SPONSOR STATEMENT

HB 260

An Act relating to the State Officers Compensation Commission

Alaska's only real success in setting fair compensation for public officials came in 1977 and 1979, when the citizen members of the Alaska Salary Commission released reports on how, and how much, certain public officials should be paid.

There has been no impartial review of public officials' compensation since. A 1986 attempt to create a salary commission failed, because it was contingent on passage of a constitutional amendment that never passed. No subsequent attempt has gotten even that far, unless you count a 2006 executive decision that raised the salaries of commissioners.

Twenty eight years is a long time between salary reviews, and in the ensuing years a series of stop-gaps have grown up to meet immediate needs. House Bill 260 is an attempt to take a comprehensive look at the compensation the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, executive department heads, and legislators.

HB 260 creates a five-member commission appointed by the governor, with one of the members recommended by the presiding officer of each legislative house. The compensation commissioners serve without compensation and are staffed by the Department of Administration, at a cost of $7,500.00 per year for travel & per diem.

Under the bill, the commissioners would study state officers' compensation and submit a report at least every two years. The recommendations in the report will take effect unless specifically rejected by legislative action. Any increases in salary and benefits are subject to appropriation.

The unworkable provisions of the 1986 salary commission law, including the eternally delayed effective date, are repealed.

This is not an attempt to increase, reduce, or otherwise drive the direction of legislative and executive pay in Alaska. Significant trust is placed in this commission to come up with an equitable solution. But the problems with legislators establishing a compensation system that includes their own pay and benefits seem obvious – and unsolvable. It is the sponsor's view that the State Officers Compensation Commission is the best way to craft a viable long term solution.

SECTIONAL ANALYSIS

HB 260

An Act relating to the State Officers Compensation Commission

- Section 1: Changes the section describing legislative salaries, from a fixed $2,001 to an amount determined by the commission.
- Section 2: Changes legislative moving and per diem from a mandatory to an optional payment. Legislative council policy for these items shall be adopted in accordance with commission recommendations.
- Section 3: Changes the pay of the governor from a fixed amount to an amount determined by the commission.
- Section 4: Changes the pay of the lieutenant governor from a fixed amount to an amount determined by the commission.
- Section 5: Changes the pay of department heads from a limited range of options based on the salary schedule, to an amount determined by the commission.
- Section 6: Establishes a State Officers Compensation Commission in AS 39.23.
- .500 Commission has five members, state residents, appointed by the governor without confirmation. One member appointed from a list of two or more candidates selected by Senate President, one member appointed from a list of two or more candidates selected by Speaker of the House. Members serve staggered four year terms, two term limit, chair selected by members. Commission established in the Department of Administration.
 - .510 Members may not be state employees or serve on any other board or commission. Members may not have served in an office for which the commission makes a compensation recommendation in the four years prior to their appointment.
 - .520 Members serve without compensation but may receive travel and per diem.

.530 The Commissioner of Administration shall serve as ex-officio secretary of the commission, and provide staff and administrative services as necessary.

.540 The Commission shall review the salaries, benefits, and allowances of legislators, the governor, lieutenant governor, and commissioners and prepare a report of their findings at least every two years. They may request reports and other information from state departments. The Commission prepares findings by November 15, gives public notice, and solicits public comments. The Commission provides a final report and recommendations by the 10th day of a legislative session. Unless disapproved by law within 60 days, the recommendations take effect at the beginning of the next session (for legislators), or at the beginning of the next fiscal year (for executive branch employees.) There is no partial approval; either the entire set of recommendations is accepted, or none. A commissioner who disagrees with the majority may attach written objections to the report and recommendations. Recommendations that increase pay are not effective unless all increases are fully funded by legislative appropriations.

.545 Recommendations may not reduce the salary or benefits of a governor, lieutenant governor, or department head who took office before the effective date of the recommendations.

.550 Recommendations are filed with the lieutenant governor. Once effective, the commission shall certify them.

.560 Affirms Legislative policy that the commission shall recommend an equitable compensation package for legislators.

.600 Definition: "Commission" means "State Officers Compensation Commission."

Section 7: Repeals AS 39.23.200-400, the 1986 compensation commission law that was never implemented due to a delayed effective date clause.

Section 8: Repeals uncodified portions of the 1986 compensation commission law related to procedure, timing, and effects of commission reports.

Section 9: Uncodified section concerning staggered terms of initial appointments and procedure for calling the commission's first meeting.

Section 10: Uncodified section making Sections 1 through 5 (amendments to salary statutes) conditional on the receipt, acceptance, and funding of the recommendations described in Section 6.

- Section 11: Repeals uncodified portions of the 1986 compensation commission law concerning the delayed effective date contingent on a constitutional amendment.
- Section 12: Effective date of Sections 1 through 5 (amendments to salary statutes) is the same as the effective date of the appropriation that would follow acceptance of the Commission's recommendations.
- Section 13: Immediate effective date for the rest of bill.

Changes in HB 260

House State Affairs Committee

The House State Affairs committee considered HB 260, version 25-LS0659\M. The committee amended language stipulating members of the Commission may never have served in any of the offices or positions for which the Commission makes a compensation recommendation to state that members of the Commission may not have served in any of those offices or positions within the 4 years prior to their appointment to the Commission. (Page 2, Lines 18-19)

House Finance Committee

The House Finance committee considered CS for HB 260(STA), version 25-LS0659\K. The committee made no changes to the legislation.

House Rules Committee / House Floor

The House Rules Committee and the full body of the House of Representatives considered CS for HB 260(STA), version 25-LS0659\K. No changes were made to the legislation.

COMPENSATION COMMISSIONS

By Johanna Donlin

Legislators' pay is one of the more politically charged issues in today's state legislatures. Just the mention of a possible pay raise causes an instant rise in constituent mail and phone calls, not to mention the interest of the media. And a vote for an increase can have serious repercussions when the next election rolls around. Given these factors, legislators clearly recognize the difficulty in raising their own pay.

Twenty-one states use compensation commissions to provide an objective evaluation of legislators' salary levels.

In order to remove the issue from the political arena, 21 states currently use a compensation commission to provide an objective evaluation of legislators' salary levels. Members of the commissions are generally appointed by legislative leaders or the governor and represent a cross section of the citizenry. Sometimes, former legislators are included, but current elected officials and state employees generally are not. The commissions are given the charge to evaluate legislators' compensation, and make recommendations to the legislature based on a variety of objective criteria.

As they begin their evaluation process, the commissions collect a wide variety of information that usually includes the state's history on legislators' pay, how the current salaries compare with the executive branch officials, and whether or not salaries have kept pace with the consumer price index. Through public hearings, citizens have the opportunity to voice their opinions. Commissions make other comparisons between citizen and full-time legislatures, legislative session lengths, and salary and per diem levels in other states as reported in an annual survey by NCSL. They may also evaluate other aspects of compensation, such as travel and staff allowances, and supplemental stipends given to leaders or committee chairs. Each state's statutes or rules dictate the scope of the commission's jurisdiction.

One of the most important aspects of the commissions is their level of authority.

One of the most important aspects of the commissions is their level of authority. In California, Oklahoma and Washington, the commission has complete control over legislators' salaries. Their decisions cannot be overruled by the legislature. In Delaware and Utah, the recommendations take effect unless the Legislature votes against them. In many states, the commissions play a purely advisory role. The recommendations are presented to the legislature and the legislators are put in the position of voting on their own pay. Arizona is the only state that places the commission's recommendation on the ballot for a vote of the people.

 Never implemented; required a constitutional amendment that never passed.*

Generally, compensation commissions assess legislators' salaries and offer recommendations to their respective legislatures. The challenge comes when the recommendations are thrown back into the political arena and the members must once again address the question of raising their own pay. The legislators must find a salary level that will attract a diverse group of candidates and still be acceptable to the public. If the salary is too low, many smaller states fear that public office will only be an option for the affluent who can afford to take time off from their permanent jobs. If the salary is too high, the public will react negatively and voice their opinions through the ballot box. Depending on the current political climate, a pay raise may not be passed, despite a commission's strong recommendation to do so.

Compensation commissions assess legislators' salaries and submit recommendations.

In some states, the commissions are dormant. Colorado passed its recent pay raise through the legislative process, despite the presence of a commission in its statutes. Kentucky and Massachusetts both have commissions, but they have not met in several years. In fact, Massachusetts voters passed a measure in 1998 that gives legislators an automatic increase or decrease according to the median household income for the preceding two-year period.

Still, other states continue to explore the compensation commission option or refine their current commission's structure. Maine established their commission in 1998 and New Jersey passed legislation in 1999 to create its commission.

In 1999, Utah legislators changed the authority level of the compensation commission. Before 1999, the commission's recommendations were only advisory and the commission met every year. Now, the commission's recommendations will take effect unless the Utah Legislature votes against them and the commission will meet every two years. As in most states, any change in Utah legislators' salaries cannot go into effect until after the next election.

States with compensation commissions

This table contains a list of the other 20 states which possess compensation commissions. It also states whether the compensation commission is established in the state's statutes or constitution, and offers a brief explanation of how the commission works.

State	Statute or Constitution?	How does it work?
Alaska	Statute	Never implemented. Required passage of a constitutional amendment that was never ratified.
Arizona	Constitution	Commission recommendations are put on the ballot for a vote of the people.
California	Constitution	Decision of commission binding; has the effect of law.
Connecticut	Statute	The General Assembly takes independent action pursuant to recommendations of a Compensation Commission.
Delaware	Statute	Are implemented automatically if not rejected by resolution.
Hawaii	Constitution	Commission recommendations take effect unless rejected by concurrent resolution or the governor. Any change in salary that becomes effective does not apply to the legislature to which the recommendation was submitted.
Idaho	Statute	Information not available.
Illinois	Statute	Tied to employment cost index, wages and salaries for state and local government workers.
Kentucky	Statute	The Kentucky committee has not met since 1995. The most recent pay raise was initiated and passed by the General Assembly.

State	Statute or Constitution?	How does it work?
Maine	Constitution	Presented to the Legislature in the form of legislation, the legislature must enact and the Governor must sign into law.
Maryland	Constitution	Commission meets before each four-year term of office and presents recommendations to the General Assembly for action. Recommendations may be reduced or rejected.
Michigan	Constitution	If resolution is offered, it is put to legislative vote; if legislature does not vote recommendations down, the new salaries take effect 1/1 of the new year.
Minnesota	Statute	By May 1 in odd numbered years the Council submits salary recommendations to the presiding officers.
Missouri	Constitution	Recommendations are adjusted by legislature or governor if necessary.
New Jersey	Constitution	Information not available.
North Dakota	Statute	Information not available.
Oklahoma	Statute	Information not available.
Oregon	Statute	Nonbinding recommendation to the legislature.
Utah	Statute	Information not available.
Washington	Constitution	Salary commission sets salaries of legislature and other state officials based on market study and input from citizens.
West Virginia	Statute	Submits by resolution and must be concurred by at least four members of the commission. The Legislature must enact the resolution into law and may reduce, but shall not increase, any item established in such resolution.

Alaska Legislators' Sources of Income

Salary

Currently, Alaska legislators' salaries are set at $2,001 per month, or $24,012 per year (AS 24.10.100). This salary was established by the 19th legislature in 1996. The Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate earn an additional $500 a year in salary. Legislators' salaries are subject to withholdings and income tax.

Session Per Diem

Legislators earn session per diem for expenses incurred in Juneau during regular and special legislative sessions. It is tied to a per diem rate calculated for the city of Juneau by the federal government. Currently, that figure is $163 per day during winter months, and $218 a day during summer months. Legislators representing Juneau receive three quarters of the session per diem amount, or $122.25 per day in winter months and $163.50 in summer months. For non-Juneau legislators, session per diem is not subject to withholdings or income tax. Juneau legislators' session per diem is subject to withholdings and income tax.

Long Term Per Diem

Legislators earn long term per diem as compensation for individual days of service during the interim period. The rate is $150 per day for all legislators. It is subject to federal withholdings and income tax. A legislator must submit a claim for each day of long term per diem. Consequently, not all legislators receive the same amount of long term per diem on an annual basis.

Annual Allowance Payment

Each year, legislators receive an allowance option payment. The allowance payment can be taken as income subject to taxes and withholdings, issued as a taxable check, or deposited in an accountable office plan used for legislative office expenditures. Members of the House receive $8,000. Members of the Senate receive $10,000.

2006 Alaska Legislators' Compensation

This table summarizes effective pay for all 60 Alaska legislators in 2006. The National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) calculates effective pay by

	Salary	Long Term Per Diem	Effective Pay
Minimum	$24,012	$0	$24,012
Average	$24,029	$9,608	$33,637
Maximum	$24,512	$22,200	$46,212

adding legislators nominal salary and the amount of long term per diem they claim during the interim. They do not count session per diem or the annual allowance payment when calculating pay because not all legislators choose to use their session per diem or allowance option in the same way. The minimum values tell us the lowest salary, amount of long term per diem, and lowest effective pay earned by legislators. The maximum values tell us the highest salary, long term per diem, and effective pay earned by legislators. The average values tell us the average salary, long term per diem, and effective pay earned by legislators.

Compensation Commission History in Alaska

The following timeline describes the history of major changes to legislative pay, and the last active commission on compensation, the Alaska Salary commission:

- 1975 Legislature passes SB 404, "Relating to the compensation and retirement of judicial officers, legislators, and public officer and employees." This bill established legislative pay at $14,720, and established the "Elected Public Officers Retirement System."
- Aug. 1976 SB 404 is struck down by referendum, with over 80% of voters opposing the plan. Legislative pay returns to $9,000.
- 1976 Legislature passes SB 499, "Relating to compensation, benefits, and classifications of public officers and employees; creating the Alaska Salary Commission."
- 1977 Alaska Salary Commission releases first preliminary report. Report is submitted by commissioners Kathleen Diebels, Chairman, Kim Elton, Connel Murray, and Robert Heath.
- 1977 Legislature passes HCR 45, "Approving certain recommendations of the Salary Commission." Legislative pay set at $11,750 plus office expense and per diem. Legislature specifically rejected recommendations for biannual pay increases, mandatory PERS membership, and reimbursement of round trip travel to the capital.
- 1979 Alaska Salary Commission releases second report.
- 1980 Legislature passes SB 182, "Relating to the compensation of public officers...and repealing the Alaska Salary Commission." Adopts some of the 1979 recommendations, set legislative pay at $15,500, and dissolved the commission. Commission's demise attributed to complexity and breadth of its mandate (addressing pay of division directors, retirement system, etc.)
- 1986 Legislature passes HB 454, creating a new commission contingent on passing a constitutional amendment – which never occurred.
- 1996 Legislature passes SB 1003, setting legislative salary at $24,012.
