Brief Biography of Joseph Hardenbrook

I enrolled at the University of Alaska Fairbanks as a National Merit Scholar in 1996. Since that time, I have been active on campus with the Associated Students of UAF, serving as a Senator, Senate Chair and Government Relations Director. I have also been employed with the Student Activities Office, the System Governance Office, the UA Museum and the UA Office of Budget and Institutional Research.

Currently, I am involved in the UAF Alaska Renaissance Project, a year-long educational pilot program linking project-based learning with public service and student life.

I have devoted a significant part of my college experience to university advocacy. For three of the last four years, I have traveled to Juneau to lobby for increased UA funding. I speak to incoming freshmen about the value of public service and community outreach as a part of a higher education. I make a point of recruiting and training incoming UA students to become the next generation of student leaders.

Last year, when I served as the ASUAF Government Relations Director, I created and organized all of the major student campaigns in support of the University of Alaska, including the Postcard to the Governor Campaign, Legislator Trading Cards and the Adopt-A-Legislator Campaign.

My main focus over the last year has been shifting the momentum from the University's successes in Juneau towards improving student recruitment and retention on campus. I am serving on the Search and Screen Committee for the new Dean of Enrollment Management, a position that will oversee and coordinate all aspects of student recruitment and retention.

I've been active outside of campus, participating in the Greater Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce UA Committee, and serving on the planning committee for the College Town Dinner.

In addition to my academic pursuits, I serve on the UA Museum Assessment Project Committee, the Student Success Initiative Statewide Working Group and the UAF Accreditation Physical Resources Committee.

I am a member of the UAF College Bowl Team, and I have been named Campus Champion each of my three years participating. I'm also a member of the campus band Mr. McFeely, winner of an Alaska Public Radio Network award.

In light of all my activities, I have made a strong commitment to academic achievement, being active in the UAF Honors Program and maintaining a 3.67 GPA. I have been named to the Chancellor's and Dean's Lists a total of five times.
