March 13, 1984

This bill was requested to prescribe the rights, at death, of a married person who has community property acquired prior to a change in domicile to Alaska, or which is traceable to community property, where the spouses have not indicated an intention that their community rights be severed.

The Act codifies what the Code Revision Commission believes is now common law in Alaska. The Act should help eliminate the necessity of stating that common law through litigation, thus saving private parties some litigation expense and reducing court costs. Because the bill deals only with private estate interests, it will not have a fiscal impact on state government operations, other than slightly reducing crowded court calendars.
