FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2018 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

This legislation would allow certain fish and game offenses to be charged as violations rather than misdemeanors, reducing penalties. The legislation allows the state to increase restitution amounts from resource users who fail to obtain a hunting or fishing license, and potentially increase the criminal fines for certain offenses.

The Department of Administration, Division of Shared Services (SSoA), now has responsibility for non-restitution collections for the State of Alaska. Fines collected are deposited into the General Fund (GF) as Undesignated General Funds (UGF).

The Court system does not distinguish between types of criminal fines; therefore, SSoA cannot determine whether the fines they collect were levied for violations outlined in this legislation. SSoA cannot predict the amount of fines that may be collected in the future, nor what percentage of those fines may result from violations outlined in this legislation. The agency submits an indeterminate fiscal note.
