RALPH SEEKINS

Ralph Seekins is an established leader in industry, community, and political fields. A proven builder of key relationships, with demonstrated successes in operations, team building, business development, marketing and sales. Recognized both in Alaska and nationally as an outstanding individual in community involvement, political involvement, and business leadership.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Seekins Ford-Lincoln President – Owner

August 1977-Present

At the age of 32, with the help of his partner, Don Chandler (deceased 1989), and through the Ford Motor Company's Dealer Development program, Ralph became the dealer principal of Seekins Ford-Lincoln. With two locations, the headquarters in Fairbanks and a secondary location at Deadhorse on the North Slope, the Seekins "Defined Market Area" stretches north to the Arctic Ocean, east to Canada, west to Russia, and south to approximately the Alaska Range – an area about 1-1/2 times the size of the State of Texas.. Seekins Ford-Lincoln is the largest square mile area and farthest north dealership in North America.

Beginning on opening day, Seekins built a new team from the bottom up and the dealership became recognized as one of the top Ford and Ford-Lincoln-Mercury dual dealerships in the Pacific Northwest (Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and Alaska).

An example of the Seekins forward thinking, the dealership was the first in the nation, when it partnered with Ford Motor Company to establish a Ford Fast Lube operation at the Fairbanks location. And, later, in 2017 Seekins became the first dealership in the nation to establish Ford QuickLane operation on military reservations – at Ford Wainwright and Eielson Air Force Base. Interestingly, Seekins Ford is the only known Ford dealership to use a private airplane as a service vehicle to reach remote locations.

Budget Rent-A-Car of Alaska President

1987-1996

In 1987, Seekins Ford-Lincoln purchased the majority interest in Anchorage based Budget Rent-A-Car of Alaska. Ralph served as President until 1996, when the dealership sold its entire interest to an Anchorage based operator.

Seekins Ford – SoldotnaPresident – Owner*1996-2002

In 1996, Ralph purchased the Ford dealership in Soldotna, Alaska. He served as President and owner until 2002, at which time, after several years of rejecting his purchase proposals, Ralph sold the dealership to the local Kenai Chrysler dealer.

Jim Thompson Ford SalesApril 1974-August 1977*General Sales Manager

In 1974, Jim Thompson, the Fairbanks Ford dealer, asked the Ford Motor Company's Northwest Region Sales Manager, Lee Anderson to help him find a Sales Manager for his Fairbanks dealership. Mr. Anderson introduced Ralph, who was then the Commercial/Leasing manager for the William O. McKay Co., a downtown Seattle Ford dealership, to Mr. Thompson. Mr. Anderson knew that, after Connie graduated from nursing school at Seattle Pacific University, Ralph wanted to re-locate somewhere out of the Seattle Metroplex. At that introduction, Mr. Anderson gave Ralph his highest recommendation.

"Jim. If you can hire Ralph, do it. He'll do a great job for you." Lee Anderson – Ford Regional Sales Mgr.

Starting at Jim Thompson Ford Sales in April of 1974, Ralph rebuilt and re-trained the entire sales department. 90 days later, the July retail sales had doubled any prior month at the dealership. Additionally, capitalizing on his past experience as a commercial and fleet manager, Ralph quickly established relationships with Alaska based companies both large and small. In 1975, Ralph was honored by Ford Motor Company as a "Professional Sales Manager" due to ever increasing sales volume and customer satisfaction ratings.

William O. McKay CompanyMarch 1970-April 1974*Commercial Sales Manager – Leasing Manager

The McKay Co., established in 1914, was a major Ford and Lincoln dealership in Seattle, Washington. One year after first employed, at the age of 25, Ralph was promoted to manage the Commercial Sales Office and the dealership owned First National Auto Lease Co. Commercial responsibilities included working with major and minor corporate entities in Western Washington to supply vehicles from sedans to dump trucks. During Ralph's tenure, McKay became the largest Commercial vehicle sales dealer in the Pacific Northwest, selling near 3,000 vehicles in 1973. Additionally, First National Auto Lease provided 2,000 vehicles to Pacific Northwest commercial entities even into the State of California.

Green Truck and Equipment

June-1968-October 1969

Heavy Truck Technician – Welder

Green Truck was a GMC dealership and heavy truck repair garage located in Coulee Dam, Washington. Ralph obtained valuable skills as a certified high pressure welder and a B level auto technician level from working part time in a vehicle repair shop while in college. Utilizing those skills, Ralph's primary responsibility was working on and repairing 40 Kenworth tractors used during the 3rd power-plant project at Grand Coulee Dam project.

Three of Ralph's original modifications to Kenworth trucks are still in use to this date.

In September of 1969, Ralph married Constance (Connie) Olson. Shortly thereafter, he separated from Green and the new family moved to Seattle so Connie could continue her Nursing School studies at Seattle Pacific University.

High School – College Years

Ralph worked on farms and ranches with cattle and horses from age 14. As time went on, he also assisted his father building church and parsonage buildings and remodeling homes and farm buildings in and around Cody, Wyoming. Then, while at Wheaton College, in Wheaton, Illinois, Ralph worked as a school bus driver and apprentice auto technician/welder. During the summers of 1964-1968, Ralph worked as a carpenter's helper on the Yellowtail Dam project and, beginning at age 19, as a journeyman carpenter/welder on both the Yellowtail Dam and Grand Coulee Dam as well as building custom homes and apartment buildings.

From age 15, Ralph began his own business working with problem horses bringing them to acceptable behavior for the horses' owners.

Yukon Quest International Sled Dog Race

The Yukon Quest is the “TOUGHEST SLED DOG RACE IN THE WORLD” and is run on an annual basis between Whitehorse in Canada’s Yukon Territory to Fairbanks in Alaska. Starting in Fairbanks on even years and in Whitehorse on odd years, the race covers 1,000 miles in the depths of the Arctic winter. The “Quest” is known for excellence in canine care and fostering the traditions of northern travel by dog sled. The race follows the historic Gold Rush and Mail Delivery dog sled routes from the turn of the 20th Century. Once the transportation “highways” of the Northern frontier, the Yukon Quest Trail now only comes alive during February when the temperatures can reach 40 below or colder. Dog teams consisting of one human “musher” and their canine athletes travel for two weeks with no outside help except at the mid-point of the race, racing across some of the most pristine wilderness in North America
