ANALYSIS: (Attach a separate page if necessary)

This bill amends the banking code to conform with federal law changes in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GBLA) to provide for Financial Holding Companies and increased ability for banks to provide related financial services. The bill also includes industry-requested changes such as publishing information electronically. Also, the bill allows the department to react faster to law changes and industry requests to maintain parity and competition between national and state-chartered depository institutions. No negative fiscal impact of this bill is expected.

SENATE CS FOR CS FOR HOUSE BILL NO. 106()
IN THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA
TWENTY-SECOND LEGISLATURE - SECOND SESSION

BY

Offered:
Referred:

Sponsor(s): HOUSE RULES COMMITTEE BY REQUEST OF THE GOVERNOR

A BILL

FOR AN ACT ENTITLED

1 "An Act relating to the authorizations for certain state financial institutions of certain
2 powers and limitations; relating to confidential records of depositors and customers of
3 certain financial institutions; relating to the examination of certain institutions subject
4 to AS 06; relating to the Alaska Banking Code, Mutual Savings Bank Act, Alaska Small
5 Loans Act, and Alaska Credit Union Act; amending Rule 45, Alaska Rules of Civil
6 Procedure, Rules 17 and 37, Alaska Rules of Criminal Procedure, and Rule 24, Alaska
7 Bar Rules; and providing for an effective date."

8 BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

9 * Section 1. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section
10 to read:

11 PURPOSE. The primary purpose of this Act is to implement banking and other
12 financial institution reforms in AS 06 in response to P.L. 106-102 (Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act)
13 in order to further this state as an attractive place for investment and other commerce

1 involving banking and other financial institutions.

2 * Sec. 2. AS 06.01.015(a) is amended to read:

3 (a) Financial institutions regulated under this title are subject to at least one
4 examination every 18 months [EACH YEAR]. The department may conduct
5 additional examinations at its discretion.

6 * Sec. 3. AS 06.01.020(a) is amended to read:

7 (a) Notwithstanding other provisions of this title, the department may by
8 order [REGULATION] authorize state financial institutions, except licensees subject
9 to AS 06.20 or AS 06.40, to exercise any of the powers conferred upon, or to be
10 subject to any of the limitations imposed upon, a federally chartered financial 11 institution doing business in this state with deposits insured by an agency of the 12 federal government [,] if the department finds that the exercise of the power or
13 imposition of the limitation both

14 (1) serves the public convenience and advantage; and

15 (2) equalizes and maintains the quality of competition between state
16 financial institutions and federally chartered financial institutions.

17 * Sec. 4. AS 06.01 is amended by adding a new section to read:

18 Sec. 06.01.028. Depositor and customer records confidential. (a) The
19 records of financial institutions relating to their depositors and customers and the
20 information in the records are confidential. A financial institution may not disclose
21 the records and information to another person except when, and only to the extent that,
22 the disclosure is

23 (1) authorized in writing by the depositor or customer;

24 (2) required by federal or state statute or regulation or by an order
25 directed to the financial institution and issued by a court or administrative agency of
26 competent jurisdiction;

27 (3) made to the holder of a negotiable instrument drawn on the 28 financial institution as to whether the drawer has sufficient funds in the financial
29 institution to cover the instrument;

30 (4) made to a consumer reporting agency regulated under 15 U.S.C.
31 1681 - 1681u (Fair Credit Reporting Act); or

1 (5) made in connection with the maintenance or servicing of the 2 depositor's or customer's account with the financial institution, or with another entity
3 as part of a private label credit card or other extension of credit on behalf of the entity.

4 (b) When disclosure of financial institution records is compelled by a 5 subpoena, a search warrant, or another court or administrative agency order under
6 (a)(2) of this section, the court or administrative agency shall provide in the order for
7 the reimbursement of the financial institution for the reasonable costs incurred in
8 complying with the order. Nothing in this subsection imposes a reimbursement
9 obligation on a government agency, or abrogates an otherwise established
10 reimbursement obligation of a government agency, when the financial institution is the
11 subject of an audit, examination, or investigation and disclosure is sought under a
12 federal or state law or regulation.

13 (c) Unless otherwise provided in this subsection, when disclosure of financial 14 institution records is required under a court or administrative agency order under 15 (a)(2) of this section, the financial institution shall notify the depositor or customer of 16 the disclosure before the disclosure is made. If notification before disclosure is not
17 possible, the financial institution shall notify the customer or depositor of the 18 disclosure as soon as practicable after the disclosure is made. However, notification
19 either before or after disclosure may not be made if disclosure is made under a court or 20 administrative agency order under (a)(2) of this section and the document requiring 21 disclosure requires on its face that the financial institution not notify or inform the
22 depositor or customer, or the document requiring disclosure is, or is accompanied by,
23 a court order that expressly directs the financial institution not to notify or inform the 24 depositor or customer.

25 (d) Nothing in (a) - (c) of this section prohibits a financial institution from 26 disclosing information to a person if

27 (1) the disclosure is necessary to

28 (A) provide the services of the financial institution to a
29 depositor or customer; or

30 (B) market financially related products or services of the
31 financial institution and its marketing partners; and

1 (2) the person receiving the information has a written agreement with
2 the financial institution to be bound by the requirements of (a) - (c) of this section.

3 (e) Nothing in this section authorizes the disclosure of information if 4 disclosure is prohibited by 15 U.S.C. 6801 - 6827 or the regulations adopted under 5 those sections.

6 (f) A financial institution or any other person who violates this section is liable
7 to a depositor or customer for damages caused by the disclosure of the confidential
8 records or information of the financial institution pertaining to the depositor or 9 customer. A financial institution or other person who takes an action under this 10 section while relying in good faith on any provision of this section is not liable under 11 this section to any person for the action.

12 (g) In this section, "financial institution" means a person subject to the 13 regulation of the department under this title, including a BIDCO licensed under 14 AS 10.13 (Alaska BIDCO Act).

15 * Sec. 5. AS 06.01.040 is amended to read:

16 Sec. 06.01.040. Examination policy. It shall be the policy of the department
17 to conduct, whenever reasonably possible, joint examinations with the Federal Deposit
18 Insurance Corporation or with the National Credit Union Administration of those 19 institutions subject to this title whose accounts are insured through those agencies
20 [THAT CORPORATION].

21 * Sec. 6. AS 06.01.050(3) is amended to read:

22 (3) "financial institution" means an institution subject to the regulation
23 of the department under this title; in this paragraph, "institution" includes a 24 commercial bank, savings bank, credit union, premium finance company, small 25 loan company, bank holding company, financial holding company, trust company
26 and savings and loan association.

27 * Sec. 7. AS 06.01.050 is amended by adding a new paragraph to read:

28 (4) "state financial institution" means a financial institution that is 29 organized under this title or that is subject to examination by the department under this 30 title.

31 * Sec. 8. AS 06.05.005(a) is amended to read:

1 (a) The department shall

2 (1) exercise general supervision over all state financial institutions and
3 their subsidiaries and affiliated corporations;

4 (2) adopt regulations necessary to implement this chapter, including
5 regulations providing for the retention and preservation of state bank records;

6 (3) review and approve or disapprove applications for new state banks
7 under AS 06.05.344, new bank branches under AS 06.05.399, and international bank
8 branches or interstate state bank branches [BRANCH BANKS] under
9 AS 06.05.555;

10 (4) issue permits authorizing certain acquisitions by bank holding 11 companies [TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE] under AS 06.05.235 and

14 necessary to operate under AS 06.05.305(a);

15 (6) review and approve transfers of state bank ownership under 16 AS 06.05.327;

17 (7) perform examinations of state banks, branch banks, and 18 subsidiaries under AS 06.01.015.

19 * Sec. 9. AS 06.05.050 is repealed and reenacted to read:

20 Sec. 06.05.050. Publication of reports. (a) Condensed forms of all reports
21 of condition required by AS 06.05.045(a) shall be immediately

22 (1) published by the state bank in a newspaper of general circulation
23 published in the place where the state bank is located; if a newspaper of general
24 circulation is not published in that place, the report shall be published in the 25 newspaper of general circulation published nearest to that place; or

28 (B) in the lobby of the principal office and all branches of the 29 state bank.

31 this section shall be posted in the lobby of the principal office and all branches of the

1 state bank. Upon request, a copy of a report of condition shall be supplied to any
2 person at no cost.

3 * Sec. 10. AS 06.05.065(a) is amended to read:

4 (a) A bank examiner of the department who deals with the regulation of 5 financial institutions, a special agent selected by the department to do work relating to 6 financial institutions, the commissioner or deputy commissioner, or the director of 7 banking may not be an officer, employee, director, trustee, attorney, shareholder, or 8 partner of a financial institution, or receive, directly or indirectly, a payment or 9 gratuity from a financial institution. A person subject to this section may not borrow 10 money from a state financial institution [THAT HAS A CERTIFICATE OF 11 AUTHORITY UNDER THIS TITLE], except as provided in this section.

12 * Sec. 11. AS 06.05.065(b) is amended to read:

13 (b) A person subject to this section may

14 (1) be a depositor in a financial institution;

15 (2) purchase shares of a savings and loan association on the same
16 terms available to the public;

17 (3) be a member of an employee credit union,

18 (4) be indebted to a state financial institution upon an installment debt
19 incurred by the employee in the purchase of goods for personal use only and 20 transferred to the financial institution in the regular course of business, including debts
21 for household goods, mobile homes, motor vehicles, or boats; or

22 (5) retain a preexisting extension of credit that was incurred before 23 commencement of the employment that subjected the person to this section; any 24 renegotiation of a preexisting extension of credit shall be treated as a new 25 extension of credit that is subject to the prohibitions of this section [BE

28 CLOSED BEFORE THE PERSON BECAME AN EMPLOYEE SUBJECT TO THIS
29 SECTION].

30 * Sec. 12. AS 06.05.205 is repealed and reenacted to read:

31 Sec. 06.05.205. Loans and extensions of credit. (a) The total loans and

1 extensions of credit by a state bank to a person outstanding at one time and not fully
2 secured, as determined in a manner consistent with (b) of this section, by collateral
3 having a market value at least equal to the amount of the loan or extension of credit
4 may not exceed 15 percent of the unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus of the
5 state bank.

6 (b) The total loans and extensions of credit by a state bank to a person
7 outstanding at one time and fully secured by readily marketable collateral having a
8 market value, as determined by reliable and continuously available price quotations, at 9 least equal to the amount of the money outstanding, may not exceed 10 percent of the 10 unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus of the state bank. The limitation in this
11 subsection is separate from and in addition to the limitation contained in (a) of this
12 section.

13 (c) The limitations contained in (a) and (b) of this section are subject to the 14 following exceptions:

15 (1) loans or extensions of credit arising from the discount of 16 commercial or business paper evidencing an obligation to the person negotiating it
17 with recourse are not subject to a limitation based on unimpaired capital and 18 unimpaired surplus;

19 (2) the purchase of bankers' acceptances described in AS 06.05.275
20 and issued by other banks are not subject to a limitation based on unimpaired capital
21 and unimpaired surplus;

22 (3) loans or extensions of credit secured by bills of lading, warehouse
23 receipts, or similar documents transferring or securing title to readily marketable
24 staples are subject to a limitation of 35 percent of unimpaired capital and unimpaired
25 surplus in addition to the general limitations if the market value of the staples securing
26 each additional loan or extension of credit at all times equals or exceeds 115 percent of
27 the outstanding amount of the loan or extension of credit; in order to be considered
28 under this paragraph, the staples must be fully covered by insurance whenever it is
29 customary to insure those staples;

30 (4) loans or extensions of credit secured by bonds, notes, certificates of 31 indebtedness, or treasury bills of the United States or by other such obligations fully

1 guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States are not subject to a
2 limitation based on unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus;

5 or establishment of the United States or a corporation wholly owned directly or 6 indirectly by the United States are not subject to a limitation based on unimpaired
7 capital and unimpaired surplus;

8 (6) loans or extensions of credit secured by a segregated deposit
9 account in the lending state bank are not subject to a limitation based on unimpaired
10 capital and unimpaired surplus;

11 (7) loans or extensions of credit to a bank or to a receiver, conservator,
12 superintendent of banks, or other agent in charge of the business and property of that 13 bank, if approved by the department, are not subject to a limitation based on
14 unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus;

15 (8) loans or extensions of credit arising from the discount of negotiable
16 or non-negotiable installment consumer paper that carries a full recourse endorsement
17 or unconditional guarantee by the person transferring the paper are subject under this 18 section to a maximum limitation equal to 25 percent of unimpaired capital and 19 unimpaired surplus, notwithstanding the collateral requirements set out in (b) of this 20 section; however, if the state bank's files or the knowledge of its officers of the 21 financial condition of each maker of that consumer paper is reasonably adequate, and 22 an officer of the state bank designated for that purpose by the board of directors of the 23 state bank certifies in writing that the state bank is relying primarily upon the 24 responsibility of each maker for payment of the loans or extensions of credit and not 25 upon any full or partial recourse endorsement or guarantee by the transferor, the 26 limitations of (a) and (b) of this section as to the loans or extensions of credit of each
27 such maker are the sole applicable loan limitations;

28 (9) loans or extensions of credit secured by shipping documents or 29 instruments transferring or securing title covering livestock or giving a lien on 30 livestock when the market value of the livestock securing the obligation is not at any 31 time less than 115 percent of the face amount of the note covered are subject under

1 this section, notwithstanding the collateral requirements set out in (b) of this section,
2 to a maximum limitation equal to 25 percent of unimpaired capital and unimpaired
3 surplus;

4 (10) loans or extensions of credit, arising from the discount by dealers
5 in dairy cattle of paper given in payment for dairy cattle and carrying a full recourse
6 endorsement or unconditional guarantee of the seller, that are secured by the cattle
7 being sold are subject under this section, notwithstanding the collateral requirements
8 set out in (b) of this section, to a maximum limitation equal to 25 percent of 9 unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus.

10 (d) Except with the written prior approval of the department for an acquisition
11 or merger with another financial institution, or except with the written prior approval
12 of the department in order to prevent loss upon an indebtedness previously contracted 13 in good faith, a state bank may not

14 (1) accept as security for a loan the capital stock of the state bank;

15 (2) accept as security for a loan the capital stock of the state bank's
16 parent holding companies, unless the stock of the holding companies is publicly traded 17 on a nationally recognized exchange; or

18 (3) loan money that is to be used to purchase the capital stock of the 19 state bank or a parent holding company of the state bank.

20 (e) The department may adopt regulations to administer and carry out the 21 purposes of this section, including, notwithstanding any contrary provision of this 22 section, regulations to define or further define terms used in this section in order to
23 establish limits or requirements other than those specified in this section for particular
24 classes or categories of loans or extensions of credit.

25 (f) For purposes of this section, the department may determine when a loan
26 putatively made to a person shall be attributed to another person.

27 (g) In this section, "person" means an individual, sole proprietorship, 28 partnership, joint venture, association, trust, estate, business trust, corporation, or any 29 similar entity or organization.

13 in order to further this state as an attractive place for investment and other commerce

L

1 involving banking and other financial institutions.

2 * Sec. 2. AS 06.01.015(a) is amended to read:

3 (a) Financial institutions regulated under this title are subject to at least one
4 examination every 18 months [EACH YEAR]. The department may conduct
5 additional examinations at its discretion.

6 * Sec. 3. AS 06.01.020(a) is amended to read:

7 (a) Notwithstanding other provisions of this title, the department may by
8 order [REGULATION] authorize state financial institutions, except licensees subject
9 to AS 06.20 or AS 06.40, to exercise any of the powers conferred upon, or to be
10 subject to any of the limitations imposed upon, a federally chartered financial
11 institution doing business in this state with deposits insured by an agency of the 12 federal government [,] if the department finds that the exercise of the power or
13 imposition of the limitation both

14 (1) serves the public convenience and advantage; and

15 (2) equalizes and maintains the quality of competition between state
16 financial institutions and federally chartered financial institutions.

17 * Sec. 4. AS 06.01 is amended by adding a new section to read:

18 Sec. 06.01.028. Depositor and customer records confidential. (a) The
19 records of financial institutions relating to their depositors and customers and the
20 information in the records are confidential. A financial institution may not disclose
21 the records and information to another person except when, and only to the extent that,
22 the disclosure is

23 (1) authorized in writing by the depositor or customer;

24 (2) required by federal or state statute or regulation or by an order
25 directed to the financial institution and issued by a court or administrative agency of
26 competent jurisdiction;

27 (3) made to the holder of a negotiable instrument drawn on the
28 financial institution as to whether the drawer has sufficient funds in the financial
29 institution to cover the instrument;

30 (4) made to a consumer reporting agency regulated under 15 U.S.C.
31 1681 - 1681u (Fair Credit Reporting Act);

1 (5) not prohibited by 15 U.S.C. 6801 - 6827 or the regulations adopted

8 (a)(2) of this section, the court or administrative agency shall provide in the order for
9 the reimbursement of the financial institution for the reasonable costs incurred in
10 complying with the order. Nothing in this subsection imposes a reimbursement
11 obligation on a government agency, or abrogates an otherwise established
12 reimbursement obligation of a government agency, when the financial institution is the
13 subject of an audit, examination, or investigation and disclosure is sought under a
14 federal or state law or regulation.

15 (c) Unless otherwise provided in this subsection, when disclosure of financial
16 institution records is required under a court or administrative agency order under
17 (a)(2) of this section, the financial institution shall notify the depositor or customer of
18 the disclosure before the disclosure is made. If notification before disclosure is not
19 possible, the financial institution shall notify the customer or depositor of the 20 disclosure as soon as practicable after the disclosure is made. However, notification
21 either before or after disclosure may not be made if disclosure is made under a court or
22 administrative agency order under (a)(2) of this section and the document requiring
23 disclosure requires on its face that the financial institution not notify or inform the
24 depositor or customer, or the document requiring disclosure is, or is accompanied by,
25 a court order that expressly directs the financial institution not to notify or inform the
26 depositor or customer.

27 (d) Nothing in (a) - (c) of this section prohibits a financial institution from
28 disclosing information to a person if

29 (1) the disclosure is necessary to

30 (A) provide the services of the financial institution to a
31 depositor or customer; or

1 (B) market financially related products or services of the
2 financial institution and its marketing partners; and

3 (2) the person receiving the information has a written agreement with
4 the financial institution to be bound by the requirements of (a) - (c) of this section.

5 (e) A financial institution or any other person who violates this section is 6 liable to a depositor or customer for damages caused by the disclosure of the 7 confidential records or information of the financial institution pertaining to the 8 depositor or customer. A financial institution or other person who takes an action
9 under this section while relying in good faith on any provision of this section is not 10 liable under this section to any person for the action.

11 (f) In this section, "financial institution" means a person subject to the

31 extensions of credit by a state bank to a person outstanding at one time and not fully

1 secured, as determined in a manner consistent with (b) of this section, by collateral
2 having a market value at least equal to the amount of the loan or extension of credit
3 may not exceed 15 percent of the unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus of the 4 state bank.

5 (b) The total loans and extensions of credit by a state bank to a person
6 outstanding at one time and fully secured by readily marketable collateral having a
7 market value, as determined by reliable and continuously available price quotations, at

9 unimpaired capital and unimpaired surplus of the state bank. The limitation in this
10 subsection is separate from and in addition to the limitation contained in (a) of this
11 section.

12 (c) The limitations contained in (a) and (b) of this section are subject to the

24 surplus in addition to the general limitations if the market value of the staples securing
25 each additional loan or extension of credit at all times equals or exceeds 115 percent of
26 the outstanding amount of the loan or extension of credit; in order to be considered
27 under this paragraph, the staples must be fully covered by insurance whenever it is
28 customary to insure those staples;

26 such maker are the sole applicable loan limitations;

22 establish limits or requirements other than those specified in this section for particular

Section Comments for Senate Finance Committee Substitute (Version R) for SCS CSHB 106(JUD)

Overview

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), enacted on November 12, 1999 is the most sweeping legislation affecting banks and other financial institutions since the Depression. Most believe GLBA will have a major impact on cross-industry mergers and affiliations, and customer privacy.

Many areas of GLBA will supercede existing state law. The purpose of this bill is two-fold with respect to GLBA. First, this bill makes changes to ensure there are no conflicts in the state banking code with GLBA. Second, the bill gives state-chartered banks powers comparable to those of national banks as a result of the implementation of GLBA.

Specifically, this bill contains provisions to provide for a new type of financial institution, a financial holding company. GLBA allows for a bank holding company to elect status as a financial holding company, and subsequently engage in activities that are financial in nature, or that are incidental or complementary to a financial activity. The state statute restricting a bank's ability to engage in insurance activities will be repealed, as GLBA authorizes this as a permissible activity. We believe our state statute addressing confidentiality of financial institution records to be stricter than, but not inconsistent with GLBA. However, we are modifying it and relocating it from 06.05 (Alaska Banking Code) to 06.01 (Administration) in order to provide this protection to all customers of financial institutions subject to this provision under Title 6.

Alaska has long had a provision in the Alaska Banking Code (at AS 06.05.175) that protects the privacy of customer information on record at a bank. This bill moves that section of law out of the Alaska Banking Code and into AS 06.01 (Administration). As a result, it extends the protections of the confidentiality provisions beyond banks to include credit unions and other financial entities.

The bill contains improvements to several statutes that were requested by the industry. These improvements include providing alternate methods of publicizing quarterly financial reports, eliminating the large financial requirement placed on bank directors, clarifying the legal lending limits for state banks, removing unnecessary restrictions on directors of mutual savings banks, and providing parity between state and federal credit unions.

The bill helps the department meet its responsibilities more quickly and with more clarity by amending the "wild card statute." The amendment allows the department to react faster to changes in federal law and to maintain parity and competition between state-chartered and national depository institutions. The bill clarifies from which institutions an employee of the department may borrow, and repeals the provisions of state statute that require national banks to file an application to establish an interstate branch.

Section 1 Gives purpose of the bill

Section 2

Section 06.01.015(a)

This section changes the examination cycle frequency requirement to every 18 months.

Old law requirement was "each year."

Section 3

Section 06.01.020(a)

Gives the department authority to respond more quickly to parity discrepancies between state and national banks (with some restrictions).

Old law required department to implement an emergency regulation in order to provide parity, which was more cumbersome and less timely.

Section 4

Section 06.01.028

This new section, as proposed by the division, provides for confidential treatment of customers/depositors records and clarifies when this information can be released and procedures to do so. This section provides for "opt-in" language with an exception for marketing partners of financial institutions for financial services or products only. This is more protective of an institution's customer/depositor information than the "opt-out" provision in GLBA. The "opt-in" language has been in Alaska statute for 30 years.

Old law was located in Chapter 5 (Alaska Banking Code) only. By moving this section to Chapter 1 (Administration), it applies to all institutions subject to Title 6.

Section 5

Section 06.01.040

This section provides for the department to conduct joint examinations with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA).

Old law did not include NCUA.

Section 6

Section 06.01.050(3)

To provide definition of the term "financial institution."

Old law did not define this term.

Section 7

Section 06.01.050(4)

Provides a definition of the term "state financial institution."

Old law did not define this term.

Section 8

Section 06.05.005(a)

Amended to insert "state" and "state branches" for clarity.

Section 9

Section 06.05.050

To provide alternate, cost effective methods for state banks to make public quarterly reports of condition such as posting the report at the bank's Internet web address, in the bank's lobby, or providing copies upon request.

Old law required costly publication in a local newspaper.

Section 10

Section 06.05.065(a)

Clears up a problem where an examiner, the director and commissioner can borrow money and not get fired.

The way the old law is written, we could get fired if we borrow money even from a national bank, which severely limits our choices of where to get loans.

Section 11

Section 06.05.065(b)

Amended to allow an employee of the department to retain a pre-existing extension of credit from any institution that was incurred prior to employment as long as it is not renewed.

Old law only allowed for a mortgage loan to be retained.

Section 12

Section 06.05.205

Provides state banks parity with national banks with respect to loan limits.

Old law did not provide parity.

Section 13

Section 06.05.209(b)

Permits a state bank to charge a market rate on credit cards it issues and provides an exemption from the legal rate of interest at AS 45.45.010.

Old law imposed a cap of 17% and specific fees for cash advances.

Section 14

Section 06.05.210(a)

Removes bank employees from special restrictions imposed on directors and executive officers, and liberalizes borrowing restrictions. It also clarifies reporting requirements, for executive officers and directors of state banks.

Old law imposed loan limits and reporting requirements on employees who had no influence or decision-making authority regarding management and direction of the bank.

Section 15

Section 06.05.210

Adds a new section that subjects all employees and directors of a state bank to the loan limits imposed at AS 06.05.205.

Old law did not impose this requirement.

Section 16

Section 06.05.237

New section provides for a bank holding company to elect to become, and have the powers of, a financial holding company.

Old law did not address financial holding companies, a newly created entity as defined in GLBA.

Section 17

Section 06.05.245

Amended to correspond with a change made to AS 06.05.230 in a prior year, which allows a bank to take title to property when extending a negatively amortizing loan.

Old law conflicted with AS 06.05.230.

Section 18

Section 06.05.272(b)

Provides parity with national banks on a state bank's investment in subsidiaries.

Old law imposed limits that did not provide parity once GLBA became effective.

Section 19

Section 06.05.301(u)

Inserted "state banks" for clarity.

Section 20

Section 06.05.350(d)

Prohibits use of the word "bank" in a business name unless the business is a bank formed under Title 6 or another state or federal agency, unless it is clear the business does not represent a bank (example Food Bank, Blood Bank).

Old law did not allow for use of the word "bank" in a business name where it is clear the business does not represent a bank (example Food Bank, Blood Bank).

Section 21

Section 06.05.350

Authorizes the department to determine when a person may use other forms of the word "bank" in its name.

Old law did not address other forms of the word "bank" such as banc, or banque.

Section 22 - 25

Section 06.05.426

Removes application requirement for a state bank to establish an off-premises ATM by giving 30 days prior notice to department.

Old law required approval from the department.

Section 26

Section 06.05.435(c)

Requires a director to own $1,000 in par value or market value of stock that controls the bank.

Old law was based strictly on par value of stock.

Section 27

Section 06.05.435

New section permits a director to use his/her equity interest in a bank holding company to satisfy the required investment in AS 06.05.435(c) and provides effective dates to determine value of investment

Old law required approval by the department.

Section 28

Section 06.05.550

Differentiates between an interstate state bank and an interstate national bank with respect the authority to branch.

Old law used one term, interstate bank, to refer to both.

Section 29 - 34

Section 06.05.555

Replace the term "interstate bank" with "interstate state bank" with respect to obtaining a certificate of authority to branch in the state

Old law required both an interstate state bank, and an interstate national bank to obtain a certificate of authority from the department.

Section 35

Section 06.05.557

New section requires an interstate national bank that is branching into the state to file a notice with the department

Old law required the department to issue a certificate of authority.

Section 36 - 40

Section 06.05.565

An interstate state bank is subject to Title 6 and corresponding regulations. An interstate national bank is subject to reporting requirements. Also adds a new section, which clarifies that an interstate national bank is subject to AS 06.05.548 (limitation on concentration of deposits in the state) and AS 06.05.550 (branching requirements in the state).

Old law provided that an interstate national bank is subject to all of Title 6.

Section 41

Section 06.05.570(a)

Requires application to the department if an out of state bank holding company acquires a state bank or bank holding company of a state bank.

Old law required application if an out of state bank holding company acquired any bank, including national banks, or bank holding company in the state.

Section 42-46

Section 06.05.990

Clarifies several definitions and adds some new definitions.

Old law was not clear in some cases and did not provide for some of the definitions.

Section 47

Section 06.15.100

Removes the prohibition against trustees of a mutual savings bank from borrowing from the bank, and gives them authority to provide services to the bank and to profit for providing services to the bank.

Old law prohibited both practices.

Section 48

Section 06.15.105

Permits trustees of a mutual savings bank to borrow from the bank to the same extent directors of a commercial bank can borrow under AS 06.05.210.

Old law prohibited borrowing.

Section 49

Section 06.20.010

New subsection, which clarifies that although some entities are exempt from licensing under the Alaska Small Loans Act, they will otherwise remain subject to the act.

Old law exempted these institutions from the entire Act.

Section 50

Section 06.45.020

Provides for a minimum par value of credit union shares.

Old law provided for a fixed dollar amount for the par value of credit union shares.

Section 51 - 53

Section 06.45.060

This memo accompanies a draft of the bill described above.

1. Title. The title in this bill draft returns to the title that came out of the House. So this draft does not require passage of SCR 16, the Senate concurrent resolution introduced in the Senate to authorize a title change in the Senate.
2. Consideration in sec. 06.01.028. There is an issue in sec. 06.01.028 that you should be aware of, although it may not present a problem in this version. The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 6801 - 6809, "Act") provides at 15 U.S.C. 6807 that a state confidentiality provision that provides more protection than the Act for the records of financial institution customers is not inconsistent with the Act, and is, therefore, not prohibited by the Act. The version of sec. 06.01.028(a) in this draft bill may provide more protection for the customer than the Act, because it includes sec. 05.01.028(a)(1) as well as sec. 06.01.028(a)(5). However, I cannot say for sure that the federal government would reach that conclusion. The Division of Banking has indicated that the federal government has suggested to another state that it would consider a provision with some similar features in that other state to provide more protection and, therefore, not to violate the Act.

If I may be of further assistance, please advise.

Financial Services Coordinating Council

Representing America's Diversified Financial Services Community

This booklet provides an overview of the comprehensive new federal financial privacy law that was enacted as part of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act of 1999. It discusses the reasons these rigorous new privacy provisions, which will not be implemented until November 2000, should be given time to work before any additional, and possibly counter-productive, rules are considered.

The booklet was developed by the Financial Services Coordinating Council, which is made up of the principal national trade associations from each of the five sectors of the financial services industry. The Council's members are the American Bankers Association, the American Council of Life Insurance, the American Insurance Association, the Investment Company Institute, and the Securities Industry Association. Each of these associations has made consumer privacy a top priority.

The Council wishes to express its appreciation to the author of this booklet — John Dugan, a partner in the law firm of Covington and Burling and an expert in the laws governing financial institutions.

The New Federal Financial Privacy Law

A Comprehensive Approach That Should be Given Time to Work

With the new financial services modernization legislation signed into law, a comprehensive and carefully constructed set of federal privacy protections is now in place for financial institution consumers. These rigorous new federal privacy protections, which are described below, are now being implemented by regulatory agencies and should be given time to work. States should not rush to change existing laws or adopt new laws that impose additional layers of privacy regulation. Such laws are likely to complicate implementation of federal privacy protections, and, at worst, will undermine consumer benefits that are built into the new federal privacy law. Instead of acting hastily, states should carefully evaluate the fast-track implementation of the new federal privacy provisions during the next year. Only then should states even consider whether additional steps might be appropriate.

Title V of the recently-enacted financial services modernization legislation, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (the "Act"), subjects financial institutions to one of the most extensive regimes of privacy regulation that has ever been imposed in the United States. As a result of the Act and other federal privacy statutes, including the Fair Credit Reporting Act ("FCRA"), financial institution consumers now have clear, comprehensive, and rigorous privacy protections.

For example, unlike virtually any other types of consumers, financial institution consumers must receive detailed annual disclosures regarding a financial institution's policies for collecting and disclosing their personal information. They must also receive prior notice and the right to "opt out" of the institution's transfer of their personal information to unaffiliated third parties (with limited exceptions). They are fully protected from the institution disclosing their account access information to third parties for marketing purposes. And the confidentiality and security of their personal information will be subject to extensive new standards that financial regulators are required to impose on financial institutions.

At the same time, these comprehensive new privacy protections expressly recognize that consumers benefit from financial institutions using consumer information for certain limited purposes. For example, the Act permits a financial institution to disclose a consumer's information to carry out a transaction initiated by the consumer; to provide a consolidated statement of the customer's balances held in different business units of a financial organization; and to provide discounts to a consumer reflecting the consumer's overall relationship with the financial organization.

In short, the new federal privacy law is a carefully constructed balance between the need to protect the privacy of a consumer's financial information, and the need to protect the consumer's benefits that result from certain uses of that information. During the next five months, federal and state financial institution regulatory agencies—the federal banking agencies, Treasury Department, Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Trade Commission, and state insurance commissioners¹—will issue “fast track” regulations that implement in detail this carefully constructed balance. (In fact, the regulators have declared that privacy regulations are their number one priority among the many new actions they must take to implement the broad new financial services modernization law.)

As the implementation of this new federal privacy law plays out, individual states should not rush to adopt privacy restrictions that go beyond those in the Act. As discussed in more detail below, the complexity of this new area of consumer regulation means that even the best-intentioned privacy law can cause significant and unintended consumer harm. A multiplicity of different laws in different states would also lead inevitably to tremendous customer confusion and increased consumer costs. Both states and the federal government will gain much experience and information from the implementation of the new law—and it would be helpful to have the benefit of that experience and information before taking additional action.

Set forth below is a detailed discussion of (1) the new privacy protections in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act; (2) the existing privacy protections of the FCRA and other federal statutes; and (3) the reasons why states should refrain from taking additional actions now.

¹ State insurance commissioners, which enforce the Act's new privacy restrictions as they apply to insurance companies, are encouraged but not required to adopt implementing regulations that are similar to those adopted by the federal regulatory agencies.

Privacy Protections Mandated By Gramm-Leach-Bliley

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act provides four fundamental privacy protections to financial institution consumers. Each financial institution must:

1. Clearly and conspicuously disclose to consumers—at least once each year—its policies for collecting and sharing the consumers' nonpublic personal information.
2. Afford consumers the right to "opt out" of disclosures of their nonpublic personal information to non-affiliated third parties, with limited exceptions.
3. Not disclose account access information of consumers to third party marketers.
4. Abide by new regulatory standards to protect the security and confidentiality of its consumers' nonpublic personal information.⁴

These four new privacy protections apply broadly to a wide range of consumers because of the expansive definitions of three of the Act's key terms. First, the term "financial institution" extends to any kind of regulated financial company, including banks, bank holding companies, financial holding companies, securities firms, insurance companies, insurance agencies, thrifts, and credit unions. But it also includes any other institution "the business of which is engaging in financial activities" as defined by the Act, even if the institution is not itself regulated (or is subject to less extensive regulation). As a result, the Act's new privacy protections will extend to consumers of such financial institutions as mortgage brokers, finance companies, and check cashers. And, because of the particular way in which the Act defines "financial activities," these new protections will even extend to customers of travel agencies, and possibly to customers of real estate brokers as well.

Second, the term "nonpublic personal information" means any personally identifiable financial information of a consumer that is obtained by the financial institution by any means, except for information that is otherwise publicly available. The definition expressly extends to any list, description, or grouping of consumers—including publicly available information about those consumers—that is derived using nonpublic personal information.

Finally, the term financial institution "consumer" means any individual who obtains financial products or services from the financial institution primarily for "personal, family, or household purposes."

In sum, these three definitions ensure that the Act's new privacy protections will apply to a broad range of personal financial information of consumers at both regulated and unregulated "financial" institutions.

⁴ In addition to these four protections, the Act prohibits the abuse of "pretext calling". No person may obtain or cause the disclosure of customer information from a financial institution by fraudulent or deceptive means.

Establishment and Disclosure of Privacy Policy

The Act's most basic new privacy protection—and perhaps its most important—is its fundamental disclosure requirement: Each financial institution must clearly, conspicuously, and regularly disclose to its consumers its policies for collecting and sharing the consumers' nonpublic personal information. This privacy policy disclosure requirement is far-reaching in three respects.

First, the required contents of the privacy policy sweep in a wide range of information that is important to consumers. In general, these contents must include the financial institution's policies and procedures with respect to:

- The categories of nonpublic personal information that the institution collects;
- The disclosure of nonpublic personal information to affiliates and third parties, including the categories of information disclosed and the categories of persons that receive the information (with limited exceptions);
- The disclosure of nonpublic personal information of persons who are no longer customers of the institution; and

- The protection of the security and confidentiality of nonpublic personal information.

Second, a financial institution must make this privacy policy disclosure to all of its customers, without exception. The institution's first disclosure of the policy must be made at the time the customer relationship is established, so that the customer can understand the institution's privacy policy at the time that relationship is begun. Thereafter, the policy must be disclosed once each year to the customer so long as the customer relationship continues—thus ensuring timely notice to the customer regarding any changes to the institution's policy.

Third, the institution's privacy policy disclosure must be "clear and conspicuous." This term is a widely-accepted regulatory standard, with a substantial body of precedent, that will ensure that the privacy policy disclosures will be made in a manner that an ordinary consumer will clearly notice and understand.

In sum, Congress plainly intended this broad new privacy policy disclosure requirement—which has not been imposed on any other industry—to make financial institution customers the most informed "privacy consumers" in the nation. The new disclosures will allow consumers to take privacy policies expressly into account in deciding whether to establish or maintain a customer relationship with a financial institution—or whether to avoid or terminate that relationship altogether. Such choices will also enable consumers to effectively exert their own market pressures to demand features of a privacy policy that are not already mandated by the Act—and companies that do not respond to the growing consumer concern over privacy will be punished in the marketplace.

Consumer "Opt-Out" of Disclosures to Third Parties

In addition to generally mandating full disclosure of a financial institution's privacy policies, the Act recognizes that one type of transfer of nonpublic personal information—i.e., to non-affiliated third parties—raises heightened concerns that warrant an additional layer of consumer protection. Thus, the Act's second basic privacy protection is this: a financial institution consumer must be given the means to prevent the institution from transferring the consumer's nonpublic personal information to a non-affiliated third party—commonly referred to as the right to "opt out."

Specifically, a financial institution is prohibited from disclosing nonpublic personal information to a non-affiliated third party unless—

- The financial institution provides the consumer the privacy policy disclosure described above;
- The financial institution clearly and conspicuously discloses to the consumer that nonpublic personal information may be disclosed to the third party;

- The consumer is given the opportunity, before any of his or her information is disclosed to the third party, to direct that the information not be so disclosed (the right to "opt out"); and
- The consumer is given an explanation of how to exercise the opt-out.

As a result of this protection, a consumer will be able to establish and maintain a customer relationship with a financial institution, yet prevent that institution from, among other things, selling or otherwise disclosing his or her personal information to unrelated third parties for marketing purposes.

Congress recognized that establishing this additional layer of consumer protection would generally provide clear benefits to the consumer. Yet it also expressly recognized that exceptions should apply in limited circumstances where consumers would benefit even more from particular types of disclosures to third parties, or where other important public policies required such disclosure.

For example, a financial institution need not provide an opt-out where the institution transfers customer information to third-party processors to service the customer's account (such as to prepare account statements). The consumer's information is protected, however, because the third party becomes subject to the same confidentiality requirements that apply to the financial institution.

Similarly, no opt-out is required for information that must be transferred to carry out a transaction that is authorized by a customer, such as a payment, debit, or credit card transaction. And no opt-out must be provided in order to: disclose customer information to a credit bureau; comply with a regulatory investigation by state or federal authorities; or protect against fraud or other unauthorized transactions.

Congress also expressly provided in the Act that an opt-out is not required in order for a financial institution to share information with a company within the same corporate family—an affiliate—as opposed to a non-affiliated third party. In doing so, Congress reaffirmed the general rule it had laid down in 1996 legislation (discussed below) that applies to all types of corporations (not just financial institutions): there generally should be no restrictions placed on the exchange of information among affiliated companies. The rationale for this conclusion, as explained below, is straightforward: consumers do not expect such restrictions, and the costs to consumers of imposing an affiliate opt-out far outweigh any potential consumer benefits.

With respect to consumer expectations, privacy concerns are simply not as great when information stays strictly within the affiliated business units of a single corporate organization with which the consumer has chosen to do business, rather than being sold to an unrelated third party with which the consumer has had no connection. The fact is that branching laws and other peculiarities of financial law have encouraged financial institutions to do business through separately incorporated affiliates rather than through separate departments within a single entity—to the point where some financial institutions operate through well over a hundred different affiliates. The Act effectively recognizes that consumers do not distinguish between these separate affiliates of a corporation any more than they do between separate departments or divisions of a corporation. Such technical legal distinctions simply do not warrant arbitrary restrictions such as an opt-out requirement.

Moreover, customers demand, and even take for granted, that information will be shared among affiliates for their benefit. For example, customers expect consolidated account statements; “relationship” discounts on products and services; fast credit approvals; and custom-designed products that are tailored to their individual needs. Congress recognized in the new privacy law that the government should not encourage consumers to “opt out” of these benefits, when the result would be costly dual information systems that would only result in increased costs for these very same consumers. Similarly, Congress did not want to hinder the fraud detection programs that also rely on information exchanges within a corporate organization.

In sum, Congress recognized that the fundamental premise of the financial services legislation is to permit diversified financial companies to provide value to consumers through integrated products and services; that integration can only occur through affiliate exchanges of information; and that consumers of diversified financial companies benefit from and expect that integration. As a result, the opt-out was not extended to affiliate information exchanges.

Prohibition on Disclosure of Account Information

The Act's third privacy protection for financial institution consumers is a straight prohibition: A financial institution may not disclose an account number "or similar form of access number or access code" for a credit card account, deposit account, or transaction account of a consumer to any non-affiliated third party for use in telemarketing, direct mail marketing, or other marketing through electronic mail to the consumer.

This strict prohibition was enacted in response to the limited but controversial practice in which some financial institutions reportedly provided third party telemarketers with direct access to account numbers of the financial institutions' customers. This practice allowed the telemarketers to access the customer's account directly to receive payment for a product offered by the telemarketers, even in circumstances in which the customer's consent to the transaction was unclear. The Act's third consumer protection provision makes such third party access to account numbers flatly illegal.

Regulatory Standards to Protect Security and Confidentiality

The Act's fourth consumer privacy protection derives from the straightforward declaration at the beginning of the privacy title that "it is the policy of the Congress that each financial institution has an affirmative and continuing obligation to respect the privacy of its customers and to protect the security and confidentiality of those customers' nonpublic personal information." This broad declaration is not merely a statement of intent, because a later provision in the law expressly requires the financial institution regulators, "in furtherance of the policy," to establish safeguard standards for financial institutions that—

- Ensure the security and confidentiality of customer records and information;
- Protect against any anticipated threats or hazards to the security or integrity of such records; and
- Protect against unauthorized access to such records that could result in substantial harm or inconvenience to the customer.

Thus, these broad new safeguard standards will help ensure the physical security and integrity of customer records.

Rulemaking and Enforcement

The Act imposes a comprehensive rulemaking and enforcement regime regarding the new customer privacy protections. The relevant financial institution regulators consist of the federal banking agencies (the Federal Reserve, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Office of Thrift Supervision); the National Credit Union Administration; the Securities and Exchange Commission; the Treasury Department; the state insurance commissioners; and the Federal Trade Commission. (The FTC will have jurisdiction over any institution or person that is subject to the privacy provisions but is not otherwise regulated as a "financial institution.")

The regulators are expected to issue final regulations implementing the Act by May 12, 2000. The regulations become effective six months after they are issued, which means the effective date will be in November of 2000. The regulators have already committed to meet this exceptionally short schedule, and have also committed, as the statute requires, to coordinate their efforts so as to produce similarly worded regulations.³

The result should be a comprehensive set of privacy regulations that will apply equally to every type of financial institution in the country. These regulations, like the statutory provisions they implement, will be enforced by the regulators using the full enforcement authority of their operating statutes. This means, for example, that regulators will be able to impose substantial fines and injunctive relief in order to remedy violations of the regulations and deter future violations.

FCRA and Other Privacy Protections

The Act's new privacy provisions will not displace in any way the many different privacy protections that are already in place under existing federal laws. Instead, the new privacy provisions will be layered on to the privacy protections that currently apply to financial institution customers.

Perhaps the most important of these existing privacy protection laws is the Fair Credit Reporting Act, which establishes two fundamental principles with respect to financial institution consumer privacy. Under the first principle, strict consumer privacy protections have been put in place for an especially sensitive category of personal information gathered by institutions. This sensitive category—sometimes referred to as "application" information—is information relating to a consumer's creditworthiness, credit capacity, or certain other characteristics used in making credit, insurance, employment, or certain other "eligibility" decisions about a consumer.

³ The federal regulatory agencies are required to consult with representatives of state insurance authorities in order to ensure that rules are consistent and coordinated at both the state and federal level.

Thus, information gathered from a consumer by a financial institution in a credit application—e.g., the consumer's statement of total assets—falls into this category. At the same time, however, the category does not include information gathered from the institution's direct experiences or interactions with a consumer—so-called "experience" information, such as the consumer's payment history with that institution.

Under the FCRA, an institution generally may not share application information with any unrelated third party—even if an opt-out is provided—without subjecting itself to extensive regulation as a "consumer reporting agency." In 1996, Congress amended the law to permit sharing of application information with an affiliate without triggering consumer reporting agency regulation, but only if the customer is provided the right to opt out of such sharing.

These two consumer protections in the FCRA for the sharing of application information with third parties and affiliates were not reduced in any manner by the new privacy provisions added by the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act.

Under the second FCRA principle, the sharing of information with affiliates (other than application information) is not subject to any restrictions—and contrary state law is expressly preempted. Until 2004, "[n]o requirement or prohibition may be imposed under the laws of any State . . . with respect to the exchange of information among persons affiliated by common ownership or common corporate control . . ."

Again, this express federal preemption of state restrictions on information exchanges among affiliates is not limited or reduced in any way by the privacy provisions of the Gramm-Leach Bliley Act.

Finally, the many other federal statutes that establish privacy protections for consumers, listed below, are also not supplanted or limited by the Gramm-Leach-Bliley privacy provisions:

The Electronic Fund Transfer Act
(EFTA) 15 U.S.C. 1693 et seq.

The Truth-in-Lending Act
(TILA) 15 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.

The Fair Credit Billing Act
(FCBA) 15 U.S.C. 1666 et seq.

The Truth-in-Savings Act
(TISA) 12 U.S.C. 4301 et seq.

The Expedited Funds Availability Act
(EFAA) 12 U.S.C. 4001 et seq.

(ECPA) 18 U.S.C. 2510 et seq.

(RFPA) 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq.

⁴ 15 U.S.C. 1681t(b)(2).

The Federal Trade Commission Act
(FTCA) 15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.

The Telemarketing and Consumer Fraud and Abuse Prevention Act

(TCPA) 47 U.S.C. 227

No Need for Additional State Action

In summary, with the new privacy provisions of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act added to the privacy provisions of the FCRA and other federal statutes, financial institution customers will be subject to a rigorous and comprehensive set of privacy protections that simply does not apply to virtually any other class of consumers. This is true even though other types of companies have privacy issues that are just as great, if not greater, than those of financial institutions (e.g., grocery stores and other retailers tracking customer spending habits in databases that are sold to third parties; Internet providers tracking an individual's web-surfing habits, such as an on-line bookseller that monitors a consumer's book browsing preferences for the benefit of advertisers; etc.).

States should give these comprehensive new protections for financial institutions time to work. Their privacy efforts should be focused, while the new law is being implemented, on other types of consumers that enjoy fewer privacy protections. And these efforts should also be focused on the careful implementation of the protections in the new federal privacy law as they apply to insurance company customers, which is a role that the federal law expressly reserves for state action. Moreover, in carrying out that role, states need to consult with one another and with the federal financial regulatory agencies in order to produce a consistent set of rules.

The new privacy law does not preempt states from ever passing additional financial privacy laws that go beyond the privacy restrictions of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. In fact, a provision in the Act makes clear that the Act will not preempt state laws that afford greater privacy protections to consumers than the Act's provisions. However, this provision clearly was not intended to serve as an invitation to the states to rush to pass new financial privacy laws—especially when the Act's new privacy protections have yet to be implemented. Instead, the provision was merely intended to clarify that the Act's new privacy provisions, unlike the FCRA provision that continues to preempt state restrictions on affiliate information sharing, are not intended to preempt most state laws.

Most importantly, it would be costly and counterproductive for individual states to impose new financial privacy restrictions now. The privacy issue is simply much more complex than it first appears. Given consumers' legitimate concerns about privacy, it may be possible for a state to pass more restrictive privacy provisions than are included in the new federal privacy law. But that approach would also risk choking off legitimate flows of information that produce real consumer benefits.

For example, excessive privacy restrictions could: significantly raise the cost of credit by making material credit information harder to obtain; increase fraud by allowing bad actors to prevent the disclosure of negative information about themselves; reduce innovation by making it harder to design new products to meet consumer needs; and decrease consumer convenience. While everyone wants their privacy protected, no one wants to needlessly incur these costs.

The rigorous new federal privacy law strikes a balance between these competing interests. As the law's implementation plays out, both the states and the federal government will gain much-needed experience as to whether the balance needs to be adjusted. In the meantime, without the benefit of that experience, it would be rash and unwise for states to risk adding well-intended new privacy laws that could result in real consumer harm.

One final point. A patchwork of different state laws will inevitably impose great expenses on what is increasingly an interstate financial system. Numerous and conflicting state approaches to financial privacy protection will also cause tremendous customer confusion about which rules apply. As the character of the market for financial services moves away from strictly local providers, the need for the uniform approach to privacy protection provided by federal action makes more sense. The new privacy protections in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act provide just such an approach.

In sum, Congress has acted to provide strong new privacy protections to financial institution customers. Federal and state regulators are now acting to implement those protections. States should refrain from taking additional actions now and instead allow the Act's new privacy protections to work.

Section Comments for SCS CSHB 106(JUD)

Overview

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), enacted on November 12, 1999 is the most sweeping legislation affecting banks and other financial institutions since the Depression. Most believe GLBA will have a major impact on cross-industry mergers and affiliations, and customer privacy.

Many areas of GLBA will supercede existing state law. The purpose of this bill is two-fold with respect to GLBA. First, this bill makes changes to ensure there are no conflicts in the state banking code with GLBA. Second, the bill gives state-chartered banks powers comparable to those of national banks as a result of the implementation of GLBA.

Specifically, this bill contains provisions to provide for a new type of financial institution, a financial holding company. GLBA allows for a bank holding company to elect status as a financial holding company, and subsequently engage in activities that are financial in nature, or that are incidental or complementary to a financial activity. The state statute restricting a bank's ability to engage in insurance activities will be repealed, as GLBA authorizes this as a permissible activity. We believe our state statute addressing confidentiality of financial institution records to be stricter than, but not inconsistent with GLBA. However, we are modifying it and relocating it from 06.05 (Alaska Banking Code) to 06.01 (Administration) in order to provide this protection to all customers of financial institutions subject to this provision under Title 6.

Alaska has long had a provision in the Alaska Banking Code (at AS 06.05.175) that protects the privacy of customer information on record at a bank. This bill moves that section of law out of the Alaska Banking Code and into AS 06.01 (Administration). As a result, it extends the protections of the confidentiality provisions beyond banks to include credit unions and other financial entities.

The bill contains improvements to several statutes that were requested by the industry. These improvements include providing alternate methods of publicizing quarterly financial reports, eliminating the large financial requirement placed on bank directors, clarifying the legal lending limits for state banks, removing unnecessary restrictions on directors of mutual savings banks, and providing parity between state and federal credit unions.

The bill helps the department meet its responsibilities more quickly and with more clarity by amending the "wild card statute." The amendment allows the department to react faster to changes in federal law and to maintain parity and competition between state-chartered and national depository institutions. The bill clarifies from which institutions an employee of the department may borrow, and repeals the provisions of state statute that require national banks to file an application to establish an interstate branch.

Section 1 Gives purpose of the bill

Section 2

Section 06.01.015(a)

This section changes the examination cycle frequency requirement to every 18 months.

Old law requirement was "each year."

Section 3

Section 06.01.020(a)

Gives the department authority to respond more quickly to parity discrepancies between state and national banks (with some restrictions).

Old law required department to implement an emergency regulation in order to provide parity, which was more cumbersome and less timely.

Section 4

Section 06.01.028

This new section, as proposed by the division, provides for confidential treatment of customers/depositors records and clarifies when this information can be released and procedures to do so. This section provides for "opt-in" language with an exception for financial institutions without affiliates, which is more protective of customer/depositor information than the "opt-out" provision in GLBA. The "opt-in" language has been in Alaska statute for 30 years. An amendment was made at the end of session, which changes it back, to "opt-out." BSC's proposed amendment restores the compromise opt-in language BSC worked out with the Alaska Bankers Association.

Old law was located in Chapter 5 (Alaska Banking Code) only. By moving this section to Chapter 1 (Administration), it applies to all institutions subject in Title 6.

Section 5

Section 06.01.040

This section provides for the department to conduct joint examinations with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA).

Old law did not include NCUA.

Section 6

Section 06.01.050(3)

To provide definition of the term "financial institution."

Old law did not define this term.

Section 7

Section 06.01.050(4)

Provides a definition of the term "state financial institution."

Old law did not define this term.

Section 8

Section 06.05.005(a)

Amended to insert "state" and "state branches" for clarity.

Section 9

Section 06.05.050

To provide alternate, cost effective methods for state banks to make public quarterly reports of condition such as posting the report at the bank's Internet web address, in the bank's lobby, or providing copies upon request.

Old law required costly publication in a local newspaper.

Section 10

Section 06.05.065(a)

Clears up: problem where an examiner, the director and commissioner can borrow money and not get fired.

The way the old law is written, we could get fired if we borrow money even from a national bank, which severely limits our choices of where to get loans.

Section 11

Section 06.05.065(b)

Amended to allow an employee of the department to retain a pre-existing extension of credit from any institution that was incurred prior to employment as long as it is not renewed.

Old law only allowed for a mortgage loan to be retained.

Section 12

Section 06.05.205

Provides state banks parity with national banks with respect to loan limits.

Old law did not provide parity.

Section 13 and 14

Section 06.05.209(b)

Permits a state bank to charge a market rate on credit cards it issues and provides an exemption from the legal rate of interest at AS 45.45.010 and subjects banks to AS 45.45.920, a new section dealing with restrictions on what credit card companies and banks can charge their services fees to merchant. Limit the fee to be charged only on the sale, excluding taxes. Our proposed amendments delete section 14 and other sections related to credit card limitations imposed in the previous committee.

Old law imposed a cap of 17% and specific fees for cash advances.

Section 15

Section 06.05.210(a)

Removes bank employees from special restrictions imposed on directors and executive officers, and liberalizes borrowing restrictions. It also clarifies reporting requirements, for executive officers and directors of state banks.

Old law imposed loan limits and reporting requirements on employees who had no influence or decision-making authority regarding management and direction of the bank.

Section 16

Section 06.05.210

Adds a new section that subjects all employees and directors of a state bank to the loan limits imposed at AS 06.05.205.

Old law did not impose this requirement.

Section 17

Section 06.05.237

New section provides for a bank holding company to elect to become, and have the powers of, a financial holding company.

Old law did not address financial holding companies, a newly created entity as defined in GLBA.

Section 18

Section 06.05.245

Amended to correspond with a change made to AS 06.05.230 in a prior year, which allows a bank to take title to property when extending a negatively amortizing loan.

Old law conflicted with AS 06.05.230.

Section 19

Section 06.05.272(b)

Provides parity with national banks on a state bank's investment in subsidiaries.

Old law imposed limits that did not provide parity once GLBA became effective.

Section 20

Section 06.05.301(a)

Inserted "state banks" for clarity.

Section 21

Section 06.05.350(d)

Prohibits use of the word "bank" in a business name unless the business is a bank formed under Title 6 or another state or federal agency, unless it is clear the business does not represent a bank (example Food Bank, Blood Bank).

Old law did not allow for use of the word "bank" in a business name where it is clear the business does not represent a bank (example Food Bank, Blood Bank).

Section 22

Section 06.05.350

Authorizes the department to determine when a person may use other forms of the word "bank" in its name.

Old law did not address other forms of the word "bank" such as banc, or banque.

Section 23 - 26

Section 06.05.426

Removes application requirement for a state bank to establish an off-premises ATM by giving 30 days prior notice to department.

Old law required approval from the department.

Section 27

Section 06.05.435(c)

Requires a director to own $1,000 in par value or market value of stock that controls the bank.

Old law was based strictly on par value of stock.

Section 28

Section 06.05.435

New section permits a director to use his/her equity interest in a bank holding company to satisfy the required investment in AS 06.05.435(c) and provides effective dates to determine value of investment

Old law required approval by the department

Section 29

Section 06.05.550

Differentiates between an interstate state bank and an interstate national bank with respect the authority to branch.

Old law used one term, interstate bank, to refer to both.

Section 30 - 35

Section 06.05.555

Replace the term "interstate bank" with "interstate state bank" with respect to obtaining a certificate of authority to branch in the state.

Old law required both an interstate state bank, and an interstate national bank to obtain a certificate of authority from the department.

Section 36

Section 06.05.557

New section requires an interstate national bank that is branching into the state to file a notice with the department.

Old law required the department to issue a certificate of authority.

Section 37 - 41

Section 06.05.565

An interstate state bank is subject to Title 6 and corresponding regulations. An interstate national bank is subject to reporting requirements. Also adds a new section, which clarifies that an interstate national bank is subject to AS 06.05.548 (limitation on concentration of deposits in the state) and AS 06.05.550 (branching requirements in the state).

Old law provided that an interstate national bank is subject to all of Title 6.

Section 42

Section 06.05.570(a)

Requires application to the department if an out of state bank holding company acquires a state bank or bank holding company of a state bank.

Old law required application if an out of state bank holding company acquired any bank, including national banks, or bank holding company in the state.

Section 43-47

Section 06.05.990

Clarifies several definitions and adds some new definitions.

Old law was not clear in some cases and did not provide for some of the definitions.

Section 48

Section 06.15.100

Removes the prohibition against trustees of a mutual savings bank from borrowing from the bank, and gives them authority to provide services to the bank and to profit for providing services to the bank.

Old law prohibited both practices.

Section 49

Section 06.15.105

Permits trustees of a mutual savings bank to borrow from the bank to the same extent directors of a commercial bank can borrow under AS 06.05.210.

Old law prohibited borrowing.

Section 50

Section 06.20.010

New subsection, which clarifies that although some entities are exempt from licensing under the Alaska Small Loans Act, they will otherwise remain subject to the act.

Old law exempted these institutions from the entire Act.

Section 51

Section 06.45.020

Provides for a minimum par value of credit union shares.

Old law provided for a fixed dollar amount for the par value of credit union shares.

Section 52 - 54

Section 06.45.060

Provides state credit unions parity with federal credit union powers for loan terms, allowable investments, and the issuance of credit cards.

Old law did not provide parity.

Section 55

Section 06.45.295

Authorizes state credit unions to establish, maintain and operate automated teller machines.

Old law did not address automated teller machines.

Section 56

New section AS 45.45.920 limits the fee charged to a merchant by a credit card company, or by a bank that issues credit cards, to the amount of the charge less any taxes imposed on the transaction. BSC's proposed amendments delete this section.

This is a new section.

Section 57

Repeals 06.05.005(b)(3), 06.05.175, 06.05.272(d), 06.05.990(18) and 06.20.330(a).

Section 58

Explains that AS 06.01.028(b) indirectly changes Rule 45 of Alaska Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 17 and 37 of Alaska Rules of Criminal Procedure, and Rule 24 of Alaska Bar Rules.

Section 59

Adds a new section to provide for transition regulations, giving the department authority to immediately proceed to adopt regulations necessary to implement the changes made by this Act. Regulations would take effect on the date of the statutory changes. BSC's proposed amendment changes reference to sec. 60 rather than section 63.

Section 60

Provides instructions for the revisor to change the headings of 2 sections of the banking code.

Section 61

States that Section 59 of this Act takes effect immediately under AS 01.10.070(c). BSC's proposed amendment changes reference to sec. 57 rather than section 59.

Section 62

Provides for sections 14 and 56 to take effect July 1, 2002. BSC's proposed amendment will delete this section.

Section 63

Except as provided for in sec. 61 and 62 of this Act, this Act takes effect July 1, 2001. BSC's proposed amendments will delete "61" and "62," insert "59", and change the date to 2002.

The Honorable Pete Kelly
Co-Chairman, Senate Finance Committee
Alaska Senate
State Capitol Room 518
Juneau, AK 99801-1182

Dear Co-Chairman Kelly:

Re: Request for hearing on SCS CSHB 106(JUD)

SCS CSHB 106(JUD) has been considered by the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee and by the Senate Judiciary Committee, and is now before the Senate Finance Committee. The Division respectfully requests that you schedule the bill for hearing by the Senate Finance Committee at your earliest convenience. The bill has a zero fiscal note attached, and we urge the Committee to adopt the amendments attached to this letter, and to pass the amended bill.

Amendments numbered 2-7 correct what we believe was an inadvertent action in the Judiciary Committee. At the end of last session, that committee inserted at page 3, lines 1-2:

(5) not prohibited by 15 U.S.C. 6801 - 6827 or the regulations adopted under those sections;

Statements by Committee members suggested this was just a technical amendment, not substantive. After a careful consideration, however, we believe this amendment, which references the federal Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), changes the privacy provision at AS 06.01.028 into opt-out. We believe the intent was to clarify that nothing in state law permits information sharing that is prohibited by GLBA, and our proposed amendments do that.

Amendments numbered 1 and 8-13 remove changes added in the Judiciary Committee that would prohibit a credit card company from charging a use fee on that portion of a bill that is tax. We oppose the current credit card provisions in the bill for several reasons:

First, we believe it could jeopardize the acceptance and issuance of credit cards to Alaskans.

Second, it is unfair on its face, since the credit card company is extending credit on the total amount, but is being prohibited from charging its normal fee on the total amount.

Third, it would be very complex and costly to implement, since some transactions such as a hotel stay may include several different types and rates of taxes.

Fourth, the argument made for excluding fees on tax could be extended to any number of other types of charges such as a tip on a restaurant bill, and this extension would seriously put the availability of credit at risk.

With those amendments, we encourage the Senate Finance Committee to pass SCS CSHB 106(JUD) for numerous reasons that we will provide to the Committee in a section analysis. For purposes of this letter, we will just mention that this bill will do a number of positive things that will benefit Alaskans and the financial services industry in Alaska. The bill

1. removes barriers to certain activities that are now permitted under the federal GLBA.
2. protects the privacy of Alaskans while allowing financial service companies the ability to offer more financial services as envisioned by the GLBA while leveling the playing field between large and small financial services firms.
3. provides parity between federal chartered institutions and state-chartered institutions.
4. reduces the regulatory burden of depository institutions related to automated teller machines (ATMs), and of national banks that seek to branch into Alaska.
5. puts directors of mutual savings banks on a par with those of commercial banks.
6. levels the playing field for state-chartered credit unions.
7. improves the ability of the financial services industry to provide information using modern technology, including the Internet.
8. closes a loophole that has been used in other states to make loans that otherwise would violate the usury law.

Over the past year, the Division worked closely with state-chartered banks and credit unions and with the Alaska Bankers Association (ABA). We believe that the bill, with the proposed amendments, contains provisions that can be supported by all parties. Unfortunately, the Alaska Credit Union League (ACUL) has not participated actively in this legislation, although their state-chartered members have. The Division recently participated in a teleconference with the ACUL and found the issues they raised were not significantly different from those raised over the past year by the ABA. We hope the ACUL will come to see that the language we developed working with the ABA will be acceptable to the ACUL. In our opinion, this bill provides too many benefits to citizens and to industry for it to fail.

We look forward to working with the Senate Finance Committee on this important legislation, and will use our best efforts to provide whatever information you may require as you consider this bill. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Re: SCS CSHB 106(JUD)

Dear Senator Donley and Senator Kelly,

I understand that the Senate Finance Committee will be considering SCS CSHB 106(JUD) for passage during the next session. At that time, Dr. Terry Elder and the State Division of Banking will request several amendments. These amendments include the removal of section 56, which addresses the calculation of credit card business use charges. The removal of this section is vital for passage of the bill, and is supported by the State Division of Banking and the Alaska Bankers Association. A few other changes simply solidify language on information sharing restrictions, and then renumber the sections of the bill based on the above changes. Finally, the effective date of this bill will also be changed to July 1, 2002. I would like to encourage you to adopt the bill with these suggested amendments.

The language in this bill and the proposed amendments will result in benefits for small, local banks such as Northrim, and also for our customers. Passage of this bill will put us on a level playing field with the large bank competitors who have affiliates that offer additional financial products. I encourage you to approve the amendments and to move the bill out of your committee with the language agreed upon by both the State Division of Banking and the Alaska Bankers Association.

RE: House Bill 106

Dear Senator Kelly:

As an executive officer of one of the smallest banks in the state, I would like to voice support for House Bill 106, which modernizes the state banking code in line with the spirit of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, passed by Congress in 1999. House Bill 106 is particularly favorable to small institutions, by providing us with opportunities to market and deliver financially related products and services to our customers on a level currently reserved for the big, nationwide banks.

A great deal of effort and compromise has gone into crafting an important piece of legislation that ensures Alaska is an active participant in the exciting future of financial services.

I appreciate your assistance in moving this bill out of committee in time for it to be heard on the Senate floor this session.

RE: House Bill 106

Dear Senator Kelly:

As President of the Alaska Bankers Association and President and CEO of Alaska Pacific Bank, I offer the following comments in support of HB 106. The Alaska Bankers Association represents all nine banks and savings institutions across the state, including both state and federally chartered institutions.

Our association supports HB 106 and the underlying intent to bring the state banking code into conformity with the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, which passed Congress in 1999. The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act was the result of years of work to modernize the laws governing the banking and insurance industries. House Bill 106 is beneficial to all banks operating within the state, but is particularly advantageous to smaller institutions.

The Alaska Bankers Association is asking for your assistance in passing HB 106 out of Senate Finance as soon as possible so that it may be heard on the Senate floor before the end of session.

Thank you for your assistance and support.

Sincerely,

Re: House Bill 106 - OPPOSE AS AMENDED

Dear Senators,

I am writing on behalf of First Data Merchant Services which provides credit card processing for financial institutions, such as First National Bank of Anchorage and National Bank of Alaska, that acquire credit card transactions from merchants. Respectfully, we must strongly oppose HB 106 as recently amended to prohibit charging fees on the sales tax portion of credit card transactions.

As currently drafted, HB 106 could have the unintended consequence of increasing costs to both merchants and consumers as well as extending the time it takes to use a credit card to pay for goods and services at Alaska merchant locations. Our system has no ability to separate the tax portion of a credit card purchase from the total amount of the charge. Redesigning our system to accomplish this would be extremely time consuming and expensive.

Our bank customers bear the risk of loss on the entire amount of the transaction, not just the purchase amount, so charging the discount fee on the total amount is reasonable and necessary. If fees are eliminated on the tax portion of the charge, banks are likely to simply raise the rates on the remainder of the charge in order to retain a reasonable fee for the services they provide.

Finally, due to the cost and time it would take to redesign our systems, some of our bank customers may choose to discontinue service to merchants in Alaska.

We would therefore request that HB 106 be amended to remove Section 55 from the bill, or that the bill not be sent to the full Senate for passage.

If you would like additional information please feel free to contact me at (720) 332-3778.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Pete Kelly
Co-Chair, Senate Finance Committee
Alaska Senate
State Capitol Room 518
Juneau, AK 99801-1182

Dear Senator Kelly:

RE: SCS CS HB 106(JUD) request fo. amendment

During yesterday's Senate Judiciary hearing, the division of banking, securities and corporations was asked to comment on amendment #2 that eventually was adopted by the Judiciary Committee before passing out the bill. When I provided testimony, I only commented on the first of the three parts of the amendment, when the Committee then accepted it and closed public testimony. We contacted Committee staff afterwards and expressed concern about what the second and third parts really do.

This morning, we are informed that the new subsection (3) is meant to reference 15 U.S.C. 6801 and that new subsection (5) will be totally rewritten to reference PL 106-102. This is extremely troubling, and we believe members of Senate Judiciary will also find it troubling. Both of those references are to the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), and appear to us to have the effect of changing the opt-in bill back to opt-out. Based on our conversations with Chairman Taylor and other Judiciary Committee members, we believe they are in agreement that it is important to maintain Alaska's opt-in requirement. Therefore, we strongly encourage the Finance Committee to remove the second and third parts of amendment #2 from SCS CS HB 106(JUD). These changes make the bill unacceptable to us.

In previous correspondence we have expressed our opposition to section 55 (of Version O, page 25, lines 10-25), the business use charge for credit cards. This section was added in Senate Judiciary. We maintain our opposition to this provision. It is unfair to the industry to prevent them from charging a fee on the total amount they finance. We believe the software and hardware changes this would require would create substantial added costs that would be paid by every Alaskan, or could even jeopardize the ability of people to use credit cards in Alaska. This section has no place in this bill, and we again ask the Finance Committee to remove that section.

"Promoting a healthy economy and strong communities"

We believe it is critical to pass this bill this year to avoid losing the privacy protection currently enjoyed by Alaskans when the less restrictive federal law takes effect in July. Thank you for your consideration of our request.

Yours truly,

American Express Testimony in Opposition to Section 55 of House Bill 106

Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, my name is Stephen Lemson. I am Director of State Government Affairs for American Express Company. Thank you for allowing me to speak to you about House Bill 106.

On behalf of American Express, we request that you oppose the proposed amendment to House Bill 106, Section 55, which prohibit a credit card company or a bank from including the amount of a purchase tax (sales tax, use tax and a tax on overnight accommodations) in the amount it uses to calculate the company's business use charge ("merchant discount fee").

Passage of this section would impose substantial harm on financial institutions and consumers alike through higher costs for Alaska consumers and Alaska businesses and a potential loss of business to Alaska retailers. The result would be to inflict significant damage to the state's economy.

It is virtually impossible for financial institutions to determine what portion of a credit card purchase results from the imposition of state purchase taxes and thus, is not subject to the merchant discount. Our systems simply are not designed to segregate the components of a transaction in this manner.

Forcing financial institutions and other participants in credit card payment systems to redesign their entire systems to identify what portion of a particular transaction pertains to purchase taxes and to collect detailed additional information with respect to each transaction would impose tremendous costs on the payment system, costs that ultimately will be borne by consumers in the form of higher prices for credit and/or retail products and services.

In addition, there is simply no policy reason for excluding state purchase taxes from the "merchant discount."

These "merchant discounts" are designed, in part, to compensate the financial institutions and other participants in the credit card payment system for the costs of operating the system and the risks they incur in doing so.

In addition, these costs and risks are present even with respect to the state purchase tax portion of the retail transaction.

For example, a credit card issuer needs to protect itself against the risk that it will not be able to collect the dollar amount of the transaction from the cardholder, including a portion of the transaction relating to state taxes.

As a result, such "merchant discounts" are appropriately imposed on the entire amount of credit card purchases, because this is the amount that the credit card issuer must ultimately collect from the consumer and are a legitimate cost of conducting business.

For these reasons, we respectfully request that you vote oppose the proposed amendment to HB 106, Section 55.

Thank you. I would be happy to answer any questions you might have.

Proposed Legislative Position for the Alaska State Chamber of Commerce

Title: Support for an amendment to House Bill 106 to remove language relating to the calculation of credit card business use charges.

Position Statement: The Alaska State Chamber of Commerce urges the Senate Finance Committee to support an amendment to remove language that restricts a bank or credit card company from including the amount of a purchase tax in the amount that it uses to calculate the merchant's business use charge.

Need for Position:

House Bill 106 which makes a number of important changes to the state banking code, passed the House 37-2. The House passed bill was the result of lengthy, technical hearings and careful compromise that led to a bill supported by both the administration and the banking industry.

In the last days of the legislative session it was amended in the Senate Judiciary Committee to include language to exempt all purchase taxes from the merchant discount rate. There was no testimony taken or notice given to impacted parties regarding this amendment.

Reasons for removing the purchase tax exemption are:

Financial institutions assume the liability for collecting the full value of the transaction, including taxes. The merchant fee is based on the full amount of the credit extended and processed through the system. These fees are negotiated individually between competing financial institutions and merchants for each merchant's business.

No other jurisdiction in the world has implemented such an exemption.

If Alaska becomes the first jurisdiction to implement such a restriction, each credit card company may have a different method of dealing with the law, such as:

- Allowing the system to be used for the base purchase only without taxes, leaving the merchant to collect the taxes by cash or check.
- Require two separate transactions for each sale, one for the tax and one for the product or service. (This would require major reprogramming of worldwide systems.)
- Pull out of the Alaska market since it is comparatively small.
- Implement the law in some way and raise the merchant discount rate for Alaska businesses.

The Honorable Brian Porter
Speaker of the House
Alaska State Legislature
State Capitol
Juneau, AK 99801-1182

Dear Speaker Porter:

This bill I transmit today allows state financial institutions to compete on equal terms with their federal counterparts by removing current restraints on the state's financial industry. These changes are encouraged under the federal Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act which permits the combining of banking institutions with insurance and securities businesses. Previous federal law prohibited this practice.

This bill allows the Department of Community and Economic Development to grant state banks those powers enjoyed by national banks in a simplified, efficient process.

The bill is patterned after federal law, but offers greater protection to depositor and consumer financial records. The state would use the more stringent practice of asking depositors and consumers to choose to allow specific disclosure of their records. Conversely, federal law and many other states allow disclosure unless the depositor or consumer specifically requests confidentiality.

The bill also clarifies and updates existing statutes, partly in response to discussions with the financial industry. For example, the bill allows state banks to publish their financial reports in electronic form or in a local newspaper, and simplifies the procedure by which state banks obtain authority to install off-premises automated teller machines. The bill also removes the statutory limitation on the interest rate and fees state banks may charge on credit cards and grants credit unions the authority to issue credit cards. These provisions will keep Alaska banks competitive with out-of-state banks.

As a means of modernizing Alaska's financial institutions, I urge your prompt and favorable action on this measure.

Sincerely,

Tony Knowles
Governor
