I am opposed to HB 75, gun control in any form is a violation of my right to protect my family and myself with a firearm. The 2nd Amendment gives me that right.

What about other weapons that could be used from cars to a dinner knife? Is your intention to eventually remove them from a household because someone feels a person isn't capable to use them correctly or that their life is in danger? What gives a legislator the right to take away my rights protected by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Didn't you take an oath to protect those rights?

Just because a person is having a bad day or week or year does that give a legislator the right to take away that persons right to own a firearm? My wife and I own firearms for hunting, and to protect our family in the event of a home invasion looking for drugs. That person might also have a firearm, what would I be able to use if someone took my guns because they thought I was incapable to own them? Who is incapable, the thief or me? I am opposed to HB 75. My wife and I are also Life members of the NRA.
