* The compromising of arrears section will result in the elimination of receivables owed to the state in favor of receiving payments against the debt. This program may provide increased revenues to the state and reduce the amount of child support debt owed. Since CSED cannot determine which individuals will use this program, we cannot project what this increase in revenue will be. The following is illustrative of the potential arrears that could be forgiven under this legislation. There are approximately 18,000 cases with a total of $250 million owed to the State of Alaska and the federal government. There are approximately 3,000 cases totalling $31 million of presently collectible debt owed to the state; these 3,000 cases have current withholding order payments each month. As written, these collectible cases are included in the forgiveness program, and the state will be giving up approximately $15.5 million of state revenues, and $15.5 million of federal revenues.
