ANALYSIS: (Attach a separate page if necessary)

Federal law currently permits the Alaska Medicaid program to disregard the Alaska Longevity Bonus, under most circumstances, when determining client income. Under federal law, Medicaid cannot disregard the Bonus when determining eligibility for Medicaid categories that use the income standard for residents of institutions. This legislation will not change the requirement that the Alaska Medicaid program count this income when determining eligibility for these Medicaid categories. Therefore, Medical Assistance will continue to spend small amounts of funds on the ALB Hold Harmless program.
