FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2025 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

This bill amends and eliminates some statutes related to Deferred Deposit Advance (DDA) loans, known as "payday loans," and moves those loans to be a loan type under AS 06.20, the Alaska Small Loans Act. The legislation change significantly reduces the interest rate that can be charged on DDA loans.

As of January 1, 2025, the Division of Banking and Securities currently has 13 active DDA licensees: seven companies, three branches, one mobile application, and two websites. These licenses have a bi-annual renewal fee of $3,000. If this legislation is adopted, the division anticipates a reduction in revenue of $39,000 bi-annually or $19,500 annually. Some DDA licensees may choose to apply for licensure under the Alaska Small Loans Act, which has an annual renewal fee of $1,000. Those potential revenues are not included in this fiscal note as they cannot be determined at this time.

The Division of Banking and Securities anticipates a minor regulations package should this legislation pass. These costs will be absorbed in the division's FY2026 budget, which includes planned Department of Law costs.
