SENATE BILL No. _____

PAGE: _____

LINE: _____

Adopt proposed CS
As attached with these changes:

line 22: delete [a] and add an "s" to publication line 24: delete [that] and insert "those" and add an "s" to publication.

line 26: add an "s" to publication.

Since many of our publications serve the joint purpose of informing the Governor, the Legislature, the public, and complying with Freedom of Information regulations, this bill leaves the status of reports regarding our programs and problems in limbo as to numbers of documents produced and use of color in their production. A document that sits on a shelf does no one any good.

POSITION PAPER

HB 792

Department of Commerce & Economic Development

Several of the divisions of the Department of Commerce and Economic Development have an ongoing need to communicate with the general public as part of their normal function and to use color reprographic materials as a working tool to accomplish the goals and objectives of the organization.

The printing requirements of these divisions will involve the placement of brochures, booklets, maps, technical data, reports and other informational formats before both the public and private sectors on both a national and international basis where they will be subjected to a most competitive environment. Division effectiveness with this printed material will be measured by the success or failure of developing or maintaining jobs within Alaska, by the sale of Alaskan products, the ability to attract new business ventures, gains or losses in revenue, or simply the ability to maintain or alter an image that is associated with Alaska.

For the programs of the Department of Commerce and Economic Development to be restricted in the use of color reprographic materials as proposed in HB 792 would severely hinder the efforts of the department that have a justifiable need for the use of color.

The Department of Commerce and Economic Development strongly supports the concept of justifiable use of color in department informational materials. Accountability for the expenditure of funds for multi-color materials should rest at the director level within the organization.

Within the department the use of color by the Alaska Division of Tourism is essential to the State tourism program and to consider promotion of the State with noncolor brochures, booklets, posters, and pamphlets would spell disaster for the second largest industry of Alaska. In the marketplace color is required if program effectiveness is to be realized. It should also be noted that flexibility must also be available to the division in order to respond on short notice to changing market situations regarding a format or presentation that will be placed in the hands of potential visitors to Alaska.

Another limitation that would be placed on the Alaska visitor industry would be the use of color in community brochures. Most of the Alaskan communities that have applied for matching funds from the tourism development grant funds have used color in their local brochures.

It is essential that full consideration be given to the total ramifications of the proposed legislation that would severely impact the economic development of the State of Alaska if the bill was to remain as written.

CS for Short analysis of HB 792

Section 1(a) would prohibit the publication of more than a minimum number of copies of a report to the legislature or the governor, and would prohibit use of color in a report to the legislature or governor. What is meant by "a minimum number" is not specified, and could technically be as low as three, one for the Senate president, one for the Speaker of the House, and one for the governor. More appropriately, the minimum number would fall somewhere between 62 and 100, allowing for file copies. The main idea behind the term "minimum number" is to keep the volume low.

Section 1(b) requires the personal approval of the head of the agency or department as well as that of the governor before state money may be spent on color in a publication that is not a report to the legislature or governor. Because all funds disbursed from the state treasury must be allocated to specific executive departments, even though the publication may be purchased by a quasi-governmental agency or a designated grant recipient, the head of the department can, and must, have final approval authority over the use of color.

Section 1(c) requires that publications using color must be identified and recommended by the Governor in his budget request. Currently, costs of publishing reports are buried within contracts, subcontracts and other budgetary wizardry. One of the basic problems in researching these costs was that nobody within the departments could figure out where to find the figures.

The main thought here is that if everybody concerned is made more aware of the actual costs of publications, those costs can be evaluated in real terms of need or appropriateness.

RE: State publications involving the use of multi-colored printing
Research Request #81-86

In attempting to locate State publications with multi-colored printing, we contacted a number of State departments, (as discussed in our last memorandum) and a search was made of the State documents sections of both the State and Legislative libraries. Listed below are State publications we were able to locate that involved the use of multi-colored printing. Printing costs, quantity and printer (when known) are listed, as well as the department that produced the document. Samples of documents which we have received to date are attached. When we receive the other samples, we will send them to you.

*This report was the result of a consulting contract. All writing, graphics and photographs were included in the $1,500 fee. N.W. Regional Laboratories is a non-profit organization.

Geophysical Institute Annual Report (UNIVERSITY OF ALASKA)	$11,194	2,200	Graphics Art Center, Portland, Or.

We did not include all multi-colored publications by the University of Alaska, but rather chose these two as samples. If you would like us to attempt to identify all multi-colored University publications, please let us know.

While it is likely that we did not identify all multi-colored publications for FY 80 or later, it did not appear that there were many State
