ANALYSIS: (Attach a separate page if necessary)

This bill makes various amendments throughout statute to increase the penalty for a violation to $750. It also reclasses certain offenses as violations. In some cases the change represents an increase from a previous statutory level (frequently $500), in some cases a fine would be imposed where one had not been. Even in the latter instance, it is unlikely that we will experience increases in the amount of time spent on prosecution because offenders choose to contest the higher or new fine. As a result we are not anticipating a fiscal impact to the Department of Law if this legislation passes.
