Juvenile Offender Proceedings

It has been proven that early intervention has been effective in altering a juvenile's criminal behavior. However, since the current juvenile justice system is overburdened with serious offenders many juveniles who commit less serious offenses receive no meaningful consequences until they commit more serious crimes.

SB 270 provides municipalities the ability to respond to less serious juvenile offenders by expanding its jurisdiction to include the ability to subject juveniles, who commit less serious crimes, to civil infractions and/or mediation.

This measure also grants the courts more flexibility when considering standard bail and sentencing factors. The courts will be permitted to consider such factors as what is best for the public, the degree of dangerousness of the offender, or the offender's likelihood to re-offend, as well as the best interests of the juvenile.

This will provide the courts the latitude necessary to make the appropriate decision when the interests of the public differs from the best interest of the juvenile.

Thank you for your consideration of this legislation.

Re: S.B. 270

Dear Senator Halford:

Thank you for sponsoring S. B. 270, "An Act relating to juveniles, relating to the jurisdiction of juvenile courts; relating to the release of juveniles; and relating to records concerning juveniles."

This bill offers important reform to the way in which juvenile criminal activity is addressed.

Attached are issue summaries supporting the need for the proposed changes.

Thank you again for sponsoring this legislation. If we can offer further information, please let me know.

Sincerely,

MUNICIPALITY OF ANCHORAGE
PUBLIC SAFETY PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM
LEGISLATIVE ISSUES

Allow municipalities to respond to less serious juvenile behavior by expanding its jurisdiction to include the ability to subject juvenile offenders to civil infractions and/or mediation

Early intervention has been proven an effective means of changing young people's attitudes and behaviors. Because the current juvenile justice system is overwhelmed with serious offenses and offenders, many offenders who begin with lower level or less dangerous conduct receive no meaningful consequences until they graduate to the higher level.

According to the 1994 Anchorage Police Department Annual Report, juvenile arrests have increased 66% since 1990. Juvenile offenders have become increasingly dangerous and increasingly blatant regarding their offenses in the knowledge that the system can do very little to them.

Recognizing this situation, the Municipality of Anchorage would like the ability to respond to less serious juvenile behavior by expanding its jurisdiction to include the ability to subject juvenile offenders to civil infractions and/or mediation. This will allow the juvenile justice system to focus on the more serious criminal activity while assuring that juvenile offenders of less serious offenses receive more immediate consequences for their actions.

MUNICIPALITY OF ANCHORAGE
PUBLIC SAFETY PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM
LEGISLATIVE ISSUE

Allow the court to consider standard bail and sentencing factors and the best interest of the public in addition to the best interests of the juvenile.

The Alaska Juvenile Justice Code was adopted at a time when the reaction model to juvenile offenders had not yet recognized the importance of victim's rights or the degree of lethality now more common within it. Therefore, no goal other than the best interests of the juvenile was recognized.

Currently, the courts and juvenile authorities are not allowed to consider such factors as what is best for the public, the degree of dangerousness of the offender, or the offender's likelihood to re-offend, or any other factor beyond what is best for the juvenile.

Unfortunately, there are times when the interests of the public will differ from the best interest of the juvenile. The court should be granted the flexibility to respond to the myriad of potentially competing goals of the justice system. Amending the statute as proposed to allow consideration of all relevant factors, including the best interests of the juvenile will provide that flexibility.

This bill amends AS 47.10 in three ways. First, the bill includes certain violations of municipal ordinance with other lesser offenses where the Alaska Delinquency Rules do not apply where the offense is committed by a minor, such as traffic and fish and game violations. Second, the bill provides guidance to the juvenile court in determining conditions for the release of a minor pending a delinquency adjudication. Third, the bill provides guidance to the court in making best interest determinations in fashioning sentencing or treatment alternatives at the conclusion of a juvenile hearing. These are procedural changes and will not have a fiscal impact for the Department of Law.

Alaska Court System
Fiscal Analysis
CSSB 270 (FIN)

CSSB 270(FIN) makes two changes to existing law which have a fiscal impact on the court system.

Section 1. This section amends AS 47.10.010(b), to provide that if a juvenile is cited for a noncriminal offense under a municipal ordinance for which a conviction cannot result in incarceration or the loss of a valuable license and for which a fine schedule has been established under AS 29.25.070(a), the juvenile will be charged, prosecuted and sentenced in district court in the same manner as an adult.

It is anticipated that the major municipalities will create infractions specific to juveniles, such as curfew infractions. It is also anticipated that municipalities will create juvenile infraction substitutes for many existing crimes such as vandalism and shoplifting. The citations which are contested will come before the court system. Based upon statistics generated during the first two months of Anchorage's complex civil curfew system, and the per capita rate at which adults are charged with misdemeanors, this note assumes that section 1 will generate 6000 citations per year statewide. Noncontested citations may be paid directly to the municipalities; however, defendants may contest citations or enter guilty pleas at court. Thus, many persons subject to this section will come before a district judge and/or pay citations through the court's accounting system. This note assumes that one-third of juvenile citations will be run through the court system; this is the rate at which the courts deal with other municipal citations. It should be kept in mind that the rate at which juveniles contest citations will depend on the size of fines set by the municipalities.

Sections 2 and 3. These sections relate to the release of a juvenile pending a delinquency hearing, and allow for the imposition of bail as is done for adult defendants. These sections would require the establishment of administrative procedures and accounting for bail and appearance bonds; at the present time, Children's Court is not set up to accept any kind of cash deposit and has no operating accounting system.

Estimates from those judicial officers who currently conduct release hearings suggest that such hearings will be substantially lengthened because of the increased complexity of the issues which the judge must consider and which the defendant's counsel will dispute. At the present time, such hearings are scheduled in 15 minute time blocks, and this will be increased to thirty minutes. Over 1200 such hearings are held each year around the state, with the number increasing at a rapid rate as the juvenile crime rate increases. This note reflects the additional time for judicial officers and in-court clerks to hold bail hearings.

When a minor is held in custody, the court is required by Delinquency Rule 12 to hold review hearings every 30 days; such hearings are held over 800 times per year. This will give the minor's counsel regularly scheduled opportunities to revisit bail issues. This note does not reflect the extra time that will be spent on bail issues at the 30 day hearings.

The original version of this bill amended AS 47.10.090(c) to unseal and make available for public inspection, juvenile records when the individual is charged with a felony offense within two years of the date the juvenile records were sealed. Since the Department of Corrections is currently responsible for storing closed juvenile records, the amended section would have required an additional part-time Administrative Clerk III to work in central records, at a cost of $10.7 per year.

The CCSB 270(JUD) version of this bill has eliminated all sections of the original bill which dealt with juvenile records. Therefore CCSB 270(JUD) would have no significant impact on the Department of Corrections.
