(CSHB 89)

TO: Representative Mitchell E. Abood, Jr.
Chairman, House State Affairs Committee
Attn: Carol Horos

FROM: Thomas A. Sofo L-TAS

At the request of the committee, I have changed the effective date of this bill to July 1, 1983. It is my understanding that the Department of Revenue requested that the effective date be changed from January 1, 1983, so that they may be able to process the applications of people taking the tax credit for the calendar year of 1982.

Since most tax laws are based on the calendar year, it is typically advisable to repeal them in full year increments. The goal of the Department of Revenue could be accomplished by a simple temporary law section which merely stated that the department shall process applications for tax credits for calendar year 1982 up to July 1, 1983. Instead, the committee has opened the door for people to claim tax credits for the first half of the calendar year 1983. There is nothing inherently wrong with this choice, but this memo has been prepared to point out that the mechanism which the committee has chosen unnecessarily extends the tax credits for an additional six months when we could address the problem another way.

I suspect the department has the inherent authority to wind up a program such as this without necessarily addressing the point by statute. However, if the committee feels that an explicit grant of authority is necessary, the method which was chosen seems unnecessarily broad.

SUBJECT: HCR 13 - Extending the Life of the Blue Ribbon Commission

The Alaska State Legislature created the Blue Ribbon Commission on the State Personnel Act in 1978 and directed it to review the personnel system and make recommendations to improve it. Since then, the commission has worked on the issues it has identified, sponsoring legislation, making recommendations to appropriate state agencies and reporting its progress to the legislature each year.

In its first year, the commission studied the temporary employee issue extensively and sponsored a bill creating the nonpermanent employee system. The bill intended to curb the administrative practice of using temporary state employees to evade departmental accountability and mask poor planning. The legislation became effective on January 1, 1980.

The commission continued to address personnel issues and also addressed issues in collective bargaining during its second year. It studied and made recommendations to the Division of Personnel concerning the state's application process, testing practices, and identified and began discussion of problems which it was not able to act on because of time constraints. In its third year, the commission sponsored a comprehensive revision of the State Personnel Act as well as several other pieces of legislation in the personnel and retirement areas. The revision of the State Personnel Act became effective in 1982.

The commission reviewed the state's practices on employment of women and minorities during its fourth year. It recommended that a local hiring preference system be implemented particularly for state government positions in rural Alaska. It identified administrative changes to address issues presented to it and made recommendations to the Governor and to the Department of Administration. The legislature extended the existence of the commission until June 30, 1983, so that it could continue to perform the assignments made to it.

During the past year, the commission has considered a variety of issues and topics which were identified in public testimony and inquiries. It has sponsored legislation this session addressing seven of these issues, including amending the nepotism statute to provide statutory authorization for the current Personnel Rule, proposing a system of legislative review of labor agreements between the state and employee unions and associations, addressing issues in the retirement statutes, creating and protecting the state's interests in the discoveries and inventions of its employees when they are job-related, and resolving issues in the personnel system.

The commission is composed of representatives from groups and persons most concerned about the state personnel system. In addition to legislators, the membership includes representatives from the unions and associations representing state employees, from the Department of Administration and the Division of Personnel, from the Ombudsman, other state agencies and the public. The breadth of expertise insures that a diversity of viewpoints is heard on the issues raised before the commission.

The commission has been unable to resolve all the questions it has considered. It therefore requests that the legislature authorize the Blue Ribbon Commission on the State Personnel Act to continue to perform the assignments delegated to it through June 30, 1984.
