ANALYSIS: (Attach a separate page if necessary)

The cost is indeterminate. Since 2000, the Army National Guard (ANG) has been utilized four times: once in 2002, twice in 2004, and once in 2007. The only impact may be to the Fire Suppression Activity Component when ANG Units are involved in the actual suppression of wildland fires. The use of ANG resources on wildland fires has been and will continue to be highly variable as it is based on factors that cannot be easily predicted such as: severity of the fire season, availability of other resources, and the unavailability of ANG units due to deployment elsewhere in the world. Identification of costs is dependent on unpredictable factors including availability of civilian resources, Guard module configurations to meet specific wildland fire situations, and industry availability of private sector equipment contracts such as helicopters.
