FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2022 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. 29

Analysis

This legislation redefines sex trafficking 1, 2, and 3 by making the definition more inclusive. While this change could potentially increase the inmate population, based on historical data, it is rare anyone is placed under DOC custody for this offense (less than one remand a year on average). The projected impact on the prison population is expected to be minimal with no fiscal impacts.

This bill adds AS 11.41.360(a), which makes human sex trafficking 1 an unclassified felony. Any conviction under this offense will most likely result in increased length of stay, however, it is an uncommon offense within the department's current data. Additionally, it will take at least 2 years before an impact can be measured since it is increasing the current length of sentence. The projected impact on the prison population is expected to be minimal with no fiscal impacts.

This legislation also adds more situations under which someone can be convicted of human trafficking in the second degree. This could potentially increase the number of people convicted under this offense, however, it is an uncommon offense when counting the number of remands and convictions based on the current available data. The projected impact on the prison population is expected to be minimal with no fiscal impacts.

Lastly, this bill adds human trafficking in the third degree, which could potentially increase the prison population but it is anticipated this will be an uncommon offense with respect to remands and convictions. The projected impact on the prison population is expected to be minimal with no fiscal impacts.

While it is expected that this legislation may increase the daily offender population, based on the current data available, any increase is expected to be minimal and can be absorbed within the department's existing resources and capacity.
