Dental Health Provider Shortage Areas are ranked based on a score between 0-26. The primary factor used to determine an HPSA is the number of health professionals relative to the population with consideration of high need. Federal regulations stipulate that, in order to be considered as having a shortage of dental providers, an area must have a population-to-provider ratio of at least 5,000 to 1 (4,000 to 1 if there are unusually high needs in the community). The following components are used to calculate a dental HPSA score: 1) population-to-provider ratio (10 points max), 2) percent of population below 100% federal poverty line (10 points max), water flouridation status (1 point max), and travel time to NSC (5 points max).
