The Honorable Sean Parnell
Governor of Alaska
P.O. Box 110001
Juneau, AK 99811-0001

Dear Governor Parnell:

Respectfully, I ask you to consider reappointing me to the Alaska Commercial Fisheries Entry Commission (CFEC). I would welcome the opportunity to help complete the substantial work in progress before CFEC.

Before Governor Jay Hammond first appointed me to the commission, I had 10 years' experience as a lawyer suing state and federal bureaucracies on behalf of Alaskans and also representing Alaska fishermen before the Limited Entry Commission. My experience made me sensitive to the effects of limited entry on Alaskans (especially rural Alaskans) and qualified me to help the Commission avoid unnecessary legal issues and controversy. Enclosed is a copy of my resume.

I believe limited entry is a tool for the development and protection of the resource, as well as a historic means to protect local jobs and families. We do everything we can under the law to help keep limited entry permits in the hands of Alaska's local residents.

For more than 10 years, I advocated for local and regional groups to participate in a loan guarantee program with the State Commercial Fishing Revolving Loan Fund to help local residents acquire and keep limited entry permits. The Bristol Bay Economic Development Corporation has such a program in progress.

Additionally, I have worked closely with the IRS to help keep limited entry permits in the hands of local people. To help provide Alaska fishermen a tool to achieve voluntary compliance with their federal tax obligations, I worked for passage of a bill reinstating the Tax Obligation Loan Program within the Commercial Fishing Revolving Loan Fund. As the result of my work with the IRS, the U.S. Treasury Secretary appointed me to the National Taxpayer Advocacy Panel (TAP), where I was elected chairman of the TAP Multilingual Initiative Committee, served from 2002-2006, and did my best to ensure that remedies for taxpayers under the 1998 IRS Reform Act continued to be available and known to Alaska commercial fishermen and other taxpayers.

At the request of an earlier administration, I was a principal author of the Outline of Options for Fleet Consolidation in Alaska's Salmon Fisheries, a paper to provide Alaska fishermen with fundamental information about various potential remedies for the crisis in Alaska's salmon fisheries. The paper has helped fishermen take a realistic view of the various options and continues to be a basis for discussion of salmon remedies today.

In addition to these overriding issues affecting the rights and well being of Alaska fishermen, my primary focus at the commission is on our fundamental tasks. During the period I have served on the commission, the commission limited entry into some 35 fisheries (overall, some 68 Alaska fisheries are currently under limitation).

While limiting entry is always controversial, we have spent considerable time communicating with members of the industry in an effort to ensure actions by the commission are predictable and understandable. We believe the fishing industry deserves a climate of regulatory stability at a time when there are few other sources of stability in commercial fishing.

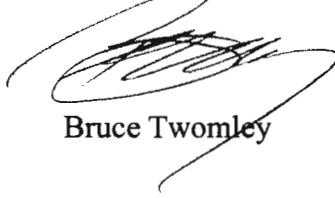

In addition to limiting fisheries, our primary responsibility is adjudicating the high volume of cases that has been before the commission. I have participated in and written more than 3,000 commission decisions. My experience enables me to work efficiently and to make our decisions stick: from 1996, in the course of 32 appeals from our decisions, the commission has suffered only 2 partial reversals by the Alaska Supreme Court. Reversals of limited entry decisions can have serious consequences, because the courts may apply them retroactively to open cases previously closed and thereby undermine limitations of entire fisheries.

CFEC's decisions affect people in such personal and emotional ways (much like decisions affecting our children's health and education) that our decisions are always controversial. Nonetheless, since 1982, the number of pending court appeals from commission decisions has dropped from approximately 150 to 1 today. (This reduction in court appeals is despite the fact that an applicant can continue to fish as long as the individual can maintain an appeal.) Fewer appeals save the state money and provide stability to the fishing industry. Additionally, fewer appeals is a measure of acceptance by those affected. Although we must often disagree with claimants, I believe generally they regard the commission as fair.

Protecting fishermen's rights and preserving our ability to perform the fundamental tasks of the commission present some creative opportunities to shape cases that we know will go to court. For example, our favorable decision from the Alaska Supreme Court in Simpson v. State, CFEC, 101 P.3d 605 (Alaska 2004), will protect permit holders and enhance the commission's ability to complete adjudications expeditiously.

In short, at the Entry Commission, we have work in progress that serves the goals of your administration. I am asking you to please grant me the opportunity to complete these tasks.

Respectfully yours,

Bruce Twomley

SELECTED PRESENTATIONS, PUBLICATIONS, AND PROJECTS:

2012 Legislation. Supported Rep. Bryce Edgmon's successful effort to double the amount authorized for "Section B" loans to $200,000 for the commercial fisheries revolving loan fund. These loans are critical in helping Alaskans in coastal communities get and keep Alaska limited entry permits, and the increase helps to ensure that the loans can be sufficient to cover the market price of the permits.

2012 Fleet Reduction. Joined the NMFS Fishing Capacity Reduction Program Leader in hearings throughout Southeast Alaska to discuss the proposed federally financed fleet reduction for the Southeast salmon seine fishery, which the seiners thereafter voted to approve.

2012 NMFS Proposal to Withdrawal of Services from Alaska. Testified against National Marine Fisheries Service's plans to withdrawal adjudication hearings from Alaska and move them to their central offices in Maryland.

2011 Advocacy. Served as a witness for Alaska Legal Services in a case that resulted in a favorable decision by a Federal Administrative Law Judge that found a disabled Bristol Bay Village resident eligible for Supplemental Security Income benefits without forcing the sale of the Bristol Bay entry permit on which the applicant and her family depended.

2009 Advocacy. Served as a witness and consultant for the Office of Public Advocacy and Alaska Legal Services to ensure that applicants for Medicaid and SSI Disability were not unfairly denied benefits because they held an Alaska limited entry permit.

From 2006-2008, served on the Guided Sportfish Task Force (sponsored by the Sport Fish Division of the Alaska Department of Fish and Game).

In 2008, prepared and submitted a report on the status of permit adjudications for the Alaska Department of Fish & Game's Northern Southeast Inside sablefish fishery industry meeting.

In 2007, prepared and submitted a report to the Southeast Alaska King and Tanner Crab Task Force on the status of commission adjudications.

Throughout 2007, served on the advisory panel to a study commissioned by the Bristol Bay Economic Development Corporation to explore means to increase the number of limited entry permits held by local Bristol Bay residents.

Appointed by the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury to the National Taxpayer Advocacy Panel (served from 2002 through 2006; elected Chairman of the Multi-lingual Initiative Committee; worked to ensure that remedies provided for taxpayers under the 1998 IRS Reform Act continued to be available and known to Alaska commercial fishermen and other taxpayers).

SELECTED CASES, AND DECISIONS:

Simpson v. State, CFEC, 101 P.3d 650 (Alaska 2004).

The Alaska Supreme Court affirmed the commission's optimum number decision for the Northern Southeast Inside sablefish fishery.

Crivello v. State, CFEC, 59 P.3d 741 (Alaska 2002). The Alaska Supreme Court affirmed a CFEC decision that advanced commission adjudications by limiting the extent to which the commission was required to grant additional hearings under Forquer v. State, CFEC, 677 P.2d 1236 (Alaska 1984).

In re Francis S. Carle, CFEC 96-003-P (1996). In the face of a demand by the Internal Revenue Service to force the transfer of a Southeast salmon herring seine permit held by a 61-year-old resident of Hydaburg, the commission (in a 96 page decision, including exhibits) declined to transfer the permit.

Wilson v. Watt, 703 F.2d 395 (9th Cir. 1983). Class action with co-counsel Kathleen Strasbaugh, sought preliminary injunction against Secretary of Interior James Watt to restore BIA general assistance payments to Alaska Natives.

Fairbanks Correctional Center Inmates v. Williamson, 600 P.2d 743 (Ak. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Ferdinand v. City of Fairbanks, 599 P.2d 122 (Ak. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Co-counsel for plaintiff class of 2,667 Alaska Native secondary school age children in Tobeluk v. Lind (known as the Molly Hootch case), 589 P.2d 873 (Ak. Sup. Ct. 1979), which by consent decree established the entitlement of Alaska Native children in 126 villages throughout the state to attend secondary school in their home villages and further required the state to expend more than $158-million for the construction of local secondary facilities.

Horton v. Horton, 519 P.2d 1131 (Ak. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Attorney for plaintiff class of Alaska Native women and minor children in Finnesand v. Kleppe, No. A75-42 Civ. (U.S. District Court Alaska), which by consent decree abolished a discriminatory eligibility standard for BIA General Assistance.

Represented more than 100 Alaska Native Allotment applicants before the Department of Interior. 1972-1982.

Attorney for the Akiak Indian Reorganization Act Council and parents of grade school children in Akiak v. Lind, No. 4BR 8-39 Civ.
