Department of Revenue
Permanent Dividend Fund Division

As required by AS 15.45.090(a)(4), the Permanent Fund Dividend Division (PFDD) has prepared the following statement of cost to implement the proposed permanent fund dividend application and the registration of voters ballot initiative. The minimum cost to PFDD to implement this change is estimated to be $2,585.00.

The ballot initiative would amend AS 15.07.050(a) and register individuals to vote by completing a permanent fund dividend application under AS 43.23.015. The dividend application currently captures all but one of the required data elements outlined in AS 15.07.060(a)(1)-(4) and (7)-(9). The exception being, AS 15.07.060(a)(4), the applicant’s Alaska residence address. The dividend application requires both a mailing and physical address, but neither is required to be within the state of Alaska. Minimal application programming will be required to modify the application to include a physical address if it must be within Alaska.

In addition, a statement of notification will be incorporated into the permanent fund dividend application. The notification language will explicitly explain that by completing a permanent fund dividend application the applicant will simultaneously be registered to vote.

Although, the projected costs associated with this ballot initiative are relatively insignificant to PFDD, the impact on the volume of public contact is an unknown variable. An increase in non-permanent fund dividend inquires will directly affect the time PFDD technicians have to meet the program’s primary mission.
