FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2022 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

Division of Public Assistance

This bill excludes as income for Adult Public Assistance and Senior Benefits, and payment assistance for the Alaska Pioneer Homes an interest in a settlement trust or an amount distributed from or benefit provided by a settlement trust to an Alaska Native individual, or descendant of an Alaska Native individual, who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual if permitted by the Social Security Act and applicable statutes and regulations.

Current division policy is consistent with 42 U.S.C. [SEC.] 1382a(b) regarding the counting of income “not equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1382 of this title and such individual meets all other non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this subchapter” and does not exclude the income specified in the proposed legislation.

In the event of regulatory changes at the federal level, the department would amend its Medicaid State Plan regarding the permissibility of Native Alaskan settlement interest and benefits and adjust allocations to the nursing home category as needed.

Current division policies follow and are consistent with the applicable U.S. Code of Federal Regulations. If SB 184 becomes law and the federal regulations change, Adult Public Assistance would not count payments from a settlement trust as income. All settlement interest payments made to an interest bearing trust account would be disregarded when making the cost-of-care determination.

As a result of not counting interest or benefits from settlement claims as income, more Native Alaskans with old age and disabilities could qualify for and maintain Adult Public Assistance, Medicaid and nursing home Medicaid, and Senior Benefits. However, this does not appear to have substantial impact because these funds are not countable as resources currently. Research into the affected population might not be reliable because distributions vary.

The division will explore potential impacts to Adult Public Assistance and Medicaid applicants and recipients as more information becomes available, particularly the potential impact on recipients of Supplemental Security Income who are subject to Social Security Administration rules regarding the counting of income.
