III. ANALYSIS (See Fiscal Note Preparation Instructions, Section III)

The Committee Substitute, by providing for a small, state-wide competition instead of 4 regional ones, saves considerable funds. In addition, preliminary contact with the Anchorage Historical and Fine Arts Museum indicates that they are interested in working with the State Museum cooperatively in expanding the scope of their annual Alaska Festival of Native Arts. The primary costs to the state would be preparator of the selected entries for travel, and transporting them for exhibition in other areas of the state, thereby bringing outstanding examples of Native Arts to attention outside the original region. Also travel costs for the judges would be a state responsibility.
