Analysis

Passage of this legislation will have potential impact on the Department of Corrections, specifically in the Division of Probation & Parole, as they would be responsible for providing written notification to the person receiving restored rights to vote as well as notification to the Division of Elections. This would create a significant increase in workload to DOC. In 2008 the Department of Corrections released 1,732 individuals on parole and 6,708 individuals on probation. In 2009 the Department of Corrections released 1,939 individuals on parole and 6,747 on probation. The number of individuals released from incarceration annually is significant.
