do everything because it is done in the states and always has been done in the states. That doesn't make it perfect. I know people that have the courage to believe in theories if they feel that the theories are right and good, because I think most of the progress in the United States originally and throughout history has been through people having the courage of their convictions.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: If there are no further comments from the audience, the Chair would entertain a motion to rise.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I make a motion and ask unanimous consent that the Committee of the Whole now rise and report progress.

CHAIRMAN RILEY: I might state first that the bus has been called and should be here in a matter of about 15 minutes. without objection the Committee shall rise and report progress. So ordered.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there any business to come before us at this time?

RILEY: Mr. President, your Committee of the Whole has met, risen, and reports progress.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley reports that the Committee of the Whole has risen and reports progress. Is there other business to come before the Convention?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, I move the meeting be adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 1, 1955

TWENTY-FOURTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning Chaplain Martin Shaner of Ladd Air Force Field who will give us our daily invocation.

CHAPLAIN SHANER: Almighty God our Heavenly Father, of Whose righteous will all things are and were created, Who liftest the islands out of the deep and prearest not in vain the habitable world. Thou hast gathered our people in a great land and in a great nation. Thou hast given to us the great heritage of the past. We would ask Thee this day to instill into each of us and especially to invoke Thy blessings upon this Convention, upon each individual severally and collectively. We ask for wisdom. We ask for strength, and, O God, we ask for courage that we may do those things in the preparation of this constitution which shall be in accord to Thy purpose and will and plan for mankind. May the precepts and principles of truth, of righteousness and justice ever be in our thinking and permeate our thoughts as we put together this document so that it shall be used as a means to govern Thy people here in this great land and in this State. We humbly pray in our Master's name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Secretary will show all members as being present. The absent members are attending a funeral and were properly excused. A quorum is present. We will proceed with the regular order of business. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? Reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Mr. Metcalf?

METCALF: I have a proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other proposals to be read? The Chief Clerk will proceed with the reading of the proposal.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 29 introduced by Mr. Metcalf, INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM, AND RECALL -- AMENDMENT & REVISION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would be the Committee -- what committee would you suggest?

METCALF: I would suggest it be submitted to Committee No. XIII, Direct Legislation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is the feeling of the Chair. It is referred to Committee No. XIII, Committee on Direct Legislation. Are there other proposals? Are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I believe the Chief Clerk has the resolution which I had prepared yesterday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you like that read at this time?

SMITH: Yes.

CHIEF CLERK: "Resolution No. 7, RESOLVED, that the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations be charged with the responsibility of making certain that proposals covering the seven requirements of H.R. 2535 are submitted to this Convention."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The resolution is referred to Committee No. XIV on Resolutions and Recommendations. Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. Chairman, point of information on that. I believe my Chairman is not here today but the Ordinance Committee is already considering the majority of those. We have prepared a great number of them already.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, if there is no objection then the Chair would change that reference and refer it to the Committee on Ordinances.

SMITH: It does not make any difference to me as to which committee receives this Resolution. My whole purpose and intent was to make it the responsibility of some committee and that was my only interest.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then under those circumstances the resolution is referred to the Committee on Ordinances rather than the Committee on Resolutions. Are there other resolutions? Is there any unfinished business to come before the Convention at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for recess. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I move that we recess until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, and I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 this afternoon. Is there objection? The Chair would like to advise the delegates before stating the question that the checks are available in the Secretary's office, so the Convention is at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the special Committee assigned to reading the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the journal for the 22nd Convention day be approved by the Convention as read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight moves and asks unanimous consent that the journal for the 22nd Convention day be approved as read by the select committee. Is there objection?

NORDALE: I put a note on the Secretary's desk. I would like to know if they thought I was wrong. I understood we were to put a slip on the Secretary's desk if we thought anything was wrong with the journal, and I did that upstairs in his office over half an hour ago.

CHIEF CLERK: It should be the Chief Clerk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then if there is no objection, the journal of the 22nd Convention day will be ordered approved. Is there other business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we return to the introduction of proposals at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley asks unanimous consent that we revert to the introduction of proposals at this time. If there is no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Hurley, you may present your proposal.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 30, by Mr. Hurley, STATE LANDS AND NATURAL RESOURCES.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Resources, No. X. Are there other proposals? Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, I would wish to call a very brief meeting of the Rules Committee immediately after adjournment. It will be sufficiently brief that it will conflict with no other committee meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley announces a brief meeting of the Rules Committee immediately upon adjournment. Are there other announcements? Will the delegates please come in and take their seats in the Convention Hall, please. Mr. Sundborg? (Delegates came in from gallery.)

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to inquire about the origin of a very interesting report which I found on my desk yesterday entitled, "Reapportionment for Representation for 1955". I am wondering if this is a committee report? It hasn't been referred to on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, the Chair feels from hearing discussion that was just a tentative report in order to allow all the delegates to see what type of proposal the committee was working upon. That is not the final report at all and it was merely to allow each of you an opportunity to get an idea of the lines they are working along.

SUNDBORG: Is it from the Committee on Apportionment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is not a committee report, Mr. Sundborg. I believe it came from a member, it was drawn up by a member of the Committee.

SUNDBORG: I find it very interesting and helpful.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, I would like to ask unanimous consent for the writing of a letter by our Secretary, through the command at Eielson Air Force Base, to the families and personnel of those who have been bereaved through the disastrous crash of the F-84. I feel that they should know that in our deliberations we are thinking of them and our sympathy goes out to them. I would ask unanimous consent, sir.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Reverend Armstrong's unanimous consent request. Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and, Reverend Armstrong, will you work with the Secretary and Mrs. Hermann, please, in drawing up such a letter to send to the command at Eielson Air Force Base? Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to, out of regard for my fellow delegates from the Second Division, I would like to have the unanimous consent of this body to withdraw Proposal No. 27 entitled, "ELECTION IN DISTRICT OTHER THAN PLACE OF RESIDENCE", which proposal was submitted by me. If I might just add with your permission that the reason for withdrawing it or the reason for filing it was not the reason a number of delegates thought was the reason. I had no one in mind except McNealy when I filed it and because other situations have arisen I would like to ask unanimous consent that this proposal be withdrawn from the Committee and from the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the unanimous consent request of Mr. McNealy asking that his Proposal No. 27 be withdrawn. Is there objection? Hearing no objection, Mr. McNealy, then you may withdraw that Proposal, and the committee that has the Proposal in its possession can return the same to Mr. McNealy. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to announce that Mr. Vincent Ostrom, of the staff for the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, Stanford University, formerly associated with various organizations including the Northwest Regional Project in Educational Administration, Social Science Research Council, Wyoming Legislative Interim Committee, Oregon Bureau of Municipal Research Services, and the Haynes Foundation of Los Angeles, who was also formerly a member of the faculty at the University of Wyoming and at Oregon State College, author of Water and Politics, Water Supply and various articles and studies on natural resources policy and administration, local government and state and local finance taxation, has arrived and I looked around to see if he was in the gallery. I do not believe he is but I wanted to let the various committees know that he is here and I also wanted to put in first claim to his services for the Resources Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, it seems to me we have a number of these consultants here or arriving here very shortly and I don't think the committees should be selfish and keep them locked up with them. I would like very much to have all of them introduced to the body as a whole and all of us given an opportunity to talk with them and have them say a few words to the Convention. I think that might be done tomorrow when the other two arrive, but I think it should be that the whole assembly should greet them rather than just committees with which they are planning to work.

SMITH: Mr. President, if the President would send the Sergeant at Arms to find Mr. Ostrom, I am sure he would be glad to come at this time and I am sure the Committee on Resources would be glad to have him come.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee, with more efficiency, has its expert available and we can fill the interim if the Chair desires.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are you referring to Mr. Sheldon Elliott, Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the wish of the Convention that Mr. Ostrom come before us at this time or, as Mrs. Hermann suggests, that perhaps we extend the research men an invitation to visit with us in the morning? What is the consensus of the delegates relative to this question? Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. President, I would like to support Mrs. Hermann's suggestion, and I think there is no sense in wasting time. If there is time today, I would like to have those introduced that are here because we can take advantage of their services immediately.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair notes that in the gallery we have Mr. Sheldon Elliott and would like to, if there is no objection, ask Mr. Elliott to come in with us for a few moments, if he would like to say a few words to the delegates, and maybe, Mr. -- Sergeant at Arms, you could attempt to find Mr. Ostrom. Mr. Elliott.

SHELDEN ELLIOTT: Thank you very much, Mr. President, and ladies and gentlemen. I think I have had the pleasure of being introduced to a great number of you already, and during the all too short span of this, my first visit to Alaska, I hope to have the pleasure of getting to know the rest of you. I am from New York but only recently so, having started out as a native son of Southern California. I am a lawyer, as my affiliation with your Judiciary Committee might indicate. I have been a member of the California State Bar for nearly a quarter of a century. I have served in the Legislative Council Bureau of the California Legislature. I have served as a secretary to a committee of bar examiners, and I have been a practicing lawyer and then a law teacher both in Southern California and in New York. My present affiliation is with New York University, and I also serve as Director of the Institute of Judicial Administration. The Institute was established as a non-profit corporation in 1952 and has its headquarters at the law center of New York University. I shall give credit where credit is due. The inspiration for its establishment and the spade work in getting the money from Rockefeller Foundation and getting it going both came from Chief Justice Arthur T. Vanderbilt of New Jersey, whose name I am sure is known to many of you. It has been my privilege to work with him in this area of court organization and administration on a state-by-state and now country-by-country basis. I don't pretend to be an all knowledgeable expert in the field. I have had an eye on developments in many directions and in many areas, and to the extent that my acquaintance with what is going on may be of assistance in counseling your committee. I know they will feel free to call on me. I don't have any magic formulas. I am sure that you in Alaska know fundamentally what is best for your State to be. I should confess, also as a secondary matter, that I have taught the subject of legislation for many years and have co-authored some materials in the field with some emphasis on legislative style and drafting. I am not asking for more work. I will be here until next Friday. If in either of those categories of qualifications I can be of any assistance to any of you here, I hope you will feel free to call on me. My primary duty of course is first to the Judiciary Committee and to Mr. McLaughlin. I thank you very much for giving me the privilege of a few words before you. I shall be here until Friday of next week. I hope to get to know all of you while I am here. I am tremendously impressed with Alaska. Thank you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Elliott. The Chair notes that Mr. Ostrom is present. Mr. Ostrom, would you mind coming forward and being introduced to the delegates. Mr. Vincent Ostrom, would you like to say a few words?

MR. OSTROM: This is also my first trip to Alaska, and I am somewhat amazed at the countryside. I have spent three years in Wyoming and in many ways the Alaska climate represents some of the rather severe winters we had in Laramie, Wyoming, when I was there. The difference in the section here is that there is not the elevation in Alaska that we had in Wyoming, but the 7,000 feet apparently makes up for the rather extreme differences in latitude we had. Something about my background, which I gather is what you want communicated to the members of the group here, my primary work in terms of work in university and graduate training, etc., has been in the field of political science and in that field primarily focusing upon local governments, state governments and aspects of regional development, primarily those that have been concerned with the development of natural resources. The first serious study that I did in the area of local government had to do with school board politics in the Los Angeles area. This in itself was, I think a very interesting study to see the impingement of a variety of factors and forces in the shaping of educational policies in a large public school system. After going to Wyoming my interest became fairly heavily concentrated in the natural resources field. Here was an area that had tremendous potentiality in terms of large land areas and yet the matter of water was of all-controlling importance, and it presented a particularly sharp contrast with the situation in Southern California say, where likewise the shortage of water existed, but here had grown the largest metropolis in the Western United States. The question was what made this metropolis possible in conditions that prevailed throughout the Western United States in general. This opened a variety of questions that have had to do with resources in many, many areas, and by and large I think the best statement that we have had are those of Frederick Jackson Turner and a good many of the other persons who have contributed quite significantly in the formulation of problems of resource policies and thinking about the institutions which have developed in the Western United States, in particular in regard to the utilization of natural resources and making possible the developments that have taken place in those areas. Frederick Jackson Turner and John W. Powell, I think are the two great pioneers in this area, pointed out quite vividly that the developments that have taken place in the western frontier, particularly in the arid West, involved quite different institutions, quite different requirements than those which existed in the eastern portions of the United States, so there were developments, developments of whole systems of water law, for example, that came in the Western United States that had not previously existed in the eastern portions of the nation. I think the problem you are posed with here is very much the same kind of problem that, say, a Frederick Jackson Turner or a John W. Powell was concerned with. They were concerned with what are the conditions in human intelligence and human capacity to be able to organize themselves to provide rules for themselves so that they could accomplish or establish a good life in these rather adverse conditions of the arid west. It would seem to me that your problem here is that not facing, in effect, the western frontier but rather facing the northern frontier, and what are the special requirements that exist in facing the northern frontier, and it would seem to me that it is among you and among the legislators and administrators who are going to be taking charge of the stewardship of Alaska that will give rise to those who will be the lawmakers, the formulators of the conditions of life in the northern frontier. And I think this is a very stimulating opportunity that you have here at the present time, and I would hope that during the course of my visit here I might be able to raise some questions about problems of resource policy, provide some contribution in this area that has to do with the development of natural resources but I think above all else, recognize what we say about natural resources is not limited simply to lands and to fish and to minerals and metals out there, but rather being concerned with how we as human beings are going to utilize those so that they become a part of the continuing future development of an area like Alaska, how it makes possible the development of a better livelihood, a better existence on the part of the people who do comprise this land. In this sense almost every section of a constitution becomes related to the question of resource development, the whole matter for example of the organization of the administrative arrangement, the executive branch, I think is of some crucial significance in the matter of resource development in the area. Likewise the whole matter of the development of local government organization involves some very crucial questions in relation to resource development. One of the factors in the Western United States that involves some fairly important innovations was the development of such vehicles as irrigation districts and other kinds of local government agencies that were able to accomplish public purposes in the development of resources in that area. And I would suspect that in an area of the northern frontier we would face many of these problems of what kinds of public agencies, what kinds of local governmental instrumentalities, can make possible most effective utilization of the resources in this area. I am sure you are not interested simply in storing these resources to posterity but rather in bringing them into use in the development of some kind of public purpose that will realize the important goals that you all want for Alaska. Thank you. (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Ostrom. Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. Ostrom one question through the Chair if I may.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Smith read out your qualifications and he mentioned the term, "Behavioral Sciences". I wonder if you would define that for me.

MR. OSTROM: I am sorry I was doing some homework at the early part of this and did not have the background to speak to it. My present formal position has been, for some five or more years, that of being a member of the political science department at the University of Oregon. During this year I happen to be a Fellow at the Ford Foundation Center for Advanced Studies in the Behavioral Sciences. What they mean by "behavioral sciences" are simply those sciences concerned with the study of human behavior and in this sense includes such things as biology representing the most extreme range related say to the study of the biological organism on over to include such things as anthropology, sociology, psychology, political science, economics and the other fields that are traditionally classified in the social sciences. I think it is simply a new word that is brought in that sounded good and therefore someone had to attach it to a title.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Ostrom. The Chair notes another distinguished visitor in the gallery, the Attorney General of Alaska, Mr. J. Gerald Williams. He has been of great help to the staff of the Convention in resolving certain legal problems that have come before us. We are happy to have you here with us, Mr. Attorney General. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 2, 1955

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Charles Alston, pastor of St. John's Baptist Church in Fairbanks. Reverend Alston will deliver our daily invocation.

REVEREND ALSTON: Almighty God, we thank Thee for this opportunity. Bless those who have given themselves in service of our fellow men. We invoke upon this delegation Thy blessing. Father, grant unto them clear vision, true judgment, with great daring as they seek to right the wrong. Remember the nation to which we belong, that in righteousness and truth we may be established -- through Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Six absent. Two excused absences.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with the regular order of business. Does the Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time? If not, we will hold it over until this afternoon's session. Presentation of petitions, memorials and communications from outside the Convention?

SECRETARY: None.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, I have a resolution to present on behalf of the Rules Committee which requires a little explanation. A situation confronts the Convention whereby its Secretary must leave, take a medical leave of absence, and that in turn will call for a modification of the operative effect of our Rule 3 which has to do with the delegation of duties of the Secretary and some of the secretariat. I would like to present the resolution for reading at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the resolution.

CHIEF CLERK: "Resolution No. 8.

WHEREAS, the Secretary of the Alaska Constitutional Convention has, on medical advice, requested a leave of absence;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED

1. That the Convention hereby approves the Secretary's request for a leave of absence;

2. That the Convention hereby authorizes the President of the Convention to delegate, during the absence of the Secretary, such authority and duties of the Secretary of the Convention as he may deem necessary to such person or persons as are serving the Convention, and

3. That the Delegates hereby express to the Secretary their best wishes for a speedy recovery and a speedy return to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention?

RILEY: I move and ask unanimous consent that the Resolution as read be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves and asks unanimous consent that the Resolution as read be adopted. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I object only momentarily to say that according to our rules, a resolution must take the regular course of business and be referred to a committee, etc. Am I correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, Mr. Sundborg. Resolutions may be treated as a motion if it is so desired.

SUNDBORG: I stand corrected. Thank you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the Resolution is ordered adopted as read. Are there reports of other committees? Are there reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced? Are there any other motions or resolutions? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I notice the presence of Dr. Bartley in the gallery. I thought we might have the privilege of hearing a few words from him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, Mrs. Hermann was just a little faster on her feet than I was. I meant to say that Professor Ernest R. Bartley, whose services were requested by the Resources Committee, is present. Professor Bartley is Professor of Political Science at the University of Florida. He is Director of Research, Florida Board of Constitutional Revisions Committee, author of several staff papers for PAS, Alaska Constitutional Project, the State Constitution within the American Political System, The Constitution and Natural Resources, the Judicial Department, and he is co-author of the American National Government and Administration. He has special interest in judiciary, natural resources and executive branch. Again for Mrs. Hermann's benefit, I met Dr. Bartley about five minutes before the plenary session. I monopolized his time up to the plenary session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair would ask Dr. Bartley to come before us at this time, if he would like to do so, and say a few words to the delegates. Dr. Bartley.

DR. BARTLEY: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention. It is a very real pleasure to be back in Alaska. I know a great many of you already, and I know that it was one of the tremendous pleasures that I have had during my professional career to be up here last summer and to meet with you then. This morning, of course, there are many whom I don't know personally. I am sure that in the next few days while I am here that I will get to meet and know the rest of you. I thank you again for doing me the honor of asking me to come up here, and there are very few things, very few instances that I have ever experienced, which have given me more satisfaction than the opportunity which I have had, to work with you. (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would make a suggestion that the secretaries of the committees who would like to have Mr. Bartley consult with their committees, get together and try to arrange a schedule so his time can be put to the best use. I don't know the procedure in other committees, but I am very thankful that the Secretary of the Resources Committee is handling the scheduling, and I feel that if the other committees will get in touch with Mr. Riley, a schedule can be worked out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Smith's suggestion. If there is no objection, then those secretaries who might feel that they desire the aid of Mr. Bartley before their committee will contact him and try to arrange a schedule among the various secretaries as to when they will have the services of Dr. Bartley. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, I would like to request consent to absent myself tomorrow. I would like to be excused.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Davis may be excused for tomorrow. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: I likewise would like to be excused for tomorrow. I am going down to Juneau and I will be back Monday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Gray, you may be excused tomorrow also until Monday. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I move we recess and ask unanimous consent that the Convention recess until 1:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention recess until 1:30 p.m. Hearing no objection the Convention is recessed until 1:30 this afternoon.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the special Committee to report on the reading of the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. Doogan.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that the 23rd Convention day?

DOOGAN: Journal of the 23rd Convention day, November 30, on page 1, third paragraph from the bottom, where it says, "Mr. Cooper", change to "Mr. Rosswog asked for a roll call." On page 2, the third paragraph from the bottom, at the end of the sentence add "so they would have an official document from the Convention for their scrapbook." On page 7, fifth paragraph from the bottom, "Mr. Rivers and Mr. Barr", it should be "Mr. Victor Rivers". With those corrections I move and ask unanimous consent that this journal for the 23rd day be approved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan moves and asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 23rd Convention day be approved with the corrections as noted by the special Committee to read the journal. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Mr. President, I think everybody has on their desk the journals for the first three Convention days. These will be read and reported on on Monday, and since there was quite a little confusion the first three days in getting organized, if everybody will attempt to read them and note any corrections or errors and report them to the Chief Clerk, we will get this taken care of on Monday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of Mr. Doogan. Is there any discussion? Hearing none, is there other business at this time? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, I move that the present Convention schedule of committee meetings be dispensed with, that the afternoon plenary session be dispensed with and that alternative (a) of the schedule which was included in Secretariat Memorandum 24/a, dated December 1, 1955, be substituted therefore, until such time as the Chair again recommends revision.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves and asks unanimous consent that alternative (a) of the proposed changes in committee meetings be adopted until such further notice might be announced by the Chair.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, before I hear any objections, I believe this was agreed upon by unanimous consent of all chairmen of committees in private sessions, that it would be more acceptable to the committees.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder if Mr. McLaughlin would find it acceptable to have included in that a date in which this would take effect.

MCLAUGHLIN: Effective tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is amended so that the motion will show that the alternative committee sessions will take effect tomorrow morning.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, before that is acted upon, are we having public hearings tomorrow?

PRESIDENT EGAN: There are some public hearings scheduled for tomorrow, as the Chair recalls.

MCLAUGHLIN: I shall amend it to read "effective Monday morning."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the correction is ordered made in the journal in the notes of the Clerk that it will take effect Monday morning. The Chair wants to let everyone understand that this schedule will do away with the afternoon plenary session until further notice. Mr. Barr?

BARR: I object but only to find a reason for that schedule being adopted. Schedule (b) would fit my plans better but that is only for personal reasons. Now if it is explained to me that schedule (a) benefits the Convention more, of course I'll go along with it but I would like to know why.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second to Mr. McLaughlin's motion?

SUNDBORG: I'll second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion. Is there discussion? Will someone rise in explanation? Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I think we should say here for Mr. Barr and others who have not had the benefit of the discussion we had in the meetings of committee chairman for several days on this subject, that it was objected by several committee chairmen a week or so ago that the daily committee sessions were too brief and that the members no more than got into serious discussion of a subject than the time allotted to them expired and they dropped it and went on to an entirely different meeting and had a hard time taking it up at the exact point again. So starting with that the committee chairmen asked the staff to try to devise a new schedule which would give longer meetings, and after several days of discussion, two alternatives were proposed to the committee chairmen. The chairmen were asked to poll their respective committees and try to determine which alternative was preferable. At today's meeting of committee chairmen every chairman who reported, reported that (a) was preferable to (b), and so the committee chairmen, without a voice in opposition being raised, agreed that they would bring on the floor this afternoon the proposal that alternative (a) would be adopted. If there is serious objection to that from the members of the committees, I think that we should thrash it out here before going into a new schedule.

MCNEES: May I ask how long this schedule will be effective?

SUNDBORG: If I might answer, it is the thought of the committee chairmen this will be effective from Monday morning until such time as the Convention finds it needs to revise it. It is a temporary schedule until conditions change. The one thing we have in mind is that proposals will be coming out of committees, probably quite soon, and at that time we are going to need longer plenary sessions. Also, some of the committees, after they report, presumably will have nothing more to meet about, so we can use the time which would otherwise be theirs, to accommodate the committees which are still at work, so it is something that is for the time being and until the Convention would decide otherwise.

MCNEES: I do see some distinction in the amounts of time allocated to various committees here. In other words, the committee in the morning from 9:30 until 12:20 with shorter sessions for the other two. I was wondering, would it be possible for a rotational program to be put into effect -- say we do run three weeks into December -- let these rotate so that each one gets a turn at the various schedules for the longer session at a time.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, this was not my proposal and I did not draw up the schedule. In fact, I had very little to do with it. All I know is what I have heard in the discussion of the meetings of committee chairmen. The proposal that we might rotate, that is have one set of committees meeting on Monday and an entirely different set on Tuesday was made and it was objected to because it was thought it would lead to confusion among the delegates as to just where they were supposed to be at certain hours. I yield to anybody who wants to speak on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees, the President's recollection of the meeting today was that a certain discussion centered around and was agreed upon around that subject and that it was generally agreed that supposing your committee wanted to exchange a time with another committee, that you could by mutual consent change your times. It would be entirely satisfactory.

MCNEES: My suggestion primarily wasn't that we change on a day-to-day basis but on a week-to-week basis.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I am myself greatly concerned with the fact that the committees are taking as much time as they are. I realize that we have had told us that the target dates are now set and that the proposals are coming out of committees in very short order, but as when tomorrow ends we will have spent three weeks on straight committee work, and while there may be some subjects that require greater amount of time than others, it seems to me those reports ought to be coming in, and I am a little bit worried about the urgency of work on the floor and the need of time to give due attention to work that is going to have to be done on the floor and also that is subsequently to be done by Style and Drafting Committee after the work on the floor has been completed. So I am giving due warning to everybody here that if we don't get some of the work out by the first of the week I am going to become the nagging wife of this Convention. I am going to get up and remind you of it everytime I can get the floor. It is unfortunate that three members of this Convention, Mr. Sundborg, Mr. Davis, and I are on committees that have nothing at all to do except visit the other committees. Maybe the other committees would just as soon have a little relief from our visits.

BARR: Mr. President, I think everything Mrs. Hermann has done she has done well so if she is going to become the "nagging wife" I am going to run for cover. As I said before, I understand a need for in the committees, though personally I prefer alternative (b). I did not know it was a general agreement. I thought perhaps the majority of the chairmen had agreed on this. However, I think I will now renew my objection just in order to get a vote on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I wanted to point out, if my memory is correct, at yesterday's meeting of the committee chairmen, each committee chairman was requested to take this up with his committee. I did so in the Resources Committee. They stated a preference for alternative (a).

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall alternative (a) be adopted to supersede the present committee schedules until further notice?" All those in favor of the question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The ayes have it and it is so ordered. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to revert to reports from committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will now revert to committee reports.

MCCUTCHEON: Committee No. VII on the Legislative Branch has had under its consideration Proposal No. 11 and Resolution No. 4. The Committee wishes to report the Resolution and Proposal back to the floor with the recommendation they be forwarded to the Committee on Resolutions inasmuch as they already have proposals of the same nature under consideration. I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon asks unanimous consent that Proposal No. 11 and Resolution No. 4 be referred to the Committee on Resolutions. Is there objection? If there is no objection the Chair refers the Proposal No. 11 and Resolution No. 4 to the Committee on Resolutions. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to ask unanimous consent to revert to the order of business of introduction of resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will now revert to the order of business of introduction of resolutions.

SUNDBORG: I have a resolution which I would like to read, and then move for its adoption.

"The Alaska Constitutional Convention takes note of the fact that Anthony J. Dimond Day, as designated by act of the twenty-second Territorial Legislature, occurred for the first time on November 30, 1955, the anniversary of the birth of this great Alaskan.

Anthony J. Dimond served Alaska well as pioneer citizen, lawyer, legislator, Delegate in Congress for six successive terms and as District Judge.

His career, not only as a public servant, but as a private citizen, husband and father, furnished example and inspiration to all Alaskans, including the Delegates to this Constitutional Convention.

His advocacy of, and devotion to, statehood for Alaska was well known and contributed to the advancement of that cause to the point that we are now assembled here writing a Constitution for the State of Alaska.

Now therefore be it resolved by the Alaska Constitutional Convention that upon adjournment of the last plenary session of this week, such adjournment be taken out of respect to the memory of that great Alaskan and outstanding American, the late Anthony J. Dimond."

Mr. President, I move that the resolution without reference to any committee be adopted by the Convention and that it be spread upon the journal of this day's session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted by the Convention and that its contents be spread upon today's journal.

V. RIVERS: I am heartily in accord with the resolution, but as I was rather strictly reminded by Tony Dimond one time, he was not a Delegate to Congress but a Delegate in Congress from Alaska. I would ask unanimous consent that the word "to" be changed to "in".

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the author will accept that change

SUNDBORG: I do so.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, it is so ordered. Is there objection to having the resolution in full in the day's journal? Hearing none it is so ordered and the resolution is ordered adopted. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Mr. President, I would like to have opportunity to call attention to the Committee XIII, on Amendments, will meet promptly at the Northward Building, Studio KFRB at 3:45 p.m. this afternoon, promptly.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII will meet promptly at Studio KFRB at 3:45 this afternoon, in the Northward Building. Are there other announcements? Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 3, 1955

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend James Gamble, minister of the Pentecostal Holiness Church. Reverend Gamble will give our daily invocation.

REVEREND GAMBLE: Our great and loving Heavenly Father, we bow a moment in Thy divine Presence this morning to thank Thee for life, health and reason. Wilt Thou this day grant special strength and wisdom to these who struggle with the problems involved in giving us a great constitution. We feel that Thy great hands of providence have had a real part in this undertaking, and may it continue to be so until a constitution is presented to the people and accepted by the people which will uphold equity, justice and the freedoms for which our fathers came to America, and as Thy Word says, "May we prosper and be in health even as our soul prospers. This we ask for Jesus' sake. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Nine absent and 46 present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make this morning? If not, we will dispense with that report until the afternoon session. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

CHIEF CLERK: There is a communication from the Office of the Governor, Juneau. (The Chief Clerk read a telegram from the Office of the Governor of Alaska stating Governor Heintzleman would be unable to attend the hearing of the Executive Committee to be held this date because of his absence in Washington, D. C., and calling attention to remarks made in his speech to the delegates at the opening ceremonies.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be referred to the Executive Committee. Are there other communications?

CHIEF CLERK: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, for the Local Government Committee, No. XII, we will not hold our regular meeting this afternoon but will have a meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Apartment 205 in the Northward Building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Local Government will not have its regular meeting this afternoon but will have a meeting at Apartment 205 in the Northward Building at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

ROSSWOG: I would also like to announce that Mr. Weldon Cooper of the University of Virginia has arrived at the request of my Committee, and at this time I would like to introduce him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair sees Mr. Cooper in the gallery. If Mr. Cooper would be kind enough to come forward and say a few words, we would be happy.

MR. COOPER: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, a few words are all I need because I am sure that among this delegation of 55 members there is an ample number to make all the speeches that are needed. I would like to say simply, Mr. President, that I am deeply honored by your invitation to come. I have been in your Territory (and I hope soon your state) only a few hours and have learned a good deal about your Territory. I met a large number of people, and I trust that when I depart, you will not have too many unkind things to say about me. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Cooper. Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I might further announce that Mr. Cooper has written several books and papers on the executive branch and also on local government, so if any of the other committees would like to use his services they are available.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If any of the other committees would desire the services of Mr. Cooper, they are available. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to announce there will be no meeting of the Resources Committee this morning. The next meeting will be at the regularly scheduled time.

V. RIVERS: I want to call the attention of the members to the committee hearing by the Committee on the Executive Branch at 9:30 this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers call the attention of the members to the committee hearing of the Committee on the Executive Branch at 9:30 this morning. Miss Awes?

AWES: There will be no meeting of the Bill of Rights Committee today. Our next meeting will be Monday as scheduled.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Mr. President, I want to be reported present. I was in the Executive meeting in the building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe we have already reported you present. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: There will be a special meeting of the Judiciary Committee as soon as the Convention recesses.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a special meeting of the Judiciary Committee as soon as the Convention recesses. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet for a very few minutes immediately upon adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Style and Drafting will meet immediately upon recess. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: The Committee on Amendment and Revision will meet on schedule this morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Amendment and Revision will meet on schedule this morning. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, Committee No. IV on Ordinances will not meet as the committee until the regular time Monday, except the subcommittees will work over the weekend.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. IV will not meet in regular schedule until Monday. Are there other reports? Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, there are two matters -- one the letter that was authorized to be sent to the Colonel at Eielson Air Force Base -- it has been placed in your hands and I believe you have signed it and sent it on to the proper authorities.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct.

ARMSTRONG: I want to report that. The other matter is the matter of an introduction of a man who has served for many years at St. Lawrence Island, at Hydaburg, Alaska, and has just returned from a six months tour of duty at St. Lawrence Island -- the Reverend Elmer Parker who is with us this morning in the gallery. Those who are interested in some of the problems of the outlying areas, the isolated areas of Alaska, may want to talk or consult with him and I thought the Convention would be glad to know of his presence. (The Reverend Parker stood.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are happy to have you with us, Reverend Parker. Are there any proposals at this time? Any motions or resolutions? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that no plenary session be held this afternoon but that when we adjourn this morning we adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Mr. Sundborg's unanimous consent request. Is there objection to that procedure? If there is no objection it is so ordered. Is there anything else to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, in as much as many members of the Judiciary Committee are on the Committee on Style and Drafting, the Judiciary Committee will meet ten minutes after recess. That is on the presumption that the Style and Drafting Committee meeting will be as short as the Chairman declares it will be.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. (Discussion back and forth between Mr. Metcalf and Mr. McLaughlin at this time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the Convention would be at ease for a few moments, we might have the report from the select committee. If there is no objection the Convention will be at ease for a few moments.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there any report from a select committee that was appointed from among the committee chairmen? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, yesterday you appointed a select committee of three committee chairmen to do some planning with respect to the proposed recess late this month, and the committee in order to do that planning desires some information from each of the delegates. The messenger or the doorkeeper is now distributing to each member of the Convention a questionnaire. May we have permission to proceed with the distributions?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, you may.

SUNDBORG: What we want to know is clearly set forth here. It is just a little questionnaire that asks you about your wishes with respect to the proposed recess, and we are gathering this information so that we may set up or propose at least to the Convention a schedule of hearings during the proposed recess. The questionnaire, after it is filled out, should be returned to the Chief Clerk, and we hope that that may be done by each member by Monday so that we may proceed with our planning and bring our report before the Convention.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, the members would no doubt be curious to know about the opinion of the Attorney General with regards to whether they get per diem during this proposed absence, etc. I might not know whether I want a vacation unless I get a per diem. I think we should have that information in connection with answering this questionnaire.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, you were present when the Attorney General gave his opinion, if you would be so kind to do so.

SUNDBORG: The Attorney General attended a meeting of committee chairmen, I believe day before yesterday, and said that, while the opinion we requested has not yet been written, that it is in process of being written, and that it will say, first of all that, any delegate who desires to return to his home during a recess declared by the Convention will have his transportation paid to his home and return to Fairbanks, that such delegates will also be entitled to claim per diem for one day's travel in each direction. He said further that, if hearings are scheduled delegates will be entitled to claim both salary and per diem for the specific days on which hearings are held but not for other days during the recess. He also said with respect to those who have moved here to Fairbanks with families and do not intend to go home that they would be entitled to claim per diem for the entire 15-day recess, if the recess is for that time. He said further that the 15 days of the recess will not be counted in the 75 days which is the maximum this Convention can meet, but that we will have 75 days of session in addition to the 15-day recess, if one is declared. Does that seem to cover it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That seems to cover it well, Mr. Sundborg. Are there any questions? Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: May I ask a question of Mr. Sundborg? The hearing days -- they are not deducted either from the 75 Convention days?.

SUNDBORG: They would be included in the 15 days of the recess and would not be considered either way.

KILCHER: Is there a reasonable mileage to the hearings? We have large areas to represent down there. It is much more sensible for instance for me to be in Homer. I know that Kenai is bigger than Homer right now, it is 90 miles away. Would it be more sensible for me to travel to Kenai, than to expect anyone in Kenai to travel to Homer?

SUNDBORG: All I can report is what the Attorney General told us and that question did not come up. I think it could be very readily decided.

KILCHER: I understand we have two days per diem to travel up.

It took us two days last trip up. It will take me two days to get home.

SUNDBORG: I am sure that what the Attorney General said was that per diem would be allowed for every day on which a delegate is travelling to and from his home to the Convention. Every delegate, even if it takes only a few hours, would be entitled to one day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: May I address a question to Mr. Sundborg?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mr. Johnson, if there is no objection.

JOHNSON: It was my understanding from what you said that the Attorney General has ruled that anyone who has moved to Fairbanks and is living here during this Convention would be entitled to per diem during the recess. I don't see how that could apply to those of us who live here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, in the Attorney General's opinion, it does not.

JOHNSON: That wasn't clear.

HERMANN: It may have been stated, but has the length of the recess been determined?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That will have to be determined by the Convention. However, the committee chairmen and others who have mentioned it up to this time have felt that we should take the full 15 days. Whether that is the final decision remains with the Convention. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Maybe we should mention also for the guidance of the delegates that tentatively the dates which seem to be most agreeable to the committee chairmen are that the Convention would recess on the 19th of December at the end of the working day and that the recess would begin December 20 and extend through January 3 with the Convention resuming its plenary session on January 4. That is a 15-day recess. I think I also should say, as chairman of this select committee, that the committee has had some discussions about just what arrangements would be made with respect to pay, per diem, etc. We think it should be pointed out that the opinion of the Attorney General is on what is allowable and not necessarily on what we will recommend or what delegates will claim. It is up to the Convention as a matter of policy whether we will in fact claim and pay travel for each member to his home, and it is also up to the Convention as a matter of policy whether there will be either salary or per diem pay on days that hearings are held.

We can do it if the Convention so desires, according to the Attorney General.

LAWS: I would like to ask Mr. Sundborg -- he mentioned that married men would get the per diem for staying here, but how about the single fellows?

SUNDBORG: Even the single fellows will get it, Mr. Laws.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other questions at this time? If not, Mr. Sundborg has asked unanimous consent that at the conclusion of our business we adjourn until 9 a.m. on Monday. If there is no other business, the Chair will put the question. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I was just going to suggest that the committees that are holding hearings today restate them so we will know when and where.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the committees who are holding hearings, please restate them. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Committee on Executive Branch hearing in the rear of the chamber here at 9:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Executive Branch hearing in the rear of the gallery at 9:30. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: The Committee on Resources will hold hearings beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Resources will hold their hearings at 3 o'clock this afternoon, in the rear of this chamber, too, Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I hadn't considered that. I suppose we would follow the pattern which had been established, by holding them here in this room.

COLLINS: In my announcement of Committee XIII on Amendments we have a hearing on schedule. I overspoke myself and we adjourned yesterday to meet Monday, so there will be no committee meeting on schedule today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be no meeting of Committee No. XIII today but the Committee will meet Monday.

NERLAND: Committee No. XI, the Finance Committee, will hold a hearing at 2 p.m. this afternoon. The location will depend of course upon the attendance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It will either be upstairs on the third floor or down here, depending on the number of people to be heard. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I don't have a report, but I would like to ask permission to make a motion if I may at this time. Mr. President, I would like to move that the secretariat write a letter to the Director of Finance of the Territory and a letter to the Territorial Treasurer thanking them on behalf of the Convention for the very expeditious manner in which they have been handling the vouchers and per diem claims and pay checks of this Convention. I don't know whether the members realize it, but it is quite rare for Territorial checks to come through quite that promptly, and it has been done, I understand, because employees in those two offices have agreed to come down and work weekends and evenings and work unusual hours to make the mails and get the checks back to us so that we may have them very promptly. I do think that because of that, it would be proper if we would express our thanks to those two offices for the good work they are doing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the secretariat will write letters to the Territorial Treasurer and the Commissioner of Finance expressing the appreciation of the Convention for the expeditious manner in which they have handled matters pertaining to this Convention. Is there other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we now adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday morning, and in line with the action already taken, that this adjournment be taken out of respect to the memory of the late Anthony J. Dimond.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock Monday morning and that the adjournment be taken out of respect to the memory of the late Anthony J. Dimond. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned until 9 a.m. on Monday.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

BISHOP GORDON: O God our Heavenly Father, Who called us in this Convention to bring the blessings of love and justice and truth to this land of our heritage, fire our minds with a vision of a more perfect society here on earth in which justice, righteousness, peace and brotherhood shall reign according to Thy will. Help us each one to do our part that Thy will may be done on earth as in Heaven. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: Five absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. We will proceed with the regular order of business. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal has read the journal for the 24th Convention day and recommends its approval without change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, speaking for the special Committee assigned to read the journal, asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 24th Convention day be approved. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal has read the journal for the 25th Convention day and asks its approval without change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 25th Convention day be approved without change. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? Are there reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I have two proposals on the Secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other proposals? The Sergeant at Arms may bring them forward.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 31, by Mr. Robertson, BILL OF RIGHTS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: To the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights, Committee No. V.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 32, by Mr. Robertson, STATE LANDS AND NATURAL RESOURCES."

PRESIDENT EGAN: To the Committee on Resources, Committee No. X.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 33, by Mr. Lee, ABOLITION OF FISH TRAPS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Direct Legislation or Resources?

LEE: Mr. President, I request it be referred to Resources.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the proposal will be referred to Committee No. X on Resources. Are there other proposals?

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 34. introduced by Mr. Kilcher, CONVENTION FOR CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. XIII, Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 35, by Mr. Cooper, QUALIFICATION OF VOTERS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Suffrage, Committee No. VI.

CHIEF CLERK: That is all the proposals I have.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any motions or resolutions? Is there any unfinished business? Those questionnaires that were given to the delegates on Saturday -- the Chief Clerk would be very happy if they were turned in this morning to her office. The Chair would like to state that the reporter for the NEWSMINER does not feel too well because there was a slight error in the story that appeared in the paper on Saturday. She states that it was not her story and that we had actually voted on a recess, and she would like to have you all know that it in some manner got in the paper that way but it was not through her reporting in error. Is there any other unfinished business to come before the Convention? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion -- Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention is adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 6, 1955

TWENTY-NINTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning Chaplain Harry P. Henderson of Ladd Air Force Base. Chaplain Henderson will give the morning invocation.

CHAPLAIN HENDERSON: O God our Heavenly Father, as we come to the duties and responsibilities of another day, we would look unto Thee for divine guidance. We thank Thee for the privileges, the opportunities and the responsibilities which come to us in life, and we pray for Thy divine blessing upon these Thy people as they seek to serve Thee and their country. And we ask it all in the Name of Jesus Christ our Lord and our Saviour. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

CHIEF CLERK: Everyone is present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business.

SMITH: Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection to Mr. Smith's request for getting the floor on the question of personal privilege. -- if not, Mr. Smith, continue.

SMITH: Mr. President, I wanted to call attention to the fact that in the gallery we have Senator and Mrs. Ellis, and I would ask unanimous consent that Mr. Ellis be granted the privilege of the floor for a few minutes to say anything he might have to say.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith asks unanimous consent that Senator Bob Ellis of Ketchikan be granted the floor for a minute or so to make any statement he would so desire. Senator Ellis. (Applause)

SENATOR ELLIS: Mr. President and all you delegates and friends. As a Senator, why I seize this opportunity to say a few words.

HILSCHER: I object to the Senator talking behind our backs. Get up here. (Senator Ellis came forward.)

SENATOR ELLIS: I wish I had some important inspirational message to bring to you but I am hoping that while I am here I will learn something about the work of the Convention is doing, that I can take the word back to Ketchikan and give it to those people there. Of course, Ketchikan's greatest interest in the work you are doing is not as strong as it should be and for that reason I think any message I can take back that you want me to take back I will be glad to do, and we can get things stirred up a little better in that area. You have much more important work to do here than listen to me, so thank you for the honor and privilege of addressing you. (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Bob. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time? Doogan? Mr.

DOOGAN: Mr. President, the journal for Saturday has been corrected but not distributed to the other members, as I understand, so I ask it be held up until tomorrow. However, I have the journal for the first four days here of the Convention in front of me, but most of the corrections are corrections an English teacher would have to make if you gave him a thesis to correct. There are many changes in punctuation, indentation for paragraphs, etc., that happened in the heat of getting everything out in the beginning days of the Convention, and I could take the time to go through it so everybody could correct copies, but I would rather suggest that these minutes as corrected for the first four days be left with the Chief Clerk or posted on the bulletin board and let any member that is interested go around for the next couple of days with their copies and correct them in that manner and then, say Thursday, just briefly run through them and accept them at that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Doogan's request that a corrected copy be left with the Chief Clerk and that the members have access to that copy at any time they wish to inspect it, then at a later date the journals of the first four days would be approved by the Convention? Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, if Mr. Doogan would not object I would suggest they be left in the library. There is a table and place to work there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the copies will be left in the library and every member may inspect them in the next day or so. Are there reports of standing committees? Miss Awes?

AWES: I don't know if this is the proper time, but the Committee on the Bill of Rights has referred to the Committee on Resources paragraph 5 of Proposal 9 and paragraphs 6 and 7 of Proposal 17.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Chairman of the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. The particular paragraphs have been referred to the Resources Committee. Mr.

Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, Committee Proposal No. 1 has been submitted by Committee No. VI and distributed, I understand, to the delegates. This represents a portion of the work of Committee VI.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee Proposal No. 1 then, a proposal coming from the Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment, Committee No. VI, will be ordered placed on the calendar in second reading. Are there others? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, maybe I am wrong about this, but I am of the opinion, after being corrected by the chairman of a committee, that the committee itself does not refer things to other committees but they come back on the floor and are then referred. Now maybe I am wrong.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Awes, was that not your reason for rising and reporting that so it would have the effect of allowing the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights to do that?

AWES: I told Mr. Smith, the Chairman of the Resources Committee. Now I am announcing it on the floor. I don't know just the procedure, if there is something else I should do, I'll do it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would that be sufficient, Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I don't think that is the procedure. Perhaps Mr. Riley could tell us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, as Chairman of the Rules Committee, on that particular point --

RILEY: Mr. President, I believe the matter is amply covered in Rule 45 which states, "The President shall refer to the appropriate Standing Committee each proposal introduced. Where a proposal embraces subject matter which falls within the proper consideration of two or more Standing Committees, the President may divide the proposal or he may refer it to one Standing Committee with instructions to consult with other Standing Committees." I think it is solely in the province of the Chair to make those decisions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the Chair has announced that those paragraphs are referred to the Committee on Resources.

HERMANN: I just wanted the record straight, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mrs. Hermann. Are there other committee reports? Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Along this line of consulting with other committees, I believe that the actual referral is still in the hands of the original committee. Dorothy could have shoved it over to this other committee on a consultation basis or had a joint meeting with them and not have to report that to the Convention at all, because I believe that when that other committee gives her an expression that it still is for her Committee to report back to us, unless there is going to be a report on that referral from the one committee to the other, I should think the committees could work that all out without this procedure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Inasmuch as it was brought on the floor, Mr. Rivers, that was about the only way it could be handled. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, it was merely in the interest of saving time that this method was proposed and carried through. It would save considerable time for both committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other reports of standing committees? Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? The Chief Clerk will read the communications. (The Chief Clerk read a telegram from R. E. McFarland, President of the Alaska Territorial Federation of Labor, stating that the first day of merger of the AFL-CIO saw the unanimous passage of a resolution calling for immediate statehood for Alaska.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be filed.

CHIEF CLERK: A letter from Colonel Carl Y. Farrell. (The Chief Clerk read a letter from Colonel Carl Y. Farrell, District Engineer, offering a film to be shown, entitled The Great Land covering the activities of the Corps of Engineers in Alaska since 1869).

MARSTON: Mr. Chairman, I have seen that picture. I think it would be a very fine thing to have here. Old man Lloyd lived in the Arctic for 50 years and after quite some time he carved himself out a table by hand. It has become a museum piece. I am wondering what is being done about a table here. It is quite inconvenient without these tables. I think somebody should start carving pretty soon.

TAYLOR: On that question, I move we accept the offer of Colonel Farrell for the use of that film and I think it would be quite enlightening to all delegates and possibly educational and instructive.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, along that same line, Mr. Frank Whaley approached me the other morning and stated that he has a film on the Arctic on the Eskimo that will run for about an hour also, in addition to Colonel Farrell's film, and the President was wondering if perhaps the Convention might be more acceptable to arranging to have these two films shown together some evening or on Sunday afternoon, or some such time as that. Perhaps it would be well to discuss that. Is there any discussion on that. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the matter of the showing of the two films, those of Colonel Farrell and that of Mr. Whaley, be left to the Committee on Administration to correspond with the two persons and to arrange a convenient time when both films may be shown to the delegates.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the suggestion of Mr. Sundborg? If not, the matter is referred to the Committee on Administration.

TAYLOR: I move to a point of order. There is a motion before the house.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, Mr. Taylor,

TAYLOR: I withdraw the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there's no objection, Mr. Taylor will withdraw his motion. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that we acknowledge the wire of the combined CIO and AFL and thank them for their support in their resolution approving statehood at an early date for Alaska and Hawaii and that the President and Secretary be authorized to sign such a wire.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection it is so ordered and the Convention will acknowledge the wire and thank the CIO-AFL for their support in their resolution approving statehood in an early day for Alaska and Hawaii, and the President and Secretary will sign such a wire. Are there other communications? Any proposals to be introduced at this time?

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 36, MEMBERSHIP OF THE STATE SENATE, introduced by Mrs. Sweeney."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. VII on the Legislative Branch. Are there other proposals? Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. President, I thought that would be referred to the Committee on Apportionment, etc.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps that is correct, Mrs. Sweeney. The proposal is referred to Committee No. VI on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment. The Chair stands corrected. Are there any other proposals? Are there any motions or resolutions? Is there any other unfinished business? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I don't know if this is exactly unfinished business, but I am making it in connection with the statement I made a few days ago that I was going to turn into a nagging wife if the reports of committees did not show some speed in coming in. Right now I am not inclined to do any nagging, but I would like to ask unanimous consent that all chairmen of committees, beginning with Committee No. IV, the first three not included, make a progress report each morning as a part of the regular business of this body, telling when they expect to get their reports in and how far along they are and things of that sort instead of just calling meetings. I ask unanimous consent that that be the order of the Convention.

SMITH: I will have to object temporarily.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Do you so move, Mrs.

Hermann?

HERMANN: I so move.

H. FISCHER: Second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Helen Fischer seconds the motion. Mr.

Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, my objection is based on the fact that at least as one Committee Chairman my time is very well filled up at the present time, and if I have to compile a report to make to this body every morning, it is going to be further burdened. The committees, I believe, have agreed to file at the end of each week a summary of the progress which we have made, and I just simply feel that it would not fall within the abilities of especially myself, to fulfill the obligations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I agree with Delegate Smith on that. I have watched the work of the committees with some interest and the progress as well, and I think they fall into normally two different classes or groups. I think the work of those committees which we will want to consider first, Preamble and Bill of Rights and three divisions of powers branches, Legislative, Executive and Judicial, are now in the process of almost completion, and the others, such as Resources and Local Government, are substantially more difficult problems and will normally follow after the three or four I mentioned have been considered. It seems to me that the motion to make a morning report at this time, especially on those latter two committees, would be inappropriate, in regard to time. It would take time and gain nothing. It is not going to be probably much after the end of the week that all three of the reports will be in, and this morning we have received the partial report of the Suffrage and Elections Committee. I think the weekly report serves our purpose quite well, and after the four committee reports I mentioned are in I feel sure Delegate Hermann will not be inclined to think there is not enough work on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins.

COLLINS: Mr. Chairman, Committee No. XIII, as Chairman, I heartily agree with Mr. Smith and Mr. Rivers. We are working on problems that take all our time, and the only thing we could report would be progress. Now that would not give any information whatever, but just as soon as the time arrives we will have a report. It will be a duplication of making a report every morning five times a week.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I think the committees are getting bogged down on what they consider reports. I did not intend for them to write a long-winded report which nobody would read anyway, but rather to stand up and say, "We expect to have our report in at such and such a time. I think this little one we have here today is fine. I am very proud of Mr. Hellenthal for being able to get the first committee proposal in, but we are certainly bogged down here so far as transacting business outside the committees is concerned, and I think something there should be done, and this was my solution of it, to hurry this thing along a little. I am perfectly aware of the fact that there are some committees that necessarily need more time than others, but I am also aware of the fact that some of the reports that should come out of committees should not take any time, so to speak, at all. We are starting our fourth week on straight committee work at which time a good many of us are marking time, as I called your attention the other day to the fact that there are three members of the Style and Drafting Committee who are not or any of these substance committees, and in addition to that there are six others who are only on one. Our time is practically being wasted, not exactly, but we certainly are not producing up to the full capacity that we are expected to produce in a gathering of this type, and we can't until the reports come in. I can't see any necessity for another week or another two weeks or ten days for most of the committees. I recognize the complexities of the Resources Committee and Local Government Committee, but there are still nine other committees that should be getting some reports in here and promptly because we ought to go to work on them. And I don't want to appear to be disparaging any of the committees, because I am not, but I do feel we must get a little further along with this work. By the end of this week Mr. Rivers says most of them will be ready to report. We will have a week apparently before that Christmas vacation starts, and then we come back and start over again. Well, it seems to me that we ought to get more done than we have so far. I get letters all the time from people who want to know what we are doing up here except arguing, and I can't tell them. Mr. President, I think we have only heard from committee chairmen in opposition to this. There must be a whole lot of people here on the floor who are not committee chairmen who may feel as I do that we need to make a little more speed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, the Committee on the Judiciary Branch, being aware of the unemployment of some members of the Convention, is prepared to submit tomorrow on the floor, with the cooperation of the boiler room, a complete proposed article on the Judiciary Branch, and we feel sure it will keep some of the delegates occupied.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I am not a committee chairman. I know of no committee in this Convention that is not working as hard as it can and which is not interested in getting a report on the floor as soon as possible. My personal experience with two committees is that I know the lack of submission of any report to the Committee on Style and Drafting is an attempt not to waste their time by submitting piecemeal reports that might be of no use. The committees I serve on feel it would be of more value to the Convention and to the Committee on Style and Drafting to submit a full report all at once. It certainly is the desire of those committees, and I am sure of all others, to get a report on the floor as soon as possible. I feel this matter of reporting is amply taken care of by the fact that each committee has been requested to submit to the Committee on Style and Drafting on a target date, and that no further report is necessary or useful unless that target is changed. In the absence of any report I think the Committee on Style and Drafting assumes that they can count on that target date. Any further remarks that I might make, I feel that a report every morning would merely clutter up the journal and serve no useful purpose whatsoever.

HERMANN: My request was not that the work be turned over to the Committee on Style and Drafting at all. My request was that it be put on the floor and taken care of in second reading so that it could ultimately get to Style and Drafting. That is my reason for thinking that we should be moving along a little faster. There is a great deal of floor work to be done here and no matter how perfect a report each committee ultimately turns out, that work will still have to be done and we will have to take up those committee proposals paragraph by paragraph for amendment, and it is going to be very time consuming. We are pretty near half through the time allotted now, and I am seriously concerned with the log jam that is apt to develop here in the closing days if we don't get a little speed on.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, as one of the committee chairmen I want to agree with Mrs. Hermann here, and so later on in the week I don't have to ask for the privilege of the floor that I can say it now in one or two minutes, that in view of the fact that I talked of completing this Convention in 30 days and possibly maybe subject to recall about December 8, I want to agree with Mrs. Hermann. I have done a little study on this. I think the majority of our constitutions drawn for the states were completed in periods from 30 to 45 days, and of utmost interest in support of Mrs. Hermann here is the fact that we went into our Ordinances Committee yesterday and a proposition came up about elections. As you all know, February 1 is the deadline for filing in Territorial elections. By taking off 15 days for a recess, this Convention could go until the 9th or 10th of February in order to run out your full 75 days. Then it brings up the serious question of not only can ordinances proposed by our committee be gotten onto the ballot, but it also brings up the proposition of can you get the constitution onto the ballot and have it printed in ample time to have it up before the primary election, if this Convention goes to its ultimate end of February 10. I think it behooves each and all of us to endeavor so far as possible to do anything to get these reports out on the floor, will help speed up the business of this body. Further, by running out to your ultimate conclusion of the 9th or 10th of February, will this body have sufficient funds to even pay for the printing of the ballots. I think it goes without saying that the body is not going to have enough funds if it goes to the end, to hold a special election for this purpose. On that special election which is going to follow up some of the work and change plans within the ordinance and transitional measures that come at the end of this constitution and a need to put it into effect, in anything that will speed up the progress of this body and incidentally and possibly prevent McNealy from being recalled. However, I grant the fact that 54 delegates probably could finish this Convention and draw a constitution without me being present. I would like to be here at the end anyway.

V. FISCHER: We have a motion on the floor asking for daily reports by committee chairmen. Most of the discussion in favor of such an action has however been on the basis of, "Let's get to work, let's get this Convention over with as soon as possible. To my way of thinking there is no relationship between the two. As Mr. Collins pointed out, bringing progress reports before us every morning will not help speed the work of the committees. I think you have to assume good faith in all committee chairmen and every member of each committee, that they will get work out as soon as possible. Just requiring them to report every morning will not speed up the work.

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, I wanted to move the previous question and in compliance with Rule 43 would like to submit Proposal No. 1 for second reading at this time so all delegates can start earning their money.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper moves the previous question be ordered. Is there a second to the motion?

STEWART: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. B. D. Stewart seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All in favor say "aye", all opposed say no. The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall the committee chairmen make progress reports to the Convention each morning?" All those in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the motion has failed. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that this Convention make for its special order of business on Thursday morning, next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, consideration of the article of the proposal on the Judiciary Branch which will be submitted by the Judiciary Committee tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves that the Convention make for its special order of business on Thursday morning at 10 a.m. consideration of the Judiciary article.

MCLAUGHLIN: I ask unanimous consent. It will be submitted tomorrow morning, Mr. President. It is being mimeographed now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Was the suggestion that that be taken up before the proposal is before us?

MCLAUGHLIN: I am asking for a unanimous consent, Mr. President.

V. RIVERS: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

TAYLOR: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves, Mr. Taylor seconds the motion that the report of the Committee on the Judiciary be taken up at 10 a.m. on Thursday morning. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, it seems to me we are sort of jumping the gun if we approve this motion. It seems to me that our rules provide that the Rules Committee will, with the assistance of the Secretary, make up a calendar. I believe it should fall in its normal order under the decision of the Rules Committee. I think that some of these subjects should be discussed in proper order. For each committee chairman to jump up and say when they think their proposal should come into second reading would be robbing the Rules Committee prerogatives in arranging the calendar. I think the Rules Committee should be able to use their discretion and judgment in providing the time as to when the hearings for the various subjects should take place. Therefore I oppose this motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chairman would like to state that the Chairman of the Rules Committee signified that he would like to have a meeting of the Rules Committee immediately following adjournment to more or less consider this question that you have raised.

MCLAUGHLIN: Under those circumstances and with the consent of my second I withdraw the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then, the motion has been withdrawn. Is there other business to come before the Convention?

HERMANN: One more thing, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: . Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: A few moments ago, the statement was made that all committee chairmen have set their target dates and reported them to the Committee on Style and Drafting. I know of no target dates that have been set with the exception of the one that Mr. McLaughlin just now announced. If the Chairman has received them, I would like to know why the Committee has not been advised.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Style and Drafting has asked Mr. Emil Sady to compile target dates for submission of proposals, and I talked with Mr. Sady about this last evening and understand that the subject will be on the agenda of the meeting of committee chairmen this afternoon. So we should have a report to make to the Convention at tomorrow morning's session on the target dates for every committee.

HERMANN: May I ask Mr. Sundborg a question? Have target dates been submitted to you previously for all the committees?

SUNDBORG: Not for all the committees, Mrs. Hermann. I would say that we have received target dates for about half of the committees. The earliest target date was December 5, and two proposals in fact were given to the secretariat last night and they range from that date through about the 15th of December, but as I say, we have not yet heard from quite all the committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business to come before the Convention? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, your Committee on Administration will meet one hour after adjournment in this room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration will meet one hour after adjournment in this room. Mr. Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: Mr. President, I believe it would be proper to have a statement by Mr. Coghill sometime during this early part of his return from Washington, on the Convention. I believe we would be interested, it would be informative, and it touches on many of our problems, and I hope that can be arranged on our schedule.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard Reverend Armstrong's suggestion.

ARMSTRONG: I would ask unanimous consent that he be given a place on the docket.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Reverend Armstrong asks unanimous consent that Mr. Coghill be given a place on the calendar at some future time to make a report on his trip to the educational conference. Is there objection? Hearing no objection then it will be arranged for a future time. Is there any other business? Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, this is simply to confirm the word from the Chair that the Rules Committee will meet in the gallery immediately upon adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President. Your special committee on arranging committee hearings during the recess will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the lounge upstairs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The special committee of committee chairmen appointed to make suggestions as to the appointment of committees, if there is a recess, will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon upstairs. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, I hate to bother you again but I would like to know if it has been definitely decided when we recess for Christmas and how long we stay recessed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That has not been definitely decided, you are correct, Mrs. Hermann, and it is up to the Convention to make that decision. Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the matter of determining the exact date of recess be set as a general order of the day for tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley moves and asks unanimous consent that the matter of determining specific dates for the recess for the purpose of holding public committee hearings be set as a general order of business for tomorrow. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: I object.

KILCHER: Second.

SUNDBORG: I would like to say I withdraw objection if you will make it for day after tomorrow or Friday. My purpose is to say that it will be impossible to have a meeting of the special committee which is considering that until late this afternoon and that committee wants to bring a report back to the meeting of committee chairmen, which we could not do until tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. And I assume the committee chairmen might have something to propose about it on the floor the following day or on Friday. I wonder if that would satisfy Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Not completely. The reason that I mentioned this is I think maybe we have two distinct problems here. They aren't inter-related but I think they could be considered separately. The one is the matter of time period of adjournment and the other is the matter of the arrangement of the hearings to be held during adjournment. I can see the correlation of them and yet I feel that many of us desire to know just what plans the Convention will be making as soon as possible so we can make the necessary arrangements. I hate to bring the matter to a vote if it is not sensible to make the decision. I would ask Mr. Sundborg in the light if he can see a possibility of determining the two things separately.

SUNDBORG: I certainly am agreeable, Mr. President, and it might be at the committee chairmen meeting today we could settle only the question of the dates, but as I say, our select committee will not be able to meet until 3 o'clock this afternoon because of conflicting assignment by the members, so we would not be able to bring our full report to the committee chairmen until tomorrow. But if the Chair feels we could set the dates by discussion at the committee chairmen meeting this afternoon or pick some dates which the committee chairmen would like to propose on the floor tomorrow, I am agreeable to Mr. Hurley's original suggestion.

JOHNSON: How can the committee chairmen set the dates when that is a matter for the whole Convention?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, I don't think Mr. Sundborg meant the committee chairmen would set the dates but perhaps recommend the dates. Mr. Hurley, was your unanimous consent request in the form of a motion?

HURLEY: I so move.

KILCHER: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved by Mr. Hurley, seconded by Mr. Kilcher then that the matter be taken up as a general order of business tomorrow. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: One matter Mr. Sundborg perhaps inadvertently overlooked is that we wired, on Friday, the committee that is advising the committee chairmen committee who in turn will advise the floor, we wired and asked the Attorney General to submit his written decision regarding this matter to us, and I think that all the questions will hinge on a study of the written opinion of the Attorney General. To date the opinion has been given piece-meal, and I don't see how we can intelligently pursue the matter or make a recommendation until we have that written opinion, and that was what I believe led the committee to wait so they would not go off half-cocked.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the question of setting a time for recess be held as a general order of business during tomorrow's session?" All those in favor of the question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed, by saying "no". The "noes have it and the motion has failed. Is there other business to come before the Convention? If not the Chair will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: I move and ask unanimous consent that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 7, 1955

THIRTIETH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend A. L. Moore of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Fairbanks. Reverend Moore will give our daily invocation.

REVEREND MOORE: Our dear, kind Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for all Thy many blessings, for life and health and strength. We are especially thankful to Thee this morning for the privilege of living in a free country, for the privilege of holding and expressing our own views. We thank Thee for the privilege of living in a country in which we may formulate our own constitution and laws. We would ask You to bless this morning and this meeting and in the days to come. Bless each individual as they discuss the problems relating to our Territory and as they formulate a constitution. We ask Thee to be with the leaders of our Nation in the Capital and ask You to give them wisdom and understanding. We would ask Thee also to direct them in such a way, if it is Thy will, that Alaska may be instituted as a state. We ask these things in Thy Holy Name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with its regular order of business. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make? Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: Mr. President, for the journal of the 26th day, I ask unanimous consent that it be approved as read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight asks unanimous consent that the journal of the 26th Convention day be approved as read. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the journal of the 26th day is ordered approved. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? Are there reports of standing committees?

CHIEF CLERK: I have one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the report.

CHIEF CLERK: "Report of the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations. The Committee, having had under consideration at several meetings Delegate Victor Fischer's Proposal No. 10, and Mr. Fischer as well as Consultants Sady and Elliot having appeared before the Committee and expressed their views, and Mr. Elliott having stated that he did not think that the subject matter of Proposal No. 10 properly constituted Constitutional Matter, reports to the Convention that the Committee is of opinion that Proposal No. 10 should not be included in the Constitution and that it is not Constitutional matter.

Adopted December 6, 1955.

Signed by John M. Cross, Chairman."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Resolutions Committee as regards Proposal No. 10. What is the pleasure of the Convention as regards the report?

V. FISCHER: I move the report to the Committee be approved and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves and asks unanimous consent that the report of the committee which was just read be approved. Is there objection? There being no objection it is so ordered. Are there reports of other standing committees? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. Is this the time for the submission of committee proposals?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That will come soon, Mr. McLaughlin. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the Style and Drafting Committee has distributed today a memorandum outlining target dates which have been mentioned to this Committee by each of the standing committees. These are the dates on which committee proposals are scheduled to be reported out of committee to the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe every delegate has a copy of that memorandum on his desk. Are there reports of select committees? Introduction and first reading of proposals? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: The Committee on the Judiciary Branch submits its proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal by the Committee on the Judiciary Branch will be read for the first time. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a brief time. (Brief recess)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee Proposal No. 2 by the Judiciary Committee will be read for the first time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Committee Proposal No. 2, introduced by the Committee on the Judiciary Branch, ARTICLE ON THE JUDICIARY."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Rules Committee for assignment on the calendar. Are there other reports? The Chair would like to state that Committee Proposal No. 1 that came from the Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment yesterday was not properly read for the first time. If there is no objection the Chief Clerk will read the proposal for the first time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Committee Proposal No. 1, introduced by Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment, ARTICLE ON SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Rules Committee for assignment to the calendar. The Chief Clerk will proceed with the reading of proposals.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 37, introduced by Mr. Londborg, SENATE APPORTIONMENT."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 38, introduced by Mr. Taylor, BILL OF RIGHTS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights.

CHIEF CLERK: That is all I have.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other proposals? Are there any other proposals? Are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: The Committee on Administration has a Convention resolution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it your desire to bring the resolution to the attention of the Convention at this time, Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Yes.

CHIEF CLERK: "Resolution, introduced by Committee on Administration, CONVENTION RECESS."

WHEREAS, the Act providing for this Constitutional Convention permits the Convention to recess for a period of not to exceed 15 days for the purpose of holding public hearings in Alaska;

WHEREAS, all substantive committees of the Convention plan to recommend articles for inclusion in the Constitution prior to December 19;

WHEREAS, the holding of public hearings by as many delegates as practicable in communities throughout Alaska after December 19 will permit delegates to gain valuable insights into public reaction to committee proposals and to enable them to act more wisely on these proposals prior to their final adoption by the Convention:

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That the Convention recess from December 19, 1955 to January 3, 1955 inclusive, for the purpose of holding public hearings in Alaska on proposed provisions of the Constitution;

2. That hearings be held by such delegates at such times and places as the Convention shall approve;

3. That the delegates shall be entitled to reimbursement for their actual travel cost going to and returning from their homes for the recess and to compensation and per diem for the days involved in such travel.

4. That the delegates who participate in public hearings scheduled by the Convention will be entitled to compensation and per diem for the actual days devoted to such hearings, if it is necessary for the delegates to travel from their homes for such periods. Hearings shall not exceed the number of days approved in advance by the Convention. If the site of the hearings is away from their home, they shall also be entitled to reimbursement for the actual cost of travel going to the hearings and returning to their homes or to the Convention.

5. That those delegates whose normal residence is outside the Fairbanks area shall be entitled for per diem for the days of Convention recess spent in the Fairbanks area.

6. That the rate of compensation and per diem shall be those established in the Convention Enabling Act."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the Convention as regards the Resolution? Have copies of the Resolution been passed around? If not, the Convention will be at ease for a few minutes. The Convention will come to order. What is the pleasure of the Convention as regards the Resolution?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move that the Convention Resolution on Recess be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves that the Resolution dealing with the recess be adopted by the Convention.

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor seconds the motion.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, may I direct a question to the Chairman of the Committee?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mr. White.

WHITE: Has the Committee figured out the cost involved here for travel and per diem during travel and pay and per diem during the holding of hearings and ascertained whether it will fit within our budget?

COGHILL: This has not been figured. We plan on figuring that as soon as the special committee on recess hearings brings in a report, and we were instructed by the President of the Convention to work with that Committee to the point of finding out the cost of the Convention hearings during the recess time. We will also at that time have a full report of monies expended up to December 19th.

LONDBORG: It seems that perhaps the hearings could run into a big expense. It might be better to wait until the other report could be worked in with this one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you offer that as a suggestion, Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: Yes I do.

WHITE: I move to divide the question as between paragraphs 1 and 2 and paragraphs 3, 4, 5 and 6 on the other one.

V. FISCHER: I second that motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White moves that the question be divided. Mr. White, in order to defer to Mr. Londborg, I believe Mr. Londborg intended to ask, and it may be he just did not put a motion properly, to ask that this be held until tomorrow in lieu of a report on the cost. Would you be so inclined to agree to such a request?

MCNEES: Point of order. Did Mr. Londborg make that in a form of a motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg did not say he was making a motion. He said that was his wish, that he make that request. The Chair felt it was the responsibility of the Chair to help. Mr. Londborg put his request in the proper fashion.

MCNEES: There isn't any objection to the original motion by Mr. Coghill, is there?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, except that Mr. Londborg signified an intention to ask that it be held over until a cost report was in. Mr. White?

WHITE: I have no objection if it is Mr. Londborg's intention not to delay action on 1 and 2 beyond tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: If the special committee would have the report by then I would like to move that it be made the first matter of business tomorrow along with the other reports.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I believe your special committee will have a report at tomorrow's session. In the meantime it appears to me there are several errors in the Resolution as presented. I wonder if we want to work on those now or discuss them -- for instance on the date -- or do you want to lay the whole thing over?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, if we agree to hold this over until tomorrow morning, it might be well that the Chairman of the Administration Committee could work with you on that and present it properly. Is there objection to Mr. Londborg's request to hold this Resolution over as the first order of business tomorrow morning?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: Mr. Chairman. I see no objection to Mr. Londborg's request. I think we ought to proceed a little cautiously on this. If we accept this proposal as read this morning as it is, we don't know at this time what the cost is. If we overrun our budget, it would be a serious matter. I think we should have the information before we pass on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to holding this report over as first order of business tomorrow? Mr. King?

KING: I think it is imperative that it be done quickly because going into Pan American last night to make reservations, I just about did not get any reservations. If we don't catch the plane on the 20th we might not get home where I live, at all. They asked if I would call from here as to the date that was set here. It is very important to them as they may have to put on an extra section.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, may I direct a question to Mr. Londborg? Would you have any objection to dividing the question that is proposed by Mr. White so that the dates, with slight revision, could be approved today since that may not have any basic effect upon the total expenditures. The question as to expenditures that is of paying both compensation and per diem, travel, and that sort of thing and that is where the main cost comes in.

ARMSTRONG: I think it is directly connected together. If we are having hearings, then my judgment on dates would be one fashion. If we are not having hearings then I would suggest, and I will amend eventually, that we come back on the 29th. Someone said that they hate to think of us conducting business over the New Year. I don't know of any better process for us to be in than to start the New Year on this and I have faith that every member of the Convention would be here on the floor and on his feet and ready to work. I say that with all the implications, knowing it, but I have faith in the group here and I would make an amendment in view of the decision on hearings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, so far as I personally am concerned, it is important to me to get this matter settled and I think a good many others feel the same way. I wonder if it might not be advisable to take a short recess and let this committee get together and come on and take care of it today instead of putting it off until tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I agree with Mr. Davis on this. I might say in the chairmen's committee meeting that this would cost between $6,000 and $7,000 was roughly figured at that, and also there is a miscellaneous item in the budget of some $23,6000 which is available for such items as this item. I give those figures to you merely as they were roughly calculated at the time the chairmen's meeting had its gathering on this subject.

COGHILL: I might add that probably one of the mistakes Mr. Sundborg was bringing out was the December 19 to January 3, inclusive. It should be the 20th to the 2nd, actually. We figured the 15 days for the recess being the maximum time because for the delegates to get back to their constituents and to the public and hold a hearing or a group of hearings, it is going to take all of that time. I don't believe that having Christmas in there is the intent of this recess. I believe the intent of this recess is for public hearings, and I think you are going to find an interested public to the point where you are going to have to hold a half dozen hearings when you get back into your areas.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I think if the recess is solely for the purpose of holding public hearings we should start it now and end it well before Christmas. I have my own ideas that we won't have many people attending public hearings during Christmas week.

R. RIVERS: Why bicker about the purpose of this recess? I think it fits in to try to hold some public hearings, but actually it gives the delegates a chance to get home to be with their families at Christmas and also maybe to bolster up their businesses a bit so they can come back after the New Year knowing that they are still afloat, so let's stick to the business of having a Christmas vacation. Let's not start any hearings now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: I think we ought to face the problem. That is probably the reason we are having a recess, as Mr. Rivers said, to bolster our business and to go home on a frolic during the holidays. I don't think we should spend any public monies and if we are going to have hearings, I am inclined to agree with Delegate Hermann, that we should recess now and go back and conduct hearings and come back here and be in session during the holidays.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state that the Chair assumes that Mr. Londborg's suggestion has been objected to and we are now on the original motion for the adoption of the resolution. The motion to divide has not actually been made because of the fact the Chairman recognized Mr. Londborg's request. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: Mr. Chairman, I stated that in the form of a motion, that it be made a first order of business tomorrow. I thought I heard a second to that.

SUNDBORG: I second it.

LONDBORG: We should have the report from the Committee on Administration, and they should have the full financial report presented to them before we load them down with this. The per diem alone for 55 delegates for 15 days, if they would elect to take that, which they are entitled to, would come to $16,500. It would be pretty easy to use up the difference.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under this resolution, Mr. Londborg, there is no possibility that 55 delegates could take 15 days per diem.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, point of order. It occurs to me that Mr. Londborg's motion is in the nature of a motion to lay on the table and is therefore not debatable.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, it might be in the nature to lay on the table, but the motion was to make it the first order of business tomorrow which is not in the nature of laying on the table. To set over to a set time is debatable. Is there . further discussion? Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would again like to direct the same question I did before to Mr. Londborg. Somebody else got up between. That question was about the division as proposed by Mr. White. Do you think that should await the report by the Committee on Administration?

LONDBORG: Well, I would think the whole thing ties in together, myself. However, if you wish to move to amend it can be put to a vote. But I don't believe one more day is going to throw too many of us off. Probably some have already put in reservations on transportation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question before us at this time is, "Shall this resolution be held over as a first order of business tomorrow?"

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is not further discussion all those in favor of the question signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 32 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Collins, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hilscher. Johnson, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 21 - Awes, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis. H. Fischer, Harris, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, King, Knight, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, V. Rivers, Stewart, VanderLeest.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, McCutcheon.)

CHIEF CLERK: Thirty-two yeas, 21 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion has carried and the resolution is held over until the first order of business tomorrow. Are there other motions or resolutions to come before us at this time?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, may I revert back to the order of business covering the introduction of proposals?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will now revert back to the order of business of introduction of proposals. The Chief Clerk may proceed with the reading of the proposal.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 39, by Mr. Johnson, TRANSITORY PROVISIONS."

COGHILL: Point of information. Does it take a two-thirds vote to hold something over for a special order of business?

V. RIVERS: It requires a two-thirds for a special order. That was postponed to a set time and that requires a majority.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. IV the Committee on Ordinances. Are there other proposals?

CHIEF CLERK: That is all I have.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other unfinished business? Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: May we revert back to communications from outside the Convention? I have a wire I would like to have read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will revert back to communications from outside the Convention at this time. The Clerk may read the communication.

CHIEF CLERK: From Fred M. Langsam. (The Chief Clerk read a telegram from Dr Fred M. Langsam, President of the Northwestern Alaska Chamber of Commerce at Nome, opposing any Judiciary proposal combining the Second and Fourth Divisions and removing the court from Nome.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be referred to the Judiciary Committee. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, merely to clarify the matter for the Convention, there is no proposal in the Judiciary Committee's Branch proposed to remove any court from any place.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, we can probably take care of that and communicate that fact to these people. Are there any other reports or communications at this time? The Chair would like to state that in the gallery this morning is Mr. A. L. Renshaw, a member of the University of Alaska Mining Society. Mr. Renshaw has an invitation he would like to extend to the delegates at this time. Mr. Renshaw, would you wish to come forward?

MR. RENSHAW: This Saturday evening the Mining Society is sponsoring a dance to be held in the cafeteria. It is a semi-formal affair. We have gone to considerable expense to provide professional entertainment. I would like for you delegates to feel welcome to attend and encourage you to do so. We would like to have you come and enjoy yourself and meet the people who will inherit this constitution. Thank you.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Renshaw. I feel certain you will have a good attendance of delegates. Is there any other unfinished business? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, the Rules Committee will meet immediately upon adjournment in this room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Rules Committee will meet immediately upon adjournment in this room. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Committee III, Style and Drafting, will have a luncheon meeting in the cafeteria at 12:15.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Style and Drafting will have a luncheon meeting at 12:15 in the cafeteria. Are there other committee reports? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, Committee No. IV on Ordinances will not meet until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Ordinances will not meet until 3 o'clock this afternoon. Are there other reports? Any special orders of the day? If not, the Chair will entertain a motion -- Mr. King?

KING: Appearing before the Resources Committee, we hope before adjournment, will appear Dr. Gabrielson who is a national authority on fish and wildlife and his expenses are underwritten here by the Wildlife Association here in Alaska and the National Wildlife Institute. Due to his importance as a figure in this field I would certainly like to ask the Convention if he could appear before the Convention as a whole for a short talk before he appears before the various committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you have a set date, Mr. King?

KING: He was tied up until the 13th and I don't know if the Secretary of the Resources Committee has received a wire and he set a definite date or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are asking then, Mr. King, unanimous consent that the Convention hear, or ask Dr. Gabrielson to appear before it and present a brief talk upon his arrival?

KING: Due to his importance as a national figure and leading exponent of wildlife.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the request of Mr. King. Is there objection?

V. RIVERS: I will object temporarily.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second to the motion?

COOPER: I second the motion.

V. RIVERS: My objection stems from the fact we are taking an action to set an order of business which we are not entirely certain that Mr. Gabrielson will be here at that time. I would much prefer to see the motion come up when he is actually here, when the issues are before us. To take action at this time I think we would be making a mistake.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of the particular motion?

KING: Mr. President, it was not my idea that the date be set. I just wanted to get the consent of the body here so that we could prepare an itinerary for Dr. Gabrielson when he came, that he would be able to appear before the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I object to this kind of procedure not only because of the time being uncertain but also bringing a specific individual who is coming here to talk in favor of more or less a specific proposal according to the understanding that some of us have. It would seem to me that it would be more appropriate if Mr. Gabrielson addressed the Committee on Resources just as Delegate Bartlett did, and I am sure there will be just as many delegates, if not more, in attendance to hear him that way as there would be if he addressed the Convention as a whole, and I believe it would be a more proper procedure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. President, we have set a little precedent on this Committee of the Whole. I agree entirely with Delegate King. He's a national figure, he is coming at his own expense, he knows a lot about this field, (we may not agree with him personally) but if he wishes to speak to the Committee of the Whole rather than make a Committee of the Whole out of the Committee on Resources, he may have something worthwhile to say for everyone and we have extended this privilege to other persons, and I believe that it would actually be poor conduct to refuse a National figure the appearance of the Committee of the Whole. As far as the date is concerned, I agree with Mr. Victor Rivers. that until a definite date is known, we need not go into something like that, but from there on I believe that if this gentleman wished to speak to the whole Convention he should be given that opportunity.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is then that the Convention allow Dr. Gabrielson to be heard before the Convention at such time as he might arrive here or wish to be heard by the Convention.

TAYLOR: Mr. Chairman, I move that the matter be laid on the table.

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the motion be laid on the table. The motion is undebatable. All those in favor of laying the motion on the table will signify by saying "aye" --

JOHNSON: Roll call, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll at Mr. Johnson's request.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 17 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Hellenthal, Hinckel, Hurley, Londborg, Poulsen, Reader, R. Rivers. Taylor, Walsh, White, Mr. President.

Nays:. 36 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Emberg, Gray, Harris, Hermann, Hilscher, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight aws, Lee, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Wien.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, McCutcheon.)

CHIEF CLERK: Seventeen yeas, 36 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed. We have the original motion before us. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to move to amend the motion to invite Dr. Gabrielson rather than just allow him to address the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion, if there is no objection, shall be so stated that we invite Dr. Gabrielson to address us. Is there a second to that motion to amend the original motion?

GRAY: I second it.

TAYLOR: I object for the purposes of information. I take it from the first motion that Dr. Gabrielson has requested permission to appear before the Convention. Is that right?

KING: Mr. President, Dr. Gabrielson has never been here. He does not know a thing about it. We are just trying to get him up here without expense to the people of the Territory and without cost to the Convention -- just ask a simple request that he appear as an expert, exponent of wildlife and fish, to appear before this Convention.

TAYLOR: Well, then I believe if we ask him to appear before this Convention, we will be duty bound to pay his expenses the same as we have the other experts and specialists.

KING: I would rather withdraw the motion than have all this arguing with a lot of important work to do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion was to amend it by inviting Dr. Gabrielson instead of allowing him. Is there objection to that amendment? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: May I ask a question of Mr. King? To clear it in my mind, is Dr. Gabrielson's expenses being paid by the Sportsmen's Association or is he coming at his own expense?

KING: I thought I made that very clear in my opening statement. His expenses are paid by the Wildlife Institute, Alaska Sportsman's Council and Territorial Sportsmen's Association in Juneau. Mr. Riley, the Secretary of the Resources Committee, has that record in his file.

WHITE: Mr. President, I rise against the main motion. I dislike to do so and disagree with a fellow member of the Resources Committee, but I feel that I must, I am very anxious to hear what Dr. Gabrielson has to say. I think it is important to the business of the Committee. I am afraid of the precedent being set however, that one particular individual appearing in support of a particular proposal should be invited to appear before the Convention. The Committee on Resources has had and will have a steady stream of people wishing to appear before it. I think all of those people should have a full hearing . but I think the place for it is not on the floor of the Convention, but in regular committee meetings held in a room large enough to contain all the people who wish to hear him, in public hearings set by the Committee, or in meetings of the Committee of the Whole, arranged for, scheduled and thought about in detail by the Committee. I would not like to be put in the position of giving one person preference over others.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I think we are quibbling here about something which is not really very important -- whether we have Dr. Gabrielson talk to us in front of the main body or in a hearing where everybody presumably would be present. Dr. Gabrielson is a national figure. It will do our Convention and the cause of statehood a great deal of good, I am sure throughout the nation, to have it reported that Dr. Gabrielson addressed us. I don't know, and I don't think anyone knows that he is coming here to espouse some particular course of action or to advocate something which should go into our constitution. I rather think not. I think we would be very lucky if we can get this man to talk to us. He is the former Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service. He is now the head of the largest voluntary sportsman and conservation group in the United States and I think a man that we could all well spend some time listening to.

HARRIS: Mr. President, I would like to move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris moves the previous question. Is there a second?

SWEENEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All in favor will signify by saying aye , all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it, and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall Dr. Gabrielson be invited to appear before the Convention?"

DAVIS: Mr. President, I think that is correct except it is the amendment we are voting on that he be invited rather than allowed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The amendment has already been accepted by unanimous consent. The Chair asked if there was objection to it. to the proposed amendment, to change it from "allow to "invite", and there was not objection, so the question is, "Shall Dr. Gabrielson be invited to appear"before us?" All those in favor will signify by saying aye , all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it, and Dr. Gabrielson will appear before us. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President. I move and ask unanimous consent that we adjourn to meet tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 8, 1955

THIRTY-FIRST DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning the Reverend Bert J. Bingle, Presbyterian missionary minister. Reverend Bingle will give us our daily invocation.

REVEREND BINGLE: Let us pray. Our Father in Heaven, we thank Thee for the leadership that Thou has given us in the past and Thy benevolent protection as a Territory. We thank Thee for Thy presence with us even though sometimes the road may not be smooth and the going unseen, And, Our Father, as those meet here to make up a constitution for the new State of Alaska, may the words of their mouths and meditations of their hearts be acceptable in Thy sight. O Lord, our Strength and our Redeemer. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Five absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with its regular order of business. Does the special committee to report on the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. White?

WHITE: May I ask unanimous consent that the report be delayed until tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the report be delayed until tomorrow. Is there objection? If there is no objection, it is so ordered. We will have the report on the journal tomorrow. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

CHIEF CLERK: I have some.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the communications.

CHIEF CLERK: A letter from Mr. Coghill. (The Chief Clerk read a letter from Mr. Coghill expressing thanks for the granting of leave permitting him to attend the White House Conference on Education and stating that the Alaska conferees found Alaska's educational system equal to, if not better than that of any of the other states or territories in administration procedures as well as in teaching methods and standards.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be filed. (At this time the Chief Clerk read a letter from Charles J. Keim of the House to be held on the University campus from 10 o'clock a.m. to 10 o'clock p.m. Friday, December 9.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be filed and the delegates will remember that there is an open house at the University tomorrow. Are there other communications? Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Reporting for the Rules Committee, the members will find that before them this morning is a proposed amendment to several of the rules, namely 13, 16 and 44. These proposed amendments have been recommended by the Rules Committee to fill a void in our existing rules which was not anticipated when those rules were originally adopted. It was felt initially that the Committee on Style and Drafting might properly fill the enrollment and engrossing function. but it becomes apparent now that an Enrollment and Engrossment Committee will be desirable because Style and Drafting's work will be at considerably heavier volume at the same time that this function should be accomplished. Now these three proposed changes are interdependent. There is no reason for adopting one and rejecting another. There would be no purpose in taking less than all of them and, accordingly, I ask unanimous consent that the recommended changes be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley asks unanimous consent that the recommended changes be adopted. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: A point of information. What is engrossment and enrollment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will you explain that to Mr. Kilcher. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I think, Mr. Kilcher, that the change proposed in Rule 16 speaks for itself. In second reading when a proposal is subject to amendment, an amendment will often occur on the floor, and essentially the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment is to see that the finished product properly reflects those amendments, accurately reflects those amendments, before another draft comes back to the body in copies to be considered from that point on.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? Mr. Riley has asked unanimous consent. Is there objection that these proposed changes be adopted? If there is no objection it is so ordered and, Mr. Riley, you are asking the President to appoint a committee of three on Engrossment and Enrollment? If there is no objection the President will hold that over and report tomorrow morning on that Committee. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I move and ask unanimous consent that instead of trying to incorporate these changes in the copies of the rules which we now have, that each delegate simply be furnished with a supplement. This would do the job if each delegate would just attach this to the rules which he now has.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Sundborg's request? That would relieve a lot of work and readjustment of the rules if each member would insert this page in the copy of rules that he has. If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg's request will be adopted by the Convention. Are there any other reports of standing committees? Are there reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced?

BARR: Mr. President, I have a proposal to submit. It is on the Chief Clerk's desk.

EMBERG: I have a proposal to submit. It is also on the Chief Clerk's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there are no other proposals, the Chief Clerk may proceed with the first reading of proposals.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 40, by Mr. Barr, COMPOSITION OF THE SENATE.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment, Committee No. VI.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 41, introduced by Mr. Emberg, REVERSION OF FUNDS ORIGINATING FROM DISPOSAL OF NATURAL RESOURCES TO SOURCE AREAS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. X, Committee on Resources. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, if I understand that correctly, it concerns the Finance Committee to an extent above that of the Resources Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The provision won't be contained in the section on Resources? Then it will be referred to the Committee on Finance, Committee No. XI.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 42, by Mr. Hinckel, MEMBERSHIP IN STATE SENATE."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to Committee No. VI, Committee on Suffrage, Elections and Apportionment. Are there other proposals? If not, are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, may I inquire has the Rules Committee taken into consideration and is it now ready to report on the calendar for tomorrow?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, could you answer that question?

RILEY: In order to get the calendar around a little more expeditiously, to have it before the members sooner than by placement on the desk this morning, it was put in the mail boxes. Perhaps all delegates have not picked up calendars.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any unfinished business to come before the Convention? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, don't we have a special or first order of business on the proposal for the resolution introduced by the Administration Committee yesterday?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, your question is well taken. The resolution that was offered yesterday was set over as the first order of business for today. If there is no objection we will take that matter up at this time. Do all the delegates have the particular resolution before them? It is the resolution that deals with the proposed recess and other matters pertaining to the recess. Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, do we have any motions before us left over from yesterday?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk ascertain if there was any motion held over. The remembrance of the Chair is that we voted on the particular motions before us, unless you have the feeling that something was hanging fire.

CHIEF CLERK: No, there was no motion left over.

SUNDBORG: It is my recollection, Mr. President, that we did have before us a motion by Mr. Coghill that we adopt the report, and then we amended that in several ways and finally the final amendment was to hold it over until today. I wonder if that motion is not still before us. Perhaps Mr. Coghill would have some recollection of that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion was not withdrawn before it was held over?

CHIEF CLERK: No, it was not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the motion does hold over, Mr. Sundborg. The Chair had felt there had been a motion to withdraw prior to the time that we held this over. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, apparently it was the objection of the body as to several of the ramifications of this resolution. I would like to offer an amendment and ask unanimous consent that on the "resolve" of the first line, "December 19" be struck and "December 20" be inserted. And after "1956" on the second line, insert "both dates inclusive". I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Insert the words "both dates inclusive", Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Yes sir.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under this Resolution, the proposed recess would begin on December 20 and end on January 3, so, Mr. Coghill, it would not be inclusive on the 19th.

COGHILL: I changed that to the 20th. That was the amendment. Change the 19th to the 20th and both dates inclusive. I ask unanimous consent that it be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would make 15 days -- both dates inclusive?

KILCHER: Mr. President, I don't quite make out what changes we have here. In the first paragraph, is that December 20 there?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, Mr. Kilcher. It would be after the words, "Therefore be it resolved" at the bottom on the first section of that it would say that "the Convention recess from December 20, 1955, to January 3, 1956, both dates inclusive." You did what I did first. I marked the first paragraph.

HERMANN: That would mean we would not meet until the 4th of January?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. It would clarify the fact it was a full 15 days. Is there objection to the request of Mr. Coghill? I believe Mr. Coghill asked unanimous consent.

ROBERTSON: I object, Mr. President. I thought Mr. White moved for division.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe that division motion was withdrawn in order to clear the way for holding this over. Is that correct, Mr. White? So unanimous consent is asked to adopt this change in the wording of the resolution. Is there objection to that? Mr. White, do you object?

WHITE: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and Mr. Coghill's proposed changes are ordered adopted. Mr. White?

WHITE: Mr. President, I move to divide the question -- that is to divide paragraphs 1 and 2 on one hand and paragraphs 3, 4, 5, 6 on the other.

V. FISCHER: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is moved by Mr. White, seconded by Mr. Fischer that the question be divided so that paragraphs 1 and 2 are taken up by the Convention on the one hand and that paragraphs 3, 4, 5 and 6 be taken up by the Convention on the other. Is there objection to that motion to divide the question? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I object temporarily for a point of information. I have before me an estimated cost of the transportation, the salary and per diem that would be needed for hearing dates as set up by the ruling of that special committee and for the per diem to carry home the delegates or the ones that were going to stay here in the Fairbanks area and the total amount. Now before the makers of the motion to divide the question, might well want to hear this out so the Convention can decide just what we are going to be doing on this Convention. Are we going to hold hearings at recess time and how is the pay going to be established and what not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, would it be satisfactory to you to hear the report of the Administration Committee prior to acting on your motion to divide the question?

WHITE: That is perfectly satisfactory, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your motion will hold, Mr. White. Mr. Coghill may proceed with the report by the Committee on Administration.

COGHILL: This is not a report on the Committee of Administration, Mr. President. It is a finding that we were directed to find yesterday on the floor. The question that was raised as to just how much this is going to cost. The Committee on Administration had an estimate of around $6,000 and figured that was what it would cost. However, we find that it raised quite a lot more than that. The transportation for delegates, according to the questionnaires that were placed before everyone, the transportation costs to their homes would be $3,182.98. The per diem for that travel would be $1,720. The hearings, if a one-day hearing was held as provided in the special report, would cost $1,230 for the salary and $3,320 for the per diem.

KILCHER: Mr. President, may I interrupt for a point of information. It was $1,230 for salary? How much?

COGHILL: $1,230.

KILCHER: That figure of $3,000 can't be correct because it must be more than one-third of $1,200, per diem being only one-third more than salary, so I am afraid your second figure is a total figure of salary and per diem. You are adding something wrong there.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I had a little bit to do with the preparation of these figures and I believe Mr. Coghill, that the figure of $1,230 is for salary during days of travel which is provided for in the resolution which came from the Administration Committee.

COGHILL: $1,000 for salary in route, $1,290.

SUNDBORG: You have not given that figure yet?

COGHILL: The first figure is transportation, $3,182.98, the days in route traveling home and back. Now this is the days enroute, you're traveling home now and back. That is round trip. Salaries in route $1,290, per diem $1,720. Now, for holding the hearings, salary $1,230, per diem is $2,640 for the hearings, $2,640, and the per diem for those who are going to remain in Fairbanks is $1,680, bringing us an approximate total cost for this recess of $10,742.98. It seems quite high, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is assuming that the Convention adopted all the recommendations in this resolution. Mr. Kilcher? Is that right?

KILCHER: I would like to question two figures there. The salary for hearings, if I am correct, you quoted $1,230 and for per diem on hearings $2,640, and that is the same amount of days?

COGHILL: Should be.

KILCHER: I am afraid again that your per diem figure for hearings is an inclusive figure of salary and per diem. It must be so because the difference between per diem and salary is one-third, so that figure $2,640 should be $1,640. You have a thousand bucks too much, roughly speaking.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that correct. Mr. Coghill?

ARMSTRONG: May we have a recess so this can be straightened out?

COGHILL: The reason for that figure there, we had to make an inclusion of the per diem for the people that were going to be staying here in Fairbanks and that was run into that column. I had to divide it with a new figure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So Mr. Kilcher was correct in his observation. The total is the same.

COGHILL: The total is $10,742.98.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I take it that these figures are all more or less the maximum that can be allowed to the delegates. I wonder if that is clearly understood. The actual expense involved will be determined by the actions of this body if we so desire we can eliminate a lot of that cost.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, Mr. Smith.

COGHILL: I quite agree with Mr. Smith. This is just to inform you that if the provisions of this resolution are adopted, that is what it is going to cost.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will allow other discussion of these figures.

KILCHER: I would like to make a motion.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, point of order. There is a motion before the body that is not debatable or amendable according to our rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is objection Mr. Kilcher, we will have to revert back to the motion that Mr. White so kindly held up while Mr. Coghill read his report and then we can go into this later. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. President, may I rise to a point of information. Why was the question requested to be divided?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, in answering the question, I thought they were two entirely separate matters embodied in this resolution and that it might unduly confuse the whole business if you considered it all at once. I thought we could settle on the dates of any adjournment very easily, separately from the matter of how much cost we were going to allow in pursuing the business of the adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Chair will order that the motion of Mr. White, seconded by Mr. Fischer this morning, be stricken from the record inasmuch as your motion of yesterday was not acted upon, so we have the same motion for division of the question before us. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder if Mr. White and Mr. Fischer would consent, and if the Convention would consent, to including the preamble of the resolution with the first half of the question if it is divided.

WHITE: I will consent to that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would appear that would not endanger the motion. The question is, "Shall the paragraphs contained in the resolution be divided so that paragraphs 1 and 2 be acted upon first and that paragraphs 3, 4, 5, and 6 be acted upon later?" All those in favor of the division of the question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes have it, and the question has been divided. The question is, "Shall the preamble of the resolution and paragraphs 1 and 2 be adopted by the Convention?" The question is open for discussion.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, will you move?

WHITE: I so move, Mr. President, that page 1 of this resolution, that page 1 including the "Whereases" and paragraphs 1 and 2 be adopted by the Convention and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked by Mr. White that page 1 of the resolution be adopted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and page 1 of the resolution has been adopted by the Convention. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, a point of information. When a question is divided is not the main motion for adoption still in order, so therefore Mr. White would not have to make a motion? My motion is still in order even though the question is divided?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention accepted the division, Mr. Coghill, and therefore when the Convention accepted the division it is the feeling of the Chair it divided your main motion, had the effect of changing your main motion by vote of the Convention, and now the only thing we have before us after this adoption are the remaining four paragraphs of the resolution, but that motion is before us. That part would be before us now.

V. FISCHER: Do we have Mr. Coghill's motion before us then?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We would have in effect, we would have these four paragraphs before us for action without any further motion.

COGHILL: That was my question, Mr. Chairman, whether Mr. White had to make a motion to have the first part adopted. I thought my motion still held even in division.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe he would have had to make the first motion but is not necessary on the second part. Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that in paragraph 3, in line 3, the words "compensation and" be stricken.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves and asks unanimous consent that on page 2 line 3, the words "compensation and" be stricken.

GRAY: Mr. President, I object until I can read it.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I object for purpose of amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second?

SUNDBORG: I second Mr. Fischer's motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds Mr. Fischer's motion.

Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I move and ask unanimous consent that that motion be amended to read "per diem".

PRESIDENT EGAN: You mean to strike the words "per diem" also?

V. FISCHER: I accept the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer accepts the amendment. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: It certainly won't read like anything then. I think probably what Mr. Coghill intends is that we should amend the motion to strike out also the words "and to". Mr. Coghill's motion I believe was to strike out "and to" and "per diem".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, would you object to having reference to your original motion stricken from the record and start over again?

V. FISCHER: No. Do you want me to rephrase the original motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If it would be acceptable to you to withdraw your original motion and the proposed amendment. Is there objection to that request of Mr. Fischer's?

V. RIVERS: I just want to know what his request is now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: His request, Mr. Victor Rivers, would be to start from scratch in effect, to withdraw the original request in order to have a motion appear in the record that would reflect the complete intention.

V. RIVERS: No objection to withdrawing his request but I want to know where we stand before I --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the resolution and the motion, if his motion was withdrawn, would stand exactly as it reads before us now. Is there objection to withdrawing the motions before us? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that paragraph 3 be amended by deleting all the language after the word "recess" in line 3 and putting a period after the word "recess".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves that the resolution be amended by inserting a period after the word "recess" in line 3 on page 2 and deleting the rest of the sentence.

COGHILL: I ask unanimous consent.

KILCHER: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent has been asked. Objection is heard. Is there a second?

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor seconds the motion of Mr. Fischer. The question is, "Shall the language after the word 'recess' in line 3 on page 2 be deleted? Mr. Kilcher?"

KILCHER: I object for two reasons. We have a Section 5 down there which is logically connected with Section 3. If you pass one, I would say prematurely, logically if we are going to be logical, which is not necessarily the case, we are also -- COGHILL: Point of order. We are taking this in chronological order going down 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 and that is not before the house at the time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The delegate is referring, if he feels that section is connected with his debate on this motion, the Chair feels that he is in order. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I object on the grounds that hasty action taken in 3 will either compel a certain action to be taken under Section 5, if you want to be logical, and if we are not, we affecting a similar situation, we will have to rescind what action we take in No. 3 again, provided you want to be logical and fair, namely, that is one ground. The other ground is just exactly what do actual travel costs mean? I would like to have an explanation of the two words "actual travel costs" before I can elaborate on my main objection. Mr. Coghill might be able to explain that to me.

PRESIDENT EGAN: In Section 3 you are speaking of the words, "actual travel cost"? Mr. Coghill, if you would care to answer the question.

COGHILL: "Actual travel costs" is the transportation being paid to the delegates to go to their homes and return, their tickets in other words, just the ticket portion.

KILCHER: Why don't we say "transportation costs"? "Actual travel costs" in my opinion, includes other items too. It may include a taxi, hotel bill, meals, if weather is bad, you have to stay in a hotel for two days. You have expenses which are normally included in per diem. Consequently, I advise against changing of Article 3 to make a period after "recess" on line 3 in accordance with Mr. Fischer's motion and leave "per diem". We need per diem to go home on. Later on in 5 we assume that per diem is needed, and justly so, by the people who will not be able to travel home. They need per diem, and I need per diem until I am home. I am not able to be home before I get there, and while I get there I am entitled to per diem as well as the man who stays in Fairbanks who can't go home for 15 days. I can't go home for two days and I should get that per diem for two days. It costs money to get there, besides the ticket. That is the logical point I was going to bring up.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: In support of Mr. Kilcher, Mr. Kilcher has a better argument than that. He has a point of order. This Convention, that is if you are entitled to per diem under the Act creating this assemblage while you are in a travel status, then this Convention by any action cannot deprive you of your right to secure it from the Territory. I believe that is pertinent in Mr. Kilcher's argument.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. President, I want to speak on paragraph 4, you might rule me out of order but I won't know how to vote on 3 or 5 or 6 without a discussion on the whole thing.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, if it is your feeling that in voting on this particular amendment that you have to refer to other paragraphs, you are in order.

SWEENEY: Mr. Coghill states that for one day hearings, there would be a salary of 1200 something and per diem of 26 something. Paragraph 4 says "if it is necessary for the delegates to travel from their homes for such period". I don't know what they're basing their per diem on but we will be at home to hold these hearings according to the report of the special committee, so I see no expense in that connection. We will not be getting any per diem with salary for holding hearings. All we will be getting is travel reimbursement and the per diem while we travel. That is all that I can see that this provides. There is no expenses for holding hearings unless we are out of our home town. I would like to hear from Mr. Coghill.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point was, Mrs. Sweeney, that Mr. Coghill's report of the cost with relation to this particular resolution was in error on that point?

SWEENEY: I feel that some of the delegates might go along with compensation and per diem during travel status if they knew there was not going to be this additional cost of salary and per diem during the time of holding hearings. I don't find that the resolution covers that.

COGHILL: I assume that the question was directed at me. But after finding the costs of the total recess on hearings, transportation, per diem and travel, and compensation to the delegates, I feel that we should as a body take this resolution and strike in all parts the compensation and the per diem and just allow the travel to and from the homes. I think we have a definite commitment to the people to have hearings and without cost. The cost for travel, if we just took the travel into consideration, would be $3,182, where if we add the per diem and compensation it is going to raise that figure to $10,000 and over.

SWEENEY: That's my point, Mr. Coghill. Actually the picture does not come to 10,000 because you are including in the report per diem and salary for days we are holding hearings, and that resolution does not state that.

COGHILL: It is my intent to amend the resolution as such.

SWEENEY: That would be a further job, it isn't what we're studying now as I understand it.

SUNDBORG: Mr. McLaughlin a moment ago raised a point of order. I don't believe we've taken care of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: He said he felt Mr. Kilcher had raised a point of order. Since that time the Chair has been thinking he raised a very pertinent point of question, and if there is no objection the Chair would like to declare a recess at this time and refer this matter to the Rules Committee and have those who would like, to appear before the Rules Committee and thrash out this question if possible.

COLLINS: Before we recess, this might throw some light on the argument we've been having. I call the Convention's attention to the Act itself. Section 1 provides for the 15 day recess for the object of holding meetings. Then it goes on and the Act provides a Section 19, "Delegates shall receive a per diem of $20 for each day in attendance, including the time spent going to and returning from the Convention and they shall be reimbursed for their actual travel costs incurred attending upon their duties as delegates. In addition they shall receive for their services the sum of $15 per day as compensation for each day's attendance while the Convention is in session."

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the Convention will stand at recess and the Rules Committee will take this question under advisement.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have before us the motion to strike the words "and to compensate for the per diem for the days involved in such travel", beginning on the third line of Section 3. We have the report of the Rules Committee.

RILEY: Mr. President, Mr. McLaughlin's point of order was to the effect that the Convention could not properly deprive the members of a per diem entitlement which he felt was theirs under the law. The Rules Committee, in coming to a decision on that, felt obliged to interpret the meaning of passages of the Act in terms of the resolution from the Committee on Administration, which is before us. In doing so, as to paragraph No. 3 on page 2, it is the opinion of the Rules Committee that Chapter 46, under the provisions of Chapter 46 delegates shall be paid actual travel costs to and from places where hearings will be held as directed by the Convention and per diem for days of actual travel but not salary. Now as to paragraph No. 4 on the same page of the resolution, it is the opinion of the Committee that the Act does not authorize salary or per diem during a recess for days of hearings as distinguished from days of travel. It is conceivable that a travel day may also be a hearing day, but to distinguish between them it is the feeling of the Committee that salary or per diem during the recess for days of hearings, as distinguished from travel, is not authorized. As to paragraph 5, the Rules Committee would like to give that further consideration before reporting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You submit this as the opinion of the Rules Committee on Mr. McLaughlin's point of order, is that right?

RILEY: Yes. As a matter of fact we have enlarged upon it somewhat but felt it necessary to do so in order to cover the point of order fully.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will accept the opinion of the Rules Committee as being the opinion of the Chair on the question. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: Is the matter still open for discussion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is still open for discussion.

V. RIVERS: It seems to me there is some considerable concern about what this is going to cost and of course I can see this motion is along that line. I heard the reading of the Rules Committee report and it seems that is somewhat counter to the verbal opinion expressed by the Attorney General. I am of the opinion that if there are hearings and meetings, the delegates should receive pay for whatever they are actually entitled to receive pay under the Act. It seems to me the final decision would rest in the hands of the Attorney General. I just wanted to point out here primarily that I think the matter of not only what it will cost to take the vacation but what it will cost not to take the vacation should be considered. It costs $2,500 a day to operate in round figures. If we don't take this recess for hearings, we will have four days, we will have Christmas, two Sundays and New Years which we will pay $2,500 for each day that will not be work days of this Convention, if we do not recess. I want to put that out. I think it's important that we consider one against the other, that we balance the thing out if the dollars seem to be so important in the matter of the final decision. It seems to me we should consider the matter in both aspects. I do believe in order to resolve it we could get a vote on this and that's why I bring this up. It seems we cannot be saving money whichever action we take. We are going to be paying out what is justly entitled to be paid out to the delegates whether they stay here or whether they go.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, in harmony with the ruling of the Chair and the opinion of the Rules Committee, which I may mention was the unanimous opinion of the Rules Committee, I believe the motion before us is out of order, at least in part, and I wonder if I may have a ruling of the Chair on that. The motion was to put a period after the word "recess" and strike the rest of the Section 3, and according to the opinion of the Rules Committee, per diem is authorized.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are correct, Mr. Sundborg, in your point of order. It is well taken under those circumstances that the matter has been brought to the attention of the delegates that the law itself specifically authorizes the per diem, and it is the opinion of the Chair that this Convention cannot override the law. Therefore, relative to the words "per diem" the particular motion would be out of order.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, then I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that paragraph 3 be amended as follows: After the word "from" on line 2, strike the word "their", strike all of line 3 through the word "and", and insert in -- insert in lieu thereof the words "hearings authorized by the Convention and to". The whole paragraph would then read as follows: "3. That the delegates shall be entitled to reimbursement for their actual travel costs going to and returning from hearings authorized by the Convention and to per diem for the days involved in such travel."

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I will accept that amendment since my original motion is still on the floor. I will accept the words per diem" or should I withdraw mine and substitute that?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Under the ruling of the Chair the motion as it appeared would be out of order. Mr. Sundborg, feeling that the Chair had ruled the entire motion out of order because of the word "compensation" being in there, that Mr. Sundborg has moved that his motion be unanimously adopted by the Convention. Is there objection to the acceptance?

GRAY: I don't object. Under that line of reasoning, the word that bothers me is the word "actual" travel costs. I am speaking only for myself, but this Christmas recess is a matter of personal convenience, and everyone can make up their own minds whether it is or is not. But for myself the matter of the recess and the going home is a matter of personal convenience.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. Mr. Gray may interpret it as a personal convenience, but the resolution as provided by the Committee on Administration you will notice on the first whereas" of the resolution it says "to recess for a period not to exceed 15 days for the purpose of holding public hearings." It has nothing to do with personal recessing to go home for Christmas.

GRAY: The only thing I have to say is that you might strike out the word "actual" if it has no difference in the meaning there, then people would be entitled to their travel costs whether they went home or whether they didn't go home. That is the point I am trying to point out. Does the word "actual" have to be in there? So when we adopt this resolution, you won't tie anybody's hands by the word "actual". It may be people would take travel transportation and travel some place else.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray, the Chair will hold that you should have, in order to get that open for discussion, offered some kind of amendment. There is nothing before us.

SUNDBORG: I raise a point of order to it. If I may, I would like to read something here of the Act which established this Convention. It says, in Section 19, "They", (the delegates) "shall be reimbursed for their actual travel costs incurred in attending upon their duties as delegates." I think we have no jurisdiction, no right to change the provision of the Legislature in that respect.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair wonders if the First Vice President will take the Chair at this time.

(Mr. Peratrovich took the Chair at this time.)

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Mr. Egan.

EGAN: I would like to rise to a question of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: You may state your privilege.

EGAN: I would like to speak on this proposition as to why these hearings are asked and why we are confronted with the question at this time.

VICTOR FISCHER: Point of order, Mr. President. Did you want the wire recorder going during this?

EGAN: No, I would just as soon the wire recorder be turned off and save that time.

HILSCHER: I rise to a point of order. I think Mr. Egan's comments are sufficiently important that they should be on the record.

V. FISCHER: My point of order is based on the fact that at an earlier decision the wire recorder was to be turned off on personal privilege and Committee of the Whole.

EGAN: The only reason I asked for a personal privilege was that the general question was not open at this time. It is immaterial to me.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Mr. Egan you may proceed.

EGAN: The Act that created this Convention set up, as has been pointed out, a 15-day recess for hearings, if the Convention so chooses to have hearings during that 15-day period.

Prior to the time that the Act became the law of the Territory, a joint committee of the House and Senate considered each and every provision in the Act. Now in the first draft that was presented to the Legislature in the bill's introduction in the House, in that first draft the particular section relating to the 15-day public hearings was there I am certain. All the way through the discussions in the joint committee that 15day clause stood intact and for this reason, that in many treatises or papers or books that have been written by men who have had a close relationship with constitutional conventions in the past, they made almost this uniform statement that a break during a constitutional convention somewhere along the mid-way mark had been proven to be, some two or three weeks' break, had been proven to be highly fruitful and served a very practical purpose in that it allowed the tensions that may have been created during the time when committee hearings had been held for many many hours, day after day, and after hearing many witnesses in public hearings, after the many meetings and the general tenseness that would naturally be evident in members of the Convention, that that break had proven very fruitful in that it let the convention members relax and that they could get a feeling different than the feeling that might entail upon them at their daily and nightly meetings of the particular convention, that it also was very helpful in allowing them to find what the real opinion at home was on certain matters that might still come before the convention and on matters that were considered by the convention. That Act up to the last few days, as I recall it, had the particular convening date of the Convention set in January of 1956, and it was more or less generally accepted by the joint committee of the House and Senate that the convening date of the proposed Convention would be set sometime in January, 1956. Then there arose the question if it would be possible to have consideration of this, as to whether or not it would be possible to have consideration of the statehood question again by Congress, in 1956. The question naturally arose at that time, well if we set the convening date in January, that the ratification date would then fall so far into the summer that we could not even be hopeful that the Congress would consider it in a new light because of the ratification of the constitution by the Territory of Alaska. Consequently, the date was set back to November 8, 1955, believing that if there was any possibility of Congressional approval of the Alaska Statehood Bill in 1956 that the ratification would have to come sufficiently early in the spring months that the constitution could be before the Congress early in the summer of 1956. I point that out to show all members that this particular 15-day recess was not set up, that section was not set up in the Act, taking into consideration Christmas or New Year's whatsoever. It is just coincidental that Christmas and New Year's fall within the time that we are now considering taking a recess. Thank you, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Do you wish to take the Chair again?

EGAN: You can do it.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Is there any further discussion? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Was objection raised to Mr. Sundborg's request for unanimous consent?

GRAY: I withdraw the objection.

RILEY: There is no objection pending, is that right?

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: I would have to ask Mr. Sundborg, what is your request please?

SUNDBORG: My request, Mr. President, was that paragraph 3 be amended by striking in line 2 the word "their" and in line 3 all of the line through the word "and" and inserting in lieu thereof "hearings authorized by the Convention and to". The whole paragraph would read as follows: That the delegates shall be entitled to reimbursement for their actual travel costs going to and returning from hearings authorized by the Convention and to per diem for the days involved in such travel." I ask unanimous consent.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Do I hear any objection? If not, it is so ordered. Is there any further discussion on that? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would now like to move and ask unanimous consent that in line with the opinion of the Rules Committee and the ruling of the Chair, all of paragraph 4 be stricken.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Do I hear any objections to that? If not, it is so ordered.

MCNEES: Mr. President, is there a motion before the floor at the present time?

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: We are still in the process of amending the last half of this resolution, as I understand it.

MCNEES: There is no motion on the floor at the present time? In view of that I'd like to make one.

COGHILL: I rise to a point of information. There is a motion on the floor -- the divided motion to adopt the second half of this resolution.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: That is still open for amendment, however. You are in order, Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: My opinion is there was a special committee of three set up the other day by the President in order to schedule these hearings and poll the delegates as to their vacation plans. Today we have heard an expression from the Rules Committee, an expression from the Administration Committee. We do not have the Attorney General's opinion yet in writing, but we think we know what it is. We have the Act before us. I would like to suggest in view of the fact that everybody has had at least a reasonable chance to express their opinions, now it be placed back in the hands of either this original committee of three or another similar committee and that the floor abide by their decision.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: In reporting for the Rules Committee a moment ago, I mentioned that the Rules Committee would like to give further consideration to paragraph 5 before action is had on that, and I ask for a five-minute recess accordingly, and ask unanimous consent.

VICE PRESIDENT PERATROVICH: Without any objection we will have a five-minute recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Does the Rules Committee have a report to make at this time? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, to conclude the report of the Rules Committee, it is the opinion of that Committee that paragraph No. 5, page 2 of the resolution before us, is not out of conformity with Chapter 46 of 1955 S.L.A. which creates the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have heard the report of the Rules Committee as to paragraph No. 5. Is there any discussion of that report? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that paragraphs 5 and 6 be renumbered 4 and 5 respectively to take account of the fact that we have stricken what was paragraph 4.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that paragraphs 5 and 6 be renumbered 4 and 5 respectively in order to conform with the amendments made in the resolution. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, the words "compensation and" in paragraph 6 shouldn't that be omitted?

RILEY: We have not gone that far.

ROBERTSON: In conformity with the past rules and what has been numbered paragraph 6, I ask for unanimous consent to eliminate the words "compensation and".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, in the report of the Rules Committee on the point of order, did you eliminate the mention of compensation at all relative to those delegates who might be holding hearings? Compensation in your ruling was eliminated entirely, is that right?

RILEY: Well, the point of order raised by Mr. McLaughlin touched only on per diem. However, the Rules Committee held that compensation in paragraph 3 was not the proper expenditure. They interpreted the Act and the same would carry through in the Committee's judgment of original paragraph 6. It would support Mr. Robertson's request for unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson moves and asks unanimous consent that paragraph 5, the words "compensation and" be deleted from the paragraph. Is there objection?

KILCHER: I object.

COGHILL: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher objects. Mr. Coghill seconds Mr. Robertson's motion.

KILCHER: My objection was meant to be temporary rather in the form of a point of information. Section 3, has that been adopted now in the revised form?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes.

KILCHER: New Sections 4 and 5 have not been adopted, only agreed that numbers be changed and 4 be stricken? The sections have not been adopted yet? All right. In new Section 5 we were advised to strike "compensation and". I would like to know if the Rules Committee could not foresee the possibility of the rightness of paying compensation on the hearing day, if this is against the Act or what. If it is against the Act that settles it, but if it is not I think it would be fair on the hearing date specifically if it is in a locality farther than home, that besides per diem, compensation would be in place. Because if we consider that each 55 of us has, as Mr. Hilscher likes to call it, a job of selling to do, I think it is futile to quibble about an extra 500 or 600 dollars and possibly jeopardize the expenditure of $300,000. I for one am not at all optimistic, or let's say overly optimistic about the ratification of this constitution if we don't come up with a good one. In order to come up with a good one we have to go home and we have a selling job to do. The people in the States are not at all convinced about a lot of matters. We have a lot populated places as possible. We have to hustle and in my opinion it is as expert a job as that of many of the experts that are getting $100 a day here. I think $35 a day for a day well spent is not too much money. If it is at all legally possible to get it, I would suggest we get it and it be not stricken from paragraph 5.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Kilcher was asking for information, and I believe the information is contained again in Section 19 of the Act creating the Constitutional Convention. "In addition they, the delegates, shall receive for their services the sum of $15 per day as compensation for each day's attendance while the Convention is in session." So it was the opinion of the Rules Committee that it is not proper to pay compensation while the Convention is in recess.

KILCHER: I object to that interpretation to the following grounds -- I think that the Convention if we so choose, has the power to designate anybody for any specific job and we could not claim to be in Convention, but it would be an expense like any other expense, like a wire sent someplace, a man sent someplace, for a specific purpose to do a specific job, to gather information and also to contact the public and make possible the ratification of the Act. That is germane to the expense of the $300,000, that it be well spent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, I want to raise a point of order. I don't want to propose discussion, but I think the matter has been covered. The Rules Committee does not happen to be the Convention counsel but this point of order raised an hour ago did require some interpretation, and accordingly our interpretation was advanced just on the Act itself and without respect to the convenience of the members, the fairness of the situation in which we all find ourselves or the cost which might be incurred by individual members and perhaps not by others. It will work a hardship possibly in many directions. I should like to ask Mr. Robertson's consent to include in his request that the last word on the first line of 6 be changed to read "that".

ROBERTSON: I agree to that, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson's original motion then would ask that the words "compensation and " be stricken and also that the word "those" in the first line of Section 5 would be changed to the word "that".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Do I understand, now that we have discussed this thoroughly, and I believe the total figure in adding up the three sections here amounts to $6,582.98 to disburse these delegates to the 15-day public hearing period. I think it is fairly reasonable in that it is considerably less than the $8,000 that would be spent if the Convention remained here. I also think that if any delegate here felt as though he should be reimbursed for duty that I personally think that he owes to the public, he would have the right to file a claim to the Territory. Therefore, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper moves the previous question. Is there a second?

HERMANN: What is the previous question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The previous question is, "Shall Mr. Robertson's proposed amendment be adopted, deleting the words in Section 5 'compensation and' and at the end of the first line changing the word 'those' to 'that'?" Is there a second to the motion for the previous question?

WHITE: I second Mr. Cooper's motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White seconded Mr. Cooper's motion. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All in favor say "aye", all opposed say "no". The previous question has been ordered. The question is, "Shall Mr. Robertson's proposed amendment be adopted?" All in favor will say "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and Mr. Robertson's amendments are ordered adopted. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, may I ask Mr. Riley a question in regard to Section 4?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: It was my understanding that was to apply not only to those people whose normal residences are outside of the Fairbanks area but also to Fairbanks residents. Am I correct in that?

RILEY: Mrs. Hermann, I think it was noted that Section 4 is narrower than the Act, but I believe its text is that which we have adopted as it reads.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, I have an amendment to offer to Section 5, and I have it written out -- rather it is paragraph 4 now.

TAYLOR: Point of order. As I remember Section 4 was by practically unanimous vote of the Convention, was stricken.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The original Section 4 was, Mr. Taylor. We have moved the numbering up.

TAYLOR: While I was here there was no motion to do that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The new 4 was Section 5. Mr. Barr's amendment is with relation to the new Section 4. Will the Chief Clerk read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Paragraph 4, line 1, after the word 'delegates' strike the words, 'whose normal residence is outside the Fairbanks area' and substitute therefore the words, 'remaining in attendance upon the Convention'."

COOPER: I object.

BARR: I move that this amendment be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr moves his amendment be adopted? Did the Chair hear a second?

KILCHER: Second the motion.

DOOGAN: Point of order. That in effect amounts to rescinding an action already passed upon. We adopted Section 4, the new Section 4, without amendment, and now we are going back.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair does not recall having adopted the section. If it was adopted and a new amendment was asked for, it would still probably be in order. Mr. Barr?

BARR: The principal change it makes here is that it more definitely establishes who is entitled to per diem. In other words, under this amendment, the people remaining in Fairbanks, who live outside of Fairbanks, are included. It also includes those who live in Fairbanks. The session will not be adjourned. It will be in session but will be in recess, and those who are here, willing and able to attend in Fairbanks, then will receive the per diem no matter whether they live here or outside.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: If I understand this, it appears to me it would be a rather extraordinary suggestion that Fairbanks residents who live here ordinarily would be entitled to collect per diem throughout the recess, in direct contrast to every other delegate of this Convention, who returns to their homes. I am certainly opposed to the amendment.

HELLENTHAL: Along that line, the way 4 presently reads, a person from Anchorage who maintains an apartment here during the Convention would be entitled to per diem. Then he could take his $300 in per diem, buy a round-trip ticket to Anchorage for $70 or $80 and make himself $220 or $230, which is not a bad idea, but then to carry that to exclude that privilege from those who live in Anchorage and allow the people who stay in their own homes here in Fairbanks to draw per diem but not those who live in Anchorage or other cities who maintain apartments here, is getting pretty far afield.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal, the paragraph says now, "that those delegates whose normal residence is outside the Fairbanks area shall be entitled to per diem for the days of Convention recess spent in the Fairbanks area."

HELLENTHAL: You would have to be physically present here?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I move that we lay the amendment on the table.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves that Mr. Barr's amendment be laid on the table. Is there a second?

GRAY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall Mr. Barr's proposed amendment be laid on the table?" All those in favor will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The 'ayes have it and the amendment --

TAYLOR: Roll Call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

SUNDBORG: Before the roll call I would like to make a parliamentary inquiry. If we lay Mr. Barr's amendment on the table, does it carry anything else before this body with it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, just carries his amendment, Mr. Sundborg.

NORDALE: Could we have the section read now as it would appear with Mr. Barr's amendment in it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk do that please.

CHIEF CLERK: "That those delegates remaining in attendance upon the Convention shall be entitled to per diem for the days of Convention recess spent in the Fairbanks area."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does everyone understand the question? Then the question is, "Shall Mr. Barr's proposed amendment be laid on the table?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 36 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, Robertson, Rosswog Smith, Sundborg, Sweeney, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 15 - Barr, Collins, Hermann, Hinckel, Kilcher, Laws, McCutcheon, McNeas, Marston, Nolan, Reader, V. Rivers, Stewart, Taylor, VanderLeest.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, McNealy, R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: Thirty-six yeas, 15 nays and four absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So Mr. Barr's amendment has been laid on the table. Are there other amendments to the resolution? Mr. McNeas?

MCNEES: Mr. President, in as much as we have now completed the discussion of all five articles as they now appear in the proposed resolution; inasmuch as anyone in attendance here must know the many varied opinions existing; inasmuch as I don't think any 55 delegates are going to come up with any one single answer, I would like to propose that the President name a committee of three or use his old original committee of three consisting of Mr. Hellenthal, Mr. Nerland and Mr. Sundborg, who I believe was Chairman, to come to a decision by which we agree to abide. I make that in the form of a motion.

MARSTON: I second that motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have a motion before us and that is on a point of order, this motion would not be in order at this time. There is a motion on the floor that pertains directly to the paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 of this resolution, and that is, "Shall these paragraphs be adopted by this Convention?" Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris moves the previous question.

WHITE: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White seconds the motion to ask that the previous question be called. All in favor of ordering the previous question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall Paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 of the proposed resolution be adopted by the Convention?"

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I call for roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson asks for roll call. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 37 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riely, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Smith, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 13 - Cross, Hermann, Hurley, Johnson, Laws, McCutcheon, McNees, Marston, Nolan, Reader, Robertson, Stewart, Taylor.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, McNealy, R. Rivers.

Not

Voting: 1 - Kilcher.)

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, before the vote is announced I would like to rise to a point of order and say that under our rules, Mr. Kilcher is required to vote. He may not pass.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, the Chair feels that Mr. Kilcher was not quite aware of what the question was. It is not proper to put the question to him during the roll call. We will have to hold that he had the right to pass.

KILCHER: As a point of information, can one pass temporarily and be put at the end of the roll call?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You can before the call is announced by the Chief Clerk, vote or change your vote.

KILCHER: That is what I intended to do. My vote is "yes".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher will have been recorded as having voted "yes".

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, as a point of order, I certainly think that is an improper procedure, and I will oppose it and appeal for a ruling from the Chair, if it is the Chair's ruling that any delegate during the calling of a roll may pass and be called last. If so, that would give the delegates who do so a great advantage.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, at the time Mr. Kilcher's name was called, the Chair would rule Mr. Sundborg, that ordinarily your objection would be in order, but Mr. Kilcher indicated that he didn't know, he wasn't aware of what we were voting on and that is the reason that the Chair allowed his vote to pass. The indication from him was that at that moment --

KILCHER: Mr. President, that is the reason, I actually had intended to ask before the roll call that the whole section be read. I wasn't quite aware of the many notes and striking and I had to go over the notes and that was why at that moment I wasn't prepared to vote. That is the sole reason. I would have liked to have the whole section read before the vote. That didn't happen so I was confused.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Inasmuch as he has cast his vote, Mr. Sundborg, I would say that the point of order was non-existent at this time. Inasmuch as this vote has been cast prior to announcement of roll call, but you are correct, Mr. Sundborg, that if a person, if he is not voting, should if he is going to abstain, state his reason.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I say I feel this is a fairly basic matter, and I would like assurance from the Chair that it will not be the policy of the Chair to permit members to abstain from voting and if they so abstain, to vote last. Any member may change his vote during the roll call. Mr. Kilcher might have said "yes" and before it is announced, changed it to "no", if he could in the meantime find out what the question is about. I wonder if I may read our rule on that question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, Mr. Sundborg, the Chair feels that if Mr. Kilcher hadn't expressed himself, you are asking that he be forced to vote, which is in effect correct that he should vote unless it is a matter personally, pertaining to something he is interested in and states for that reason he is not voting.

SUNDBORG: And he must announce before the roll is called that he intends to abstain, according to our rules, Rule No. 30.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I feel that Mr. Sundborg's objection is well taken. To allow that vote to go the way it is, would allow any person on this floor, if he wanted to vote last, to withhold his vote, to get up and say, "I don't want to vote now because I don't understand the question." Therefore, the vote is taken and then he votes this way or that way. He holds the balance of power. It is very difficult to understand.

V. FISCHER: Point of order. It seems to me this whole debate is completely out of order until after the roll call has been announced.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course it has to be made before the roll call is announced. It is in order.

TAYLOR: It is difficult to understand how a person sitting in here and who possibly had more to say upon this one particular question than anybody in the house would refrain from voting and then come in and vote after the last man had voted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, if there is no objection the Chair will declare a recess and ask the Rules Committee to make a decision.

SUNDBORG: I object. I would like to withdraw my point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent that his point of order be withdrawn.

KILCHER: Mr. President, can I withdraw my vote?

PRESIDENT EGAN: With no objection, Mr. Kilcher may withdraw his vote.

CHIEF CLERK: He didn't vote. Thirty-seven yeas, 13 nays, 4 absent and 1 not voting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the sections of the resolution have been adopted by the Convention. Is there any other unfinished business to come before the Convention? Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, now that we have dealt with both sides of that divided question is it in order for me to propose an amendment to paragraph 1?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The resolution has been adopted by the Convention. If you so desire to offer an amendment the resolution is at this time still before us, Mr. Barr.

BARR: I would like to at this time offer an amendment to paragraph 1. It is a little lengthy. I will submit it in writing, but I would like to state it.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, point of order. My point of order is that paragraph 1 has been adopted and if Mr. Barr desires to present some kind of amendment he would first have to obtain approval of the motion to rescind the action we have taken adopting paragraph 1 as it stands.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is unanimous consent or a two-thirds vote of the Convention allowing him to make the motion --

BARR: May I make the motion? The body would not know why I want to rescind unless I am allowed to state my reasons. I would like to have that paragraph 1 stricken completely and a new one substituted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to rise to a point of information. I feel this way about Mr. Barr's proposal. I think he is in order. It seems to me we divided these questions for mere consideration. Therefore, when we get through considering on both divisions of the question we still have to adopt the resolution as a whole. Therefore, I think he is in order, if he has an amendment to offer.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich, when we divided the question we voted in effect, adopted the first page. When we voted on the new sections 3, 4 and 5, we voted to adopt those. The whole resolution was adopted. Now if Mr. Barr rises to offer a motion to amend the resolution further it will take a two-thirds vote to allow him to offer that at this time.

BARR: Then, Mr. President, I would like to state that in adopting the second page it changed my thinking entirely on the length of the recess, and I hereby move that we rescind our action regarding paragraph 1 in order that I may make a motion in connection with it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now if we rescind at this time it will take a two-thirds vote. Is there a second to the motion?

KILCHER: A point of information, Mr. President. When notice is given it takes only a majority.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. If his motion were acted upon tomorrow it would take a majority vote.

BARR: I would rather act on it today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr moves that the Convention rescind its action as regards the first paragraph on page 1. Is there a second to the motion?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I will second the motion if he will include in the motion the matter that he desires to change. In other words, he moves to rescind and with respect to paragraph 1 then we will know what is following.

KILCHER: Point of order. That is not necessary. It will come out in a debate. The motion is debatable, the reasons will come out in debate.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order. The point that Mr. Sundborg has raised makes a compound motion of it and you can't make a compound motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are correct, Mr. McCutcheon.

HERMANN: I second the motion.

SUNDBORG: I ask unanimous consent that we rescind our action with respect to paragraph 1 only, for the purpose of allowing Mr. Barr to propose an amendment.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I rise to a point of information. What does Mr. Barr have in mind to propose?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, if he so chooses --

BARR: Mr. President, my motion has been seconded and it is before the house now. Therefore, I will explain what I have in mind. Of course, from a personal viewpoint, if we have a two weeks vacation, the people in Fairbanks will receive no per diem and no pay. I myself and perhaps some others who live here just cannot afford to take a two weeks vacation under those circumstances. If we receive half pay, say just the per diem, then I could. I contend that this Convention is in session until we adjourn. A recess makes no difference. Therefore, while we are in recess and in town in attendance upon the Convention we are entitled to per diem, but that has been more or less ruled against. Therefore, I would like to make the motion, if this is rescinded, that we recess for a total of five days for the holidays for the purpose of taking a holiday, those five days being Christmas, the day before and day after, and New Years and the day after, and that we are in session the intervening five days, that during that intervening period the Chair may grant leave of members living out of town to go home for the purpose of holding hearings and those remaining here doing the committee work and hearings. That is the reason for my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I can't help but feel that Mr. Barr and some others apparently misunderstand what action we have taken. The people resident in Fairbanks are being treated no differently from any other delegates to this Convention. Those of us returning to our homes for Christmas is as perfectly normal procedure in any deliberative body, and has added incentive of holding public hearings in this case, are not receiving any extra pay, we are not receiving per diem but merely being reimbursed for travel expenses. I have the definite feeling that as this day has proceeded that the people in Fairbanks feel they are being put upon in some way. Actually it should be very convenient for them, living here and I don't feel that in denying them per diem during this recess they are being unfairly treated. I think the matter has been perfectly clear. We have passed upon the dates of the recess. Those dates are necessary, I think to allow people to return to distant points and accomplish the purpose of the recess I feel the amendment is without merit.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I believe I can see Mr. Barr's point now. I had not noticed it before. It does become a matter of each individual. There are some who no doubt can resume business during the Christmas holidays at home and in that way take care of their necessary expenses, where some may, even though living in the Fairbanks area, be on a strict vacation. They have had to give up their job to even be at the Convention, and in that way they are left without any income at all during that time.

COOPER: Mr. President, I want to make it specifically clear right at this time. One of the previous speakers referred to delegates from Fairbanks in a unanimous state. I want to make it specifically clear that I for one as a delegate from Fairbanks do not intend to accept any form of remuneration whatsoever from this Convention while it is recessed.

BARR: Mr. President, I did not speak for all of the members who reside here. I spoke for myself, and said very likely some others, and I want that in the record clearly. Now I was thinking specifically of the people who live outside of the Fairbanks area who are remaining here and are being allowed per diem. They are being allowed that per diem because it is legal and because they are in attendance upon the Convention which is only in recess. We who live here are still in attendance upon the Convention while it is in recess and we have no other income just like the people who are staying here from out of town. Mr. Cooper of course, is in business as are two or three others and they have steady incomes or at least have made enough money to put it aside for their living expenses. I have not. I am on a salary. When I am off that salary I have no other income. As long as it is legal for me to receive per diem as well as those people who are remaining in Fairbanks, I don't see why we should not receive it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on the motion? Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: In support of Mr. Barr's contention, I would say this, that the 15-day recess for specific purpose is no different than a recess that this Convention has already accomplished for a specific purpose. The only difference is that we recessed over one Saturday for a specific purpose. This time we intend to recess for 15 days. It doesn't appear to me that there is any difference at all in that the delegates here would be entitled to per diem.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to point out that when we recessed over that Saturday it counted against 75 days of total Convention time. If we recess for anything but hearings, it will count against Convention time. That is why we can't recess for holidays or any other purpose.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, merely referring to one delegate's suggestion that we are entitled, as a matter of law to per diem and compensation for 15 days, shocks the conscience. One of the opinions that was presented to the Attorney General, and he approved, was an opinion that suggested that it is the universal custom and the courts will uphold it, to pay per diem and compensation over short periods of time when the Convention is in recess because the presumption is that the committees of the Convention are going about their work, but to suggest for 15 days that this Convention, or any one of its delegates, be entitled to compensation or per diem while being absent from the Convention actually shocks the conscience and probably should.

BARR: My motion in case the action to rescind is upheld, my motion will be to recess for five days for vacation purposes in which case there would be no pay or per diem and then during the intervening five days, between Christmas and New Years, we would be in full session and carry on our work. So in that case there would be no question of illegal payments of any kind.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: There is nothing in this Act that refers to a vacation except for the purpose of hearings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, Mr. Londborg said a few minutes ago he had been somewhat convinced to Mr. Barr's point of view by reason of the fact that some delegates would be in a position to take up the threads of their private careers and some would not, and I think that is just as true of the ones who might be going somewhere to hold hearings as it is of the ones who remain in Fairbanks. We don't draw the line between those who are inconvenienced by this and between those who are remaining here and live in Fairbanks and those who are going to their homes wherever they are. I think that is no argument for it at all. I also feel that throughout the Convention those who live in the Fairbanks area have been getting $20.00 per diem for every day they have been here. That is a great advantage to them who do not have to maintain two establishments, one at a home which may be at a great distance and one here temporarily. I think they are not being disadvantaged at all by not being paid a per diem for the 15 days of the recess.

DOOGAN: I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan moves the previous question. Is there a second?

GRAY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Seconded by Mr. Gray. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All those in favor of ordering the previous question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall the Convention rescind its action relative to the first paragraph of the resolution relating to the recess?" All those in favor --

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 10 - Barr, Hermann, Laws, Londborg, McCutcheon, McNees, Nolan, Peratrovich, Reader, Stewart.

Nays: 41 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, McLaughlin, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Poulsen, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, McNealy, R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: Ten yeas, 41 nays and 4 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion to rescind the action has failed. Is there other business? Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Am I correct in assuming we can go on to something new?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct, Mr. Harris. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: I rise to a point of information. There is some part we have left out of this thing right here. We have forgotten our secretarial staff entirely. I think they should be considered. What are we going to do? Have you information on what's to be done about it?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, you may answer the question.

SUNDBORG: In a resolution of the Administration Committee which was adopted in the early days of the session, it would provide that should the Convention recess that the salaries of the secretarial staff would cease. Am I correct in that?

COGHILL: That is correct. It is the understanding of the Administration Committee stemming from that decision that the secretariat was hired on the spot here at Fairbanks and that they would be thoroughly informed that if the Convention recessed for any period of time to hold hearings, that their salary would not continue.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That was brought to the attention of the secretarial staff of the Convention in the early days.

MARSTON: These people from out of town -- are we going to leave them here? I think they would like to go home same as we would. We have brought them in here from out of town, part of them, I think they should be considered.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, the Chair would suggest that that perhaps is a subject you might take up before the Board of Administration at its next meeting. Would that be satisfactory?

MARSTON: Thank you, sir. Will do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, I have a resolution on the Chief Clerk's desk. I will ask her to read it, then I will ask for a unanimous vote for adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to reverting to the introduction of resolutions at this time? Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Yes. I think we should follow through with this arrangement for hearings and finish it up so we won't take another full morning on it, and then tackle anything new that might come up. I object to Mr. Harris's request.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you object to Mr. Harris's request then Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Yes, if it's going to take longer than two minutes, yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, do you object?

HELLENTHAL: I object.

HARRIS: I so move.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris moves and Mr. Johnson seconds the motion that we revert to the introduction of resolutions at this time. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: I rise to a point of information. Are we all finished now so far as the resolution is concerned?

PRESIDENT EGAN: So far as the resolution is concerned. The hearings has not come before us yet. The question is, "Shall the Convention revert to the introduction of resolutions at this time?" All those in favor of reverting to the introduction of resolutions at this time will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The ayes have it and we have reverted to the introduction of resolutions. The Chief Clerk may read the resolution.

CHIEF CLERK: Resolution by Mr. Harris:

"Whereas: the first resolution adopted by the Alaska Constitutional Convention stated 'that it is the intent of this Convention that the Constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic government and contain the framework for state government', and

"Whereas, the location of the permanent seat of the capital cannot be regarded as a fundamental principle of government, nor as part of the framework of government

"Now Therefore Be It Resolved: That the Constitution shall be silent on the matter of the seat of government for the State of Alaska."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your pleasure, Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: I ask for unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris asks unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted.

ROBERTSON: I object.

HARRIS: I so move.

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris so moves that the resolution be adopted. Mr. Taylor seconds the motion. The question is open for discussion. Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I don't object to the resolution but I think it should be handled more as a proposal than as a motion and should be referred to the committee that previously had the resolutions pertaining to that subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley, the rules say that a resolution can be considered the same as a motion on the floor if the proposer of the resolution so requests. Is there other discussion on the resolution?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: I would like to direct a question to Mr. Harris. Mr. Harris, would it carry out the intent of your resolution if it said the Constitution did not name the site of the state capital?

HARRIS: That is the intent.

WHITE: Mr. Chairman, I ask of Mr. Harris if he would so amend the resolution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are asking Mr. Harris if he would be amenable to accepting such an amendment? The Chief Clerk will read what it says on that particular subject.

CHIEF CLERK: "That the Constitution shall be silent on the matter of the seat of government for the State of Alaska." The amendment would say "That the Constitution shall not name the site of the state capital."

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is nothing before us. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I move and ask unanimous consent that Mr. Harris's motion be amended to provide that his proposed resolution be referred to the Committee on Recommendations and Resolutions. I so move.

HARRIS: I object.

HELLENTHAL: Point of order. We had this out once before here by labeling a proposal a motion. I do not think that one can properly force his attention on the delegates at a time of his choosing. This matter is essentially a proposal, although labeled a motion, and for that reason I think it is out of order, that it should be treated as a proposal and referred to the proper committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What does the Chief Clerk --

CHIEF CLERK: I didn't get a second to the motion.

TAYLOR: I seconded the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor seconded the original motion.

CHIEF CLERK: Yes, but this one that Mr. Sundborg just made now. Somebody seconded it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper seconded the motion. The Chair would have to hold that that resolution states that it is the feeling of the Convention in effect, not of the committee, Mr. Hellenthal, but it is a resolution. Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Mr. President, I wish to speak in support of Mr. Hellenthal's suggestion and perhaps to amplify a part, a bit, to suggest that while this may not be phrased precisely as a proposal, it has the effect of defeating consideration, further consideration of several proposals now before the Convention. In effect, it becomes a proposal. Its subject matter is proper subject matter for proposals which already are under consideration by several Committees, or I should say, several such proposals which are under consideration and have been by one or more committees. I feel that simply by labeling it a resolution it has not necessarily become a resolution and it is not entitled to more expeditious treatment than was given the resolution to which it refers.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, the Chair will have to express why the Chair feels that it is a resolution in that it refers in its first paragraph, as I recall, to the fact that the Convention adopted a resolution in the early days of the Convention that only basic fundamental constitutional matters would be considered in the constitution. Mr. Taylor.

BARR: Mr. President, I have been trying to get the floor.

TAYLOR: I yield to Mr. Barr.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, you may have the floor.

BARR: This resolution is definitely a resolution because a proposal contains matter to be included in the constitution and this does not. It treats the manner in which we are to write the constitution. Therefore, it is definitely a resolution, and our rules say, no matter what we want now, our rules say that a resolution may be treated as a motion. Therefore, we have to do that or change the rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, it is hard for me to understand as to how either Mr. Hellenthal or Mr. Riley can say that this is a proposal. We have a motion. We have a resolution that has been adopted by this body in which we said that we were going to put only into the constitution those things which would be the basic laws of the Territory of Alaska. It is equally hard for me to see, attempting to choose, or choosing where the capital is going to be, has anything to do with the basic laws of the State of Alaska. And, therefore, if this is now a resolution treating, or calling this body's attention to the fact that a previous resolution which was adopted, which would prevent us from attempting to choose the place of the seat of government. Now, I think that should be a matter left to the Legislature or to the people of Alaska and to come after the adoption of the constitution. And I feel that this is the time and place for the hearing on this resolution because it cannot be considered anything more than a resolution. I have a proposal in, I suppose before that committee providing for a matter of choosing the Convention, but that matter of choosing will be after the constitution is ratified and we become a state of the United States, and I think that this is perfectly feasible and proper for us to consider this resolution, which is not a proposal, at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to inquire as far as this resolution of Mr. Harris is concerned, does that exclude any possibility of a resolution for giving the consideration, such as your proposal, Mr. Taylor, if I may direct a question to Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I feel that if this resolution carries, it could still provide for a method of selection, but as to any particular place, I think we should be absolutely silent.

LONDBORG: I think that is fine. I would just like to say this then, that somewhere in our deliberation we must either state the site or make provision for a site because if our constitution is ratified by the people and Congress accepts it, as we hope this coming spring, we would perhaps be allowed to become a state. I would doubt if it could be as soon as next fall, but let's say it is. Where would we meet then and conduct our business if we did not either provide for a capital or name a capital?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: All of this is precisely why I directed a question to Mr. Harris. To clear up the record, I move his resolution be amended.

SUNDBORG: There is a motion before the house which has been seconded.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you state your motion for Mr. White, Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I made a motion which was seconded, to provide that Mr. Harris's resolution be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, now in order to accomplish your motion, it would take a two-thirds vote because the rules give Mr. Harris a right to ask for a vote on it at this time. Who seconded Mr. Sundborg's motion?

COOPER: I seconded the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the question as to whether or not it will be referred to committee is in order although it calls for a suspension of the rules. Therefore the motion is not debatable, and this motion is in effect the motion to suspend the rules.

GRAY: All I have to say is that we have a committee for TAYLOR: Point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

SUNDBORG: Have you just declared that it is a rule of this Convention that a motion to suspend the rules is not debatable?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, Mr. Sundborg. Robert's Rules of Order. Our own rules, I believe, are silent on the matter, but Robert's Rules provides that a motion for suspension of the rules or, in effect, to suspend the rules is undebatable.

SUNDBORG: I wonder if I may ask if that is the understanding of the Rules Committee Chairman?

RILEY: May we defer that just a moment while --

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Sundborg's motion was incorrectly put and the Chair could rule it out of order. I think you have been kind to the Delegate by stating a suspension in his motion for him.

PRESIDENT EGAN: However, as it stands now the motion asks that the rules be suspended and that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations.

SUNDBORG: When I was originally recognized, I think the record of the Chief Clerk will show, that my motion was to amend the motion of Mr. Harris to provide that instead of settling this matter now, that the proposed resolution be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations. I take the view that this is a perfectly proper amendment and does not require suspension of the rules or a two-thirds vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will hold that it is in effect a motion to suspend the rules to amend such a motion that is in order, Mr. Sundborg.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, if Mr. Sundborg's motion was actually a motion for amendment, then he was perfectly in order, but I didn't understand it as a motion for amendment.

SUNDBORG: May I ask the Chief Clerk to read my motion as it was put.

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. Sundborg "Moved and asked unanimous consent that Mr. Harris's motion be amended to provide that his proposed resolution be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and Recommendations."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will still hold that an amendment of that nature puts the motion in the category of a suspension of the rules inasmuch as the rules specifically state that a member can bring a motion if he so chooses before the Convention on a resolution and acted upon at this time, and to change the method of the rules, which Mr. Sundborg's motion for amendment is, in effect asking that that rule be suspended and that it be sent to the Committee. The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's proposed amendment be adopted? The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 35 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Doogan, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, Walsh.

Nays: 16 - Barr, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Harris, Hinckel, Johnson, Kilcher, Laws, McCutcheon, McNees, Taylor, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 4 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, McNealy, R. Rivers.)

WHITE: Mr. President, I wish to change my vote from "yes" to "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks that his vote be changed from "yes" to "no".

CHIEF CLERK: 35 yeas, 16 nays and 4 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the resolution by two-thirds majority vote of the members present is ordered sent to the Resolutions Committee.

BARR: Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege. Our rules specifically say that a member may do a certain thing. Now this body has voted to override those rules preventing him from doing that certain thing. I want to state I am not very proud of belonging to a body that would do that.

COOPER: Point of order. The rule was not carried. Rule 59 states "... two-third's of the membership to which the Convention is entitled." and 35 votes is not two-thirds.

NOLAN: Mr. President, may we have a short recess?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to state that the point of order raised by Mr. Cooper was well taken. It is the first time the Chair has ever been confronted with such a rule. Usually the rule is that on the final passage of proposals or something as momentous as that, it takes a majority of those to which a body is entitled. However, Rule 59 does state, and the Chair was in error in saying that the resolution is referred to the Resolutions Committee. The resolution is still before us.

WHITE: Mr. President, I move the resolution be amended and to strike the words "shall be silent on the matter of" and insert in lieu thereof "not name".

KILCHER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that Mr. White's proposed amendment be adopted. Will the Chief Clerk read the proposed amendment as it has been offered by Mr. White.

CHIEF CLERK: "That the Constitution not name the seat of government for the State of Alaska."

PRESIDENT EGAN: In other words, the effect of the proposed amendment by says, "The Constitution shall be silent as to the proposed seat of government" that it will say "The Constitution will not name the seat of government."

HARRIS: Mr. President, I will accept that as my original motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection -- you ask unanimous consent Mr. White?

WHITE: I put it in the form of an amendment. I ask unanimous consent.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Kilcher seconded the motion by Mr. White. The subject is open for discussion. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I think before we adopt any amendment of that nature we should be very sure that we may do that and that it is not necessary that we have a seat of government named. I have talked to two or three of the consultants we have here about that particular matter, and it has been their opinion that we have to name a seat of government in the constitution, and I think all state constitutions do name the seat of government except in one or two cases where it is named by implication rather than by outright designation. I am not particularly opposed to the resolution, but I think we should find out if we are in order in adopting it, and maybe we ought to have the advice of some of our consultants on that matter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I rise to a point of order. I believe that the amendment now removes any questions and that the matter is now properly a proposal and that it should be referred to the proper committee just as four or five similar resolutions have already been so referred.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, Mr. Hellenthal, for instance the resolution by Mr. Poulsen, was considered as a resolution and was referred to a committee. The committee accepted it and no one objected. Mr. Poulsen did not ask that it be considered by the Convention at that time. Mr. Harris is asking that his resolution be considered at this time, and the Chair would feel he is in order and has already stated that. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, in regard to the motion made by Mr. White to amend, it would seem more proper that we should not preclude some inclusion or reference to have a capital may be named in the future, or a seat of government may be named, and therefore a substitution, the elimination of the language, "silent on" may be much better. And an additional point I would like to make is that in any case the matter of a capital could probably best be treated in a separate ordinance anyway rather than in the body of the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I believe as we stated before it will be necessary to have some place for the government to be in operation, some seat of capital, and I would like to move that that resolution be amended to say that we decide on a permanent site of the capital, that a temporary capital site be named for the transitional period.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have before us the particular amendment offered by Mr. White, is that correct? Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: To overcome some of the objections that have been voiced by members as to this amendment that I am in favor of, I might call attention to the body that in the separate committee here is a proposal in which established a method of choosing a seat of government and also as to tide it over until such selection can be made by the people of Alaska, there is a section there that "Juneau shall be the seat of government until such time as the people of Alaska choose the capital." So that proposal if enacted or any part of it, will take care of the question that is now confronting the delegates.

LONDBORG: I would like to have it clear that by voting on this proposal and accepting that this does not stop anything of Mr. Taylor's nature. My understanding is that if we accept this resolution that the proposals relative to the capital will be just null and void.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would be the effect, the Chair would feel, that the adoption of this proposal would lend to the Convention. Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, to explain my amendment, it is to take care of the very matter that you raised. I feel personally the constitution should deal with the method of choosing the state capital. I do not feel that the constitution should name the state capital. I felt that Mr. Harris's wording, where he said "shall be silent on the matter of" would preclude any formula for adopting a state capital in the future. Therefore, I inserted my words to allow any formulas to be considered but to preclude only the naming of the specific place in the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I wonder if we could have the proposed resolution, including Mr. White's amendment read so that we will know, have the thing down in front of us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will, at the request of Mr. Davis, read the resolution including Mr. White's proposed amendment to the Convention.

CHIEF CLERK: "Whereas: the first resolution adopted by the Alaska Constitutional Convention stated 'that it is the intent of this Convention that the Constitution should be a document of fundamental principles of basic government and contain the framework for state government', and

"Whereas, the location of the permanent seat of the capital cannot be regarded as a fundamental principle of government, nor as part of the framework of government

"Now Therefore Be It Resolved: That the Constitution not name the seat of government for the State of Alaska."

LONDBORG: Mr. President, to make that resolution consistent, I still believe the word "permanent" should be in the latter reference to the capital site so that the proposals that are now in committees can take care of temporary sites for the capital. I would still like to move again that the word "permanent" be put in --

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is a motion on the floor already, Mr. Londborg. It would be in order that you hold yours. Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, there are 22 state constitutions that make no reference to the capital at all in the constitution.

SUNDBORG: I have to object to that. All but eight state constitutions do name the capital by the name of a city. I will present the evidence and read the constitutions to Mr. Hilscher or anyone else.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher has the floor.

HILSCHER: I would like to add to what I said. We have some consultants here who are authorities on the subject. Let's settle this matter through intelligence rather than through a political hassle.

WHITE: If it would help anyone, I would agree to the insertion of the word "permanent" in my amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks that he amend the original amendment by adding the word "permanent". Would you read it as you would like to have it, Mr. White?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I move that we table the resolution and the proposed amendment.

HERMANN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the proposed resolution with the pending amendment be tabled. All those in favor of tabling the proposed resolution along with the proposed amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The proposed amendment has been laid on the table. Is there other unfinished business to come before the Convention? Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, before we put that motion, if the Chair may, we have with us today in the gallery Mr. Dayton McKean, the Dean of the Graduate School of the University of Colorado. The Chair would like to take this opportunity of introducing Mr. McKean to the delegates. If you wish to speak a few words to the delegates, Mr. McKean --

MR. MCKEAN: I am very glad to have the opportunity to accept the invitation to come here and meet with you for a couple of weeks and I hope to be of some help. Maybe at least I can say in some of the things, don't do it the way we did and save the posterity of Alaska from lots of trouble. And I hope to get acquainted with everybody in the next few days. (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. McKean. Mr. Johnson, you had the floor.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I now move that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SUNDBORG: I object.

STEWART: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Stewart seconded the motion. All those in favor of adjournment until tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. will signify by saying aye, all opposed by saying no. The "ayes have it and the Convention will stand adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 9, 1955

THIRTY-SECOND DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning Chaplain Major Henry A. Foss of Ladd Air Force Base. Chaplain Foss will give the daily invocation.

CHAPLAIN FOSS: Eternal loving Heavenly Father, we raise our hearts in gratitude to Thee Who has been the guiding and sustaining force and power within our lives throughout the days and years of the history of our nation. We thank Thee for this occasion and this assembly which is gathered here for the transaction of this important business. We pray Thee that we may be guided by Thy Spirit in mind, in heart, in our deliberations and actions that may determine a course and path of life that may bring happiness and welfare for the common good of all concerned. We ask in His name and for His sake. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time?

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal has read the journal for the 29th and 30th days, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 6 and 7, respectively, and recommends their adoption without change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the journals of the 29th and 30th Convention days be adopted.

WHITE: I beg your pardon. Correction. The journals for the 28th and 29th days.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent that the journals of the 28th and 29th days be adopted by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journals are ordered adopted.

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal has read the journal for the 30th day, Wednesday, December 7, and on page 2, sixth paragraph, in the middle of the page, beginning ". Coghill", instead of "Administration Committee" say "Committee on Administration". Two paragraphs below that "Mr. Londborg asks that the consideration , strike "the". Three paragraphs below that is the same situation. "Mr. Londborg moved that the", strike "the". Page 4, fourth paragraph, second line, after "12:15" insert o'clock p.m. The Committee to read the journal, Mr. President, recommends the adoption of the journal for the 30th day with these corrections.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the journal for the 30th day, with the proposed amendments. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered and the journal of the 30th day with the proposed amendments is ordered adopted. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention?

CHIEF CLERK: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, your committee to suggest arrangements for hearings during recess has had placed on the desk of each delegate a report which, since its preparation, has been approved by the committee chairmen. The committee chairmen asked that it be submitted to the Convention for such action as the Convention desired to take on it. I would like to say that this report and the arrangements suggested therein were compiled from the questionnaires which the members filled out and turned in to the Chief Clerk. Since the time that the report was prepared, we have made some slightly different arrangements respecting compensation and per diem than many members contemplated at the time they filled out the questionnaires and so it is possible there will be some changes which we will want to make in the schedule of hearings. I would like to explain that several principles which guided your committee in setting up this schedule of hearings were as follows: first of all, we scheduled delegates for hearings only in their home communities except in the case of those who are remaining in Fairbanks and who are here from other places and except that Mrs. Hermann, who is going to Nome anyway and who was elected at large in the Territory, would be scheduled for a hearing in that City. We also had the guiding principle that no delegate would be set down on the schedule for a hearing in more than one place. Since I know there will probably be several members who want to suggest changes in this as far as their own plans are concerned, I would like to suggest to the Convention that we take a brief recess during which those members could contact the Committee and then we will bring the resolution out on the floor and I will move its adoption with certain amendments.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a few minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to revert to the order of business dealing with introduction of resolutions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent to revert to the order of business of introduction of resolutions. Is there objection? If there is no objection it is so ordered.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that a resolution consisting of the matter contained in the report to the Convention by committee chairmen, which was distributed to the delegates yesterday, be adopted by the Convention with the following changes: On the first page, item 1, after the word, "hearings" strike the words, "of not to exceed two days". On line 2 insert a comma after the word "Anchorage" and strike the word "and" immediately following. Change the period after "Fairbanks" to a comma. Strike all of the next line which is the first line of the second paragraph. In the following line, which is line 4, strike "Kotzebue and insert in its place "Unalakleet". In the next paragraph, second line, strike Unalakleet" and insert in its place Kotzebue". On page 2 the fourth item, strike "Kotzebue -- Mr. Cross" and insert "Unalakleet -- Mr. Londborg". In the last of the places shown for hearings, Fairbanks, strike the first name, "Mr. Barr". Item 5, second line, after the word "Convention" insert the words "if possible".. Mr. President, I would like to now read item 1 where we made several changes so all delegates will know how it reads if the changes are adopted.

" 1. Hearings shall be held at Ketchikan, Juneau, Anchorage, Fairbanks, Wrangell, Petersburg, Sitka, Haines, Klawock, Nome, Unalakleet, Kodiak, Cordova, Seward, Homer, Palmer, Dillingham, Valdez and Nenana."

One additional amendment has just been called to my attention. On page 2, the third place name, Nome", strike the words "and Mr. Londborg". Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the resolution as amended.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the resolution as amended.

KILCHER: I object.

SUNDBORG: I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg so moves. Who seconded the motion?

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White seconded the motion. When a person seconds the motion they should also get up and address the Chair so it will be easier for the secretariat to see who it was. The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, I am sorry that I have to object. The reason is that in spite of having contacted the Committee of three on a matter of importance, no consideration has been given to my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I wonder if I could interpose that we did give consideration in the Committee to Mr. Kilcher's objection, and the Committee unanimously discarded it. We did give consideration to it, Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I stand corrected. The Committee has adopted rules in putting up this report that have nothing to do with the need at hand in holding hearings, in my opinion. The Committee was led by its commendable desire of simplicity and savings. If we are not hypocritical about going to have hearings during this winter recess, we should have hearings where they are most needed, and the judge as to where the hearings are most needed, should be the delegate from his district. The delegate should have been contacted more as to their will and wishes. Those delegates that had two or three places of hearings should have been personally contacted as to which place they think is the most important or possibly which places are equally important. This has not been done for simplicity's sake and for matters of streamlining an arbitrary rule as set up by the Committee, to have one hearing or one delegate in his hometown, send him home, let him have a hearing and that should be enough. That is not logical. Namely, in my particular case, and I know of three or four others, cases, exceptions should be made. Personally, I know a hearing in Kenai is much more important for the sake of statehood, for the sake of ratification of the constitution, than Homer. I have a lot of time next spring and a lot of time during my stay in Homer area when I am home. I can influence these people, I can talk to them in small groups. I can have a hearing sure enough. But the place that needs hearings badly where people are utterly critical if not downright opposed to statehood are Kenai and Seldovia. I don't want to say I could influence them greatly. I would suggest that somebody be sent to Kenai, probably also to Seldovia. Maybe somebody should go down from Anchorage. If hearings are going to be held they should be held where they are needed, and if we spend 10,000 dollars for this Christmas recess you can spend another $500, for maybe ten extra hearings in places where they are badly needed, and one of them is Kenai. Somebody should be sent down there from Anchorage or Kodiak, I don't care. I would gladly go. It has been intimated in the Committee that once we delegates are sent home then it should be our duty to hold further hearings. We may hold them. We are magnanimously given the freedom that we may hold other hearings for instance, Kenai and Seldovia. We may do that but without expense or prior notice. Why, they certainly need prior notice and certainly the expense to any hearing should be paid if the others are paid. If we are sent to one hearing in Homer and if we don't take that just as an excuse to go home for Christmas vacation we should also be paid the expenses to any other hearing held necessary.

COGHILL: I rise to a point of order. I believe this was thoroughly discussed yesterday on the other point of the recess. Therefore, I move debate be limited to five minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is out of order, Mr. Coghill. Mr. Kilcher has the floor. Mr. Kilcher, proceed.

KILCHER: From a financial point of view I could just as leave stay in Fairbanks. I have a lot of friends up here and interesting things to do. I would like to learn the country better. I could be well paid by per diem. I could stay here and get $300 pay for it. If I go home it will cost the Territory about $120 or $130, which is a nice savings. I don't see at all why a man should not be sent to another hearing place which costs the Territory possibly another $40 or $50. It is still much less than if a man stays here. I don't see why if I go home I should be penalized by spending a plane trip to Seldovia, which is about $20 forth and back or a plane trip to Kenai which is about $30 on my own time and my own money just out of sentimental reasons when it is my duty as a delegate. I will do plenty as a duty of the delegate. I have done so before November 8 and I will do so after February 8, but if we are going to go to hearings where they are needed. I think we should get paid for it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I address two questions through the Chair to Mr. Kilcher? Mr. Kilcher, do you feel that a hearing in Kenai would be more desirable than a hearing in Homer?

KILCHER: It is equally desirable.

SUNDBORG: My second question was going to be, would you prefer we sent you down for a hearing in Kenai in place of Homer, if it is to be but one per delegate, which was our guiding principle.

KILCHER: I have many objections to your guiding principle for being an arbitrary one, but consequently I don't feel I can answer your question. They are equally desirable, there should be two hearings, possibly three.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Before we send Delegate Kilcher down to Seldovia or wherever he is going, I want to know whether he is qualified to sell statehood down there, which he says he's going down there selling. I notice he said he never thought of statehood one way or the other before he was going to run for the Convention. So if he's going down there to sell statehood, maybe he has been converted. I would like to know.

GRAY: I move the previous question, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves the previous question. Is there a second to the motion?

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the previous question be ordered. All those in favor of ordering the previous question will dignify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The ayes have it and the previous question is ordered. The question is, "Shall the resolution with the proposed amendments be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of the proposed resolution will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no", and so the Convention has adopted the resolution as amended. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I think this is possibly a matter of personal privilege. At my own request I was not named as a person to hold, as to appearing on any of these hearings. For that reason I feel I am not entitled to travel either way or to per diem going to my home and back, and for that reason I would like to request that when the payroll clerk makes up the payroll that I not be given either travel or per diem.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will make a note as to Mr. Davis's request. Are there any proposals to be presented at this time? If not, are there any motions or resolutions to come before us? Is there any unfinished business? Under unfinished business we will revert to the reading of communications. We have one from outside the Convention. The Chief Clerk may proceed with the reading of the communications.

CHIEF CLERK: Letter from Mrs. Laura Jones. (At this time the Chief Clerk read a letter from Mrs. Laura E. Jones, 8th grade teacher in the Fairbanks schools, thanking the delegates for the invitation extended for her class to attend a plenary session and to be guests of the delegates at lunch.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Were there 28 children in that group?

CHIEF CLERK: Twenty-eight.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would be, if the Chair might say so, that would be approximately -- it might be that each two delegates could take one of these children. I am just suggesting what might happen here, as we go down the alphabet, except in the case of Mr. Hinckel. The Chair notes there are two Hinckel boys on that list. Mr. Hinckel being of the same name, you would want to have your alphabetical listing changed. Is there any suggestion as to how we should proceed in this situation? Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I think your suggestion is very well taken, and I will move that two delegates take charge of one student for the luncheon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Every two delegates will take --

HURLEY: What I mean is I agree in substance. I think it is a good idea.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the general agreement that each two delegates will take one of these children to lunch here on a certain day? Does somebody want to suggest as to what day? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to leave the date open to the Rules Committee on the date that they will put the next committee report in second reading on the calendar, so that the plenary session will not merely be a formality that they attend, and in line with that, that it be done if possible prior to recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley then if there is no objection would your Rules Committee attempt to report back to the Convention tomorrow so that we might send some communication back to the classroom?

RILEY: I expect we will have matters in second reading perhaps through Monday as the calendar now appears -- perhaps beyond that, dependent on what comes in meanwhile.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other unfinished business? Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I would like to rise to a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection. Mr. Kilcher, you may rise to a point of personal privilege.

KILCHER: How long may I speak, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is no specified limit as to how long you can talk.

KILCHER: I would hate to be interrupted by a motion to cut it to five minutes, for instance. I don't intend to speak that long.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, yesterday after the Chairman spoke, I don't mean to interrupt you, but it was called to the President's attention that we had adopted a resolution or motion that the tapes be cut off when the question of personal privilege, when a delegate rises to a question of personal privilege and owing to the fact that was brought to the attention of the President, he has no other alternative.

(At this time Mr. Kilcher spoke under the question of personal privilege.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, the Chair would like to additionally state that the remark was not directed at you particularly. It was something that the Chair feels that each and every delegate should recognize when he takes his feet at all times. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I should move, I believe there is no further unfinished business, I therefore move that we have a recess for a definite stated period of 15 minutes perhaps to get a cup of coffee. I move that we have a 15-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess for 15 minutes. If there is no objection, the Convention is at recess for 15 minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. If there is no other unfinished business we will proceed with the general orders of the day. General order of the day is consideration of Committee Proposal No. 2 in second reading. The Chief Clerk may proceed with the second reading of Committee Proposal No. 2.

(The Chief Clerk read Committee Proposal No. 2 for the second time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Before we proceed the Chair would like to announce that the University expects at least 100 additional people for lunch and they would like to have the tables, to be able to come down and get the tables at 11:45. The tables would be returned to this room at 1:30. We now have Committee Proposal No. 2 before us. The proposal is open for amendment section by section. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I believe the President should call to the attention of the delegates that attached to the copy of the committee proposal which is on everybody's desk is a commentary which has been prepared by the Committee for the benefit of the delegates in construing the meaning of each section of the proposed article. Of course, so many of the sections are self-explanatory, but some of them possibly need a little explanation, and for that reason this commentary on the various sections we felt would be helpful and it might be the means of perhaps enlightening the members so there would not be too much discussion or time taken up in the consideration of the proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mr. Taylor. Are there amendments to Section 1 of Committee Proposal No. 2? Does everyone have the copy of the proposal and a copy of the commentary on the judiciary article before them? Is there anyone else who does not have a copy? Mr. Marston also needs a copy of the proposal and a copy of the commentary on the article. Are there amendments to Section 1?

MCNEALY: I have an amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, you may offer your amendment.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I offer this amendment now only to preserve the future race.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment by Mr. McNealy.

CHIEF CLERK: "Strike Sections 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14."

HURLEY: Point of order. Mr. President. I understood we were considering Section 1.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, would you mind if your proposed amendment were held until we come to Section 4? If it is the wish of the Convention we will determine first as to whether or not there are amendments to each section. Are there amendments to Section 1? If there are none we will proceed to Section 2. Are there amendments to Section 2? Are there amendments to Section 3? Are there amendments to Section 4? Mr. McNealy's amendment may be made at this time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Strike Section 4."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are you moving that the section be stricken?

MCNEALY: I wish to move the adoption of the amendment striking Section 4.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy moves the adoption of the amendment striking Section 4. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I did not hear what he said.

PRESIDENT EGAN: He moves the amendment to strike Section 4. Is there a second to the motion?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I will second for the purpose of allowing Mr. McNealy to explain what his intention and purpose is.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg seconds the motion to strike Section 4.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I am not going to take a great deal of time today as I understand the bill possibly will be continued in second reading until after the recess and very likely it will not be necessary for me to speak upon all these amendments because probably my thought is included in my motion to strike Section 4. It states that, "Justices of the Supreme Court and judges of the Superior Court are appointed by the Governor on nomination by the Judicial Council as provided in this article." Being an attorney, I know the background of the appointment system of judges. Being an Alaskan I have lived under the appointment system so long that I feel that I should have the right to vote for these judges. The thought behind this I believe and the thought of the Judiciary Committee no doubt is to keep judges out of politics. In my opinion this appointment method will bring judges into politics more so than an election by the people. For that reason and in regard to many other reasons which I do not want to take up the time of the Convention to discuss now, I am opposed to the appointment by the governor on nomination by the judicial council.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, in order to clarify a statement that you just made, the Chair feels obligated to state to the delegates that anyone who is under the impression that any official action has been taken that will hold any proposal in second reading is wrong. There has never been any action that will hold anything in second reading officially as you mentioned, Mr. McNealy. If it was your feeling it might be held until after the hearings recessed, no such action has ever been taken, and the Chair wants to clarify that point to all the delegates. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, I feel in answer to the argument presented here and the proposal to strike, I feel it proper to point out to the Convention that I, probably in this Convention, was the only elected judge present in this Convention. I was twice elected as municipal Magistrate for the City of Anchorage. I might point out, not in vanity or pride but as a factual argument that I never lost, and never won by less than double the vote of any other candidate. The last time I ran my recollection is that I won four to one. If any man should be in favor of the elective system, it should be I. I might point out that in terms of the elective system no member of the Judiciary Committee and that consisted of two laymen, one of whom had spent 15 years in law enforcement activities, never questioned the impropriety of having elective judges in Alaska. Historically, at the time of the adoption of the Federal Constitution, I don't believe that any state of the Union authorized the election of its judges. They were all appointed. When the elective system came in it was approximately the middle of the 19th century. It was found inadequate because of the fact that we will be confronted here in Alaska with not a nonpartisan judiciary but a judiciary that in substance would be dictated and controlled by a political machine. I am a partisan myself, but I don't believe that our judiciary should be subject to the influences where they would have to go to any clubhouse to secure their nomination or have to secure funds and sometimes excessive and exorbitant funds for the purposes of being elected. I might also point out that one of the dangers of the elective system is the fact that a judge whenever he makes a decision, he has to keep peering over his shoulder to find out whether it is popular or unpopular. If we determine the validity of our laws in terms of popularity as the general acceptance, we are then not a government of laws on which we pride ourselves. It is not the function of the judge to make the law, it is his function to determine it, and the way to keep them independent is to keep them out of politics. Historically, in terms of this document here there is nothing in it that is radical. There is nothing in it that is theory. All of it has worked. California, in 1932, adopted what is known as the Missouri Plan. That is a system of selection. One reason why we did not permit the governor of the state to pick candidates and have them approved or ratified by the senate or house of representatives was that it was discovered under the California plan that there was a tendency on the part of the governor to always pick men of his own political party, subject to the confirmation, not of the senate, but a group called a "committee on qualifications". He would just present them with a long line of Democrats or a long line of Republicans. Does the system work? The system does work. The method by which we determine how the judicial council would be created was -- we followed the Missouri Bar plan that has been in effect (when I say Missouri Bar plan, I mean the Missouri Plan which is part of Article 5, Section 29, of the Missouri Constitution) since 1942 and my recollection is that it has been ratified by the voters three times in succession. The complement of our judicial council, that is three selected directly by the bar association, three appointed by the governor, and the chief justice being ex officio member. The constitution of our judicial council is exactly the same as that in the State of Missouri. We did not follow the New Jersey Plan although the New Jersey Plan which has been sponsored by Chief Justice Vanderbilt, who is Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey -- Judge Vanderbilt is not opposed to the Missouri Bar Plan -- but frankly because of the complexities of the New Jersey judiciary, they could not get it through. In New Jersey the governor appoints and his appointment is ratified by the senate. In every modern constitution, and when I say modern constitution, with the exception of Hawaii which evaded the issue, in every modern constitution -- by that I mean all our latest -- Missouri, the State of New Jersey, and Hawaii -- they all provide for appointive judges and not elective judges. Have we compromised? Yes, we have -- we have compromised -- we have accepted the Missouri Plan. That means in substance what happens is that three lawyers appointed by the bar association as under the Missouri Plan, and the three laymen as appointed by the governor and approved by the senate initially determine who the candidates will be. What is the theory? The theory is you have a select group. The lawyers know who are good and they know who are bad. The laymen represent in substance the public in order to protect them in substance from the lawyers, but they are confirmed by the senate for one reason. The laymen in the committee insisted upon it so that we would have a broader base and the governor himself would not necessarily be able to nominate to the judicial council, his own house. The governor is presented with two names, two or more names, Missouri says three or more. We figured because of the size of the Territory, initially it would be preferable to present two names. The governor has no other choice, of the two names presented, he takes one, fills the vacancy in the court. In terms of the general acceptance of this plan is it radical? Is it new? Is it theory? No sir. It has been approved by the American Judicature Society. It has been approved by an organization I know which is, forgive me, I know I might affront many members here, which is renowned for its conservatism -- the American Bar Association. It has been in substance approved by the Alaska Bar Association, and it has been approved by probably the organization in the field which is most zealous in its idealism, the American Judicature Society. There is nothing unusual, nothing new. What we are trying to prevent are some of the travesties which have existed in some of the states where our judges are picked and plucked directly from the ward political office. Many of the members compromised. We are not happy, in a sense, with the compromise, but the only system that has ever worked apparently in recent years, has been a combination of the appointive and the elective. I might carry on a bit and point out what happens in terms after the governor does appoint from the list presented to him as under the Missouri Plan. Roughly, three and one-half or four years later, the judge is required, every judge without exception, is required to go on the ballot for approval by the voters. Does he have to spend any money? No sir. What is the requirement? The only requirement on a nonpartisan ballot could be, "Shall Judge 'Blank' be retained in office?" The Missouri Plan provides and the New Jersey Plan in substance provides (my figures are rough), that roughly a year and one-half after appointment the judge will be put on the ballot to determine whether or not the public desires to retain him. It was the view of the Committee that in order to attract good men to become candidates, the only way we could assure the attraction of good candidates was to assure them they would be in office at least for a period of three and one-half years. Why is that necessary? Because after a year and one-half a judge might make a very unpopular decision, and he would not be able to overcome that in terms of popular resentment, and he might be forced out of office after a year and one-half. It is not universally true, but generally your best practitioners in the law are also the men who have the best income and the best practice. A man with good income and good practice will not be attracted to the bench if he feels that after a year and one-half, he will hazard his whole career. He has already hazarded his private practice. He will hazard his whole career with the possibility of being rejected. Three and one-half years is a good inducement. If he is reelected after three and one-half years then under our terms, the terms of our proposal here, he will then sit on the bench for a period of ten years if he is a supreme court judge or he will sit on the bench for a period of six years if a superior court judge and then he will automatically go on another nonpartisan ballot to determine whether he shall be retained or not. That compromises the difficulty in the American judiciary system, and when I say compromise, it is the best compromise and the best solution to a vexing problem between those who feel we should have lifetime tenure so the judges can be absolutely independent or whether we should have short terms so the judges could be subject to popular will. The popular will should be expressed even in the control of the judiciary, but the way to control it is to put the judge on a nonpartisan ballot. It does not cost him a nickel. He is running against himself, he's not running against anybody else. In terms of whether or not the lawyers would pick the poorest or the best, my answer to that is the answer of Benjamin Franklin who in arguing for appointive system pointed out that it would be very advisable to have an appointive system under the Federal Constitution because of the fact that every lawyer, having determined that a judgeship was open, would promptly designate and recommend the most successful of his brothers in order to steal his practice. Do the lawyers, do they have a vested interest in the proposition? Definitely they do, but as craftsmen or professional men they know best, who is the most desirable. Will you get unanimity on that Judicial council? If the Alaska Bar Association or if any bar association in this Territory or in the United States can be used as an example, as long as you have three lawyers you will have three different opinions. It is probably the most democratic and probably the only efficient system that has yet been devised. It is not a crackpot idea, it has worked and regularly. State constitutional conventions have adopted it. In general I might point out this -- this conforms generally to all the recommendations of the American Judicature Society, all the recommendations of the American Bar Association. It conforms to the theory under which the Missouri Plan was adopted, and if this is adopted this will be (Hawaii avoided it) the most modern, most liberal, most workable judiciary article of all the constitutions of all the 49 states. Is it theory? Is it social planning? It is based on practice. It is based on experience, and it conforms to very good theory.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, may I direct a question in order to get information? According to your proposal, the judiciary council submits nominations, not less than two. What happens if the governor refuses to appoint either of the two or three as the case may be, if they do not meet with his approval?

MCLAUGHLIN: Others can be presented.

LONDBORG: Would he have the right to call for other nominations or must he stick with those originally presented?

MCLAUGHLIN: In theory the governor would be required to stick with those nominated.

LONDBORG: May I ask this, just for lack of information on my own part on the Bar Association who and how do people get into that? I take it they have to be lawyers.

MCLAUGHLIN: They would have to be lawyers, Mr. Londborg. There was no attempt made -- if we had started to define everyone's qualifications -- much of this will be left to the legislature, but normally that means lawyers.

LONDBORG: Then I'd like to ask this question, is it true that the judiciary council is composed of a majority of lawyers?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is true.

LONDBORG: That is counting the supreme court judge?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is true. I might point out that in Missouri, the appellate Judicial Commission (this is the Missouri Plan) consists of seven members, the chief justice, three elected lawyers, and three laymen appointed by the governor, and these are the ones that designate for the governor. They have subordinate commissions, the circuit Judicial Commission consists of two lawyers, two laymen, and the president and judge of the court of appeals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I have a question, Mr. President, that I would like to present to any member of the Judiciary Committee. That is this that I want to state first that I am very favorably impressed with this particular section. The appointive power however clearing through the governor -- in most of the state impeachment clauses -- the two or three highest elective officials or any elective officials being impeached in ordinary procedure, the impeachment springs from the house and is tried by the senate with the chief justice sitting or some of the other supreme court justices sitting as the presiding officer of that body. Now we have a situation here, I am just wondering why the appointive power of the governor is invoked in this particular clause, because it would seem to me with the judicial council and the recommendations such as they have made, it might be best to submit the recommendation directly to the senate. The governor, if he were in a position where he is being impeached, would then have on the presiding bench on the body that was impeaching him a justice whom he had named for appointment and I wonder what the thinking of the Judicial Committee on that is.

MCLAUGHLIN: It is my understanding that Mr. Rivers has some potential objection to the appointment of the nominees to the bench by the governor. Is that right, Mr. Rivers?

V. RIVERS: No, it is more a question to get explanation on the floor as to what would happen in a case like this. I have a good deal of regard for the section you folks have drawn up. I regard it very highly as a layman, but I did want to find out what your thinking was as to why we had to clear the judges through the governor in any event. Why didn't they spring from this appointive and recommending body directly to the senate for confirmation rather than clearing through the governor in any instance, because there might be a conflict of interests if these supreme court judges were called to sit upon the trial of a man whom they had received their appointment from.

MCLAUGHLIN: The thinking of the Committee, Mr. Rivers, was that we wanted something that had precedent and that worked. It has worked in Missouri, it is working in a limited sense in New Jersey, it is working in California. That is, we wanted a practical precedent for it. We did not want to experiment. We did consider the possibility that the judicial council do it, but we wanted some participation by the executive in it, and in fact one of the laymen insisted, on the Committee, insisted that not only the governor appoint the laymen to the committee but they be ratified by the senate so we would have a full participation in the process. As you know, under the model state constitution, the chief justice runs for election and he designates the judges. It was the feeling of the Committee that that would be too much of a closed corporation, that is the chief justice appoints, in lieu of the governor, under the Missouri Plan, but since it had been untried, the Committee didn't want to consider it. The fact of the matter is, there are many problems that we cannot anticipate, all the problems that will arise, but we took the best available everywhere and we applied it and when the problems arise, then we will attempt to solve them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I believe the mover of this amendment intimated that the Committee had based their favoring the appointive system on the basis that it would take the judgeships out of politics. I don't know what the Committee's thinking has been, but I certainly would not defend either the appointive nor the elective on the grounds that it would take the judgeships out of politics. I believe the political implications would be equal in either case. However, the appointive system does have the advantage of being selective as to the qualifications of judges. Quite often under an elective system a man is elected on his personal charm or his popularity and quite often his qualifications are not closely examined. Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, in regard to a question submitted by Mr. Rivers. Now I believe Mr. McLaughlin touched upon that, but I believe Mr. Rivers loses sight of the fact that the governor does not select any appointee that the only ones he can appoint to either the supreme court or the superior court are those men who have been selected by the judicial council, so the governor does not have any choice in the selection of the candidate for office. He merely appoints. I don't believe that that would create such a feeling of gratitude towards the governor from a man that was appointed to the supreme court or to the superior court that it would cause him to be derelict in his duties. Also I would like to point out that over many years there has been a great controversy in the legal profession throughout the United States. The American Bar Association Journal, which I have been receiving for some 27 years, periodically comes out with articles by various practicing attorneys and by judges, leading men in the profession, who have felt that a distinct change should be made in the selection of the judiciary. When the Missouri Plan was adopted, I believe it was in 1945, it was felt that there was a distinct improvement in the methods of choosing judges, that it abolished the necessity which had prevailed for many years of having to get out into the rough and tumble of a political fight, to spend money, perhaps depend upon certain groups for the support to get elected to a judgeship. Now in this particular instance we have got away from that necessity. We have the laymen and the attorneys -- and coming back to this attorney -- I might mention to the Convention that the attorneys now are organized in a body known as the Alaska Bar Association. It is an integrated bar, an official body of the Territory. Any person seeking to practice law in the Territory of Alaska, before he can practice, must be a member of the Alaska Bar Association, and he is bound by the actions of the integrated bar, so it is through the integrated bar that these names are selected. It is a democratic election among the attorneys for the selection of these judges. I think Mr. McLaughlin has elaborated upon that as to the selection and the lawyers would know possibly who would be the most able sitting on the benches. The less lucrative practice the man has, the more he would like to see the able man who has been making the money step up there, he might get some of his practice. That is true. It was not original with Mr. McLaughlin. Thomas Jefferson or Benjamin Franklin said that. I feel that in view of the historical matters of selection of judges, which has not met with the approval, that we have before us now an article which we hope will be adopted as it is into the constitution, and I know that if this article is adopted by this Convention and becomes a part of the constitution that every university in the United States that has a law school and all law societies that have the opportunity of reading this article can honestly say that they have perhaps the most progressive and most modern and up-to-date system of selecting the judiciary of any state in the United States, and I would like to see this adopted by this Convention without one syllable or a comma or a period left out, just as it is. Mr. McNealy says, "Well, we have had judges appointed here for many years. I would like to protect those men." Perhaps Mr. McNealy has practiced under those appointed judges so long he is like the prisoner who after many years begins to love his chains.

V. RIVERS: May I ask a question of Mr. Taylor?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Taylor, if the governor does not appoint and the appointment springs from judicial council, why is not only one name recommended to him instead of two?

TAYLOR: It is to give a choice.

V. RIVERS: He has a choice power and appointive power?

TAYLOR: That is correct. I might say that there will be legislative act to implement these sections that are in here. He will have to appoint because it devolves upon him. There can be three to give him a choice if he wants them, according to what the legislature says.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, this matter I wish to assure the delegates is not personal with me, and if you will bear with me for a couple of minutes I am going to make the whole pitch, .so to speak, on this particular amendment. If this amendment fails then I am going to ask unanimous consent to withdraw all the other suggested amendments for the purpose of saving time of this Convention, because if all the amendments were considered and argued upon, and I were fortunate enough to have a second, this discussion could go on for days and even weeks. I offer this amendment. I am not sold on the bill as it is. I am not particularly sold on the matter of the election of the judges by the public. I owe it to other attorneys who have asked me to offer this amendment and to laymen who feel that they should have the right to vote for all the offices that they possibly could vote for under a system of state government. I did not start in the law business as of yesterday. I have been admitted to the bar almost 27 years, and I did not have the funds to attend a university and the prior four years then I spent in the law office, and that was a continuous four years of work in a law office, so for more than 30 years I have been depending upon the law for my bread and butter, and on the point of having a successful practice, why that certainly should not prevent me from being one of those appointed if I ever desired to be a judge, which I don't think I could afford to because of probable pay scales, so I'll probably be appearing before the judges as long as I'm able to get around, possibly as long as old Judge Grigsby down in Anchorage or our Dean here, Julien Hurley. Now as far as your election of changing judges in office, I want to call attention to another old saw which has been in effect since time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary and that is that judges never die and they very seldom retire. In this matter of running against the record, I want to argue that point just a minute. To say that the voters are going to have an opportunity now, it's going to be put on the ballot shall Judge So-and-so be reelected. Well, I can think of this situation, I am concerned about this. Judge So-and-so has been appointed, and he serves and he is on the supreme bench for ten years or is on the superior bench and has served for six years and then he runs against his own record. All of the attorneys that are practicing before this judge learned over this period of six or ten years that Judge So-and-so is a stinker. He comes down with some of the lousiest decisions. He steps on this fellow and that fellow, he does not follow the law. He hands down decisions that are unfair to people. Now, all of the lawyers know this situation, but the general public does not know. The general public does not pay too much attention to judges and what is going on in court unless it is your case that is before the court, so the time eventually rolls around -- the six or ten years -- and old Judge "Stinker" comes up to run against his record. So then the lawyers, if they can do it -- Mr. Taylor, to digress a minute, mentioned the American Bar Association. I am not a member of the American Bar Association. Never have been and never will be. If my memory serves me correct, there are probably only about 30 per cent of the lawyers in the United States that do belong. I am not going to state why I do not belong and why the other 60 or 70 per cent don't -- but the fellow comes up. The lawyers then look over those now that belong to the American Bar Association at least, and possibly under our Alaska Bar Association, I haven't seen the Canon of Ethics adopted, or to be adopted, but if the members of the American Bar, under the Canon of Ethics, can do this, can get out and bring to the public's attention that Judge So-and-so should not be reelected, (and I question under the Canon of Ethics of the American Bar will allow it) then the lawyers carry on a campaign in the newspapers and over the radio and say that Judge So-and-so is no good and urge the public to vote against him. Now, I am speaking from years of experience as to how the public in general feel about the attorneys and I am in hopes that the Alaska Bar Association will so regulate our own ranks that the attorneys will be considered as professional men and not shysters in the future. But in carrying on this campaign with the general public, unless their minds are changed, they are going to say, "What is the matter, this bunch of lawyers here are trying to get rid of good old Judge Whoozit." So Judge Whoozit comes out, he doesn't have to spend any money campaigning, all he's got to do is tell the reporter, "This bunch of lawyers -- I have stepped on their toes in trying to carry out the laws as written and this bunch of lawyers are trying to sabotage me." Judge Whoozit will go back into office by the biggest vote that it is possible to give him. The only ones who will ever vote against him will be the lawyers and there's not enough of them in the Territory to have an effect on the election. If I were a judge and wanted to be continued in perpetuity in office, then I would want the attorneys to come out and recommend against me. Now, and as I said before, I am going to withdraw these others and this will be my last time on the floor if you will bear with me just a few more moments. Now, I would like to speak personally of the matter of politics involved. I don't think that running for a judgeship either, should be a popularity contest. But here we have three laymen appointed by the governor, three lawyers appointed by the bar association. I am looking ahead to a situation of this kind that will arise where a governor appoints three laymen, now the governor appoints these three laymen and they are beholden to the governor. The governor, be he Republican or Democrat, tells these three laymen, Here is Jones and Smith here now, they have been good party workers, they helped get me into office. Now, I want you three laymen on the board, Jones and Smith should be rewarded, so I want you to come up with their names." Then the three lawyer members don't agree. They want two different members to be appointed, so they come up with two. The three laymen members say to the governor, "What are we going to do?" The governor says "hang tough. Now, we have precedent for that. Take your Employment Security Commission here in the Territory, which is one of these two and two deals, two from labor and two from management, and they have not been able to agree on one single solitary important problem under the Employment Security Commission, and it is questionable that they ever will be able to.

They can't even agree, or haven't the last time I knew, on a bill which was passed in the last legislature hoping to break the deadlock by authorizing the four of them to get together and select a fifth member. So I can see an absolute stalemate in that regard. Going further, now currently the vast majority of states elect their judges. First I want to apologize to the Convention here about saying anything about Nebraska. That is where I studied law and where I was admitted to the bar, and being opposed to their unicameral system, maybe I should be opposed to the fact that they elect their judges. I have been an inactive member of the bar there for a great many years, and the other day I received a list of the judges that were still on the district court bench -- we called it district court there, not superior court were on the district court bench in Omaha. At the time I was there, in the late 20's and early 30's, we had 12 district judges in Omaha Douglas County, I should say. These 12 district judges ran for election every four years. I noted in the recent paper that I got from the Quarterly Law Review from the Bar Association that all 12 of these district judges are still on the bench in Omaha. They have been running for office every four years. They are good judges. The lawyers like them, the people like them. It is no argument that you are going to have inferior men on the bench simply because, if the judge is not a good judge, the people themselves are going to see that he is removed. Now, in closing, I believe it was on the floor that this constitution should be more or less of a fundamental document. I am in favor of a fundamental document. I believe that this judiciary article, with all due respect to the attorney members and the laymen members on the Judiciary Committee, that it could have been solved by saying, "There shall be a supreme court and such inferior courts as the legislature may establish from time to time", which would have taken care of the matter just as well. I assure you, ladies and gentlemen, I will not speak upon this subject again, and I thank you for this opportunity.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: As a member of the Judiciary Committee, I would like to second the able presentation of our Chairman and to endorse the points brought out by Mr. Taylor. I was a member of the bar in Seattle when I was a young fellow, over 20 years ago, and there they had the election system. The judges had to file in a competitive political field every two years, and there was always that undercurrent that litigants were contributing to the judges' campaign funds. There was nothing improper for a person to contribute to the campaign fund, but there was an undercurrent of chicanery. It does not seem to be right that a man sitting on the bench should be the subject of contributions from various and sundry people, either presently litigants or people with cases pending. The best soap-box orator often times gets elected and your better attorneys who have these qualifications we are all aware that are required would hesitate to throw their hats in the ring and get into that kind of a circus. I concur with Mr. Smith that this has the virtue of a screening process, an orderly screening process. We label it nonpartisan because the ability and qualifications should have nothing to do with the political party. But actually this is not only an approach at nonpartisanship although politics is bound to enter into it to a certain extent, this is a screening process which is the most important point involved. So I think that it is positive with some decency of approach and thinking the judicial council will seek for the best available timber, and we take a bow to the governor in taking his choice of two persons that are nominated, or three if we have that many to spare and are available to be nominated, but he has no alternative but to pick one of the names that are presented to him by the judicial council. There is the other point that there will only be six until a supreme court justice is appointed and the only chance for a deadlock would be on nominating two or three people for the office of supreme court justice. After that you have your seventh member and there will be no chance of a deadlock. I am willing to trust the integrity and good sense of the six people first appointed to judicial council to be able to agree on two or three nominations for chief justice, and I am willing to trust the governor to take his choice of those two or three names that are presented, so I see no serious problem of a deadlock in order to get the machinery fully implemented. I go along with Mr. Taylor that this Committee has given and taken and bumped its head, I should say the members have bumped their heads together. There has been some compromising and adjusting, but our composite thinking is better than the thinking of any one of the seven of us that constituted that Committee. I believe we have a constructive article, one of which we can be duly proud. So outside of letting the Style and Drafting Committee change a few commas, Mr. Taylor notwithstanding, and polish up a sentence or two, I hope it is adopted the way it is written.

JOHNSON: I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves the previous question.

TAYLOR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor seconds the motion. The question is "Shall the -- SUNDBORG: Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. Is the matter of voting on the previous question debatable?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, it is not, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I call for a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" A roll call is asked for, the Chief Clerk will call the roll. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: May I rise to a point of information? The previous question would be the vote on the amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The previous question would be the vote on the amendment. What you will be voting on now is whether you should order that previous question. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, the amendment is only to Section 4, is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. We are not speaking of Section 4 right now, Mr. Davis. We are speaking as to whether we will order the vote on Section 4. The Chief Clerk may call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time with the following result:

Yeas: 41 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Doogan, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilshcer, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien.

Nays: 12 - Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Hermann, Hurley, Kilcher, Londborg, Nordale, V. Rivers, Sundborg, Sweeney, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - Buckalew, H. Fischer.)

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to change my vote to "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg wishes to change his vote to "no".

CHIEF CLERK: 41 yeas, 12 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the previous question has been ordered.

JOHNSON: I request a roll call on the previous question.

V. RIVERS: Is a question of personal privilege in order at this time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I just want to say that we are acting in final action now on the amending of a bill, rather the amendment of a proposal. It seems to me not only good courtesy but good judgment that the previous question and final action should be used very charily. I can see using it late at night after many hours of debate, but it is hard for me to conceive foreclosing any member of this group from having their full expression of their views on the final action of any part of any proposal that comes up. It seems to me that it is very poor policy to exercise the previous question in a matter of prime importance that we are taking the primary action of amending. I have sat in a good many deliberative bodies. I have seen the previous question used to stop debate on minor points where you have something at issue which may have not been primary to the functioning of the body. But I seldom have seen the privilege of the previous question abused to stop debate on a final action of a measure that is coming up for either amendment or final passage. It seems to me that debate on these things of importance that are going to carry on for many years should not be limited to the expression of the opinions of a few. We are here for the primary purpose of considering all facets of all of these questions, and it seems to me that moving the previous question forecloses substantial consideration. I think there are men in this body who should not only express their views but to express their views for the record, should be heard in regard to what they have to say pro and con on this question. It is one of the fundamental questions involved as to whether or not we have the appointive system of judges. I might tell you I favor the appointive system of judges in the manner set up here. However, that is beside the point. It seems to me, in determining intent and determining the consensus of this body, the record should be complete. It seems to me that moving the previous question was entirely one of -- not a desire to foreclose the record but to foreclose many men who might have had some valuable comments to put into this record on this point. I just want to say at this point I am going to close my discussion on the previous question, but I just want to say in reading the handbook (the Hawaiian Legislative Handbook) in connection with judges, I want to call your attention to the first paragraph. Independence of the judiciary is a fundamental principle of our American court system. How to achieve that independence is a problem still unsolved. All agree that the first step is to find the right method of selecting judges which will insure a bench free from the influence and control of party politics, individuals or pressure groups." Now it seems to me this matter should have a more full discussion before action is taken on this particular amendment.

NORDALE: I would like to echo everything that Mr. Rivers says, and I believe that every paragraph of this constitution is too important to preclude anyone from expressing his views. I would like to move to rescind the action on the previous question.

SUNDBORG: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the action taken to order the previous question be rescinded. All those in favor of rescinding the action ordering the previous question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the action has been rescinded. We have before us Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment to Committee Proposal No. 2. Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. President, in order that there will not be a feeling on the part of the 55 delegates that this is a courtroom and only attorneys are speaking, I would like to endorse in substance Section 4 of the proposal. I think Section 4 goes to the meat of the whole proposal and as such it will be necessary for us probably to digress into a great many other things that may have been taken care of in later sections. Generally speaking, I think that Mr. McNealy is extremely sincere in his objections to it, but I too have lived under an area where judges were elected to office from anywhere to two or four years. I too have found that those judges have stayed in office from anywhere to 20 to 40 years. I think that is a very substantial argument why a system that is prescribed here should be adopted. In other words, it is not an argument against it. The main argument against the running of judges on an open ticket in a prescribed time against other competition I think has been ably stated by Mr. Ralph Rivers, that it does degenerate, and I have seen it degenerate, into a question of whether a judge is capable of making his own decision on the litigants that are before him and whether he has in mind whether or not they will serve him well at election time. The only other thing I would like to say, besides endorsing in full, is that I would like at a later time, in Section 9 and 10, when we come to it, to offer some slight amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, Mr. Hurley has a point here when he says that only the attorneys have been speaking in this matter. I am an attorney but I want to speak on this amendment because the matter is absolutely fundamental. If Mr. McNealy's amendment proposed to Section 4 should be adopted, of course the whole approach to the matter of the selection of the judiciary would be different. We would have to start out and do it all over again. Now that would be all right too. Merely the fact that the Committee has put in a proposal here is certainly not governing on this body. But at this time we are going to have to decide, by this body, as to whether it is the will of the Convention that judges be appointed, or as to whether it is the will of the Convention that judges be elected. After we decide that, one way or the other, then we can go into the other matters as to how they are appointed or as to how they are elected, in either case. Now historically, judges were always appointed until some time after the adoption of our Federal Constitution, and our Federal Constitution included that procedure in providing that judges are appointed and, in fact, are appointed for life. And, of course, the theory behind appointing judges for life is that they are once appointed, completely independent, and over the years we have seen many times when a President attempted to what we might call, "pack" the Supreme Court. The President has appointed his man or his men with a particular idea in mind, and when those judges were appointed, I think invariably or at least almost all the time, the President in question has been badly disappointed to find that his man followed what he conceived to be the law and not the President's wishes. The lifetime tenure of judges has much to recommend it. On the other hand, the lifetime tenure of judges has the possibility of being abused. Any attorney who has practiced law has seen instances where a judge appointed for a lifetime, after serving for a length of time, becomes completely unresponsive to the will of the people, refuses to change with the times and the times do change. And for that reason, strict appointment with a lifetime tenure, has its disadvantages. With that in mind then, sometime shortly after the adoption of the United States Constitution, many of the states started electing their judges with the idea that the judges would be more responsive to the public will. And the pendulum, as somebody said awhile ago, swung clear over to the other side and we had very nearly all our judges except our Federal judges being elected by the people and for relatively short terms. I grew up in the State of Idaho and we had elective judges. Their terms, even the supreme court judge terms, were only four years. The judge ran every four years and inevitably it got into politics. In order to attempt to remedy that situation, the State of Idaho many years ago adopted a nonpartisan judicial ballot where the judge runs, not as a member of the party, but runs for the office. However, he runs against some other person who aspires to be a judge, and he runs every four years. The result was that the judiciary was not and could not be independent, depending on the whims of the time. depending on the decisions a man might have made, he was or was not retained, or depending on how popular his opponent might be, completely irrespective of qualifications. Now the elective system has much to recommend it, but likewise, it has much against it. In the creation and maintenance of an independent judiciary, and I believe without qualification, I believe I could say that all of us here want an independent judiciary, a judiciary that will not be swayed by the public will at any particular moment, a judiciary that will not be subject to political pressure, a judiciary that will not be subject to pressure from the executive branch of the government. I moved to Alaska some 16 years ago and from that time to this I have been operating under a judiciary which was appointive. However, appointed for a very short term of four years, and I am willing to state flatly in my opinion that system will not work. I have seen instances where judges were appointed who had no qualifications at all to be judges. They were appointed either by reason of a compromise they were the only ones everyone could get together on -- or for some other reason. In at least one instance, I saw an instance of a judge appointed who was a good judge and who was doing a good job as judge. In the particular case I have in mind the judge made a decision against the United States of America, in my opinion a completely proper decision, but a decision against the United States of America. When he came up for reappointment at the expiration of his four years he was not reappointed, and a judge was appointed who it was believed would follow what the government wanted, and I know that we do not want that. Now the plan which has been presented here is a compromise between the plan of appointing judges for long terms and a plan for election of judges. In my opinion it has the best features of both. Now Mr. McNealy said, when he was talking, that the fact that a judge may be appointed, may be elected rather, might be an entirely a good judge and that the fact that judges are elected is not any argument that the elected judges are inferior, and I will admit that in a minute, and I also will admit that the fact that judges are appointed does not necessarily guarantee that they are superior judges, but it seems to me that the plan which is set up here gives the best of the two systems with the result that when the procedure is followed we have taken the best means yet devised to appoint and select qualified judges and to keep judges free from outside pressures and to get rid of judges who are not able to properly do their job. I hope that Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment will be defeated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf? If there is no objection, the Convention is at ease for a moment while the stenotypist changes her machine.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that they are going to take our desks from us in a few minutes, I would like to move that we recess until 1:30 this afternoon and that Mr. Metcalf be the first speaker when we resume discussion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney asks unanimous consent that owing to the fact that the University people will have to get these tables out of here in a few minutes, that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. and that Mr. Metcalf, who was recognized, have the floor at that time. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the Convention stands at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. President, I move that the Rule 35, pertaining to the previous question, be referred to the Rules Committee for further study.

HELLENTHAL: I second the motion, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Did you ask unanimous consent, Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher moves, seconded by Mr. Hellenenthal, unanimous consent is asked that Rule 35 pertaining to the previous question be referred to the Rules Committee for further study. That does not mean at this time, Mr. Kilcher, but that they report at the next plenary session?

KILCHER: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, it is so ordered. Mr. Metcalf, I believe you have the floor on Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment.

METCALF: I am one of the lay members of the Judiciary Committee, and I wish to speak briefly, make a few remarks in opposition to Mr. McNealy's amendment. I would not argue that this proposal submitted is perfect. Anything that is man made is certainly not perfect. For instance, you go up in an airplane and you don't know for sure you are going to get down in one piece or two, so there can be defects -- In anything that is man made. I am of the sincere belief that this proposal that the Committee has brought out as a result of the thinking of all seven members of the Committee is as near perfect and workable as possible. There is something that I would like to bring out that has not been brought out already. As an experience, I have had almost 15 years' experience in serving with the Justice Department, and as part of that I had charge of the jail at Seward for nearly 14 years where we had from 3 to 30 inmates in the jail. Here is an observation from having a ringside seat of all this activity going on and taking part in it. I wish to make an observation that there is a great lack of uniformity in the distribution of justice and it is also my personal observation that lack of uniformity is due to probable pressures being exerted. Perhaps people who are fortunate to be wealthy can employ extra good lawyers and put on a real good case before the court and jury and thereby a man with money gets a lighter sentence than the person who does not have money. That is my criticism of the judicial system lack of uniformity. To illustrate roughly, maybe I have seen a man get ten years for manslaughter for killing a man and another sentence maybe 15 years for just shooting a leg off. There is lack of uniformity. So speaking sincerely from my heart, I would like to see, and I believe this proposal here does it, it makes the judiciary courts strictly nonpartisan and as near independent so that they can be fearless and interpret the law equal to all and special privilege to none, and I am certainly in accord with the sentiments expressed by my fellow members of the Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, we have heard from several able attorneys whom I consider experts in the judiciary. I am certainly not an expert. However, we must bear in mind that the courts are established for the benefit of the public and I am a member of that group. I would like to speak from that viewpoint. Now the chief value of a judge on the bench to the public is the work he does, the decisions he renders. He should have in qualifications, first, ability and experience. Secondly, he should have integrity and a willingness to render impartial decisions. Of course the first, the ability, is without value unless he also has Integrity. We have before us two methods of selecting the judges -- by appointment or by election by the people. Now, I will not deny that a little political consideration at least, might enter into both methods. Of course, our interest here is to select that method with the minimum of political consideration or partisanship of any kind. Under the proposed method in this Committee Proposal, whereby he is appointed by the governor, I would like to point out that two candidates are submitted by the judicial council and the governor ^ approves of one and disapproves of the other. In other words, that is tantamount to appointment by the judicial council with approval by the governor since he has only two to select from. If anyone is going to appoint the judges, it certainly should be the experts who understand his duties more than any other group. On the other hand, if he has to campaign in election (and if he expects to win he will have to campaign vigorously like any other candidate), some campaigns cost quite a bit of money, he may accept campaign contributions which in itself is perfectly correct as long as they are contributions and not payment, and there will be certain groups backing him and others against him, certain individuals likewise. When he is elected he may be Impartial, it is hoped he will be. But he has less a chance to be impartial after being backed or opposed by certain people, and I would not like to put the judge in the position of having that tension of feeling that he should be grateful, even if he does nothing about it. Another thing, during the campaign if he expects to win, he is going to have to make speeches to the people to point out why he should be elected. He might even be asked to make campaign promises. He will be asked to make statements which might amount to commitments. Then after he is on the bench he can't forget those statements. He is supposed to live up to them. That is not right. A judge should be free in every way, after he is on the bench, to render a decision. Now in examining these two different methods of selecting a judge -- first, if he is appointed by a judicial committee and approved by the governor, he should have these two qualifications -- ability and integrity. It is certain, almost 100 per cent certain, that a man with ability will be selected. If he campaigns and that election goes to the people, that is not so certain because the candidacy will be open to any attorney. There are attorneys of all degrees of fitness for that office, of course. On the other hand, if the judicial council appoints a man there is no guarantee of his Integrity but certainly these people are well acquainted with him and there is a greater guarantee than if he were selected by popular vote. So in balancing one method against the other, in my own mind I would say that by election you have no guarantee whatever of ability. You do have nearly 100 per cent guarantee if appointed. In integrity, you have no guarantee whatever of integrity in election. In appointment you have some guarantee of integrity. I believe that this Committee report that outlined the system of selection of our judges which is just about as perfect as can be, it's not perfect, nothing's perfect, but I think it is a system we want in the Territory.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, at this moment we are at the heart of the problem of creating an independent Judiciary. Some of us have not always been proud of segments of the legal profession in Alaska, but at this moment I am very proud of this Committee of five lawyers and two laymen who have recommended this plan and this proposal to us. If this proposal is adopted, I shall be and shall continue to be proud of not only the legal profession in Alaska but of the Alaskans who in their search for an independent judiciary have drawn the very best from the studies and the constitutions of 48 states and have rejected the poor and the second rate. I hope that in substance that this proposal will be adopted by this Convention.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I have permission to address a couple of questions to the speakers who have spoken on this issue just for the purpose of clearing up a few points?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg, you may address the questions.

SUNDBORG: I was wondering, Mr. McLaughlin, if you know whether in states which do have a plan such as this, which I understand is generally designated as the Missouri Plan, in such states as a matter of practice, does the electorate ever, or very often, vote out of office a judge who is in office when the question comes up?

MCLAUGHLIN: As a matter of fact I will refer you back to the sheet that was prepared for this Convention by the Public Administration Service and I believe that in there they specifically point out that in Missouri, they have, in fact, repudiated judges at the polls. Is that a startling thing? It is indeed. My own state (the State of New York--when I say my own state, where I am also admitted in addition to Alaska) between the time of the adoption of the constitution until very recently, I think they had 17 attempts at removal of judges and only twice did they succeed, and I am sure by that time the man was in a padded cell. Does it work? Yes. They do repudiate them at the poll. In Missouri, yes, they did repudiate them at the polls.

SUNDBORG: Thank you. Now, Mr. Taylor, earlier in the Convention I happened to watch one of the television programs when the Judiciary Committee was holding a meeting, and as I remember it, you spoke quite strongly in favor of electing judges. I take it from your remarks today you have been won around to the other view that it would be better to appoint judges. Is that correct?

TAYLOR: No, that is incorrect, Mr. Sundborg, because I introduced a proposal here which to a great extent is embodied in this now and I was in favor of the Missouri Plan. In fact, when I was running for the legislature, I was very emphatic in my stand upon the adoption of the Missouri Plan or something close as possible to it.

SUNDBORG: I see. Mr. McNealy, I was wondering in case your motion should prevail to strike this and other sections, do you intend to substitute anything else in their place or would you just leave that part of the constitution silent?

MCNEALY: It would be necessary to rewrite a section covering elections rather than appointments.

HINCKEL: May I direct a question to Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Hinckel, you may address your question to Mr. McLaughlin.

HINCKEL: Was consideration given to appointment by the judicial council with the governor to have veto power?

MCLAUGHLIN: Consideration was given to the appointment by the judicial council with the governor to have veto power, but it was believed that in order to balance up the powers that the governor have some choice in the matter, that is, the executive branch have some election in the matter. As I say, the Committee was reluctant to recommend anything of a material nature which did not have prior precedent and the benefit of experience so that we could adjudge its value.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, am I correct that the amendment to Section 4 is now under discussion? If Section 4 should stand as written would that imply in line 17, page 2, "judicial council as provided in this article," if you accept that would that preclude any change in Section 6? Could we amend Section 4 again in some other manner?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Section 4 could still be amended, Mr. Kilcher, if this motion of Mr. McNealy should fail. Inasmuch as Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment would delete Section 4, if there was some other amendment offered to Section 4 or 6 it would stand and be a proper subject for the Convention. Is there anyone else who has not spoken yet on the proposal who would like to? Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: I am getting more and more sold on the idea of the appointment of judges. However, there is a matter in another section that may make a difference in the voting, and I am wondering if it would be in order to submit an amendment to Section 10 on page 3.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg, it will be in order, properly so if you so feel, after this particular amendment on Section 4 is dealt with, unless by a two-thirds leave of the Convention you are allowed to explain what your purpose was and the Convention would feel that it was in line. If you were speaking in the nature that it might affect your decision as to how you will vote on the proposal of Mr. McNealy's.

LONDBORG: Well, it would as far as pertaining to Section 4, because leaving Section 4 as it is would call for nomination by the judicial council. Now if you feel that that could be perhaps amended later, I would hold my amendment in Section 10 until that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It could be amended later if you so choose to offer an amendment.

LONDBORG: Otherwise, I thought I would offer them now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder whether in view of Mr. Londborg's state of mind, which I think may be that of many of us, if Mr. McNealy might consent to withdrawing his motion to amend, by striking only Section 4, and would agree to make his motion which would cover all the sections he mentioned and which covered the issue of the appointive as against the elective selection of judges at the time we reach the sections, which would be Section .14, so that we could proceed and see exactly how we would change the sections about the appointment of judges, if we do intend to change them, and then we can decide whether we want that system, or whether we want the system of elective judges, rather than try to decide it now before we have gone into Sections 3, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, which I understand Mr. McNealy also would strike.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy, would you care to answer Mr. Sundborg's question?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, as I have stated, and I still feel the same way, if Section 4 should by any chance, if my amendment be adopted, then it would require, certainly, further work on the other sections. However, it was my intention, I'll put it this way, when the amendment is defeated, then it is my intention to withdraw my amendments as to the other sections and leave them open for any action on the floor as to those further sections.

SUNDBORG: As I understand it, Mr. President, Mr. Londborg was saying that his vote on the motion now before us, namely to strike Section 4, might depend to considerable extent upon what we might do about some later section here which we would have reached and dealt with, if we could proceed in the manner just suggested to Mr. McNealy.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, it sounded to the Chair like that before Mr. Londborg sat down, that he felt that if it would be proper that he offer a different amendment to Section 4 if this motion of Mr. McNealy's failed, it would be in line with his thinking.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I would have no other offer as far as amendment for Section 4. Mine pertains to another section. However, it may influence my voting on this matter of the motion that you have before the house.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, is it not true that if we should now vote, either rejecting or accepting Mr. McNealy's amendment to strike Section 4, that we could not again later vote on that same matter?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We could not vote on that same matter, Mr. Sundborg, unless, of course, by a two-thirds majority vote of the Convention you can almost do anything. But there could be other amendments offered to Section 4. We could not vote on the out and out matter to delete the entire section, no. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I think Mr. Londborg's question was not answered, because it was specifically understood that at the time we entered into the consideration we were only acting upon Section 4 and not upon 9 and 10 -- 10 especially Mr. Londborg mentioned, as he might want to make a change in that one, and I think if Mr. McNealy's motion failed or if Mr. McNealy's motion carried, 8, 9, etc. will be out of the proposal anyway.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith hasn't had the floor yet. Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I would like to request and ask unanimous consent that a two-minute recess be called, and I believe this matter could possibly be straightened out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have before us Mr. McNealy's motion to delete No. 4 from the proposal.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state at this time that this morning Mr. McNealy, when he first brought up the question of second reading, when he first proposed his amendment, he stated that he was of the feeling that second reading of proposals was going to be held over, that all proposals were going to be held in second reading until after the hearings recess. The Chair informed him when he sat down that such was not the case and then Mr. McNealy took the floor later than that and gave his argument. In the opinion of the Chair that did not preclude Mr. McNealy of his right to close the argument, if he so chooses. The Chair would like to call to the attention of all the delegates at this time that each delegate is entitled to speak twice on any question without further leave of the Convention. He should speak once, only once without leave of the Convention until all the rest of the delegates who wish to be heard, are heard. Then he is entitled to speak again. The mover of the motion is always entitled to the final say if he so chooses. Mr. McNealy, at this time, in the opinion of the Chair wishes to make a closing argument, it is his privilege. Mr. Victor Rivers,

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, point of order. In speaking, you do not include the matter of personal privilege or the asking of questions?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, Mr. Rivers. If a person rises and wishes to ask a particular question, that is not counted against his time on the floor. Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: Mr. President, point of information. Does this imply that the previous question could not be asked either before each delegate has had the floor once?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, it does not imply that, Mr. Kilcher. The previous question can be asked for at any time that a delegate he so chooses. However, in going into the Robert's Rules of Order, the brown book where everything is explained explicitly – it goes much further than these books that we have – and on the question of the previous question, Robert's Rules of Order goes into that in a quite lengthy order, and it gives the chairman of any parliamentary organization considerable latitude as to how he shall treat the question at the time it is put. In other words, in general procedure some judgment is left to the chairman as to whether he will allow immediate closing of debate without having information made available to the assembly, and that is precisely what was done this morning because maybe the Chair felt that some members did not realize they were closing debate when there were other members on the floor who were seeking that privilege. If there is no further debate on this motion – Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. Chairman, inasmuch as I am one of the advocates of this proposal, I staunchly advocate it now but I would like to again emphasize that Section 4 is the keystone of the entire structure of this proposal, and I would like to also state and call it to the Convention's attention that we had the advice on several meetings of Mr. Elliott on this proposal, and it was only drawn and prepared after consultation with him and a good deal of investigation, and I suggest to the Convention that it guarantees a strong, fearless, independent judiciary, and I hope that Mr. McNealy's amendment may be voted down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of this proposed amendment by Mr. McNealy? If there is none, then the question is, "Shall Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment, the deletion of Section 4 from Committee Proposal No. 2, be adopted by the Convention?"

JOHNSON: I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson requests a roll call vote. The Chief Clerk will call the roll. Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: I would like to express my privilege of not voting in this matter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg requests the privilege of not voting on this matter. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

COOPER: Mr. President, before the roll is called, as I understand the rules, any five delegates can now request any other delegate to state his reason for not voting. If there is doubt in any one delegate's mind, I would like to know what the doubt is, if there is still a doubt, possibly something overlooked, that wasn't brought on the floor. I would like to know. I am one, I would like to have four others.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are asking Mr. Londborg why he is not voting? Mr. McNees, Mr. Hellenthal, Mr. VanderLeest, Mr. Knight, Mr. Poulsen, Mr. Hinckel, Mr. Stewart (These men raised their hands) – yes, we have five.

LONDBORG: Well, as I understand it, Section 4 is basic and it is hard to be divorced from the remaining sections of the article and it seems that the entire matter should be voted on finally as a whole, and I would like to find out after we read through these and approve each section if the whole proposal then is voted upon in our deliberation and adopted by a majority vote or not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg, after all the amendments have been proposed, defeated, or accepted by this Convention, then we go back and vote on the whole Committee Proposal. The question will be in third reading after it passes second reading, the whole proposal will be voted on. It will not be adopted by the Convention until it is voted on in its final form in third reading.

LONDBORG: In voting in final form in third reading it would still take a two-thirds to put it back in second reading for amendment, right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct under the present rules, Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Therefore I don't know if I can vote for or against Section 4 being deleted or left in until I find out what the other sections are going to contain.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: The thing Mr. Londborg fails to realize is the fact that before he is required to vote on this in final passage that there will be one more copy of this document come to your desk which will include all the amendments that have been put in it. Then you will have it up in third reading. If you decide to put it back in second reading again, give notice of one day and you can return it to second reading for further amendment if necessary.

LONDBORG: By a majority vote?

MCCUTCHEON: Yes sir.

LONDBORG: Well then, I'll vote.

MCCUTCHEON: But you must give notice of one day and take action the next day in order to return it to second reading for specific amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I certainly differ with Mr.

McCutcheon in the interpretation of the rules in that matter.

A motion to rescind, if notice is given for only one day, takes only a majority vote. But a motion to put a matter back in second reading after it has gone to third certainly always takes a two-thirds vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon probably meant a motion to rescind.

SUNDBORG: What would you rescind in the case that you are thinking of?

MCCUTCHEON: He could request a rescission on a specific item.

SUNDBORG: The Convention might rescind its action for example, on what it did on Section 4 but that would not put this article back in second reading and permit any other change to take that place without a two-thirds vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I have been asked to state my reasons and it seems to me that if I vote against Mr. McNealy's proposal or if his proposal fails, that it remains on an appointive basis, we cannot go and amend it to be on an elective basis as he suggests, and it may be that certain articles following Section 4, it may be that some of those articles as they are now would force me to vote Section 4 to be deleted, as they are now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, Mr. Londborg, would that not be true of any amendment that was proposed at any time to any proposal? None of us will know exactly until we get through.

LONDBORG: That is why it seems to me that after all the sections are voted upon, would it not be the procedure then to vote on the proposal as a whole before it goes to third reading?

PRESIDENT EGAN: When you vote on the proposal as a whole it is in third reading, but after other amendments are adopted it does not preclude further amendment to the proposal in second reading because an amendment might be adopted now. A different amendment could be offered to that same section at any time, Mr. Londborg, so long as we are in second reading. Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: I think maybe what is troubling Mr. Londborg is that he fears that if an amendment is adopted later in the proposal that is not consistent with something we have been over, that he cannot go back and make it coincide, but until we are all through, he can go back to Section 1 or 2 and change them to coincide with what happens later.

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. McNealy's proposed amendment deleting Section 4 from Committee Proposal No. 2 be adopted by the Convention?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result

Yeas: 2 - Laws, McNealy.

Nays: 51 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - Buckalew, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 2 yeas and 51 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed. We now have before us Section 5. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: At this time I would move and ask unanimous consent that the balance of my amendments as to further sections be withdrawn from consideration.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy moves and asks unanimous consent that the amendments he offered to other sections be withdrawn. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I still have one question on Section 4 if I may ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, you may address your question to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: In Section 4, it states the justices of the supreme court will be appointed by the governor. In Section 2, there is a reference to the supreme court consisting of three justices, one of whom is chief justice. Who appoints the chief justice?

MCLAUGHLIN: I believe that is covered further. Actually, he is appointed by the governor. It is covered in some future provision. There is a phrase --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Section 9 would probably take care of that. Mr. Victor Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Upon further reading I notice on page 4, on line 3, it generally, in that top there, it refers to the judicial council submitting to the governor nominees for appointments to fill initial vacancies including the office of chief justice. It is segregated in the initial appointment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there amendments to Section 5? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I have an amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 2, line 8, strike the word 'ten' and insert in lieu thereof the word 'six'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the body? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I move that the amendment be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves that the proposed amendment be adopted. Is there a second to the motion changing the word "ten" to read "six"?

SUNDBORG: I will second the motion, and I would like to ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee how the practice that is specified in the article embraced in Committee Proposal No. 2 compares with that of other states as to the length of time between these elections?

MCLAUGHLIN: As I presume, the question is, why did we determine that the judges of the supreme court should serve ten years. I personally voted for twelve. The Committee decided that ten was the average, and the Committee when it decided that ten was the average, followed the recommendation of the conference of the Chief Justices of the United States, at which they recommended that the term of judges of the appellate courts be not less than ten years. In fact, as I say, I reduced it two years, and Mr. Robertson decreased his an intangible amount, from lifetime to ten years. As the practice is in other courts, that is those which have revised their judiciary article in recent years, California, the supreme court has a term of twelve years. All justices of the supreme court, district court -- that is the Intermediate appellate courts -- is twelve years, and the superior court*which is the trial court, is six years. In New Jersey, the supreme court judges hold for seven years and upon reappointment, they hold for life subject to removal, that is during good behavior and until the age of 70. That is Article 6, Section 6, Subdivision 3, of the New Jersey State Constitution. In Missouri, the supreme court justices hold for twelve years, the circuit court judges hold for six years. That is under Article 5, Section 29, C-1 of the Missouri Constitution, which has recently been amended. Under the Hawaii Constitution, under Article 5, Section 3, judges of the supreme court seven years, circuit court six years. It is the feeling of the Committee, because of the selective process, that is, screening for initial appointment and the fact that four years thereafter, every judge, that is, a maximum of four years, every supreme court judge and every superior court judge would be up for re-election, that there would be enough of a public control over them that long terms would be more desirable. How do these compare with the United States? Generally throughout the United States the figures are being upped. They are giving longer tenure to their judges, but it was on the basis of the fact that the chief justices of each state court has recommended as a minimum judicial standard the figure ten, the Committee adopted that figure. As I say, many Committee members consented to reducing it because of the re-elective system process we have.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, in adopting the Section 4 we adopted the appointive process for judges, and of course I think the meat of that whole thing settled down to the fact that it was not an appointive process so much, but how they were appointed. Now I did not notice very many of the law members referring to past history. There was some brief reference to it, but perhaps that is because we do not enjoy on this floor certain privileges of immunity. However, I think if we look at appointive systems as such, our experience as Mr. Davis pointed out has been very poor. Now we have adopted the appointive system and the only difference is the method by which we select the judges for appointment. We have had judges in the past in the Territory under this appointive system, of course they have handled both Federal and the Territorial business, we have had some fine judges. We have had some men that were average and mediocre and some that many people considered very poor, but we are setting up now an entirely new system of justices. We have had the situation in the past where to make an ordinary appeal from the ruling of one of these courts would cost anywhere from $2,000 to $3,000. You would have to go down and have your transcript made and have your attorney go to San Francisco and of course you were practically, if you were an average citizen, foreclosed from having an appeal, but at this time we are setting up a system of justice at which we will now have under our direct jurisdiction, or at least within reach, the judges whom we appoint to these various positions and they are subject to put their name before the electorate in the first three years they are appointed. Now we ask that the judge sit inviolate in that position for ten years. If he is a good judge, a fair and just judge, it is my opinion that he should have no fear in going before the electorate, because it has been my observation that a man who sticks to his principles and does not compromise principles with expediency and is generally known to be honest will even be elected and reelected to political office. Six years is a term for which we elect a senator. It seems that these men if they are good judges and there is no reason for recall, if the recall method as set up in here has failed to function, it might be very well to put their name before the electing body. They are appointed, we have given a strong appointive power to the judicial council. I am happy to see there is a certain layman representative group on that council. It seems that the least thing we can do now to offset this appointive power is to have a fairly strong or fairly liberal interpretation of the powers of electing these men as they run against themselves. It does not seem to me it is working any hardship on a man's tenure of office or on his feeling of security or on his ability to perform his duties by asking he get up and have his actions approved every six years without competition, by the electorate. It seems to me to be a much more democratic system of putting him in a position such that he's practically unremovable for--well, 20 years is probably the average productive life of a man who has gone through college and who has finally got himself in a position to be a judge. I don't expect his expectancy would be much more than ten years or possibly 15 years after he had become a judge, so we are practically giving an appointment in that position for life after he has once appeared before the electorate. I notice that Hawaii set up a period of seven years, quite evidently a compromise figure, because they ask the superior court judges, who are dealing with affairs much closer to the people, to appear every six years. As you know, the supreme court, as I visualize it here, will sit and act only on appeals from the court of lower decisions. There won't be a tendency to have this great wave of popular support swing for or against them after decisions in court because their decisions are so much fewer than the court's decisions that are made in the lower courts. I see no reason why we should not consider confirming these judges to offset the appointive power resting in the hands of a judicial council, consider letting their names come before the electorate every six years. It seems to me fair and somewhat considerably more democratic than keeping them in there for the longer period. I also want to point out that, as we start off in the statehood picture, as it is in many other layers of our society, we have a great many relatively new and younger attorneys and not very many of the more older, experienced, tried veterans to draw from. It seems to me that that is another good argument why we should have these people answer back to the electorate every six years. It is not Imposing, in my opinion, any burden on them. If they are good judges, If they are qualified, if they are honest men doing a honest job, I should think they would be proud to put their name before the electorate. I see no reason to hold them back in this rarefied atmosphere of untouchability. I think the electorate should have the chance to express their opinion on them at least every six years.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on this proposed amendment? If not, the question is, "Shall the amendment offered by Mr. Victor Rivers changing the word 'ten' to 'six', making it six years instead of ten years, for the supreme court justice to come before the electorate be adopted by the Convention?"

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson requests a roll call vote. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 11 - Cooper, Hinckel, Kilcher, Londborg, McNealy, Nolan, Peratrovich, Reader, V. Rivers, Smith, Sundborg.

Nays: 42 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nordale, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Stewart, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - Buckalew, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 11 yeas, 42 nays, and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed of adoption. Are there other amendments to Section 5? If not, proceed to Section 6. Are there amendments to be offered to Section 6? If not, proceed with Section 7. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question of the Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary Branch with respect to Section 7, if I may. Mr. McLaughlin, I notice that Section 7 appears to require that any person in order to be eligible for appointment as a Justice or judge would have to have been admitted to practice law in Alaska for at least five years, not necessarily five years preceding his nomination, whereas he would have had to be a resident of Alaska for the five years immediately preceding his nomination. Is that what the Committee intended, or do you take that final phrase, "next preceding their respective nominations," as modifying both the admission to practice law and the residence in the state?

MCLAUGHLIN: I take it to modify both phrases. In fact, my recollection is that the Committee dropped out a comma, that is they wanted to have them both residents and admitted for the five years preceding their appointment.

SUNDBORG: I certainly believe as now written, it leaves that question very much up in the air, and it would be possible for a man who had been admitted at some time in Alaska for a period of five years, to be appointed even though they weren't the five years immediately preceding.

MCLAUGHLIN: That is true. Admission, you will note, Mr. Sundborg, that we say he has to be admitted to practice in the state for at least five years. He could have been admitted 20 years ago, left the Territory, heard there was a lush practice available in the town of Fairbanks and have returned in the five years just preceding his designation. That is a minimum of five years' residence immediately preceding. The admission takes effect in the one point in time and is continuous thereafter.

SUNDBORG: No man is ever "un-admitted" from the bar?

MCLAUGHLIN: I don't think that he would be found acceptable to the judicial council.

SUNDBORG: That may be, but is there procedure for removing a man's right to practice before the bar of Alaska?

MCLAUGHLIN: There would, and that would be a subject for the legislature to determine, that is, the qualifications, who becomes an attorney is left apparently, under this constitution, and should be, to the determination of the legislature.

SUNDBORG: I am asking this quite as much for our guidance in Style and Drafting as for the information of the Convention here. What I want to know, and I believe you have answered it is, it is the belief of the Committee and the decision of the Committee that the five years provision should be immediately preceding nomination both with respect to practice or admission and with respect to residence.

MCLAUGHLIN: Yes.

HELLENTHAL: I have a proposed amendment to Section 7.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal has an amendment to offer. The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delete the period and add 'and who have practiced private nongovernmental law for said period.'"

ROBERTSON: Would the Chief Clerk please read that again.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delete the period and add 'and who have practiced private nongovernmental law for said period.'" It goes on to the end of Section 7. Delete the period.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, I think I know what you mean, but would the wording "nongovernmental", would that be the , proper – perhaps if there is no objection we will have a recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I ask that the amendment that I offered to the Chief Clerk a few minutes ago be withdrawn and that the amendment that I have now left with her be considered in its place.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent that his original amendment be withdrawn and that he be allowed to submit the amendment that is now before the Chief Clerk. Hearing no objection, it is so ordered. The Chief Clerk may read the amendment by Mr. Hellenthal.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 4, omit period and insert a semicolon and then add, 'provided that time spent as an attorney for the United States, or agency thereof, shall not be construed as counting toward the five-year admission requirement.'"

DAVIS: I wonder if we may have that read slowly.

CHIEF CLERK: "After Line 4, omit the period and insert a semicolon and add, 'provided that time spent as an attorney for the United States, or agency thereof, shall not be construed as counting toward the five-year admission requirement.'"

HELLENTHAL: I move the adoption of the amendment.

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

V. RIVERS: May I ask the mover of the motion a question? I would like to ask if he is accomplishing his purpose here by only confining his exemptions to the employees of the United States, because we are going to have a great many prosecutors under the state as I now see this setup. As I visualize your motion, it is to keep men who are prosecutors and have no other experience from going on to the bench, is that correct?

HELLENTHAL: In some instances, prosecutors, and in other instances, other governmental officials in different fields of the government.

V. RIVERS: If you have state prosecutors, this will not prohibit them. If they have nothing but five years of prosecution experience, they could still be appointed a judge.

HELLENTHAL: Yes, and so could an attorney general under this amendment, whereas the first amendment would have excluded the attorney general from going on the bench. Mr. Chairman, may I be heard in connection with the reason for offering the amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, you may be heard.

HELLENTHAL: Some of us feel, based on experience in the Territory, that it is not wise that a person who comes to Alaska as an employee of the Federal government and who engages in governmental activity in which he achieves considerable prominence and who in many instances have never devoted themselves to the private practice of law at all should be elevated to the bench, and the proposal as it reads without the amendment would permit a man, say from Tennessee, that was nominated to a federal position in Alaska, perhaps say in the CAB and who achieved a great deal of notoriety but who had never once in his lifetime practiced law. That man would be permitted under the present reading of Section 7 to be eligible for the bench, and we feel that that loophole should not be left open because we have seen harm result to Alaska from that very circumstance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I should like to address a question to Mr. Hellenthal. As I heard the proposed amendment, the next to last word was "admission". Had you not "eligibility" in mind?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk read the amendment?

CHIEF CLERK: "Admission" is the word you had.

HELLENTHAL: Read the whole thing here.

CHIEF CLERK: "... provided that time spent as an attorney for the United States, or agency thereof, shall not be construed as counting toward the five-year admission requirement."

HELLENTHAL: Yes. The "five-year admission requirement" being the language of the present Section 7, which reads as follows: "who have been admitted to practice law in the State for at least five years". That is the admission requirement under the present Section 7- We would not want to include federal time in that admission requirement.

RILEY: Mr. President, just to make my point clear -- I had in mind that you were referring back to eligibility for appointment.

AWES: I would like to ask Mr. McLaughlin a question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection you may ask Mr. McLaughlin a question, Miss Awes.

AWES: This requirement that a person who had been admitted to practice law, is that for five years? Is that interpreted to mean that he has to be admitted and to actually practice?

MCLAUGHLIN: It was the Committee interpretation that admission to the practice of law did not necessarily imply any type of consistent regular practice, merely being admitted, nor did it imply that a person who was in a governmental service either in the United States or the Territory of Alaska should be precluded from appointment under the article. It was merely the technical requirement of having been admitted for a period of five years.

AWES: Well then, with Mr. Hellenthal's amendment, a person who has worked for five years in the government -- that five years would not count, but what about the man who is admitted to the bar and then goes out and gets a job as a salesman or is business manager of some company?

MCLAUGHLIN: Under the literal interpretation of this provision, a man who goes out and gets a job, and I will use another example, a man who is a mortician and practices as a mortician still under this article would be eligible for appointment.

PRESIDENT EGAN; Mr. Hurley?

HURLEY: Mr. Chairman, I think the amendment is discriminatory and unnecessary. The comment that was made by the mover of the amendment had reference to a situation which we will not have if this proposal is adopted. Under this proposal we will have a judicial council, which in my opinion should be given credit for being able to make decisions to the benefit of the Territory at large. I prefer, rather than to appoint an obviously discriminatory finger against some faction, to leave it up to the judicial council to act wisely in the matter.

HARRIS: Mr. President, I would like to agree with Mr. Hurley. This amendment seems discriminatory to the extreme. We have set up in our judicial council a system where they have three lawyers plus the chief justice and if the four lawyers together can't keep the right type of judge in there, along with three laymen, there is something wrong about the judicial council setup as a whole.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, as I read Mr. Hellenenthal's proposed amendment, I see some merit if it relates to eligibility for appointment as a judge. But when he reiterates that his amendment looks only to eligibility for admission --

HELLENTHAL: It relates only to eligibility for judges.

RILEY: Yes, but the word "admission" relates back with admission to practice, does it not?

HELLENTHAL: I do not so read it, Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Let me continue in the hope you may correct me. As I read your proposal, your amendment, five years, or I should say service for the United States, "or agency thereof, shall not be construed as counting toward the five-year admission requirement." Now let us assume that a fellow has been practicing in private practice for 15 years. He was admitted initially after having served for five years, we will say, when he came to Alaska as an Assistant D. A., or whatever. Are we not throwing an unnecessary obstacle in his path toward eligibility?

HELLENTHAL: I don't think so, because Section 7 says that to be eligible for an appointment, then by Implication, to the office of justice or judge you must be one who has been admitted to practice law in the state for at least five years. Now, as to that class of individuals, and not the young lawyers who seek admission, as to that class of individuals, namely the justices or the judges, that five-year admission period will not include time spent in the federal activity.

RILEY: But you are speaking of admission initially to practice law.

HELLENTHAL: No, we are speaking to the admission requirement with regard to judges or justices. I think that is quite clear because the whole thing is tied in with eligibility for appointment as justices or judges.

RILEY: Shall we say admission for consideration for appointment? Does that bear on your point?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, would you object to a five-minute recess at this time?

RILEY: I would appreciate it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for five minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have before us Mr. Hellenthall proposed amendment to Section 7. Is there further discussion on the proposed amendment? Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, as a layman on this thing, I am sure there are others who join me who would like to know what the arguments were within the Judiciary Committee on this particular item. The question must have come up and I would like to address that question with your permission to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may Mr. Hilscher. Mr. McLaughlin, would you care to answer that question?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, if you will forgive me for digressing a moment, I was just showing my fellow Delegate, Mrs. Wien, a letter from an unnamed individual who said, "I was impressed, however, by the rather widespread feeling among many delegates that lawyers should be distrusted. Also, with the sentiment that all legislators, governors, and other elected officials cannot be trusted and must be hamstrung with restrictions." The discussion which took place in committee on this article on Section 7, originally my recollection was that most members requested a practice requirement and a private practice requirement, and those members can contradict me if I do not state the facts accurately or completely, a private practice requirement of ten years. And there was initially, which was taken from Missouri, a requirement that Justices of the supreme court had to practice law for a period, not had to practice law, but were required to be citizens of the United States for approximately 15 years and justices of the superior court had to be citizens of the United States for approximately 13 years. That was knocked out by the committee and substituted merely the requirement that citizenship in the United States should be the determination. Originally the advocate of committee proposals was that there be a requirement of ten years' active private practice of law, and that in a sense is justified if existence in other states is justified. In New Jersey Article 6, Section 6, Subsection 2, provides that the supreme court justices shall be admitted to practice for a period of ten years prior to their appointment to the bench. Hawaii, under Article Section 3, has an admission practice for ten years. Most states have a requirement, generally statutorily or in their constitution, that judges be learned in the law, and as many of you know, in the State of Texas that means by judicial interpretation, you don't have to know anything, but the argument finally, some of the arguments that were raised, where they pointed out that we had had In the Territory and more so In the United States, many examples of judges who had been appointed to the bench without any prior practice and without any experience with trial work, appearance in the court, or his background or training was limited let us say to prosecution of criminal cases and he did not have that breadth and scope which is practically essential to the efficient operation of a good trial court. Some members did object that there should be no requirement. One I specifically recall, did make the objection that since we were growing and would be a growing state there was a possibility that limiting, for example, the requirements to ten years or conditioning the requirements on ten years practice would mean that most of the lawyers in the community would be ineligible and that a select few would first occupy the supreme court bench and superior court bench. Another suggestion that was made was that there was a possibility that if the State of Alaska rapidly expanded, we might require those persons who need not be generally versed in the general practice of law but who would be essentially specialists. For example, the condemnation experts, if the calendars become blocked with condemnation and a rapidly expanding economy, we would not have a man available or specially versed in that field in the Territory, and the constitution would preclude us from introducing a good man. One of the arguments that was presented since the judicial council consisted of lawyers, they themselves, based on their own experience, might preclude the appointment of some novice without any prior trial practice, office practice, or experience in the courts. One of the problems that did confront us was the fact that under one of our original proposals a justice of the superior court couldn't acquire time, that is even though he sat on the superior court for 20 years, under the lesser qualifications for the superior court, he could never be elevated to the supreme court because service on the bench as a superior judge did nothing in favor of his practice time. Most of the members did confess a concern about judges who did not have in fact, training, background, and experience in dealing with clients or participating in the work of court. Does that answer your question, Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I would then assume from what the Chairman has stated that it was the consensus of the Committee that possibly the judicial committee would be of sufficient experience to properly evaluate the nominees for the various judgeships that would be open?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is a difficult question to answer. Since the Committee ratified this article, they did not feel that everything should be left to the discretion of the judicial council. I prefer that the members of the Judiciary Committee speak for themselves, in that respect. I have a personal viewpoint that I think it improper for me to present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: I would like to address an answer to the question of Mr. Hilscher to the effect that I thought and I thought the other members of the Committee thought, that the screening by judicial council would be a weighing of the qualifications of the persons nominated, and that if a fellow had been a prosecutor for five years, had never defended, had never engaged in private practice, the judicial council would not for a moment nominate him for a position on the bench. We encountered the proposition that Mr. McLaughlin mentioned, that if you require private practice, then the man that is sitting as a judge on the superior court bench is not making himself eligible to be appointed to the supreme court. We had the proposition that you might have a law school here some day with a prominent dean of a law school. Why shouldn't he be eligible, perhaps, to be on the supreme court? We thought that if a man is going to serve as attorney general, which is a very broad scope of civil practice, that he should be gaining time toward being eligible for appointment to the bench. When we got all through we just said well, we will just say they have to be admitted for five years and then let the judicial council decide what the qualifications are.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: Speaking strictly on the amendment that I think it pertains to, I can understand why they would like to have a man practice law for five years in the Territory, but I am concerned about the five years of residence. I can foresee several possibilities that would preclude many people from ever aspiring to be a judge of the supreme or superior courts. A man could practice law in the Territory for 20 years and never be a resident. The point I am making, I think that we as Alaskans tend to put too much on this business of residency. I think that this is a growing country, and I don't think we should be so selfish, I guess is the word, as to preclude other good men that could practice law in the Territory and do practice law in the Territory and yet never fulfill the residence requirement. The judicial council may find that among those men, that they consider some of them to be the best, that could sit as the judges of our supreme and superior courts, and I would like to ask Mr. McLaughlin why that residence requirement was put in there.

BARR: Point of order. Is Mr. Doogan now speaking on the amendment which I believe has nothing to do with residence? Practice only, what kind of practice.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, Section 7 has to do with residence and the particular amendment, of course, is related to the extent that the Chair would hold Mr. Doogan was not talking strictly in opposition to the amendment. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: With the consent of my second and In order to satisfy Mr. Riley's objection, we would like to substitute the word eligibility for "admission" In the last portion of the proposed amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the substitution of the word eligibility for the word "admission" in the last portion of the proposed amendment? Hearing no objection It Is so ordered and the word "eligibility" is now contained in the proposed amendment. Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, yesterday during the meeting of the Legislative Committee we were searching for a definition for a word. I suggested "agency" and the definition of "agency" was so large, so engrossing, that it was not clearly definable as to U. S. or state agency. Now one of the consultants we have here, I spoke with him during the last recess, and there is a little doubt in my mind now if the words, "United States or agency thereof" is clearly definable. Just exactly how far reaching is the word "agency" or possibly this should be a matter of the Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk read the proposed amendment as it now reads?

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 7, omit the period and insert a semicolon and add 'provided that time spent as an attorney for the United States, or agency thereof, shall not be construed as counting toward the five-year eligibility requirement.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I had just a brief conversation with the same consultant and the word "agency" generally deals with a branch of the government. There are instrumentalities which are not agencies. I think the RFC is a corporation, federally created. It is an instrumentality of the Federal government but perhaps not an agency. So if you would want to make it all-embracive you would say "agency or instrumentality of the United States".

COOPER: I would like to ask Ralph Rivers then, if supposing the Golden Valley Electric Association, a public corporation - I think that would be defined as a state agency?

R. RIVERS: Yes, that is not a federal instrumentality.

COOPER: Supposing that an attorney in this immediate area of Fairbanks were hired on a retainer basis to handle all their legal business. Would that exclude that attorney from eventually being admitted or having the eligibility to be appointed as a judge?

R. RIVERS: No. Your engagements on a retainer basis are not employment and that would be one of several clients no doubt, and he would be in private practice.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, as a former attorney for the Golden Valley Electric Association, I can say that it is not an instrumentality of the United States or an agency. It is a corporation organized under the laws of the Territory of Alaska, and the man under the circumstances, as related by Mr. Cooper, would be practicing law in the Territory of Alaska. He has his office here. He would be practicing law because he would not be able to survive very long on the small amount of money you get from the Golden Valley Electric Association.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, my quarrel would not be with the wording of Mr. Hellenthal's amendment. The quarrel would be with the amendment in the entirety. I can foresee several instances in where a good man might be disqualified. It is true we might disqualify a lot of people that would never want in as judge. On the other hand, if we have a good man, and with a provision of this type should in any way disqualify him from serving, then we are restricting our constitution and building up a clique withinside a clique. This discriminatory sort of deal is what I object to.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Reverend Armstrong has been trying to get the floor.

ARMSTRONG: I want to register my objection to the amendment on the basis that I think we're inserting it on the basis of prejudice we have at this moment which may not continue on for 20 or 30 or 40 years. What I would like to ask is, does this type of a regulation inserted in other constitutions of the state where they call upon federal attorneys to qualify in this way before they can work within the court system of their state. I ask that as a question while I am registering an objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, what I am going to say -- I rather hesitate to say it because some day I may need a lawyer, but we are setting up here, I believe, a good judicial council and so far as I see it, I think it is going to be fine, and I believe near infallible. It is one I believe we should have a lot of confidence in. I don't believe they should be restricted in any way to select the man they think is the best man to be the judge. Now according to this article or this section and the amendment, they are being restricted as to who they can put in or select as their judge. According to this it seems that many are going to be barred from ever being a judge of the supreme or superior court. I would like to direct a question, if I may, and I would like to ask the judicial council if it was the feeling within the council that only lawyers make the best judges.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Someone on the Judiciary Committee like to answer that?

MCLAUGHLIN: Is that remark addressed to me?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair did not quite catch who the remark was addressed to.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, it was the unanimous, now that includes both lawyers and laymen, it was the unanimous opinion of the council that lawyers make the best judges. In fact, nearly every judicial reform instituted in the United States is directed toward removing laymen from the bench. Are there exceptions? There are definitely exceptions. That is, when I say exceptions, there could be exceptions -- I am thinking of Mr. Corwin who is probably still in existence as Professor of Constitutional Law at Princeton -- he is not a lawyer. I can think of other exceptions but generally the requirement that he be admitted to practice of law is the basic requirement that you be learned in the law. One of the objections that we have heard in our Committee universally and uniformly, is the complaint from people who have been dealt with by commissioners in the outlying areas -- the grounds that they did not receive even the form of a fair trial. The theory is as a lawyer, at least he is grounded in the traditions of the constitution and the law and he is more intent upon preserving liberties rather than the others. Is there a precedent for nonlawyer judges? Yes, but it was just abolished under the New Jersey State Constitution. The New Jersey State Constitution provided in one of their courts, Court of Errors and Appeals, approximately something like 26 judges, some of whom were laymen. In effect, what happened was the people appointed as laymen were, in fact, lawyers. The requirement that judges be lawyers is a minimal requirement that everyone in the Judiciary Committee agreed upon, and that was not solely the lawyers themselves.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I did not want it to be felt that I intended it against lawyers as such, but it does seem that we are restricting this judicial council which is composed of four lawyers and in that respect it seems they would favor lawyers, all things being equal, and I for one would say that a person would be a better judge if he were a lawyer, other things being equal. I happen to have the opportunity of serving for awhile as a United States Commissioner and I would have given a lot for some law study or law practice that I could have used along with that work. But I am wondering if it may happen that there be a dearth of good lawyers that want to be judges. Maybe the best ones don't want to be judges, then it would certainly seem better not to limit the judicial council so they can pick a layman who might be a better judge.

COGHILL: I would like to direct a question to the author of the amendment. Is it not true that in years to come, through the new State of Alaska that the problem of United States attorneys or agencies thereof in our area, will be diminished and therefore this would be a transitory measure instead of a constitutional matter?

HELLENTHAL: I hope that in the years to come that we will see a diminution of federal officials in Alaska, and I sincerely hope it will be accelerated but there will be many for many years to come, and I therefore feel that this is in order. I want to, just in closing, state the case that no prejudice whatsoever is intended by this amendment. If one were to propose that the suffrage, as has been proposed, be limited to those 20 or over in age, one surely could not say that the person who made that proposal was prejudiced against everyone under the age of 20, and no prejudice is intended here at all. It is merely this, experience has shown that people who have never practiced law and who have merely been in government jobs do not make good judges. Further, that those people as a class, at government expense, can draw on the resources of the Federal government to put themselves into positions of prominence, and thus it is pretty hard for a judicial council to resist their application for the bench, and I don't think those people should be put in an unfair position, especially when their experience does not qualify them, and experience teaches us that. Now, the university president would not be disqualified under this amendment because I doubt if he would be a federal official, but over and above that many university presidents are not qualified nor are deans of law schools qualified to be judges. A judge has to be a broad person with experience in all forms of activities, not narrow experience.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Awes?

AWES: Mr. Hellenenthal a few minutes ago asked that the amendment be changed by changing the word "admission" to "eligibility". By directing a remark to that change I don't want it to be implied that I approve of the idea of the amendment. I object to the amendment itself, both on the grounds that it is discriminatory and I think it is an unnecessary limitation on the activities of the judicial council. But it seems to me that with this recent change that it is more confusing than it was to begin with, because it says it shall not affect the five-year eligibility. When you read the section, there are two different five-year requirements, it does not specify which one it applies to.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I feel impelled to argue against this amendment, and I predicate my inclination on the fact that we are endeavoring, I think, to limit this council. As I read this measure, it indicates the council shall submit two or more, an unlimited amount of names, to the governor for choice. It seems to me that if an attorney could run the gauntlet of not only his own profession but the sympathies of the private citizen who is on that council, if he can run the gauntlet of the governor's search through the list of names, taking into consideration the quality of these people and is still eligible, then certainly he should be appointed. But one thing I think the body here has rather overlooked and that is, our legislature under the provisions of the constitution, may set up additional restrictions as matter of tenure and practice. Consequently, I am going to vote against the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I feel very strongly that the proposed amendment is something that does not belong in the constitution of the State of Alaska, which we hope is going to be adopted and which will endure for many, many years, centuries. Who knows what the situation may be? Our grandchildren may all be working for "Uncle Sam" - we don't know. I think to put in something like this is certainly lowering the tone of the constitution and destroying part of its spirit, and I would urge all delegates to vote against the proposed amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, you have been trying to get the floor.

BARR: Mr. President, I concur with Mr. Sundborg's sentiments in this matter. I believe it should be left up to the judicial council, and I do not believe it has its proper place in this constitution. I can imagine that there are several cases that we can not envision right now where a man may be eliminated as a candidate for judge. For one thing, I believe a man who had practiced, who had been an attorney for five years in the Territory, two years of which he was working for the Federal government as prosecutor, I do not believe that he should be eliminated. Although in principle I believe in this amendment, I don't believe that a man sent here as an attorney for a federal agency should be allowed to be a candidate. However, I am confident that the judicial council would take care of such matters. I believe if the legislature wants to put a limit on the qualifications that is also correct.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley?

RILEY: Not withstanding Mr. Hellenthal's having acceded to my suggestion as to a change in language, I feel obliged to record certain other sentiments. I find Mr. Armstrong's remarks quite persuasive and others have amplified on those, the question of the dignity of the document perhaps, or its misunderstanding in its reference to the United States, and for that reason I will be impelled to vote against the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I fully concur with those who have spoken so far against the amendment, and I would like to bring up another reason why I believe this amendment should be defeated, and that is if we start putting in this kind of a qualification against United States attorneys, the next thing we will be putting in all sorts of other prohibitions and opening the doors to all sorts of minor issues being brought into the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I seconded Mr. Hellenthal's amendment if I remember right and therefore will speak a moment in favor of it. Our thought behind this is not clearly expressed. Possibly before this final adoption, something can be worked out. I am going to vote for the amendment for the reason that there is nothing better to vote for at the moment. The reason behind it that someone mentioned, one of the attorneys mentioned here, it was Mr. Hellenthal I think, that we have had experience in the Territory. Now so many of the delegates have never come in contact with this personal experience we have had with judges who have been elevated to the bench who have had no private practice before, judges who have merely been prosecuting attorneys or government attorneys and they go on the bench as narrow-minded men. I would even go further on this and say that county attorneys or state prosecutors who had no other experience in five years as state prosecutors should not be allowed on the bench because their minds are narrow. All they know is largely the matter of prosecution of criminal law and that alone does not make a good judge. A good judge is a judge who has had a wide experience both in civil and criminal practice, and that is the kind of judge to be proud of. The reason I am in favor further of amending this section here in some fashion is that as long as there is so much legislation written in the bill and so little that the legislature can do about it once this becomes a part of the constitution, then I don't believe a few more words constitutes an addition of legislation.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Hellenthal's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of the proposed amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the amendment has failed. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess while the steno- typist fixes her machine.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to state that yesterday morning Mr. Buckalew called and said he was ill. He also called this morning and said he was ill and would be present again as soon as he is able to do so. He has been sick in bed for two days. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that if the calendar is not cleared by 5 p.m. that we recess and take the calendar up again at 7 p.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and asks unanimous consent that if the calendar is not cleared by 5 p.m. that the Convention recess until 7 p.m. and continue with the calendar at that time.

V. RIVERS: Objection, Mr. Chairman.

COGHILL: I so move.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

V. RIVERS: I state as my objection that the committees have had no chance to work yet today and we have, for one, in our Committee set up a meeting for 7:30 which will probably go on until about 11, and I don't think this business of carrying this on can't be conducted and carried on until 9; 30 Monday morning in second reading or this particular position in which we find it at that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, It is my belief that unless we do something like what is proposed In Mr. Coghill's motion, the committees will not only have no chance to meet today but they won't have any chance to meet tomorrow or for several days. I think we must get to work and clear our calendar. I am in favor of an evening session.

RILEY: The reason I object to this motion is that we have several consultants in town who are on pretty tight schedules. One in particular is leaving tomorrow morning and is committed to spend the evening with one large committee, and there may be other similar instances.

AWES: I don't know if Mr. Riley was speaking of the Bill of Rights Committee or not, but that is the situation on our Committee. We have a meeting set at 7 o'clock tonight to meet with one of the consultants who is leaving in the morning. I know personally I am on two committees and one has arranged a meeting for tonight and one has arranged a meeting for Sunday, and I think we should, if we can't leave our days open for the Committees, it is a good idea to leave evenings and Sundays, and I object to that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: In other words, there are at-least two committees meeting tonight, one at 7:00 and one at 7:30 and the consultant is leaving in the morning. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I believe that anybody proposing such a motion be made should be given a little longer notice, because arrangements have been made with the specialists to meet with these committees. It is very hard to make other arrangements when they obligated -themselves to do this. I think this motion should be voted down at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I simply want to echo the sentiments expressed by Mr. Riley and Miss Awes. I also wanted to point out that it is not necessary that the consultants be in attendance at our plenary sessions. It is not only essential, it is vital that the committees be able to make full use of the short time which is left in which we can use the consultants, so I think it is very important that the committees have that time this evening.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: I might point out that it would make for more efficient operation if we held our plenary sessions during the daytime from many angles, taking into consideration transportation, etc., and if we have our committee meetings at night, in many cases a committee can meet in town without the necessity of traveling all this distance out here, and we should have quite a few committee meetings between now and our recess. The experts of course are available while they are here. That way we could have both plenary sessions and committee meetings.

LONDBORG: I believe the motion is relative to tonight. Two committees then at least have asked consultants to be present, and I think we ought to vote the motion down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, does this discussion affect your feeling in the matter?

COGHILL: Mr. President, the reason for the motion is the fact that we are presently engaged in this proposal. It is fresh in our minds. I, too, am on two committees and one of my committees is suffering quite badly from the lack of being able to meet in the morning. I had a schedule for this afternoon, a meeting for the Administration Committee, and again we cannot have that. Now if we could go ahead and clear up the business before us on the calendar then we would have tomorrow free to revert back to the committee work. I believe it is timely that we should try and clear the calendar as soon as possible.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I think it should be pointed out that the calendar, as it now stands includes not only the matter in which we are now engaged, but also the suffrage matter which if we are going to clear it up tonight we are apt to be here until early in the morning.

MCNEES: I would be inclined to agree with Mr. Coghill except for the one point and that is relative to the need for the services of these consultants and a very limited time here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. King.

KING: Mr. Chairman, in our committee which I am on, Resources, we are taking every possible opportunity to meet with these consultants. We have a very large job to do and one of our main consultants is leaving in the morning, and we have arranged this for some time. We do need his services because we are taking several approaches to this subject, and these consultants themselves have different ideas, and we are certainly going to lose a lot by not being able to meet with our consultant tonight.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, with the consent of my second, in view of the committee hearings, I withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Coghill, with the consent of his second, will be allowed to withdraw his motion. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, we are now on Section 7, is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, Mr. Hellenthal's proposed amendment on Section 7. The question is, are there other amendments?

SUNDBORG: I have another amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment by Mr. Sundborg to Section 7.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3, line 2, following the word 'state' insert a period and strike the balance of the section."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves that on page 3, line 2, insert a period and strike the balance of the sentence.

V. FISCHER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer seconds the motion. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, if I may explain my thinking which led me to propose this amendment, we are setting up here a judicial council, a majority of whose members will be lawyers and all of these members will be selected by a very careful process. The duty of that council will be to nominate persons for appointment as judges and justices of the state. I think it is unnecessary and unwise to limit the field of persons who may be considered as candidates for justices and judges in the manner in which Section 7 would do as it is now written. I believe that all that is necessary as an absolute requirement of a person who might be nominated is that he must be a citizen of the United States and of Alaska and shall be a member of the bar. Beyond that leave it up to the judicial council. There would be many cases in the years to come when there will be a man who might make an excellent judge or justice who might have been absent for example, for one year out of the five years immediately preceding the time when he is considered for appointment or might have been a member of the bar of Alaska for perhaps only four years where he might have been a member of some other bar for 20 or 30 years before that and would be excellent timber for judge or justice. I think it would not be likely in many cases that such persons, unless they met the requirements which are set out in Section 7 a3 it now stands, would be proposed by the judicial council, but I believe that there would be cases when such men should be, and therefore I would like to leave it to the judgment of the judicial council in the years to come who should be nominated for judge and justice, as long as the man is a citizen of the United States and of Alaska and is a member of the bar.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, not for purposes of expressing assent or dissent but merely for purposes of style of which the proponent is the Chairman, I would additionally suggest that to have the motion complete and that the words in the second line of page 3, reading 'have been', that the words be stricken and the word "are be substituted. That is merely for the purpose of completing the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk please read the amendment as offered by Mr. Sundborg.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3, line 2, following the word 'state' insert a period and strike the balance of the section.

MCLAUGHLIN: Forgive me, I withdraw my suggestion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion of the proposed amendment? Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: I feel as Mr. Sundborg does and primarily I feel that here we are setting up a judicial council. Now this is not going to only happen in a judiciary committee, there are other things going to be recommended or be set up in the constitution to help the new State of Alaska get along, and I don't believe in setting up these councils, boards, or whatever they are, in trying to make things move along as rapidly and as expeditiously as they can, that we should in any manner tie their hands in the constitution. If their hands need tying it His going to be done by the legislature anyhow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, now this matter was argued quite long and perhaps vociferously in the committee. We had the advice of Mr. Elliott, and after searching the provisions of many other constitutions that have been adopted, we finally came up with what we considered the minimum qualifications for a judge as to residence and practice. Now that is all we are setting here is a minimum qualification. I think we should set a minimum qualification. The judicial council may or the integrated bar of Alaska may require greater or higher qualifications. Now take for Instance Hawaii who had this matter under consideration. Nobody is eligible to be a judge, either supreme court or district judge or superior court judge In the state of Hawaii, until they have practiced for ten years before the supreme court of Hawaii. Now that is the qualifications they have set upon the judges there in the constitution. We are only asking half of that, and this is much less than a good many. Nevada I think is 15 years' practice before you can be a judge of the supreme court. We are only asking for five. I think it Is shortsightedness or possibly not acquainted sufficiently with the matter before to say this is discriminatory. Well, you have certain qualifications you set up for a doctor, do you not that's going to treat you for your ailments, but when you have a judge, he might be the deciding factor as to whether you are going to lose a lot of money or a lot of your property or whether you're going to maintain it, and don't you want then a man sitting on the bench that is versed In the law and sees that you get a fair trial before a fair jury and that it is conducted right? Why will you give less consideration to picking a man that is going to decide a case, maybe your life, or your liberty for many years? Would you give less consideration to that than you will to a man who is going to possibly treat you for some ailment? They established these in all branches of you might say professional life. Mr. President, you know has been in the legislature, you know we have qualifications for an osteopath, for chiropractors. They must take an examination in basic science and many instances along that line that for those you might say, mediocre services, they establish a higher requirement than we would require here for a man sitting on the bench deciding whether you are going to the penitentiary or whether you're going to go free. I think we should at least maintain these minimum requirements that we have in this article.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I would like to rise in support of the amendment. I have gone along with this article so far because I think it is an excellent article as it tends to set up standards of excellence in performance of duties in this field, but I feel those standards have no bearing on this question. This question 'is as to regional residence. Alaska is known as the land of opportunity, and I would like to see it continue to be known as the land of opportunity. I think this particular question goes beyond this article. I think it will come up again and again, and I hope throughout the constitution we will put as few bars as possible in the way of people joining us up here in the work of developing this country, because of reason of residence. The standards as to performance, qualifications, education, training are fine in their place, but that has no relation to this subject. I think the amendment is a good one and I think that the philosophy behind it, I hope the philosophy behind it, will be carried through many other sections of this constitution,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Sundborg's amendment, supported by Mr. McCutcheon and Mr. White, seems to be predicated on the assumption that these are merely minimum qualifications and that the legislature may prescribe additional qualifications. I do not share that opinion. Section 8 provides that as to judges' eligibility qualifications are to be prescribed by the legislature, so I think we have this situation -that as to judges of other courts the legislature can prescribe additional qualifications, but since that power is not granted to the legislature as to the justices of the supreme court and judges of the superior court, that whatever we agree on here will be the qualifications which will not be subject to change by the legislature. I would perhaps go along with Mr. Sundborg's amendment if he would add after the word "state" in line 2, the words "and subject to further qualifications to be prescribed by the legislature." But unless those words are there, I don't think the power would exist.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: Mr. President, I would like to point out something. In Section 13, dealing with the judicial council, It says,

"... the judicial council to be responsible for conducting studies from time to time for Improvement of the administration of justice, and make recommendations to the legislature. . ." so I favor the amendment because I feel that we should not restrict the judicial council In Its efforts to improve the administration of justice.

MCNEALY: I would like to speak only briefly against the amendment and call the attention to the fact that historically and lawfully here in the Territory the offices of treasurer, attorney general and other Territorial-wide offices require a residence of five years, and In going back over those, the reasons for that is not only that the incumbents or candidates for office become familiar with the Territory and the problems of the Territory but also that the people may have an opportunity to become familiar with the candidates for those offices, and it has worked out in my opinion, very successfully. We have that precedent to go by, five years for residence requirement for the Territorial offices, and like Mr. Taylor, I would hesitate that either any of my clients or myself would have to sit under a judge who had the life and liberty and property rights in his hand and who could, under this proposed amendment, have no knowledge of Alaska whatsoever.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak in opposition to Mr. Sundborg's amendment and call the members of the Convention, their attention to the section of the Missouri Constitution which was adopted with the revisions in 1945. It says, "The judges of the supreme court shall be citizens of the United States for at least fifteen years and qualified voters of this state for nine years just preceding their election." Speaking further on this matter, I believe we certainly should have these minimum requirements. The people up here In Alaska -- we live differently, think, differently from the people say in Nebraska or Kansas or the Middle West. From my experience of teaching school many years ago out Westward, some of these folks from the states come up to the Native villages, we thought when they first arrived they were a little queer, and for that reason I believe that due to our thinking and our living and our occupations are different from many states outside we certainly should have this minimum residence requirement.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I do not believe the language of this amendment would carry with it the letting down of the standards for the selection of judges. The amendment would simply remove these minimum standards. I think that these standards as included here will not of themselves assure this election of good judges. It will take a good judicial council to make a proper selection. You can have people with ten years' residence and ten years practice of law in Alaska and they still may not make good judges. The judicial council as presently set up in this proposal would be made up of at least three attorneys and the supreme court, a chief justice of the supreme court. Leaving out the lay members, could any one of the attorneys here imagine that if they were in a position of selecting the nominees, or even selecting the members of the judicial council, that they would select the kind of people or the kind of nominees who would select someone who would not make a good judge. I believe that this amendment is good. I don't think it will result in our getting judges who have no knowledge of Alaska or are not able to perform their duties.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. McLaughlin a question? Do you regard the qualifications prescribed in Section 7 as minimum qualifications for justices of the supreme court and judges of the superior court?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, in terms of minimum qualifications if you will permit me Mr. Hellenthal, I shall say this. I don't believe that the legislature can change these qualifications or add to them. The judicial council as a matter of administration can do them, but I do not believe the legislature can actually change any of the qualifications set down.

HELLENTHAL: One more question, Mr. McLaughlin. Do you think the judicial council could say impose a 20-year requirement for residence?

MCLAUGHLIN: No. I do not believe the judicial council could impose a 20-year requirement for residence, but I think as a practical matter the judicial council could in itself say in the course of its discussion, "We don't think this man has been here for sufficient long time to make him qualify." But it could not establish a rule, nor could the legislature establish a rule limiting this section or changing the qualifications or in fact increasing them to make a man eligible for the bench. Does that answer your question?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak against this amendment, feel that they have, as Mr. Taylor pointed out, set up minimum standards. As you notice, these judges are going to travel all parts of the Territory. They are going to be jockeyed around at the will of the supreme court if they are superior court judges. They are going to have to have, in the handling of many of the court affairs, an intimate knowledge of the people and the country which they are trying to serve, seems to me that in all of our officers that have high powers and high policy-making powers we should have men who have had an acquaintance with and know the conditions of the country and the people, as well as of their particular professional subject. For that reason I feel it is basic that we have set up an absolute minimum here of requirements for residence in order to get acquainted with any substantial part of the Territory and its problems. As a judge I would like to see that he have at least a minimum standard of five years residence and of course, five years' admission to the bar.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, I have already spoken a couple of times on these judicial matters. I hesitate to speak again for fear someone might think I am an attorney. Actually I am not. I am speaking from the viewpoint of one who might in the future be judged by the courts. If I were to be judged by the court, I would consider that one of the qualifications of the judge should be a certain acquaintance with our conditions here in the Territory. Now I can envision a case coming up, perhaps a civil case involving a common carrier, engaged in transportation, operating trucks or buses or airplanes, and that particular industry confronted with problems which you would not find in other states, or perhaps a case involving the placer mining industry which is highly seasonal here in Alaska and has to overcome many difficulties such as transportation, which they do not encounter in the States. Also, perhaps the might be sitting on a criminal case involving a crime committed by a member of one of our Native races who resides in a remote area who has not had the advantages of the education that most of us have had. It seems to me that one of the qualifications of a judge, one of the most important qualifications, should be his acquaintance with our peculiar conditions in Alaska, and he can gain that only by residing here a certain length of time. Now I sympathize with those who say that Alaska should be a land of opportunity for the newcomers. I also believe in presenting them with plenty of opportunity. A man coming up here to engage in a trucking business or a news dealer, perhaps, could operate just as efficiently as one who has lived here for 50 years, but a judge sitting on a bench could not, and I do not believe that we should open up opportunities at the top for the newcomers, especially in as highly a specialized profession as the law. I believe that, as I stated, that one of the qualifications of a judge should be experience in the country. Otherwise he is not qualified to judge.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley has been attempting to get the floor. Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I would like to call attention of the group to a matter which I think is of some importance and that is that we have been engaged here for sometime in arguing the merits of what a judge's qualifications should be. It appears to me what we are really confronted with is whether or not we want the judicial council to make the decision on the qualification of the judge or not, I think we are attempting to be the judicial council, and I am in favor of the motion to amend, primarily for the reason that it eliminates three lines from our constitution and does not do any harm. I think that the minimum qualifications that are stated here, if it were put to the members of the bar, they would readily agree that there would be very few cases where they would recommend a person to be a judge that had only those minimum qualifications. So in fact what they are saying is that the judicial council will submit names of people who have had more experience and more residence than that. So I think for the sake of the constitution being brief and to the point that we can eliminate those last three lines without hurting the meat in it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I had to go "outside" this last weekend on some personal business, and I was astonished with some things I learned "outside". I had not been "outside" for sometime, and I was astonished to find out that the people in the States pull their pants on the same way we do in Alaska and that the people in the United States are probable no different than we are. Here we are building a little wall around our attorneys who may be available for the bench and I don't think there is any reason for it. Let me speak of a hypothetical case, I wouldn't want to use any names. In the Territory of Alaska a judgeship became available. An Alaskan was not picked for that position. A man was brought in from the "outside" and it is positively astonishing how quickly that man learned a lot of things about Alaska and how well in a few months' time he was regarded by all people in that area. I think we are placing an aura about ourselves trying to give ourselves a smoked salmon distinction which we are not entitled to. We are going to be a state someday and we're not going to be any different from anybody else. And I should imagine that probably some of the men could open the coats on their suit and on the label see "Hart, Schaffner & Marx" In here, and I think a lot of this stuff is entirely beside the point. I am heartily In favor of the amendment of Mr. Sundborg, and I believe it will do the Territory a lot of good when we became a state.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris?

HARRIS: Mr. Hilscher just stated that he saw no reason why we should be any different from anybody else. I don't either and the majority of the other state constitutions demand a minimum requirement for their judges, and that is what we have done in this Committee in setting up what we figured was the minimum, the absolute minimum I might add, of what a residence of a judge should be. I am inclined to think that although we may not be different from the States in some things, in other things such as our weather and our climate conditions, which could come up into court, that a judge would necessarily have to understand and that was one of the big arguments for putting in the five-year requirement. I think it should stay in.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNeese.

MCNEESE: I rise to speak in favor of the amendment. The government is big business. And if I were a businessman, as I am, had the wherewithal to do as I would like to do and pick the best possible manager, the best possible man for a position, I think I would want to be able to reach just as far as necessary in order to get that man. I would not want to find out that after I had found the good man, the man for the job, that I was unable to hire him for some other reason. Perhaps we could get together in our thinking. He would be willing to go to work for me. I wanted him to work in the worst possible way. I feel here that we are placing a restriction that has no business whatsoever in the constitution. I would like to say this about this document that the Judiciary Branch has presented to us for consideration -- that up to this particular point I have found no quarrel in my thinking whatsoever with it. At this point I do. I feel it is restrictive, and therefore I feel that I would vote in favor of the amendment at this point.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does anyone else wish to be heard on the question? If not, Mr. Sundborg, you may close.

SUNDBORG: I agree with practically everything that has been said here by those who have been opposing the motion. That is, I believe we should have men who are acquainted with Alaskan conditions. I believe we should have men who would make good judges. I believe with other matters that have been brought up and I would be inclined to go along with them if we did not have here in our Judicial Article the provision that every man, before he ever could be appointed a judge, would have to be nominated for that position by a judicial council consisting mainly of attorneys. I might say, with respect to something that Mr. Hellenthal brought up, that my proposed amendment was not suggested on the predication that the legislature could or would establish further minimum qualifications., I believe that would be unnecessary, even if it were legally possible, that the judicial council itself is a body which should have pretty wide discretion in deciding who would make a good judge of the State of Alaska. It was mentioned here that in our Territorial experience that we have had rather lengthy requirements on residence covering such positions as treasurer, auditor, attorney general and so on.

We have had Territorial officials who have gone to prison.

We have had some others who maybe should have gone to prison.

I believe we have suffered as a Territory because we have had high and lengthy requirements on residence and that we have made it impossible for the people to have a choice sometimes of who would be the best man for those positions when the people should have the choice, just as I believe here that the judicial council should have the choice of who would make a good judge. It has been mentioned that some of the states have very much longer residence requirements than is proposed in this act. I would like to suggest that it would not be appropriate to have longer ones in Alaska, and in fact I think we should have none at all. This is not Nebraska, Hawaii or Missouri or any of the states that have been mentioned. This is Alaska. It is a new country where, as has been said, we hope to attract a lot of additional people to help us in building a state. I believe we should not frustrate ourselves by putting in our constitution, provisions which at some time in the future might foreclose us from getting the very best man possible for a position of judge in the state.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's amendment be adopted?"

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson requests a roll call. The Chief Clerk will read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3, line 2, following the word 'state' insert a period and strike the balance of the section."

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 24 - Awes, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, Stewart, Sundborg, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 28 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Plermann, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh.

Absent: 3 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, Sweeney.)

CHIEF CLERK: 24 yeas, 28 nays and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the amendment has failed. The Chair would like to state at this time that Mrs. Helen Fischer., too, has been ill for the past couple of days and her doctor will not be able to say until Monday just when she can return to the Convention. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: In view of the arguments that have been presented during the discussion of this last section, I would like to go back to Section 5 and propose in line 6 to delete voters of the state" and substitute qualified electors". I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Page 2, line 6, delete "voters of the state" and substitute "qualified electors". Do you so move the adoption of that amendment, Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: I do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel so moves the adoption of the amendment. Is there a second?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, if I may suggest to Mr. Hinckel, I plan tomorrow morning to call a meeting of the Judiciary Committee, and could you withhold that until then and I will second any motion you make tomorrow.

HINCKEL: I will be happy to withhold it until then, but if there is no objection, may I make a short statement now?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, you may make a short statement now.

HINCKEL: My reason for it is that I feel that the present wording might be construed to mean that an election confirming the reappointment of a judge or the continuing of a judge would have to be a state-wide election, and I object to that. I think the judge should merely be confirmed by the people in his jurisdiction.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This proposed amendment will be offered tomorrow. Are there other amendments to Section 7? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. President, I have an amendment to Section No. 7.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment offered by Mr. Cooper to Section No. 7.

COOPER: May I have a one-second at ease?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at ease for one second. The Convention will come to order.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delete Section 7 and substitute the following: 'To be eligible for appointment, Justices of the Supreme Court, and Judges of the Superior Court shall be citizens of the United States and of the State of Alaska who have been admitted to practice law in the State of Alaska, and shall be subject to eligibility qualifications to be prescribed by the Legislature.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your pleasure, Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: I ask unanimous consent that that be accepted, be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper asks unanimous consent that the amendment be adopted.

JOHNSON: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson objects.

JOHNSON: I object temporarily on a point of information. Has that matter not already been acted upon under the Hellenthal proposal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is a different amendment, Mr. Johnson. It relates to this section but it is different than anything that has been suggested before.

JOHNSON: The subject matter is the same, isn't it?

COOPER: Mr. President, I would like to make myself clear -

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second to your motion?

DOOGAN: I second the motion.

COOPER: During all the discussion previous to this point, the majority of the delegates wanted additional qualifications to be prescribed in some manner or some form. I believe those additional qualifications should be prescribed by the legislature which 50 years from this date could possibly change said qualifications without having to amend the constitution by the people of Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of the motion? If not, the question is, "Shall Mr. Cooper's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" The Chief Clerk may read the amendment again.

CHIEF CLERK: "To be eligible for appointment, Justices of the Supreme Court, and Judges of the Superior Court shall be citizens of the United States and of the State of Alaska who have been admitted to practice law in the State of Alaska, and shall be subject to eligibility qualifications to be prescribed by the Legislature."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Point of information. I wanted to ask Mr. Cooper if under his motion that he contemplated that it be necessary for a man to have practiced law?

COOPER: If I might say to Mr. Taylor, I assume a man who had been admitted to practice law in the state would be capable of practicing law, and I would like to add one word in my proposal. It would be "and subject to further eligibility qualifications to be prescribed by the Legislature."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask that your proposed amendment be changed to that extent? Then how would the proposed amendment read?

CHIEF CLERK: "To be eligible for appointment, Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Superior Court shall be citizens of the United States and of the State of Alaska who have been admitted to practice law in the State of Alaska, and shall be subject to further eligibility qualifications to be prescribed by the Legislature."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to the inclusion of those words in Mr. Cooper's amendment?

HELLENTHAL: May I ask Mr. Cooper a question about his amendment? Would you object to leaving Section 7 in its present form, which has apparently been approved by this body, and adding the words, "and subject to further eligibility qualifications to be prescribed by the Legislature."?

COOPER: May I ask for a two-minute recess?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: In the last two minutes I have had an education. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to make further amendments to my amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper asks unanimous consent for further amendments of his amendment.

COOPER: In the last sentence, "and subject to further eligibility qualifications which may be prescribed by the Judicial Council."

PRESIDENT EGAN: You mean you want to add those words?

COOPER: No, I would strike the word "to" and insert "which may be prescribed by the" and strike the word "Legislature" and insert "the Judicial Council".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please read the proposed amendment then as it would appear.

CHIEF CLERK: "To be eligible for appointment, Justices of the Supreme Court, and Judges of the Superior Court shall be citizens of the United States and of the State of Alaska who have been admitted to practice law in the State of Alaska, and shall be subject to further eligibility qualifications which may be prescribed by the Judicial Council."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Cooper's offering that proposed amendment in its present form?

MCNEALY: I object to his changing the wording.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you so move, Mr. Cooper, that you be allowed to amend your original amendment?

COOPER: I so move.

LEE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved by Mr. Cooper, seconded by Mr. Lee that the original amendment be amended to read as the Chief Clerk just read it, and if it is necessary the Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment to the amendment once more.

(The Chief Clerk read the proposed amendment to the amendment once more.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the amendment to the amendment as offered by Mr. Cooper be adopted?" Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I would like to explain my objection to it before the vote. I was in favor of the amendment until "Judicial Council" was substituted for "Legislature". Now this body has, or will when this bill is passed, have taken away from the people the right to vote for the judges and has put the power of appointment of judges in the hands of a judicial council. Now, if we are going to continue to go along through here and amend and give greater powers to the judicial council. I fear we are setting up a board here which is comparable to some of the federal boards which I could name, but which I don't know whether the immunity of the floor would allow me to speak on them or not. We are setting up an arbitrary board here who, if we grant more powers than is already in this bill, then the only alternative I can see is that with other legal members, and I trust some of the lay members of this Convention, we can all get on this all-powerful board so we see that we get something in the way of judges.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I might suggest by way of information to Mr. McNealy, that there is a potential device that may be proposed by the legislative branch which would take care of this omnipotent board he is concerned about.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I disagree with Mr. McNealy that the peoples' power would be restrained by the proposed amendment. As a matter of fact, the people would gain by this amendment because more of them would be eligible for appointment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. Cooper, I don't quite understand the meaning of your amendment. It seems to me that as long as the judicial council is the one that selects this person that they are within themselves, they have the inherent power for the procedure without being spelled out. I believe that the intent of your motion is already in the hands of the judicial council. I don't believe you have changed the wording as it stands without your amendment. Can you explain why it is different?

COOPER: Yes, I would like to explain that. As I see it, the way I understand my own amendment is that the judicial council is responsible for putting before the governor the names of two men in this particular case for the justice of the supreme court. Now, in addition to the qualifications that the judicial, council might consider important, they are already obligated that the qualifications of this justice of the supreme court will be a citizen of the United States and of the state and have been admitted to practice law in the state, and further, the judicial council will set up qualifications, further qualifications that he will have to be endowed with before he would be considered as a nominee for this position. I like it this way so that in the future, possibly 100 or 200 years from now, the qualifications may have to be upgraded or downgraded, and rather than have to take the constitution back to the people of the State of Alaska for amendment, it can merely be performed right within the judicial council.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: I would like to be heard on this. The amendment proposed by Mr. Cooper would not allow any downgrading. The constitution would say, the way I see he has it, they would only have to be admitted to practice. Under his setup, the judicial council could prescribe the five years' residence requirement, they could prescribe practice requirement for, so many years and various other things, but as Mr. Gray said, they are going to be doing the appointing, they have the inherent power anyway, subject to whatever minimum requirements we put in the constitution, the judicial council has full powers. I don't like, as Mr. McNealy suggested, to flag a rule-making power for the judicial council. Let them use their discretion but let them not make rules other than minimum requirements that are prescribed in this section.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I am opposed to Mr. Cooper's amendment to his amendment. I am willing to support the amendment as long as it leaves the eligibility requirements in the hands of the legislature, but I am inherently opposed to building up strong appointive boards and any line of activity if it can possibly be avoided, and I don't have any particular reason to think that one that is composed principally of lawyers is going to be any better as a board than one composed entirely of laymen. I think that the original amendment is good, but the amendment to the amendment which changes the rule-making power, transfers the rule-making power to the judicial council instead of the legislature, is very bad, and it will not require any amendment of the constitution if the power is left with the legislature. If the legislature uses it unwisely next year we can throw the rascals out and elect a new one the next year and "undo the harm that they have done without a Constitutional Convention. I think the amendment has been greatly weakened by Mr. Cooper's change, and I wish he would rise up now and withdraw it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: I wish to go along with Delegate Hermann on her position right now, and I hope Mr. Cooper will do what you have requested.

COOPER: Mr. President, in lieu of the rolling pin, may I have a one-minute recess?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

V. RIVERS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor moves, Mr. Johnson seconds the motion that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow. Are there committee reports? Committee meetings?

The motion is not debatable but the Chair will entertain a notice of committee meetings.

DOOGAN: Point of order, Mr. Chairman. It seems to me there was a matter of recess declared for clarification and we were discussing an amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, but a motion to adjourn is in order. It doesn't mean you have to accept it one way or the other, but the motion is in order.

MCCUTCHEON: Call the roll.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll on the motion to adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow.

HERMANN: Maybe we should do something about arranging for transportation to town at this hour.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Has there been anything done about the arrangements for transportation back to town?

SERGEANT AT ARMS: There is a bus at 5:05 p.m.

V. FISCHER: Point of order. I would like to point out that an official hearing has been scheduled for 9:30 tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other announcements of committee meetings?

ROSSWOG: The Local Government Committee has scheduled a meeting for 7:30 tonight at Apartment 205 in the Northward Building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a meeting of the Committee on Local Government at Apartment 205 in the Northward Building at 7:30 this evening. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, your Committee on Administration, Committee No. II, will meet tonight at 8 p.m. here at the Convention Hall, pickup time about 7:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A meeting of the Committee on Administration at 8 p.m. in Convention Hall. Miss Awes?

AWES: Committee on Bill of Rights and Preamble will meet at 7 o'clock this evening in Apartment 1009 in the Polaris Building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights will meet at 7 p.m. in Apartment 1009 of the Polaris Building.

BOSWELL: The Resources Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Northward Building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Resources Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Northward Building. Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, the Judiciary Committee will meet here tomorrow as soon as the bus arrives out here, and we request that Mr. Londborg, Walsh, Reverend Armstrong and Delegate Cooper attend.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, you would request that who attend?

MCLAUGHLIN: Londborg, Hinckel, Walsh, Armstrong and Cooper appear for the information of the assemblage. We have discussed the matter with everyone except Mr. Cooper. They had objections we wanted to explain or possibly amend to satisfy. We thought we would expedite the work of the assembly if we could satisfy them on what we feel are technical points.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other announcements of committee meetings? Mr. McCutcheon?

MCCUTCHEON: No. VII, Legislative Branch, will meet at 803 in the Polaris Building at 7:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on the Legislative Branch will meet at Apartment 803 in the Polaris Building. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: I would like to ask that the Resources Committee get together for one minute immediately after adjournment of this session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Resources Committee will meet immediately after adjournment of this session. The question is, "Shall the Convention adjourn until --" Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Point of order. Can that motion be amended just for the time, because we are having a hearing of the Local Government Committee tomorrow morning? I would like to offer an amendment that the Convention reconvene at 11:00 tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would that be satisfactory with the maker of the motion that convening time in the proposed motion be set at 11 a.m. rather than 9 a.m.?

TAYLOR: The motion is unamendable, but I will change my motion to make it at that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, Mr. Taylor, in view of the fact that the hearing is being held in the morning, that was the reason

Mr. Rosswog made the suggestion and under those circumstances --

TAYLOR: Whatever time you want to amend it, is all right with me.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposed motion is that the Convention -- Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I would like to state that the committee hearing which we are having on Local Government tomorrow may extend considerably beyond the 11 o'clock time. It was my intention that if and when we met tomorrow at 9:30, we would ask that our order of business be continued in second reading until 9:30 on Monday. Then we could adjourn and have our committee meetings and also have our hearing. I think the 11 o'clock hour is not a good hour.

PRESIDENT EGAN: How does that affect your feeling, Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman that would be perfectly all right.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is. "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, before roll is called on that, I wonder if I may just give a point of information. There is a bus to town at 5:50 p.m. as well as at 5:05. That may influence somebody's vote with respect to adjourning at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following re-sult:

Yeas: 30 - Awes, Barr, Boswell, Cross, Doogan, Gray, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White.

Nays: 22 - Armstrong, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Nerland, Peratrovich, Sundborg, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 3 - Buckalew, H. Fischer, Sweeney.)

CHIEF CLERK: 30 ayes, 22 nays, and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the Convention stands adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 10, 1955

THIRTY-THIRD DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this morning Mr. Harry O. Arend, President of the Fairbanks branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Mr. Arend will give us our daily invocation.

MR. AREND: Our Heavenly Father, it is good that we pause in our councils to recognize Thy land in the affairs of men. We thank thee, Heavenly Father, for this great land of America, for the freedom and brotherhood that symbolizes it. We ask Thee to bless the leader of the land, Mr. Eisenhower. We thank Thee for preserving him unto us in this time of world tension. We thank Thee, Heavenly Father, especially at this time for these, Thy sons and daughters, who have gathered here to devote their time and their talents to the creation of a constitution for a new state. As the Christmas season approaches, and they prepare to go to their various homes and firesides, we ask Thee to take them there in safety and if necessary temper the elements that they may have a safe voyage home and back again. Heavenly Father, we dedicate this land of Alaska and the work that is being done here to a new state in the great union of the United States of America. This we do in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, we have an order of business on the floor. We have Proposal No. 2 in second reading. I ask that Proposal No. 2 be continued in second reading until Monday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Proposal No. 2 will be continued in second reading until Monday. The Chair would like to bring to the attention of the delegates at this time that in the gallery we have the Anchorage High School Eagles Basketball team. Many of their supporters and also their coach is with them in the gallery. The Chair would like to call upon Mr. Ned Imlach, if he would like to come forward and say a few words to the delegates. (Applause)

MR. IMLACH: Mr. President, delegates and guests. As spokesman for the Anchorage High School basketball team I wish to express our appreciation and gratitude for the honor of attending this Convention and viewing these proceedings. The students of Anchorage High School are well aware of the significance of your work here and realize that what is achieved will have a direct bearing on our future lives here in Alaska. This awareness was increased by the recent speeches given our student body by Delegate Bartlett and Senator Knowland. We are indebted to these distinguished men for increasing our knowledge of the needs of our Territory and future State of Alaska. In observing the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention will give us a much greater insight into the problems and difficulties involved in drawing up a state constitution. All of us realize that this is probably the last time that a Constitutional Convention will be held in the United States. We are aware that this opportunity is one which will probably never be granted to young people of future generations. We are very grateful for the invitation extended to us by you, the delegates, and I am sure that this is an occasion none of us will forget the rest of our lives. Thank you. (Applause)

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the talk we just heard be spread upon the journal of today's proceedings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves and asks unanimous consent that the talk which we just heard be spread upon today's journal. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Thank you, Mr. Imlach, and we are happy to have the visitors in the gallery. Mr. Doogan, do you have a report to make from the special Committee to read the journal?

DOOGAN: I understand that because of the press of business today that we would hold it over until Monday and I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the reading of the journal will be held over until Monday. Are there any petitions, memorials, or communications from outside the Convention? Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, your Committee on Administration met last night, and we will have a full report Monday. However, there are two subjects which are pending and should be taken into consideration by this body. The first one is, we have a film by the Alaska Visitors Association and one by the Corps of Engineers. Mr. Whaley is going to be leaving Fairbanks Tuesday and that film will have to be shown before that time. We would like to suggest to the delegates that probably a date of Sunday evening would be satisfactory in the auditorium of the Mines Building. The other subject is in regard to the transportation, that all delegates going to home or to hearings during this recess, in order to obtain the correct travel orders for this trip, we must have a definite schedule of your travel. If you will give that to Mrs. Dolores Goad up in the message center room we can then send out to Juneau and have those travel orders speeded to the Convention Hall. But I think the most pressing is the film, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any objection to notifying Mr. Whaley that we would be happy to view his film on the Arctic sometime on Sunday evening, say at 7:30 p.m. in the Mines Building? Does someone have a motion? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I will move and ask unanimous consent that arrangements be made to show these two pictures at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the Mines Building auditorium.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, so far as the Chair knows, Colonel Farrell's pictures are not available right here now. The Chair is not quite clear on that. Probably on Sunday evening we would just be able to have Mr. Whaley's.

SUNDBORG: I ask permission to change my unanimous consent request.

HURLEY: Point of information. The regular bus schedule leaves at 6:30 in town and 9:50 back to town. If we could start at 7:00 it would be more convenient for the bus company.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley, that is an enlightening observation. Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Further point of information. I am wondering if we have already ascertained whether or not the Mines Building would be available to us at that time.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, in answering that question, before I could determine whether it would be available I would have to find out what the wishes of the Convention are. It has been told to the Administration Committee by Mr. Beistline, Dean of Mines, that we can have that auditorium at any time.

HURLEY: The regular ASUA shows are held in the Mines Auditorium from 4:00 - 6:00 and 6:00 - 9:00 on Sunday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, that seems to preclude the use of the Mines Building for tomorrow evening. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: I would like to ask permission to change my unanimous consent request to provide that the showing would be arranged for Monday evening at sometime which would be announced by the Administration Committee on Monday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then Mr. Sundborg asks unanimous consent that Mr. Whaley be notified that the delegates will be happy to view his film some time on Monday evening, the most likely place being the Mines Building out here at the University, the time to be announced Monday by the Chairman of the Administration Committee. Also the Chairman of the Administration Committee will make certain that Mr. Whaley is notified. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President, this is a great picture and this delegation ought to see it. It will bring us up to date on Alaska and the great future. I am afraid if we have it out here at the Mines Building you won't be there. It would be great to have it in right here, this room right here. Could it be held down town so you could get to it easier? I am just trying to survey different courses.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course Mr. Marston, the question arises as to what the situation might possibly be on Monday night relative to committee meetings. Mr. McNeese?

MCNEESE: Point of information. What is the duration of this film?

PRESIDENT EGAN: I believe that Mr. Whaley said approximately one hour, Mr. McNeese.

MCNEESE: I would think we could squeeze it in some afternoon, maybe delay our departure from here, get into town an hour later.

PRESIDENT EGAN: At any rate, the Administration Committee will report back to the Convention on Monday morning. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: The Chairman of the Administration Committee wants to get it clear whether the delegation here wishes to use plenary session time for this film. We figured in the evening and also by bringing it up to see how many people would be there, if there is going to be a half dozen here attend there is no sense in going to the trouble.

BARR: It seems that would be a wonderful opportunity on Monday evening since transportation will be available anyway to hold committee meetings. If this film only lasts an hour and then you have an hour and a half for committee meetings, you'd be gaining a lot of time that way.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You have a very fine idea there, Mr. Barr. Is there other discussion? Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: For the information of the delegates, I have seen parts of that picture and I think it is very, very interesting and very important, and if it could be arranged that the delegates could attend and not interfere with their committee meetings (the Committee on Administration might check into that) I think every delegate should have an opportunity to see it and regret it if they don't.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it the general feeling of the delegates that the film should be shown in the evening? Mr. Coghill, you may report back Monday morning. Are there reports of other committee meetings?

AWES: The Committee on Bill of Rights has been considering Proposal 6 which has been referred to it and wishes to report back that certain of the provisions are not within the function of the Bill of Rights Committee. Among these are Sections 8, 10, 11 and 12 which we recommend be referred to the Finance Committee and Section 13 which we recommend be referred to the Resources Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there are no objections these portions of Proposal No. 6 are referred to the committees that Miss Awes, as Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee, recommends. Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Are there reports of other committees? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Your special committee on arrangements for hearings during recess, wishes to call the attention of the delegates to the fact that the committees which were designated to conduct hearings at the larger towns were directed by the resolution which we have adopted to organize to select a chairman and secretary of each, and every committee was directed by that resolution to schedule specific dates and times and places for the hearings, if possible, and announce them to the Convention. We would just like to suggest that as early as possible, those committees should arrange to get together and make those determinations.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to announce again for the Local Government Committee that our public hearing will be immediately following this session.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The public committee hearing of the Local Government Committee will be held immediately following this session. Are there other standing committee reports? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee will meet immediately after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Judiciary Committee will meet immediately after recess. Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Mr. President, the Committee XIII, Direct Legislation, I wish the Committee to meet immediately on adjournment for the purpose of hearing our reports before we submit it. We have it ready.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Collins announces the Committee No. XIII will meet immediately upon recess. Are there other reports? Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I would like to ask the Chairman, Mr. Cross, Committee No. XIV if we are going to have a meeting this morning?

CROSS: There will be no meeting this morning.

HELLENTHAL: Committee No. VI will meet on schedule this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. VI will meet on schedule this afternoon. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, the Committee on Resources will meet on schedule this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Resources Committee will meet as scheduled this afternoon. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Your Committee on Administration will meet at 11 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Administration will meet at 11 a.m. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: A short meeting of Committee No. IV on Ordinances following recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Committee No. IV on Ordinances will meet upon adjournment.

AWES: There will be a meeting of Bill of Rights Committee at 9:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Bill of Rights Committee will meet at 9:30. Are there other committee reports? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I was waiting until after I had heard an announcement of committee meetings to determine whether any committee meetings had been scheduled for tomorrow. I would like to suggest that since there were none scheduled that we have a meeting of the plenary session tomorrow in order to continue with our calendar. As it now appears, we are not going to take up the calendar again until Monday. Undoubtedly many other matters will be crowding for attention by that time. I think every standing committee has set up a target date to report an article on the constitution to us next week at the latest and I am afraid we are going to be hopelessly behind unless we do tear into this calendar. There is no doubt at all that we are going to have to utilize Sundays toward the end of the session in order to finish with our work. I would be much more in favor of utilizing Sundays now so we could get on top of the situation and not be hopelessly bogged down by our work. I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that when we adjourn today we adjourn until some hour that suits the delegates tomorrow afternoon for a plenary session and that we continue with the calendar at that time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention when it adjourns today adjourn until some time tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: On that point, the Executive Committee was going to meet tomorrow and we have lost two of our regular meeting times although we sandwiched in one. It seems to me that in the regular conduct of our business we are going to have to do like all bodies of this type. We are going to have to devote a portion of each day to our plenary session and the rest of it to committee meetings as we would do normally. I see no special reason yet why we should conduct evening meetings and plenary sessions or on Sundays. I think that is a very good time though to fill in the incidental business. At the same time, it gives our stenographic and our clerical staff a chance to get caught up on their work. I personally would have to object to the Sunday meeting, both from the point of view of its need and its expediency and also from the point of view of our previously announced committee meetings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection of Mr. Victor Rivers is heard. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: At what hour had you scheduled that meeting?

V. RIVERS: We have set it up for tomorrow afternoon, probably at 2 o'clock.

SUNDBORG: Would it be practical for you to hold it tomorrow morning?

V. RIVERS: I don't think so, it might be.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Reverend Armstrong?

ARMSTRONG: I think it is completely out of order to suggest that we have any meetings on Sunday morning. I will go along with other things in the form of a compromise to my own feelings about it. But I object to our even considering Sunday morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: The Finance Committee has a meeting scheduled from 12:00 until 3:00 tomorrow afternoon. It was not announced because the members are aware of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, objection is heard. There is nothing before us at this time. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, Mr. Sundborg tentatively had scheduled a meeting of the Style and Drafting Committee yesterday to receive a report from Mr. Elliott, and the influx of visitors kind of destroyed that proposition, and I just wanted to ask if he plans to have it today.

SUNDBORG: I would certainly be glad to have it today, but the schedule which we are working on does not provide any time on which we can meet without conflicting with meetings.

HERMANN: What about the lunch hour?

SUNDBORG: Oh, the lunch hour? Yes, well then, I would like to announce a meeting of the Style and Drafting Committee --

MCLAUGHLIN: If I may, Mr. Sundborg. I believe Mr. Elliott has a prior commitment as to many members of the Style and Drafting.

SUNDBORG: May I ask, Mr. President, I wonder if I could have a recess of several minutes to get together with the members of Style and Drafting Committee to determine when we can have a meeting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to announce particularly for the benefit of the out-of-town visitors that everyone is -- we are pleased to have any of you attend the committee meetings at any time you choose during the morning or during the day. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, Committee No. III, Style and Drafting, will meet at 12:15 Monday in the cafeteria special lunch room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Style and Drafting will meet at 12:15 Monday in the lunch room upstairs. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I request the Chair to announce to the visitors, also, that the meeting of the Local Government Committee is a public hearing today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The meeting that will be held immediately upon adjournment by the Local Government Committee is not just a committee meeting, it is a public hearing and anyone who has any testimony they would like to present before that hearing we will be glad to have them do so. Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Where is that meeting going to be held?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair assumes in the gallery. Is that right, Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: In the gallery.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other reports? Mr. Walsh?

WALSH: Could I make a brief statement? Two days ago when this Convention decided to recess from the 19th of this month to the 3rd, I notified the Chief Clerk that I did not intend to go home to Nome during the recess but by choice I stayed here and will spend Christmas here, as we've done before, and as I would have done had I not been a member of the Convention. I also stated to the Chief Clerk that I was not entitled, nor would I accept, per diem because it is of my own volition to remain here. It was suggested to me this morning that I should make that statement from the floor, and I am now making that statement, that I am not in my opinion, entitled to per diem and will not accept per diem during the recess period because I am staying in Fairbanks by choice and not because I am a member of the Convention.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you Mr. Walsh. The Chief Clerk will so note. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I did not know that was necessary, but in order to be consistent, and inasmuch as I voted against Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the resolution of Mr. Coghill's Committee, while I will attend the committee hearings in Juneau that I have been assigned to, I don't desire my transportation home or my per diem.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will note Mr. Robertson's comment.

COGHILL: For clarification the Chief Clerk will convey that information on to the payroll clerk so she will keep consistent on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, she will. Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: Since I will not be going to Juneau nor will I be remaining in Fairbanks, I shall not be entitled to either transportation or per diem.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will note Mrs. Nordale's comments. The Chair would like to state at this time for the benefit of all the delegates that the President will receive verbatim from the Assistant Attorney General the opinion as it has been written by him in Juneau. Owing to the fact that he could not get it on the plane evidently, he is going to give that opinion over the phone. It is going to be taken in shorthand. The actual written opinion will arrive later, so everyone will be aware that we will have the written opinion relative to the recess on hand. Are there any motions or resolutions to be presented to the Convention? Is there any other unfinished business? Is there any business to come before the Convention at this time? Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, just as a matter of correcting the record, I ask Mr. Sundborg's indulgence on a correction which he made of a statement of mine two days ago in the record. I stated that there were 22 state constitutions which did not specify the location of the capital. And Mr. Sundborg immediately informed me that I was in error on that. I have since checked back and have been advised by our consultants that 22 original constitutions did not specify the location of the capital but that as a result of political expediency or other circumstances, when constitutions were revised, the location of the capital was placed in it. so Mr. Sundborg and I are substantially correct in both of our statements.

SUNDBORG: I too would like this opportunity to correct a statement that I made during the heat of debate several days ago. I said there were only eight constitutions which were silent on the location of the capital. I have since checked my sources and I find that there are nine state constitutions which are silent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will entertain a motion for adjournment. Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, on behalf of Delegate Ada B. Wien, I move that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock on Monday.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves on the behalf of Mrs. Wien that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday and asks unanimous consent. Is there objection? If there is no objection it is so ordered and the Convention stands adjourned.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 12, 1955

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Reverend Armstrong, will you give our daily invocation.

REVEREND ARMSTRONG: Our Father, we come to Thee asking for Thy divine help and guidance. Create within us clean hearts, renew within us right spirits, cause us to devote all of our energy to the building of a constitution that will insure right, peace, and harmony within the State of Alaska. Teach us humbly to rely upon Thee for wisdom in each step of our way. For this we ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: Two absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: Mr. President, after reading the journal for the 31st day I would like to make the following corrections PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight, reporting for the special Committee to read the journal, would like to make the following corrections for the journal for the 31st day.

KNIGHT: In the paragraph beginning "A letter from", add the word "Mr." on page 1. On page 4, paragraph beginning with "Mr. McLaughlin" on the second line, delete the word "from" and add thereto the word "of". Same page, beginning with the paragraph "After recess", on the third line, add "S.L.A. 1955" after "46". On page 5, paragraph beginning with "Mr. Riley", the word "rules" should be changed to "ruled". Those are all the corrections, Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent that the journal be approved as read.

HERMANN: I object for a moment, Mr. President. On page 3, in the second paragraph, as I recall the minutes, that should be "both dates inclusive". The word "inclusive" has been left out after "dates".

CHIEF CLERK: No, that was in, Mrs. Hermann, and the words that were added were "both dates". I don't have it right here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then on the original resolution the word "inclusive" was there but they added the words, "both dates"?

HERMANN: Then on page 4, the second paragraph, second line says "Paragraph 3 in the resolve be amended. Should that not be resolution"?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would indicate more or less the title.

CHIEF CLERK: It was the resolve clause that was amended. That is the only way you can designate what was amended, by looking back.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Knight's request? Mr. Knight asks unanimous consent that the journal for the 31st Convention day, with the proposed amendments offered by the special Committee to read the journal, be approved by the Convention. Is there objection? Hearing no objection it is so ordered. Are there any petitions, memorials, or communications from outside the Convention?

CHIEF CLERK: A letter from the Republican Women's Club of Anchorage, opposing the Tennessee Plan.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the letter will be referred to the Committee on Ordinances, No. IV.

CHIEF CLERK: A letter from Walter J. Hickel. (Clerk read letter inviting the delegates to attend the opening of the Fairbanks Traveler's Inn, December 17 at 1:30 p.m.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The delegates will attempt to remember that date and the letter will be filed. Are there other communications?

CHIEF CLERK: I have none.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Collins?

COLLINS: Mr. President, Committee on Amendment, No. XIII, submits Committee Report No. 3 for first reading.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will proceed with the first reading of Proposal No. 3.

CHIEF CLERK: "Committee Proposal No. 3, introduced by the Committee on Direct Legislation, Amendment and Revision, INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM AND RECALL, AMENDMENT AND REVISION."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Rules Committee for placement on the calendar. Are there other reports of standing committees? If not, are there reports of special committees or select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President, I think this comes in here. It is pertaining to the arrangements for hearing during recess. I have had communications from my particular group in Spenard and they do not feel that it is necessary for me to call a meeting --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to taking up this question at this time? If not, proceed Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: They do not think it necessary for me to call a meeting with them. They have admonished this institution to forget sectionalism and not let it creep in, and they expect to find this constitution, yet written by mankind, one that is acceptable to the people as a whole. They are watching these deliberations very carefully, and they want a constitution built for the good of all, with favoritism toward none. That is the position they took on it and I am carrying that message to you. That comes from my group in Spenard. I will not hold meetings there and therefore I will not be entitled to any compensation for travel or per diem or compensation while I am away. I am so notifying the Finance Committee of that now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will make a note of that fact that he will not accept his per diem or any other compensation during the recess. Are there any motions or resolutions? Is there any unfinished business? Under unfinished business the Chair might state that with regard to the proposed Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment, the Chair desires to appoint Mrs. Sweeney, Mr. Ralph Rivers and Mr. Yule Kilcher to serve as the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment. Is there any other unfinished business to come before the Convention? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I don't know whether it is in order at this time but Saturday we discussed the possibility of seeing the films. one from the Alaska Visitor's Association and one from the Corps of Engineers. We have arranged for that at the pleasure of the Convention. It will be held in the Mines Auditorium at 7 p.m. this evening. I hope that does not conflict with any committee meetings or hearings and if there is a majority of the Convention that wants to see these films, it will go on as scheduled. However, if the majority of the Convention feels they don't want them, there is no sense in bothering the Mines organization. I think we should have a show of hands on how many want to see this particular two-feature film.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, before we have a show of hands, I would like to suggest that since we have a good deal of business on hand and that we work straight through to 6 o'clock, eat dinner in the cafeteria and go from there to see the film.

That is just a suggestion but I think we would have more who would be willing to stay over and see the film that way than we would have if they had to come back.

HINCKEL: Along the same lines, may I suggest we work to 7 o'clock, go to the show, and eat afterwards.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: Mr. President, relative to the discussion on films, I wish to be permitted to read a very brief comment, one from Mr. Bartlett, also one from Dr. Patty and one from Governor Heintzleman, very brief. I will quote just the meat of it. "These pictures are truly authentic. They depict the real Alaska of the far North. The photography is simply beautiful. I hope the pictures may be widely shown to promote a better understanding of the real Arctic." Signed E. L. Bartlett, Alaska Delegate to United States Congress. And from Dr. Patty, "The photography and narrations are excellent. It was a relief to find the restraint and factual way in which you presented your subjects. These will be excellent for showing in schools." Signed Dr. Patty, President, University of Alaska. And from Governor Heintzleman, "I have viewed many pictures of conditions in Northern Alaska and the life of the Eskimos there, but I was never more satisfied with any presentation than with these. You have caught the spirit of the North country." Signed B. Frank Heintzleman, Governor of Alaska. I thought it would be well for the members to know that these have been endorsed by those men whom I have just read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What seems to be the desire of the Chairman of the Committee on Administration? Mr. McNeese?

MCNEESE: In line with what we have heard here this morning, I would like to move that we stay organized for a group until 6 o'clock tonight and that the group as a whole see these two pictures at 7 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Along this same line, I would like to ask the consent to be excused at 3:30 this afternoon on the grounds that I have some very urgent personal business to attend to before 5 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Smith, you may be excused at 3:30 this afternoon. Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: Point of information? Is it contemplated that this session will last all day today and if we attend this showing this evening, there will be no committee meetings at all today?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would be the assumption if this --

NERLAND: It occurs to me our time is drawing short before we recess for the hearings and I know the Finance Committee had planned a meeting for this evening, assuming that we would not have time during the day, and perhaps there are going to be other committees pressed too, to get their committee proposals in before our recess time, which I consider quite essential.

MCNEES: By that motion I did not mean that we should stay in plenary session, of course, we would stay about for the conduct of Convention business.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees, do you think it might be well if, as Mr. Coghill first suggested, before we put any motion to ask those members who feel they will be present at this film showing to raise their hands?

MCNEES: I will withhold the motion for the moment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will those delegates who feel they will be present to see the showing of the films, please raise their hands. Mr. Barr?

BARR: Before I vote on that I would like to know for sure if I have a committee meeting tonight for this reason. I would not want to come back out here especially for the show, but if I am going to have a committee meeting afterwards, I will come out early and take in the show. I wonder how many committee meetings are planned.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other committees that plan meetings for tonight? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: The Executive Committee will have a meeting at 3 o'clock if we can all get together. I think that does not conflict with most of our members.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, the Resources Committee will also hold a meeting if time is available. We will hold it on schedule if the plenary session allows. Otherwise, any time that it is possible to hold one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Resources Committee will meet as soon as possible, on schedule if the plenary session allows. Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, your Local Government Committee would like to have a meeting sometime this afternoon, at its regular time or at sometime at least.

AWES: The Bill of Rights Committee would also like to meet, if possible.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Bill of Rights Committee would like to meet. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: I think if we break up in committee meetings, it will be the usual rule that those who do not have committee meetings will go back to town. I can't vote on this until I know whether I am going to have to come back out here or whether I am going to stay. I would like to see the pictures, but whether or not I can come back out, I don't know. Now, I think my original suggestion was that we continue in plenary session until time to adjourn today and then go ahead with the hearing and after that hold committee meetings if they want to, but I think I would have to know which we are going to do before I could vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps then you would rather find out how long we are going to be here before you put the question as to whether you want to stay and see the film. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, it might be well to bring up the thought that possibly we could adjourn our plenary session this morning early and adjourn until 3 o'clock this afternoon and take up plenary work until this afternoon, giving a chance for most of the committees a chance to get together. It is just a suggestion if that would clear up the point of whether you're going to be here or not when the showing convenes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state that we should remember we have a committee proposal to work on and it is very hard to tell, subject to the wishes of the body, just when we could recess. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, in line with the motion, I think it is appropriate to say that in my opinion and a number of others that I have talked to, we should start dividing work up into regular orders of business, both plenary and committee work, we have gotten through the bulk of the work which has been practically all committee work and it was my intention and thought that I would move for a recess about 12:30 today, even though we had an order of business, and ask for recess until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and in that way we would then have our afternoon free for committee meetings. If we are going to have something on our calendar from now on, it seems we should divide and give an equal portion of our time to the two different phases that we are facing, the plenary work and committee work. It was my thought that I would at 12:30 ask for an adjournment until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: I don't agree that we can divide the time equally between committees and plenary sessions. I think the committees have had their time, and if they are not through, they should find extra time and not interfere with work on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees, what was the subject matter of your motion? Would you state your motion again.

MCNEES: The motion originally was that we continue to conduct whatever business in a Convention way that we had before us whether plenary sessions or committee meetings, but hold the entire group here through the dinner hour for the showing at 7 o'clock. My understanding was that the showing of this film will not take too long.

COGHILL: No, it is about an hour in length -- the Alaska Visitors and then we have two short thirty-minute films that can be shown but the Alaska Visitors film this is the last night we can possibly obtain the Alaska Visitors film. It is leaving tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would question whether a motion could bind all the members to be sure and stay here to see the film.

MCNEES: I will withdraw the motion.

WALSH: Again I might state I have seen those films, a great part of them, and I think they are very interesting and important. I don't mean to say that we should leave any regular order of business for it, but if the members could arrange so that we could see those at 7 o'clock and for one hour I think they are very important. I realize too, that we have before us business since Saturday, the Judiciary recommended proposal, and I think that time could be given to the continuation of that today. It probably would make some progress. That is a very important and in my opinion, an excellent proposal, and I would like to see the Convention put in some time on that. That is my opinion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the Chair will just state that it is planned to have the films at 7 o'clock this evening in the Mines Building, and all those delegates who so desire can attend the showing of those films at that time. Is there any other business to come before the Convention? If not, we will proceed with the second reading of the Committee Proposal No. 2. We have before us an amendment to a motion by Mr. Cooper, as the Chair recalls. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: I am out of order then because I have withdrawn a motion and I thought I was in order by presenting it now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel, had you withdrawn a motion with the understanding that you would be able to present it later, but was it not that this particular thing was before us at that time the reason you held your motion? Was that with relation to this committee proposal?

HINCKEL: I am out of order. I will wait.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk please read the proposed amendment to the motion. Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Since Friday I met with the Judiciary Committee and during the meeting the conversation was very enlightening, and all but, in effect the Committee has taken a pat stand on their Section No. 7, and I would like to withdraw my original motion with the consent of my second, and in effect the only amendment that I could offer at this time would be that after the word "nomination" the last word in Section 7 would be "and possess such additional qualifications as the legislature may prescribe." I don't really believe my amendment now would have any meat whatsoever. As I understand, something not specifically spoken of in the constitution can be accomplished at a later date, such as "the legislature requiring additional qualifications." Am I correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper, now your present amendment to the motion that you originally introduced would set up or give this power to the advisory council, isn't that right, or is that correct?

COOPER: I withdrew that. I ask with the consent of my second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You would like to withdraw the amendment to your original motion?

COOPER: I would have to take it in that order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Cooper's withdrawing the amendment to his original motion? If not, with the consent of the second, the amendment to the original motion by Mr. Cooper is ordered withdrawn.

COOPER: Now, Mr. President, I would like to withdraw the original motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper asks unanimous consent that he be allowed to withdraw his original motion which would strike, after the word "state" on line 2, page 3 --

CHIEF CLERK: No, it was a substitution, it was to strike Section 7 and to put in a new Section 7.

COOPER: The original motion was to strike the entire Section 7 and insert the amendment I had written.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Cooper's withdrawing that motion? Hearing no objection the motion is ordered withdrawn.

COOPER: Mr. President, I do want it made clear to me that if the constitution does not speak on the subject that that subject then is authorized in essence.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper, if there is no objection the Chair will declare a one-minute recess and perhaps the Rules Committee or other members can answer that exactly. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Having withdrawn my other amendment, I wish at this time to offer an amendment which is my honest feeling that I was trying to accomplish last Friday. I would like to present this amendment and ask for unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper, do you have your amendment prepared to offer to the Chief Clerk at this time?

COOPER: Yes, I do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to ask that all delegates please speak up as the gallery is pretty well filled and it is very hard for the delegates to be heard in the gallery.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, who is in the gallery?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, the Chair understands that there are some 50 students of the senior class of the Fairbanks High School along with several of the faculty, and we are very happy to have you with us this morning. The Chief Clerk will read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3. line 2, after the word 'state' delete the rest of the section and substitute the following: 'and possess such other qualifications as may be prescribed by law.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the delegates? Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: I ask unanimous consent to that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper asks unanimous consent that the proposed amendment be adopted.

JOHNSON: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White seconds the motion. The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I helped George draft this clause for the purpose of achieving what he had in mind. Many of the members of the Rules Committee and of the Judiciary met with the Board of Governors of the Bar Association Saturday noon, and the members of the Board of Governors had expressed the thought that we could very well dispense with that residence requirement and that membership of the Alaska Bar for five whole years stating that additional flexibility was better, and the Board of Governors did not naturally, would not, object to adding some qualifications by the legislature. It is my thought though that if you are going to lay down an eligibility qualification that the legislature may not change that unless we give the legislature authority to do so. Now the effect of the present proposed amendment would be that to be eligible to be a justice of the supreme court or a judge of the superior court you must be a member of the Alaska Bar and possess such other qualifications as the legislature may prescribe. That is the effect of the present amendment, and to get this thing on the way I will trust the legislature as to whether they want to put three years or five years or any other period or else leave it the way it is, so I am going to support Mr. Cooper's amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment, feeling that the constitution has no right to restrict, and therefore I would vote in favor of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

BARR: I spoke on this before. I can only repeat myself, but I would like to say that the principal aim of the constitution is to protect the rights of the people, and the attorneys here have all said that a justice or a judge should have a wide experience in law, not just have had experience as a prosecutor or a corporation attorney or something of that sort, but have wide experience. The people of Alaska who might be judged by that court also will have a right to demand that he have a wide experience and not only in the law but be thoroughly familiar with our conditions in Alaska, since they are rather peculiar to those of the states. It is the duty of we here to see that it is written in the constitution because it is the constitution's purpose to preserve the rights of the people, and this would do it if there was a five-year residence requirement in the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, I generally would agree with Mr. Barr's ideas about protecting the rights of the people. Requirements might seem in order if we did not have this new situation where a board consisting of a majority of lawyers that are also interested in the people's rights. They are appointed by people who are interested in the people's rights. Therefore, it has practically full powers to nominate the right kind of people, and furthermore we have the legislature, who is mainly interested in protecting the people's rights to establish further qualifications if they choose, and I think it is satisfactory to protect the people's rights and I am in favor of Mr. Cooper's amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, I have to further explain myself again, that that is exactly, that is the protection of the people's rights was what I was trying to accomplish and what I have accomplished by this amendment. The people have no choice originally in the appointment or in the nomination for judges, but through the people's representatives, their legislators, they will have the right to insist on additional qualifications if the people so desire. That was exactly the entire essence of my amendment, in that the qualifications can be increased if the people so desire.

MARSTON: Mr. President, may I have the Cooper amendment read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk please read the amendment by Mr. Cooper.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3, line 2, after the word 'state' delete the rest of the section and substitute the following: 'and possess such other qualifications as may be prescribed by law.'"

MARSTON: I vote for the Cooper resolution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I would like to call attention to the fact that at the last plenary session when this section was before us the precise question was also considered and voted on twice. In other words, the striking of everything in Section 7 after the word "state" in line 2 on page 3, that proposal came before us twice at the last plenary session and was rejected by the Convention. The only new part of this proposal is the addition of the wording after the word "state" which is, "and possess such other qualifications as the legislature may prescribe. Now that part of the amendment or proposed amendment is new. I contend that the first part of the amendment has already been acted on twice and is not proper and should be rejected on that basis. However, I would like to point out that Saturday the Judicial Committee had a meeting at which Mr. Cooper attended, and at that meeting Mr. Cooper gave us the understanding and the impression that all he wanted to do was to add the phraseology, and possess such additional qualifications as the legislature may prescribe" to the wording already contained in Section 7, without any deletions, except for deleting the period and inserting a semicolon after the word "nomination". That was the understanding of the Judiciary Committee and so far as I know the Committee approved of that particular change. But now, presumably over the weekend, he has changed his mind and now wants to strike out all of the words which I believe have already been passed on twice and I think this five-year requirement certainly is not an unreasonable safeguard to put in the article, and it has been passed on, certainly unanimously, by the entire Judiciary Committee, and I am not aware that the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association are necessarily opposed to it, as Mr. Ralph Rivers indicated, because I attended the meeting yesterday afternoon of the Judiciary Committee, and the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association, and so far as I know nothing was said at that time to indicate that the Bar Association wanted this five-year requirement stricken from the constitution. They did raise questions about whether or not there would be available manpower. However, they felt that the authority given to the judicial council was broad enough in the entire article to give or to provide for a good and independent judiciary when the time comes. I believe that the amendment is out of order and I certainly am opposed to it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would have to state at this point that in the opinion of the Chair the amendment is in order. There is something new that entirely changes the original idea, so the Chair would have to hold that the amendment is in order.

R. RIVERS: I was going to ask for the privilege of the floor for just a moment. It was to the effect that Mr. Clasby, Secretary of the Board of Governors, said that they approved this article as a whole but were going to make some minor suggestions, and one of the suggestions that they were going to make was that we might modify this five-year business. Then he went on to say, "We're short of manpower and maybe we can get a good judge elsewhere." Now they did not say to what extent they might want it modified, but they distinctly left the impression we did not need that five-year residence in there. I don't think Mr. Johnson was trying to impair my integrity. Perhaps he and I just did not hear it the same way.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I will have to take issue with Mr. Rivers on that. We had a meeting of the Judiciary Committee with the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association. I don't know whether Mr. Rivers was there last night, and they have withdrawn all objections to the bill. There was only one man who voiced objection. That was Mr. Clasby, the Secretary, and that was personal objection, not the Board of Governors. They said to leave it as it is, and as far as the manpower condition might exist of getting six or nine judges, if they had to pick them all at one time, that it should be better to leave this bill exactly the way it is now, except at the end, after the word "nomination" , then "possess such other qualifications as the legislature may prescribe or which may be provided by law." So there is nothing from the Board of Governors here but what they are in favor of it. They spoke very highly of it yesterday. They said to leave it go the way it is. You don't see them here objecting to it, do you? That was the result of the meeting yesterday.

R. RIVERS: I refer to a luncheon meeting on Saturday. If they had the following meeting I must have overlooked it, but I do refer to a luncheon meeting on Saturday.

TAYLOR: They raised some very minor objections, but the other members said those were taken care of in the bill itself. I don't think they had time to go over it fully.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, to clarify a very minor tempest in a teapot, Mr. Johnson, for his information Mr. Cooper asked me this morning whether or not he in substance were bound by his conversations with the Judiciary Committee on Saturday, and I assured him, Mr. Johnson, that if he felt in good conscience that he had in substance agreed to something that he now regretted, I felt sure the Judiciary Committee did not feel it was a commitment of sorts. It was on my assurance, Mr. Johnson, that he changed his mind and submitted a new amendment. That is in justification of Mr. Cooper's attitude.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: May I ask Mr. Taylor a question. Mr. Taylor, if the proposed amendment is defeated, do you plan to propose an amendment adding the words, "and subject to such further eligibility qualifications as the legislature may prescribe", following the present Section 7?

TAYLOR: Yes. If this motion carries, which I hope it does not, I would offer that amendment.

HELLENTHAL: If it is defeated, what do you plan to do, offer this amendment?

TAYLOR: No, I would not offer that amendment for the reason that I am on this Committee, and I bound myself to go for this bill as it is. It might be if the amendment is offered I might support it, but I am not going to offer any amendment to change the nature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: I am not speaking from a lawyer's standpoint (I'll let them take care of that but just from the protection of the average citizen, I believe in the supreme court justice much like we have the governor. If we have a five-year residence requirement, it is no requirement to a position of that statute in the State of Alaska. By five years the people will know what they are getting for supreme court judges. Just like by five years residence, we will know what we will be getting for governor. I believe in the five-year requirement. It gives the people a chance to know who they are receiving for the top offices of the state. For that reason I am going to go along with the five-year residence requirement.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: I oppose Mr. Cooper's amendment, that part of it which abolishes the five-year residence requirement. I have seen many times in the small towns where newcomers come to town with a good gift of gab and a great big smile and they win a lot of friends immediately and a few months afterwards they have just as many enemies. Therefore, I feel that we should have the entire five-year residence requirement so that we really know what people are under stress and under pressure. Let me ask you also, remind the delegates that this constitution for the great State of Missouri, which was revised and adopted in 1945, the residence requirement was said last week were nine years in addition to being 15 years a citizen of the United States. If it is good enough for the State of Missouri and other states that have adopted recent constitutions, it certainly should be good enough for us. Another matter I want to bring up with reference to the late Judge Dimond. What were the reasons for him being loved by every one, it was the fact that he was a long-time resident here in the Territory. He worked with the miners out in the hills in the winter time and understood the common man's problems. He was not only a humane judge but learned in the law, and I wish you people would remember that, that residence means something, and therefore I oppose Mr. Cooper's motion for that reason.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, the last time this was discussed on the floor I was in substance probably opposed to the amendment offered by Mr. Cooper or an amendment of this type. However, in talking with other attorneys over the weekend who are not members of the Judiciary Committee here, it has changed my thinking, and I am wholeheartedly in favor of the amendment as offered by Mr. Cooper and for several reasons. The bill, as I see it in going all the way through, is set up so it leaves no possible control by the legislature whatsoever. It is entirely a piece of legislation in itself. It purports to have a closed corporation, so to speak, in my opinion. Now if the judiciary council or the Judiciary Committee believes so strongly in the qualifications of the judiciary council, as it is going to be set up, then there should be no worry on their part or the part of anyone in this Convention of having this amendment adopted, because this supreme judicial council will without question appoint the right man, and if they feel that he should have five years residence in the Territory and five-years practice in the Territory, surely this council, also set up by the Judiciary Committee, is not going to go off the track. If they are, there is something wrong with the judicial council system. Now conditions may change over a course of years, or if the matter is left to the legislature they may see a necessity for rather than five years, of requiring ten years here. I think it certainly should, some parts of this bill at least, should be left to the discretion of the legislature. As an attorney I probably should be in favor of a closed shop corporation, but for the reasons I have stated, I believe no harm can be done, in fact I believe the bill will be greatly improved, and certainly it would be in my opinion, to adopt the amendment as offered by Mr. Cooper.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I voted against the amendment to delete the five-year residence the other day. I am going to vote for Mr. Cooper's amendment because something new which has been added, in my mind, strengthens it to the point where I can support it. I think one of the fundamental things that this body is going to have to do, whether they like it or not, is to develop faith and trust in the future legislatures of Alaska. Now I have on occasion criticized the legislature, and I reserve the right to do it again, but nevertheless, it is a very important instrumentality of government. And it is the only instrumentality of government that is sufficiently flexible to correct conditions that may change with the passing years, and for one I am not insisting that we have five years of residence if the amendment is in that will permit the legislature to correct that if the need for it ever arises. I am going to support Mr. Cooper's amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, may I ask the Clerk to read the portion which is to be added under Mr. Cooper's amendment?

CHIEF CLERK: "and possess such other qualifications as may be prescribed by law."

DAVIS: May I direct a question to Mr. Cooper? Mr. Cooper, I would ask as to whether you would make any objection to substituting the word "additional" for the word "other"?

COOPER: I have no objection.

DAVIS: I would like to offer an amendment to Mr. Cooper's proposed amendment to substitute the word "additional" for the word "other", and I ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Unanimous consent is asked that the word "additional" be substituted for the word "other" in Mr. Cooper's proposed amendment. Is there objection? Hearing no objection the change is ordered made. Now we have the original amendment. Mr. Stewart?

STEWART: As a nonlawyer, I would like to say that I have been convinced now that with the legislature having the say as to the qualifications of the Chief Justice, I am going to support the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I am going to restate my position of the other day that I think that every man in high office in the Territory, whether it be on the judiciary or the executive, wherever he may be, where he is establishing policy and handling the affairs of the Alaskans, should have a close acquaintance with Alaska. I believe that the requirement of the registration should stay in. I can also see that unless you have, as we come into the new status of statehood, there is going to be a transitory period. In that transitory period, under this amendment, the only requirement you will have for your chief justice on down will be admission to the Alaska bar. Now it's nice to say that the judicial council will make no mistakes but I am sure that there is nobody that has ever been assembled that won't make mistakes. I think it is a necessary safeguard that we leave in the five years of practice and the five years of residence. I don't agree with this idea of opening the gates wide open. As far as any closed shop goes, it is not a closed shop to say that a man shall not only have an acquaintance with the law in his business but he shall also have an acquaintance with the people and the country he is doing business with and doing business for. It seems to me utterly ridiculous to pass this on to the legislature in this particular form, in this particular instance. I notice that practically none of the other states have done it. If they had any good reason, I think they had. We have also a good reason to retain the five years, because I am sure as I stand here, in the transitory provisions the legislature will be piled high with work. They are not going to take up the minor qualifications of judges at that time. You are going to get a chief justice, and all the first appointments to the court will come in with the only requirement being they will be admitted to the bar and to my way of thinking that is not adequate.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Speaking for the first time on this proposal and being a nonattorney, I go along with Mr. Rivers on his statement and would like to bring that further in opposing this. You are in fact placing the responsibility on the legislature to encroach upon a division of government, which is the judicial. Also, you will note that in past years in the legislature, if you are going to throw the qualifications of judges into the legislative hands that you are going to encroach upon the people being willing to take responsibility to that effect, the same way as has been brought about by board members in our Territorial form of government. Therefore, I am opposed to the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to speak in favor of this amendment. I feel that the requirements should be left flexible and that we will have protection in the judicial council. I have been a long resident of the Territory and I have grown to look at it from the attitude of residence requirements from our officials, but I do think in this case I would be in favor of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson:

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I am obliged to oppose this proposed amendment. In my opinion this is not setting up a closed corporation. It is a provision particularly for the protection of the people of Alaska because they get a good judiciary. I would have no objection to adding to the present Section 7, the last clause of Mr. Cooper's proposed amendment, "and possess such other qualifications as may be prescribed by law." But I think we ought to have the minimum limitations to start out with, and furthermore, I think we have the manpower among the men who are practicing attorneys in Alaska to obtain the necessary judgeships and justices as we enter statehood, and I hope the amendment is voted down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I wish to speak in favor of the amendment for this reason. A statement just recently made on the floor here stated that there were sufficient qualified men in the legal profession in the Territory at the present time to cover the jobs that would be open when we become a state. Now that is just a polite way of inferring possibly that a certain amount of protection should be given to the men who are in the Territory in the legal profession. The point I wish to make is this there are going to be so many small items which will come up before this final document is completed, Mr. President, that the antistatehood crowd will be able to go to the members of Congress and say, "They are building a fence around themselves." They will have 25 or 30 small items which from the standpoint of publicity and personal opinion, they can sway members of Congress and say, "Who do those Alaskans think they are, building a fence around themselves and they want to get into the Union of the United States." We have an end product to sell. We had better make that pretty liberal if we are going to get into the Union.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Robertson, if this amendment is defeated, will you propose an amendment adding the words, "and subject to such further qualifications as the legislature may prescribe" to the present Section 7?

BUCKALEW: Point of order. I think it is out of order to ask a man if he is going to offer an amendment if this passes, and ask somebody else if that is PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will have to hold that your point of order is well taken in that it doesn't have anything to do with this amendment before us right now.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, if I felt that the members of the Judiciary Committee would offer the amendment that I speak of, to the present Section 7, I would then vote against Mr. Cooper's amendment. However, until those assurances are forthcoming, I shall vote for Mr. Cooper's amendment. Now, Mr. Coghill made a mention that the Cooper amendment, he said would encroach upon the prerogatives of the judiciary. Well, I cannot see that in the light of Section 8. The Judiciary Committee in Section 8, as far as judges of other courts are concerned, is perfectly willing to leave their qualifications to the legislature. So if Mr. Coghill is consistent, Section 8 would have to be amended and rewritten completely. So I see nothing wrong in allowing the legislature to prescribe the qualifications. However, I do think it would be preferable if the residence requirement were left in as a minimum and then the legislature would take up from there. But until I have assurances from the Judiciary Committee I shall support this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I feel impelled to support Mr. Robertson and Mr. Rivers in speaking against the proposed amendment. I, too, would go along with the idea that after the word "nominations" if we added in that the additional qualifications by the legislature could be set up. I feel the little fence building by Alaskans is not a bad idea, since primarily we are using airplanes these days and are able to get over fences. Also, I believe the proponents of this thing are presupposing that we are going to have statehood in the next 15 minutes. I like to view that idea kindly but I am afraid it is not going to be the case. There are a good many qualified attorneys, young attorneys here in Alaska who will have had more probably than ample residence requirements to be joining in such a thing as this by the time we get to be a state and we shouldn't overlook that fact. I am compelled to vote against this proposed amendment, but if it were later on added in after the word "nominations ", I would be inclined to support it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, first of all I would like to say that if I in any way impuned Mr. Ralph Rivers' integrity, I apologize. I had no such intention. In answer to what Mr. Hilscher has said about going to Congress with a constitution that provides little fences, I would like to point out that the constitution of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, which has already been approved by the Congress, makes the residence requirement for judges ten years, "and they shall have been admitted to practice law in Puerto Rico at least ten years prior to this appointment and shall have resided in Puerto Rico at least five years immediately prior thereto." That was the type of fence that was built in Puerto Rico and which was subsequently approved by the Congress. I don't see that that is any argument against the amendment. I go along with Mr. Robertson, Mr. McCutcheon and Mr. Victor Rivers in their idea that the language sought to be added after striking out the five-year requirement, could well be added to the section as it is now, and I would have no objection to that and I would be willing to offer such an amendment if this proposal is defeated.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, I would like to make only the statement that the comparison of Alaska with Puerto Rico is a most unhappy one. For one thing Puerto Rico is a Commonwealth. If some of them had their way they would be entirely independent. They have a language of their own, they are feeling like a minority nationality, they are an overpopulated small island. A lot of them are leaving their country, entirely the reverse situation of Alaska. We are a country that is vast and we are absorbing population yet, so from this point of view I think that we could not possibly choose an unlikelier comparison than the one with Puerto Rico. Again I reiterate that I still think that the amendment should be supported.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, it is very true that Puerto Rico is far different than Alaska, but Congress's feeling on this subject is probably the same in both cases, and I would like to point out here that in the debate on the floor we have been for and against two different things in this amendment. One is the residence requirement and the other is whether or not the legislature should have some say in this matter of appointment. Now I believe that we should leave the residence requirement in, as I have stated before. Another reason that I have not stated is that since we have our choice of appointing these judges or electing them, and we have chosen not to elect them for very good reasons, it seems that we should at least then give the people a chance to know who is going to be the judge. If he has been residing here for five years or practicing law for five years, at least they're acquainted with him or heard of him and they have some chance to object, but not so if he comes in from the outside as a stranger. If this amendment fails and if someone else does not put in a like amendment, I am prepared to put in an amendment incorporating Mr. Cooper's words regarding the legislature but placing them after the words in the third line, "for at least five years" and striking, "next preceding their respective nominations". I don't think they should be required to live here five years just immediately before their nomination because such a man might be elected to Congress and want to come back.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, several speakers have referred to this provision as it now stands as one designed to protect the people of the state and have attacked this proposed amendment as being one that would remove the protection from the people. I disagree completely with that kind of an approach. I am sure that the legislature would put in requirements that would insure protection of the people of Alaska but at the same time, by leaving it to the legislature, we would also insure that it would be flexible enough to assure that we would get good judges in Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor had been trying to get the floor. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: There has been some objection voiced here as to citing Puerto Rico as an example of building a fence around themselves. Now Mr. Kilcher says we should not pay any attention to that example because they speak a different language, they are a different class of people, they are on a little island. I would like to call Mr. Kilcher's attention to the fact that Hawaii, who has called their convention and have a constitution, and we have referred to it a good many times here, they have the ten-year residence and practice provision for the judges of Hawaii. Now nobody has spoken out against the Hawaii Constitution. The Congress has not said to them they cannot have statehood because they have got a ten-year residence and practice for judges. It is the accepted thing all over the United States. The various constitutions that have been drawn or revised within the past ten or twelve years, have all got the residence requirement up to 15 years. I don't think we are letting the bars down in this thing whatsoever, and as I said, we had the meeting the other day with a number of people who were objecting to this, Mr. Cooper amongst them, and at that time the Judiciary Committee agreed with those men that after the word "nomination" at the end of the paragraph we would insert a semicolon and, "provided however that the legislature may prescribe other qualifications" and leave the paragraph as it was. Well, we had agreed that the members of the Committee would not make any changes but we would support that amendment, and I will support that amendment if it is put at the end of the present paragraph. Mr. Johnson says he will do it. Also, coming back to this fact of the striking of this five-year residence and five-year practice provision here, I think that is brought about by certain elements in Alaska wanting some outside judges. Now, there is only one man who spoke on the Board of Governors for that. That is a man who is a big corporation attorney, and he is the one who wants to get the judges from outside. Is it not much better that we have judges from lawyers in Alaska? We know them, we have a chance to pass on their qualifications and if they have a five-year residence and a five-year practice, we know it. But what would we know about a man's ability, his honesty and integrity if he is dragged in here from the outside, perhaps for a particular purpose? I feel we should select them from the people that we know. I think we should leave this in here.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Convention will stand at recess for one moment. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chief Clerk will please read the proposed amendment as amended, as it is now offered by Mr. Cooper.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 3, line 2, after the word 'state', delete the rest of the section and substitute the following: 'and possess such additional qualifications as may be prescribed by law.'"

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

METCALF: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, inasmuch as I moved this amendment, do I have the right to close the debate?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct.

COOPER: All I can say is that in listening to this entire discussion what has been proven to me so far is that the best qualifications for a judge is an Alaskan who has lived here for five years and been admitted to practice law for five years. That is practically the only qualification as it now stands. I can see no reason why that is necessary. The best men, possibly a better man, will be available and made available to the people of Alaska if that man has the right to serve as a judge whether he has lived here for five years or not. It is the people of Alaska that are going to be tried by these judges and not the Alaska Bar Association, and the best judge that can be secured to sit on the bench is what the people are entitled to. The people have only one recourse and that is through the legislature. That is why my amendment was presented. That is their final recourse, the only recourse, and if additional qualifications should be or could be prescribed by the legislature to secure a better judge, then I believe that is the right of the people.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Cooper's amendment as amended, be adopted by the Convention?"

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 32 - Awes, Buckalew, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, Londborg, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 21 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws,

McCutcheon, McLaughlin, Metcalf, Nolan, V. Rivers,
Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 32 yeas, 21 nays, and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the proposed amendment has been adopted by the Convention. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: On Friday I had an amendment in which I did not withdraw, but I withdrew my motion for approval. I would now like to withdraw the amendment and substitute an amendment that reads as follows --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel asks unanimous consent. Was it ever offered for the record? It was not moved, Mr. Hinckel, so it would not have been on the record, and you can just offer the new amendment if you so choose.

HINCKEL: I offer this amendment and ask unanimous consent. "Section 5, line 6. Proposal No. 2, after the words, 'rejection of the voters' we delete the words, 'of the State'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: In line 6, page 2, wasn't the word "qualified"?

HINCKEL: I had previously suggested that the words "those voters of the State" be deleted and another phrase substituted, but now I am requesting only the words "of the State" be deleted because I am told by legal counsel that I accomplish the same purpose by just striking those words.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent for the adoption of that proposed amendment, Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: I do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Hinckel's unanimous consent request? Mr. Stewart?

STEWART: May I ask Mr. Hinckel to explain why.

HINCKEL: The object in making the request was that I felt if it was left worded as it is that there is the possibility of interpretation that all elections or confirmations of judges for the superior and supreme court for the statewide election, and I felt that the superior court judges should be confirmed by the people under their jurisdiction.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, you may ask a question.

MCLAUGHLIN: Merely to confirm Mr. Hinckel, he did discuss the matter with the Judiciary Committee, and we unanimously agreed that it would not change the deletion of the words, "of the state" on line 6, page 2, would not change the meaning and would effectuate the purpose that Mr. Hinckel sought. In other words, the Judiciary Committee unanimously consents.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further objection to Mr. Hinckel's unanimous consent request? If not, the request has been adopted by the Convention and the words "of the State" are ordered deleted. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we recess for ten minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for ten minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair has been informed that we have with us some of the members of the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association. We have the President of the Alaska Bar, Mr. Mike Monagle of Juneau, and we are certainly happy to have you with us this morning. We are now on Section 8 of the Committee Proposal No. 2. Are there amendments to Section 8? If not, we will proceed to Section 9. Are there amendments to Section 9?

HURLEY: May I ask the Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary a question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mr. Hurley, if there is no objection.

HURLEY: Is there in your opinion, Mr. Chairman, any possibility that the judicial council would nominate a large number of persons for selection by the governor? In other words, say ten, in which case it would, in effect, place the selection and the nomination on the governor and relieve the judicial council of any responsibility for having selected a precise panel. In other words, the fact that there is no upper limit there, would that affect the --

MCLAUGHLIN: The possibility does exist that the council could do that. Under the Missouri Plan, that is under the Missouri Constitution from which this section is derived, it reads "not less than three". It was the intent of the Judiciary Committee not to make it "not less than three" because then by law the council would be required to present three persons.

It is the desire of the Judiciary Committee and to some extent that had confirmation of the Board of Governors of the Alaska Bar Association that we keep the selections down to a minimum, because of the limited number of lawyers that we have in the Territory we wanted to restrict the selection of the governor. In fact, the fear has been expressed already that initially the governor might have too much determination in selecting the judges. For that reason it was kept down to two, but with the increase in size of the state it is well recognized that then the judicial council should have latitude in submitting more than two nominations for the one vacancy.

SUNDBORG: May I be permitted to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, if there is no objection.

SUNDBORG: Mr. McLaughlin, several days ago when we were discussing this article for the first time, as I heard you, you answered a question, asked by someone, on whether if the governor did not like the names suggested to him he could call for more names, and my recollection was that you answered that in that case more names would be supplied. Was that a considered answer?

MCLAUGHLIN: That was not a considered answer. I believe that I corrected myself. Under this article, under Section 9, the governor has no right of refusal, he cannot refuse. The obvious answer to it, that's the way the section was intended, if there was any other intent it would mean, particularly with the present status of the Alaska Bar, that if the governor refused, he would very promptly exhaust all nominees and he would pick the man that he wanted.

SUNDBORG: Thank you, I just wanted to clear the record. May I address another question to Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection.

SUNDBORG: Also with respect to Section 9. it does not mention there is an office of chief justice. Is there an office of chief justice created by this article? The reason I ask is that when a man, for instance, is appointed by the governor to the position of chief justice, does he hold that position subject to the elections every ten years, and the retirement provision is in here for life, or does each governor who is elected have the right to name a chief justice from among the panel that then makes up the supreme court?

MCLAUGHLIN: There is an office of the chief justice and once appointed by the governor, he remains the chief justice for life or until removed by the voters or until retired for other cause or resignation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White?

WHITE: My question was somewhat along the same line, Mr. President. I am not sure that that answered it or not. Did I understand the intent of this section Mr. McLaughlin, to be that when the office of chief justice of the supreme court becomes vacant it, the new appointee is automatically the chief justice?

MCLAUGHLIN: Those who are designated by the judicial council, the nominees, the governor selects one of the two or maybe three nominees. The governor selects one of those and that man becomes the chief justice.

WHITE: Not only the first time but each subsequent time the office becomes vacant?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is correct.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Following through on the same line, if the governor desired to elevate one of the justices of the supreme court to be the chief justice, it would have to go through the regular procedure of approval by the judicial council that his name might be one of two submitted to the governor, and then it would be up to him to choose?

MCLAUGHLIN: That does not preclude a member of the supreme court from becoming chief justice. Actually, under this act he could resign. The judicial council could select him, he and someone else submitted to the governor and if the governor selected him, then he would become chief justice.

V. FISCHER: Would he have to resign?

MCLAUGHLIN: There is a possibility he would have to resign.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other questions or amendments relative to Section 9? If not, we will proceed with Section 10. Are there amendments to Section 10? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I be permitted to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin? With respect to Section 10 I am in the dark as to what you mean by this phrase, "on the basis of appropriate area representation".

MCLAUGHLIN: The phrase, "on the basis of appropriate area representation" was put in there as a guide in order to assure that the judicial council would not consist entirely of three lawyers, let us say from an area like Anchorage. It was intended to have the representation from all areas of the Territory. We were indicating an intent to have a geographical representation.

SUNDBORG: That then refers to and modifies the word, "appoint". They "appoint on the basis of appropriate area representation"?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is right.

V. RIVERS: Are members of the bar, all members of the bar, members of the "organized state bar", or is that just the American Bar Association?

MCLAUGHLIN: The "organized state bar" was a generic term the Committee took as best representing what would be a statewide organization of attorneys. Originally the Committee did have the expression "The Alaska Bar Association or its successor". The difficulty was that the legislature could terminate the organized bar, that is terminate the integrated bar, and we use the "organized bar" as best representing that association which would represent all the attorneys of the Territory.

V. RIVERS: "Organized state bar" would not necessarily imply that all members admitted to the bar then were members of that organized bar, is that right?

MCLAUGHLIN: That would imply this, that all could belong to it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I would like to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin. My question really has reference to Section 11 but affects Section 10. In Section 11 you mention that "the chief justice shall thereafter be ex officio a seventh member and the chairman of the judicial council" and then mention that it requires an affirmative vote of four of its members. Does the term, "ex officio member", restrict his voting rights in that group?

MCLAUGHLIN: It does not restrict his voting rights at all.

HURLEY: In the matter of a tie he would have a vote?

MCLAUGHLIN: He does anyway.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I would like to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin. I am just a little curious as to the Committee reasons for providing that the organized state bar shall appoint the three attorney members and that the governor shall appoint the three nonattorney members.

MCLAUGHLIN: The reason, Mr. President, for that is that is the very essence of the so-called Missouri Plan. The three who are appointed by the bar represent a craft in substance, the theory being, and it has worked out in Missouri, that they best know their brothers, and they are there, based solely on their professional qualifications but selected because they would represent in theory the best thinking of the bar, and they are there solely because they represent their craft. In essence there is nothing undemocratic about it because of the fact that we know by its very nature that the judges of the supreme and superior court will be attorneys. The three lay members are in substance those who represent the public. Under the Missouri Plan there is a specific provision that the members appointed by the bar of Missouri shall be elected. They specifically use the word "elected". We didn't use it, we did not deem it necessary. Under the Missouri Plan the three laymen are appointed by the governor. There is a difference in this Section 9 in the sense that the laymen under our Section 9 are required to be approved by the senate. That is, they are subject to confirmation by the senate. The reason that varies from the Missouri Plan is that what happened was in Committee there was quite some discussion about the popular representation.

DAVIS: Mr. President, before he goes ahead, he is talking about Section 9, I am sure he meant Section 10. I would like it to be clear.

MCLAUGHLIN: Do you desire me to proceed, Mr. President, or wait until that arises.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It might be inasmuch as the question has arisen that if there is no objection, Mr. McLaughlin could proceed. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I would like to give cause to the question to arise by introducing an amendment on this subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, you may introduce your amendment at this time. The Chief Clerk will read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 10, page 3, line 22, strike the comma after the word 'article', substitute a period and strike the remainder of the sentence."

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of this motion.

MCCUTCHEON: I object.

COGHILL: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Coghill seconds the motion. The question is open for discussion. Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: I would just like to briefly say that I believe the confirmation requirement is not necessary and is in a way discriminatory against the lay members. I can see why it was put in originally, to give the legislature some say in the selection of judges. We have now amended Section 7 to provide that the qualifications, in effect, would be established by the legislature, and I believe that therefore we should not require confirmation of lay appointees to the council by the legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion of the motion by Mr. Fischer? Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Perhaps Mr. Fischer did not give full consideration to this particular section of the proposal. Under our present act, the Bar Association, the integrated bar, is an official body of the Territory. It is, you might say, chartered, by the legislature, and compulsory membership is required under the act. Nobody can practice law unless they have been admitted to the bar and belong to the integrated bar. Now the bar is screening their applicants, their men for the board, on this judicial board. They must have certain geographical representation in the integrated bar. We have three from the First Division, three from the Third Division and three from the combined Second and Fourth Divisions. So the selection of the three attorney members of the Commission are a selection by an official Alaska organization, the integrated bar. The other three would be selected and approved by the senate, appointed by the governor and approved by the senate. The attorney members have already been approved by the Alaska Bar Association, so why then put them through a further screening when they have already been screened by the members. The lay members have not been screened at all, only by the senate. We feel that the bar members are screened by the bar, then the lay members are screened by the senate. It makes it even.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, there is in Section 10, it is pertinent to this motion, the way that I interpret it, line 16, "the appropriate area", in line 20, "different major areas". I would like to ask Mr. McLaughlin if the intent was that the three attorney members of the judicial council would come from three appropriate areas and the three lay members would come from different major areas than that of the three appropriate areas?

MCLAUGHLIN: There is no difference. In fact, if the Committee on Style and Drafting desires in the future to change it, we would be delighted. The one reason why we have left in the words "major areas" on the laymen representation is the possibility (forgive me, Mr. Walsh) that Nome itself might have the feeling that it would be left out in its representation. If we struck "major areas" then there would be an implication that we did not have to worry about certain areas of the Territory. Frankly, it is my belief that both could be made to conform and the same wording could be used.

COOPER: In other words then, the idea is not to cause the three laymen to come from different areas than the areas from which the three lawyers came?

MCLAUGHLIN: No, there was no such intent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: I would like to ask the question of the Judicial Committee, if using the word major, does not that denote there is also a minor?

MCLAUGHLIN: In answer to that, Mr. Londborg, if the representatives from the alleged minor areas so desire, we can strike the whole expression, "major area or appropriate area" and then you're not assured of any representation at all. It is the desire of the Committee to have a general geographical representation on the judicial council and that includes all areas.

COGHILL: Point of order. I believe we are diverting from the subject before the Convention. We have a motion on confirmation by the senate for the nonattorney members. We are talking about representation from the major areas. I think we ought to dispose of the subject at hand.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You are correct, Mr. Coghill. That was allowed because the question was asked. The question is, "Shall Mr. Fischer's amendment, inserting a period and striking the words, 'subject to confirmation by the Senate', on line 22 of page 3, be adopted?" Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: Mr. President, was Mr. Fischer's motion seconded?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, by Mr. Coghill. Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: I would like to call attention to the fact that one speaker said that the organized bar was an arm of the Territorial government and the senate was an arm of the Territorial government, and I would like to point out that the governor is certainly an arm of the Territorial government and elected by direct vote of the people.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, on Mrs. Nordale's suggestion I heartily agree. The people through their agency, the integrated bar, are going to screen the three attorney members. The people through their agent, the governor, will screen the nonattorney members. I don't know why we should get the senate in on the act in addition.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does anyone else wish to speak on the subject?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall Mr. Fischer's amendment be adopted?"

METCALF: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf asks that the roll be called. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 26 - Armstrong, Boswell, Coghill, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, V. Fischer, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Knight, Lee, Marston, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, Rosswog, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, White.

Nays: 27 - Awes, Barr, Buckalew, Emberg, Gray, Harris, Hermann, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Laws, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Taylor, Walsh, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 26 yeas, 27 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the amendment has failed of adoption. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I have an amendment to offer.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg has an amendment to offer to Section 10. The Chief Clerk will please read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 10, line 22, strike the words 'the Senate' and insert in lieu thereof the following: 'a majority of the members of the Legislature in joint session assembled'."

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the amendment.

JOHNSON: I object.

MCNEES: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is open for discussion. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, this is a fairly basic matter also which I am sure is going to come before us in some other connection before we are through here. The practice in the Territorial legislature in the past has been that confirmation of appointments is by both houses in joint session assembled. I believe it has been a good practice. I don't believe that only the senate should have the right to express the people's will with respect to appointments by the executive, as it would be in this case, but that it should be by majority of all the members of the legislature and not just by majority of the members of the upper house.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher.

HILSCHER: Mr. President. I wish to speak in favor of the amendment. The situation can arise, as it has in the past, where in the makeup of our senate alone, there might be a majority of attorneys as members of the senate or there may be a sufficient number of attorneys that if they wish to exert certain influence, they could act as somewhat of a damper on confirmation of the lay members of that board. I believe that Mr. Sundborg's amendment is worthy of support.

BARR: I am not going to discuss it very widely, but I would say that I don't know what may happen in the future. The only thing I can do is judge by what has happened in the past. I have never been in the senate when there was a majority of attorneys. But I remember distinctly when there was a time when there were 14 attorneys in the house out of 24.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: I am a little concerned. I think the confirmation of the lay members of the judicial council should be the same as the confirmation procedure which will be uniform throughout our governmental structure. Now I don't know what the body has in mind or whether the constitution could contain a blanket clause to the effect that when the language "subject to confirmation" is used that means subject to confirmation by the members of both houses sitting in joint session. It seems to me that Mr. Sundborg made a good point, but I don't know whether we are doing the right thing by saying "subject to confirmation by both houses sitting in joint session" and later on come up with a different motive for the general operation of the state. I would like to hear from somebody.

MCNEES: May I ask Mr. Rivers if this might not be a general policy of the Convention to require the meeting of both houses in joint session on issues of this magnitude or nature.

R. RIVERS: That would be fine if that were to turn out to be the fact.

HERMANN: I think the adoption of any such provision should wait upon the report of the Apportionment Committee and find out how big the house and senate are going to be. You might very well have the tail wagging the dog in this case.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's proposed amendment be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of Mr. Sundborg's amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no".

MCCUTCHEON: Call the roll.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 28 - Armstrong, Buckalew, Collins, Cooper, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Mr. President.

Nays: 25 - Awes, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Cross, Gray, Harris, Hermann, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McLaughlin, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, Wien.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 28 yeas, 25 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The "yeas" have it and so the proposed amendment has been adopted. Are there other amendments to Section 10? If there are no further amendments, we will proceed --

STEWART: Mr. President, may we have that read as it was amended?

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 22, page 3, strike the words 'The Senate' and insert in lieu thereof the following: 'a majority of the members of the Legislature in joint session assembled'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other amendments? We will proceed with Section 11. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, Section 10, I have an amendment that I am contemplating on proposing. However, first I would like to hear discussion by the Convention as far as the subject of confirmation by the legislature in joint session assembled, as far as the attorney members of these boards are concerned. I feel that we are going to be setting up a precedent here that all professional boards will be chosen by their given profession and a minority will be picked by the nonprofessional group and confirmed by the elected members of the electorate for Alaska, but in turn the professions of the doctors, lawyers, and dentists and all the rest of them are going to have the chance to load the committee with professional people.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the Chair has been lenient in allowing discussion even through there was no motion on the floor, owing to the fact that questions have been asked. The Chair will have to ask that these discussions be confined to matters before the Convention.

COGHILL: Well I'll submit a proposal then, Mr. Chairman.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 18, page 3, after the word 'bar' insert a comma and add the following: 'subject to confirmation by the Legislature in joint session assembled'."

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of this amendment.

BUCKALEW: Objection.

COGHILL: I so move.

KILCHER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher seconded Mr. Coghill's motion. Will the Chief Clerk please read the proposed amendment again.

CHIEF CLERK: "In Section 10, line 18, after the word 'bar' insert 'subject to confirmation by the Legislature in joint session assembled'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Add a comma.

SUNDBORG: I wonder if I might ask Mr. Coghill if he would consent to a proposed change in his amendment which would not change the sense but I believe would be a little smoother. If on line 22, after the word "article" we change the comma to a period and then insert "both the attorney and nonattorney members shall be". It would then read, the new sentence, would say "both the attorney and nonattorney members shall be subject to confirmation by majority."

COGHILL: Mr. President, I consent to that with consent of my second because it does not change the intent of my amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, it might be more in order if you ask that your original amendment be withdrawn and then submit it. There will be no confusion in the minds of the delegates when we vote on it, if that is what you are attempting to accomplish.

COGHILL: Yes, that's right. I will so move and ask unanimous consent that my proposed amendment be withdrawn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill asks unanimous consent that his original proposed amendment be withdrawn. Is there objection? Mr. Riley?

RILEY: I object for purposes of comment. It would appear to me to be far more expeditious to act on it as first offered. Otherwise we are going to introduce the complication of, do we rescind our former action to put the show on the road. This could all be reconciled in Style and Drafting later if Mr. Coghill's motion is adopted.

SUNDBORG: I agree with that, Mr. President, and withdraw my suggestion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg then asks unanimous consent that his motion be withdrawn. If there is no objection it is so ordered and we have Mr. Coghill's original motion before us. Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: I presume Mr. Coghill submitted this motion merely for the purpose of getting this on the floor. Coldly and calculatingly, if this motion is passed you might as well tear up the whole proposal and provide for the election of juries, because then it would be more efficacious and more democratic. The whole theory of the Missouri Plan is that in substance, a select and professional group, licensed by the state, can best determine the qualifications of their brothers. The intent of the Missouri Plan was in substance to give a predominance of the vote to professional men who knew the foibles, the defects and the qualifications of their brothers. It is unquestionably true that in every trade and every profession the men who know their brother careerists the best are the men engaged in the same type of occupation. That was the theory of the Missouri Plan. The theory was that the bar association would attempt to select the best men possible for the bench because they had to work under them. If you require a confirmation of your attorney members you can promptly see what will happen. The selection is not then made by the organized bar on the basis of a man's professional qualifications alone. The determination of the selection of those people who are on the judicial council will be qualified by the condition, are they acceptable to a house and a senate or a senate alone, which is essentially Democratic or essentially Republican. No longer is the question based solely on the qualification of the candidate for the bench. The question is, will those people whom we set up here on the judicial council, that we send from the bar, will they be acceptable in terms of political correctness? If political correctness enters into the determination of the selection of those professional members who are to be placed upon the judicial council, the whole system goes out the window. All you have is one other political method of selection of your judges. The theory, and it is the only way it can possibly work, is that the lawyers are put on there to get the best man and not to take a man on the basis of his politics. But if we require confirmation, then the material consideration to be made by the Alaska Bar Association is, are we sending our best representative -- no. But are we sending a good Democrat acceptable to both members to both houses or are we sending a good Republican acceptable to both houses. If we permit that determination to enter into our consideration, then in substance we should provide for an initial election or initial appointment by the governor or some other body. Qualifications go out the window as soon as you have confirmation. The theory on the lay members on the confirmation, they represent the public and they represent the predominant political thought. The theory on the lawyer members of the council, they represent the profession, they represent the best interests of the profession. They represent a desire to have the best judges on the benches. I beg of you, please don't vote for the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: I want to heartily second the remarks of Mr. McLaughlin but also want to point out that the purpose of the draft as now written is to have a nonpartisan selection of these lawyer members, and the minute you adopt something like this, you are making a partisanship proposition out of it. We want that to carry through to a nonpartisan selection of judges, so I think our thinking is quite clear.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: In bringing this up, I quite agree with both the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee and also the member. I believe that all of us here are working on committees real hard and we are trying to bring out good and concise thoughts. We are not trying to go to the extreme in our committee proposals, so that we will get a compromise on the floor. I don't think that is the intent. The purpose for this amendment is that I foresee that the nonattorney members of this board are going to be subject to all the ills of political skulduggery on the floor of the senate or the joint house assembled, and I see that if we are going to pick the judges on nonpartisan basis, that it should be left up to your representative of the government, the highest official in the executive branch which is your governor. That is the reason why I voted for the amendment to strike that, the acceptance or confirmation by the senate. I think if we are going to accept some of them by the senate confirmation, we should accept them all. It is the precedent you are setting up here for boards on the professional level.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Coghill's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?"

ROBERTSON: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 4 - Coghill, Kilcher, Londborg, Mr. President.

Nays: 49 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 4 yeas, 49 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the proposed amendment has failed. Are there other amendments to the section?

TAYLOR: I have one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor has a proposed amendment.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I am proposing this amendment to Section 7.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor offers a proposed amendment to Section 7. The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 2, page 3, after the word 'State' strike the balance of the section and insert 'for at least three years and have been residents of the State for at least three years next preceding their respective nominations; provided, that additional qualifications may be prescribed by law.'"

TAYLOR: I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the amendment.

SUNDBORG: Objection.

TAYLOR: I so move.

METCALF: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf seconds the motion of Mr. Taylor. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I would like to mention one thing. The matter was brought up and we have argued this thing quite thoroughly. I felt that it might be of the period of time that would elapse. Now in the last three years we have admitted perhaps 50 attorneys to the practice of law in Alaska, and it seems like there are going to be quite a number of them admitted each year from now on. Now this past year we had 25 who took the examination, the year before 19, so those men who in the past couple of years have taken the bar and have been admitted to the bar, in all probability by the time we achieve statehood will have the required residence of three years, and they have been practicing law for three years, which will make them eligible for the bench. It seemed the opinion of some of the proponents to eliminate the five-year period. It was through the fact there might not be sufficient manpower, but I think that would be taken care of. Now, even putting the best light on it, we cannot anticipate we will have statehood for a year and a half or possibly more. I think I am being unduly optimistic when I say a year and a half. These men who are barred by time, that will be taken care of, as immaturity is always cured by the passage of time, and by three years we will have plenty of attorneys to pick for the judiciary. We feel there should be some restriction instead of dragging a man in from the outside and putting him on the bench, not knowing his qualifications or background, I think we should put at least three years because by that time there will be approximately 60 or 70 more lawyers in Alaska who will be judicial timber. I feel this amendment should be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: I rise to speak against the amendment on the same basis that I rose to speak against the original article as it was originally turned out in the Judiciary Committee. Feeling that it is not a matter of constitutional law but one of legislative law, therefore I oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Will you have the Chief Clerk read the amendment again?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 7, page 3, line 2, after the word 'State', strike the balance of the section and insert, 'for at least three years and have been residents of the State for at least three years next preceding their respective nominations; provided, that additional qualifications may be prescribed by law.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Taylor's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. Chairman, I want to talk on this. I wish we would quit going back. We settled this. We are never going to get through.

TAYLOR: Point of order. He is not speaking on the subject.

MARSTON: We have passed on this. We have given our reasons.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, under the circumstances, Mr. Taylor's point of order, if you say we have passed on this, will have to be well taken because we did not pass on the question that is before us at the present time.

MARSTON: No new subject matter is brought up here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston, the Chair will have to hold that Mr. Taylor's point of order is in order because there is new subject matter here.

MARSTON: May I say I am opposed to this amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right. Mr. Barr.

BARR: May I say I am in favor of this amendment? In answer to another member who took the floor a minute ago, he said that this was properly a legislative matter. I believe that certain qualifications should be specified by the legislature, but I believe that the constitution should state the basic law and preserve the rights of the people, and the people should be entitled to a judge who is properly qualified. That does not just mean qualified in the law. It means also qualified by various other types of experience, including experience in Alaska.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Taylor's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of the --

MCCUTCHEON: Call the roll.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 20 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Coghill, Cross, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Johnson, King, Laws, McCutcheon, Metcalf, Nolan, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh.

Nays: 33 - Awes, Buckalew, Collins, Cooper, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, Knight, Lee. Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - Doogan, H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 20 yeas, 33 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the proposed amendment has failed to pass. Are there other amendments? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I be permitted to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. McLaughlin, is it really necessary to provide at the end of Section 10 this language saying that the members of the judicial council "shall be compensated as provided by law"? It occurs to me that we have no such language, for instance, covering the compensation of the judges at all or of any other officials.

MCLAUGHLIN: There is provision specifically in the Act providing for compensation for the judges, and we did not want to make it mandatory, but we wanted to put it in there because we wanted to make it expressed that they could be paid for their services.

SUNDBORG: Is it your belief that if we did not have it in here that the legislature could not provide to compensate them?

MCLAUGHLIN: We are running close. Actually, I think the legislature, even if it were not in there, could provide for their compensation. I would prefer to leave it as it is, and if Style and Drafting so recommends, after discussion with members of the Committee, we might recommend --

SUNDBORG: As Chairman of Style and Drafting, I certainly would not, for myself, want to recommend such a thing as striking that out because I believe it is substantive.

MCLAUGHLIN: I would prefer on behalf of the Committee to leave it in.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other amendments to Section 10? Are there amendments to Section 11? Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the word "ex officio" be stricken in the fifth and sixth lines on page 4.

R. RIVERS: I object.

HELLENTHAL: I so move.

MCNEES: I second the motion.

R. RIVERS: The word "ex officio" means that that particular seventh member of the judicial council is the member of judicial council by virtue of the fact that he happens to be chief justice, and so that when the person who occupies the office of chief justice is changed the next chief justice, because he is chief justice, becomes a member of the judicial council, so I just think it is better to leave it in there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers, if I might ask a question, by specifically stating "ex officio" and not mentioning anything about his voting power, does that take away from him the right of voting except in the event of a tie?

R. RIVERS: No, he has full membership rights and the full vote at all times.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Where would that be definitely established?

R. RIVERS: I have seen it work through the Territorial government. Governor Gruening was a member of a half dozen boards and he was a voting member. I was an ex officio member of several boards. Now unless we say, "He shall not have the vote except in the event of a tie" ex officio member has full voting rights, so I like it the way it is.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: That was not my understanding of an ex officio member. I doubt that an ex officio member, so designated, has voting rights. I would like to withdraw my objection and ask that the word "voting" be inserted after the word "seven" in line 6, which will clearly obviate my objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you ask unanimous consent that that be included in your motion, Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Without objection, it is included in the original motion.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I am going to object for the time being. I cannot see the use of putting in the word "voting", "the seventh voting member", because of the fact that if he is a member of the board, he has to vote. Being a presiding officer he would vote last. In case there were four votes cast in favor of him there would be no necessity -- only in case of a tie. Now ex officio in no way or intent can mean a man is not entitled to vote, if he has an office, sometimes he cannot vote, he's merely presiding but that's got to be prescribed. If it isn't prescribed, why he votes. Now the word "ex officio" does not mean to take away any rights conferred upon a member of a committee or a commission. Ex officio means by virtue of an office, the office, not the man, is actually a man. It happens to be whoever holds that office is a member -- is a member of the board. That is all it means. I can't see the use of putting in the word "voting".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to a one-or two-minute recess? If there's no objection the Convention is recessed for one or two minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. What is the status of Mr. Hellenenthal's amendment right now? Did you ask unanimous consent, Mr. Hellenenthal, that your original amendment be withdrawn?

HELLENTHAL: Correct.

MCNEES: I withdraw my second.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, it is so ordered.

HELLENTHAL: I ask unanimous consent that the word "voting" be included following the word "seventh" in line 6, page 4.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal asks unanimous consent that the word "voting" be included following the word "seventh" in line 6, page 4.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I don't mean to be picayune but apparently in the Senate of Alaska as it is now constituted, the president who is the ex officio member of boards is not entitled to a vote. Now Robert's says if the ex officio member is not under the authority of the society he has all the privileges including the right to vote, so the question is whether or not the chief justice under this proposal would be under the authority of the society, and I would interpret the society to mean there the seven-man supreme court. There is still a very grave question in my mind. One group here tells me that he is under the authority of the society. Another group says that he is not. If there is question why don't we leave the word "voting" in?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, I wonder if you would be acceptable to the proposition that this matter be turned over to the Rules Committee in conjunction with the Judiciary Committee and that they come to some determination on it and report at some later time.

HELLENTHAL: I am very happy with that suggestion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. Hellenthal's request will be held in abeyance until such time as a complete report is made on that subject to the Convention. Are there other amendments to Section 11 or 12? If not, are there proposed amendments to Section 13? Are there proposed amendments to Section 14? Mr. McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, may I read into the record so that the Convention will well know that under Section 13 we did not go into minute detail concerning the functions of the judicial council, but inquiry has been made whether or not the judicial council would make budgetary recommendations to the legislature. That is specifically inherent in these recommendations. Matters such as court structures would include budgets. Administration of the court would include budgetary recommendations to the legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a question of Mr. McLaughlin. I would also like to have the answer read into the record. Is it intended that the judicial council shall also make studies and recommendations of the lower courts and see if they can get from our present system some considerable more semblance of order or procedure?

MCLAUGHLIN: That would be specifically intended under such a phrase as including such matters as court structure.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there amendments to Section 13? Amendments to Section 14? Are there amendments to Section 15? Are there proposed amendments to Section 16? Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the Chairman of the Judiciary, in Section 15, where the judges, "...at the age of 70, on such retirement pay as may be prescribed by law, and shall render no further service on the bench, except for special assignments as provided by court rule." What do you mean by that phrase?

MCLAUGHLIN: That was intended. The presumption is that at sometime the Committee decided that age 70 is about the time that men may become subject to the infirmities of age and it would be just as well to have that as the arbitrary time at which they retire. As for special assignments, it is fair to presume that at some time in Alaska we will have a Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes who was quite effective at the age of 92 or we might have a Cardozo, where their services and experience would be of great benefit to the state, then the exception could be made to utilize those men for special assignments.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, we often encounter occasions when the docket gets overly crowded and if you could recruit an experienced jurist who doesn't happen to be infirm, -- it's pretty handy to have him available, if he is willing to serve. Often times leave is granted to judges for particular persons and one of these men could be made use of during such periods.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Could I ask a question of Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, you can direct your question.

COOPER: Mr. McLaughlin, again do I understand that in line 25 on page 5 and the first two lines on page 6, "The basis and amount of retirement pay for justices and judges who retire or are retired at an earlier age shall be prescribed by law." Does that mean that they can retire themselves at the age of 60 if they decide they want to go into retirement and that they will be provided with a form of retirement pay if they are the ones that elect to retire?

MCLAUGHLIN: That means that the legislature can determine exactly what retirement provisions are, that is what retirement is and they can make an allocation of one dollar a year or 30,000 dollars a year, but they shall lay down the rules as to what retirement is, and what constitutes it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I would like to direct a question to Mr. McLaughlin.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Without objection, you may direct the question.

MCCUTCHEON: In other words, a mandatory retirement of 70 years does not obviate the possibility that the legislature may set a lower retirement age?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is true.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, we have fixed a compulsory retirement age at 70. Reading of this article shows that the judicial council may recommend earlier retirement for judges who are infirm and may not have the capacity to continue performing their services. In some instances a person will get fairly stubborn and he will not resign. We have a forced retirement on account of infirmities prior to age of 70 based on action of the judicial council, or recommendation of judicial council, or if it happens to be a member of the supreme court it would be on the recommendation of a board of three persons appointed by the governor to investigate the matter and with retirement by the governor, but I think that the legislature could not retire judges on a compulsory basis earlier than 70 if we spell 70 in here.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Rivers, the State of Maine -- I was answering Mr. McCutcheon, State of Maine has a provision that no provision for retirement as such, but it provides that if you are not off the bench when you are 70 you won't collect any pay. So in effect the legislature could provide if you are serving on the bench after the age of 65, their act concerning retirement benefits would be ineffective, that you would waive all rights to them and in that sense the legislature could so provide.

R. RIVERS: In that sense I will concur.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I would like to address a question to Mr. McLaughlin.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection Mr. McNealy, you may ask your question.

MCNEALY: Mr. McLaughlin, have you and your Committee checked into the number of states that do provide for retirement pay for state judges?

MCLAUGHLIN: We did check on it, but we left the matter entirely to the legislature. There was some discussion whether or not we should provide a definite mechanical or arithmetical figure, and the Committee wholeheartedly decided that was a matter that should be left to the legislature. In terms of constitutional provisions for retirement, New Jersey retires at 70 without a right of special assignment. Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire at 70, Missouri at 75 and Louisiana at 80. They set them forth, I believe, in their constitution. The statutory limit for retirement age is generally set at 70. Hawaii for instance, under their constitution, retires at 70 under Article 5, Section 3.

V. FISCHER: I would like to know whether the term "retire" or "are retired" includes defeat at an election. For instance, assume that a justice has served for 25 years and then at the age of 68, he is defeated at the polls when he comes up for reconfirmation. Would he be precluded by the term "retire"?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, these are curbstome opinions, but the legislature could determine that a justice who had served so many years and then was defeated for reelection could be retired and use the expression under the constitution and so provide for it. These are outside limits that we are setting on the activities of judges.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other amendments to -- Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I worry somewhat about the words "except for special assignments as are provided by court rule." It seems to me I have heard of abuses in this regard. Perhaps the word "temporary" should be inserted before the word "special". Here we will have the rule-making body, which will have a tendency to recognize that their mental abilities will continue unimpaired after 70. They will all be convinced of it in fact. They are going to make the rule and they might keep themselves on indefinitely under the guise of special assignments. I ask Mr. McLaughlin if the word "temporary" might not preclude that possibility.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, it is the belief of the Committee that that is mere legislation. The age of 70 was specifically set forth so there would be no embarrassment on retiring a person. If there is an abuse of the special assignment privilege, I might point out the legislature controls the purse strings and if it is abused, there will be no appropriation for the purpose. It is something that we should not necessarily anticipate or write into our constitution.

HELLENTHAL: I do not favor enacting legislation by cutting off appropriations and I therefore ask unanimous consent that the word "temporary" be inserted prior to the word "special" on line 24.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Line 24, on page 5?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You ask unanimous consent?

R. RIVERS: I object for a question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: I would say it would be better to substitute the word "temporary" for the word "special" and not put them both in.

HELLENTHAL: I consent to that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then if there is no objection -- Mr. Davis?

DAVIS: I would object to that. I like it the way it is.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your objection is heard. Do you so move, Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: I so move that the word "temporary" be inserted in lieu of the word "special" in line 24.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal moves and asks unanimous consent that his proposed amendment be to insert the word "temporary" prior to the word "special" in line 24.

JOHNSON: I object to the unanimous consent.

R. RIVERS: Did you say instead of the word "special"?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair understood that Mr. Hellenthal had changed his mind but the Chair was probably in error.

HELLENTHAL: No, that incorporates Mr. Rivers' suggestion which was, as I interpret it, that "temporary" be substituted for the word "special" and I did not ask unanimous consent but merely moved that the change be made.

POULSEN: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Poulsen seconds the motion. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: I would like somebody to explain to me the difference between these two proposals.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, would you explain the difference?

HELLENTHAL: Yes, the special assignment is limited to a temporary one now, whereas under the former wording a special assignment could go on for ten years and could be used as a guise for increasing the tenure of the judges by the exercise of their own rule-making power.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I see what Mr. Hellenthal is driving at, but I am afraid the mere change of the word "special" to "temporary" would not accomplish his purpose because "temporary" is almost synonymous with "indefinite". It is an amount of time. If we are going to burden the constitution with such things, it is useless. Either we forget about the matter entirely or specify it further.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I realize that the cases are special and possibly unusual, but there have been many, many cases of very exceptional judges who were well beyond 70 years. I think it is unwise in the constitution to make it impossible for such judges to serve their state. After all, they have all of the experience of their years of service on the bench. Now personally I am against the 70-year retirement age, but the Committee has gone over that back and forth, one way or the other, and I am not going to raise an objection that way, but I would certainly like to see it provided in the constitution so that in the event we have a person who is physically and mentally capable to be a judge, and in the event we have crowded dockets and we need to assign somebody to help clear up the docket, that we have the power to do so. And if we say "temporary" that means, I suppose, just what it says -- temporary. You could not assign a man to do a job that needed to be done if it was something more than temporary. For that reason I like the language as is, "for special assignments".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion?

NOLAN: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If not, the question is, "Shall Mr. Hellenthal's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of the adoption of the proposed amendment say "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the amendment has failed. Are there other amendments to Section 15? Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I have an amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Amend Section 15 by striking the following words: On line 22, page 5, 'at the age of 70'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure?

TAYLOR: I move the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor moves the adoption of the proposed amendment. Is there a second to the motion? Hearing no second --

HELLENTHAL: I will second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal seconds the motion. The question is, "On line 22, page 5, shall the words 'at the age of 70' be deleted from the section?"

BUCKALEW: Question.

EGAN: All those in favor of the adoption of Mr. Taylor's proposed amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes have it and the amendment has failed. Are there other amendments? Mrs. Wien?

WIEN: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that this Convention recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Wien asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: As announced yesterday, the Style and Drafting will meet at 12:15, in the lunchroom.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state there will be no meeting of committee chairmen as had been previously announced. Miss Awes?

AWES: The Bill of Rights Committee will meet at 12:45.

RILEY: Subject to Mr. McLaughlin's views, such members of Rules and Judiciary who are free to get together during the noon hour should perhaps do so to resolve that one question we have heard.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Rules Committee and Judiciary will meet during the noon hour. Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: Mr. President, I request the members of the Finance Committee meet for just a few minutes immediately following recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The members of the Finance Committee will meet immediately upon recess. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I request a meeting of the Ordinance Committee, No. IV, at 12:15.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There will be a meeting of the Ordinance Committee at 12:15. Hearing no further committee announcements and no objection, then the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30 p.m.. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to bring to the attention of the delegates that we now have in the gallery the balance of the senior class of the Fairbanks High School. We hope that you will enjoy the debate, if any, that will occur here on the floor this afternoon. The Chief Clerk has a communication. If there is no objection it will be read at this time.

CHIEF CLERK: From the Northwestern Alaska Chamber of Commerce to Mr. George McLaughlin, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. (The Chief Clerk read the communication expressing opposition to the combining of the Second and Fourth Judicial Divisions.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The letter will be filed. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I think that the Chief Clerk should be instructed to send a letter to the Chamber of Commerce up there and tell them they have their wires crossed, that there is no such a proposal before this Convention. They seem to be quite alarmed about it and I think if we just send a wire, they will simmer down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair might ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, what have you done about this?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, on receipt of the original telegram which referred to this letter, which was the letter to follow on the day of the receipt of the telegram, I transmitted a letter on behalf of the Judiciary Committee assuring them that there was no intent in the present committee proposal to abolish any court house in Nome or deprive Nome of any privileges that it now possesses, and I am sure that the representatives, Mr. Walsh from Nome and Mr. McNees from Nome, and possibly Mr. Londborg, have transmitted copies of the committee proposal to the Northwest Chamber of Commerce, WALSH: I might say that Mr. McLaughlin is correct. As soon as the Judiciary Committee proposal came on the floor I sent a copy that night. They had apparently not received it at the time this letter and telegram were sent so that is in their hands now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any amendment before us at this time?

CHIEF CLERK: The one that was referred to the Rules Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, do you have a report to make on that particular question relative to the meaning of "ex officio"?

RILEY: Subject to any revision that may come from Judiciary, we have not met together, although there has been some conference back and forth during the noon hour, the Rules Committee was of the view that there was no foreseeable hazard in leaving the language as it is, that "ex officio member" was membership in every sense. However, I have since talked to Mr. Hellenthal at some length and feel that probably because of our library's limitation, that further study might be made of the matter while this is still in second reading, and in all likelihood it will be in second reading when we refer it to Engrossment and Enrollment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the matter will be deferred until a proper understanding can be reached. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, the manager of the cafeteria here has said that if any considerable number of delegates plan to stay for dinner this evening, they would like to know that in advance. The cafeteria is open each evening until 7 o'clock. Anybody through the line by 7 is fed. The meals cost $1.75 in the evening and they are similar to the noon meal. The meals are quite good. I wonder if we could settle now so we could notify them whether we will be eating here this evening.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Could the delegates by a show of hands indicate how many would care to eat here this evening. Approximately 18. We might tell them we would have as many as possibly 20. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: As long as we are showing hands, I wish we could have another show of hands as far as the show is concerned.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, could you look in the crystal ball and tell us what time we will be through here? That might determine it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would really take a crystal ball all right, Mr. Hilscher. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, there is another item on our calendar after the item on the judiciary, so I would suggest, if we are so inclined, that we would have enough material on the calendar to keep us here until 6 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If that is the feeling of the delegates it is certainly all right with the Chair. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, since there was so much discussion about the necessity of getting committee reports out of the way, I would like to suggest that we finish up the present proposal and then adjourn to the committee meetings and hold over the other articles and other order of business for tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the delegates relative to Mr. Davis's proposal? Is there a motion before us? Would the delegates who plan to attend the movie tonight please indicate by raising their hand. Well, it is better than half of the delegates. Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, may it be understood that the delegates may bring their wives?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is generally understood or should be. Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: We were told by Dean Beistline that there are seats for 100 and that your wives are welcome.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It appears, Mr. Coghill, there will be quite a group attending the movie this evening. If there is no further discussion, we will continue with the proposal before us. Section 17, are there any amendments to Section 17? Are there any amendments to Section 18? Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, through the Chair I would like to ask one question in regard to Section 18, of Mr. McLaughlin. The section states that Mr. McLaughlin, that no justice or judges of the superior court while serving may practice law. Would that include his partnership in a law office? Say one member of a firm became a judge, would that mean that he would still be able to take profits from the firm itself?

MCLAUGHLIN: I am not an expert on judicial ethics, but I believe that would preclude his taking any profits from any existing law practice from the time that he assumed the bench. Of necessity it would. He would be practicing law if he were associated with anyone else and deriving any profit from it. We are merely incorporating in here one of the canons of judicial ethics. It was deemed essential by the Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any proposed amendment to Section 18? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: May I address a question to Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, you may.

SUNDBORG: What would the situation be if the judicial council wanted to propose that one of the members of that council be nominated for judge? Could they do so and the man would not have to resign from the council until and unless the governor should appoint him a judge, when of course he would be barred because it says here that no member of the judicial council may hold a position under the state.

MCLAUGHLIN: Technically, I think the judicial council could designate one of their own members if qualified. His resignation would have to take effect immediately upon his selection by the governor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there are no amendments, we will proceed to Section 19. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: I have an amendment to Section 19.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 19, page 7, line 2, that all of line 2 be deleted and the following be introduced: 'meeting in joint session'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is the pleasure of the delegate?

MCNEES: I move the adoption of this amendment and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees moves the adoption of the amendment and asks unanimous consent. Is there objection?

COLLINS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second to the motion?

HURLEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley seconds the motion. The Chief Clerk will read the amendment again.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 7, line 2, strike line 2 and insert 'meeting in joint session'."

MCNEES: May I read the full section as it would appear, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, if there is no objection.

MCNEES: "The Supreme Court shall make and promulgate rules governing the administration of all courts of the State. It shall also make and promulgate rules governing practice and procedure in all civil and criminal cases in all courts, which rules may be changed by the Legislature only upon a two-thirds vote of the members meeting in joint session."

RILEY: Is there a second?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley seconded the motion.

RILEY: Mr. President, just a question to address to Mr. McNees.

In view of the fact that that is a legislative process, Mr. McNees, does that have any unicameral significance?

MCNEES: Possibly.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. McNees's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention? Mr. Sundborg?"

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I want to get clear what the meaning would be. As I read it now it would require a two-thirds vote of the senate and a two-thirds vote of the house in order to change any rules of the procedure which had been promulgated by the supreme court. Is that correct?

MCLAUGHLIN: That is not correct. At the moment as it stands, not amended, it reads "only upon two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house", which is a little stronger than the amended provision. The amended provision does not require two-thirds of the elected members of each house to concur. As it presently stands, two-thirds of the elected members must concur, and Mr. McNees has dropped the word "elected" members from his amendment.

SUNDBORG: Mr. McLaughlin, does the wording "to each house" not suggest to you, and I think to all of us, that the vote would have to carry at least two-thirds of the house and at least two-thirds of the senate and not be a two-thirds vote of the total membership of the two bodies. That is what it now provides. If we adopt the change suggested by Mr. McNees, a two-thirds vote of the total number of house and senate members would be all that is required to change the rules.

MCLAUGHLIN: That is right.

R. RIVERS: A change in these rules the way it is now written would require the legislative process. It would be a bill introduced in either house. It would go through the regular legislative process of a bicameral legislature. This is strictly a legislative matter. If the legislature acts, if any serious thing came up that we can't foresee, this gives some flexibility for changing those rules. They count the votes to see if you have a sufficient vote in the house to pass the house and a sufficient vote in the senate to pass the senate, but inasmuch as this is of a strictly legislative character and we have a bicameral legislature, there is no reason why they should convene in a joint session here and become a unicameral legislature for this particular subject matter. The only purpose joint sessions are used is for confirming appointments.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, this matter here is nothing more than we have already adopted on page 3 in line 22 where we say "in joint session". This matter here is identical in its context. I would say it is not necessarily a legislative matter. It's a matter whether or not the legislature approves of the rules that have been adopted by the judicial council. If they disapprove of one rule, they could do it in joint session just as well as they could in individual session.

R. RIVERS: The rules are the law, unless the legislature by a two-thirds majority changes those rules. There is no appointment until the confirmation takes place under this confirmation power. Under this, the rules are the law until they are changed. This takes the action of a legislature. My distinction still holds, I contend.

TAYLOR: I feel Mr. Rivers is absolutely right in this matter. This is a matter of legislation, and these rules and regulations which should receive the same treatment in the same manner as a bill. They go in for ratification, and I think that we could all see the endless discussion that would take place if the rules as promulgated by the supreme court with the help of the legislative council or the judicial council, which could possibly be reams and reams of paper. I know the federal rules of procedure take up several volumes. We would sit there in joint session for days going over these rules as to enact some law in which we change them or strike some of them out. The matter should be that each house act upon them independently.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I think that Mr. Taylor has argued very well in favor of this amendment. These rules that may fill volumes and volumes certainly can be dealt with much more expeditiously if they are not to be dealt with in two separate houses but in one house that can see eye to eye on that matter. But it certainly cannot be compared with ordinary legislation, since two-thirds majority vote is required. It has more of the character of a referendum, of the rules, promulgated by the supreme court, so that in that respect I think it is not to be compared with average general legislation, and I am in favor of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I am not in favor of the amendment. I think that throughout the United States, and particularly with respect to the supreme court of the United States, where the Congress has seen fit to put the rule-making power, most of the rule-making power is vested throughout the country in the supreme court of a particular state. This is done largely because the courts are familiar with practice and procedure and are much more capable of setting up good conservative and concise rules of practice and procedure governing the operation of their courts. They are much better fitted to do that, and certainly to dump the matter into the hands of the legislature as purely a legislative proposition, would conceivably slow up the litigation and the expeditious handling of litigation to the detriment of the litigant. It seems to me, Mr. President, that if this amendment is adopted, it will weaken the provision very materially because as it now stands, the legislature by two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house must vote to change a rule. By that is meant, as I see it, that it would take a full two-thirds of the entire membership to which each house is entitled. If you put in the amendment as suggested, then a bare quorum could be present, which would be less than the 25, let us say, members of the senate. A bare quorum could be present and two-thirds of the quorum present would be able to change the rule which is a far less stringent requirement than the proposition that we have set forth. This matter was discussed very considerably in the Committee, and the unanimous opinion of the Committee was that the rule-making power should be left in the courts and that those rules should be held inviolate as much as possible except that on instances of this kind where two-thirds of the entire membership of each house might vote to make a change. But we discussed that matter very carefully. We compared it with many other constitutions, and the consensus was that this was by far the best method of procedure. I believe that if we should adopt this amendment now, we will very materially weaken our judicial system.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, could I ask Mr. McLaughlin a question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, if there is no objection, you may ask the question.

BUCKALEW: I read this Section 19, I don't know whether, is the legislature required to adopt the rules drawn by the court or only do they have the power to amend the rules?

MCLAUGHLIN: The legislature has the power to amend the rules by a two-thirds vote. If you desire I will give you the history of other constitutional provisions and the thinking of the Committee on it.

BUCKALEW: Well my question is then, that the rules are not adopted by the legislature. I mean, when the rules are drawn up, the legislature doesn't have anything to do with it?

MCLAUGHLIN: The legislature has nothing to do with it. As a matter of fact, this is a modification of the State of New Jersey. In its provision it has an arbitrary rule-making power (Article 6, Section 7, Subdivision 1) not subject to be overruled by the legislature. That was by judicial interpretation. Hawaii has a similar article to New Jersey's (Article 6, Section 6) and that is, no veto. That is the absolute rule-making power vested in the supreme court. New Jersey and Hawaii have an absolute rule-making power vested in the supreme court. Missouri has a more limited rule whereby the rules can be upset by the legislature. The Committee did not desire to follow the New Jersey rule where you have an absolute rule-making power by the court, for fear that there might be at some time or another, an arbitrary excess, and it was the belief of the Committee that there should be some check by the legislature, but the Committee was wary of the practice in most states that when attorneys discovered that the rules work to their disadvantage in certain types of cases, they promptly tried to have the rules amended by the act of the legislature. One reason why we put in the provision requiring two-thirds of the elective members of each house to vote upon it separately was the desire to prevent actions or revisions of the supreme court rules while in the heat of passion. And in substance this amendment, and I think the Committee agrees with me, does water down the protection the supreme court has from hasty impromptu action in revising its rules. We desire to give the right, leave vested in the legislature the right to amend, but we desire to curb it because of prior experiences in other states.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, may I address a question to Mr. Johnson or Mr. McLaughlin.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection.

MCNEES: Would it remove the objections of the opponents of this amendment if we were to insert the word "elected" ahead of the word "members", the last word in the first line?

MCLAUGHLIN: I, cannot speak for the Committee, but I can point out this. When you have a senate which might be small and a large house, then the effectiveness of separate action by the senate is lost when you have a combined vote, and so it does water down. No matter even if you leave in the word "elected" It does water down the protection which the Committee felt the court should be accorded in sustaining its rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, it appears to me that the terminology of this section, in the light of Mr. McLaughlin's argument, is self-stultifying. In other words, they wish the supreme court to set up a list of rules for the operation of all the courts. They don't wish the legislature to enter into it except on certain stipulated fashions, but once the material is before the legislature there is nothing in the world to stop the legislature from entering into the rest of the document. It would appear to me that if members of the bar association would like to have this tightened up a little bit* that we would be better to adopt the straight supreme court rules and leave off the legislature, because once you put it on the floor there is nothing to bar the introduction of new material by amendment or addition.

MCLAUGHLIN: We understand that possibility but we still felt the legislature should have some say to prevent arbitrary action by the supreme court, but the say should be limited by this two-thirds vote of the elected members of each house.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion -- Mrs.

Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I want to say a few words in opposition to this amendment. This is but the beginning of articles in our proposals which are going to call for a vote by the legislature sitting as one body. As a member of the legislative branch I think we have it three or four times in our proposal, and I intend to put in the minority report.

MCNEES: Point of order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney is coming around to the matter at hand.

SWEENEY: I do not believe that this should be changed as Mr. McNeess wants it for the reason that it appears that our house is going to have at least 40 members, our senate may be 20, and the house will then have a two-thirds of the total members to which the legislature is entitled. I am going to fight it on that basis. I want it left so that it will be a vote of each house, not the total membership sitting as one body.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, It seems to me that some of the members are overlooking the fact that this is not such a thing as confirming an appointment. This means the introduction of a bill into one of the other houses and its progress through both houses. Now it is unheard of for both houses to meet to vote on a bill. Sometimes they do on a report but not on a bill, and it just is not a practical way to approach the matter. You can assemble them together for confirmation because that is the only thing at issue. But your bill is introduced, it has to go through the one house, through its committees, etc., get passed by a two-thirds vote and go on into the other house. The action has to be separate if it is treated as a bill, and it has to be a bill if it changes the rules.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, believe me, I can't see one word in this Section 19 that says that anything that changes the rules has to be a bill, not a thing that says It has to be a bill.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, I am in a peculiar position of agreeing with both sides here. It has emerged that the matter is one of legislation. I agree with that, I think the matter is one of legislation. Whether a bill is introduced or not it is going to have to be introduced to change that rule, I think. However, I am not familiar with very many bills requiring a two-thirds majority of both houses of the legislature elected to the office, and if this matter is legislation as it has been urged that it be treated as legislation, then I find myself as having to favor the amendment because it takes out the word "elected" which I think does not belong in there. So I have to vote for the amendment on that ground.

R. RIVERS: The reason the word "elected" is in there is to distinguish between whether you must have a two-thirds vote of the entire membership to which the body is entitled or whether you mean a majority of those that are present. Now if we did not say the "elected members" then you would be saying by a two-thirds vote of the legislature acting, I mean to say separately, or a two-thirds vote of the members of each house. That leads to ambiguity. Does that mean a total membership to which each house is entitled or does that mean two-thirds of the majority which happens to be present and voting? We stuck that word "elected" in there simply to clear up an ambiguity. So when you say two-thirds of the people elected to each house you know that means two-thirds of the total membership to which the body is entitled. If you knock out the word "elected" then you have an argument on your hands as to what is meant.

NORDALE: Could I ask the President a question?

PRESIDENT EGAN? Mrs. Nordale?

NORDALE: Is it true that in the legislature, when it says "a majority", doesn't that mean a majority of all the votes to which a house is entitled or only those present?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Those present, except in the Organic Act it states that in the final passage of a bill It takes the majority of those members to which the house is entitled. Ordinarily, the majority is a majority of those who happen to be present.

TAYLOR: I think some of the members that are advocating the passage of this amendment are overlooking the fact that the Territorial government I believe, will be consisting of three separate branches with equal powers and duties and obligations. Now in this case we have the supreme court of the state in promulgating rules for the administration of the courts. Now that is an act of law. That is conferred upon the supreme court or upon the judiciary system – the right to make the rules. Now, do you think it would be right for the legislature, which is just another branch of the government, to come along and by a bare majority and say "we are overturning what the other branch of government is doing." I think it should require a two-thirds vote of the membership to which each of the houses should be entitled. Otherwise, the judiciary cannot overturn anything that the legislature does unless it is unconstitutional. But here we are giving the legislature the right to set aside the rules and the regulations that are conferred upon the judiciary by the constitution. And I think in a case such as that, it would only be an extraordinary case in which I think the legislature would want to set aside or nullify or change a rule. I think it should be left just exactly the way it is. I can see no useful purpose in the amendment.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the amendment offered by Mr. McNees be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the amendment has failed. Are there other amendments?

CHIEF CLERK: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may proceed with the reading of the amendments.

CHIEF CLERK: "Amendment by Mr. Buckalew to Section 19, page 6, line 25, after the word 'court' strike the comma and insert a period and delete the remainder of the sentence,"

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, according to Rule 19 the legislative body never acts on the rules at all. The supreme court or the court adopts the rules and they start using them and then as an afterthought, they are going to give the legislature –

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew, are you moving the adoption of the amendment?

BUCKALEW: I move the adoption of the amendment.

TAYLOR: Unanimous consent is asked.

MCCUTCHEON: I second the motion.

V. RIVERS. I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. The question is open for discussion. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Explaining my objection, I want to say that this has been explained to us by the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee as being an added safeguard and safety valve against the abuse of the rule-making power. I see no reason why the two-thirds majority should not be allowed to stay in and prevail as set up in the original draft. It has been discussed at length in the Judiciary Committee, and the members of that Committee felt that it was a safeguard based upon what he has told you to be the precedent in other states. I see no reason to strike the possibility of the legislature, by a two-thirds majority, overruling some or one rule maybe set up by the courts.

BUCKALEW: I am not too interested primarily in what they do in the other states. I can see the experience that we have had by bringing the courts into the legislature and It seems to me that this particular provision would just cause a lot of trouble and I don't think we need that check on the type of judiciary that we are going to set up, and I think if there was anything wrong with the rules the courts would be the first party to act. Then if they did not act it would get down to the point where it would be a political question of whether or not they change the rule. It seems to me that the result would probably be one on occasion to discredit the courts and the judges, and if we don't take that power I don't think there will ever be a necessity for the legislature ever desiring to change the rules. I think it is something peculiar to the courts, and I think that the judicial article as drawn will probably give us a competent judicial system, and I don't think we need to have any cause to worry about the rules.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Buckalew's proposed amendment be adopted?" All those in favor of the adoption of the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no".

MCCUTCHEON. Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 13 - Awes, Buckalew, Coghill, V. Fischer, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, McCutcheon, McNeese, Sundborg, Taylor, VanderLeest, White.

Nays: 4 1 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, Walsh, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 13 yeas, 41 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the proposed amendment has failed. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, I move to reconsider my vote tomorrow morning. I voted yea and on the losing side.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You can't move to reconsider if you voted on the losing side. You have to vote on the affirmative side. The motion has failed. Are there other amendments to Section No. 19 or to the proposal?

CHIEF CLERK: From Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, may that be deferred until we consider Section 20?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there amendments to Section No. 20? If there are no amendments to Section No. 20 then the proposed amendment may be read by the Chief Clerk again.

CHIEF CLERK: "Add Section 21, 'Judicial divisions shall be established by law.'"

MCLAUGHLIN: I so move that that be added to the proposal.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin moves the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Robertson seconds. Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Was it your intention to use the word "divisions" or "districts"?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Davis, on reconsideration I decided to make it "divisions" because the expression "divisions is used in Section 20, and it might make some complications if we added the expression "districts" in there.

DAVIS: I think that was different.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a minute. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, I have amended my proposed motion to read "Judicial Districts 21. Judicial Districts shall be established by law."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. McLaughlin amending his proposed motion?

R. RIVERS: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Do you so move, Mr.

McLaughlin?

MCLAUGHLIN: I so move.

R. RIVERS: Is that a motion to amend?

MCLAUGHLIN: I am just changing it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has to be a motion to amend as we already have your other motion before us.

MCLAUGHLIN: I now move to amend my original amendment to read, "Judicial Districts (marginal heading) 21. Judicial districts shall be established by law. In substance I have stricken the word "divisions" and substituted the word "dis-tricts".

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion. I believe it is already on the Chief Clerk's record as having been made, Is that not correct?

CHIEF CLERK: Yes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, I would like to direct a question through the Chair to Mr. McLaughlin. I wonder if the advisability of the legislature establishing the judicial districts as against the supreme court setting up the areas of authority for the various courts. Is it not more advisable for the judiciary who is acquainted with the load factors of the various areas, etc., to create those various districts rather than by legislative law which may be more subject to politics?

MCLAUGHLIN: The reason for the introduction of Section 21 was the concern of some members that they might be deprived of districts or there might be an attempt by this proposal to do away with court houses in certain areas. Frankly, it was not the Intent of the Committee. We don't believe that the bill proposes to do away with it, but to satisfy their objections we specifically provided that judicial districts should be established by law. Inasmuch as the legislature holds the purse strings they can in substance determine where the judicial districts are, for practical purposes. We felt that the legislature could act wisely on the matter and particularly in view of the fact that it would have the very persuasive recommendations of the judicial council on the subject. It was a matter we felt should be left to the legislature and could be changed from time to time. I know of no state where the judicial districts are in substance in the constitution provided, to be described by the supreme court. Normally the burden is in the constitution, they set forth specifically what the districts shall be, and it is impossible to change them.

R. RIVERS: May I explain my objection? In Section 20 we refer to the divisions of the court, or I guess it was Section 19 - no 20. Under this structure we would have a superior court of Alaska. That superior court would have jurisdiction over the entire Territory. It is going to have to be broken up into areas. Now you can call those areas "districts" or you can call them "divisions" of the superior court. There is no question but what there will be an area - jurisdictional area down in Southeastern, with a judge or two judges.

There will be one here, one at Nome, perhaps one at Anchorage for headquarters. We might have a fifth judicial area which will have another judge or a sixth as time goes on. In any event though, it is still one superior court and those areas, the judge in each area will be able to issue process which will cover the entire Territory. After we get to be a state, Alaska is going to become a federal district with one district judge and a district marshal and a clerk, etc. This is going to be the district of Alaska, and that federal court is going to be a federal district. If we have judicial districts in Alaska to represent these areas I am talking about, each one having a judge or two judges or three judges, then we are going to have two district courts and people are going to talk about the district court and how are you going to know whether they are talking about the state district court or the federal district court? Now "divisions" is a division of that one main court, the superior court. Why not use "divisions" and distinguish our courts from the federal district court? We've got it in one section already, we know what we're talking about, why not stick with the word "divisions"? That is the reason I oppose this business of sticking in the word "dis-tricts".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: I think we have already taken care of all Mr. Rivers' objections by calling the trial court the superior court. Now the state where I grew up had exactly the situation that Mr. Rivers has mentioned. We had a state district court or rather state district courts and we had a District Court of the United States for the State of Idaho. I don't see any great confusion there, but it seems to me we are taking care of this just the way we should, if we follow Mr. McLaughlin's suggested amendment. We have one superior court, that court has various divisions but those divisions sit in districts. They don't sit in divisions, they sit in districts, and I believe that we are doing just exactly what we should do here in this proposed Section 21, to say that the legislature shall set up judicial districts.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to cite another example that leads me to believe that we are on the right track by using the language that Mr. McLaughlin has used in his amendment. Calling attention to the State of Washington, which has a district court for the State of Washington, they have an Eastern division setting at Spokane, a Western division setting at Seattle, but also Washington when they established their state courts, also established judicial districts and of course at that time they would take possibly two or three counties. I know in one instance, an uncle of mine was the superior judge a good many years in the judicial district in Eastern Washington, which included the counties of Okanogan and Douglas and they went right down the line. Sometimes there were three counties in the judicial districts. At the same time there were two federal district courts in the State of Washington. I have never heard of anybody who got confused and got into the wrong court.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, in answer to Mr. McCutcheon's objection, it occurs to me that if we leave this matter in the hands of the legislature rather than to spell it out in the constitution we won't run into the difficulties that they are now experiencing in the State of Florida, where as I understand it, the constitution spelled out the judicial districts and the number of courts to be established and the number of judges and limited all of those things, and now in large centers of population where the court work has become so heavy that another court is necessary, it requires an amendment to the constitution to be passed before they are able to go ahead and set up another court under the same judicial system. So It seems to me that by adding Section 21 and leaving the other provisions as they are, and up to the legislature that we have given enough leeway to avoid the possibility of an amendment to the constitution in order to create another court rather than by the simple expedient of having the legislature do it.

MCCUTCHEON: I would like to clear up the matter of my objection here. It was merely a question I think, directed to Mr, McLaughlin and it did not concern with the establishment of any division or district of any type in the constitution. It was merely to leave up to the authority of the supreme court to establish such sections as was necessary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question of the mover of the motion. By this broad terminology, if you say the legislature shall establish court districts, just what extent of authority would that grant? Would that grant them the authority to name an area in which they would specify a central town where the court would be established, whether they would specify how many judges would be resident judges there? I see in the other part of the act that the supreme court could make temporary disposition of judges. What is the extent you intend to cover with this particular amendment? How broad an interpretation would we have to assume it had when we're voting on it?

MCLAUGHLIN: The legislature could, the creation of judicial districts would imply that the legislature can say that a justice of the superior court shall sit at such and such a place and hold regular sessions of court at such and such a place. That would be subject always to the right of the chief justice of the supreme court to assign them elsewhere to take care of the burden of duty. The presumption is that the legislature would designate those courts where they are most needed, but they could change it from time to time as is required.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. McLaughlin's proposed amendment to the amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those In favor of the adoption of the amendment to the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". So the proposed amendment to the amendment has been adopted. The question now is, "Shall the proposed amendment, as amended, be adopted by the Convention?"

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, there are two or three things that I would like to touch upon before we continue it in second or move it into third reading.

HELLENTHAL: I rise to a point or order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. Hellenthal. We still have the original amendment, Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Oh, I didn't know it was going to be offered as an amendment, I thought we were voting on the original motion.

MCCUTCHEON: In order to clarify the situation does not the amendment amount to the complete Section 21 as composed by Mr. McLaughlin?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I have an amendment to the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg offers an amendment to the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 21, after the word 'established', strike the balance of the section and insert 'by the Supreme Court, subject to change by the Legislature in the manner provided in Section 19.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk now read the proposed amendment as Mr. Sundborg seeks to amend the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Judicial Districts – Section 21. Judicial districts shall be established by the supreme court subject to change by the legislature in the manner provided in Section 19."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Did you so move?

SUNDBORG: I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the amendment to the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg moves and asks unanimous consent. Is there objection?

JOHNSON: I object.

WHITE: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson objects. Mr. White seconds Mr. Sundborg's motion. The question is now open for discussion. Is there discussion on the question of the adoption of the amendment to the amendment? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, in Section 19 we gave the supreme court generally the power to make and promulgate rules governing the administration of all courts of the state. Section 21 would have, if it stood as Mr. McLaughlin proposed it, taken away from the supreme court the right to say what, and how the state should be divided into districts for the purpose of administration of justice, which I believe is not proper. I think the legislature does not know, as well as the supreme court knows, how the state should be divided for the purpose of establishing court districts. But I believe also that the legislature should have just as much to say about that as it does about any other matter of administration of the courts.

The general jurisdiction which it has is provided in Section 19, and if the amendment to the amendment, which I now propose, should be adopted and Mr. McLaughlin's, amendment then be adopted, the situation would be that the supreme court could draw the lines on where the districts for court purposes should be in the state, and that if the legislature did not like that for any reason it could, by a two-thirds vote of each house, override the supreme court and provide what it desires. I don't believe that the legislature should be given that right initially on a mere majority vote in a matter which is not truly a legislative matter but is a court administrative matter.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I believe that the amendment as proposed by Mr. Sundborg is a good amendment, and to disabuse the minds of anybody that might believe that these are districts or divisions such as now in existence in the Territory of Alaska, they are not. They are only designated, they would only be designated by the court, the supreme court, who had knowledge of the case loads in the various divisions where most of these cases emanated from and what would be the greatest convenience for attorneys, litigants, etc., connected with the business of the courts, and it would not be a voting precinct or a district in which you would say certain things would take place. It would only be for the purpose of the administration of the law by the courts and for no other purpose. It is an arbitrary distinction that a court setting in this division or this district would be the limit of the jurisdiction or the use of that court. I think it would be perfectly in order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, my objection to the amendment stems from the fact that I believe under the system as it is proposed in Section 21, that is by leaving it to the legislature, the matter of establishing judicial districts could very well at some time or other involve a question of politics and if you leave it entirely to the supreme court, it is conceivable that political pressure could be brought to bear on the supreme court. Maybe that would not happen, but it is a possibility, and it strikes me that there should be as little possibility of that in our court system as we can possibly make. Now I feel that by leaving it as it is, by leaving it up to the legislature, should any one area feel they are not being properly taken care of by judicial division, they have the recourse of going to their members of the legislature and asking for some remedy, but if it is left entirely up to the supreme court, then you are subjecting three judges to political pressure when it is our desire under the entire system to have that court free from such pressure, if it is at all possible to do so. I don't believe the amendment adds anything, and I think it takes away from the legislature a right they ought to have.

R. RIVERS: I want to second Mr. Johnson on that. Lots of little communities with a lot of pride want a courthouse and they want a judge. Everytime there is a big clamor for some new district they would be going and bothering the supreme court judges. I say leave it with the legislature, and I am going to vote against this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Sundborg's proposed amendment to the amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of the proposed amendment to the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed say "no".

SUNDBORG: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 23 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hilscher, Lee, McCutcheon, McNees, Marston, Nordale, Peratrovich, V, Rivers, Rosswog, Sundborg, Taylor, VanderLeest, White, Mr. President.

Nays: 31 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Sweeney, Walsh, Wien.

Absent: 1 - H. Fischer.)

CHIEF CLERK: 23 yeas, 31 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The "noes" have it and so the proposed amendment to the amendment has failed. Mr, Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to address a question to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. I would like to know, in case Section 21 is not adopted by the approval of the pending amendment, who would have the authority to establish districts?

MCLAUGHLIN: My personal opinion is that the legislature would still have the power to designate districts.

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. McLaughlin's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention – that is, the adoption of the proposed new Section 21?" The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 21 – Judicial districts shall be established by law."

PRESIDENT EGAN: All those in favor of the adoption of the proposed amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes have it and the proposed amendment is ordered adopted. Are there other amendments? Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: I would like to revert to Section 16 for the purpose of information. I would like to direct a question to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Mr. McLaughlin, you spelled out malfeasance and misfeasance. Would you tell me why you left out nonfeasance.

MCLAUGHLIN: I have already requested Mr. Rivers to answer that question, I knew it was going to arise.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers, you may answer the question.

R. RIVERS: We set up an early retirement of judges for infirmities and incapacity which might occur prior to the age of compulsory retirement and when I was more or less a subcommittee, within the Committee working on this, we considered that nonfeasance generally is because of illness or incapacity to perform. I don't see impeaching a man because he perhaps falls behind in the performance of his duties. So for the purposes of talking about impeachment, we just chose to say malfeasance and misfeasance, and we wanted to carry out that distinction. If a judge should, in the due course of a proceedings, have an order in front of him that should be signed in the due course and refuses to sign it, that could be misfeasance instead of nonfeasance. So I think it is all covered and we're leaving the nonfeasance more or less to take care of the failure to perform because of Incapacity and illness.

DOOGAN: May I ask another question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: What would you do in the case of a person who absolutely refuses to work, and that could very conceivably happen.

RIVERS: That would be misfeasance.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there any other questions or amendment to be proposed to Committee Proposal No. 2? Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: I wanted to discuss briefly Section 10 regarding judicial council. I mainly wanted this matter to be a matter of discussion on the record. I wanted to ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee if he thinks there is a possibility that the governing body of the organized state bar -- now we don't know what that is or may be under the new state -- do you think there is any possibility that within their bylaws or rules of organization there might be a chance for discrimination because of race, creed, color or religion?

MCLAUGHLIN: I think not, and if there were it could be corrected immediately by the legislature. The legislature has the right to determine who are members of the bar, it has the right to determine what bar association or associations exist and can even prescribe, since the practice of law is not a right but a privilege, it can even prescribe the conditions under which you are permitted to practice. It is a very remote possibility, Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I am not quite satisfied with that answer Mr. President. I think that there is different terminology in regard to the words "organized state bar". We had an occasion arise this morning when I asked a similar question which you told me that a man might be admitted to the bar but might not be a member of the Alaska Bar Association. I am assuming that some organization exists in here that might possibly adopt bylaws which would have the discriminations I mentioned.

MCLAUGHLIN: There would be no possible method, Mr. Rivers, of fully defining in the constitutional article exactly who should be and who should not be members of an organized bar and what an organized bar consists of. Originally, to give you some of its history, we had the provision in there, "The Alaska Bar Association or Its successor". Then the possibility was discussed that the Alaska Bar Association could be abolished by the next act of the legislature. So when we use the expression, "organized bar" we use it in the generic sense of that bar which contains all members admitted to practice in the Territory.

V. RIVERS: Do you think there is any value or necessity in putting in after the words, "shall appoint three members", the words, "regardless of race, creed, color, or religion"? Do you think that would be necessary as an addition to clarify this?

MCLAUGHLIN: I think that is unnecessary, Mr. Rivers, because you would then have to apply that qualification to every office holder in every portion of the constitution. I am sure that the learned gentlemen on the Preamble and Bill of Rights Committee have anticipated the question and will prohibit discrimination on those grounds.

V. RIVERS: Another question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may proceed to ask the question, Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I see that on the basis of area representation, the governing body of the organized state bar, not the membership, shall select the appointees from the legal side. Is there some reason why these are not selected from the membership of the organized state bar, rather than by their governing body?

MCLAUGHLIN: The intent was that there would be in existence or be created, a body which would be representative of all persons admitted to practice, and they would lay down the rules by which the governing body would designate people to the judicial council. It doesn't preclude election, it is determined on majority vote of the membership. The mechanics we felt should not be spelled out in the constitution,

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I have another question and it seems to me appropriate to get it in at this time. We have approached this judicial council and taken it largely at face value. We have three laymen members, three legal members, and a judge member. I see in the explanation matter that the Committee has prepared that they give us no information as to the value of different types of judicial councils -- whether they are best composed of half judges, half lawyers and no laymen, or whether they are best composed with laymen on them or not, and it would seem to me that the establishment of the judicial council at this time follows the Missouri Plan. We have heard considerable about the Missouri Plan, but it has never actually been expressed in the record in detail. I would like to have your comments on the composition of the board and the reason for both the judicial and lay members and the thinking of the Committee in regard to that.

MCLAUGHLIN: For the information of the gentleman, in the State of Missouri, the appellate judicial commission consists of seven members -- the chief justice, three elected lawyers, that is, elected by the bar and three laymen appointed by the governor. The circuit judicial commission, which is a variation of the lower courts, consists of the circuit judicial commission, two lawyers, two laymen and the presiding judge of the court of appeals. They are both created under Article V, Section 29B of the Missouri Constitution. The Committee based its recommendations directly upon the Missouri Bar Plan. That is, the composition is identical with that of the appellate judicial commission in Missouri, The basis of it is that you should not have all attorneys on it. The theory of having the laymen on it are fairly balanced, having one representative of the judiciary, three lawyers and three laymen, is based on the assumption that there is a public interest involved and that the laymen represent the public at large, rather than any professional group. Mr. Morris -- I had a quote available but I'm sure I've lost it in this welter of papers -- the comment by one of the prior members (President of the American Bar Association) was to the effect that, and this is by Mr. George M. Morris, and I am quoting: "I asked an informed individual which kind of group gets the best results. His answer was 'Those councils which have laymen on them. Where either judges or lawyers serve alone they seem to lack energy for sustained attack. Where judges and lawyers serve together, each group seems to have a diffidence about imposing its views upon the other, which stultifies action. Where, however, laymen are included, their presence seems to act as an ice breaker and to stir activity among the professional members of the council. Laymen's criticisms are sharper.'"

V. RIVERS: That is what I wanted to get in the record, Mr. President, and I want to have it shown that that came from the Judicial Councils of the States, American Bar Association Journal of July, 1943.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is in the record then, Mr. Victor Rivers. Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, also going back a little bit, I feel there is one big gap in our discussion of this committee proposal, and it has to do with the establishment of other courts. I would like to direct a question to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, merely to get into the record a little fuller explanation of the Committee reasoning in arriving at the language in Section 1 and 8 as to other courts. I think it is important.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, Section 8, which reads, "Judges of other courts shall be selected in the manner and for the terms and subject to eligibility qualifications, to be prescribed by the Legislature." You will note the Committee did not even prefer to qualify the other courts as being inferior courts or courts of limited jurisdiction. We avoided the word "inferior" because it has a distasteful connotation in modern jurisprudence, and we avoided the other courts of limited jurisdiction because of the fact that we wanted a flexible system which could grow with the Territory. One of the problems which was presented to the Committee was the possibility that our Supreme Court, since it must in substance sit en banc, would not be able to handle all the direct appeals from the superior court and sometime in the future, with the development of Alaska, we might require an intermediate court of appeals such as we have in most states, that is an appellate division or a court of appeals which took appeals from the superior court, having heard them, could then be appealed to the supreme court. We did not want to set up a useless court system in our constitution, but under this article we can create in between the superior court and the supreme court, an Intermediate court of appeals. The legislature can create it. Would it be independent of the judiciary? No, because we have, in substance, given the power to the supreme court to make rules and to administer all courts, so the legislature would be circumscribed and yet in effect, it could fill the gaps when the time arose. We did not say inferior courts or courts of limited jurisdiction, because we knew the people in Local Government did not know or may not know in the future, for sometime, what the evolution of their local government units would be. We wanted to leave flexible, a system which could be utilized, a court system which could be utilized in local government units, possibly covering several units, or whatever they're called. We wanted to give great flexibility but we did control them because of the fact that we have the power to administer (when I say "we" I mean the supreme court) and the power to make rules. In fact in New Jersey, the supreme court under its rule-making power, has made part of its rules, The Canons of Judicial Ethics, and so no matter what the legislature says about its courts which it creates, the supreme court can insist the judges abide by Canons of Judicial Ethics, even in those courts created by the legislature. The local government people were desirous of having flexible courts available to meet a developing situation and yet give the supreme court the control and the power to step in any time there is a legislative abuse of the judicial system. Is that an adequate explanation, Mr. White?

WHITE: Yes it is. Thank you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I would like to ask a question along the same line. I would like to have our thinking reflect the thinking of the Committee, the Judicial Committee, on, when you mention intermediate courts, or courts of second appeal, do you refer to specialty courts such as juvenile jurisdiction and in matrimonial relations, etc.? Is there a competent authority in here for them to establish such courts?

MCLAUGHLIN: There is competent authority in here for the legislature to create any type of court imaginable except that the highest court of appeal and the court with the rule-making power and the administrative power is the supreme court. We can establish probate courts, magistrate courts, if they so desire, justice of the peace courts, domestic relations courts, courts of special sessions, courts of any conceivable nature. The requirement is, we are avoiding the difficulties that New Jersey encountered. We don't want to spell them out in the constitution – if we do we'll never get rid of them.

V. RIVERS: That would have to be established by the legislature, an act of the legislature and not by any act of the supreme court or superior court, is that right?

MCLAUGHLIN: As It stands now, the superior court and possibly even the supreme court, can have jurisdiction over every conceivable case that arises in the State of Alaska, and they cannot be deprived of that jurisdiction given to them, but the legislature can create other courts of great power but subject to the control of the supreme court.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan?

DOOGAN: Could we have a recess for a minute?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until about 3:25 p.m. for the reason that there are some electricians who would like to come here just about now and install the public address system so that the galleries can hear what we are saying. Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: That seems like that is going to take quite a bit of time. I would like to ask that this Proposal No, 2 be continued in second reading and be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair felt that it would be necessary for the Chair, when we are all through, to refer the proposal to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment first and then later, It would go to Style and Drafting. However, it might be well that we just hold it where it is now and when we take up at the end of the recess, someone might have other questions or there is a possibility that there may be other amendments to be offered. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: If we are going to have to leave it where it is, I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at this time and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock a.m. tomorrow morning. First, are there committee announcements of meetings or any other announcements before that motion is put? Miss Awes?

AWES: If we adjourn I would like to call a meeting of the Bill of Rights Committee for a few minutes upon adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, the Committee on Resources will meet immediately following adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Resources will meet immediately upon adjournment. Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, the Committee on Apportionment would like to meet immediately following adjournment, if there is an adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: The Local Government Committee will have a meeting at 4 o'clock If we adjourn.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Local Government Committee will meet at 4 o'clock If the Convention adjourns. Mr. Nerland.

NERLAND: The Finance Committee will meet at 3:10.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Finance Committee will meet at 3:10, if we adjourn. Are there other committee announcements? The Chair would like to announce that a letter was sent to Mrs. Jones, the school teacher of the 7th and 8th grades, in which we asked that her class visit us on the 15th, which would be Thursday, and prior to that time we will try to arrange a listing of the children for the particular delegates to take to luncheon on that day on Thursday the 15th. Is there anything else to come before the Convention before this move for adjournment is put. If not, unanimous consent has been asked that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Is there objection?

TAYLOR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

STEWART: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. B. D. Stewart seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning?" All those in favor of adjourning the Convention until 9 a.m. tomorrow will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the Convention does not stand adjourned. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move we have a ten-minute recess and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention recess for ten minutes. Is there objection?

SUNDBORG: I object. I would like to move to amend Mr. Coghill's motion to provide so that committee meetings may be held, that we stand at recess until 4:30 o'clock today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to having the recess stand until 4:30 this afternoon? Do you accept that Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I will accept.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection?

TAYLOR: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard.

SUNDBORG: I so move.

RILEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention stand adjourned until 4:30 p.m. All those in favor will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the Convention is not adjourned. Is there another motion? Mr. Gray.

GRAY: I move that we recess until 3:20 p.m.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray moves that the Convention recess until 3:20 p.m. Is there objection? The Convention stands at recess until 3:20 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would like to state that the opinions requested of the Attorney General have arrived, and we are going to have them mimeographed and should have them available for all delegates tomorrow. So we have Committee Proposal No. 2 before us in second reading. Are there any other questions or proposed amendments to Committee Proposal No. 2? If not, the Proposal will be referred to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment. Committee Proposal No. 2 is referred to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment. When it comes back from Engrossment and Enrollment it will still be in second reading. When that report has been accepted and if there are no further amendments at that time, then it will be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting. We have on the calendar Committee Proposal No. 1. Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, before we take up Proposal No. 1, I would like to ask the Judiciary Chairman if he, his Committee, contemplates any more proposals that might take care of matters belonging to the judiciary department but were not properly part of this original proposal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, could you answer that question?

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, we did not. It was our understanding that on the related matters such as compositions of juries and civil cases, indictments by the grand jury, and other similar matters, that those would be handled by the Bill of Rights Committee and possibly by the Executive Committee. We did consider the proposal suggesting that we set up a public defender system, proposal that we provide for the public prosecutors, and we felt it was not within the scope of the Committee's function.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then, Mr. McLaughlin, at this time so far as you can see, your Committee will be inactive to the extent that it won't be holding Committee sessions.

MCLAUGHLIN: With the indulgence of the Convention, we shall be inactive henceforth.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And available for any other work the Convention needs you for. We have before us Committee Proposal No. 1. The Chief Clerk may proceed with the reading of Proposal No. 1.

(The Chief Clerk read Committee Proposal No. 1 the second time.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I have two suggested amendments to Section 1 and one to Section 4.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other amendments? We have before us an amendment by Mr. Johnson, an amendment proposed for Section 1. The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 9, page 1, strike the word 'or', insert a comma and after the word 'read' and after the word 'speak' insert the following: 'and write'."

JOHNSON: I move the adoption of the amendment.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves the adoption of the amendment. Mr. Robertson seconds the motion. The question is open for discussion. Would the Chief Clerk please read the amendment once more.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 9, page 1, strike the word 'or', insert a comma after the word 'read' and after the word 'speak' insert the following: 'and write'." So it would read "speak and write".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is open for discussion. Mr. Barr?

BARR: I know this is in line with the requirements generally in other states, but I have in mind our large Native population up here, and I don't believe we should make too many restrictions. It is true a man should know who he is voting for and what he is voting about if possible, but up here, a person living in outlying communities, especially the Natives, they hear quite a bit over the radio, and I am certain they hear all the campaign speeches. It seems to me that they can become fairly well acquainted with issues at hand through other means than reading. I don't object to them being able to read, but they should not be required to be especially proficient in it in order to vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, the word "read" is already in there. Mr. Johnson peeks to add the word "write".

BARR: I don't think they should be required to write at all other than their name.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: I do not approve of the amendment because it is too limitive. Actually, there are two classes of people that will come up before this amendment, one is our naturalized citizen who by naturalization had to learn to read, speak or write, so this particular phrase, or the full limitations of this is only directed to one person, and that is a person that is actually born in this country, and that is the one that it disfranchises. Now the ability to write your name is not a criterion of intelligence, and if you go back to 100 years ago, when it was not as common as it was today, why the ability to read or write was no criterion of intelligence, and it is no criterion of intelligence today. These are local born citizens we are talking about, and we are going to disfranchise them because the state itself has not provided them with the education in their early years. I see nothing but harm to our own local born citizens with this full limitation they have and I believe that the mere fact that you can speak the English language is sufficient to cover and tell of how they should vote. Otherwise you are disfranchising one of your own citizens.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the Chair may, Mr. Johnson, does not the Act that appears on the Territorial statutes at the present time contain substantially the same language with this provision, "This section shall not apply to any citizen who legally voted at the general election of November 4, 1924."?

JOHNSON: Yes, it does.

COOPER: Mr. Chairman, the last line, line 16 is actually a mistake I believe, in the typing. It should read "citizen who legally voted at or prior to the general election of November 4, 1924," HELLENTHAL: No, that is verbatim from the Act of Congress that has been in effect since 1924 which reads, "This section shall not apply to any citizen who has legally voted at the general election of November 4, 1924." There is no mistake in it, it is verbatim from the Act of Congress.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: A point of Information. Is that a part of the present Organic Act?

HELLENTHAL: No. This is from the Act of Congress that was passed and has not been changed since June, 1901.

R. RIVERS: Why do we have to have that in our constitution?

HELLENTHAL: That question, Mr. Rivers was a subject of considerable debate, and Mr. Peratrovich was familiar with matters of this kind and was familiar with many of the people who were protected by that clause. He states that although all those people are growing quite old, that if we do not include that provision in the constitution, these people who have been voting since 1924, will be disenfranchised and that this was put in to protect those relatively few people in their old age.

R. RIVERS: Would that be the Metlakatlans who are not citizens of this country? Would that be some of those Canadian Indians who became Metlakatlans?

HELLENTHAL: No, It would be citizens only. I will read again the language of the Act of Congress. "This section shall not apply to any citizen who has legally voted at the general election of November 4, 1924." What it does is protect citizens who voted at that particular general election just as they have been protected ever since that date in 1924.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: I was instrumental in changing this language from "and" to "or" and I think I owe it to the Convention to give my reasons here. Now I don't know how the situation is up in this area, but down in the Southern end of our Division we do have the type of citizens that can speak and understand the English language and also can write their name and perhaps write a sentence in English, but they cannot sit down and write letters. As the Chairman of our Committee related here, they are very few in number at the present time, and they have been participating in the works of the government through voting, and I think they have been good citizens - at least that has been my observation, and I am afraid if we are going to be too restrictive here that you are going to disqualify such people, citizens, from practicing the privilege of voting. I don't especially say that we should just open the gates to everybody. But here we are, we are concerned with a constitution that is going to govern us in the future here, and we have such people here, through no fault of theirs perhaps, that do not measure up to the requirements that you would like to have in your constitution. Your school program is such that the people in the outlying districts don't get the benefits that your children have in Fairbanks, Anchorage, Juneau and other places, and I think it is only fair that you people should take that type of citizen under consideration. Now I don't think it is asking too much to permit these people that have already voted to go to the polls and exercise these rights. Some of your politicians that go around know that any number of the citizens in these small communities can sit down and understand everything that you advocate. They know what you are promising, they can understand the English language, and they can go to the polls and vote intelligently on the grounds of what they heard. But if you were to ask them to sit down and write a letter from the constitution on certain sentences, they could not do it. They are very few in number, however, but in consideration of them I felt it was my duty to change this language and proposed recommendation of this Committee. That is my stand on it. And this Act our Chairman refers to is a Federal Act, as I understand it, and at the present time we only have from five or six in my Division that comes under that. However, they cherish that right, and I know it is going to hurt them terribly to take that away from them. However, that is up to you to decide that issue. For Mr. Rivers' information, I think everyone in Metlakatla is a United States citizen, declared as such by act of Congress, I understand.

R. RIVERS: Mr. President, I understand that to be true with the exception of a few who did not become citizens, but they'd all be citizens there now. I wanted to ask Mr. Peratrovich if putting the words "or speak" instead of the words "and speak does not do away with the necessity of that last sentence. I understand that some of those people can talk the English language but they can't write, and I would be in favor of this last sentence if you were saying that they had to qualify by being able to write the English language, but when you say to be "able to read or speak the language", then I don't see the need for that last sentence, because I am sure they can speak.

MARSTON: I want to follow up Delegate Peratrovich on the northern country. I am thinking right now down in Hooper Bay. There are 23 people that voted one time. Only three of them could qualify under the requirements at that time. But these other 20 men, If you want to change the requirements, if Mr. Johnson's amendment goes through, will be lost to the United States. You stop a man from voting who has been voting, he does not belong to this country. He would look to other shores. He is not one of us. It would be a crime to throw him out because he cannot write. They have no writing material. They live in wet tents in the summer time and in boats and dugouts. They have no writing material or pencils. They just don't write, but they use the radio, and they have good intelligence, and they are smart and smarter than a lot of our people in our big cities on the political issues that come up. Foreign people come here and adopt this country, many of them can't write. You will find this true in many of our places, and they are the most patriotic citizens we have. If you force them to write to qualify them to vote, you lose a lot of fine citizens, and after all, we want to build the nation up and have every man who lives here a loyal patriotic citizen. If you throw him out of Voting where he has been voting, he will not be inclined to be loyal and patriotic, and neither would you if you were stopped from taking part in the government. I think these people who lived here and inherited this country might turn around and ask us about some things about how we vote. Instead of our telling them how they can or can't vote. It is their country and I think every man should vote and we should not stop him. Quite a few states have no educational qualifications for voting. They are wide open and that is what I would like to do if I had my way about it -- no qualifications for voting, just citizens and qualify that way, that is all the requirements we should request.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion on this motion? Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I would just like to point out that I certainly did not intend to disfranchise anyone by this amendment, but we do have that requirement now and if, as Mr. Marston says, this amendment is adopted, 20 people in Hooper Bay will be denied their right to vote because they are unable to write, then certainly there is no reason why they should not have been denied that right before because that requirement is in the law now. It is not unusual or strange -- I don't see that it is so difficult to learn how to read and write the English language if you are an American citizen, and certainly it was pointed out by somebody here that every citizen who comes over from some foreign land and is naturalized, must be able to read and write. Is it so much to ask that Nativeborn American citizens should not be able to do the same thing?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Awes.

AWES: I just wanted to ask a question and it was answered in Mr. Johnson's statement.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: I have come to the conclusion that the present literacy act which we have requires the voter (maybe it's a juror) to read a section of the Constitution, chosen at random. That might be that it refers for jurors instead of voters but in any event, I favor the language as it stands. I also have had a great deal of experience with the Native people of Alaska, both in my own Division and in the Northern Division which comprises the Second Division, and I know that we have a great many of them up there who have very fine citizens who may be able to speak the English language and can't read it, or read it and can't speak it, and I think that provision was put in there with an eye toward those people. And if the government itself provides no facilities and did provide no facilities 20 or 15 years ago whereby those people could go to school and learn to write, I don't think that they should be penalized now by making a requirement of voting, that they have to write in order to qualify. After all, we are pretty well informed that we have over 3,000 children of school age in Alaska at this time that are not going to school because no schools have been provided for them. That situation was infinitely worse 15 or 20 years ago, and many of these people who will be unable to qualify on the writing end of this amendment* had no opportunity to learn to write and little opportunity to learn to read. The story of how some of them have overcome their handicaps in that respect, is really one of the sagas of the North. I approve of the language as it stands.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, I also approve of the language as it stands here because we might, from reverse logic, conclude if we should accept the amendment that all those who do speak and read the English language who have had opportunities to learn it and go to school should, by law, be forced to vote.

ROBERTSON: I speak for the amendment. I think that the right of suffrage is the greatest right the American citizens hold. Instead of lowering the bars to the right of suffrage, I think the bars should be increased, and I think if they were increased that we would find instead of now where thousands of people reject the opportunity to exercise the right, I think we would find it was worthwhile, if they would all get out and vote. I believe it is no hardship on anybody as long as we have the grandfather clause in this section to require that the citizen who wants to vote should also be able to read, speak and write the English language.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I was trying to think of the precedent in other states and ran across this in the Hawaiian Constitution where it says, "No person shall be qualified to vote unless he is also able, except for physical disability, to speak, read and write the English or Hawaiian language." I noticed that before that if we go to Hawaii we have to learn their native language before we can vote over there. Maybe that might be our answer to our problem here. I think a lot is going to depend on the school system. Mr. Johnson's amendment, or the proposal as it is, would have very little effect upon the voting right of the people at Unalakleet, and that is one of the largest Native villages. There may be about five who would be disqualified if the amendment went in and I don't think those five have voted or have ever tried to vote. They haven't shown any interest in voting. We have quite a large voting population, or quite a large vote, I should say, and they have been fully qualified to vote. I think the difference lies in whether we have schools or not. Unalakleet has had a school since 1890. I think there you have your difference. You do have many villages that have had the first school started in their village in the last four or five years and there are still a few villages with no schools at all, and I can't help but feel that we do disenfranchise them by making them do something they have not had the opportunity to learn how to do. Now, on the other hand, if they can't vote intelligently unless they read, write and speak, then that throws in another side of the picture so we have here probably a pretty well balanced debate.

JOHNSON: I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Johnson's amendment be adopted?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following re-sult:

Yeas: 11 - Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Johnson, Laws, Londborg, Nerland, Reader, Robertson, Sweeney, Walsh.

Nays: 42 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sundborg, Taylor, VanderLeest, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - H. Fischer, Smith.)

CHIEF CLERK: 11 yeas, 42 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the proposed amendment has failed to pass. Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, are we still on Section 1?

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are still on Section 1.

V. FISCHER: I have an amendment, and first of all I would like to address a question to the Chairman of the Committee on Suffrage and Election. I would like to ask Mr. Hellenenthal why the age of voting has been lowered to 20 years from our current age of 21.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. Fischer, the Committee made that determination. I think they were motivated by the fact that they felt that there should be some relaxation of the age requirement. They had in mind that the voting age of 21, the magic figure, was adopted at the close of the 18th century and has more or less persisted. In those days men did not receive their formal education until comparatively late in life. With the passage of almost 200 years, younger people have become educated at an earlier age of course, and they felt that there should be some recognition of that fact. Yet, they felt they should not go down to 16, 14, 12, but they wanted to give some recognition of that fact, just as Hawaii did. Hawaii likewise set the age at 20. Two states have it at 18, but the Committee felt, in the light of their hearing and their careful consideration of the matter, that 20 would reflect that principle.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer?

V. FISCHER: Could I have the amendment read, my amendment?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk please read Mr. Fischer's amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "On page 1, line 2, that the number '20' be stricken and the number '18' be substituted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, what is your pleasure?

V. FISCHER: I would like to move the adoption and ask unanimous consent.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion, and since I have an identical amendment on the desk, I wonder if the record could show that Mr. Fischer and I together proposed this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, do you object to that?

V. FISCHER: No.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I also have an identical amendment there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The record will show, if there is no objection, that Mr. Victor Fischer, Mr. George Sundborg and Mr. Victor Rivers proposed such an amendment. Is there objection?

GRAY: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question would then become, "Shall the names of Mr. Sundborg and Mr. Victor Rivers be added to the amendment?"

V. RIVERS: I withdraw my amendment.

GRAY: No, I don't object to the three of you, just to the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to having the amendment read that it is by Mr. Victor Fischer, Mr. George Sundborg and Mr. Victor Rivers? Hearing no objection it is so ordered, and we now have the amendment before us for discussion. It has been moved and seconded. Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Hellenthal has given a fine argument as to why we should depart from the old concept of franchising the voters at the age of 21. Now he explained that the Committee felt there should be a lowering but they did not feel that 16, 14 or 12 would be right. The Committee arrived at the age of 20. I believe that a much better case can be made to substitute the age of 18, which is the age when our young men and women generally graduate from high school. Their education is finished at that time. They go forth into the world. We expect them to earn their living, we expect them to fight, they can get married without any question. They can do all those things. Maybe they are not considered legally adults, but in every other way they are except also as citizens with the full right to vote. Now it seems to me that we would be much better off to give our young people something to shoot for, give them something that the educational system could prepare them for, and when they reach the age of 18 they can start voting and they will keep voting. I have quite a few arguments written down, I am sure that others will bring up. I would like to point out this is not a radical departure, something brand new to Alaska. In 1945, the Alaska Legislature passed a law authorizing 18-year-olds to vote. It was signed by Governor Gruening and the law could only become effective with the approval of Congress. It was pigeonholed in Congress as so many of the bills that Alaskans are interested in are, but this is not a new issue, it was approved by the Alaska Legislature.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: I might add I too favor this amendment. I have asked, by wire, of both of the National veterans organizations, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, of the date of the convention to which they have approved a resolution for going on record of 18-year-olds voting. However, I haven't received that. I do know that the VFW has gone on record, but what date and what year that convention was, I do not know, but I feel that if they are eligible to become a part of our fighting citizenry, they are certainly entitled to a part in the voting citizenry of our great Republic.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: I am a member of this Committee and I am going to vote for Mr. Fischer's amendment. I think our President said that he believed that a man of 18 years old today should vote. If he is old enough to fight he is old enough to vote. I am going to vote for this amendment.

SUNDBORG: May I ask Mr. Marston, which one of our Presidents said that, was it Mr. Eisenhower or Mr. Egan?

MARSTON: I think they will both say it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is a mutual feeling, you are correct on that, Mr. Marston. Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I think the members of this body should take into consideration the fact that when you lower the age of voting to 18 years, conferring upon them all the rights of a citizen, and that certain laws enacted for the benefit of those young people of whom you might say, tender years, then have the right to go into saloons, the right to drink over the bar, because otherwise it would be an act of discrimination to keep them out. You couldn't pass a law that would be constitutional if you attempted to enforce the laws that were made for their benefit. What you would have if you lowered this to 18, you would have these bars, you see the young fellows coming in now from Ladd Field and Eielson Field and falling all over themselves to, get into a saloon and get something to drink. Every day you see in the paper where a bartender is arrested for selling liquor to a minor, and they are also arresting minors and fining them and putting them in jail. You want to take a look at that angle when you vote to reduce it to 18, because those people have the right to go into the bars and go into any place regardless of the moral atmosphere of it, and that applies to the girls as well as the boys. That would put juvenile delinquency down to lower than that, too. They would be subject to being punished in the regular courts that are for hardened criminals. That is one aspect of it that I thought I would call to your attention. I am not concerned over the act except I thought you should bear that in mind when you vote on it. If you want the young people doing that, why vote it down to 18,

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I am wondering what effect it will have on the jury system. I assume it would be possible for the legislature to write laws regarding the qualifications of jurors that did not include the fact that the list is chosen from the voters at the last general election, as it is at the present time. But whether or not an 18-year-old boy or girl is qualified as a juror is one of the things that has been puzzling me, and I think that that would automatically throw them into the class of citizens who are eligible to serve on juries. I could be wrong about that and I am really throwing it out for somebody to answer than I am for any positive opinion about it. I just question very much, if that is the case, if an 18-year-old has had enough worldly or business experience to be qualified as a juror in an important civil case, for instance, which might involve hundreds of thousands of dollars or even on an important criminal case where their sympathies might be inclined to run away with them. I am not opposed to the amendment, except that I would like some expression of opinion on that point.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Mr. President, I wish to call an error to Mr. Fischer's statement. He said anyone can get married now without question, I believe was his statement, at the age of 18. I believe the members of the legal profession can bear me out. It is 21 for males and 18 for females. Another question I would like to bring up -- I doubt very much if Congress would be much in favor of admitting us to the Union if our voting age was put down to 18 whereas all the other states in the Union have 21. Another question I wish to bring up, you cannot sue minors under the age of 21. What kind of confusion is that going to bring us into if we make them a voting citizen at the age of 18 and can't be sued or contracts be made. I think that will only add to the confusion of things, and I will therefore oppose Mr. Fischer's amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, I, of course am in favor of the amendment, as I have my name on it. I want to say that I think the old age of '21 came down to us originally from English law and was something of a hangover in the matter of trying to curb the voting privileges. I want to point out also that two states, Georgia and Kentucky, now both have the 18-year age voting limit. They have been able to provide means of getting around the necessary qualifications for jurors, and of course as far as the Congress goes, It is my opinion that the Congress had very little hesitation of accepting men 18 years up for the military service. I don't think they have any particular distinction about taking the income tax that those 18-year-olds pay. Most of our labor laws are such that they are, at the age of 18, able to work as a full citizen or a full worker and I think that this is our opportunity to get ourselves abreast of the times rather than to hark back to the old age of 21 as established by English common law and that's where the age first came from and I for one feel that we should, at this time, on the basis of our advanced literacy and our advanced system of education, and the progress that our youngsters have made, physically and mentally, grant them the privilege of voting. I want to point out in that connection that this is the vitamin age, the irradiated milk age, the enriched food age and at the age of 14 now, a youngster is two and a half inches taller and 30 pounds heavier than they were 30 years ago. It is hard to tell what the next two or three generations will bring, we might have to raise the size of our doors and also reduce the voting age and I am favorable to it. I would like to see them have the privilege of voting for the things that they fight to defend and pay the taxes to pay for it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White, have you been attempting to get the floor?

WHITE: Mr. President, I have the feeling this is one of the things you don't oppose if you can avoid it. It seems to me that a lot of the arguments being made here are very good reasons for keeping the voting age at 21. I think the trend apparent in all of these matters that have been mentioned is towards keeping young people in school longer. I would like to see the trend toward keeping them out of the army longer. I would like to draw this parallel for example -- 100 years ago we had 14 year olds working in the factories in this country. We did not say because they were working in factories they should then vote. We concentrated on getting them out of the factories and into the schools where they belonged. That to me is the proper Interpretation of the trend. The fact that 18- year-olds can fight or are called into the armed services has no relevance at all. It is the cold fact that an 18-year boy is the best fighting machine and a cold hard fact that he is the most easily led. It is a cold hard fact that when we get into an all-out fight that we need to call on all of our young men that we can get. I hope the day will come when we won't need to do that, but to say because an 18-year-old can fight, he should be allowed to vote, I think there is no relevance whatsoever. I think the matter of voting is much more closely connected with the age of majority. When the time comes to lower the age of majority to 18, then perhaps the time will have come to lower the voting age. I am fully in sympathy with the intent of getting more education into the school system leaning towards intelligent voting, but I see no reason why the first vote has to come while the young boy or girl is still in school, to make that education take hold. I see no harm of allowing the period to elapse between the end of school and the first vote for a maturing period, a period of observation and a period of continued study. After all, the trend is towards more and more children going on to college. Perhaps the day will arrive when they will all go to college. That completely removes the argument that they should be able to vote at the age of 18. I am a little concerned about the political machines working into the high schools and trying to capture this 18-year-old vote before they get out of high school. The fact that two states adopted this 18-year-old vote need not concern us here. We get a lot of reference to what other states have done. I think we can probably consider the matter in the light of our own State-to-be. I think that that about sums up my argument.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. LONDBORG.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I feel that if the age of 21 was some sort of hang-over, that is one hang-over that I approve of. It has been mentioned that the boys and the girls are through high school now, in other words they are through their schooling and they are on their own, they are getting a job, etc. Well, I think "grandpa" was through with his schooling long before that and he was out and he had a farm and probably had a family, at least probably married by that time - was well out on his own. He was in his rights in his day and age, but he still waited until he was 21, until he had learned a few things before he voted.

V. FISCHER: Point of order. We are discussing the lowering from 20 to 18, and the argument of whether it should be 21 is not really a part of this.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer, I believe the argument is relevant.

LONDBORG: My argument is to hold it to 20. I refer to 21 because it had been referred to before and had not been called, so I thought I could do it myself. As far as the war is concerned, I certainly feel sorry for any boy who has to go at that age and fight and cannot vote and say whether he should go or not, but at the same time I do not know if that necessarily means that they should vote at that age. True, medical science has probably enabled the boys and girls to be taller and bigger at a younger age. I don't know how much that has affected the growth of the brain. The life expectancy is more, so that if even if it is held at 20, they have more opportunities to vote. Another argument that comes up in the lowering of the age is the fact that they can fly jets at 18, 19, or 20, and therefore, should be able to vote. Some parents have suddenly woke up and found their sons to be jet pilots when yesterday they denied them the use of the car. I wonder if some of these jet-age young people could go back in grand-pa's day and drive the old mule. I think the age should be held as we have it here in our proposal at 20, I would go even a point further, but that would be out of order right now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: As the youngest member of this body, I think I am entitled to speak on the question. The reference to Mr. Londborg's remark about grand-pa getting married at 20 or 21 - I got married at 18 and I think at 18 I was just as qualified as anybody, maybe not as qualified as I am now. I think the majority of our young people are qualified to vote at 18, and therefore, I think they should have the privilege of voting if they so choose.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson.

ROBERTSON: I agree with the views expressed by Mr. White and Mr. Londborg. When you speak about fighting and making the draft age the age of maturity, I don't think there is any logic to it. As a matter of fact, at least the Union men in the Civil War were taken into war at 16 years of age, but I don't think that qualified them to vote, and we all know there were thousands of the Southern boys who were good soldiers long before they were 16. I don't think it is logical to say that our children are maturing more quickly. I don't think our children mature as fast nowadays as they did 50 or 100 years ago. I think the whole tendency of the age is to shove our age limits upwards so to make them take more education, go through more to prepare for their life work, and the labor laws themselves won't even permit them to work until they are 18, except in certain protected instances. And I think this is a great mistake to put this age limit down and I hope they vote against the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I hope we get right down to the issue here now and draw aside the curtains of things that really don't apply to this matter at all. One of those things is how old a man should be when he fights. That has nothing to do with what has been proposed here or how old he should be when he pays taxes. What we are talking about is how old he should be when he is allowed to vote in our elections. I believe it does not follow automatically, I've been told by attorneys that it does not, that if we establish the voting age at 18 or 20 or whatever, that the age at which a person would be admitted to a bar would automatically be the same. We can legislate or we can set up in our constitution, requirements of minimum age for persons to be served alcoholic liquor and we can make it 35 or we can make it 50 and it wouldn't be discriminatory anymore than it is discriminatory to say that no man shall be a candidate for the state senate unless he is 30. We are not thereby discriminating against all people between the ages of 21 and 30. We are setting up an age requirement for the specific thing which is under consideration. The specific thing under consideration here is the age that young people or any people may vote. I believe that when a young man or woman has reached the age of 20 he or she is sufficiently well versed in what our government and what our kind of life is about to be qualified to vote. In fact, I think many of the people between the ages of 18 and 21 probably know a great deal more and are better qualified to vote than some of the old folks of 70 and older and all of them now are allowed to vote. So I would hope that when we vote on this that we think only of the one issue -- how old should a person be to vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: Now that this discussion came up about the 20-and 18-year-old I remember when I was going to law school and we had a gentleman who was elected governor of the state and he was going to address the children of one of the large high schools in the State of Florida and he was having a lot of difficulty with his speech, in preparing his speech, and we were talking about it in the lunch room, and he says, "You know, it is pretty tough to address these people that are graduating. They are a lot smarter than these people I have been used to addressing, and I can't give them the old hell and brimstone speech; they won't accept it." That is what came to my mind when he said that politicians will probably get in there and sway the 18-year-olds. I am going to vote for the 18-year-olds for one selfish reason and then for other reasons because I think they deserve it. I recall when they had all this business in Korea and some of the soldiers said, "Why should I fight? I can't vote." I think that we are going to be fighting again, and I think if they have the privilege to vote it will raise their morale. It is possible. If we raise the morale in one or two divisions some day we might be glad we did it. It seems to me that if there is some hope that lowering the age to 18 will eventually cause these individuals to participate more in government -- they get out of high school and they can see they are going to vote -- there won't be a two-or three-year-void there, I think we ought to give them the privilege on that account alone because it will train them for it. They'll realize when they get out of high school, they can vote. If they go in the service they know they are fighting for the Republic or whatever it is, they can vote in it, I would not mind having 18-year-olds on juries. I have had some experience with juries, and I don't think that if we had 18-year-olds on the jury that it would lower the standards of the jury system. In fact, I think it would probably strengthen them because the educational standards have risen over the years. I feel pretty strongly about this, and I think the 18-year-olds are entitled to vote, and I don't think that the legal age to contract has anything to do with the right to vote. There is no relationship between the two. If you want to keep 18-year-olds out of the bars, you can do it although you let them vote. I can probably name you a lot of people who would be in favor of keeping everybody that's not 60 years old out of the bars and probably would get a lot of support for it. You will find a lot of 35-year-olds who need that prohibition as much as the 18-year-olds, I really think this body should think about it because the world situation like it is I think it would raise the morale of the American troops if you allowed 18-year-olds to vote.

MCNEES: I rise also to speak in favor of the motion, largely in support of Mr. Sundborg's views. We are granting here primarily the right to vote at the age of 18, and I think they should have the right to vote at that time. I do not think we need to worry about the other consideration, relative to jury duty, bars, etc. I think perhaps some of those 18-year-olds might carry their responsibilities better than some of the older folks. I favor the amendment, drop the voting age to 18.

ARMSTRONG: I am in the position of the old deacon who was asked how he was going to make up his mind on a particular vote and he said, "I haven't made up my mind yet but I'll be mean about it." It is difficult for me because there are some questions that are not clearly answered. Mr. Sundborg is not the chief justice of the supreme court of the State of Alaska and what he has stated of what will happen does not satisfy me in the eventualities as we lower our age range. If I can be satisfied in my own mind that in the transitions, that these other matters of contract, of the legal age of the bars and all, of entrance into the bars, if that can be handled I would feel much clearer in my own conscience in this matter of voting. So I would ask if that could be cleared up, it would certainly help me because I don't want to vote on the basis of a motion. I don't want to vote "yes" for 18-year-olds just because that is the popular thing to do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to having a five-minute recess at this time and perhaps legal minds can get together and solve this question? If there is no objection the Convention is at recess for five minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN; The Convention will come to order. Mrs. Wien, had you been trying to get the floor?

WIEN: I thought perhaps that as a mother of three children who have recently gone through the 18-and 20-year-old stage,

I would like to say what I think. I would oppose the amendment. My children, and most children, are in high school until they are 18. They have been taught theory. They have not been taught as much practical living as the young people 50 and 100 years ago who had to get out at 14 and 15 and earn a living. After they got out of high school, they either worked or went to the university where the type of education put you more on your initiative. This is a subject which I have not only decided by observation but have talked over with my young people at home. They agreed that when they got out of high school, before they had the practical experience of working or going to a university they would not have made intelligent voters until they had been able to put into practice some of the theory they had been taught in high school. I might also mention that although you consider the draft age 18 (and I think it is too low) before these boys are put out to fighting, they go through a training period or sort of a practical period a step between their high school and going into actual war. I might mention, it was brought up that there are certain labor restrictions until they are 18. That also restricts them from having practical experience in working before they get to vote. I would also like to say that I don't know how there are any jet pilots in the 18-to 20-year-old class since our United States services make a requirement of 20-1/2 years before a man can go into pilot training in any of the services. I am for the 20-year-old age.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, those points were very well presented. I think we should hear from Mrs. Wien more often. There have been many arguments here as to why an 18-year-old should be allowed to vote. Education, military service, etc., have been pointed out here. None of those are really potent arguments because the chief qualification of the voter is that of good judgment and the ability to make decisions. It is true that our young people are better educated at a younger age than ever before. But as Mrs. Wien pointed out, that is education in theory. Fifty years ago people at that age would have had more practical experience in battling with the world and taking care of themselves and would have had better judgment. Now all I have to go on is my own experience. I can remember when I was 18 and 16, and at the age of 16 I joined the regular army, voluntarily. That proves I did not have good judgment at that time, and at the age of 19 I re-enlisted -- that proves I did not have good judgment then. (Laughter) As time goes on and I look five years back, I always think I have better judgment than I had five years ago. But I believe, in turning it over in my own mind, that 21 is the best age, but I will agree, that a man begins to form better considered opinions on these matters at around 20 than he would at 18. Just because he has a fit body and is a good fighting machine does not mean he should be able to vote. As a matter of fact, when a man goes in the army he is told what to do at every turn. As soon as he has a fit body he makes a good fighter. I want to repeat that the principal qualification of a voter should be able to judge between different situations, between different arguments and issues and be able to make the proper decisions, and only age and experience can accomplish that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Boswell.

BOSWELL: Mr. President, I wish to speak in favor of the age of 20. I have run a kind of Gallup poll on this myself among the teen-agers, and I don't find that there is too much interest from them in voting at the age of 18. I have heard much the same thing as Mrs. Wien has mentioned. They feel at the age of 18, they get out of high school and they don't have that judgment. I suggested to one of the professors here at the University that this would be an opportunity for the students here at the University to help this Convention if they would run some sort of a poll and see what the students wanted. He said he had suggested that to some of his classes do that and he could not find much interest in it. He said he would suggest it again to the Student Body President and we have heard nothing from them. I think that shows an apathy to the proposition, and here we are sitting trying to force this voting age down to 18 on these teen-agers, and I don't believe they are really interested in it, and I think when they think it over they come up with the idea of 20 as about the right age. In fact, I think they would rather see the draft age raised than the voting age lowered, and I firmly believe that 20 is the best age for the voting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. President, I would also like to speak in favor of the amendment. I have several points here in favor of it. I think if we are mentioning Gallup polls we should possibly ask the class that Mrs. Jones will bring out here tomorrow. I would not recommend we table the question for that purpose alone, but I think there would be very little doubt about what the class of Mrs. Jones would think. I largely think the question of whether 18-year-olds are capable of voting intelligently is one of education. Maybe it would be a very good thing if because of the lowering of the voting age, education would make a special effort to improve the instruction of civics in school. The question of whether a theoretical approach to all the voting problems is a disadvantage or not or that a practical approach is the only standard, is also debatable. I think very often we see the case when a man, the older he gets the more practical he gets, possibly too practical very often, so a little bit of the theoretical considerations being the prerogative of youth would not hurt, and I am last but not least speaking as a father of seven. I have some priority in that respect. I have only two sons I can speak for. I got a letter yesterday from my wife, and she said that our children that formerly very little listened to the radio, (we have no TV of course, we are behind the hill) they are rather uncivilized in a lot of respects, they don't read the funny papers and they are otherwise compelled by circumstances to think quite a bit and now my wife writes that the eight-year-old two days ago asked her and said, "What is a Democrat, what is a Republican, Mother?" So I think there is hope for the children of Alaska. Give them a good education. Make them think. I think the family, which they leave, roughly, when they are 18, the family is a repository of our political liberties and also of our fundamental civic education for children. I am afraid the older they get, the more extraneous will their interests be, the more superficial their interests will possibly become. Our whole civilization points to it. I think if we catch the political interests when they are young and leaving their family, providing that the families will foster that interest, I think that is the best thing to do for them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Mr. President, it is unfortunate that one of the only two farmers in the Convention has to disagree. I think there are two essential points which make me feel I must vote against the amendment. The one is that I have a feeling there will be a tendency to bring partisan politics into the high school senior class if this matter is dropped to the age of 18. I have seen the matter enough in universities in the lower levels when right after the war under the GI Bill of Rights there were great many young men of 21 in the colleges and many times there were very vicious sides taken in academic work in the matter of politics, that could creep into the senior class in high school. In Alaska we have a great many 18-year-olds as seniors in high school; we also have a great many 18-year-olds in lower grades. The other thing which worries me about dropping it to 18 is this matter of the tendency of a legislature to pass laws regarding moral matters with more leniency towards a younger age than 21. When we have a larger percentage of our voting population that will be younger than 21, there may be a tendency on the part of the legislators to think they will bring them into such matters as signing petitions for liquor licenses. I think presently it requires that you be a qualified elector and a resident of the area. Things like that could be dangerous. I had hoped probably that we might get to 19, but I think 20 is better than 18. I shall vote against the amendment.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, if we should vote for this 18, does that make him a citizen for purposes of contract? Can he be sued on the contracts in the courts?

HELLENTHAL: No, it does not automatically. It would take further legislation by the legislature to reduce the age of when you reach majority and similar problems. I personally think that practically, to reduce the age for voting from 20 to 18 would tend toward a relaxation such as you suggest, but it would not be necessary that it so happens.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, after much discussion I hesitate to rise and say further on the subject except it is a subject that I very likely should not speak on because in between times of making a living I have been running for some "office or other since I was elected as justice of the peace in 1927. The more popular side of this question probably would be to favor the 18-year-olds, but like Mrs. Wien and Mr. Boswell, I have children between the ages of 23 and 12 and having taken a poll, I am especially interested in the one who is presently 18 and does not feel that she should have the right to vote. Now I don't think that possibly the children should altogether control it. I would like to speak on the legal and political implication that could be involved here. I agree with Mr. Hellenthal that the laws regarding contracts, the laws regarding juveniles and jurors and to the ages at which they could buy intoxicating liquor are set by law now and would have to be changed before they would be allowed to do those various things, but the important thing to consider here is if a man is running for office, and there is a large number of voters between the ages of 18 and 21, there would be a large number there, what finer fodder for a politician to use than to go to a group and say, "Now you get behind me and support me and when I get to the legislature I will introduce a bill so you can buy an automobile without having your dad or mother sign on it," and that bill would be introduced and the members of the legislature thinking about themselves coming up for the legislature again and wanting to get this popular vote between the ages of 18 and 21 are going to go along to relax the standards. Now that is only the one example. I want to add this on a bit of levity here - it concerns me very much to have a boy of mine who cannot marry in the Territory, now without my consent until he is 21. I don't want him getting married and bringing home a wife before he is 21 so that I have to support both my boy and wife and my hands are pretty full now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nerland.

NERLAND: Mr. President, it rather amuses me that some of those who are speaking against this amendment and display concern because they feel that senior classes of our high schools might be invaded by politicians, did not have that concern a little while ago when we eliminated the requirement that a person be able to write before they be entitled to vote. I feel that as long as we have eliminated that requirement that the average 18-year-old today is much better qualified, much more familiar with current affairs and much more able to decide how he or she should vote than a person who is not able to write, and I am not making any reflections on those people, but I feel that our 18-year-olds of today are more progressive and more interested in civic affairs and the affairs of the Territory and the nation than they ever have been before, and if we give them the right to vote at 18 they will prepare themselves ahead of time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: One thing that we might take into consideration under this is the Territory itself, the new State of Alaska. We have a vast and wonderful country here, and in order to develop it we have got to also encourage people to come to Alaska and to develop it. We call ourselves a new country, a land of opportunity, and if we are going to lure young people from the states and from the large cities and paths already molded for them, if we produce at this Convention the intention of the Alaskan people to welcome young people to the Territory, this is the best way we can do it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr, McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, I am sure that none of the senior or junior ladies present here in this Convention were ever members of the "bloomer girls" and I am quite sure that none of them ever marched in a suffrage parade, but my recollection is, dimly, that the same arguments that are being used here against 18-year-olds were the arguments that we used approximately 35 years ago against women's vote. The history of the thing goes back about 90 years when they removed the curtain of coverture from married women and permitted them for the first time to contract. The arguments were against it. They didn't feel that women were capable of managing their own affairs. They did not feel that women were capable of voting and would be unduly swayed, in a sense, by their husbands and by the temperance societies to which they belonged. None of those arguments have any particular pertinence here. The argument is, do the 18-year-olds possess mature judgment and competent education these days. The suggestion is that some of these people, the professional politicians, certainly none of whom are present here in this Convention, might invade the high schools or the colleges. My recollection is that our chief machines in all of our large cities are not based upon their ability to sway you but their ability to sway Ignorance and to sway ethnic groups. My recollection is that in one of the recent municipal campaigns in the city of Chicago, the only idea or ideal of reform emanated from the University of Chicago, and only in that area did any reform element indicate any sizeable vote. The suggestion that the high schools would be invaded is a little bit ridiculous. If the high schools will be invaded, why haven't the universities been invaded on the same principle? The fact is, they haven't been. Youth at 18 is idealistic and they certainly vote historically on a much better and much higher plane than do their elders. X think it is unjust to suggest that 18 is not competent to vote. I rather suspect that age is not competent any longer to adjudge youth. I am in favor of the 18-year-old voting age.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I think the sole criterion here as to whether an 18-year-old is competent to vote or note, I feel that is not the sole criterion by a long shot, I was interested in the use of the word "progressive" by Mr. Nerland. I was waiting for someone to say that because I think a number of people interested in this question are laboring under the delusion that this is a progressive measure. I don't feel that it is, I think it is regressive. I was interested In what Mr. Hellenthal had to say In that connection because I agreed that while lowering this voting age to 18 may not immediately result in all the dire consequences that have been suggested, it is certainly tending in that direction. I say It Is going directly contrary to the whole trend of development in this country in this matter. We have labored to take the children out of the factories. We have labored to keep them in the schools longer. We would hope to keep them out of the army longer. We are proud of the fact that age is increasing, we have many more years of life expectancy now than we had some years ago. We have many more years to fight the battle of life but I think the whole tendency should be given this increase life expectancy to devote a little longer time to preparing young people for taking part in life. I don't feel this is a progressive measure at all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Here's another case where you are on both sides of the question again. Basically I see this as, the 18-year-olds' in high school, we'll say that 50 per cent now my contacts with high schools, they are dependents, they eat, sleep, and work and so on, and somebody else pays the bill. They are just removed from one year – now they do have apathy all right in politics. Anyone that is given no part of any affair, naturally has an apathy. I think if they are given the right to vote you will find that apathy disappears. Now I object to this void in our society. With juveniles and these school children up to 18, then for three years they are nothing. They are not juveniles, they're not adults, they go around for three years, and then we make them over night. What I see wrong with this thing is this 18-year-old and the reason for the 18-year-old is due to our present society of school. We still have them in school, and they are going to school and coming home, and they are still dependent. I don't put them in the same dependence as Mr. McLaughlin had the women, because I think the women were earning their pay all the time in those days. But I do believe that at this time and I want the debate carried out, I think we have covered the 18 and 20, and if at this time I could amend the motion to 19, we may carry this out. That may be a complete new amendment, we should not bring it in, but if I am in the middle, I would like to have my amendment in the middle.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray, it would be a complete new amendment. It would be in order later but at this time it would not be in order because it would completely eliminate the proposed amendment.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

ROBERTSON: I second it.

V. FISCHER: As the maker of the motion I think I am entitled to speak.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If the previous question was not seconded, then it --

V. RIVERS: Point of order, Mr. President, The motion was seconded by Mr. Robertson.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Was it seconded?

ROBERTSON: Yes, I seconded it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The previous question was seconded, the question then is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?"

BARR: Point of order, Mr. President. Was it not agreed here that we should not limit debate on these matters by moving the previous question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, Mr. Barr, it was not agreed. If a delegate wishes to resort to moving the previous question and it is seconded, the Chair will have no other alternative but to vote on it.

COGHILL: As mover of the motion I yield to the maker of the motion.

V. RIVERS: Point of order. There are three makers of the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order is well taken, Mr. Rivers. If there is no objection, Mr. Coghill has withdrawn his motion for the question. Mr. Fischer, you have the floor.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, there was reference made here to apathy, and as Mr. Gray pointed out, one of the problems has been a divorcing of the young men and women from political life. One of the major problems of the United States, as well as Alaska today, is nonvoting. There have been numerous studies that have shown that the age group that is most guilty of nonvoting is the age group of 21 to 30. Now there you have a good example that having this break probably constitutes one of the main reasons for nonvoters. A partial solution has been suggested in one of the studies to the problem of nonvoting, in the laying of more stress on broad civic education from early youth through adulthood. That is part of it. Let's start educating them in high school and getting them right into the voting habit. Maybe when they first start voting they may not be the best voter or the most intelligent voter, or maybe only ten per cent of them will vote, but the point is, once you give them the franchise, once you get them started voting, I think that it will be something they will keep on doing through the rest of their life, because once they vote, they will keep right on voting. In conclusion, I would like to say that at a previous meeting it was pointed out that if passed, our Judiciary article as written and pretty much as approved so far, will be a model throughout the United States. Well, I would say that in terms of the people of the United States we will show more progress, so far as they are concerned, if we adopt the 18-year-old voting age, because the majority of the people have, through Gallup polls, expressed a definite preference for the 18-year-old voting age.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: In closing, I want to make a mention also of just what we are doing if we adopt this amendment. Our figures show there are 70,000 eligible voters in Alaska at the present time. If we adopt this motion we will increase that by approximately seven per cent. We will bring into eligibility approximately 5,000 more voters. Our records show that the average voting has been around 25 per cent. I can see where the amount that would vote then would be around 1,500 people added to our present voting strength. It would seem to me that would not be an inducement for the politicians to invade the schools any more than he does at the present time, any more than he seeks votes any place else.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion, then, the question is, "Shall the proposed amendment as offered by Mr. Fischer, Mr. Sundborg, and Mr. Victor Rivers be adopted by the Convention?"

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 23 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Emberg, V. Fischer, Harris, Hilscher, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, Mr. President.

Nays: 30 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Davis, Doogan, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Reader, Robertson, Rosswog, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White, Wien.

Absent: 2 - H. Fischer, Smith.)

LONDBORG: My name was not called. My vote will be "no".

CHIEF CLERK: "No". I am sorry. 23 yeas, 30 nays and 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: SO the proposed amendment has failed of adoption. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mr. President, I have an amendment for Section No. 1.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees has a proposed amendment for Section No. 1.

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, I have the same proposal.

COGHILL: So have I.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is it all right to put everyone's name on this, Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Yes.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 1, line 2, delete the figure '20' and insert the figure '19'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG; Mr. President, may I rise to a point of information? What is our rule on the mover of the motion getting the last word? That is the rule, is it not?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Is that in the singular or the plural, the mover?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course, in the case where there were several authors of the particular motion the Chair would hold that, in effect, they were just one-third of each and that they should be allowed the privilege of having some say if they so desired, If they were the author of the proposed amendment.

LONDBORG: I realize that is the technicality there. In other words, if I want to make a motion I get five coauthors then we five can wind up debate then?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is if no one moves the previous question and they shut you off from debate.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for my other two coauthors that this amendment be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any objection from these people who have offered this amendment that other names be put on this amendment? The Chief Clerk will please read the proposed amendment and who the authors are.

CHIEF CLERK: Offered by Mr. McNees, Mr. Gray, and Mr. Coghill. "Line 2, Section 1, delete the figure '20' and insert the figure '19'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the amendment be adopted?"

SUNDBORG: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following re-sult:

Yeas: 28 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, Mr. President.

Nays: 24 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Doogan, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, Metcalf, Nolan, Poulsen, Reader, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White, Wien.

Absent: 3 - H. Fischer, McNealy, Smith.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy was called but he was not here when the question was put. The Chief Clerk may proceed.

CHIEF CLERK: 28 yeas, 24 nays and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the yeas have it and the proposed amendment has been adopted. Are there other amendments to Section 1?

ROBERTSON: I have one on the Chief Clerk's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment to Section 1.

CHIEF CLERK: There are three amendments to raise the age to 21. Those are to be thrown out then?

R. RIVERS: I was about to say right early in the game I favored either 18 or 21 but not the 20, so I did introduce one to change it to 21.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that Mr. Ralph Rivers' amendment?

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. White and Mr. Robertson, also. They are all the same.

R. RIVERS: I voted for 19 so I wish to withdraw my amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers asks that his amendment be withdrawn. Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, is it my understanding there is an amendment for 21 now? We would have to rescind our action then.

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, we wouldn't have to rescind our action, Mr. Coghill.

CHIEF CLERK: Well, it's not right when it says to strike the number "20" through.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now, of course, anyone who would offer an amendment to make it 21 would have to strike the word "19" because we have adopted the age of 19. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Were those amendments on the Secretary's desk before we got this last one? It seems to me that the amendments ought to be taken in the order they were received on the Secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course Mrs. Sweeney, the Chair will agree with you, but inasmuch as the delegates moved around rather quickly and got their amendments up there, it caused a little state of confusion up here. The Chair would admonish the delegates not to push in their amendments too fast.

SWEENEY: I don't think there should be that confusion. They should be put on the bottom of the stack when received in order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You're right, Mrs. Sweeney. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: My proposed amendment was on the desk before the "19" amendment was offered by any one of the three delegates.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that correct?

CHIEF CLERK: Yes, it is.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, It's still in order, Mr. Robertson. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Point of order. I wonder If it is not correct and if the Chair would not rule that amendments are considered in the order in which the mover is recognized by the Chair and given the floor and the right to make the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg, you are correct, but the Chair feels that Mrs. Sweeney is correct inasmuch as the Chair should have recognized the fact there were other amendments on the table. The reason that error was made was that there had been such a terrific amount of time between the time that these original amendments had been placed on the Secretary's desk that the Chair forgot that.

SUNDBORG: Were the persons who wrote out the amendments seeking recognition at that time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, they were not.

SUNDBORG: I think there is no doubt about it then that we acted correctly and in order in recognizing the person who got the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We acted correctly inasmuch as the Chair recognized the maker of the proposed amendment, yes, Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I move and ask unanimous consent that we rescind our action on the 19-year-old vote we just took.

MCCUTCHEON: I object.

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that the Convention rescind its action on the vote on the amendment that was just adopted. It will require a two-thirds vote of the delegates to accomplish that. Your point of information, Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: If this motion fails to rescind our action on the 19, then any other amendments such as substituting "21" would be out of order, is that correct?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, that is not right, Mr. Doogan. Mr. McNees?

MCNEES: Mrs. Sweeney and Mr. Johnson, why was action not taken earlier to call attention to the amendments on the floor?

SWEENEY: It has always been my opinion that amendments on the Secretary's desk were read in the order received, and it does not necessarily mean that when action is taken on one that you have to have three or six people hopping up to get notice on their amendment. The next amendment would be called and then the person would move the adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: This discussion is out of order. It has already been taken care of, and we have the motion before us to rescind the action that we just took in changing the voting age from 20 to 19 years of age. The question is, "Shall the Convention rescind its action?" Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: Mr. Chairman, it is debatable, is it not?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, it is debatable, Mr. Kilcher.

KILCHER: I suggest to the movers of the motion to raise the age to 21, that they abolish the action by amending it according to their new amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Kilcher, we have the motion to rescind before us, and the question is, "Shall the Convention rescind its action just taken in changing the voting age in Section 1 from 20 years to read '19 years'?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 20 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Cooper, Doogan, Hermann, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, Reader, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh.

Nays: 33 - Barr, Buckalew, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 2 - H. Fischer, Smith.)

CHIEF CLERK: 20 yeas, 33 nays, 2 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the rescinding action has failed of passage. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, I have two proposed amendments to Article 1 on the table, and as I understand the ruling of the Chair, in one I said, "Section 1, line 2 delete the word '20'." I ask permission to change that from "delete the word '19' and insert the word '21'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will delete the word "20" then and insert the word "19". Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, if we are in the practice of combining similar motions, I would ask mine to be combined in a similar manner with Mr. Robertson's.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson, what is your pleasure regarding this amendment? Do you move its adoption?

ROBERTSON: I move the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson moves adoption of his amendment. The Chief Clerk will read the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 1, line 2, delete '19' and insert '21' in lieu thereof."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson, do you agree to have Mr. White's name on there?

ROBERTSON: That is entirely agreeable to me.

TAYLOR: I want my name on there and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor wants his name on there, too. Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I object. I would like to appeal the ruling of the Chair and ask for a five minute recess to bring before the Rules Committee the fact of changing the Intent of an amendment to an original motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, the Chair would like to state that the particular section read as it came to us, "20 years" on line 2, Section 1. There has been no amendment attempting to change that to the age of 21, this particular amendment before us now is an entirely different amendment than any other we have considered.

COGHILL: Maybe I'm a little confused, Mr. President, but attempt was made to rescind the action and the action failed and so therefore does it not prevail that that amendment – but I would like to have it stated clearly, we are in fact working on the adoption of Section 1 of our report, is that right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That's right Mr. Coghill, the Chair believes that he realizes what you think and that is that the rescinding action precluded any further amendment. That is not true. The rescinding action had the affect of saying that the Convention would not rescind the action on that particular motion that had just been made, but it does not preclude offering another motion of a different category. Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: I rise to a point of information. I was just wondering if it is in order to delete the amendment you have just adopted, the "19"?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is in order Mr. Peratrovich, if the Convention so chooses.

PERATROVICH: I realize we do have the authority to amend an amendment but after it is adopted I question the propriety of deleting it after it has been adopted. Otherwise, we'll be here all day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, if you change it to something other than has been proposed before, It is in order, the Chair will rule. Mr. Laws.

LAWS: Just for a little information, are we going to vote now on something that already is a law? It is the law to vote at 21. We are going to vote the same law we have right now?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Laws, you are correct inasmuch as it is the law of the Territory but it isn't the law of the new state yet. Mr. Barr.

BARR: I move that we recess until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning subject to notices of committee meetings.

COOPER: I object.

VANDERLEEST: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr moves, Mr. VanderLeest seconds, that the Convention adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning subject to notices of committee meetings. Are there reports of committees?

HELLENTHAL: I rise to a point of order. Subject to announcements of committee meetings -- should not the announcements be taken after the vote?

PRESIDENT EGAN: After the vote, if the vote carries, we probably would not be able to catch them. If there are announcements of committee meetings they should be made right now. The question is, "Shall the Convention stand at recess until 9 a.m. tomorrow?" All those in favor say "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the Convention is still in session. Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I move that we stand at recess for five minutes.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection we will stand at recess for five minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, during the recess I ascertained that Mr. Robertson's motion, after the objection to the unanimous consent filed by Mr. Coghill, was not seconded. I now wish to second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds Mr. Robertson's motion to delete the word "19" and insert "21". Mr. Robertson.

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, after all the discussion I don't know that much can be added on my motion, which Mr. White joins me. I want to state that I think it is a great mistake to lower the standards of the exercise of the right of suffrage. I reiterate, in my opinion, it is the greatest privilege and right of the American people and instead of lowering the standards we ought to, if anything, consider raising the standards, and I hope sincerely the delegates will vote for my amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Robertson's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I don't want to hold this up too much longer. I think we have arrived at something that's neither "fish nor fowl". Naturally, I am still in favor of 21, I don't see what we can accomplish by making the age 19. I would like to see the issue clear cut. I still think one of the greatest difficulties in lowering it is that you create the discrepancy in the age of majority and the age of voting and that objection still remains whether it's 19 or some other age.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 19 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Doogan, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, Metcalf, Nolan, Reader, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, White.

Nays: 33 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Stewart, Sundborg, Walsh, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 3 - H. Fischer, Smith, VanderLeest.)

ARMSTRONG: I would like to change my vote to "yes".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Reverend Armstrong asks that his vote be changed to "yes".

CHIEF CLERK: 19 yeas, 33 nays and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed for adoption. Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: I would like to give notice of reconsideration of my vote on it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: How did Mr. McNealy vote?

CHIEF CLERK: He voted "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy serves notice of a reconsideration of his vote. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I asked for the floor before Mr. Rivers.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to know if the reconsideration by Mr. McNealy precludes any further amendments? I have an amendment I wish to offer.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The notice of reconsideration would preclude the offering of any other amendments the Chair would feel. Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. Chairman, I will move that the rules be suspended and that Mr. McNealy be given an opportunity for reconsideration of his vote at this time.

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded that Mr. McNealy's reconsideration of his vote be taken at this time. Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Point of information. Is he considering his vote or is he going to ask we reconsider the whole question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No, his vote on this particular proposed amendment that just failed, Mr. Hurley. It will take a two-thirds majority vote to carry Mr. McCutcheon's motion. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I believe that is a suspension of the rules and it takes a two-thirds vote to suspend them so as to make Mr. McNealy's motion come on for hearing now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Yes, that is right.

WHITE: Parliamentary inquiry. If this suspension of the rules vote passes, does that preclude Mr. McNealy of again serving notice of reconsideration of vote on the question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It does, there is but one reconsideration on a vote on a question. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I move that the Convention stand adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved and seconded -- Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: I would like to make a committee announcement.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog, you would like to make a committee announcement?

ROSSWOG: Yes, that is that the Local Government Committee No. XII will meet at 8:15 this evening in our committee room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog announces a meeting of the Local Government Committee this evening at 8:15 in the committee room. The question is, "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow?" All those In favor of the adjourning the Convention will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and so the Convention will stay in session.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair had already announced the decision, before there was any roll call request.

V. FISCHER: I move to adjourn.

PERATROVICH: There has to be some other business taken care of before you can renew the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich, your point is well taken. The question is, "Shall the reconsideration of Mr. McNealy's motion be ordered at this time?" The Chief Clerk will call the roll on Mr. McNealy's motion to reconsider. Mr. McCutcheon asked that the reconsideration be ordered at this time.

JOHNSON: The question is a suspension of the rules?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is right, to suspend the rules in order that Mr. McNealy's motion be taken up at this time.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 20 - Awes, Buckalew, Coghill, Emberg, V. Fischer, Harris, Hilscher, Lee, McCutcheon, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Stewart, Sundborg, Mr. President.

Nays: 32 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Reader, Robertson, Rosswog, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White, Wien-

Absent: 3 - H. Fischer, Smith, VanderLeest.)

CHIEF CLERK: 20 yeas, 32 nays and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I wonder if I may be allowed to address an inquiry to the Chairman of the Committee on Suffrage with respect to the article before us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may proceed, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Hellenenthal, I am bothered by the final sentence of the section which says, "This section shall not apply to any citizen who legally voted at the general election of November 4, 1924." The section as it seems to me is one that permits persons to vote. The whole sentence preceding the one I have just read is one saying that persons who possess the following qualifications "shall be qualified to vote" and if we take this literally what that final sentence says that any person who shall have voted in the general election of November 4, 1924, shall not be qualified to vote. Was that the intention of the Committee?

HELLENTHAL: That isn't what it says. It says that "any citizen who legally voted at the general election of November 4, 1924" may vote. And as to that small class of people, we are following the rule that the United States Congress has had in effect since 1924, that if they were citizens, and secondly if they voted at that November 4, 1924 election, they shall continue to be entitled to vote, irrespective of any other qualifications set forth.

SUNDBORG: Well, I submit that that is not what your section says. What your sections says is that citizens who legally voted in 1924 shall not be qualified to vote. It says that this section does not apply to that and it is a section that permits people to vote. I think perhaps your intention was that no person who voted at this general election of November 4, 1924, shall be barred from voting by anything in this section. Was that your intention?

HELLENTHAL: That is correct.

SUNDBORG: Do you agree with me that you say exactly the opposite.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg, the Chair will declare a five-minute recess.

R. RIVERS: I move that we adjourn until 9:05 tomorrow morning.

BARR: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Ralph Rivers moves that we adjourn until 9:05 tomorrow morning, seconded by Mr. Barr.

V. RIVERS: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following re-sult:

Yeas: 40 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins,

Cooper, Cross, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hinckel, Johnson, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, R. Rivers, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, White, Wien.

Nays: 12 - Buckalew, Coghill, Davis, Harris, Hurley, Laws, McCutcheon, McNealy, McNees, Peratrovich, Walsh, Mr. President.

Absent: 3 - H. Fischer, Smith, VanderLeest.)

CHIEF CLERK: 40 yeas, 12 nays and 3 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the Convention stands adjourned until 9:05 a.m. tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 13, 1955

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Reverend B. P. Wilson of the Assembly of God Church is with us and will give our daily invocation.

REVEREND WILSON: Our God and Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy goodness to our land. We thank Thee for Thy blessing upon us and for Thy mercy towards its people. Thou hast said in Thy word, "that righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people. Thou hast been gracious to us and shown mercy to us. Now we pray for Thy special grace and Thy special blessing upon the framers of this constitution as they labor with the problems that come before them and they need wisdom and grace from Thy hand. Thou hast promised in Thy Word that the meek will He guide in judgment, the meek will He teach His way and if any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not and it shall be given him. Give that understanding and that wisdom that God only can impart so that this shall be a righteous document and will be pleasing and acceptable in the sight of God Almighty. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to state Mr. Ralph Rivers has a sore throat and perhaps will be here later in the day.

CHIEF CLERK: One absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with the regular order of business. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, the Committee to read the journal asks unanimous consent to delay the report until tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the report of the Committee to read the journal will be delayed until tomorrow. The Chair would like to state at this time that in the event, in the course of offering amendments, that many delegates offer amendments from their desks and the Sergeant at Arms is called to pick them up and bring them to the desk of the Secretary, that there is hardly anything the Chair can do if another delegate rises, is recognized and offers another amendment. Just because the amendments have been offered to the Secretary does not preclude the right of any other delegate to get up on the floor and be recognized and offer an amendment. The Chair cannot see how it would be possible to determine, when the Sergeant at Arms brings in a handful of amendments, which were handed to him first. Although, if no other amendments would be offered from the floor, if no other delegate rose and was recognized by the Chair, of course the Chair would ask if there are amendments on the Secretary's desk. But it should be up to the delegate to try to stay on top of his amendment that he has offered and attempt to get the floor and be recognized. The Chair feels that the delegates can recognize the difficulty there would be in the affairs of the Chair if he had to assume that other amendments were there and that someone rose from the delegation and offered a different amendment. It would be pretty hard to tell a delegate to sit down, that someone had just merely sent an amendment up to the Secretary's desk. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? Are there reports of standing committees? Reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Are there any motions or resolutions? Mr. Coghill?

COGHILL: Mr. President, after the fine display last night of two documentary films, I move and ask unanimous consent that the Secretary be instructed to write Mr. Whaley of the Alaska Visitors Association and Colonel Farrell of the Corps of Engineers, thanking them for the opportunity of the delegates to view these pictures and also a letter of appreciation to the Dean of Mines for the use of his building.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the letters will be written. Is there any other unfinished business? Mr. Barr?

BARR: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that our permanent Rule No. 38 be referred to the Rules Committee for study and interpretation. That is, the one saying the mover has the right to speak last on the subject. In view of the fact that the word "mover" is in the singular, I believe we should have a ruling on whether that includes one or more being able to speak last.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, last night the President went through the rules, too and came to the very definite conclusion that if, as occurred here yesterday several people put their name on the same amendment that this rule would mean that the mover of the motion would be the last to speak and that regardless of whether there were four or five on the particular proposed amendment or motion. Would that answer your question?

BARR: That will.

PRESIDENT EGAN: When the question was brought up yesterday the Chair had not given enough thought to this particular problem, but that will be the ruling of the Chair, that the actual mover of the motion, regardless of how many names are on a particular amendment or proposal.

BARR: I will withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are now back to Committee Proposal No. 1. Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to announce that there will be a luncheon meeting of the Resources Committee, if that is in order at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A luncheon meeting of the Resources Committee at 12:15.

SMITH: In the small anteroom in the cafeteria.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith announces he will have a luncheon meeting of his Committee. We have before us Committee Proposal No. 1. Mr. McNealy's motion to reconsider is before us at this time. Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, unless the Chair has called attention to it I feel obliged to move to have my vote of yesterday reconsidered at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy serves notice that his reconsideration be taken up at this time.

JOHNSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall the word or figure '19' be changed to read '21'?" The motion is debatable. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, I have what is in the nature of a question to put to some of the legal beagles in the Convention regarding this proposal that is now before us -- that is regarding the motion to reconsider and the question of whether or not the figure "19" should be changed to "21". Since yesterday I had occasion to look at the United States Constitution and I think, as most of you will remember, the 14th Amendment provides, among other things, that, "The electors for the members of Congress shall be 21 years of age and male." Now the only other mentions on suffrage in the Federal Constitution that I was able to find are the 15th and 19th Amendments. The 15th Amendment, as you may recall, provides that, "There shall be no discrimination as to voting on account of race, creed or previous condition of servitude." There is no mention of age in that particular amendment. The next amendment that deals with suffrage is the 19th which gave the right to vote to women. This amendment likewise is silent on the question of age. Therefore, it occurs to me that so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned and so far as voting for president and members of Congress, an elector must be at least 21 years of age. Now it was pointed out yesterday that many states in the Union have the age limit fixed at 21. I was unable to find any record of any state except Georgia that did not have the age limit at 21. However, I was told this morning that recently the State of Kentucky has reduced it. But the question that occurs to me is that suppose we reduce the age to 19 or anything less than 21, would these people still have the right to vote for president and for members of Congress from the State of Alaska as long as the Federal Constitution fixes that age at 21? I have not been able to find an answer to that question. However, it occurs to me and it seems to me one that is rather serious. The President of the United States, Mr. Eisenhower, in 1954 requested Congress to pass an amendment to the Federal Constitution reducing the age from 21 to 19. A bill amending the Federal Constitution was introduced and in the session of Congress then attending and it was defeated in the Senate by a vote of 34 to 24 on May 21, 1954. Now, what I wish to call attention to particularly is that apparently it was thought necessary that in order to change the voting age it would require an amendment to the Federal Constitution, so it seems to me that 21 years of age is fixed by our Federal Constitution. We have already adopted the Federal Constitution so far as it applies to Alaska, and it seems to me that if we are going to vote for president and for members of Congress in the State of Alaska we would still have to be 21 years of age. I simply raise this point because there is that question in my mind, and I don't know what the Congress will say if we go back there with a provision that voters may be less than 21 years of age.

RILEY: Point of order, Mr. President. Far be it from me to limit debate or suggest it, but I think we ought to be operating under a suspension because our own rules say that motion for reconsideration shall not be amendable or debatable. That is rule 33.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley, the Chair will have to take the advice of the Chairman of the Rules Committee. The Chair was just proceeding under the regular rule on reconsideration. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: Mr. President, how are we going to delete this talk here?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will hold that the talk is out of order.

HURLEY: I will move and ask unanimous consent that the rules be suspended and the argument hold forth.

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hurley moves and asks unanimous consent that the rules be suspended. Mr. Metcalf seconds the motion. Is there objection? If there is no objection, debate will be forthcoming. Mr. Hellenenthal.

HELLENTHAL: In answer to Mr. Johnson's statement, the matter of elections, of the presidential election, is governed by state law, and to state that the 14th Amendment prescribes the voting age is incorrect. The 14th Amendment does not prescribe the voting age for the states. I am quite familiar with this problem because during the war I was the soldier voting officer for the entire Pacific Ocean Area's Command, and at that time we arranged for the voting of some 300,000 soldiers stationed through the entire Pacific. Each soldier voted according to the laws of his particular state. The matter of suffrage is a state problem under the Federal Constitution and is not governed by the Federal Constitution. Now it is possible, according to some legal theories, that the Federal government could prescribe the age and other conditions of voting for the states. However, as Mr. Johnson stated, the Federal government has hesitated to assume that responsibility -- first, because it would be of questionable legality and second, it is primarily under our form of government a matter for each state to determine. Now to refresh your memory on the point, you will recall in the Constitution that electors are chosen by the states who in turn elect the president of the United States. This is a much criticized and clumsy provision of the Constitution. Now those electors don't even have to be elected by the people of the state. They could be chosen by a caucus of the state legislature. However, the state legislatures have hesitated to do this and generally they have resolved the matter by electing through the state but according to state laws, not according to anything in the 14th Amendment. Now I think that the confusion results from the fact that in the 14th Amendment, in dealing with an entirely different topic, not with the qualifications of voters, but dealing with another topic, the United States Constitution states "That should any state," this is a penal provision, "should any state deprive a man of the age of 21 of his vote," in other words, restrict it to people over 30 or people over 25, should that be done, then the basis of representation of that state in the Union shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens 21 years of age in the state. But that is an entirely different thing. That is a penal provision for restricting the ballot to those over 21 and it certainly would not apply where the state in the exercise of its true state function lowered the voting age to less than 21. So if you will bear those points in mind, that suffrage is a state concern under the United States Constitution, the 14th Amendment does not and cannot prescribe the voting age for the states, that presidents are chosen by electors and not necessarily by the people of the state. Bearing those points in mind I think Mr. Johnson's objections can be answered.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we could stand at ease for a moment to let this class into the gallery.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will sit at ease. (Class entered gallery.) The Convention will come to order. We have in the gallery this morning a portion of the junior class of the Fairbanks High School. We hope you will enjoy the progress of the Convention that you see here this morning. We have before us the reconsideration of Mr. McNealy's vote. Is there a further discussion? Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, there may be some doubt on the question raised by Mr. Johnson, as Mr. Hellenthal points out. I think the fact remains that the United States Congress found it necessary to consider this question, considered it worthy of bringing it to a vote on May 21, 1954, in spite of some popular pressure towards lowering the voting age constitutionally, from 21 to 19, voted it down in the United States Senate by a vote of 34 to 24. That impresses me. It also impresses me that in that vote 38 senators appear to have been absent from the floor, which suggests to me what I felt all along, that this is a politically loaded question and that the vote on the subject tends to become difficult. I think we should consider very carefully before we lower the age.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: Mr. Chairman, I might be wrong, but I thought that in the Hawaii Constitution that the voting age is 20. That is certainly different than 21, and I don't recall any questions raised about the voting age in Hawaii. That was not a legal question then. I think it becomes a legal question when it gets 19 for example. I don't think that this provision in the 14th Amendment even gives our vote a color of illegality. I think it is just a political question. In my opinion and I don't care what Congress did or how many senators voted on it, if what I learn in constitutional law is correct, and I hope that it is, the power of the state over election is residual. They have absolute control over it. It is left strictly to the states. Now what Congress was trying to do was trying to correct some of the abuse of some of the states to American citizens. It did not have anything to do with the voting age except I can see where at that time it would have looked rather ridiculous to put 18 in because you were certainly not depriving anybody 18 years old of the right to vote. No state had that provision.

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, I might call to Mr. White's attention that this body also voted down the 18-year-old and we compromised at 19. It may have happened that the extreme of 18 occurred to the Senate much like it did to this delegation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, if you will allow me to speak further in opposition to lowering the age of 21, I realize I am not a pleasing speaker. That has not been my business as it has some of you other folks. I brought up the question yesterday of the minor's right of suing or being sued. As you know, that is my understanding of the law, that a person under 21 cannot be sued on contract. One of my objections to lowering the age to 21 is this - that possibly taxes may be incurred by the minor. According to this law he can't be sued by the state to recover the taxes. He will be put in the position of voting and sanctioning and voting for legislatures that will be spending public money, and yet the state could not sue him to collect taxes. Objection number two - I believe the insurance rates that are put out by the insurance companies are much higher for that segment of people under 25, especially for the insurance of driving cars. Now, why do insurance companies do that? My conclusion is that their judgment is not quite as mature as an adult who has been seasoned. Next objection - from my recollection of crime statistics, I believe your ratio of the appearance of crime appears higher in the lower age group which points out or brings out that judgment is not mature. That is all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, there have been several references here in the course of the argument to the Hawaiian Constitution, including the one just made by Mr. Buckalew. I would like to know if the Hawaiian Constitution has ever been approved by Congress. If it has not I think it is a bad example to quote as proof that we are doing right because Hawaii did it. It is also my recollection that following the writing of the Hawaiian Constitution and its approval by the people, I think they called in a consultant who is shortly going to be a consultant of ours I hope, and he found so many things wrong with it that they have been very sorry they did not call him in before they wrote it. Now I don't know whether this is a case in point or not, but I think in view of the fact that we are being constantly cited to the Hawaiian Constitution, it is probably better to ascertain if it has been approved by Congress, and I don't believe it has.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I merely want to say that the Hawaiian Constitution has been approved by the House Committee and by a Senate Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, the several suggestions here by the delegates are somewhat confused by the question of voting rights and majority. Voting rights has nothing to do with the age of majority. As a matter of fact, in the Territory of Alaska a female reaches the age of majority as soon as she marries. I as an attorney have had occasion to go into court where I have had an 18-year-old wife, who because by virtue of her marriage had attained majority, and I made her a guardian for her 20 year old husband in order to accomplish something for her husband. The insistence that majority has something to do with voting rights is utter nonsense. Tomorrow the Territory of Alaska could determine that the age of majority for children is 16 years of age. The question of contract has nothing to do with the voting rights. Tomorrow you could reduce the age or you could make infants, that is, anyone under the age of 21 liable on their contract - from the year one. As a matter of fact we have somewhat changed the law that we are making now that parents are responsible for the torts they're in. Infants are responsible for their torts when they're under the age of 21. A question of emancipation comes in. There is no relationship between the age of majority, the right to contract or the right to avoid a contract and the right of election. The suggestion is made here that this has something to do with it. The germ is being placed in the mind that if you reduce the age to 18 or 19 or 20 that all the infants are going to dash into the saloons. It has nothing to do with the right to drink. Under the police powers of the Territory you can prohibit anyone up to the age 65 from drinking, and frankly, there are some members of this Convention who would like to do it. It has no relationship this question of what age you are as to the age you go into a saloon. Women over the age of 21 can be prohibited from certain types of work. It has nothing to do with their electoral rights. There is a suggestion here also that this question is loaded. It has been twice suggested that it is dangerous politically. I might point out to these people who are complaining about the dangerous political plans, that when they propose the Tennessee Plan they might keep the question of political dynamite well in mind. And when they say these things haven't been tried or that it has only been tried once, that it is no justification for our present action, they might keep in mind that what Tennessee did may not be good for Alaska either. When we talk in terms of political dynamite, we might as well remember that we do have an extra precedent, that the State of Georgia has reduced it to 18. It's right in its Constitution. It isn't fiction, it isn't theory, it is fact.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston has been trying to get to the floor. The Convention will be at ease while the stenotypist repairs her machine.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Mr. President, I thought all that could be said was said yesterday, but I have some new evidence right here locally, and I have been talked to, people take this very seriously. I have thought it through and I appreciate being talked to on this issue. I am not a worshiper of the old, and I think 21 years is a thing we seem to worship. There are some problems that will come up, but I think the gain is greater than the loss by far, and I have faith in the youth of America, and I am objecting this morning to this gerrymandering maneuvering to stop a decision made yesterday. I am not happy with it or my friends over there, and I am going forward to get the decision yesterday on the records if I can. I have faith in the youth of America, and when we finish high school with our children, most of them get no more schooling, and when they have finished if they are not ready to vote then it is our fault. The big majority will finish right here in high school, and I want to start them in then. I have faith in America and the youth of America and this school right here, I talked to them about this and they were not interested in it and they did not come to attention, and the opinion this morning is that 19 would satisfy the people right here in the College of Alaska, and I want to get that on the record. I have faith in the youth of America, and I am going to stick with the 19, and I hope the rest of the people do that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: It has been brought up two or three times that Georgia allows 18-year-old citizens to vote, and that is brought up as if to point out that if they can do it, it is probably all right. I ask you -- does the State of Georgia allow Negroes over 21 years old to vote, and is that all right?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: I would just like to ask a question of Mr. Hellenthal, if I may. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hellenthal, do you know from your experience as voting officer in the army whether those between the ages of 18 and 21 from the State of Georgia were permitted to vote in the senatorial, congressional and electoral elections?

HELLENTHAL: To be perfectly frank, I have no recollection at that time, which was 1943, of Georgia even permitting those under 21 to vote. I just have no recollection of it. They may have done it and they may not have done it, but I am convinced had they done it they would not have been denied the ballot. They would have been given the ballot in accordance with state law.

SUNDBORG: You know now then as Chairman of our Committee on Suffrage whether as a matter of the fact the votes which are cast by citizens of Georgia between the ages of 18 and 21 are counted in presidential and congressional elections?

HELLENTHAL: Definitely, they are counted.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. McLaughlin a question for information?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, you may direct your question.

METCALF: Mr. McLaughlin, if the age limit is lowered from 21 to 19, can a male at the age of 19 be sued on contract in the courts for things that he purchased?

MCLAUGHLIN: Under our present law, no until they change that act of the Territory that says an infant is anyone under the age of 21 and can avoid his contracts and cannot be sued but the next session of the Legislature without further ado can say that all infants from the age of seven on, can be sued on their contract.

METCALF: I don't want to leave it to the next session of Legislature. I would like to have it settled now.

MCLAUGHLIN: It is settled now. For practical purposes an infant cannot be sued. If this were our constitution now, that is providing that they could vote at the age of 19 and we still had the same laws on the books in the Territory, it would mean that a man of 19 could vote, but as long as he was 21 under our Territorial law he could avoid his contract.

METCALF: He could spend money for the state and yet could avoid his taxes, is that right?

MCLAUGHLIN: An infant can be taxed. There is no relationship between taxes and contracts. They are two different things.

METCALF: They could not sue him under contract? Am I ignorant or stupid, tell me?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNealy.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, there are others who would probably like to speak on this, and I will waive any right to speak last upon the subject. I think that Delegate White has most amply covered the very heart of this subject as supported by Delegate Metcalf. I do want to point out one or two things in connection with statements of Mr. McLaughlin. Now, there has been a great deal of talk here in regard to the State of Georgia allowing voting at the age of 18. All I know is what I read in the papers and what I read in the papers does not make Georgia to me a proper precedent for us to follow. I am thinking here just a few days back in regard to Georgia and the University of Pittsburgh playing in the Orange Bowl and the objection coming from the governor that Pitt had a Negro on the team.

MCCUTCHEON: Point of order, Mr. President. I can't see where the matter of racial prejudice one way or the other affects this question.

MCNEALY: Mr. President, as long as they have referred to the State of Georgia in this connection, I see no reason why I can't make reference there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will have to hold that the question of racial prejudice does not have any connection with this case. The reference to Georgia was made only to the showing that the State of Georgia has lowered their age limit. The debate will have to be confined to the question under discussion. Mr. Barr, your point of order.

BARR: Mr. President, I don't like to appeal the ruling of the Chair, but actually we were speaking on suffrage. That has to do not only with age limit but with different groups of people, and it seems to me that this should be brought out.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr, this act has nothing to do with denying anyone the right of suffrage over the particular age stated in the act. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I think I agree with Mr. Barr on that. Mr. McNealy has a right to compare Alaska with the State of Georgia as to its progressiveness, its general advancement, and its laws in general, since it has been cited here so many times as an example of one state having it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: I believe that Mrs. Hermann and Mr. Barr are entirely right in their stand. I think if we are holding up some particular state as a criterion of what we should do, I think the opponents of that argument can bring in the backwardness of that state, their desires to set aside the Constitution of the United States, in a pertinent and particular matter to show they are not a law-abiding state and they practice discrimination contrary to the laws of the United States and contrary to statutes we have. I think that should be shown here to show that we should not take the statutes of the State of Georgia with much concern.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair will leave the question up to a consideration of the Rules Committee. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, reporting for the Rules Committee on the matter referred to it before recess, the Committee wishes to inform the Chair that it finds Mr. McNealy's comment not to have been out of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The finding of the Rules Committee will be the ruling of the Chair. Mr. McNealy, you may proceed with your statement.

MCNEALY: Thank you, Mr. President. As stated before, the arguments of Mr. Metcalf impressed me a great deal, and I don't believe that this can be considered progress except progress in the wrong direction. Now I want to cover the points briefly on contracts, on the juries, and we might throw in saloons as we go along, but there is no question in my mind as an attorney that the fact for all legal purposes the age of majority is 21 years, and it is so written largely in the statute books and understood in common law. But the important thing, and I mentioned it yesterday and I wish to mention it more fully today, that if those between the ages of 19 and 21 are granted the right to vote, there is no question in my mind what will ultimately follow the granting of that right. Certainly at the first session of the Legislature, and if not at the first session certainly at subsequent sessions, it will take more than this and I speak not as a statesman but as a minor politician. At this moment, a very small segment of the voters between the age of 19 and 21 can go to any particular candidate for the house or candidate for the senate, and say we want a bill in granting us the right to contract. We have the right to vote and we feel we should be able to buy an automobile without our parents' name on it, we should be able to go down and buy a watch or diamond ring or fur coats, any luxury or anything we see fit, and we are bound by that contract. Now you are getting into a serious proposition there, fellow delegates. It runs back time beyond when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary that the age has been at 21 for the purposes of contract, and the reason is that it takes a little more mature judgment to enter into contracts and dealings. Why even those of us who are older get taken in many times on contracts. In fact, it is one of the things that keeps the attorneys busy, you might say. Now then if this right is granted, political pressure is brought on, the respective senator or representative goes down to Juneau to the Legislature. He introduces a bill and the first step in this is he introduces a bill there to lower the contracting age of minors down to the age of 19 years. How many of those elected representatives and senators are going to vote against that because when it comes out in the paper, if they do vote against it, at the next election all those of 19 and 20 years of age are going to carry on a campaign against the party who voted against it, something that they felt they had a right to because they have the right to vote. That is the first step. The second step is they say that we have the right to vote then we have the right to serve on a jury. Speaking as a practicing attorney, I am not saying that by this that those between the ages of 19 and 21 are incompetent - far be it from that - but I am saying that some things take sound and mature judgment, judgment which often times is not gained until later years in life. And to sit on a jury deciding cases involving great amounts of money or cases involving the life or liberty -- had that been a good practice it seems to me that would have been a practice 100 or 200 years ago. The military here in which we are concerned very much within the Territory of Alaska, you talk to any of the higher echelons of the military who are attempting to protect those under the age of 21 in the armed services as an obligation that they owe to the parents of these children who come here from all the states in the Union. Certainly I cannot see where they should favor this type of thing which would open the doors to allowing the young people coming in from the other states to have rights in this state which they don't have in states at home. You add a problem to the military, and the military is with us, and we have to recognize it and get along with it whether we like it or whether we don't like it. I could go on talking a great deal of time, but practically everything has been said. There is little use of taking up more time in the Convention. I regret myself that the Committee bill setting the age at 20 was not accepted. Therefore, I am supporting this amendment for the age of 21 and again I want to close on just a little point of levity. In taking a small poll of three or four high school girls last night at very near this 18-year-old voting age, they studied the question over a little bit and then said to me, Well, possibly the girls should be allowed to vote at the age of 19 but we hardly think the boys should because they are not very mature at that age."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel.

HINCKEL: I would like to speak for the age of 21. I don't think that we as a body of 55 have any moral right to change the age of 21. I am sorry it was ever brought up at the Convention here. I am sorry that it was ever brought up by anybody politically. I think it has become a political football, and I don't think that any political body can give it honest consideration. I think that the only way that a voting age or the age of majority or the privileges that are accorded people when they have in the past become 21 should be changed without a referendum vote. I think if we could take a referendum vote here of this body we would find they would leave it at 21. Since all of the people who are political timber have already spoken that that be the case, that they have it in the record for the young people that they might be soliciting that vote, but it is my opinion that we should return this to 21 and possibly put something in the constitution so that no political body can ever handle it, that it should be done on a referendum vote of the people if and when it is done.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I believe that the fellow delegates here at the Convention that are advocating this amendment to change from 19 to 21 have sure tried this morning to confuse the issue. They have brought in quite a few of the ramifications and we discussed this quite thoroughly yesterday. It is quite apparent that the delegates have no faith in their youth and in turn no faith in their educational system. It is going to be a pretty glum future for Alaska if we can't have faith in our educational system and our youth. I think a child that comes out of high school is well deserved to become a legal voter of our land. I think it has no connection with the bars, as Mr. McLaughlin pointed out. It is strictly a state of confusion. I see that in the legislature there are other pressure groups. Are you going to bar them too? The pressure groups of the 19-year-olds, according to our statistics, would only be three and one-half per cent of the voters of the new State of Alaska. I see through that argument quite well. The history of the country shows that the rights of individual people was in part from the first time the Constitution was written for the United States. We have progressed quite thoroughly through the years allowing the women to vote. Now we are trying in a new state and new future country of Alaska to lower the standards so as to give the young people, the people who want to come up to this country and settle, a chance to partake in their government.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Wien.

WIEN: Mr. President, I would like to read two or three sentences from the manual prepared from Hawaii, which I think has a direct bearing on the subject. "In Russia today the age is 18. Great Britain, Canada, and the Union of South Africa have recently considered the lowering of the voting age below 21 but all three nations have rejected proposals for change." Then a little further, "During 1942-43 bills designed to reduce the voting age were introduced in 31 state legislatures, but only one state, the state of Georgia, lowered the minimum age qualification to 18 years. The other 47 states continued to maintain the minimum age requirement for voting at 21." First, I would like to have us in a class, not with Russia or with one state of the Union but with the majority of the states of the United States and with such countries as Great Britain, Canada, and the Union of South Africa, rather than Russia. And, secondly, since we are going to ask Congress to become a state, they have to approve of our constitution. Since the voters of 47 states feel that 21 is the proper age and it is going to be their senators and representatives who have to look over our constitution and partly decide on that as a basis of whether we become a state or not, I feel sure that they might frown upon our lowering of the voting age. And, thirdly, I have the highest regard for the young people of today. Nothing irritates me more than to hear a reference to the delinquency of our youth because I feel it is a delinquency of the parents, not of the youth, and that they are the most wonderful youth that the world has ever known, but I don't feel that those youth are requesting that we lower the age even below 21. I was willing to go for 20 but the longer I go into this subject and the more I hear, the more firmly I believe that we should keep it at 21.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: Mr. President, Kentucky has also joined the ranks of Georgia in the lowering of the voting age to 18. I am not one of those that says we should not break precedent. If this nation had not broken precedent we would have never become a nation. I am also a firm believer in the fact that responsibility of action is most often achieved by the delegation of responsibility. I feel that our high school students of today, our 18-and 19-year-olds, are more qualified to vote than the 21-year-old was perhaps even a few years back when I was that age and I felt very much at the time that I could have voted and voted responsibly at that time. Our youth of today is better educated than it has ever been before. That goes for both young men and young women. I feel that also that these bugaboos that have been thrown at us constantly this morning, particularly this one with reference as to how Congress will respond in the event that Alaska comes up with a 19-year-old franchise age, I am not the least bit concerned about that, primarily for this reason, I know that there have been other constitutions referred back on maybe one point or two points only requesting a change. We will be judged by the over-all constitution we write and on no one particular point. I feel that if this body were to act in favor of granting the voting privilege to our 19-year-olds that a period of two or three or four to five years at the very most, and possibly as others have pointed out we will not achieve statehood prior to that time, but we will find that our actions probably will not be criticized even in our own eyes, and I think that this body will probably be the harshest critics in the years to come of this constitution that we are here to write. I am going to hold with this 19-year-old age and I feel that if the body as a whole goes that way, and I am confident we are going to, that we will never regret it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to point out one thing. I spoke yesterday for the 18-year-old voting age, and I am today supporting the 19-year-old, not because Russia has 18 years voting age, not because Georgia has it or Kentucky. That makes no difference to me. I think those arguments are extraneous. The discrimination angle we have a nondiscrimination clause in the Russian constitution. Just because of that will we be for discrimination? Never. I think the important thing is what do we want, and as has been pointed out, the arguments for 21 have largely been based upon issues of doubt, "What will happen if? We know very well that our legislature can protect the people as well as anybody, and the point is -- if we feel that 19-year-old voting is right, let's vote for it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: We spent considerable time discussing this yesterday and again today we have spent considerable time. I think everybody has had their say one way or another, so therefore, I move the previous question.

DAVIS: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris moves the previous question, seconded by Mr. Davis. The question is, "Shall the previous question be ordered?" All those in favor of ordering the previous question will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. President, may I inquire -- are we voting on the previous question or are we voting as to whether we should have --

PRESIDENT EGAN: We are voting as to whether we should order the previous question.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 27 - Awes, Barr, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Davis, H. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hilscher, Hinckel, Kilcher, King, Knight, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Rosswog, Stewart, Taylor, VanderLeest, Wien.

Nays: 27 - Armstrong, Boswell, Buckalew, Cooper, Doogan, Emberg, V. Fischer, Gray, Hermann, Hurley, Johnson, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McCutcheon, McNees, Metcalf, Reader, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Smith, Sundborg, Sweeney, Walsh, White. Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to change my vote from "yes" to "no".

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "yes" to "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney and Mr. Buckalew change their vote from "yes" to "no".

CHIEF CLERK: 27 yeas, 27 nays and one absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the question has failed of passage.

EMBERG: I would like to make a few remarks, I haven't so far. Many of them have been covered in the debate so far. Many of the objections toward establishing the age of 19 are based upon the idea that a lowering of the traditional age will dilute the quality of responsibility in the electorate, that it will change a traditional system that establishes an electorate that presumably is responsible in every sense, but how does this present system work? We are lucky if we get 50 per cent right now to turn out for an election in Alaska. So I don't feel that we should be too reluctant to change this traditional attitude. If we can get the young folks voting earlier, getting them in the habit of voting, then I am for letting them have the opportunity. I would also like to point out that this isn't a compulsory provision, that in effect it only extends suffrage to those who interest themselves in government and will inform themselves in politics and take the time and trouble to go and vote. That is the real test in my mind of political maturity, and I think if the youngsters of 19 and 20 meet that test, we should let them vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I am sorry to prolong this but I don't feel our time is wasted. I'll be very brief. In answer to Mr. McLaughlin, I would like to say that I for one never once in this debate have maintained that those other things would automatically follow the lowering of voting age to 18, 19, or any other age with the possible exception of serving on juries. I heartily subscribe to Mr. McNealy's remarks that to be logical you are of necessity going to lower the age for these things to coincide with the age of voting. I see no escape from the logic to that argument. In answer to something Mr. Gray said, I would like to point out that I for one do not believe that the 19-year-old vote represents a true opinion of this body. I think it is a fluke for the way the voting went, and I think it should be either 18 or 21. I have deliberately refrained from bringing up Georgia or Kentucky before, but since they have been brought up again and again, I would merely like to remark that I see nothing in the internal politics of those two states that should recommend them to our attention in this matter. In closing, the only other thing I would like to repeat is that although the Territorial Legislature on a previous occasion voted to ask Congress to lower the Territory voting age to 18, Congress turned it down or did not act on it, and I think we must consider the fact that on the vote in Congress of May 21, 1954, 38 statesmen in the United States Senate saw fit to absent themselves from the floor on this very important question, and even so it failed by a vote of 34 to 24. I think that should suggest something to us.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, may I make one more brief remark? Mr. Coghill asked a question of those who oppose the 19-year-old restriction. He asked the question, "Have we no faith in our educational system?" And I would like to point out to the body, while Fairbanks and cities here in Alaska have certainly wonderful schools but out in the outlying precincts, way out beyond the cities where there are only 12 children or less. the ANS doesn't provide any schools whatsoever, so I show that in rebuttal to his question.

ROBERTSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to challenge the suggestion made by several of the previous speakers that those of us who are in favor of 21 years thereby evince a lack of faith in our children. I submit that we have just as much faith in our children as those who want to reduce the age to 19. It is only a question of maturity of judgment, and I submit that all of us become more mature in judgment as we reach older years and get out of the teen age.

V. RIVERS: I spoke on this subject yesterday and I had not intended to say anything today but I did want to add this fact for the information of the Convention. In discussing this matter with a lady from Anchorage yesterday after the ballot, she advised me that in the League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan organization, they had taken a poll as to whether or not they desired a lowering of the voting age. In that particular meeting of 16 people present, 15 of them voted for lowering the voting age and showed a preference for the age of 18. I merely wanted that to be before the body.

MCCUTCHEON: I feel impelled to speak against this particular amendment. I predicate my remarks on the fact that there is a great deal that has been said on the floor with regard to the judgment of the youth and the judgment of those deemed to be older than 21. It is assumed that after 21 the people of Alaska are able to choose their legislators and other elected officials, and they predicate this matter on judgment. I submit that the elections are not based on judgment, that they are based on prejudice and passion of the times and certainly the youth of the school age or subsequent to that time would view this matter with a good deal more cynical attitude than some of the oldsters would.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: May we be at ease again so the class can come in? Oh, they are not coming in.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: Reference has been made quite often basing on, "What will happen if?" I think there is something that is going to happen if we lower this voting age. Mr. McLaughlin brought in something very interesting about a minor boy that had to have his wife for legal guardian. That is something I hadn't thought about, but I see where it is entirely possible according to the present setup. I think it is going to make a boy like that feel rather odd if he has the right to go and vote and then still has his wife for legal guardian. I am sure that the age of majority will have to be lowered. It is not a matter of what will happen if but I think it is going to happen. Certainly if they have the vote right that age is going to be lowered, probably down to include all over 18. Then as the girls mature biologically earlier, they will be lowered to 15 or 16. That's just one thing. This matter of jury duty I think is a serious thing. It is not a matter of whether you have a right to vote or not, but you will have the right to serve on the jury. I don't think you can legislate against them. That would be discrimination. They are part of the ones that elect the legislators to come and certainly the age for serving on jury duty will go along with the voting age, and I am sure that they will be allowed to be on the jury. Of course, the argument can be that they have mature judgment at that age. I think they have good judgment at that age but I think that judgment could be improved on by a few years of experience in the world. We have heard a lot that the youth of today are better educated. They might be as far as book knowledge is concerned but if they are so well educated at the end of high school, why do we have colleges?. Evidently the complicated world that we live in today demands a college education, and I think the complexities of the world today demand even more maturity in voting than they did years ago, and I don't think that lowering the voting age is going to bring in a great deal more maturity. I think we are going to lose as far as that is concerned. I think the suggestion that was brought up awhile ago that this should be brought up to a referendum vote, it would be a fair one to all Alaskans where they could vote their convictions in secret ballot rather than have us put it on as a rider in the constitution, a rider that can very possibly defeat our constitution on referendum or approval.

METCALF: I move the previous question.

V. FISCHER: I would just like to reply briefly to one of the statements made. I do not believe that leaving the voting age at 19, as has been voted so far by this body, would mean that jurors would have to be 19 years of age. We approved yesterday a provision that anyone may vote who is able to read or speak the English language. Does that mean that the legislature would authorize just blanket selection of jurors even if they can't read, if they can't write, if they can't understand some basic principles and then sit on estate cases and all sort of jury cases. I think that is the kind of extraneous matter that has been brought in. The thing is if the legislature feels that this voting age is too young for jurors they can add additional qualifications. Another thing brought in was this business of ratification by Congress. I don't know how many of you have read the debates on the floor of Congress on the Alaska - Hawaii statehood bill. I think if you read them you will find that not one objection was made to the provisions of the Hawaiian Constitution -- any provisions -- all the provisions were brought out as examples of an excellent constitution. The lowering of the voting age was one of those. I think we should concentrate on the merits of this and let's vote on the merits of 19-year-olds' voting and 21-year-olds' voting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, inasmuch as remarks were made on something I had said, I would like to just add this. I am very, very happy that you brought in the fact about the voters serving on jury duty. Again I say I don't think we will be able to discriminate against anyone allowed to vote and not be allowed to serve on jury. Let us say it is possible to prevent it by law, by writing in some kind of rider that they have to read, speak and write and a few other things, but I would like to know how the legislators are going to work out some kind of a system whereby they are going to go out and fairly examine all of these people like that when it comes time to serve on jury duty. As it is now, our law is not as strict as it should be along that line, and very often we find that someone may write a letter asking that her husband be excused from jury duty because he can't read and write. I think the laws that we have right now aren't enforced as much as they should be and to lower it by dropping the age bracket and all of that is not going to solve the problem at all.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, in reference to Committee Proposal No. 1, Section 1, line 2, "Shall the voting age of 19 years be deleted and the voting age of 21 years be inserted in lieu thereof?"

METCALF: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 23 - Armstrong, Awes, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Doogan, Hinckel, Johnson, King, Knight Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, Reader, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, White, Wien.

Nays: 31 - Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, V. Rivers, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: 23 yeas, 31 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has failed of adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley

RILEY: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for a two minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for two minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

COOPER: Mr. President, inasmuch as there is nothing on the floor at this time --

PRESIDENT EGAN: We have before us Section No. 1 of the proposal.

COOPER: I would like to ask for the floor on a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection. Mr. Cooper asks the floor under the point of personal privilege.

(Mr. Cooper spoke under the point of personal privilege.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Often times a delegate, yourself or others, might rise and request the privilege to ask a question, question of a member. Now the Chair has not been considering that as using up one of his allocated times on the floor. Now that happened many times here this morning. And the Chair will agree with you that people should remember that they only have two times allowed on the floor on any question.

COOPER: I bring this up because of the moving of the previous question which the other day we were reprimanded, the Convention as a whole, and I think justly so far acting hastily, but if the arguments were prepared and presented within the scope of Rule 38 I believe it would be far more educational and advantageous to expediting the business at hand.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well Mr. Cooper, the Chair would not say that the delegates had been reprimanded, but it was the feeling of the Chair in that discussion by one delegate that it was just being brought to the attention of all the delegates what the previous question meant. It meant the shutting off of all debate. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: I have an amendment to Proposal No. 1, Section 1, line 9. Delete "or" and insert "and".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson, what is your pleasure?

ROBERTSON: I move the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson moves that his proposed amendment be adopted. On line 9 delete the word "or" and insert the word "and". Is there a second to the motion?

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf seconds the motion. Mr. Robertson?

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, my thought is yesterday by refusing to adopt Mr. Johnson's proposal, that we pretty well lowered the standards of education or qualifications as an elector and that the delegates seemed to press down or emphasize considerably the thought that many people could not write but they listen to the radio and listen to campaign talks so they are well informed on the subject. Now it seems to me that if that is true they ought to also have the qualifications of being able to read and speak the English language and not just read "or" speak the English language. So that is the thought of my proposed amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there other discussion? If not, the question is, "Shall Mr. Robertson's proposed amendment be adopted?" Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: Mr. Chairman, did we not pass on this one time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair does not recall that that particular amendment had ever been made, Mr. Marston. If such an amendment had been made, the Chair would stand corrected. It is the remembrance of the Chair that there never was such an amendment before us.

MARSTON: May I speak on it? I have got to. We are building citizens of the United States of America and particularly the State of Alaska, and we want them all. It is a hard time getting them to vote. We have a lot of people out in the Bering Sea and at the Arctic coast and up the great rivers that have lived here since time was, and they are great men and great women, and if this amendment passes we blot them out. They do not belong to the stars and stripes any more in their mind. If you tell a man who has been voting on problems and a part of us and you isolate him he is not for us. I am absolutely against this amendment in any way shape or form you put it through. The "read or write" was put in by a great statesman from Southeastern Alaska to save a lot of great people who live here. I am unalterably opposed to this amendment. I wish some others would speak on this. I wish the great statesman of Southeastern Alaska would talk on it who put the "read or write" in there. I am against this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: First, before I start, I want to thank Mr. Marston for his reference to me. I am very anxious, just like a good many of you are here, to do what is right, and I do feel in my presentation yesterday that I covered the subject thoroughly, that is as far as my knowledge goes. I can see the disadvantage it is going to create to a certain group of people, perhaps not only the Natives. I can refer to some from your side of the fence right down in our area with the same proposition. There are few in number, but yet there is such a condition existing, and I cannot help but think of that type of citizen. Whether I am wrong, I still maintain that in writing this constitution we should think of such a group within our area, within our country. It is true that those of you perhaps that live in larger communities have had the advantages of civilization which lacks in the outlying and fringe areas. However, I don't think that should be a factor in determining what to put in your constitution. I maintain that when political issues arise, anything that is going to be beneficial to our country as a whole, if it is advertised or brought to the attention of these types of people that I am trying to protect, they understand just what it is all about. They are not going to vote against any issue that they feel is going to be detrimental to the country. They are not going to vote on any issue they do not understand. I think Mr. Robertson will bear me out in the First Division. He ran for office, he has gone to the villages, and I don't think that after he got through talking to these individuals that they did not know what he was talking about. They knew, that's the way they are. I don't know what the condition is up here. I have high respect for Mr. Marston, and I feel that what he says is perhaps is the actual condition that is existing up here. Therefore, I am for that also. I don't feel that the fact that these people are going to be swayed by some politician coming to town and voting should be a major factor, and I have never seen any such conditions existing anywhere, and if it is up here then I think there should be some way of remedying that. I am going to have to vote against this amendment and to be consistent, I will support my views.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I think that the voting record of Alaska in previous years will bear Mr. Peratrovich's argument out, that in the large cities and the large election districts, that you will find that a very small percentage go to the polls and vote on election day. You take the villages. You find that if there are 80 people eligible to vote, there will be 80 votes cast in that village. They are very proud of their heritage to take part in the government. I might bring out the thought that was placed in the White House Conference on Education for Alaska. It was spelled out straight that in one section here, it says, "Second was the idea of more parent participation in education in the school system. This was brought about more emphatically by the Native and Eskimo villages as the teachers in these areas are faced with the problem of teaching first and second generation children. These aborigines know that their aged tradition and forms of economy are being engulfed by our modern way of life in which to learn these ways so as to live a free and healthy life among us. Thus they have emphasized night adult classes." That came right from the small villages. That was not put in this report by any one of us that participated in it. We took and sent out questionnaires and got that. They are interested in government, they are interested in the new way of life and in order for them to obtain anything they must participate, and if you are going to shut them off, why that will set that area back probably 20 years until your generations that are being educated now obtain an understanding.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith.

SMITH: I merely want to reiterate what Mr. Peratrovich has said and add that I have had the privilege of knowing a good many people who were not able to read, yet had a thorough knowledge of affairs of the Territory. They had an instinctive knowledge of the right and wrong of issues and for that reason and a good many other reasons, I must oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. B. D. Stewart.

STEWART: I just merely want to argue further, because I think Mr. Peratrovich and Mr. Marston have very well covered the ground, but from my experience in Southeastern Alaska and in the Eskimo country I have found that individuals that would be allowed to vote under this provision as it stands, are perfectly capable of passing judgments on issues, and I would support the idea that it be left just as it is.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that by the very nature of the mechanics of voting, regardless of whether they are intelligent, informed, the very nature of the mechanics by which we set up our means of voting, which is by the written word, that they must be able to read what that written word is. It seems to me that no matter how they would be prepared, if they could not read, how could they vote intelligently? No matter how intelligent they are, if they don't know how to read, they can't tell what they are voting for. It seems to be basic that they might be entirely well informed, be very intelligent and practical in handling their affairs but they could not carry out the mechanics of actually voting their wishes unless they were able to read what the ballot said.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: During the war when the enemy submarines were in the Bering Sea, I went to those people representing the United armed forces and asked them to join the colors. Thirty seven hundred men joined the colors with enemy submarines in the Bering Sea. Not one man ever refused to join the colors while the war was on, and 3700 joined, and I could not and nobody could turn down a loyal patriotic group of men like that who were our frontier men, armed and stood between us and the enemy during that time. They picked up 27 Jap balloons, they had weekly drill, and they built 21 armories without pay, and they received no pay as the Alaska Territorial Guard. They are loyal, patriotic, and we cannot turn them down.

V. RIVERS: I would like to ask how many of the 3700 could read a name, Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: The first man I swore in came in from the Kuskokwim off the Bering Sea and I told him that Uncle Sam wanted him to join with us together and fight the common enemy. They said they would be happy to be Uncle Sam's man and I said I was ready to sign them up and here a man stood before me, a solid citizen, five feet tall and four feet broad with his parka on and I said, "How old are you?" He said, "I don't know. I old enough and not too old. What you want done?"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg.

LONDBORG: One thing that is very, very interesting here is that they are arguing that it should be left as is because we would be discriminating if we support the amendment. Now as I read line 9, we are discriminating right now. It says that they at least have to read or speak, they can choose which they will, so what does it mean to speak? Saying hello? We have not defined it at all. If they have one word of English then they can speak, so I would say then that we have our standard down pretty low as far as that is concerned. Would speaking alone be such a great virtue that we could allow just voting on that alone? I think it should be as we have it in the Session Laws of Alaska right now, where I believe there is a "read and write" clause in it -- not just speak or read, whichever they may choose. I would like to call your attention to another thing that we have mentioned before. There is going to have to be some very clever manipulating of the laws to provide a way of selecting juries if we divert from the present law as far as qualifications for voting. I think we ought to give that due consideration. I don't think that our answer is lowering the voting standards but bringing the people up to the standards so they can vote intelligently. Reference was made to our excellent school system. I have here a report from the Alaska Native Service where there are 1592 children still without a school. That is something for us to think about also. We of Alaska have a job to do, not lowering voting standards but bringing the people up to the standards.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: One thing I want to remark to Delegate Londborg. I think he is worrying unnecessarily about jury duty. I mean if he has ever watched a civil or criminal trial, there is such a thing known as a more dere in which both counsel and court have unlimited opportunity at examination. There is such a thing as challenges and if any juror is not capable of understanding or following the evidence he is dismissed so there would be more tests for jury duty than there would be for voting. If it was a highly technical case it would be up to the counsel and the court. I think that both counsel and court could certainly protect the public or the plaintiffs or the defendant in any particular given matter.

LONDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to answer that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg, if there is no objection.

LONDBORG: I am not particularly worried about it. I just say there is going to have to be some way to do it. I don't know if we can discriminate against them and say they cannot at least be summoned for jury duty. I wonder if everyone is aware of the fact that to summon someone for jury duty from Hooper Bay to Nome for a while costs round trip about $230 and it makes a nice trip to go to Nome for awhile and then be refused for jury duty. You add that up a few times and you have a great state bill just getting people eliminated from jury duty.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson.

ROBERTSON: One of the delegates in arguing against my proposed amendment apparently misread the article itself because it won't be "read and write". It will be "read and speak" if my amendment is adopted. I am like Delegate Victor Rivers. I can't see how a person can intelligently vote by secret ballot if he is not able to read. I think to read and speak the English language is the very minimum of qualifications. We are not challenging the loyalty of the Eskimo or the Indians or anyone else. We are simply trying to put something into our law so a person can intelligently vote the secret ballot.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: There are two points I wish to bring out, and reference has been made many times to the wonderful educational system that we have here in Alaska. If that is true we should have no objection and no worry about adopting Mr. Robertson's amendment, if that is true. Point number two, when we get our constitution bill constructed there will no doubt be provision for the initiative and referendum which we have had very little of that under our Territorial setup such as they have had in the states. Many of those initiative and referendum measures are going to be measures covering half a page in length, and therefore a person, in order to vote intelligently is going to have to be able to read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cross.

CROSS: There is one question that has been brought up I think honestly stating that it is necessary for a voter to read in order to vote. I would like to state that I have seen a great many voters turned down by reading tests when they were perfectly able to read a ballot and know who they were voting for.

RESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Nordale.

NORDALE: Is there not a provision in the law that allows the election board to cast a ballot for a blind person? I am quite sure there is. I don't see any reason why an election board could not also assist a person who couldn't read but who could speak and very definitely make his wishes known in casting his vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is -- Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: I request a roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: "Shall Mr. Robertson's proposed amendment be adopted? The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 18 - Armstrong, Barr, Collins, Cooper, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, Laws, Londborg, Metcalf, Nerland, Reader, V. Rivers, Robertson, Sweeney, Taylor, Walsh, Mr. President.

Nays: 36 - Awes, Boswell, Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Kilcher, King, Knight, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Riley, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, VanderLeest, White, Wien.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: 18 yeas, 36 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The "noes" have it and so the amendment has failed. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: At this time I wish to make a motion that the Committee Proposal No. 1 be referred to the committee for specific amendment, the committee that produced it, for specific amendment.

SWEENEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you have a specific amendment that you want to offer to the body?

HERMANN: No, Mr. President. I will speak on the subject now that it has been seconded.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection.

TAYLOR: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. I think that the specific amendment must be placed in the Clerk's hand at the time they make the motion and before returning it.

HERMANN: I am going to make that, I'm going to tell what it is right now.

TAYLOR: I have a motion here, an amendment that I would like to move to have considered.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann has the floor, Mr. Taylor, she still has it. She has made that motion and it has been seconded and she can state what her specific amendment is.

HERMANN: I will state what my reasons are so the body will know what I am thinking about and then if they want to turn me down, they certainly have the privilege. I think this whole thing from beginning to end is a matter that should be for the consideration of the legislature. and if I had come here, I came here with one specific pledge, and made that to myself and nobody else, and that was that I would stand up and oppose every single proposal, every single article for the constitution that properly was the function of the legislative body to ordain and that is exactly why I want to put this back in specific amendment now for.

TAYLOR: Will you yield for a moment?

HERMANN: For one moment only.

TAYLOR: That is my amendment that I have offered. I am going to make a motion to adopt it. That is to reduce that down to one paragraph that the legislature may provide by law for the qualifications and age of electors.

HERMANN: Well, for the whole section is what I want. I will withdraw with the consent of my second and let Mr. Taylor present his motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann asks unanimous consent that her proposed motion be withdrawn.

SWEENEY: As second, I want to be sure if it is not just exactly what Mrs. Hermann has in mind that she be privileged to enter her motion again.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is that the understanding, Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: That is right. I move that my amendment submitted this morning in the hands of the Clerk providing that this be placed in the hands of the legislature be read and move its adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will will stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, I know of several committees that are pretty well in a bind and have been all week because of their not being able to keep their commitments. We have visitors from out of town and so far have not appeared before the committees and for that reason I ask that we recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. Is there objection?

MCCUTCHEON: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Is there a second to the motion?

COGHILL: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill seconds the motion. The question is, "Shall the Convention stand at recess until 1:30 p.m.?" Mr. Coghill, did you have a committee announcement?

COGHILL: Pending the outcome of the recess the Administration Committee will meet immediately following, upstairs.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Awes?

AWES: If we recess, the Bill of Rights Committee will meet immediately upon adjournment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Bill of Rights Committee will meet immediately upon adjournment. Are there other committee announcements? Mr. Rosswog?

ROSSWOG: The Local Government Committee, all members that can attend, will meet immediately after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith?

SMITH: Mr. President, I don't know whether it is in order to simply make committee announcements or to go into the need for time for committee meetings, is that proper at this time?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Smith, it would be really in order just to make your committee announcements.

SMITH: I will bring it up later.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cross?

CROSS: I would like to announce a brief meeting of the Resolutions and Recommendations Committee immediately following the recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Nerland?

NERLAND: The Finance Committee will huddle immediately following the recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers?

V. RIVERS: If there is a recess the Executive Committee will meet at 11:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, if we recess the subcommittee of the Administration Committee should meet immediately after recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal's committee will meet immediately upon any recess. Mr. Smith?

SMITH: The Resources Committee will meet at the first time available.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Parliamentary inquiry. Does the President plan to call a meeting of the committee chairmen to discuss whether or not we should chop off plenary sessions in order for the committees to do some work?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, there will be a meeting of committee chairmen at 1:00 p.m. upstairs. If there are no further committee announcements, the question is, "Shall the Convention recess until 1:30 p.m.: All those in favor of recessing until 1:30 p.m. will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying no . The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 36 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Buckalew, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Davis, Doogan, Emberg, Gray, Hilscher, Hinckel, Hurley, King, Knight, Laws, Lee, Londborg, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Nerland, Nordale, Peratrovich, Poulsen, Reader, Riley, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 18 - Awes, Cooper, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Johnson, Kilcher, McCutcheon, McNees, Metcalf, Nolan, V. Rivers, Robertson, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: 36 yeas, 18 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the motion has carried, and the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30 p.m.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair notes a large group of students in the gallery from the Fairbanks Public Schools are with us this afternoon, and we hope that they will enjoy the proceedings that they will see here this afternoon. We have before us a motion by Mr. Taylor.

CHIEF CLERK: I don't think he moved.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion has not been placed on the floor as yet. Mrs. Hermann withdrew her motion in favor of Mr. Taylor's motion.

V. FISCHER: For your information, Mr. Taylor is on his way down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We might then for the time being pass over that question and continue with Article No. 1 of Proposal No. 1. We have Section 1 of Proposal No. 1. Are there other amendments?

HINCKEL: I have an amendment to offer but if we don't intend to wait for Mr. Taylor, Mr. Taylor's amendment should be read first.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well, Mr. Taylor is going to be here in a minute.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I move that we be at ease here for about five minutes to let Mr. Taylor get here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will be at ease for about five minutes to wait for Mr. Taylor. (Mr. Taylor enters Convention Hall.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Taylor, did you have a motion to make?

TAYLOR: I have a motion in the hands of the Clerk and I wish it to be read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please read the proposed motion.

CHIEF CLERK: "Proposal No. 1 be amended as follows: 'Strike Sections 1, 2 and 3 and insert in lieu thereof, Section 1 which shall read as follows: Section 1. The legislature of the State may provide by law the age and qualifications of voters of the State.'"

TAYLOR: I ask unanimous consent that it be adopted.

COGHILL: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Do you so move, Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: I so move.

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor so moves, Mr. Metcalf seconded the motion that the amendment be adopted. The amendment is open for discussion. Mr. Hellenenthal?

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I should like to be heard on this matter because it goes to the heart of the constitution. There are many matters that would be stricken by this motion that are constitutional matters in essence. For example, this motion would provide that matters such as absentee voting would be handled purely by the legislature, the same with registration, the same with contested elections. These are matters which nowhere are left to the legislature alone. In some instances unless there is a constitutional authorization for the matters they cannot be treated by the legislature. On those particular matters which generally constitute Sections 2, 3, and 4 there is in many instances a direct requirement for constitutional provisions in connection with them and they cannot be left to the legislature, but primarily I wanted to vote my remarks on behalf of the committee which dealt with this matter to the proposition that the qualifications of electors is not a constitutional matter, and that is the heart of Mr. Taylor's motion. Now, some, not all of those who support this motion are seeking, since they have been unable to fix the voting age at 21, they seek to throw it to the legislature hoping that in that manner they can assert their will. Now I am not saying that all those who favor this think that way but those who do are thinking in a most superficial manner. It would be a shocking thing if every time a delegate was unable to assert his will on a constitutional matter that he said, "We will leave that constitutional matter to the legislature so that I can get a second crack at it." That is exactly what some of the supporters of this motion would feel and think and what they are trying to do. But aside from that, let us assume that this was to be properly considered on its merits and this was not a hidden attempt to change the voting age in the legislature whereas it failed on the floor. Let us assume that that is not the reason, but I will not admit that is anything more than a bare assumption. If we take the matter of the qualifications of electors out of the constitution we shall be the only state in the Union that so does, the only state. Every state of the Union provides for the qualifications of its voters in its constitution. The reason for that is that it is at the heart of a democratic government that the suffrage be spelled out -- carefully, unambiguously. If you leave such an important matter to the whim of the legislature, nothing but confusion, almost anarchy would result. Those 48 states that set out in clear, fundamental language the rights of suffrage knew what they were doing. It is a state problem, and it is a constitutional problem, not a legislative problem. If you follow the argument that suffrage is a legislative problem to its conclusion, we have wasted the past two days of dealing with the judiciary article. We could have very simply said that the legislature shall prescribe the judiciary in such manner as it sees fit. If we follow the argument further when we discuss the bill of rights, those of us who do not agree with a particular section of the bill of rights should then logically propose that matters involving fundamental civil rights such as are normally treated in a constitutional bill of rights, be left to the legislature. The same can be said of the executive, the same could be said of local government. The same can be said of almost every provision of the constitution. If we adopt this motion, we are putting ourselves in the shape and in the form of the English system of government where there is no written constitution and where the will of the legislature is supreme. Now had Congress intended that we should adopt such a constitution they would not have restricted us to the republican form of government, and I can assure you that if such a legislative form of government is adopted by this body that the United States Congress will not approve our efforts here, and I would be greatly surprised if the people of Alaska .approved them. This is the beginning, from now on if this motion carries, the disgruntled few, instead of bowing gracefully to the will of the majority will seek to throw everything, fundamental or otherwise, to the will of the legislature. Suffrage again, it is fundamental, it is basic. If there is one thing in the constitution that should be definite, certain, crystal clear, holding out a promise to the youth of the state, it should be qualifications of the electors, and I suggest, and I say so strongly, that this motion and all similar motions should be voted down.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McNees.

MCNEES: I am glad this amendment was introduced frankly and so early in the Convention. I think it exposed a lot of hands and I think it will expose a lot more before the vote is completed. I think it is a matter too, as Mr. Hellenthal so ably stated, a matter of a disgruntled few unwilling to abide by the will of the majority, trying to impose a restriction which they could not otherwise gain on the floor in open session. Therefore I will vote against the amendment even though I was glad to see it introduced.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Personally, I am not one of the disgruntled few. I have been more or less lukewarm in this matter because it is immaterial to me whether 18, 19, 20, or 21 year old goes in, but I think this is just as much a legislative matter as it is a constitutional matter if we, by just a short statement say that we are going to let the legislature write the election laws and if the members of the delegation or the delegates to this Convention will look into the Session Laws of Alaska, you will see a lot of the election laws have been written by the legislature from time to time and established the qualifications. The qualifications have been set by Congress, alright the Enabling Act, but now we are told to step out and do something new and bold. But Mr. Hellenthal says, "No, let's do the things that are old and historical and traditional." But then with the next breath he destroys that old and historical and traditional way of doing things because he ridicules the English way of doing things upon which our government was founded, their system of law, the common law that we have still today. So I do not see where it would be any more danger to the government of Alaska whether we said that a 21-year-old person could vote or the legislature said an 18-year-old person could vote and that we would be doing ourselves a disservice and we would be doing the Territory a disservice by so finding. Perhaps I chose a wrong time to introduce this motion or ask for its approval because I see it brought on quite a flurry of oratory because there is a gallery full of young people here, and possibly Mr. Hellenthal and Mr. McNees are perhaps playing for the vote of these young people. I am not saying they are. It is just an assumption that they might be. So I think the assumptions can be indulged in by either one side or the other. I am not saying that as a fact but I say they can assume. We have spent now over one day on whether it is going to be 18, 19, 20, or 21, and we are no nearer to the solution right now than we were then. And if this Convention with all the work ahead of us cannot agree in 24 hours what the age of the voters is going to be, I think it is about time to pass it on to the legislature that can agree and most likely will agree, and I think as far as a disgruntled few -- why doesn't the other side sacrifice a few of their convictions too and meet in the middle ground, if they will. Of course it is always the person that is desirous of achieving a certain result -- they are the stubborn ones, they are the disgruntled ones that are going to see the thing die rather than to go along. But the other side then, they are vigorous and they are aggressive and they are trying to put forth legislation to defeat these disgruntled people who are going to tear down our traditions and are going to destroy our Territory by the matter of two years of a person's voting age, and I think we had better pass this thing right now and get it down to the legislature because I think we can't get it over with.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, I would like to address a question to Mrs. Hermann through the Chair. Mrs. Hermann, does the motion before us now satisfy the condition to your withdrawing of your motion to recommit?

HERMANN: No, Mr. President, it does not. I still have in mind certain things I would like to have the committee do to the proposal. I don't go quite as far as Mr. Taylor does, and I won't be able to support his motion for that reason. I don't have any intention, for instance, of disturbing the voting age that has been arrived at or will be arrived at by this Convention. The matters that I wish to refer to the Committee were of another nature entirely.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I was unavoidably detained. I wonder if I could ask to have the motion read.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk please read the motion by Mr. Taylor?

CHIEF CLERK: "Strike Sections 1, 2 and 3 and insert in lieu thereof, Section 1 which shall read as follows: Section 1. The legislature of the State may provide by law the age and qualifications of voters of the State.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew?

BUCKALEW: The only observation I can make, and I want to give Mr. Hellenthal credit for one thing, if he was playing to the gallery he is looking at least five or ten years in the future, and I am impressed with his looking that far ahead, but it seems to me that if we are going to follow Mr. Taylor's line of reason to its logical conclusion, I think we ought to adjourn sine die now and present the people of Alaska with a blank piece of paper and following the English system of an unwritten constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White.

WHITE: I am going to vote against this motion on the principle embodied in the motion, but I dislike hearing it said again and again and again that such and such an action should be attributed to the motives of the disgruntled few. I think that the matter of whether a particular proposal is a constitutional matter or not is a very live question, and I hope we won't try to end one discussion after another by a pat statement that this is or is not a matter for the constitution. I sometime in the future might like to vote for a similar motion, and I would not like to have it ascribed to ulterior motives of any kind. I think it is a completely open question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hilscher?

HILSCHER: Point of order. Do we have a public address system so the people can hear or do we not have?

PRESIDENT EGAN: They attempted to put one in yesterday Mr. Hilscher, but it fed back so much that it was not of much use. The Chair at the moment does not know what the situation is. Evidently there is no PA system at the present time. Is there further discussion? Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: In view of the remarks of Mrs. Hermann, that she would like to have that go back to the Committee for specific amendment, I would have no objection to that because we might get some results out of it, and I don't know if we will get it out of the way the way things are at the present time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no further discussion the question is, "Shall Mr. Taylor's motion be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of adoption of Mr. Taylor's motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The noes have it and the motion has failed. Are there other amendments to Committee Proposal No. 1? Mr. Metcalf?

METCALF: I have one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 12, beginning after the comma following the word 'only' insert the following" 'And shall have reached their legal majority for proposes of being sued in State courts on actions of contract.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your pleasure, Mr. Metcalf?

MR. METCALF: I move the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf moves the adoption of the amendment.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

SUNDBORG: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no discussion, the question is -- will the Chief Clerk please read the amendment again?

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 12, beginning after the comma following the word 'only' insert the following: 'And shall have reached their legal majority for purposes of being sued in State courts on actions of contract.'"

SUNDBORG: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Metcalf's proposed amendment be adopted?" All in favor will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The noes have it and the amendment as proposed by Mr. Metcalf has failed of adoption. Mr. Hinckel?

HINCKEL: I have an amendment on the Secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Will the Chief Clerk please read Mr. Hinckel's proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Substitute the following for Section 1: 'Every citizen of the United States, having other qualifications prescribed by law, shall be qualified to vote in any State or local election.'"

HINCKEL: I move the adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Your point of order, Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Point of order, Mr. Chairman. Mr. President, in substance the net result of this is merely reduplicating the same legal effect of Mr. Taylor's motion which lost, and I believe that under such circumstances the motion is out of order. In substance what it is, is a motion to reconsider. He is asking that the legislature prescribe the qualifications.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We don't have any motion before us at present.

HINCKEL: I move the adoption of it.

HERMANN: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hinckel moves the adoption, Mrs. Hermann seconds. Mr. McLaughlin has raised a point of order.

BARR: Point of information, Mr. President. I wonder what is meant by "law" there? Wouldn't that necessarily have to comply with the Federal Constitution then? Wouldn't that law apply?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would have to hold that it would almost have to comply with laws as set up with the state legislature of the State of Alaska, and consequently, Mr. Hinckel, while you probably did not intend it that way, Mr. Taylor's motion said in effect the same thing.

HINCKEL: If I'm not out of order, may I call to your attention that Mr. Taylor's motion struck Sections 1, 2 and 3, which I do not consider to be the same at all. I am asking to only strike Section 1 and substitute another section.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Of course the effect of that motion would put the voting requirements up to the legislature. The Chair would have to hold that for that reason, even though Sections 2 and 3 which is related matter relative to the voting qualifications and registration, that it would be the same and would have to be declared out of order, Mr. Hinckel, at this time. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: I have an amendment. Before presenting this amendment, Mr. President, I would like to say that my motion this morning to recommit the matter for specific amendment had, as I say, no intent to destroy the main effect of the proposal as it had been presented by the Committee. My principal purpose was to have some, what I call quite serious defects corrected, but it is quite possible that I can do that by means of separate amendments and not have to return it to the Committee since it might save a little time in that way, and this amendment which I have presented now is the first of a series that I wish to make.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the amendment as submitted by Mrs. Hermann.

CHIEF CLERK: "Add to Section 1 the following: 'The right of secrecy of ballot shall be preserved.'"

HERMANN: I move the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann moves the adoption of the amendment. Is there a second to the motion?

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is open for discussion.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, a point of inquiry.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson, your point of inquiry.

JOHNSON: Is that not a matter that is more properly included in the bill of rights?

HERMANN: It properly could be included in the bill of rights. I think if we get everything in the bill of rights that everyone is going to put in, we won't have any room for the rest of the constitution. It seems to me that if we are going to bring along sections about suffrage and elections, which I think is far too long as it is, this properly belongs in there too, and I can't see any harm in putting it there, because I am quite sure that the Committee on Style and Drafting, as Mr. Sundborg is Chairman of, will put it in its proper place when the time comes for the arrangement part of the program.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would just like to suggest so that there is not too much rearranging to do that this amendment be more proper to Section 4 which deals with elections rather than amending the section dealing with the qualifications of voters.

HERMANN: I accept that change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, then you would request that this sentence be added to Section 4?

HERMANN: Either that or made into a Section 5.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I am also a member of the Committee on Bill of Rights, and Mrs. Hermann is correct that the Bill of Rights Committee has made no recommendation with regard to sanctifying the secrecy of elections in the democratic state. Our committee considered it and thought that it was a matter for legislation. However, I think I can speak on behalf of all the members of the committee that they have no objection to preserving this fundamental democratic right some place in the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann's proposed amendment is offered as a new Section 5 to Committee Proposal No. 1. Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, may I address a question to Mr. Hellenthal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Hellenthal, you just said that you were sure your committee would have no objection to a provision such as Mrs. Hermann's being included somewhere in the constitution. Would your committee have any objections to having it included at the point suggested by Mrs. Hermann, I think the final thing was a new section, Section 5?

HELLANTHAL: I, of course, can't say without consulting them, but I can say positively that they would have no objection, and if any of them do they should feel free to bring it to our attention, and I am sure they have not.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Then the question is, "Shall Mrs. Hermann's proposed amendment adding a new Section 5 to Committee Proposal No. 1, be adopted by the Convention?"

DAVIS: I would like to have the proposed section read please. PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please read it.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 5. The right of secrecy of ballot shall be preserved."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mrs. Hermann's proposed amendment be adopted?" Mr. Kilcher?

KILCHER: I just wonder if the section is adopted in its present wording, if it might have retroactive effects on that "read or write" clause in Section 1. How can secrecy be guaranteed if, as in the case of a blind person, in the case of a person who can't read, the election judges might have to assist? Can Mrs. Hermann answer my question?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, if you care to answer.

HELLENTHAL: I think that question can be answered quite simply, that the right to secrecy is not an absolutely unqualified right. It is like the right of freedom of speech. The classic example is that the right of freedom of speech does not give one the right to yell "fire" in a crowded theatre.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mrs. Hermann's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the amendment is ordered adopted. Are there other amendments to Committee Proposal No. 1? Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I have an amendment on the Chief Clerk's desk. I would like to have it read and then will move its adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Please read the amendment as offered by Mr. Johnson.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, have you passed No. 1? Are you going back?

PRESIDENT EGAN: No. 1 will still be open, Mrs. Sweeney.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 4, line 16, page 2, strike the word 'second' at beginning of line and insert the word 'first', after the word 'Tuesday' add the following: 'after the first Monday', strike the word 'October' and insert the word 'November'.

PRESIDENT EGAN: What is your pleasure, Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: I move the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there a second?

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf seconds the motion. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I should like to point out, Mr. President, that the purpose of the amendment is simply to make our general election coincide with the date throughout the United States, that is generally prevalent throughout the United States in a presidential election.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, there is little to be said with having a state election fall on the same day as a national election for the same reason that in a state election we are electing officers at state level. Frequently the confusion that arises in national or foreign politics at our nation's level are confused with the state level issues, and they do not properly have a place there. Consequently, it seems ill-advised to have confused in the elections, our state officers with our national officers or national policies. Consequently, I feel that the way this document is written at the current time is much more preferable because when we are having purely state elections we will be consequently voting on purely state issues and not whether we have to carry on a police action in Korea or the South Pacific or elsewhere.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I merely wanted to point out the background in the Committee's recommendation in this regard. The present requirement of Section 4 is taken verbatim from the present Territorial law on the subject which was adopted in 1946. "A general election for members of the legislature, the delegate to Congress and other officers of the Territory shall be held on the second Tuesday in October, 1946, and every second year thereafter on the second Tuesday in October." Then it goes on to say, "provided the legislature shall have power from time to time as the need therefore may arise, to change the date of general elections in the Territory." No good reason was advanced in the committee hearings why the present Territorial law which had been in effect since 1946 should be departed from and hence it was adhered to without change.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: May I address a question to Mr. Hellenthal?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection you may, Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. Hellenthal, what will be the situation with respect to the people of Alaska voting for electors for the office of president if we have our general election in October? Can we at that election vote for those electors or will there be of necessity another election in November?

HELLENTHAL: There will have to be another election in November.

SUNDBORG: Then I certainly support Mr. Johnson's proposed amendment. I think it would be expensive and unworkable and confusing to have to have two elections within a month of one another, and the second one be one where all we did was to vote for the President of the United States.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, I hesitate to change the date of our elections. That subject has come up in practically every session of the legislature that I attended, and there was always some good reason advanced, but then when it was talked over it was found that it would be very inconvenient to some group of people. This date we have in October seems to be a good compromise. The fishermen in Southeastern Alaska are better able to vote and the miners come in from the creeks at that time, and most of the construction work is shutting down, and therefore it makes it easier for a larger group of people to vote. I want to point out too that our legislature meets in January. If we have an election in November it takes a certain amount of time to canvass these votes and to ascertain the results, and that would be too short a time. Also, if a new governor is elected he won't have any time when he takes office to acquaint himself with a job before the legislature meets. This is really a pretty complicated question too, and we need to look into all phases of it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I would like to ask Mr. Hellenthal a question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, ask the question.

COGHILL: Mr. Hellenthal, isn't it true that in other states they hold their election prior to the national election?

HELLENTHAL: Those are primary elections as I understand it, preferential primaries. They don't vote for the President of the United States on any other day but on November second, I believe it is, but it is always one day. The others I am sure are primaries.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? Mr. Taylor?

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I believe that I have read over many years that Maine elects their senators and representatives to Congress and their state officials considerably in advance of the usual time set for the voting on presidential elections.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it seems to me that we are losing sight of the fact that this proposal will not take effect unless this constitution is adopted and we become a state. It is not in any way going to change the present setup or affect the election of our legislature or anything else. I am quite certain that if this matter is adopted that when we do become a state, the legislature can meet a sufficient time beyond the election date to accommodate any discrepancies in the matter of the shortness of time. As far as being a practical matter, Mr. Barr points out that it might be better for some miners or some construction workers or perhaps some fishermen to vote in October rather than in November. That does not seem to me to hold water because we have provided in Section 1 that if it stands up, for absentee voting, and there is a great deal of absentee voting going on right now, and I think as we become a state and start development that we will have more reasons why people will spend all year in Alaska rather than go outside in the winter time, as they do now, and it certainly seems incongruous to me to think that we would be attempting to hold our elections a month ahead of the national date, and I have provided the wording in this proposal which is set up by the Congress of the United States, that is if the amendment is adopted, the Section 4 would read, "General elections shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of every second year." That is the way the Congress has adopted the election date and I don't know why we should be at variance with them if we want to be one of the sisterhood of states.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Londborg?

LONDBORG: May I ask for a minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for one minute.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Is there further discussion of Mr. Johnson's proposed amendment. Mr.

Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, during the recess I was advised on what I consider good authority that it is not necessary to elect presidential electors at an election in November, on the date which would be specified by Mr. Johnson's amendment, but that we could at our single election in October, if we leave the section of the article as it is as submitted by our committee, elect the presidential electors and all the officials of the state, the senators and representatives, and take care of the whole election process on one date, and in view of that advice I would oppose Mr. Johnson's proposed amendment

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Emberg?

EMBERG: I wish to speak against the amendment too, and purely for reasons that are local within the area which I represent in Bristol Bay. In November the rivers are freezing up, the slews are full of overflow ice and water. It is impossible for the trapper to get around the country. He can't even get to a post office to send in an absentee ballot. It does not fit with that part of the country, and I am pretty sure that will hold true for the lower Kuskokwim and probably the lower Yukon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there further discussion? If not, the question is, "Shall Mr. Johnson's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "noes" have it and the amendment has failed of adoption. Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment to Section 4 which is close to the subject.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read Mr. Fischer's proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 4, page 2, lines 16 and 17 delete the words 'and every second year thereafter on the same day' and substitute 'of every even-numbered year'."

V. FISCHER: I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer moves and asks unanimous consent for the adoption of this motion. Is there objection?

JOHNSON: I object.

V. FISCHER: I so move.

SUNDBORG: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is open for discussion. Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to point out that the language as it now stands does not specify whether we hold general elections in even-or odd-numbered years, and I think it is very important that if we are going to elect senators and representatives on the same basis as other states elect them we will have to elect them in even-numbered years.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: That is one of the things I was wanting the amendment sent back for was to clarify that a little, because it does not say when the first one was going to be held even, and there were several other things that were wrong with it. I will vote for the amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: The reason the language is present in the amendment as it appears is that the experts on these matters who advised the Committee stated that that would be a matter for the transitory measures group to take care of, for the simple reason that we do not know when Congress will approve the constitution, whether it will be in an odd year or even year, and that there will have to be of necessity further election times taken care of by the transitory matters group.

MCCUTCHEON: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I agree with Mr. Hellenthal that for the first election we certainly want to leave it open so that we might have it at whatever time would be convenient and consistent with the date of adoption of a bill admitting Alaska as a state, but won't Mr. Hellenthal agree that for subsequent elections and at this place in the constitution it is advisable to provide that the elections will be held in even numbered years?

HELLENTHAL: I do think so, but I think that belongs in your transitory department because such a rule or such a law will be of temporary duration, will only last for a very limited period of time and has no business in the permanent constitution of Alaska.

SUNDBORG: The part of it having to do with even-numbered years is not of a transitory nature, is it? Isn't that something we want forever? The only thing we want to handle in the transition ordinance is the one setting up the first election.

HELLENTHAL: That could very well be, and we thought also that the legislature is empowered to change the date would take care of that, but if you want to enshrine it in the constitution that could very well be done.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Fischer's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?"

STEWART: May we have it read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment once more.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 4, page 2, lines 16 and 17 delete the words 'and every second year thereafter on the same day' and substitute 'of every even-numbered year'." So that the section would read, "General elections shall be held on the second Tuesday in October of every even-numbered year, but the legislature is empowered to change said date.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall Mr. Fischer's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All in favor of the adoption of the amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes have it and the amendment is ordered adopted. Mrs. Sweeney?

SWEENEY: I have an amendment for the first section.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would the Chief Clerk proceed with the reading of Mrs. Sweeney's proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 2, change '19' to '20'." SWEENEY: Mr. President, I move the adoption of this amendment.

SUNDBORG: Point of order. We have already voted on this very matter and have voted it down, and so I say we can't vote on it again because it is out of order.

SWEENEY: Mr. President, you did permit a vote on it from 19 to 21. We have never had an opportunity to vote on whether we would like to have it at 20, and I believe I am right in asking that we vote on age 20.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, the Chair recognizes your feeling on it, but in the opinion of the Chair when the Convention accepted the age of 19 after the 20-year qualification as already in the proposal, they signified that the 20-year requirement was not acceptable to them. Then they voted again on the 21_year amendment which was in proper order, but a motion to vote on the 20-year requirement inasmuch as it was originally in the proposal and changed, the Chair would have to rule out of order because it has in effect already been considered.

SWEENEY: Then was it possible this morning before the 21-year vote to have had my motion in? This is an amendment that I held over from yesterday because of Mr. McNealy's reconsideration notice.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney, the moment the Convention, in the opinion of the Chair, the moment the Convention adopted the 19-year requirement, or it would have been impossible then to have offered an amendment to go back to the 20-year requirement because it is already in the proposal to begin with, and it was not necessary for any amendment. The fact that the body did amend the vote, that the body did not favor the 20-year requirement that was already in the proposal, that is why the Chair has to rule that way. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I would move that the rules be suspended and let Mrs. Sweeney be allowed to move the adoption of her amendment.

MCNEALY: I second the motion.

BUCKALEW: I object.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a minute.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair had quite a doubt as to the motion to suspend the rules even being in order, but after thinking it over, Mr. Taylor, did you move for a suspension of the rules?

TAYLOR: Yes, I moved the suspension of the rules.

SWEENEY: I seconded the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the rules be suspended in order that this matter be taken up once more?"

DAVIS: It will have to be a roll call vote.

SUNDBORG: Is this debatable?

PRESIDENT EGAN: A suspension of the rules is not debatable. The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 33 - Armstrong, Barr, Boswell, Collins, Cooper, Doogan, Gray, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McNealy, Metcalf, Nolan, Nordale, Reader, Riley, Robertson, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Nays: 21 - Awes, Buckalew, Coghill, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Harris, Hilscher, Kilcher, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNees, Marston, Nerland, Peratrovich, Poulsen, V. Rivers, Rosswog.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

GRAY: I would like to change my vote from "no" to "yes".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray wants to change his vote to "yes".

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I would like to change my vote to "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Buckalew changes his vote to "no".

CHIEF CLERK: 33 yeas, 21 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the rules have failed to have been suspended. Mr. Knight.

KNIGHT: Mr. President, I have an amendment to offer. The Sergeant at Arms has it.

HILSCHER: Might we ask how many proposals that the Chief Clerk has on her desk, how many amendments at the present time she has not gotten around to.

CHIEF CLERK: Four.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight has the floor right now and asks that his proposed amendment be read. The Chief Clerk may proceed with the reading of the proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 2, page 2, line 3' delete the .figures '2,500' and insert the figures '1,000'.

KNIGHT: Mr. President, the way the proposal reads now it would only affect four towns in the Territory, Ketchikan, Anchorage, Juneau and Fairbanks. It is a little unfair. I think it should take in towns of 1,000 or more. I ask unanimous consent that it be adopted.

MCCUTCHEON: Objection.

BUCKALEW: I second the motion.

COOPER: Mr. President, I ask for a one-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for one minute.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have before us Mr. Knight's proposed amendment on line 3, page 2, strike "2,500" and insert "1,000". Mr. Walsh.

WALSH: Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Committee on Suffrage, this was my proposal. There was some discussion that all voters should be registered. We should have a permanent registration throughout the Territory. My objection to a permanent registration was that in the smaller communities, we say Native villages up to maybe 700, the materials for registration might not reach there in time prior to an election. As very often the material for general elections does not reach there maybe until election day, due to adverse weather, flying, etc., and we raised it up to 2500 so that the incorporated town or the community with a larger population where they have access and plane service practically daily, why we thought the registration should be compulsory there. Now I would like to direct a question to Mr. Knight and to ask him if his motion should prevail, what towns would be benefited by it?

KNIGHT: Seward, Petersburg, Wrangell, Sitka, Cordova, Valdez, Barrow, Kodiak, all towns of at least 1,000 population.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: With the consent of Mr. Knight and his second I would like to amend his amendment. Is that in order at this time?

KNIGHT: I am in favor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: I will listen to the amendment first.

COOPER: "The legislature shall establish a system of permanent voter registration."

KNIGHT: I am in favor of that.

GRAY: Has the motion been seconded?

COOPER: I offered that as an amendment to Mr. Knight's amendment. I ask unanimous consent.

MCCUTCHEON: Objection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Objection is heard. Your point of order, Mr. Hurley.

HURLEY: Point of order. If I understand where he puts the period it does away with the entire sense of the amendment. It is out of order. We could hardly consider both of them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight's proposed amendment changed the population relative to registration. Mr. Cooper's proposed amendment would let the legislature set up that permanent voter registration. In the light of your point of order, Mr. Hurley, it would be, as an amendment to Mr. Knight's proposed amendment, it would be out of order at this time. Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, I believe that it might bear on Mr. Cooper's amendment that Mr. Knight did consent to it and I believe spoke also for his second. Perhaps it might be more properly accomplished if Mr. Knight would withdraw.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If you would ask to withdraw your original amendment, Mr. Knight, it could then be accomplished.

KNIGHT: I so do.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight asks, with the consent of his second, to withdraw his original amendment. Is there objection? Now an amendment in the nature that you suggested would be in order, Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: I ask for a one-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, the Convention will stand at recess for one minute.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

COOPER: I yield the floor to Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I have a proposed amendment on the Secretary's desk.

COOPER: I yield my amendment to Mr. White.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. White has an amendment on the Secretary's desk. The Chief Clerk may read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 2, lines 2 and 3, delete the words 'in municipalities with populations over 2,500'."

WHITE: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the amendment be adopted.

MCCUTCHEON: I object.

COOPER: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper seconds the motion. Mr. Hellenenthal.

HELLENTHAL: I think if we give a history of the Committee's discussion on this matter it might help. It was the belief of the Committee that some mention need be made in the constitution to remove constitutional objections should a registration law be passed by the legislature and remove any question in other words of whether the authority to require voter registration existed, although frankly, I don't think that under the light of the decisions of the Ninth Circuit in Alaska, particularly the case involving Francis Bowden and the Mayor and Councilman of Anchorage that that is necessary, but anyway they felt that there should be something in the constitution to remove the objection. The first draft provided as follows: "The legislature may establish a system of voter registration." In other words, it incorporated merely the principle that the constitutional objection be removed leaving it entirely as a matter of legislative discretion as to whether there would be any registration law, what kind of a law there should be, to what extent it should apply. In the Committee it was finally agreed -- there was considerable discussion about it one group felt that it would be utterly impractical to require voter registration in the outlying areas and that it would not work and that it would actually discourage voting, and they testified to their experience in this regard for many years in Alaska and pointed out that registration was confined to the very large cities of Alaska. At present only Anchorage, Fairbanks and Juneau and perhaps Ketchikan --

SUNDBORG: Not Juneau.

HELLENTHAL: Very few large cities anyway that have it in Alaska, and it is confined only to cities, so it was the agreement of the Committee following this discussion that it be amended to its present language and you will notice that in the letter accompanying the report it was stated that the Committee believes that permanent registration should be required in urban areas, municipalities with population over 2,500, leaving the matter in other areas for legislative decision. I just give this so you can understand the background of the present language.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, it seems to me that the Committee's objective would not be carried out by leaving the present language. I am not an attorney but it would appear to me that if you specified that the legislature shall establish a system of permanent voter registration in municipalities with population over 2,500, the constitutional intent there seems to be that those communities that have a population under 2,500 do not have permanent registration. That is just my opinion. Aside from that, I can see the objection to requiring everybody to register in some of these outlying communities due to the difficulty of everybody coming in from some place far removed and registering at a specified time prior to, say the first election. Now it seems to me that that objection could be removed by having a transitional measure or an ordinance which would specify that all those who vote at the first state election shall automatically be put upon the permanent voter registration list of the state and that will give everyone an opportunity to be automatically registered and under standard registration procedure. If they keep voting from then on, then they would remain on permanent roll. Now I assume the motion to refer such a request to the Committee on Ordinances and Transitional Measures would be out of place now, but I certainly would intend to make that kind of a motion or submit that proposal to carry out the intention if the language, "in municipalities with population over 2,500" is removed. As it stands now, I think it is extremely prejudicial against communities with populations over 2,500, and I can see no excuse for this kind of language.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Marston.

MARSTON: I don't know whether this nation will long endure if we continue to pile up restrictions against voting. If we don't vote, we are going to lose our way of life and these are fundamental things we're into here and our Committee, as our Chairman said, went thoroughly into this for three weeks. I know a village, when the box came for voting, there was nobody there. They built a store over in Igloo and they all moved to Igloo. That happened a very short time ago. People come in in boats, these people live in the fishing areas and are told, "Election today. Well, I didn't register." "Well, you don't have to register, come on and vote." And they'll walk in and vote. I think this is fundamental. Let's quit piling up these papers and restrictions and let the people vote. This is fundamental, and I think you are touching the very vital system of our government. The time has come to quit putting these restrictions on and be free American citizens, and we know who belongs here and who doesn't, we definitely know. It would be a very big detriment against the outlying districts, the men in the boondocks, the men in the tundra if you put this requirement on. I vote against it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I would just like to ask Mr. Marston whether he feels however, that this restrictions should apply to people in municipalities with a population over 2,500.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you care to answer that, Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: That is your white people, you go ahead. T

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor, you have the floor.

TAYLOR: I have an amendment to the amendment on the Clerk's desk in which is very short, it changes the word "shall" to "may". The legislature "may".

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment by Mr. White.

CHIEF CLERK: Mr. White's amendment: "Delete the words 'in municipalities with populations over 2,500'." It has nothing to do with it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor your amendment that you offered does not amend the particular amendment that is before us at this time. It will be in order, your amendment, after we consider this one.

TAYLOR: It would, Mr. Speaker, because theirs is in the imperative. It "shall" establish and mine says "may" establish.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Do you intend it to go right along into the full section with this other proposal?

TAYLOR: It will have to be voted on first, the amendment to the amendment, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is not actually an amendment to the amendment.

TAYLOR: I will hold it up.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment again then.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 2, lines 2 and 3, delete the words 'in municipalities with populations over 2,500'."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is then, "Shall Mr. White's amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption of Mr. White's amendment will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following result:

Yeas: 29 - Awes, Boswell, Cooper, Davis, Doogan, H. Fischer, V. Fischer, Gray, Hinckel, Hurley, Johnson, King, Knight, Laws, .Lee, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Poulsen, Reader, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Sweeney, VanderLeest, White.

Nays: 25 - Armstrong, Barr, Buckalew, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Emberg, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Kilcher, Londborg, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, McNees, Marston, Metcalf, Peratrovich. Riley, Taylor, Walsh, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I would like to change my vote to "no".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor asks that his vote be changed to "no".

CHIEF CLERK: 29 yeas, 25 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And so the "ayes" have it, and the amendment is ordered adopted. Mr. Gray?

GRAY: Mr. President, I have the same amendment as you, Mr. Taylor. Do you have your amendment ready?

TAYLOR: Mine is on the desk, and I move its adoption.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment, Mr. Taylor's proposed amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 2, page 2, line 1, change 'shall' to 'may'."

TAYLOR: I move the adoption and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Taylor asks unanimous consent that his proposed amendment be adopted. Is there objection?

V. FISCHER: I object.

GRAY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is open for discussion. Miss Awes?

AWES: May I ask Mr. Taylor a question. I was wondering about the legal effect of this provision. Do you think with the word "may" that the legislature would be authorized to provide permanent voter registration just for certain areas, or would it have to provide for the whole Territory if it provided at all?

TAYLOR: No, I do not believe so, Miss Awes. I think it might be able to include the larger areas because they have official -- and they practically all have a system of registration which they could apply or use for the registration of voters in Territorial election. I think it would entail a great amount of work and a great amount of expense if you tried to spread this thing into every outlying area because many times it is a little difficult to get the people to do it, and when you can see that every little precinct would have to have some registrar there and they get 25 cents or 50 cents a registration, it is going to run the state into a lot of expense, but I think if we change the word to "may" I think they will have the right to end those places where they have no machinery for registering.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You mean to change the word "shall" to "may"?

TAYLOR: Yes.

NORDALE: It seems to me that we are sort of overlooking the fact that at present everybody who votes registers. The only difference is that he registers just before he votes, and I don't see any reason why the legislature could not use that registration for a permanent registration record but leave it somewhat the same as it is for the small towns and rural areas. I don't see that it presents any particular problem at all.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Gray.

GRAY: Mr. Chairman, my feeling on this particular registration is that permanent voter registration is the purpose of the mechanics of voting, to avoid fraud and to be sure that the right people get a right to vote and not vote twice. Now those become problems of the moment. You have at this time we will say you have a problem at Anchorage, you have a large population, nobody knows everyone. On the other hand, we have a small population at Klawock where everybody knows every sister and brother, and the relatives. As long as we have a great country here and as long as we have conditions that change from extremes as much as our weather does, that a problem like this and a problem of permanent voter registration, a problem of identifying your voters is too broad a subject, and with a change in time to be incorporated in the constitution as spelled out in a particular number like 2,500. And we have to protect our election procedure. The only way that we can take care of change in time and change in conditions is through our legislature. That is why to empower the legislature to take such action as necessary, we will have the door open for permanent registration for those conditions that are necessary.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Peratrovich.

PERATROVICH: Mr. Chairman, I want to say a few words since I was on a committee that proposed this 2,500 limitation. Now the Committee, as our Chairman very ably stated, was very considerate in trying to consider all sections of the country in making this provision. Under that, the smaller outlying population represented by two or three on the committee submitted their problems, and on through the recommendation of one of our delegates from Fairbanks, this provision for permanent registration was considered. If I may mention the name, it was Mr. Cooper. He insisted that this was a procedure we should follow. It was not fair to the larger towns if we did not have permanent registration. For that reason the smaller community representation compromised and arrived at this figure. I don't see where it presents such a problem. I think if it is left to the legislature I don't doubt but what they will come up with something satisfactory with everyone. I just want to make this point that the Committee did not try to pull anything, if I may use that language, but we were only trying to arrive at a point where both sides would be satisfied, the larger cities through the statements provided by Mr. Cooper and the smaller communities as represented by the other faction.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Awes.

AWES: I just wanted to make a comment or two in response to Mrs. Nordale's statement. It is my understanding that in some states the legislature would pass a statute providing for registration and the state supreme court would hold it unconstitutional, so I think that for that reason I think this should be a mention of registration in the constitution, but I think the provision should be broad enough that the legislature can provide for areas as they feel is necessary, because in the first 50 years after we get statehood there is going to be quite a change in conditions and I think the legislature should have quite a bit of leeway.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Knight?

KNIGHT: I think it would be in error to change the word "shall" to "may". By putting in the word "may" there is a chance for the legislature to "pass the buck" you might call it. Where "shall" means they are ordered to do that very thing, I think "shall" should remain in there.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin.

MCLAUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, I was prepared to ask for unanimous consent for suspension of the rules so that I could make a motion and an explanation.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McLaughlin, the Chair would have to hold that the motion would not be in order at this time while this particular motion is before us. Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Mr. President, I wish to speak in favor of the amendment for this reason, that I think this is a prime example with all due respect to the Committees of commencing to write legislation into the constitution, and when the legislation comes out on to the floor we are going to have these sorts of hassles about it. The reason that I prefer the word "may" is the fact that I think a number of us here in the Convention, from some of the remarks that have been made in regard to the legislature, have feelings of necessity to spell so many things out for them and this is only the beginning. I think we should realize that the legislature of the Territory of Alaska and the legislature of the future State of Alaska has not been and is not going to be a common enemy. They are not an enemy of the people. They are even as you and I, and we are the ones who have elected them, and I think that we don't have to spell out all the work for them. I think that if there is an indication in this article here that the legislature may establish this system, I think that future legislatures will consider that, and based upon that setup the kind of registration system which will work, and like Colonel Marston, I too am thinking about the mandate here that is going to require registration which would possibly call for setting up some special type or a special time for registration. However, I will go further, that I still have the faith in the legislature, and I know exactly what is happening. If we pass this, the legislature shall establish this permanent system then the legislature is going to use its prerogative and skim it down until the kind of registration that is given will be a registration of the bare minimum to merely comply with the constitution because that is the only way that the people in these small villages down the river can have protection.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, the reason I objected to the substitution of "may" is that I feel that we are amending the wrong word in the sentence. By saying "may" we say nothing about having some system of registration. Now, if flexibility is desired, and I certainly go along with every argument that has been expressed on behalf of the problems that would exist in the small outlying communities, but if that is the case, let us eliminate the word "permanent" and leave in the "legislature shall establish a system of voter registration" so that we at least have what we have today. This will leave it open so that there may be no registration. There will be no record of who voted. You could never check out on anybody, and I don't think that is right. I think the minimum we should have in the State in Alaska is what we have today. And let's leave the door open by leaving in "shall" and if you want to amend, eliminate "permanent".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper.

COOPER: Mr. President, as Delegate Peratrovich stated, I am on this committee, and I was all for hanging on to some form of permanent voter registration. In Delegate Proposal No. 35, which has now lost its identity, it states, and be a voter registered in accordance with law". That "be" in this case I could use as the legislature shall establish a system of permanent voter registration. As the population increases, as the impact of economics happens and moves into Alaska, these areas that are now friendly villages where everybody knows everyone else's relations, could over night become a center of population of increasing by the thousands per month. There would be only a decennial census to establish reapportionment or a basis for the legislature to establish permanent registration. I can't help but think that if the ordinance could be drawn as Mr. Fischer stated, that would handle the registration at the time of voting, initially, that there would be no one that would be persecuted in attempting to later carry out their voting rights. Now, as I say, I was all prepared to hang tough for a permanent voting registration act, and I think it is best or could best be accomplished by the legislature. The legislature could take into consideration certain areas at this time that are a very minimum population, but I do believe there would be some loopholes left open if that were the case. The present day registration is not adequate. I know that at the election held for this Constitutional Convention, in one instance out of seven voters, three were illegal voters right in the town of Fairbanks. That is merely in one instance out of seven, and there must be something done to police our voting. The only place where the voters can be policed is at the point of registration. You cannot argue with a voter when he walks through the door and asks for his ballot. The registration is a method of policing the vote.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Harris.

HARRIS: Mr. President, I move for a 15-minute recess.

COGHILL: I object. I want to rise to a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill objects.

HARRIS: I so move.

SWEENEY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: All those in favor of standing at recess for 15 minutes will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by "no". The "ayes" have it. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

COGHILL: Mr. President, rising to a point of personal privilege --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there objection to Mr. Coghill's request for personal privilege. If not, Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: I would like to call the delegates' attention to the notice that was placed upon the Convention Hall by the Committee on Administration, the sign that says, "It is later than you think". In the mail boxes you will find a financial report that will bring you up to date on finances of the Convention through the recess. In lieu of this we have four or five experts here for consultation with the committees for work. We have only five working days left before we will leave to go on our hearing recess, and I think that we should hold our plenary sessions short so, Mr. Chairman, if I am permitted, I would like to move and ask unanimous consent that this body, upon the completion of the motion on hand, that we adjourn until 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill, I think the Chair feels that you would have to get out from under your point of personal privilege before you make that motion.

COGHILL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that we adjourn at 4 o'clock this afternoon to again take up plenary session at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill moves and asks unanimous consent that the Convention stand adjourned beginning at 4 p.m. until 1:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon in order that the committees might function and most of them be able to get their proposals ready to present to the Convention.

HERMANN: I would like to amend the motion to say that the plenary session, when it adjourns today at whatever hour, not to meet again in plenary session until Thursday morning, giving all of tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann is asking if you would be acceptable to an amendment of that nature?

COGHILL: I will yield for the purpose of an amendment of that kind. However, my stating at 4 o'clock I felt that would give us ample time to get rid of the business that is on hand, this particular part that we all have fresh in our mind, and upon the completion of the adoption or rejection of the motion, then to adjourn until your time is fine with me.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Nine o'clock Thursday morning?

HERMANN: Yes, Mr. President. My purpose in that is to give tomorrow completely over to committee meetings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: May I be recognized on a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Sundborg, you may proceed.

SUNDBORG: As the President and a good many others here know, this matter was discussed today at the meeting of committee chairmen, and the proposal which Mrs. Hermann just made was discussed, and after considerable discussion was discarded in favor of a plan that for the next few days and until the committee work is completed, we should hold only afternoon meetings of the plenary session and not come out here at all for a day or two because we felt that perhaps some of the members just would not show up. We thought if we came out and had a plenary session each day, that that would be insurance that everyone would be on hand. It was the suggestion of the committee chairmen that until further notice we should each day dispense with the morning plenary session and have plenary sessions from 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon until such hour as may be required in order to give the committees a chance to function at the other times during the day.

HERMANN: I request special privilege too.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: The reason I suggested that all day tomorrow be given over to committee meetings was that it is my impression that we have Mrs. Jones' class invited here for Thursday - am I correct in that -- Thursday morning that is, and we certainly should not be having just committee meetings while that class is here, so I had felt that if we gave you all day tomorrow to hold committee meetings why it will take in practically all your committees, and I will come out I assure you whether I need to or not, so can Mr. Sundborg if he is worried about it, and I think that it would be a much better arrangement if we did it that way in view of the fact we have issued that invitation to Mrs. Jones and her pupils.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That is correct. We have issued the invitation to Mrs. Jones to have her class here. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: May I be recognized again under the same heading? It has been mentioned to me that the Convention has extended an invitation to Dr. Ira Gabrielson to appear before us and he will be available tomorrow only. It was my thought and the thought of others that we would hear him during an afternoon plenary session tomorrow.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I would like to say I agree with the committee chairmen on that, except I do not agree we should overlook this class. However, I would not want to see any bona fide Convention day go by without having a roll call at sometime during the day. That was also discussed, so if we were to recess until tomorrow afternoon and then tomorrow afternoon recess until Thursday morning and have a short plenary session, at such time as that class would be here I believe it is one hour, we could then go ahead with our committee work after that. It would seem to me to fulfill the requirements of this invitation that we have extended.

PRESIDENT EGAN: On this particular invitation, if the delegates will recall, we are going to take these children to lunch with us on Thursday. We will each have someone to take with us to lunch. And on the question of Dr. Gabrielson, we have extended him an invitation to appear here also, and it would be almost mandatory upon the body that possibly tomorrow afternoon we hear from him. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I would like personal privilege again.

PRESIDENT EGAN: You may, Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Why not meet in the morning and hear Dr. Gabrielson, if he is available then, and then turn the afternoon over to committee sessions, or turn the whole morning and afternoon too, that is left over and then in that manner it will be much more convenient for those who do not have committee meetings.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, on the same subject matter, there are four committees that have not made their reports as yet. They are Apportionment, Local Government, Resources and Finance. The Bill of Rights report, all the matters were carefully discussed. There are three committees that will report tomorrow, and they do not need additional time for committee meetings. The only four that need additional time for committee meetings is Apportionment, Local Government, Resources and Finance. Three will meet tomorrow morning, which is their normal schedule and the proposal was that they meet tomorrow. The other committee Finance -- is going to be somewhat inconvenienced, but I believe the committee chairman said that he could fit in, rather than inconvenience everybody, by holding the afternoon open for the committee's sole benefit. Therefore, also the committee chairmen believe that in a couple of days they would be able to have their reports. So the thought was that if they devoted all tomorrow morning, all the next morning to committee meetings and then the afternoons and evenings if necessary, to plenary sessions, that we could get our work done far more expeditiously than closing up for two days or more, which would be unnecessary because a lot of people would be idle during that time. I see no reason why this good lady with her class can't come and have lunch with the committee that has been picked, then at 1:30 participate in the revelry.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal, an invitation has been sent to Mrs. Jones requesting that she come here in the morning. It just entered the mind of the Chair that it probably would be possible to call her and suggest such a method to her. Mr. King?

KING: Mr. Chairman, we have had several conversations referring to Dr. Gabrielson. The last few days it was thought by the President of the Resources Committee that he would appear tomorrow morning, and that has been the schedule to date. Of course, he is going to leave day after tomorrow as he has a very tight schedule, but so far he has been scheduled to appear before this Convention tomorrow morning. It could probably be arranged that he would appear in the afternoon, but surely if it is going to be adjourned until day after tomorrow, we are not even going to see him. He will be gone.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: May I ask the President whether any hour was mentioned in the invitation to Mrs. Jones's class?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It was mentioned a couple of days ago that we would undoubtedly be in session in the morning and that at some time in the morning it probably would be interesting to her class to be here. However, Mr. Sundborg, the Chair feels it might well accomplish a change in that by a telephone call to Mrs. Jones.

SUNDBORG: It occurs to me the class is probably over for the day and they must have made some arrangements to bring the children out here.

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would not be until Thursday, Mr. Sundborg. Mr. Marston?

MARSTON: A suggestion, if Dr. Gabrielson is here, I understand he is, could we hear him now?

PRESIDENT EGAN: I do not believe that Dr. Gabrielson is here on the campus at the present time, Mr. Marston. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: I agree with Mr. Rivers that it is important that during the week on each day we should meet and call the roll. I think we should bear that in mind.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Coghill.

COGHILL: In making the motion, Mr. Chairman, it was not my intention to place any burden on the Convention as far as social obligations are concerned but we have only five days, and we have these consultants here and we should use them to the fullest and the maximum extent for those five days. As far as the teacher and her class are concerned, possibly postpone it for awhile. I think we are going to have to get down, otherwise we are going to wake up and find some of these committees are not coming through with their proposals and the experts are going to have to go home.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Riley.

RILEY: How does the motion before us read?

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion before us at the present time reads that the adjournment would be until 9 o'clock, Thursday.

CHIEF CLERK: No. There is none.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There is no motion that has been seconded. It was a unanimous consent request by Mr. Coghill, and he agreed to Mrs. Hermann's suggestion.

HERMANN: I withdraw that, if it is going to throw the Convention into such turmoil.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Boswell.

BOSWELL: It seems to me that this suggestion we meet at 9 o'clock in the morning and have roll call and listen to Dr. Gabrielson would take care of that situation and if we could invite the class out for lunch Thursday and have a plenary session at 1:30 for a short while, that would take care of that situation, and I would so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It would seem to the Chair that possibly an adjournment until 9 a.m. tomorrow with the understanding of the delegates that we would just have our preliminary business and hear from Dr. Gabrielson and then adjourn until 1:30 the following afternoon, under the circumstance of these difficulties, might be the answer. Is that your motion?

BUCKALEW: I will second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Boswell moves and seconded by Mr. Buckalew that the Convention that as soon as we decide to adjourn this afternoon that the Convention stand adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow, that we complete our preliminary orders of the day and hear from Dr. Gabrielson and then adjourn until 1:30 p.m. on Thursday.

SUNDBORG: Question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The question is, "Shall the Convention adjourn under those conditions?" Mrs. Hermann?

HERMANN: Mr. President, suppose you are not able to arrange with that switch with Mrs. Jones?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If we are not, we will have to bring that to the attention of the delegates tomorrow. Miss Awes?

AWES: May we make committee announcements before that is in effect?

PRESIDENT EGAN: That would not be necessary, Miss Awes, inasmuch as this is hinged not right at this moment but at such time as we might adjourn this afternoon. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: I would like to say we might express our suggestion and opinion on the 1:30 the next day, Thursday, but we leave that open, that we set our date for adjournment until tomorrow morning for the very reason brought up.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection then the agreed adjournment at adjournment time this afternoon will be until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning subject to the conditions stated. Is there objection to that? If not, that will be the general understanding as to the adjournment time when we adjourn this evening. We now have before us Proposal No. 1, page 2, line 1, "strike the word 'shall' and insert the word 'may' in its place." The question is, "Shall the proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?"

TAYLOR: Roll call.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

V. RIVERS: Read the amendment please.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Section 2, line 1, change 'shall' to 'may'."

(The Chief Clerk called the roll with the following results:

Yeas: 38 - Armstrong, Awes, Boswell, Buckalew, Coghill, Collins, Cross, Davis, Emberg, H. Fischer, Gray, Harris, Hellenthal, Hermann, Hilscher, Hurley, Kilcher, King, Lee, McCutcheon, McLaughlin, McNealy, Marston, Metcalf, Nerland, Nolan, Nordale, Peratrovich, Riley, V. Rivers, Robertson, Rosswog, Smith, Stewart, Sundborg, Taylor, VanderLeest, Walsh.

Nays: 16 - Barr, Cooper, Doogan, V. Fischer, Hinckel, Johnson, Knight, Laws, Londborg, McNees, Poulsen, Reader, Sweeney, White, Wien, Mr. President.

Absent: 1 - R. Rivers.)

CHIEF CLERK: 38 yeas, 16 nays and 1 absent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: So the amendment has been adopted. Are there other amendments?

V. RIVERS: I have one.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk may read the proposed amendment as offered by Mr. Victor Rivers.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 16, after the word 'voted' strike the balance of lines 16 and 17 and insert in lieu thereof 'in Alaska prior to its becoming a State'."

V. RIVERS: I will move and ask unanimous consent.

MCCUTCHEON: Second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent that the proposed amendment be adopted. Is there objection?

V. FISCHER: I would like to object for purposes of a question. May I address a question to Mr. Rivers?

BUCKALEW: Excuse me, Mr. President, may we have that read again.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will read the amendment again.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 16, after the word 'voted' strike the balance of lines 16 and 17 and insert in lieu thereof 'in Alaska prior to its becoming a State'."

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. Rivers whether his intent would be to authorize the waiving of the residence requirement so that any person who voted, say 1930 or so, and then left Alaska would be eligible to vote without meeting the residence requirement?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, would you like to have the Chair declare a recess for a minute or two?

V. RIVERS: Well, my intent there was that any person who legally voted in Alaska prior to the time it became a state would still legally be qualified.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I ask for a one-minute recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, after discussion with the Chairman of the Committee on Suffrage I will withdraw my amendment, my motion for an amendment, with the understanding that that will be offered in a similar manner or form to be included in transitory provisions. I have placed on the Secretary's desk another amendment which I wish to introduce.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers asks unanimous consent that his proposed amendment be withdrawn with the understanding that it be included in the subjects under transitory matters. Mr. Victor Rivers asked that another amendment of his be read by the Chief Clerk at this time.

HELLENTHAL: Would you yield, Mr. Rivers, in the presentation of your second amendment so we can take care of this matter?

V. RIVERS: I yield.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the last sentence of section 1 be stricken and the following substituted in its place, to be included in the transitory provisions of the constitution --

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would you mind reading that proposal?

HELLENTHAL: "Those citizens who legally voted in the general election of November 4, 1924, shall not be deprived of their voting rights by any provision of this section of the constitution.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenenthal, are you asking that this section, this phrase be withdrawn because you feel that the subject matter properly belongs in transitory measures rather than in this section?

HELLANTHAL: Yes, and let the new phrase be placed in the transitory measures.

MCCUTCHEON: I believe that is a compound motion. I don't believe it is in order. We are not under a matter of consideration of transitory measures at this time. It would be proper it appears that if Mr. Hellenenthal would seek to strike the section, but that a time will arise when our transitory matters will be taken under consideration and at that time it should be offered.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. McCutcheon, the Chair feels that that is what Mr. Hellenenthal intends but the Chair asked that he explain the reason for asking that this phrase to be deleted from this section in order that at some future time he will offer it as an amendment or one of the transitory questions.

HELLENTHAL: I wish to confine the motion then to the substitution of the words I dictated for the last sentence of the section and drop all reference to transitory matters and take that up later. I move and ask unanimous consent that the last sentence of Section 1 be stricken and the following sentence substituted in its place: "Those citizens who legally voted in the general election of November 4, 1924, shall not be deprived of their voting rights by any provision of this section of the constitution."

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the amendment. Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: May I ask Mr. Hellenthal a question? How about those who did not vote at the general election -- would they be deprived of their rights?

HELLENTHAL: Congress, for the last 30 years has felt that those who did not vote at that general election should not have voted, and none of them have, unless they were otherwise qualified of course. It is one of those things where you have to draw the line somewhere. Congress drew the line there 30 years ago, and I think it is a good place.

COOPER: I object.

HELLENTHAL: I so move.

GRAY: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cooper objects, Mr. Hellenthal so moves, seconded by Mr. Gray. Mr. Victor Fischer.

V. FISCHER: I would like to point out to the mover that again we have this problem of a citizen who may not meet the residence requirements. Would it not be better to substitute a sentence "in residence". Do you mean to waive the residency requirement at the time of voting?

HELLANTHAL: Congress did. This is the exact language of the Act of Congress.

V. FISCHER: Residency in Alaska?

HELLENTHAL: Yes.

V. FISCHER: In other words, they can vote even if at the first state election they have not been a resident of Alaska for one year?

HELLENTHAL: Yes, there are about 40 people in Alaska that that will apply to. Old people, all of them have to be over 52 years old, the youngest could only be 52.

V. FISCHER: Mr. President, I don't quite understand this section. Does this Act apply only to Alaska?

HELLENTHAL: Yes, Mr. Fischer. Let me give you the history. In 1924 the Native people of Alaska were awarded citizenship for the first time. Prior to that they were not citizens of the United States. In 1924 they were granted this privilege, and at that time it was stated, and I believe in advance, that every Native person who voted at that November 4 election in 1924 would automatically be qualified to vote thereafter, and that has been perpetuated since 1924, and now those people who say they were 21 then, now they are 52 years old now. There are very few of them.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Davis.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. Hellenenthal a question. His answer does not indicate to me that he understood the question that I thought Mr. Fischer asked. Supposing we have a person who voted -- not necessarily a Native -- a person who voted in the year 1924 who then left Alaska and who now comes back to Alaska after this constitution is adopted. Is the fact that he voted in 1924 sufficient to allow him to vote in elections thereafter whether he is a resident or whether he isn't, that's the point.

HELLENTHAL: Yes. That is the law today and that is the law that will exist up until the moment we become a state. That is an Act of Congress. I have never heard it criticized, only praised.

PRESIDENT EGAN: An Act which has been in effect for 32 years. Mr. Cooper?

COOPER: Mr. President, to support my objection, as I understand it, this is a Federal law which guarantees the people a right to vote whether we are a territory or state. I believe it has no particular bearing to be contained in the constitution in this Section 1. They are guaranteed the right to vote forever, is that right or is that wrong?

HELLENTHAL: By its very terms that law will go out of effect with statehood. It applies only to general elections held in the Territory of Alaska.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I would like to pursue a little further the line of questioning that Mr. Davis pursued for a way. What about a man who might have voted in the election of 1924 and left Alaska in the next year and does not even come back now to vote but sends in his vote and demands the right of voting up here even though he has not been a resident of Alaska for 30 years? I believe under the language you are now suggesting, he could do so.

HELLENTHAL: He could do it today. He could have done it for the last 25 years. He can do it up until the moment statehood is granted to the people of Alaska. Why should we in the constitution anticipate all these fantastic possibilities? We have to draw the line somewhere Mr. Sundborg.

SUNDBORG: There is nothing fantastic about that. I think there are probably thousands of individuals who lived in Alaska and voted at that time and who are now not residents of our Territory and who, under this language, could vote in our elections. I don't think it is right. I think we can so draw the language that we will be talking about and permitting election by the specific group which Congress had in mind in making this enactment and that we could debar from voting all others who are not in that group. I don't think we ought to include sloppy language like this which would open our elections to hundreds and maybe thousands of residents of the 48 states.

HELLENTHAL: Well, I don't think the language is sloppy. I think the Act of Congress is clear. A man has to prove, before he gets the ballot, that he legally voted in the general election, November, 1924. If he is in Mexico he is going to have a little trouble doing that and I don't think people are that fiendish.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The question is, "Shall Mr. Helleenthal's proposed amendment be adopted by the Convention?" All those in favor of the adoption will signify by saying "aye", all opposed by saying "no". The "ayes" have it and the amendment is ordered adopted. Are there other amendments?

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I have an amendment to Section 3.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will please read the amendment. Mr. Victor Rivers had yielded to Mr. Helleenthal so he could introduce his amendment. If you would not mind yielding to Mr. Rivers, Mr. Buckalew.

BUCKALEW: I don't mind yielding, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers' proposed amendment may be read by the Chief Clerk.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 9, after the words 'votes and' strike the balance of the line, strike lines 10 and 11 and the first part of line 12 up to and including 'only, and'. Is this all one amendment?

V. RIVERS: All one amendment.

CHIEF CLERK: "Line 15 after 'election' insert the following" line, 'Additional qualifications may be established by law.'

V. RIVERS: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent for the adoption of that amendment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Victor Rivers moves and asks unanimous consent for the adoption of the amendment.

BUCKALEW: I object.

V. RIVERS: I so move.

KNIGHT: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The motion is open for discussion.

ROBERTSON: May we have it read please.

CHIEF CLERK: "Page 1, line 9, after the words 'votes and' strike the balance of the line, strike lines 10 and 11 and the first part of line 12 up to and including 'only, and' and on line 15 after 'election' insert the following line 'Additional qualifications may be established by law.'"

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rivers.

V. RIVERS: The intent of that amendment is that we have established under the previous part of this section the citizenship, the age, the bona fide residence, the local residence required and that sets up their qualifications under this amendment they will be able to vote unless they have been otherwise disqualified. That would leave then, in the hands of the legislature, the matter to establish additional qualifications -- whether they are able to speak, read, write or unless they were physically incapacitated such as being blind -- the legislature could then provide the manner in which they could vote if they were so handicapped. With the amendment the line starting on line 6 would read, "... and who has been such resident continuously for 30 days next preceding the election in the election district in which he votes and who is not barred from voting by any other provision of law, shall be qualified to vote in any state or location election. Additional qualifications may be established by law." That is to allow freedom of the legislature in meeting any changing conditions that might occur in the requirements such as to literacy or as to those people who are physically handicapped.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Hellenthal.

HELLENTHAL: Mr. President, the present wording of Section 1 on lines 12 and 13 takes care of the principal reason for Mr. Rivers' amendment. The language "and who is not barred from voting by any other provision of law", that takes care of your intoxicant man who attempts to vote, that takes care it was argued, and successfully, in the Bowden case, that that took care of the registration system imposed by the City of Anchorage. I can't think of other illustrations, but it has been clearly established that those words take care of what Mr. Rivers would take care of by the words "additional qualifications may be established by law", so I feel that portion of the amendment is unnecessary. The second part of his amendment which would eliminate entirely any form

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention is at ease. (Lights have gone out.)

RILEY: Mr. President, may it be held that the Convention is in the dark.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chairman will accede to the conviction of the Rules Committee. (Laughter) Mr. Hellenthal, you may proceed.

KILCHER: Point of order, Mr. Chairman, I think it is no use to go ahead because the tape is out of order.

BUCKALEW: Mr. President, I submit Mr. Hellenthal has got his money's worth on the tape -- he might as well proceed.

MARSTON: No. Hold it.

MCCUTCHEON: Mr. President, a point of information. I would like to raise a question as to what would happen if our stenotypist short circuited. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The stenotypist is getting this all down for posterity.

DAVIS: Mr. President, I move that we recess until the lights go on again.

MCLAUGHLIN: I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

V. RIVERS: I second it.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It has been moved by Mr. McLaughlin, seconded by Mr. Rivers, that the Convention stand at recess until 9 a.m. tomorrow. Is there objection?

METCALF: Roll call. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention stands adjourned until 9 a.m. tomorrow.
(The Convention adjourned in the dark.)

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 14, 1955

THIRTY-SEVENTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Chaplain Swaffer of Ladd Air Force Base is here with us this morning. Chaplain Swaffer will give the daily invocation.

CHAPLAIN SWAFFER: Almighty God, Creator of our universe, we invoke the blessing of Thy spirit on this assembly today. Bless each one with creativeness of mind, with uprightness of purpose and spirit. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll at this time.)

CHIEF CLERK: All present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: A quorum is present. The Convention will proceed with its regular order of business.

HILSCHER: Mr. President, I do not particularly wish to clutter up the daily journal, but Mr. Marston and I believe that this morning's prayer was a concise job well done and well said and we would ask unanimous consent to have it spread upon the journal of the day.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection this morning's prayer will be spread upon the journal of the day. Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time? Mr. Doogan.

DOOGAN: Mr. President, I have the journals for the 32nd and 33rd Convention days. In the journal of the 32nd day on page 3, under general orders of the day where it states Committee Proposal No. 2, strike the word "first" and put in the word second. On the journal for the 33rd day, page 4, second paragraph, line 2, after "12:15" insert "o'clock p.m." I move and ask unanimous consent that both journals as corrected be adopted.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Doogan moves and asks unanimous consent that the journals of both days, the 32nd and 33rd Convention days, be approved as corrected. Is there objection? Hearing no objections it is so ordered. Mr. King.

KING: Mr. President, this morning we have with us Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson who as you all know is one of the foremost authorities in the United States on wildlife and resources. Dr. Gabrielson for eleven years was Director of the Fish and Wildlife and the Biological Survey for the United States. He is presently President of the Wildlife Management Institute.

He came from Washington, D. C., and especially to address this Convention and to appear before the Resources Committee. I would like to introduce Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Dr. Gabrielson, we are happy to have you with us. We would like to have you come forward at this time and address the Convention. (Applause)

DR. GABRIELSON: Ladies and gentlemen, members of this Convention, it is a pleasure to be back in Alaska again and a privilege to talk to you, a privilege in more ways than one because I happen to be very fond of Alaska and during the 31 years that I was in the Federal service, and since I left I have been in the Territory many times and have managed to cover it pretty well, so I am not only fascinated by the country and by the wildlife that it has but I have some personal knowledge of most of it. You are here for a very serious job, and I might say that I have heard nothing but compliments for the way this group has been working since they started their deliberations. What you do here today and tomorrow and in the succeeding days will have a profound influence upon the type of government that you have in this Territory when it becomes a state, and if I can contribute anything to your deliberations or any information that will help you in your deliberations, I will feel that my trip has been very much worthwhile. Before I start to talk about it, I would like to tell you very briefly why I have the temerity to come in as an outsider to talk to a group like this. I have had a unique privilege I think that is not accorded to many Americans to study the organizations that are handling the national resources in the various states. When I went with the Wildlife Management Institute, one of the jobs that that organization undertook was to study and see if there were ways of improving the administration of the renewable resources, particularly the wildlife resources. And as a beginning for that we made a factual survey of all of the states in the Union, of their basic laws, of the type of organization that they had and the kind of work that they were doing. This was done by taking the material in their basic laws and in the annual reports of the various departments, the factual material, and after we had assembled a sheet for each state we sent it to the Department for checking and for correction. And from that we built a basic analysis of the type of organization and the type of work that was being done. Needless to say, in a country as varied as the United States, and its varied background and experience, we found all kinds of organizations and all kinds of attempts to get at the problems of managing the resources. Since that time I have been invited by 26 states and one province in Canada to make careful analytical surveys of their basic laws, their organization for carrying out the purposes of those basic laws and the programs they were working on, so that I have had the opportunity that I don't think that has been accorded to many people to really have open to their inspection and study the records of 26 state conservation departments. Out of that I have at least distilled a personal philosophy of some of the things that I think are essential in a good wildlife resources or any resource management program. I might say that these departments that I have studied have varied all the way from conservation departments that had fish and wildlife, forests, parks and in some cases minerals and oils and some authority over waters, to those that were only fish and game organizations. Through all of them that were doing a reasonably good job we found that there were certain things always present, and I can outline those to you very briefly. The first one was an adequate authority to do the job, the authority to do a management job in managing a resource that became more complicated because of human use of the land and human activities. The second one was the ability to establish a program and stay with it. Nothing that we can do can quickly influence for good a thing as extended and as complicated as a wildlife population. We can destroy it very quickly. The efforts to build it back sometimes are much more complicated. Efforts to maintain it become more complicated as there are more people in a community. The third is a provision by some method of the ability to attract and keep good people, trained people, experienced people. You can in one of these resource management fields, and I don't think it makes any difference whether you are talking about forests, or fish, or wildlife, or something else, the value of even a trained man grows very much as he becomes familiar with the territory in which he is working and with its problems, and the ability to attract good men and to hold them is one of the essentials. The fourth one is adequate financing to do a job. And those are the four things that were nearly always present or were always present in all organizations that were doing a reasonably good job. Needless to say, some of them were not. There were all degrees between those that you would rank, the half dozen states you would rank at the top and those at the bottom and a lot of them in varying degrees of successful operation between. The most common device that has been developed and is in use for giving adequate authority is the establishment of some kind of an organization within the state government framework to which the legislature has given the authority to manage this resource. It has been given in two ways in the various states. In some cases there are very broad general grants. They have set up an organization and given it the authority to manage those resources with very few limitations. The more common one and one that has been very successful, the basic legislation closes all seasons on all sorts of living things that are protected by the basic laws and then grants to the organization established to handle that program the authority to open seasons and to establish methods and means by which game or fur or fish may be taken in accordance with broad rules that are established in the legislation itself. That is the pattern that was followed in the enabling act for the migratory bird treaty. It has a lot of advantages and has been used very successfully. So far as the mechanism is concerned for doing that, the one that has been most successful has been the establishment of a commission. Those commissions have varied authority and varied responsibility. Some of them are commissions that handle forests, parks, fish and game, are a fairly common combination in those states where you have a broad conservation establishment. In some states they have added others to it. The majority of them are confined to fish and game, of those that I have studied. Those commissions are successful wherever the basic legislation is the right type of legislation. The best piece of legislation I think that is so regarded by most of the people who have studied it, as far as providing flexible administration and also limitations on what may be done, is the basic Missouri legislation. It has become more or less the model on which many states have revised their game setup as they have outgrown the laws under which they were previously operating. That legislation has stood the test better than any other that has been experimented with, and it was put into effect by profiting by the mistakes of a lot of other states and by the mistakes that have been made in Missouri previously. I hope that out of this Constitutional Convention you can do something that has not to my knowledge ever been done before in America -- you can set up a program before you have practically destroyed the resource. In most states there has never been an adequate management program instituted until the wildlife resources and fishery resources have been very sadly depleted. It became a question of having to do something before anything very adequate was done. That was more true in the older states than in some of the Western states, and you now have the opportunity of profiting by a lot of the mistakes that were made in the trial and error that went on for many years in developing the present type of administration and management of these resources that they have. The continuity of program has been provided pretty largely in the states by this commission type of government with staggered definite terms for the commissioners so that always on the commission there were some experienced people who knew the background, who knew why they were doing some things, and had some knowledge of the program. That type of a system has the advantage of bringing new blood and new points of view in and still not disrupting completely the program that is under way. In states where that has been successful their programs have been, let's say evolutionary. They have developed gradually as they had more knowledge and more information. They have developed programs that have stood up and have been in effect long enough to accomplish something. There is no state department that I have yet studied that has money enough and man power enough to go out and do in a short period of time the things that are necessary to influence for the better, a population of wildlife that they are responsible for, and I use wildlife in a very broad way, including all of the living creatures that we put under the term of fish and game and fur and various other more restrictive terms. Those have been the most successful. To my surprise when they inaugurated the system of a small commission of equal numbers from both political parties, that has worked better in actual administration than any other system that I have studied. I assumed when they set up a commission of four or six people, half of them from each of the major political parties, that there would be a deadlock over very many issues. The very fact that they might deadlock over them soon convinced them that they had to forget any partisan politics and go to work at looking after the resource, and it has worked wonderfully well. I would like to say this, that I have known a great person in nearly all of the people who have served on these commissions in all of the states in the Union. I think I have known every man who has served on the Alaska Game Commission up to the present time, and by and large those are all people who want to do a job. Where they fail it is because of lack of resources to do a job or lack of authority to do an adequate job. I have found very few of them who did not want to do the best possible job that they could do. These commissions have worked best and have provided continuity of program where they have been established and maintained as broad policy-making bodies -- where they establish the policies which finally determine the regulations for the management of the resources and then have a staff to carry out the program. They fall down most where the commissioners get to dabbling in the day-to-day affairs of the department. I recall sitting in one commission office when I was making a study and hearing one person get three different orders from three different commissioners. He could not possibly have carried them all out, and when I told the commission about it in a private meeting they asked me, "What did he do?" I said "If he was smart he did not do anything because he was going to get in wrong with someone of you no matter what he did. The truth of the matter is you fellows should not be issuing him orders. His orders should come from whoever you select as a director to handle that department." Wherever they have established those commissions as policy determining bodies within the framework of the legislation that they are operating under, they have been successful. Their greatest weakness has been the other. Continuity of employment has been provided most successfully in all of the states I have studied by some sort of a merit system. Sometimes those are state-wide merit systems. The strongest I have happened to study is the civil service setup in the State of New York. It perhaps goes, in some respects, too far in protecting employees because it is difficult to get rid of even an incompetent or bad actor under their laws, but all of the departments that are doing a good job have a merit system of some kind whereby they select the men in competitive examination and set up a promotion system that enables them not only to recruit good people but to keep them. A man who has worked in a territory for ten years and knows that territory is infinitely more valuable to the people of that community than he would be as a stranger coming in, no matter how competent he might be. There are many different kinds of systems in use. Many of them are not adequate, but in every case where we have found a good management program going on there has been an adequate and satisfactory merit system that was enforced to provide, and a way of attracting and keeping the most competent people that they could get. The fourth one, adequate financing, there is very little difference of opinion among the states. All of them have been financed, are now financed by one device, in most states entirely by license fees which are set aside in an earmarked fund for the use of the agency which is administering that resource. That started many years ago when it was impossible in competition with many other things to get any adequate funds for the enforcement of wild life laws and for the management of wildlife population. I believe the first state that used that as a device for financing the resource management was North Dakota, but it succeeded in raising so much money and North Dakota became apparently so well off in the program that that example was quickly followed by every state in the Union, and there is no state that does not now charge or earmark and segregate the license funds for the use of the department. I know that every budget officer and every accountant that I ever talked to is opposed to that kind of procedure for reasons which seem sufficient to them, but I also know that of the state agencies, the fish and game agencies are always the best financed of any of them. State forestry departments, park departments and others that depend upon legislative appropriations from general funds are relatively much less adequately financed. The people who hunt and fish look upon it as an added tax. They pay the same taxes as others do to the general fund in proportion to their means and under the laws. They look upon this as a tax which they bear willingly to provide for the recreation that they get out of hunting and fishing. I have never seen an equal, and I might say that the movements for the establishment of licenses and the earmarking of license funds have almost invariably come from the people who would pay for those licenses. In almost every case the increased license fees that have been established in states from time to time have been established because of the efforts of the organized sportsmen and license buyers of those states who saw a need for more money and who are willing to provide it. We have a similar system in spite of the objections of budget officers in most states for the financing and maintenance of public roads. by special taxes that are levied through gasoline taxes on people who use the public roads. In most states those are earmarked. Every state earmarks in one way or another the license funds and some other miscellaneous funds are frequently used. Very few states contribute anything out of the general fund for the management of the wildlife resources. In a few states they have at times made special appropriations for what they chose to call capital investments in wildlife.

I recall that some years ago the state of Iowa for example appropriated two and three-quarter million dollars for building artificial lakes for recreation and fishing purposes in a part of the state where there were no lakes. That was not financed out of the game funds. That was from general funds. The maintenance of those lakes is financed out of the earmarked funds. I know of no state that appropriates any money out of general funds for the operations of the fish and game setup, whatever it may be, or for the maintenance of their projects. So that the experience in the various states I have studied all points in one direction that adequate financing can be obtained in that way, rather painlessly, it does not have to come out of general taxes, it comes from the people who use the resource and who are usually quite willing to pay a reasonable fee for that privilege. This fish and wildlife management becomes more complicated, and I am not going to take a lot more of your time. I would like to present to you the things that I have found that are important and not spend a lot of time talking about the bad things because you are interested in developing a program for Alaska which I hope will be better than any program that has ever been started in any state at the beginning of their existence as a state. And you are more dependent in more ways than most states upon these natural resources. They are more important to the average citizen in Alaska by far than they are to the average citizens in a state like New York, for example. They deserve a lot of consideration, and it will depend upon you and what you do in their management whether or not you can preserve the very remarkable and unique wildlife resource you have in this Territory. I would like to point out one other series of things before I stop. I told you that the Missouri setup was as far as basic law was concerned, the best one that I have seen. I think that is the consensus of opinion of all of the wildlife people who have studied the basic laws. It is relatively simple, it grants definite authorities, it sets up certain standards that must be followed and it has worked well. It was put into the constitution because it was impossible to get through the legislature in that state any improvement in the basic laws that governed the administration of that resource, and the people got finally so fed up with it that they put this thing on the initiative and put it in the constitution as one way of getting some change for the better, and it worked. It brought Missouri from the position of one of the three or four worst states from the standpoint of administration of its resources, right to the top. I could not say that any state had the best department because they are working under too many varied conditions to be comparable, but Missouri is one of the top states, in the program that is carried out, in the continuity that it has been able to put into its program, and in the results they have obtained in building back some of the resources that were destroyed, and in improving and maintaining some of those that were still in existence. This problem has gotten more complicated as years go by, and I would like to tell you very briefly what the limited things are that we can do to influence for the better the wildlife resources. After all, there are many natural factors over which we have no control that determine in the long run how much and what kind of wildlife that can exist in a given territory. Those that are there are there because they can exist under those handicaps and conditions that they must contend with. Historically, we have had four or five things that we have tried to use to influence for the better these wildlife populations. The oldest, let me say wildlife management practice historically is the practice of limiting the human harvest that is taken out of the crop. The very oldest laws that we have governing game and fishing go back to colonial days when they commenced to limit the time or the number that could be taken close to the settlements. Those laws were good only to the extent that they could be enforced. The making of laws and enforcement of them is still an important part of wildlife management. It probably always will be, and those laws serve two functions. They should serve primarily for the protection and maintenance of the resource, but many of our laws are written for the purpose of distributing the utilization of that resource between different groups or different purposes, and that is where much of the controversy comes. Wildlife management, if you could deal only with the wild populations and their problems, would be relatively simple, but in my opinion most wildlife management consists of five per cent dealing with wildlife things and 95 per cent dealing with wild people, and most of the problems and most of the headaches in wildlife administration come from human attitudes and human problems not from the wildlife problems. For a long time that making of laws and their more or less adequate enforcement was the only management device we had. The next one in sequence was predator control. We developed a philosophy that if we could kill off enough predators we would have the deers or quail or pheasants nine feet deep all over the landscape. It did not work. Predator control is a useful tool where predators are a limiting factor on the game. Twenty years of my field experience were spent in that type of work. I can tell you honestly in many cases our predator control programs resulted in direct and immediate increases in the game population. I can also tell you with equal honesty that for every case of that kind we had many dozens where it showed no appreciable results in better game population. The answer is of course that predators were not always the limiting factor on the number of other wild creatures that were there. Where they were, the reduction of predator population brought very quick response. The next phobia we had that was going to solve all problems was making refuges. We made refuges by the thousands and covering millions of acres. Many of them were paper refuges with no boundary markers or no enforcement and they did no good. Refuges again, we found had their value and they also had their limits. They were not the answer to all the problems.

They are chiefly valuable in many cases as a way of preserving suitable habitat for a game or fish or wildlife population and they have their place in the picture. They are not a cure-all. They do not solve anywhere near all the problems. The next great delusion we had was imported from Europe from where we brought the system of artificial propagation and distribution of wildlife over. It works in Europe. It works in this country where cost is not a factor. You can't raise pheasants and quail and certain other things and liberate them right ahead of the guns and get a lot of shooting. Where you have to do it on limited public funds it is one of the best ways to waste money that I know of as a general practice. You have not gotten into that in Alaska. I hope that you don't. It has its use in limited ways. It has been very useful in establishing populations in areas where habitat has become suitable again and where the population has long been exterminated or expatriated from that area. For example, the Pennsylvania deer herd which is one of the great deer herds that any state has built so far as anyone knows entirely from deer that were trapped and brought in there and released. At the time that program was started in 1902, as far as anyone knew there were no deer left in the State of Pennsylvania. They purchased and brought in there many hundreds of deer, released them, protected them and built the present herd that way, so this propagation and release has its place in the picture. Again it did not prove to be a cure-all, and we have one other tool which is becoming increasingly important in the states, in the more densely populated states, and that is this question of habitat management of taking the land that is still available for the production of wildlife that is not demanded exclusively for human use and developing it to produce the maximum amount of wildlife that can be produced on that land, and that has been a very successful program. It again has its limitations. It will work where the question of suitable shelter and suitable food is the limiting factor on the wildlife population. That is true in many places, and it has been a successful program where it meets the problems. My reason for reviewing this is to point out to you just one thing. We are all Americans, we like to express our opinions, and I know of no group that expresses their opinions more violently or forcibly than the fellows who hunt and fish. You can get more argument and more heat and less light on a given subject by bringing up something in a sportsmen's meeting than in any place that I know. That is our great American privilege. We have these techniques. They are all useful if they are used at the time and place where they are needed, but to sit down and try to draft laws or to say to an organization, "You have to use this particular tool, you have to spend your money for this particular tool", is comparable in my mind to my hiring a carpenter to build a house according to some blue prints I have drawn and say, "But I don't want you to use anything but a hammer when you build it". The carpenter should be the man who knows which tool he can use most efficiently in building a house. We have these tools. We have developed within these tremendous broad categories of management tools I have outlined, many ways of applying them. They are useless unless they are applied at the time and place where they are needed. And we have developed more and more in this country in the last 40 years a group of trained men who are trained to know when and how to use those tools, just as an expert machinist knows when and how to use his tools. A man can go to school and study carpentry and go to a trade school, but he is not a good carpenter when he comes out of the trade school. He becomes a good carpenter by using those tools, by learning how and when to use them. The same thing is true in this wildlife field. The only way we have found in the states to get good administration of these resources is to set up an organization of some kind that consists of men who make it their business to find out the facts and to determine which tool to use and how to use it and to the extent that the departments have been given that authority and that ability we have good game departments. I made a study of one department to show you the other extreme where over two elections they had a 185 per cent turnover in the personnel, and that went for everything in the office, both ways. Now it is not possible to manage a resource on that kind of a basis. The only reason it had not been a 200 per cent turnover was because there were a few people who had drifted into that department that had civil service status in some other departments and they could not take it away from them, and the second reason was that the new governor had not been there quite long enough to get rid of all of them at the time I made the study. Needless to say, they had no program in that state except to spend the money that was turned in from the license fees. There is no appreciable result from it and there cannot be. Those that went in, some of them, developed into good people. About the time they were getting to know what they were doing they got fired to make way for another fellow who had to do the learning job all over again. There is no instance in the history of the state where that kind of management of wildlife or forest or any other renewable resource has been productive. That is one of the reasons I think for the spreading movement in states to write into the constitutions basic laws which theoretically should not be in the constitution, but it has been one way of preventing that kind of management or lack of management. There are now I believe five states that have written it into their constitution and there are two states which will probably be voting on it at the next election, and it is a popular way of expressing their disapproval at least of the use of the earmarked funds for purely partisan political purposes for building for personal political machines, and it has been wasteful of the resource which is much more important than the wastefulness that has come from the money. It has been wasteful of the resources themselves, and it is not possible to manage any renewable natural resource under that kind of a system, so I present that, personally I can see lots of objections to putting that kind of legislation into a constitution. Theoretically it does not belong there, but I am telling you practically, that it has produced the most results of anything I have seen in the way of good administration. It's just like the budget officer's objection to earmarked funds, I can understand that from an accounting standpoint it is bad business, but it has produced results that were never produced by any other system, so you have to balance in your thinking or at least should try to balance in your thinking the theoretical as against the practical results that you will get in managing this resource that means so much to all of you. I know of no place under the American flag where the wildlife resources are so important to the average citizen and will continue to be for a long time as they are in this Territory. I wish you luck in your deliberations. I understand I am going to meet with your Resources Committee, and I hope to try to answer some of the questions they may ask. I thank you very much for the privilege of appearing before you and hope I have at least given you something to think about. (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Barr.

BARR: Mr. President, would it be possible to ask Dr. Gabrielson a question or two?

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Barr, you may ask a question.

BARR: I would like to have you make a brief statement on the Dingell-Johnson Act or any similar act in which the state gets federal aid and particularly whether or not it is possible to obtain that aid other than by earmarked funds. For instance, we have it in the laws that we should appropriate a like amount to the funds received from license fees.

DR. GABRIELSON: I don't know that I understand just the purpose of the question, but both the Dingell-Johnson Act and the Pittman-Robinson Act, in both federal aid acts for the states, are earmarked funds based upon the excise taxes on sporting arms and ammunition in the one case and on sport fishing tackle in the other. Historically, about 1936 or 1937 a great many of the emergency taxes that were placed during the beginning of the depression on various, and some went back to the first world war, were repealed. At the request of the sportsmen of the country and of the manufacturers themselves, the excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition was continued at the time they repealed all of the others and earmarked for wildlife management purposes. That bill provided the method by which those funds would be distributed and the formulas under which they would be distributed and also provided that the states had to match them, put in 25 per cent or one-third of the amount that the federal allocation amounted to in order to be available for that. The Dingell-Johnson Act has similar provisions. It was enacted much later, and the tax that was then in existence on sport fishing tackles was continued as a special excise tax. Again, a form of self-assessment that was promoted by the sportsmen of the country, and under those laws I don't know whether you would get very far if you repealed that earmarked funds, whether you would get Congress to appropriate that much money for that purpose. Those are rather sizeable funds. My experience in eleven years of trying to get money out of Congress was not very encouraging. There is too much competition for the amount of money that is available and a lot of other things that are to the general public seemingly much more important, and I have found it very difficult to convince the Congress that they should give me any money for the wildlife program and I think that has been the experience in the various states. Theoretically, I suppose it could be done. Practically, it would be an uphill battle.

TAYLOR: Could you give us the name of the four or five states that have the best system of game conservation so that we can look these matters up.

DR. GABRIELSON: It is hard to say they have the best system. There are several that are doing outstanding jobs. Some of them are doing good jobs in spite of poor laws because they have exceptionally good people. My observation has been that good people can make most any kind of a system work, but people can do a lot better job with a good system. Poor people can't make any kind of a system work, it all goes back in the long run, but the states in my opinion who are doing outstanding jobs are states like Oregon, Washington, Missouri, Michigan, Iowa. Their systems vary, their emphasis on their programs vary, but they are doing a good job in managing what resources they have.

TAYLOR: What about Missouri?

DR. GABRIELSON: I did mention Missouri. Missouri, Michigan, Pennsylvania, which has very poor laws but a fine organization and fine staff, Oregon, Washington, Iowa are among those that are doing a top job with resources. I might add California. You find every variation that is conceivable in them. Basically they are doing good jobs for one reason or another.

SMITH: Mr. President, also in the gallery this morning we have Mr. Arthur W. Greeley, Regional Forester for Alaska, who has rendered invaluable assistance to the Resources Committee, and I would like to ask unanimous consent that Mr. Greeley be given an opportunity to say a few words at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Greeley, would you like to come in and say a few words to the Convention. (Applause)

MR. GREELEY: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, this comes as very much of a surprise to me. I have really no comments to pass on. I do want to say that Dr. Gabrielson spoke for resources in general even though he was referring specifically to the wildlife resource. When I was coming up here to appear before the Resources Committee I made quite a list of items that I thought it was important to call to the attention of the Resources Committee, and at the top of the list I had the need for competent people. Well Dr. Gabrielson certainly covered that point. Also on the list I had the need for nonpartisan or at least nonpolitical boards to the extent boards are needed. Again Dr. Gabrielson covered that point, and actually just about all of the features which result in a good wildlife program in individual states have their counterpart in features which result in a good forestry program in individual states. I think the future of the State of Alaska depends in large measure on what can be done with the forest resource certainly as much as with the wildlife resource. I think the wisdom of the program which is evolved, both through the constitutional provisions and the subsequent provisions of a resource code, will in large measure indicate the success of the type of program. In fact, it is more than just the success of a resource management program, the success of our statehood ambitions depends in large measure on what we are able to do with our resources. I know you are pressed for time. Thank you very much for this opportunity. I greatly appreciate the chance to appear before you.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you. (Applause) The Convention will come to order. Are there any communications from outside the Convention?

CHIEF CLERK: No.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Is there any other business to come before the Convention at this time? Are there reports of standing or select committees? Mr. Cross?

CROSS: I have a report from the Resolutions and Recommendations Committee.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Cross has a report of the Resolutions and Recommendations Committee.

CROSS: We have a proposal which is a compromise, a consolidation of three proposals and one resolution which was submitted to this Committee. It has been consolidated. The Committee report is really an ordinance, but we are recommending an ordinance which I would like to place on the Secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are you recommending, Mr. Cross, that your resolution be, that your proposal be referred to the Ordinance Committee? Is that it?

CROSS: We are placing this as a proposal. It is in reality an ordinance but we are placing it on the Secretary's desk as a proposal to go through.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Sergeant at Arms may place the proposal on the Secretary's desk. The proposal may be read for the second time.

ROBERTSON: Mr. President, the proposal has not yet been mimeographed. I think that Mr. Cross just wants to introduce the proposal at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Well the Chair misunderstood, Mr. Cross. The Chair thought that you were introducing a committee proposal which combined several proposals which had been sent to your Committee, but if that is the case, the proposal, did you want it read for the second time as a committee proposal? Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Mr. President, I move and ask unanimous consent that the proposal just introduced by the Resolutions and Recommendations Committee be read for the first time by title only and referred to the Rules Committee for placement on the calendar.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the proposal will be read for the first time and referred to the Rules Committee for placement on the calendar. The Convention will stand at recess for one or two minutes.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chief Clerk will read the proposal for the first time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Committee Proposal No. 4, by Committee on Recommendations and Resolutions, LOCATION OF STATE CAPITAL, AND PROCEDURE FOR CHANGE THEREOF."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Rules Committee for placement on the calendar. Are there other proposals? Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, I have a proposal.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Sergeant at Arms will please bring the proposal forward. The Chief Clerk may read the proposal for the first time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Delegate Proposal No. 43, by Mr. Metcalf, BILL OF RIGHTS."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Committee on Preamble and Bill of Rights. Is there any other unfinished business? Are there reports of any committees at this time? Mr. Smith.

SMITH: Mr. President, I would like to announce that the Resources Committee will meet to hear Dr. Gabrielson immediately following the recess if a recess is had before noon, and I think that under the present circumstances it would be advisable to hold the meeting in this room due to the fact there are probably a large number of delegates and probably quite a number of people in the gallery who would like to hear what Dr. Gabrielson has to present to the Committee.

HELLENTHAL: There will be a meeting of Committee VI, ten minutes following the recess.

AWES: The Committee on Bill of Rights will meet for just a few minutes immediately after recess.

NEWLAND: The Finance Committee will meet immediately after recess for a short time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Are there other committee announcements? Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: Local Government Committee No. XII will meet at 10:30 following this session in their committee room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair would like to -- Mr. McNealy?

MCNEALY: Committee announcement, Mr. President. The Committee on Ordinances will meet about ten minutes after the recess.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Ordinances will meet about ten minutes after the recess. The Chair was going to suggest in line with conversations that were held with all committee chairmen yesterday that perhaps it might be well if the Elections, Resources, and Local Government Committees could meet now and if necessary until 3 o'clock or 3:20 this afternoon and those committees that normally meet in the afternoon then at that time would have a clear way ahead of them without any interference with these other committees. Do the committee chairmen recall the manner in which we discussed this yesterday? What is the opinion of the chairmen and the delegates?

NERLAND: Mr. President, I think the Finance Committee was the only committee that our membership had representation on the other committees, so I can see from the standpoint of the other committees that is the most satisfactory manner. If it would be possible to allot the time a little bit differently than 3 o'clock or later for the final meeting. I think it would be better.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Perhaps if there is no objection the Convention could stand at recess for two or three minutes and the Committee Chairmen and members of the committees can get together here on the Convention floor and come to some agreement on meeting times so there will be no conflicts. If there is no objection the Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mr. Johnson.

JOHNSON: Mr. President, it is my understanding that Mrs. Jones will be here shortly before noon tomorrow, and in order to permit the class to attend the plenary session after lunch, I understand we are to be hosts to the class during the lunch. It seems that on that basis that when we do adjourn now we should adjourn until 1:30 tomorrow afternoon, and subject to any committee announcements I so move.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moves that the Convention stand adjourned until 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. Mr. Victor Rivers.

V. RIVERS: The Committee on Executive will meet at 2:00 this afternoon in the committee room.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on the Executive will meet at 2:00 this afternoon in the committee room. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Has the committee that was in charge of this luncheon sorted the children out to the different delegates?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, we are going to do that today and we will say that prior to the arrival of the children that you will have the names.

HERMANN: I was just a little bit afraid some delegates might not come before lunch if the meeting is not called until 1:30.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It will be understood by all delegates that we are duty bound to be there and live up to the obligation that we have proposed on ourselves in requesting that these children come and be our guests at luncheon tomorrow.

HERMANN: I would like a further question Mr. President, in regard to the bus service we will have to cancel for in the morning apparently, or not. I do not know.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann, the Chair would feel that all the delegates would probably catch the same bus in order to be here for the committee meetings or most of them would.

HELLENTHAL: Is there a motion before the house?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Johnson moved. The Chair did not hear a second as yet that the Convention stand adjourned until 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

JOHNSON: I ask unanimous consent.

HELLENTHAL: I object for the moment.

ROBERTSON: I second the motion.

HELLENTHAL: I would like to propose that we meet tonight at 8 o'clock in plenary session to discuss the pending proposals before the body.

METCALF: I second the motion.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We already have a motion for adjournment before us and an amendment would not be in order. Mr. Sundborg?

SUNDBORG: Had Mr. Hellenthal been recognized?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Robertson seconded the motion.

SUNDBORG: As I heard it though Mr. Robertson seconded it after. It seems to me Mr. Hellenthal's motion is on the floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It could not be, Mr. Sundborg, because the motion to amend the adjournment would not be in order.

SUNDBORG: Well it would not be if it was seconded.

PRESIDENT EGAN: His motion stated that he was attempting to amend the motion. We have before us the question of adjournment until 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. The committee announcements are open. Are there other committee announcements to be made at this time? Mr. Ralph Rivers.

R. RIVERS: If we are going to host these school children I think we ought to have a roll call about 12 o'clock tomorrow. Then I suppose we will be taking them up at 12:30 around the usual time. I think we are going to get balled up if we are going to find out which children we are supposed to host and if the committee has to chase us down individually we are going to get all balled up if we don't get together about 12 o'clock.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Would that be satisfactory to you, Mr. Johnson?

JOHNSON: Entirely.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the maker of the motion has acceded to the suggestion to make the adjournment until 12 o'clock noon tomorrow. Mr. Taylor.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, was there not an amendment to that motion?

PRESIDENT EGAN: There can't be an amendment to that motion. It is out of order.

ROSSWOG: May I make another committee announcement? The Local Government Committee will meet at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Local Government Committee will meet at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

COGHILL: Mr. Chairman, in line with Mr. Hellenthal's idea, I would like to ask through the Chair if the maker of the motion would accede to having his motion changed to 8 o'clock this evening.

TAYLOR: Mr. President, I think Mr. Hellenthal's motion was in order according to Robert's Rules of Order. A motion that fixes the time to be adjourned can be amended.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess for a minute or two.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order.

METCALF: Mr. Chairman, may I ask a question.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection you may ask a question, Mr. Metcalf.

METCALF: Will all the committee proposals be submitted by the end of the week so when we go home for our Christmas vacation we can have a complete list of proposals so we can think and talk intelligently on all sections of the constitution?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Metcalf that is the purpose of course in attempting to adjourn for a longer length of time than is ordinarily the case, in order to allow the committees that are just now practically in the process of reporting their proposals to do so, and we hope that all committees will have reported their proposals back to the convention by the time we are ready to take the hearings recess. Mr. Barr.

BARR: There seems to be a tendency on the part of some of the members to insist on the plenary sessions. These plenary sessions are not important now. The committee reports are. A man holding a hearing or attending a hearing isn't properly equipped unless he has a stack of all of the mimeographed copies of the committee reports to refer to, and he can't answer questions from the public, and the most important thing right now is committee reports to have them out and have them mimeographed before the recess. If we do work in the evening it should not be in plenary sessions, but should be on committees.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chair has been allowing discussion but of course under this motion it is not debatable, and the question is, "Shall the Convention stand adjourned until 12 noon tomorrow?" All those in favor of the motion will signify by saying "aye", all opposed "no". The "ayes" have it and the Convention stands adjourned until 12 noon tomorrow.

ALASKA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

December 15, 1955

THIRTY-EIGHTH DAY

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. We have with us this afternoon Reverend Robert Sheppard of First Church of the Nazarene. Reverend Sheppard will give the daily invocation.

REVEREND SHEPPARD: Almighty God and Heavenly Father, we acknowledge Thee, we worship Thee. It is not absolutely mandatory that any of us be here for our place could be taken, but Lord we feel in our hearts that it is necessary that Thou be here. Thou hast revealed the extent of Thy concern toward nations and toward individuals in the gift of Thy Son Jesus to us at the first Christmas time, and in the light of that we ask Thee for Thy blessing upon our Constitutional Convention; that Thou shalt be with those in committee activities, in debate and in all the affairs and activities that center around this formation of a document for the governing of a great state and a great people. O Lord, bless we pray. Give insight as to the right and give courage to men to do the right as their insights have indicated to them. Make this a good day in all of the work that is before this group. May they bear their responsibilities as unto God, and when the day comes to a close may they be satisfied with the work of their hands. In Christ's name. Amen.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Chief Clerk will call the roll.

(The Chief Clerk called the roll.)

CHIEF CLERK: All present.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Does the special Committee to read the journal have a report to make at this time?

DOOGAN: No journal today.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the report of the special Committee to read the journal will be postponed until tomorrow. At this time the Chair would like to announce that copies of the speech by Ernest Gruening, "Let Us End American Colonialism!", are available and each delegate who would like to have copies of that speech, if they will notify the people at the message center, may receive such copies, such numbers as they would so desire. At this time the Chair would like to announce also that we have with us today Mrs. Laura Jones and her 7th and 8th grade class of students from the Fairbanks Public Schools. If the president of the class, Marjorie Thomas would come forward at this time we would certainly be pleased to hear from her. (Applause)

MARJORIE THOMAS: Mr. President and delegates of the Constitutional Convention, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for letting us come out here today to sit in on the Constitutional Convention and the writing of the laws of our future State of Alaska and on behalf of my fellow classmates I would like to thank you for giving us this opportunity to be able to tell our children and our grandchildren that we have attended the Constitutional Convention. I would like to present my class now.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Miss Thomas, if you would not mind, the Chair does not mean to interrupt, but as each of the children as they are named, if the two delegates who have been so kind as to ask this particular child to eat dinner with them will rise so that the boy or girl may know who is going to take them to dinner. The Chair feels that would be the proper way to find out just who is who, so Miss Thomas would you proceed again. (Miss Thomas introduced her class.) The Convention will come to order and thank you, Miss Thomas. At this time the Chair would entertain a motion for recess until 1:30 unless someone has an announcement. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Before we have a motion for recess, I would like to have the record show that the booklet, "Let Us End American Colonialism!" has been printed by the Alaska Statehood Committee which has assumed responsibility for wide distribution of the same, and now I move that we recess until 1:30.

NORDALE: May I speak on a question of personal privilege? One of our delegates is celebrating his birthday today and I think we should all wish him many happy returns -- Mr. Ed Davis. (Convention stood up and applauded and sang "Happy Birthday".)

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until 1:30 p.m. The Convention stands at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Are there any petitions, memorials or communications from outside the Convention? The Chief Clerk will please proceed with the reading of communications.

CHIEF CLERK: Telegram from Lester Bronson, Second Division, Nome. (The Chief Clerk read the telegram stating that a majority was in favor of four divisions in Alaska as now existing.)

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be filed.

CHIEF CLERK: "You are invited to attend the Christmas program of the music department of the University tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the gym."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The communication will be filed, and the delegates will keep the particular date in mind. Are there reports of standing committees? Mr. Riley.

RILEY: Mr. President, not a report. I would like to ask to speak to a matter of personal privilege for a moment.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Riley, you may speak.

RILEY: This afternoon the Resources Committee consultant is leaving Fairbanks and it is desirable that some members of the Committee spend as much time as possible with him this afternoon. We would like to ask therefore, that three or four be excused from the deliberations down here. It has been noted that we seldom vote together, so I don't think there will be any fatal consequences.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mr. Riley, those members of the Resources Committee who want to confer with Mr. Ostrom before his departure will be excused. Are you going to be in this building?

RILEY: We will be in the building on the third floor.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It might be necessary to ask for you to be present on some controversial roll call. Are there any reports of standing committees? Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, your Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment to whom was referred Proposal No. 2, has compared it to the original and found it correctly engrossed.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney reports that Proposal No. 2 has been found to be correctly engrossed by the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment.

MCCUTCHEON: The Committee on the Legislative Branch, having concluded their work, have presented for consideration of the Constitutional Convention that matter which was delegated to them, and we hereby report back to the constitution, the device for the legislative branch.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal may be read for the first time.

CHIEF CLERK: "Committee Proposal No. 5, introduced by the Committee on the Legislative Branch, LEGISLATIVE POWERS AND DUTIES."

PRESIDENT EGAN: The proposal is referred to the Rules Committee for assignment to the calendar. Committee Proposal No. 2, taking its normal course, will be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting, the proposal relating to the Judiciary Branch. Are there any other reports of standing committees? Are there reports of select committees? Are there any proposals to be introduced at this time? Are there any motions or resolutions? Is there any unfinished business? If not, we will proceed. Mrs. Hermann.

HERMANN: Mr. President, I wish to rise to a question of privilege.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection, Mrs. Hermann, you may.

HERMANN: I think it is particularly important that we of the Constitutional Convention pause a moment from our regular duties to recognize the fact that this is a very important anniversary in the history of America. This is the 164th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights which was accomplished in 1791 when the tenth of the thirteen states to whom it had been submitted finally ratified it. I was in hopes that our own Bill of Rights might make the floor on this day, and I am going to request that it be dated as of this day in commemoration of the fact that our national Bill of Rights was finally ratified as of this date. I think we should turn back and remember some of the struggles of these early founding fathers as they sought to draft a Constitution and the subsequent Bill of Rights. Their condition was somewhat like ours, but it was also vastly different because they had no example upon which to found their work. They were without precedent. They did not have great universities spotting the land from which they could draw on the consultants and the advice that they had to give, as we have been able to do today. They had literally nothing to guide them. They simply reached down into their own great hearts and souls and minds and produced the document that Gladstone was later to call the most magnificent document ever struck off by the mind of man. And then, not satisfied that it had given all the liberties and freedoms that we should have, it produced the ten amendments that constitute the Bill of Rights after some more years of struggling. There can be no doubt that there was squabbling and compromise and frustration all through the course of writing that great Constitution and writing the Bill of Rights that followed after it. But the fact of the matter is that they did come up with a document that formed the implements of government for that Atlantic coastline of thirteen states and that from there it became, not a localized government, but it crossed the Alleghenies into the great region that was known as the Northwest Territory, on across the great plains, over the Rockies and the Cascades to the Pacific Ocean and northward to Alaska. And so I think it is particularly important today that we who are assembled here at the site of the farthest north University under the American flag, in Constitution Hall, that may in time become as much of a shrine to Alaskans as Independence Hall has become to Americans, that we should take time and, in the presence of these boys and girls, who will probably be among those who will write future amendments to this constitution, to rededicate ourselves to the principles of government that made our American Constitution and our Bill of Rights the greatest charter of freedom that the world has ever known. I ask that we date our own Bill of Rights, which we are to produce at this time and for which we have had the example not only of our Federal Constitution and the Constitution of our 48 states, including Hawaii, but also the help of great students of governmental matters, I think we should date it as of this day, in commemoration of the ratification of the Bill of Rights." "We may, in this way, in all gratitude and honesty say, Thank God for a job well done in 1789 and 1791." (Applause)

PRESIDENT EGAN: Thank you, Mrs. Hermann. Miss Awes.

AWES: Mr. Chairman, as Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee I just wanted to say that the Bill of Rights Committee has completed its work and the Bill of Rights is now in the boiler room, and we requested them to date it today and they agreed to do that.

PRESIDENT EGAN: If there is no objection it will be dated as of today. If there is no further objection the record can show that the proposal came before us as Committee Proposal No. -- what? The Secretariat can take care of the numbering of the Proposal. Mr. Ralph Rivers?

R. RIVERS: I would like to ask unanimous consent that that speech be spread upon the journal. I would like to read it again some day. It was very inspiring.

PRESIDENT EGAN: We can get it from the stenotypist's notes. If there is no objection it will be so ordered. Mr. King?

KING: Mr. President, for the sake of the transcribed record it should be "1791".

HERMANN: That was the year I was born and I just sort of misspoke myself.

KILCHER: I think Mrs. Hermann took another license with the figures and calculated it to be 155 years instead of 164.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Hermann stated that it was 164 years. The Convention will come to order, and the Chair would like to correct a statement made prior to the recess in which the Chair stated that we had with us in the gallery the 7th and 8th grades of the Fairbanks Public Schools. We have with us the 8th grade of the Fairbanks Public Schools. We have no other unfinished business. Mr. White.

WHITE: Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. Time has gone by but in looking over Rule 44 it appears to me that action on the report of the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment is necessary before Committee Proposal No. 2 can be forwarded to Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment reported it back to the Convention, Mr. White, as being in proper order, and at that time the Chair referred it to the Committee on Style and Drafting after that report was made. Would you mean that you felt the body should act upon that report?

WHITE: I am posing a question, Mr. President. Rule 44, Section C, says, "Action on reports of Committee of Engrossment and Enrollment." May I ask a question of the Chair? When a committee proposal goes to Style and Drafting and returns therefrom, does the body then vote on the proposal in substance or merely upon the report of Style and Drafting?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Now your question is when the Style and Drafting Committee brings this back to us, does the body vote then on the proposal in final action. Is that your question, Mr. White?

WHITE: That is my question. Will we be voting only on the report of the Committee on Style and Drafting or are we at that point for the first time voting upon the proposal and its substance in second reading?

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is the opinion of the Chair that when the Style and Drafting Committee brings the report back it is up to the body to accept or reject the report of the Style and Drafting Committee at that time. Is that your impression? That is not, however, the final vote on the proposal. The proposal then would go to third reading.

WHITE: But that vote at that time is still in second reading?

PRESIDENT EGAN: Right, Mr. White, but it cannot at that time be put back into second reading for regular amendment except by a two-thirds majority vote of the Convention.

WHITE: Then I raise a point of order that we have not voted on Committee Proposal No. 2.

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is just now on its way to Style and Drafting Committee, Mr. White. If there is no objection, perhaps the Convention can stand at recess for two minutes. The Convention is at recess.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. The Chair would ask that at this time the Rules Committee have a brief meeting and that the Engrossment Committee meet with the Rules Committee for purposes of clarifying particularly the insert that we adopted the other day with relation to the engrossing and enrolling of the proposal. If there is no objection the Convention will stand at recess until such time as the Rules Committee reports back.

RECESS

PRESIDENT EGAN: The Convention will come to order. Mrs. Sweeney.

SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask unanimous consent that the report of the Engrossing and the Enrollment Committee as concerns Committee Proposal No. 2 be returned to the Committee at this time.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mrs. Sweeney asks unanimous consent that the report previously made by the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment be withdrawn at this time. The Chair would ask that reference to the motion be stricken from the record. Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: I would like to make a report for the Rules Committee.

R. RIVERS: Did the Chair order that withdrawn? Point of order.

PRESIDENT EGAN: There was no objection, Mr. Rivers. The report is ordered withdrawn. Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: The Rules Committee would like to recommend that in Rule 16 the words on the second to the last line after "proposal", delete --

PRESIDENT EGAN: It is then the insert that was voted upon here a few days ago. It is a loose page unless you have affixed it to the permanent rules. Does every one have a copy of the insert? Mr. Rosswog, you may proceed then.

ROSSWOG: The recommendation is that these words be deleted in the second to the last line under Rule 16, after the word "proposal", these are the words "in completed form after" and replace them with the words "as amended in".

PRESIDENT EGAN: Delete the words "in completed form after" and insert the words "as amended in". Mr. Rosswog.

ROSSWOG: I so move and ask unanimous consent.

PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog moves and asks unanimous consent that the proposed amendment be adopted. Is there objection?

ROBERTSON: Question. What is the effect of that? PRESIDENT EGAN: Mr. Rosswog, could you explain that?

ROSSWOG: I would like Mr. Rivers, he is a member of the Committee, if he would explain.

R. RIVERS: Mr. Chairman and members, there was an ambiguity in the language before. We were talking about engrossment and when we said "in completed form" some people interpreted that to mean that we would put on your desks a copy that showed the brackets for deletions and the underscorings for new material, and all that sort of thing. The intent of the Rules Committee was that we would come back to this body with a mimeographed copy of the proposal as amended, a clean copy. In other words, what we would put before you and then that clean copy would go to Style and Drafting and that would give us something to compare with the work of Style and Drafting and the changes made by Style and Drafting later. Now time presses and there is a lot of mimeographing to do. If this body will take the word or trust the Engrossment Committee to study the engrossed copy which shows the brackets and the caps and the underscoring so that we can file that engrossed copy with the Chief Clerk and be contented with a clean copy of the way an article looks after it has been amended, then that is what we are going to distribute to the body. That was the intent and purpose of the rule so that when we say as the wording now is "as amended in second reading" that means you are going to get a clean copy instead of a completed engrossed copy showing all the underscoring and the deletions.

PRESIDENT EGAN: And the amended engrossed copy will be available at any time to any delegate on the Chief Clerk's desk. Is that right?
