FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2022 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

The Alaska Food Freedom Act would exempt the production of "homemade" food items from most state regulations. This will also exempt the inclusion of marijuana and industrial hemp products, as well as other "high risk" ingredients and processes.

The Division of Agriculture has jurisdiction over a small part of the actions allowed under the bill that will require some amount of staff time to respond to the public, and likely significant staff time working with the Department of Environmental Conservation's food service program; therefore, the fiscal note is indeterminate.
