FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2023 LEGISLATIVE SESSIONAnalysis

This fiscal note details the anticipated Division of Retirement & Benefits (Division) operational fiscal impacts associated with this bill. The Division also anticipates a fiscal impact to claim and program costs for the AlaskaCare employee plan, however that impact requires an actuarial analysis and will be discussed in a separate fiscal note.

This bill would enable governmental units (school districts, municipalities, the University of Alaska, other political subdivisions, and the North Pacific Fishery Management Council) to join in self-insured group health insurance plans administered by the Department of Administration for State employees. This type of health coverage is currently provided to State employees through the AlaskaCare health plans.

The Division will require three permanent employees, two Retirement and Benefits Technician 2 positions and one Retirement and Benefits Specialist 2 (personal services) plus computer, phone, cubicle, supplies (commodities) to provide billing and accounts-receivable support services to manage enrollment, eligibility, and employee premium and employer contribution payments from participating governmental units. These positions should begin in mid FY2024.

The Division will incur costs related to required system coding changes (both internal Division systems and third-party contracted partners), contracted actuarial consultants, and support from the Department of Law for legal and regulatory review (services). These costs are anticipated to largely accrue during the first two fiscal years, however some consulting services will be ongoing.

The Department would need to promulgate regulations as a result of the passage of this bill. These regulations should be in place by the effective date of the bill (July 1, 2024), as they will articulate the process and protocol for governmental units seeking to join the AlaskaCare employee health plan.
