FINDINGS AND INTENT. (a) The legislature finds that

(1) an education rich in history and government is vital to the development of a representative democracy and a civil society; knowledge of a person's own state history and government is fundamental to informed and effective participation in state and local affairs;

(2) Alaska's human history is at least 10,000 years old and reflects the diversity of Native, European, American, and Asian cultures; the study of Alaska history should be as rich as Alaska's origins and evolution as a political community, and it should take into consideration the ancient, historic, and modern interactions of Native, European, American, and Asian cultures, economies, governments, and values; every student graduating from an Alaska secondary school should do so with a demonstrable understanding of Alaska's rich and unique history;

(3) the face of Alaska is changing demographically, economically, and socially; the speed of change makes it imperative for Alaska's citizens and leaders to have a sound understanding of the state's history;

(4) a knowledge of history provides a context for understanding where Alaskans came from and what Alaskans value about the diversity and richness of the state; that knowledge can help Alaskans make decisions individually and collectively that will protect and enhance what Alaskans value both now and into the future;

(5) a civics component to an Alaska history curriculum, including how Alaska's economy and Alaska's form of government developed, is crucial to understanding how to deal with today's issues, including urban and rural cooperation and the state's fiscal challenges;

(6) an educated Alaska populace with a full appreciation for the history of Alaska will make better decisions for the good of all Alaska citizens, both rural and urban;

(7) an understanding of Alaska's history will help Alaska avoid mistakes of the past and will contribute to a prosperous, successful future for all Alaskans;

(8) Alaska schools are positioned to transmit knowledge of Alaska history to the majority of people who will inhabit Alaska in coming generations;

(9) 22 other states currently require by statute the teaching of state history;

(10) over the past decade, a number of instructional resources have become available and could be used to teach courses on Alaska and Alaska Native history.

(b) It is the intent of this Act

(1) to ensure that every future Alaska high school graduate receive instruction in Alaska history through a locally adopted curriculum that meets the state social studies standards;

(2) that Alaska school districts should receive the instructional support needed to put an Alaska history curriculum in place and to prepare teachers to maximize the effect of the curriculum;

(3) to encourage public and private involvement and support for implementation of an Alaska history curriculum;

(4) to provide for a broad based Alaska history curriculum that includes study of the state's geography, resource development, economics, government, anthropology, art, Native history, and cultural relationships.

* Sec. 2. AS 14.03.255(a) is amended to read:

(a) A charter school operates as a school in the local school district except that the charter school (1) is exempt from the local school district's textbook, program, curriculum, and scheduling requirements; (2) is exempt from AS 14.14.130(c); the principal of the charter school shall be selected by the academic policy committee and shall select, appoint, or otherwise supervise employees of the charter school; and (3) operates under the charter school's annual program budget as set out in the contract between the local school board and the charter school under (c) of this section. A local school board may exempt a charter school from other local school district requirements if the exemption is set out in the contract. A charter school is subject to secondary school competency testing as provided in AS 14.03.075 and other competency tests required by the department. A charter school is subject to Alaska history education requirements under AS 14.30.440.
