FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2024 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

Employers in Alaska are required to pay wages or other compensation for services through check, money order, or through direct deposit into a bank, savings and loan, or credit union. This legislation amends the list of acceptable payment methods to include bank cards, and includes provisions to limit fees for use of bank cards or to check an account balance by the employee.

The division currently investigates all claims of wage theft, loss, or mishandling and does not anticipate an increase in cost to the division as a result of this legislation.
