ANALYSIS: (Attach a separate page if necessary)

This bill establishes controls for marriage brokers (persons who offer services regarding marriage, dating, or other social referrals). The bill requires clients (persons who live in Alaska who contract with or employ brokers) to provide brokers information about the client's criminal, domestic violence protective order, and marital history. The broker must also provide to recruits (persons who live outside the United States) information in their native languages about client history, immigration, domestic violence, emergency assistance, and rights of crime victims. A broker's failure to comply may result in a civil action with substantial monetary penalties. Unfortunately, the provisions regarding obtaining the client's criminal justice history information - new subsection AS 08.02.100(b) - cannot be complied with by the Department of Public Safety because the provisions regarding access to national criminal history records do not comport with state and federal law. There would therefore be no fiscal impact on the department.
