3. Managing state forests and providing timber to the industry

Missions: Division of Forestry & Fire Protection

Protect Alaskans from Wildfire

- Division protects the lives and property of Alaskans on over 150 million acres
- The demand for fire suppression has increased dramatically due to
 - Increasing length and intensity of fire seasons
 - Alaskans' desire to live in the wildland/urban interface

Missions: Division of Forestry & Fire Protection

Reduce Hazardous Fuels

- Division works proactively to prevent fires from threatening communities by building fuels breaks
- Fuels breaks around communities reduce risk and are a cost-effective and efficient way to fight wildland fire

Missions: Division of Forestry & Fire Protection

Sell and Manage State Timber

 - Economic opportunities statewide
 - Road access to state land
- Conduct timber sale inspections to

FY2023 Additions to Fire Program Budget

Increased Protection of Alaska from Wildland Fire $3,300.0 UGF, 24 PFT and 6 PPT

- The FY2023 operating budget was the first step to an increased firefighting capacity, which will increase public safety, protect Alaskan values, and decrease spending on fire suppression
- These new positions make up the first half of what the division requires to be self-sufficient at Preparedness Level 3
- Building this capacity will:
 - Enhance aggressive and efficient initial attack, and
 - Reduce the need for importing expensive, often delayed or unavailable Lower 48 firefighting personnel
- These new positions, including lead firefighters and fire support staff, have been hired or are in the hiring process

FY2023 Reinstatement of Fire Academy

Reinstated Wildland Firefighter Academy $1,000.0 UGF, 1 PFT

- Rural Alaska fire crew numbers have declined drastically from 56 crews in 2010 to fewer than 8 crews in 2021
- Workforce development is key to rebuilding Alaska's wildland firefighting capacity
- 6 trainings are planned for FY2023 to train 216 students. One February training session will be virtual, while the other 5 will be in-person at McGrath, Tok, Fairbanks, and Palmer
- 47 non-permanent positions have been created to provide opportunities for new graduates to gain experience and qualify for permanent DOF firefighting positions

FY2023 Additions to Forestry Budget

Expanded Inspection and Implementation Capacity for Timber Sales $460.0 UGF, 4 PFT

- New foresters will provide more timber sales to industry, creating and supporting well-paying jobs in Alaskan communities and providing revenue to the state with a renewable resource
- New equipment operator will increase access to state lands by building and maintaining roads
- New foresters will ensure compliance with Alaska's Forest Resources and Practices Act and Regulations to protect fish habitat, water quality, and ensure reforestation

Ongoing Changes to the Division

Division renamed / Deputy Directors added / Administrative section restructured

Completed:

"Fire Protection" was added to the Division's name to highlight the major role it plays in managing large portions of the DOF budget and staff. Phase 1 of operating budget increase is complete. The preliminary, Deputy Directors were added to separate the Division into two branches and the two branches of the administrative section restructuring is complete. Entry Level to Management career ladder completed with the administrative reorganization.

In Progress:

Dispatch Center Managers / Regional FMOs / Fire Operations Chief

Northern Dispatch Manager has been added and the Palmer Dispatch Manager will be in place in 2023. Dispatch restructuring will complete the Dispatch career ladder. The Regional Fire Management Officers (RFMOs) and the Chief of Fire Operation positions are in the Online Position Description system. Finalizing these positions is crucial to the reorganization.

Next Steps:

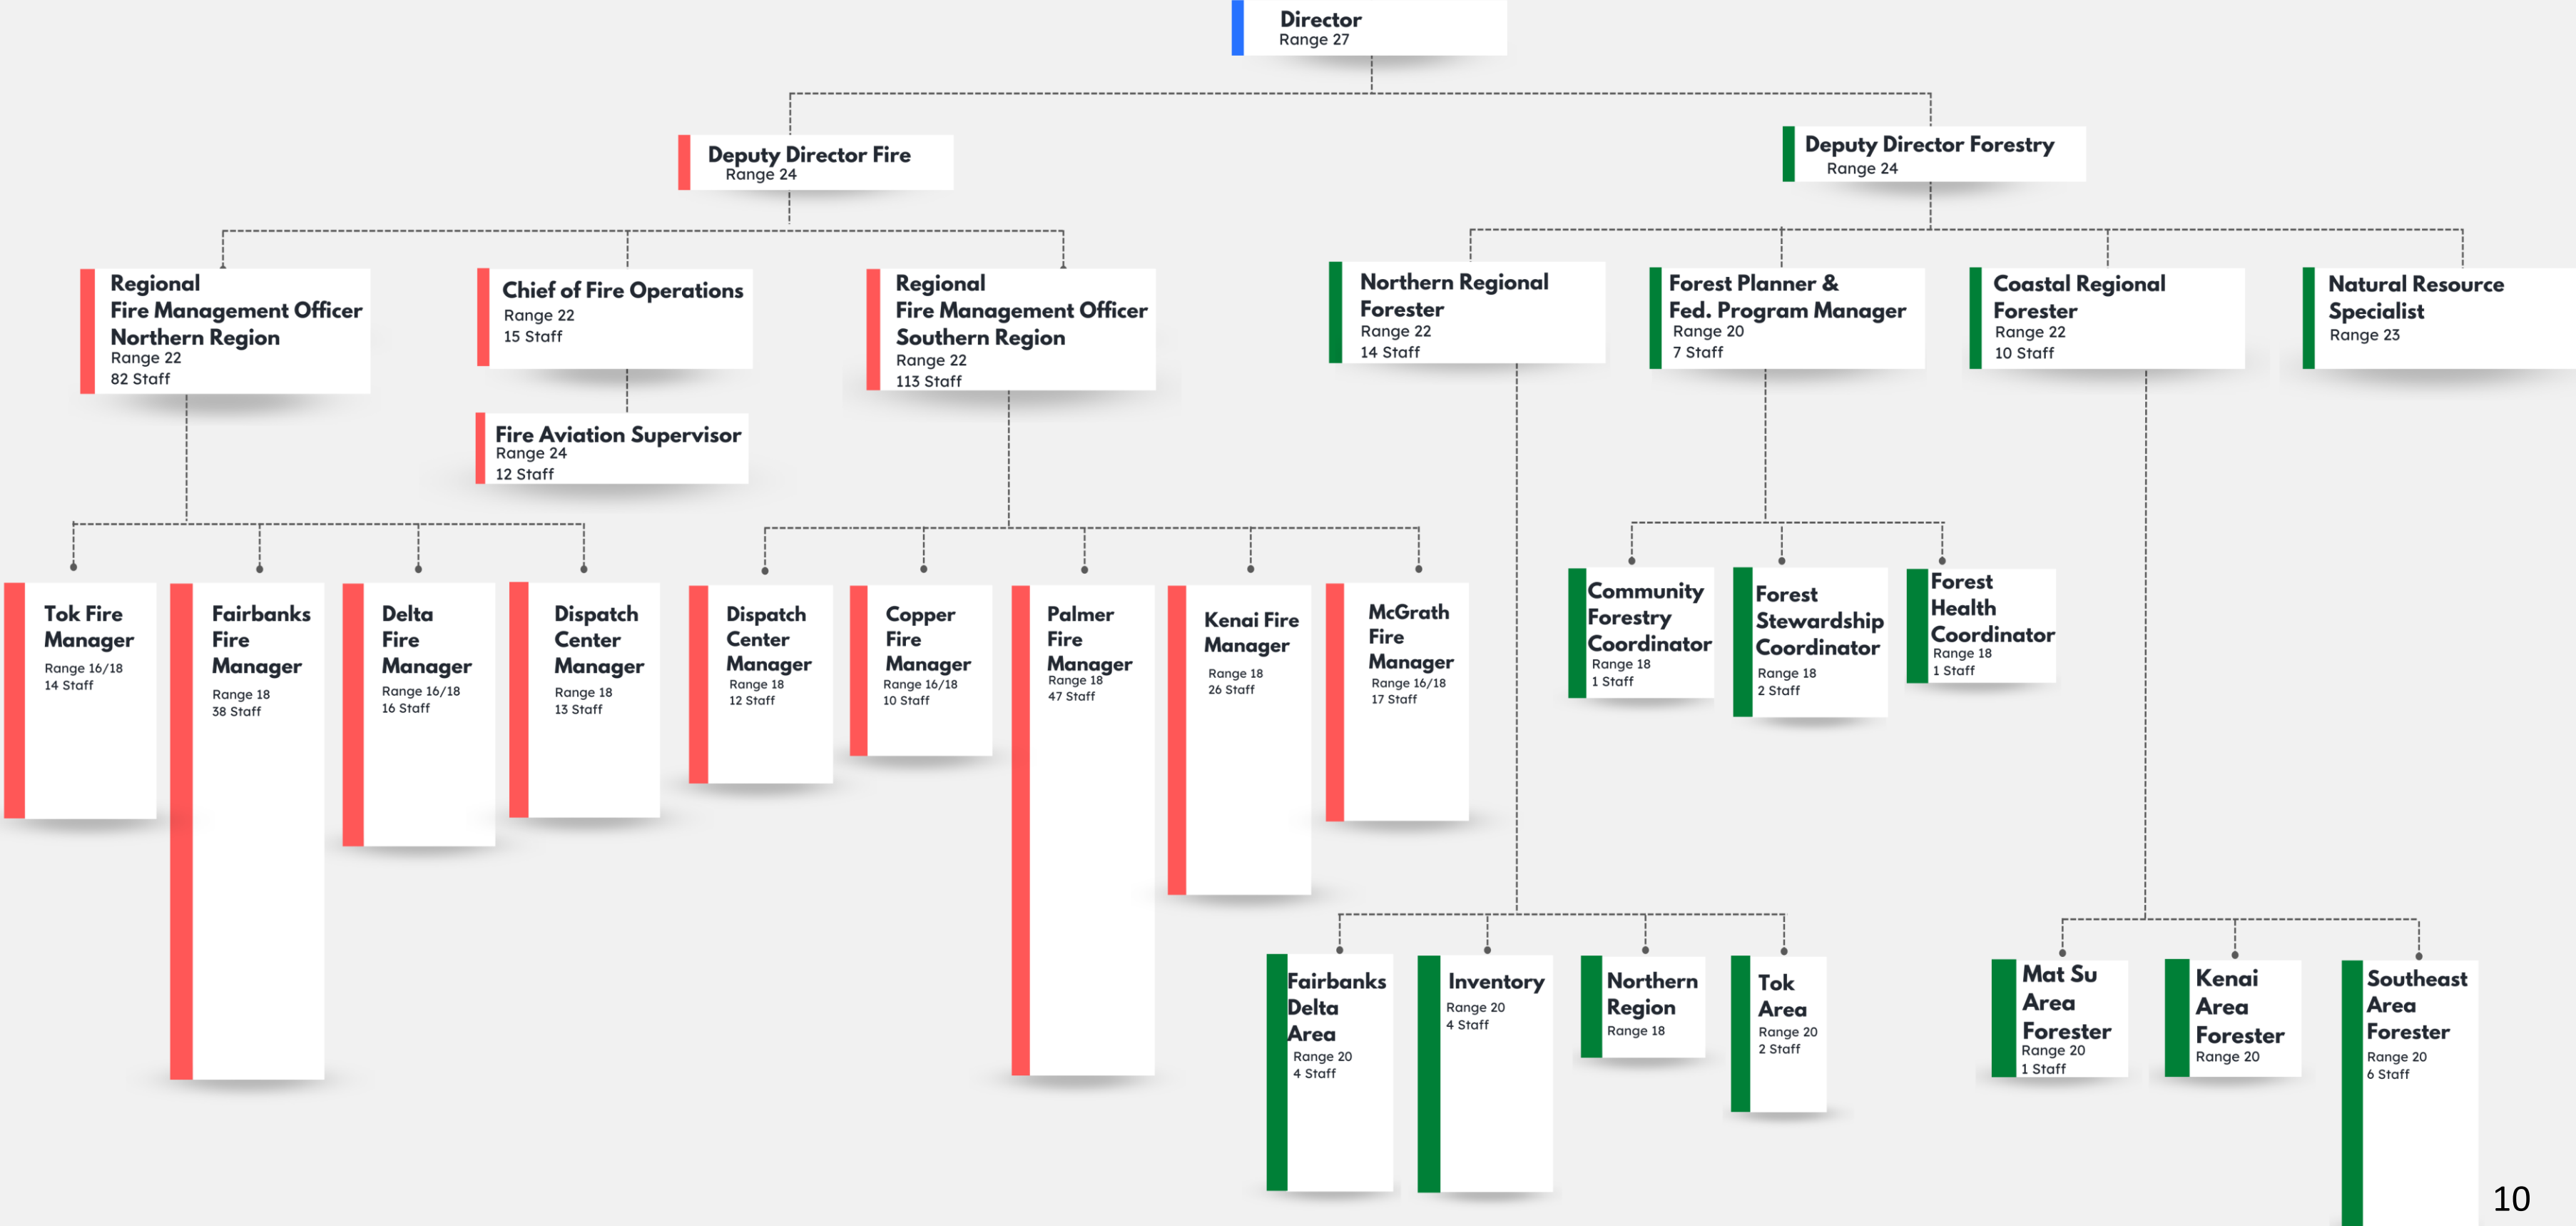

Create "Fire Management Specialist" series / Realign supervision structure / Phase 2 of operating budget

Management structure needs to reflect the shift in activity within the Division. Once the RFMOs and the Operations Chief are in place, line of authority will run from entry level firefighters through Fire Management Specialists to the Deputy Director of Fire. Creating a "Fire Management Specialist" series for the FMOs, RFMOs, and Chief will complete a career ladder for firefighters.
