III. ANALYSIS (See Fiscal Note Preparation Instructions, Section III)

HJR 70 and HCR 132 direct the Department to participate in a joint study with the U.S. Public Health Service and the Alaska Department of Health and Social Services to resolve the sewage and solid waste disposal problems at Bethel and Barrow. The cost of participating in the requisite studies will include manpower and travel costs which can be borne out of the Department's normal operating budget, therefore, the Department will require no additional funds to conduct the study. The capital costs to implement the findings, once the study is completed, could conceivably exceed $50,000,000. However, the federal government and to some extent local government will undoubtedly share in these costs. Therefore, we cannot estimate the eventual impact on the State for capital construction
