I am concerned about the health effects of toxic flame retardants and support the Toxic-Free Children's Act (SB111). Chemicals in household products are linked to cancer, miscarriages and birth defects. First responders are also vulnerable to these toxins. Please schedule a committee hearing no later than February 12.

Thank you,

I attended a lecture in Seattle in 2003 and learned all about the negative effects of fire retardants in not just children's clothing, but also in many home furnishings and carpeting. The addition of the flame retardants does very little to even slow fire (adding mere seconds), but does greatly increase health risks to regular users and fire fighters. Chemicals were found in the breast milk of mothers and in the urine of children exposed to the flame retardant chemicals, and fire fighters are regularly exposed to them as they burn into even more toxic chemicals in house fires.

Fire retardant chemicals do little to prevent or even slow the spread of fire, but do great harm to the health of all who are exposed. Please help ban them to protect our health and home environments.

If you look on the map of Alaska, locate Little Diomed Island. We're a tiny community that rely on a once a week mail run (Wednesdays) for our household products; and As scheduled, the Essential Air Service (Passenger Service) takes a flight on a scheduled basis. Sometimes, we wait 2 weeks before an EAS Flight comes to Diomed. It costs $400 one way to Nome. Not many people can afford this trip. Maybe this is too costly for professional health services to come visit as well. Currently, Diomed does not have a local Health Aide. Norton Sound Health Corporation Itinerant Health Aides fly out from Nome, on a two week basis. There is a whole week in every month that we do not have a health aide. This brings me to say, we must keep our children safe and serve them with products that will not harm them. We are not obligated to run to the hospital to see a doctor when our children become ill. And for a child to come into Nome, to be examined they have to be authorized in. This usually happens when they become very ill or too ill. Most of the world knows that children are more susceptible to toxic chemicals. These flame-retardants that are in products are things used in their homes today. When these material products become broken, old, or unwanted they end up in the community Model #5 Open Burn Box. This Burn Unit is located about 200 ft. from the nearest house. Everything that goes into the burnbox is burned. With changing winds, the dioxins and furans stream to the community, and people breathe in the smoke or it enters into their homes when opening their doors or third-hand smoke comes from their clothing.

I will add another important reason SB 111, should be banned. Just about everything that enters into Diomed, that is not recycled, ends up in the ocean. Burning the trash does not solve a situation. The ash ends up in the Bering Strait, and flows up to the Arctic. When it's in the ocean, all living organism are affected. We call this bioaccumulation in marine life. We are hunters and gathers to feed our children and families. Today, we must make smart decisions that will impact good health for people and all the world around us.

I support SB 111, the Toxic-Free Children's Act, and ask that you vote in favor of this legislation during the Labor and Commerce Committee hearing on January 28. This bill would help protect children from exposure to chemicals known to harm human health.

Alaskans are exposed to higher concentrations of toxins due to environmental currents. These chemical compounds have been connected to serious health effects, like birth defects and miscarriages and cancer. We are blessed with an abundance of wild healthy foods, but they are becoming sources of contaminants. Alaskans should be able to eat blueberries, salmon, and caribou without worrying.

Lesil McGuire

I am concerned about the health effects of toxic flame retardants and support the Toxic-Free Children's Act (SB111). Please schedule a committee hearing no later than February 12. Please log this for follow up. This a very important issue. The evidence is clear and overwhelming. Protecting our reproductive health and children should be and is the most important thing to do. I urge you to bring this bill to a hearing in the two committees. As a citizen of Alaska and a constituent I will be very grateful.

I attended a lecture in Seattle in 2003 and learned all about the negative effects of fire retardants in not just children's clothing, but also in many home furnishings and carpeting. The addition of the flame retardants does very little to even slow fire (adding mere seconds), but does greatly increase health risks to regular users and fire fighters. Chemicals were found in the breast milk of mothers and in the urine of children exposed to the flame retardant chemicals, and fire fighters are regularly exposed to them as they burn into even more toxic chemicals in house fires.

Fire retardant chemicals do little to prevent or even slow the spread of fire, but do great harm to the health of all who are exposed. Please help ban them to protect our health and home environments.

If you look on the map of Alaska, locate Little Diomed Island. We're a tiny community that rely on a once a week mail run (Wednesdays) for our household products; and As scheduled, the Essential Air Service (Passenger Service) takes a flight on a scheduled basis. Sometimes, we wait 2 weeks before an EAS Flight comes to Diomed. It costs $400 one way to Nome. Not many people can afford this trip. Maybe this is too costly for professional health services to come visit as well. Currently, Diomed does not have a local Health Aide. Norton Sound Health Corporation Itinerant Health Aides fly out from Nome, on a two week basis. There is a whole week in every month that we do not have a health aide. This brings me to say, we must keep our children safe and serve them with products that will not harm them. We are not obligated to run to the hospital to see a doctor when our children become ill. And for a child to come into Nome, to be examined they have to be authorized in. This usually happens when they become very ill or too ill. Most of the world knows that children are more susceptible to toxic chemicals. These flame-retardants that are in products are things used in their homes today. When these material products become broken, old, or unwanted they end up in the community Model #5 Open Burn Box. This Burn Unit is located about 200 ft. from the nearest house. Everything that goes into the burnbox is burned. With changing winds, the dioxins and furans stream to the community, and people breathe in the smoke or it enters into their homes when opening their doors or third-hand smoke comes from their clothing.

I will add another important reason SB 111, should be banned. Just about everything that enters into Diomed, that is not recycled, ends up in the ocean. Burning the trash does not solve a situation. The ash ends up in the Bering Strait, and flows up to the Arctic. When it's in the ocean, all living organism are affected. We call this bioaccumulation in marine life. We are hunters and gathers to feed our children and families. Today, we must make smart decisions that will impact good health for people and all the world around us.

I support SB 111, the Toxic-Free Children's Act, and ask that you vote in favor of this legislation during the Labor and Commerce Committee hearing on January 28. This bill would help protect children from exposure to chemicals known to harm human health.

Norton Sound Health Corporation Itinerant Health Aides fly out from Nome, on a two week basis. There is a whole week in every month that we do not have a health aide. This brings me to say, we must keep our children safe and serve them with products that will not harm them. We are not obligated to run to the hospital to see a doctor when our children become ill. And for a child to come into Nome, to be examined they have to be authorized in. This usually happens when they become very ill or too ill. Most of the world knows that children are more susceptible to toxic chemicals. These flame-retardants that are in products are things used in their homes today. When these material products become broken, old, or unwanted they end up in the community Model #5 Open Burn Box. This Burn Unit is located about 200 ft. from the nearest house. Everything that goes into the burnbox is burned. With changing winds, the dioxins and furans stream to the community, and people breathe in the smoke or it enters into their homes when opening their doors or third-hand smoke comes from their clothing.

I will add another important reason SB 111, should be banned. Just about everything that enters into Diomed, that is not recycled, ends up in the ocean. Burning the trash does not solve a situation. The ash ends up in the Bering Strait, and flows up to the Arctic. When it's in the ocean, all living organism are affected. We call this bioaccumulation in marine life. We are hunters and gathers to feed our children and families. Today, we must make smart decisions that will impact good health for people and all the world around us.

I support SB 111, the Toxic-Free Children's Act, and ask that you vote in favor of this legislation during the Labor and Commerce Committee hearing on January 28. This bill would help protect children from exposure to chemicals known to harm human health.

Sincerely,

I support SB 111, the Toxic-Free Children's Act, and ask that you vote in favor of this legislation during the Labor and Commerce Committee hearing on January 28. Fire retardant chemicals need to be removed from children's products as they are known to be harmful to everyone but especially children.

Actually, I'd like to see it applied for all humans. This bill may need revision because it discriminates all that are not considered a child (age discrimination),

Alaskans are exposed to higher concentrations of toxins due to environmental currents. These chemical compounds have been connected to serious health effects, like birth defects and miscarriages and cancer. We are blessed with an abundance of wild healthy foods, but they are becoming sources of contaminants. Alaskans should be able to eat blueberries, salmon, and caribou without worrying.

Please give SB111/HB199 a hearing.

IT IS AN ADDED INSULT THAT THESE FLAME RETARDANTS DON'T EVEN PREVENT FIRES SO WE ARE BEING TOXICED OUT FOR NO REASON. It is not just kids that are being affected.

Please log this for follow up. This a very important issue. The evidence is clear and overwhelming. Protecting our reproductive health and children should be and is the most important thing to do. I urge you to bring this bill to a hearing in the two committees. As a citizen of Alaska and a constituent I will be very grateful.
