Vote NO on House Bill 222 Allowing experienced Manicurist and Pedicurist circumvent training

The problem that is rampant in Alaska is that, although they know how to apply polish and use a file, they do not know or follow the basic sanitary practices to protect the public health. There are some that have taken the Law seriously, paid for and attended the training. However they are a minority. The general sentiment in the industry is either people do not want to spend the money for the schooling (about $3,500) or they cannot pass the test because for most, English is a second language. It is imperative that we DO NOT REPEAL the law requiring education. Nail fungus and other issues are prevalent and a serious problem. Protect Alaskan's and vote No on House Bill 222.
