I wanted to take a moment to ask you to please take a moment to hear HB214, and name the portion of the Safe Children's Act pertaining to Teen Dating Violence 'Bree's Law', and give this education a name and a face to the issue of domestic/dating violence.

I had watched Rhonda McBride's piece a couple of months ago pertaining to this issue, and the interview with some students at Stellar I believe, where Cindy and Butch Moore, Bree's parents, had just spoke – these students stated that relating the issue and the education to "Bree", made it "real", like it "could happen to them".

I'm sad, angry and disheartened to see all the games that have been played around this bill, a bill that seems to have tremendous support, and I'm hoping, though I know that this bill doesn't really belong in Finance Committee, that you will see the potential savings this 'recognition' of the issue surrounding teen dating violence could have if even just one life were spared – either a victims, or a perpetrators, and that you'll be the hero's in helping to make this a 'win' for the state, and most importantly, for our youth.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Lynn Stuhr
