WOODIE - TALKING POINTS

SMALL MUNICIPALITY ENERGY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

This amendment proposes funding the SMEAP program proposed by the governor. This item was deleted from SB232 in Senate Finance.

The SMEAP program provides small municipalities grants for the repayment of any indebtedness to the bulk fuel revolving loan fund and for the purchase of fuel.

- Municipalities are doing what the legislature has encouraged them to do. They are organized and able to collect taxes, and they're providing their own services. They, like the state, are encountering problems with skyrocketing fuel costs. The main difference is these small municipalities are unable to keep up with that rising fuel cost and have been forced to cut back on services they used to provide.
- When the price of oil increases, the state makes more money. When the price of oil increases, these small municipalities are taking on more expense. There seems to be a major disconnect here – everyone should be able to share in the good fortune the state reaps on these high prices.
- Why the cutoff at 2,500? No reason other than small municipalities are less likely to be able to deal with high fuel costs than larger ones. The impacts to the services they are able to provide will be greater. A large number of these municipalities are also located in areas where the price of fuel is huge in relation to the price of fuel in Anchorage or Fairbanks.
