FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2024 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. SB 255

Analysis

Senate Bill 255 would amend a number of criminal laws, including expanding the scope of the crime of obstructing runways and making certain conduct within that definition a felony (secs. 1-3), increasing the classification of criminal trespass to a felony in specified circumstances (secs. 5-6), reclassifying the violation of obstruction of highways to become a felony or increase it to the level of misdemeanor in certain circumstances (secs. 7-8), and increase the classification of obstructions to navigable waters from a B misdemeanor to an A misdemeanor in certain circumstances (sec. 10).

The bill also creates a new civil cause of action for obstruction of free passage in public places. In certain circumstances, it would allow persons whose passage is obstructed to file a strict liability action seeking damages and seeking injunctive relief (sec. 4). Section 9 would create the new misdemeanor A and misdemeanor B crimes of obstruction of free passage in public places.

The court system is unable to predict how many of these cases would be filed or pursued by individuals for the new civil cause of action, or by the state for the new and expanded crimes. At this time, the court anticipates that it will not require financial resources to implement and apply the provisions in this bill. The court system will monitor its effects, and if the provisions lead to a notable increase in case filings, the court system may seek fiscal resources in the future.

At this time, the court submits this zero fiscal note.
