

House Bill 63 Repeal Workers' Compensation Appeals Commission

Sponsored by Representative George
Rauscher

House Bill 63

Repeals the Alaska Workers' Compensation Appeals Commission

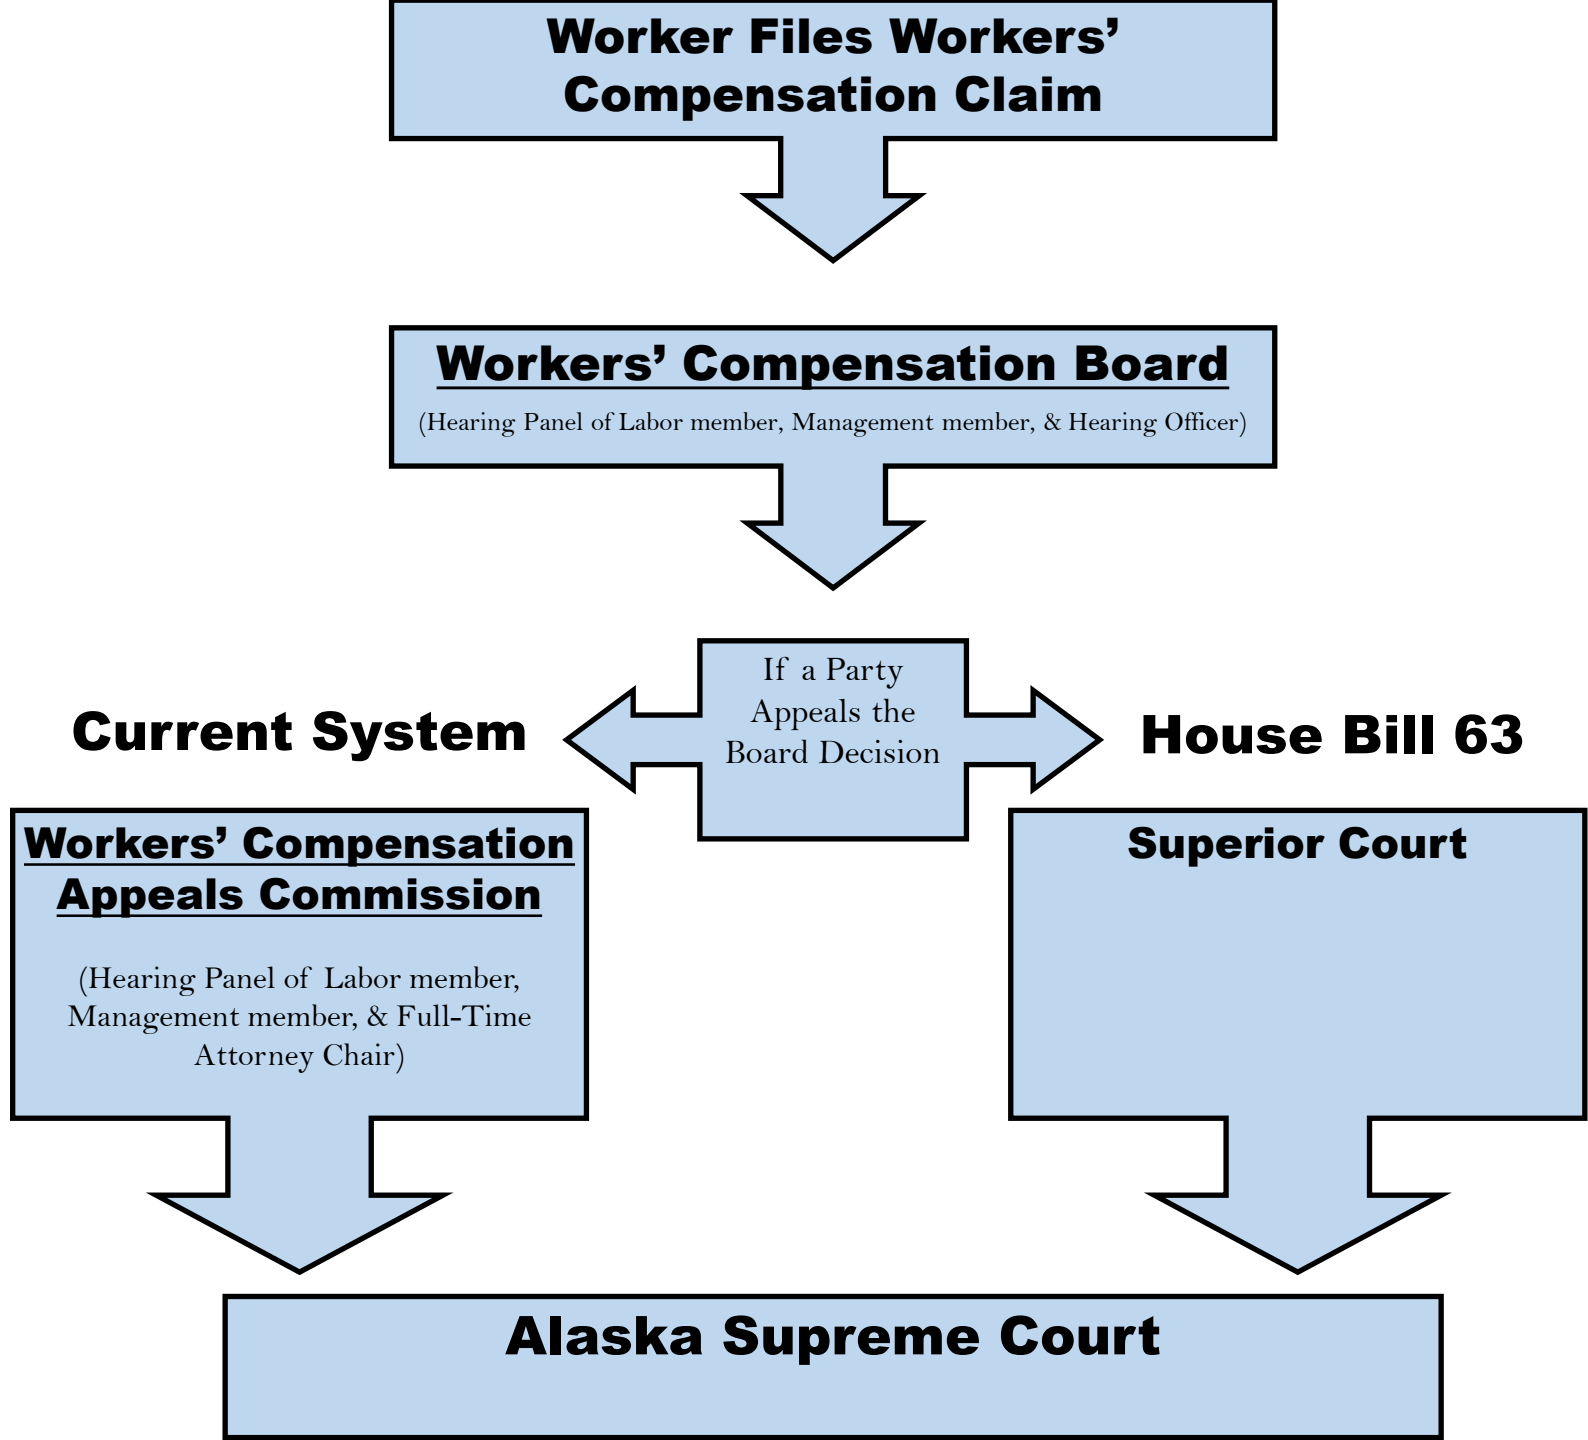

Returns jurisdiction over Workers' Compensation appeals to the Superior Court

Saves $482,400 per year

Helps fill the Workers' Compensation budget deficit and make Alaska's Workers' Compensation system more solvent

HB 63 Will
Save $482,400
Per Year

Currently the Commission has 2 full-time employees and pays for commissioners' travel and per diem

Previously, the Court System has testified that they can absorb these cases with a zero fiscal note

WCAC Workload has Fallen Dramatically

The Workers' Compensation Appeals Commission workload has declined from 49 cases filed and 42 published decisions in 2007 to 4 cases filed and 5 decisions issued in 2023.

 REPORT

FEBRUARY 25, 2015

Recommendations:

The House Finance Budget Subcommittee for the Department of Labor and Workforce Development submits an operating budget for FY2016 as follows:

Fund Group:
Unrestricted General Funds	$23,042.2
Designated General Funds	35,275.5
Other Funds	20,592.8
Federal Funds	$94,386.6
Total	$173,297.1

PFT	772
PPT	71
Temp	8

BUDGET ACTION:

The House Finance Budget Subcommittee for the Department of Labor and Workforce Development held seven meetings with the department and took the following actions:

“The Worker’s Compensation Appeals Commission is an ineffective division... The Commission during the calendar year of 2013 closed 30 cases for a closure rate of 67 percent with an average time from filing to closure of seven months. This closure rate and average time for closure is not demonstrably better than the process was before the establishment of the commission.”

House Department of Labor and Workforce Development Finance Subcommittee, February 25, 2015

The Workers' Compensation Appeals Commission Has Not Closed Cases Faster than the Courts

- The Superior Court took “8 to 18 months” to decide Workers’ Compensation Appeals.
- When the Appeals Commission was created, it was estimated that the Commission could decide cases in 6 months.
- Instead, in 2018 it averaged 12.2 months to decide cases.
- Even as their workload decreased, in 2021 they still averaged 9.3 months to decide cases.
- More Commission decisions are appealed to the Supreme Court, adding months to years before final resolution.

HB 63 Will Reduce Appeals to the Supreme Court

When the Superior Court handled appeals approximately 25% of their decisions were appealed to the Supreme Court.

Since the Commission was created in 2005, 36% of its decisions have been appealed to the Supreme Court.

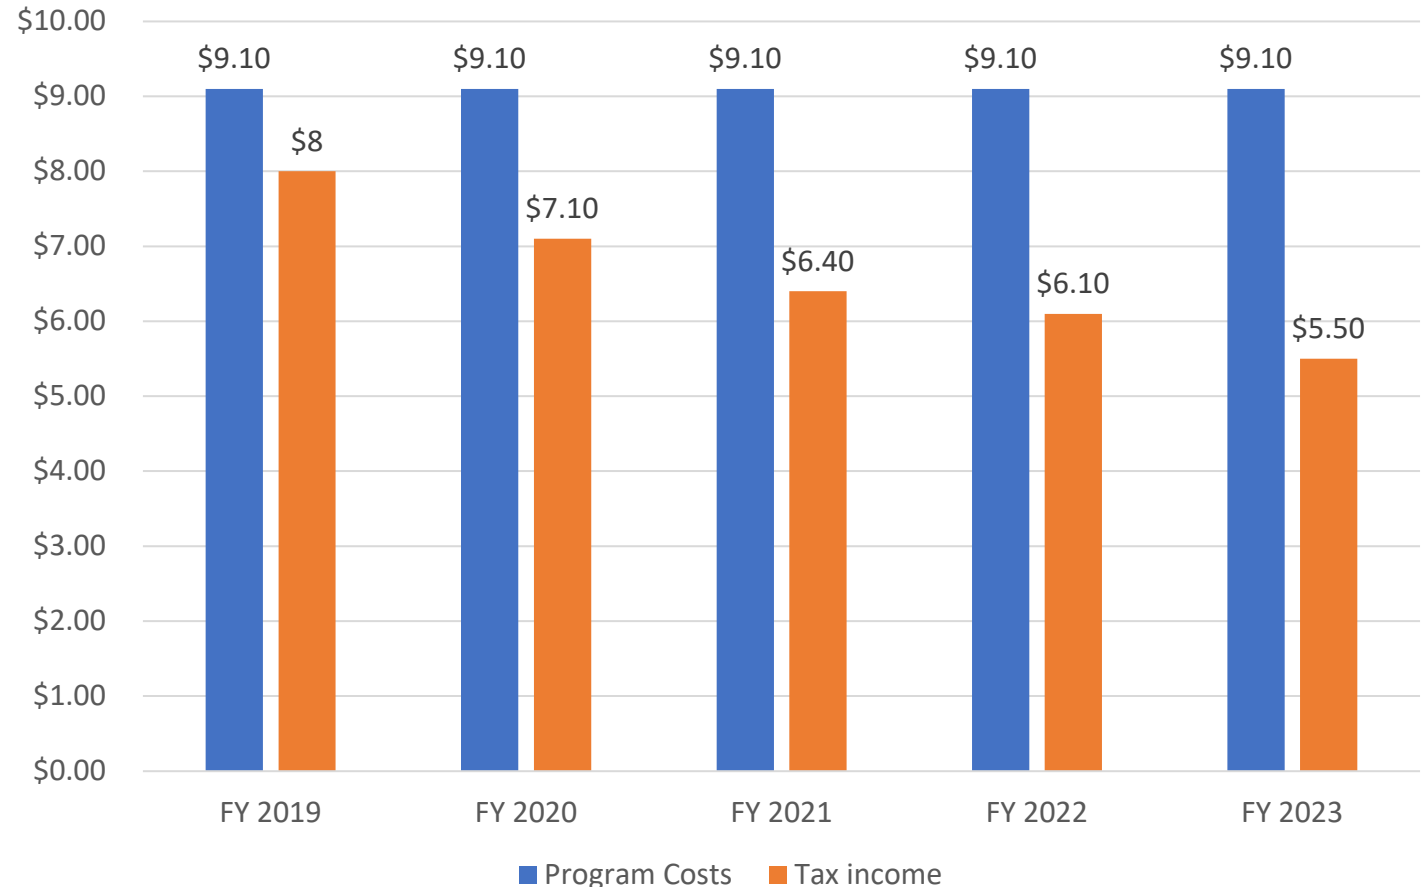

Since 2011, 50% of Commission decisions have been appealed.

Alaska's Workers' Compensation and Safety Program Faces a Growing Budget Deficit- HB 63 Will Help Fill It

- Workers' Compensation and Safety are funded by a tax on Workers' Compensation payments
- These programs cost $9.1 million annually and are projected to remain flat
- Saving $482,4000 will help close the growing budget gap.

Workers' Compensation Tax Income is Declining

Bottom Line

HB 63 saves $482,400 annually

Preserves parties' right to have their cases heard in timely manner

Will reduce appeals to the Supreme Court

Makes Alaska's Workers' Compensation system more solvent
