

About Civic Learning Week

Inspired by local and regional events last year, the national Civic Learning Week (CLW) is hosted by iCivics and seeks to highlight the importance of civic education in sustaining and strengthening constitutional democracy in the United States.

By highlighting the civic knowledge, skills, and dispositions that provide the foundation for an informed and engaged populace, CLW seeks to further energize the movement to prioritize civic education across the nation.

Educators

Gain and provide insight and inspiration, sharing the latest effective teaching practices and innovations, and joining in shared civic learning opportunities throughout the week.

Students

Engage in shared civic learning opportunities throughout the week with other students across the nation.

Community members

Participate in a series of events to highlight the key role different groups (e.g., business leaders, members of the military) play in ensuring high-quality civic education is accessible for each and every student across the nation.

CIVIC LEARNING WEEK - MARCH 6 - 10, 2023

Civic Learning Week 2023 gets into full swing with a live event at the National Archives in Washington, DC. The program will feature champions for civic learning and encourage a national dialogue about why civic education is needed more than ever to provide each and every person across this country with the necessary tools to engage as members of our self governing society.
