

Amanda Nosich, Certified Rolfer, Lic. Massage Therapist, C.A.

-Profile

Graduate of the Dr. Ida Rolf Institute of Structural Integration, the only Structural Integration school accredited by the Department of Education, and sixteen year Licensed Massage Therapist specializing in accident and injury recovery. I am currently registered as a preferred provider with several insurance companies and have the ability to bill my services independently. As former Chair for the State of Alaska Board of Massage Therapists, I have a passion for the manual therapy field and growth of the profession in the medical arena. I hold several certifications in various massage modalities other than Rolwing to include Chiropractic Assistant Certification, Medical Massage, and Orthopedic Massage, among others. I have a deep interest in using manual therapy to treat chronic and acute pain as an alternative or compliment to injection and surgical options by working with the nervous and myo-skeletal systems to treat the body as a working whole improving structural alignment and functional ease in movement.
