The drafting of statutory short titles is discussed in this chapter under the heading "SHORT TITLE (CODIFIED)."

(b) Statement of purpose or intent

The purpose or intent of a bill should be clear in the body of the bill or expressed in a letter of intent or other legislative history so that a general provision setting out the purpose or legislative intent of the bill should be unnecessary.

It is bad practice to attempt to make up for poor drafting by adding a purpose section to a bill. A carefully drawn statement of purpose may be helpful in setting standards for an administrative agency. However, a drafter should include those standards as part of the substantive law being amended rather than relying on a general statement of purpose. A statement of purpose might also help a court understand the legislature's intent in passing a bill when a court is called on to interpret that intent. But, again, the intent should be made clear in the body of the bill so that a general statement of purpose is unnecessary. As a result, separate statements of intent in the codified or uncoded statute are to be actively discouraged.

When a purpose section is necessary, it should be drafted as a temporary law provision that precedes the body of the bill. Only when a statement of purpose is absolutely necessary to explain or otherwise place in context codified provisions of the law should the section be drafted as codified law. Even then, it is generally preferable to enact the purpose provision as temporary law and rely on cross-references and other notes in the Alaska Statutes to inform interested persons of the purpose.

(c) Legislative findings

Although legislative findings relevant to the need for a bill are presumably contained in the record of committee hearings and debate on the bill, there are some instances in which the findings are deemed necessary and should be set out in the bill and enacted as a part of the bill. This may be particularly true if the bill proposes to enact law that is likely to be challenged on constitutional grounds. The findings enacted as a part of that law may provide justification for upholding the validity of the law. The drafter should work closely with the requester to ensure that the legislative history of the bill, particularly the record of the committee hearings, provides a basis for the findings. In cases where the findings are not necessary for placement in the bill text, the drafter should work closely with the requestor to prepare intent text that can be specifically entered into the legislative history of the bill, particularly the record of the committee hearings.

Findings are often combined with statements of purpose, set out as a separate subsection within the first section of a bill. As mentioned in connection with statements of purpose, it is important that the findings not be used to make up for poor drafting or to close gaps in the substantive provisions of the bill.

CHAPTER 2

AN ACT RELATING TO CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE, CRIMINAL SENTENCES, AND PROBATION AND PAROLE; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

CCS SB 56

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Alaska

* Section 1. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is ended by adding a new section to read:

LEGISLATIVE INTENT. It is the intent of the legislature in passing this Act to preserve the basic structure of Alaska's presumptive sentencing system, which is designed to avoid disparate sentences. With this Act, the legislature sets out a sentencing framework, subject to judicial adjustment for statutory aggravating or mitigating factors that are determined in a manner that is constitutional under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Blakely v. Washington. The single, definite presumptive terms set out in current law can unduly constrain the sentencing process, particularly under the mandates of Blakely v. Washington. Although the presumptive terms are being replaced by presumptive ranges, it is not the intent of this Act in doing so to bring about an overall increase in the amount of active imprisonment for felony sentences. Rather, this Act is intended to give judges the authority to impose an appropriate sentence, with an appropriate amount of probation supervision, by taking into account the consideration set out in AS 12.55.005 and 12.55.015.

Sections 2-32. Permanent law. See Table of Disposition of Acts.

* Sec. 33. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section to read:

APPLICABILITY. Sections 2, 5, 26, and 29 – 31 of this Act apply to offenses committed before, on, or after March 23, 2005. Sections 3, 4, 6 – 25, 27, and 28 of this Act apply to offenses committed on or after March 23, 2005. References to prior offenses or convictions in secs. 8 – 21 of this Act include offenses committed before, on, or after March 23, 2005.

* Sec. 34. This Act takes effect immediately under AS 01.10.070(c).

(2) with intent to place another person in fear of death or serious physical injury to the person or the person's family member makes repeated threats to cause death or serious physical injury to another person;

(3) while being 18 years of age or older, knowingly causes physical injury to a child under 16 years of age but at least 10 years of age and the injury reasonably requires medical treatment;

(4) with criminal negligence causes serious physical injury under AS 11.81.900(b)(56)(B) to another person by means of a dangerous instrument; or

(C) AS 11.41.260 or 11.41.270;

(D) AS 11.41.410, 11.41.420, or 11.41.425(a)(1); or

(E) a law or ordinance of this or another jurisdiction with elements similar to those of an offense described in (A) — (D) of this paragraph.

(b) In a prosecution under (a)(3) of this section, it is an affirmative defense that, at the time of the alleged offense, the defendant reasonably believed the victim to be 16 years of age or older, unless the victim was under 13 years of age at the time of the alleged offense.

(c) In (a)(5) of this section, when considering whether a conviction has occurred in the preceding 10 years, the date that sentence is imposed is the date that a previous conviction has occurred.

(d) In this section, "the person's family member" means

(1) a spouse, child, grandchild, parent, grandparent, sibling, uncle, aunt, nephew, or niece, of the person, whether related by blood, marriage, or adoption;

(2) a person who lives or has lived, in a spousal relationship with the person;

In 2005, in (a)(4), "AS 11.81.900(b)(56)(B)" was substituted for "AS 11.81.900(b)(55)(B)" to reflect the 2005 renumbering of paragraphs in AS 11.81.900(b). Subsection (c) was enacted as (e); relettered in 2008, at which time subsections (c) and (d) were relettered as (d) and (e).

Cross references. — For statement of legislative intent relating to the application of the penalty imposed under (a)(5) of this section by the Department of Law and the courts, see § 1, ch. 96, SLA 2008, in the 2008 Temporary and Special Acts.

Effect of amendments. — The 2004 amendment, effective July 1, 2004, added paragraph (a)(4), and made related changes.

The 2005 amendment, effective July 14, 2005, in item (a)(1)(C)(i) substituted the language beginning "would cause a" to the end of the item for "reasonably requires medical treatment."

The 2008 amendment, effective September 14, 2008, added paragraph (a)(5) and added subsection (c).

Editor's notes. — Section 32(a), ch. 124, SLA 2004, provides that the 2004 amendment of (a) of this section applies "to offenses committed on or after July 1, 2004."

(b) In a prosecution for failure to register as a sex offender or child kidnapper in the second degree under (a) of this section, it is an affirmative defense that

(1) unforeseeable circumstances, outside the control of the person, prevented the person from registering under (a)(3)(A) of this section or filing or supplying the written notices, verification, and other information required under (a)(3)(B) — (D) of this section;

(2) the person contacted the Department of Public Safety orally and in writing immediately upon being able to perform the requirements described in this section.

Editor's notes. — Section 21(a), ch. 18, SLA 2010, provides that the 2010 reenactment of this section applies to offenses committed on or after July 1, 2010. Section 20, ch. 18, SLA 2010, sets out the following legislative statement concerning the culpable mental state required to be proven under this section: "In AS 11.56.840(a), . . . the only culpable mental state required to be proven by the prosecution is the 'knowing' requirement in paragraph (2) of that subsection. No other culpable mental state needs to be proven for the other elements of that offense."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality. — For discussion of whether the sanction of the Registration Act, ch. 41, SLA 1994, entails an affirmative disability or restraint, whether the sanction has historically been regarded as punitive, whether the sanction depends upon a finding of scienter, whether the sanction will operate to promote traditional punishment objectives, whether the sanction applies to behavior which is already a crime, whether there is an alternative non-punitive purpose for the sanction, and whether the sanction is excessive in relation to the alternative purpose, see Rowe v. Burton, 884 F. Supp. 1372 (D. Alaska 1994), reversed on other grounds, sub nom., Doe v. Otte, 248 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2001).

The Registration Act, ch. 41, SLA 1994, is likely to violate the prohibition on ex post facto legislation, because the law includes a provision providing for public dissemination of information concerning sex offenders whose convictions antedate the Registration Act. Rowe v. Burton, 884 F. Supp. 1372 (D. Alaska 1994), reversed on other grounds, sub nom., Doe v. Otte, 248 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2001).

Because the Registration Act, ch. 41, SLA 1994, is likely penal in nature because of the provision for public dissemination of information, plaintiffs, who pled no contest to sex offenses pursuant to plea bargains that did not include any duty to register, are likely to prevail on claims for violation of the plea agreements and due process. Rowe v. Burton, 884 F. Supp. 1372 (D. Alaska 1994), reversed on other grounds, sub nom., Doe v. Otte, 248 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2001).

Sex offenders required to register with police authorities were not likely to prevail on their assertion that the Registration Act, ch. 41, SLA 1994, and specifically the requirement to submit oneself to the state troopers or local police for photographs and fingerprinting, was an unreasonable search or seizure. Rowe v. Burton, 884 F. Supp. 1372 (D. Alaska 1994), reversed on other grounds, sub nom., Doe v. Otte, 248 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2001).

Sex offenders required to register with police authorities do not appear to be able to establish a reasonable expectation of privacy in the information required to be disclosed by the Registration Act, ch. 41, SLA 1994. Rowe v. Burton, 884 F. Supp. 1372 (D. Alaska 1994), reversed on other grounds, sub nom., Doe v. Otte, 248 F.3d 832 (9th Cir. 2001).

Memorandum

TO: Representative Max Gruenberg
FROM: Chuck Burnham and Susan Haymes, Legislative Analysts
DATE: April 7, 2011
RE: Legislation Placing Intent Language in the Uncodified Laws of the State of Alaska, 2007-2010
LRS Report 11.260

You asked us to compile a list of enacted legislation from the 25th and 26th Legislatures that placed intent language in the Uncodified Laws of Alaska. You were particularly interested in such legislation that added to or amended sections of Statute Title 12.

Using the Alecsys Infobases database of Alaska Session Laws, we located a total of 27 enacted pieces of legislation from the 25th and 26th Alaska Legislatures that placed intent language in the Uncodified Laws of Alaska. We list the relevant session laws, original bill numbers, and titles associated with this legislation in the attached table.

None of the 27 laws we located impacted Title 12. Expanding the years of our search, however, we identified Ch 2 SLA 2005, which made numerous changes to sentences of imprisonment and criminal procedure in AS 12.55. Section 1 of that session law reads as follows:

* Section 1. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is ended by adding a new section to read:

LEGISLATIVE INTENT. It is the intent of the legislature in passing this Act to preserve the basic structure of Alaska's presumptive sentencing system, which is designed to avoid disparate sentences. With this Act, the legislature sets out a sentencing framework, subject to judicial adjustment for statutory aggravating or mitigating factors that are determined in a manner that is constitutional under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Blakely v. Washington. The single, definite presumptive terms set out in current law can unduly constrain the sentencing process, particularly under the mandates of Blakely v. Washington. Although the presumptive terms are being replaced by presumptive ranges, it is not the intent of this Act in doing so to bring about an overall increase in the amount of active imprisonment for felony sentences. Rather, this Act is intended to give judges the authority to impose an appropriate sentence, with an appropriate amount of probation supervision, by taking into account the consideration set out in AS 12.55.005 and 12.55.015.

We reviewed the print and electronic version of the sections of AS 12.55 effected by Ch 2 SLA 2005, and the notes and annotations to those sections, but found no reference to the intent language above. We include, as Attachment A, a copy of the sections of the session law in question that were placed in the Uncodified Laws of Alaska, as they appear in the Alaska Statutes Temporary and Special Acts and Resolves for 2005.

We hope this is helpful. If you have questions or need additional information, please let us know.

CHAPTER 2

AN ACT RELATING TO CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE, CRIMINAL SENTENCES, AND PROBATION AND PAROLE; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

CCS SB 56

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Alaska

* Section 1. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is ended by adding a new section to read:

LEGISLATIVE INTENT. It is the intent of the legislature in passing this Act to preserve the basic structure of Alaska's presumptive sentencing system, which is designed to avoid disparate sentences. With this Act, the legislature sets out a sentencing framework, subject to judicial adjustment for statutory aggravating or mitigating factors that are determined in a manner that is constitutional under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Blakely v. Washington. The single, definite presumptive terms set out in current law can unduly constrain the sentencing process, particularly under the mandates of Blakely v. Washington. Although the presumptive terms are being replaced by presumptive ranges, it is not the intent of this Act in doing so to bring about an overall increase in the amount of active imprisonment for felony sentences. Rather, this Act is intended to give judges the authority to impose an appropriate sentence, with an appropriate amount of probation supervision, by taking into account the consideration set out in AS 12.55.005 and 12.55.015.

Sections 2-32. Permanent law. See Table of Disposition of Acts.

* Sec. 33. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section to read:

Sections 3, 4, 6 – 25, 27, and 28 of this Act apply to offenses committed on or after March 23, 2005. References to prior offenses or convictions in secs. 8 – 21 of this Act include offenses committed before, on, or after March 23, 2005.

* Sec. 34. This Act takes effect immediately under AS 01.10.070(c).
