FISCAL NOTE #1

STATE OF ALASKA
2012 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. HB 274

Analysis

HB 274 amends Alaska’s Consumer Protection Act (“CPA”) by removing the exemption for conduct regulated and prohibited by federal law. Currently, the CPA does not apply to any conduct that is regulated and prohibited by state or federal law. The State of Alaska can control enforcement of state law, but is powerless to control the enforcement by federal regulators. Thus, the state cannot take enforcement action against a CPA violator if the conduct is “regulated” and “prohibited” under any federal statute or regulation, even if that conduct is not preempted by federal law. This bill would remove the exemption for conduct regulated by federal law, and would allow the state to pursue CPA violations as long as the conduct is not (1) regulated and prohibited by state law, or (2) preempted by federal law.

We anticipate no fiscal impact to the Department of Law from this bill.
