To enhance Alaska's health and social service capabilities by expanding the contribution of faith-based and community initiatives.

MR. MERRINER described what the task force would need to do to accomplish its mission. He stated that the task force has agreed on four main measures; they are as follows:

1. Develop and help launch innovative ideas for increasing the contribution of faith-based and community initiatives.
2. Foster partnerships between and among government agencies and faith-based and community organizations.
3. Identify and work to eliminate barriers that hinder faith-based and community initiatives.
4. Promote the expansion of volunteerism and highlight outstanding examples of neighbors helping neighbors.

Those areas are: housing, personalized care and services, and relational support. Mr. Buttane explained further how the task force could help people in those areas.
